"First reaction to this amazing war novel is that no woman could have written of soldiers' reactions to their war experiences with such insight into masculine psychology. . . Later, with equal conviction, the reader realizes that only a woman could have understood so clearly how men and women reacted to the accelerated tempo of their lives. . . Highly recommended." H. R. Forbes

+ Library J 73:1273 S 15 '48 130w

"Because women have the greater penchant for grace, compassion and tenderness in their living and writing, they are at an initial handicap in approaching the subject of war. Martha Gellhorn has come closer to that subject than any other American woman writer. Her war is a 'Farewell to Arms' kind of intimate drama in which nothing is sacred but an individual's integrity and where courage and honor really have no meaning except in a very personal and a social way." Bennell Braunstein

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 O 3 '48 600w

"Ten years of first-hand observation of the fighting fronts in Europe and Asia have gone into this taut, tender, tough book; and many a reader will find her artistic transformation of this material even more absorbing than the tale she spins against and within it." Myles Green

+ N Y Times p44 O 17 '48 600w

"Strikingly minor."

— New Yorker 24:129 O 9 '48 100w

"As a writer, Miss Gellhorn is thoroughly professional—a good deal more than competent. Among America's women authors at the moment she is perhaps the most impressive in terms of ability, though there are others who may have a greater measure of talent. Her war novel whose extraordinary climax redeems it from any charge of being run-of-the-mill, should be read as evidence of this." V. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 O 24 '48 550w

"It is a surprisingly masculine novel. Even a woman war correspondent could not be expected to see war so completely as men see it. The narrative is focused on the men, and though it deals truly with both men and women the motives of the men are more clearly and firmly made known. The tone is masculine and the idiom, beyond and beneath the GI argot, is essentially man's idiom. . . Miss Gellhorn's novel brings the public war to bear on a private consciousness, on a man's hopes and wishes, on his humanity. Her novel, with its unfaltering outward reality, moves significantly inward, into human character and realization." Walter Havighurst

+ Sat R of Lit 31:36 O 9 '48 800w

GENAUER, EMILY (MRS FREDERICK GASH). Best of art. 182p 52il $7.50 Doubleday

759.1 Paintings, American 48-5541

An examination of 52 paintings which the author considers the most outstanding among those painted and exhibited in America in recent years. All were exhibited some time during the 1946-1947 season, altho some were shown during previous seasons also. Includes the work of some unknown artists as well as that of well known ones. Lists points of exhibition for each picture included from September 1946 to September 1947, and one man exhibitions of paintings, sculpture, and prints, held in New York during the same period.

Booklist 44:296 My 1 '48

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '48

Kirkus 15:687 D 15 '47 170w

"At first glance I was prepared to quarrel liberally with the arbitrariness of its judgment. After reading the text, however, I must admit that my chief objection is to the false emphasis of the title. The book is not so much concerned with the 'best' as with the nature, or quality, of what has been selected. This being first of all a picture book, it should be judged from that standpoint. Like many books of its kind it contains a generous sprinkling of color plates; but, unlike many such books, the color is, in general, more distinguished than the black and white illustrations. . . In addition to the pictures, the book will be useful to the librarian as well as to the dilettante, since it lists all exhibits in which each of the selected pictures was displayed throughout the year. Additional tables of group shows of national interest and of New York one-man shows contribute to the book's reference value." B. H. Hayes

+ — N Y Times p6 My 2 '48 360w

"Miss Genauer's opinions should carry some weight. For the past 15 years, as art critic-columnist of the New York World-Telegram, she has been seeing at least 50,000 paintings a year. . . It is too bad though that only 16 of the paintings appear in color." Edith James
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p11 F 22 '48 500w

Springf'd Republican p8B F 29 '48 120w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:123 Je '48 280w

GEORGE, JOHN LOTHAR, and GEORGE, JEAN. Vulpes, the red fox; il. by Jean George. 184p $2.50 Dutton

Foxes—Legends and stories 48-5871

Life story of a red fox born and reared in the Maryland hills. Playing the game of hunter and hunted with men and dogs, Vulpes' fame covers the countryside but at last his cunning and swiftness are not enough and man conquers.

Booklist 44:339 Je 1 '48

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun My 1 '48 150w

Reviewed by H. F. Griswold
Christian Science Monitor p6 N 11 '48 150w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 24:278 Jl '48 80w

"Without any sentimental slush, the author creates a sympathetic character. Excellent illustrations, reproduced in offset, amplify the feeling of natural beauty. A handsome book."
+ Kirkus 16:111 Mr 1 '48 100w

"Distinguished animal story full of the feel of the wild and the vigor of a life in that wild. . . Recommended for all children's libraries." S. J. Johnson
+ Library J 73:560 Ap 1 '48 70w

"John and Jean George have written a little saga which is full of poetic beauty and a deep love of the Maryland countryside, its woods, the river and the secret wildlife along its shores. . . This is a story boys and girls will long remember." Helen Masten
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 S 26 '48 270w

"Sensitive wash drawings are admirably suited to the restrained beauty of this really fine story of wildlife." Elizabeth Hodges
+ N Y Times p30 Ap 25 '48 140w

"An unusually good story of a wild animal."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:44 N 13 '48 40w

GERAHTY, DIGBY GEORGE (ROBERT STANDISH, pseud). Gulf of time. 238p $3 Macmillan

48-2397

"Before man's eternal lust for gold, the gulf of time which separates the Stone Age savagery of the cannibals of New Guinea and the streamlined pushbutton savagery of the 20th century, is bridged in one cataclysmic leap. If the white man's superimposed civilization corrupts and destroys the natives, the loss is only incidental, for 'progress' must be served. Author has fashioned this theme into a biting, adventure packed novel." Library J

Booklist 44:336 Je 1 '48

"Too soul searching for straight adventure, but story enough to carry the problems involved."
Kirkus 16:150 Mr 15 '48 170w

"Loses some of its impact because of stock characterizations. Recommended." A. J. Gaines
+ — Library J 73:652 Ap 15 '48 100w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Je 6 '48 300w

"It is an interesting idea for a novel, particularly in its terrible reflection on the civilization of the conquerors when confronted with the prospect of gold. But, unfortunately, Robert Standish does no more than state his theme, choosing to focus instead on a melodramatic story about an impossible Englishman and a spoiled Australian girl, whose beauty he invariably describes in terms of a thoroughbred horse. . . It's too bad, because Mr. Standish had an interesting idea, obviously knows his New Guinea and can be very convincing at times, when writing about his cannibals." Marc Brandel
— + N Y Times p16 Je 6 '48 490w

"As usual in this sort of story, an unlikely love affair serves only to hold up the action, but the River Malik is vividly described, and every so often the lively intrusion of cannibals revives the interest which the principal white characters are unable to sustain."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p641 D 13 '47 170w

GERALTON, JAMES. Story of sound; il. by Joe Krush. 74p $2 Harcourt

534 Sound—Juvenile literature 48-8679

Study of sound, its sources, and how it travels, written for grades five to eight. The author is an instructor of physics at Harvard.

Booklist 45:72 O 15 '48

Churchman 162:17 N 15 '48 20w

"It is safe to predict that this contribution of an instructor of Physics at Harvard will find its way round the world in translation as one scientist's invitation to the children to understand and enjoy the sound waves. It is simple, trimmed with beguiling pictures by Joe Krush."
+ Commonweal 49:153 N 19 '48 160w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:45 Ja '49 110w

"A pleasant, non-technical little book. . . This is just about what the average junior high school student (and his teacher) would like to know about how sounds are made, how they travel, how they are heard, and how musical instruments do their job. . . In format the book looks younger than this age group suggests, but the content would be definitely beyond the younger readers, with a few exceptions."
+ Kirkus 16:531 O 1 '48 110w

"Suitable for both school and public libraries." E. T. Dobbins
+ Library J 73:1520 O 15 '48 70w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ja 30 '49 130w

Sat R of Lit 31:46 N 13 '48 30w

Springf'd Republican p7C N 14 '48 120w

Wis Lib Bul 44:215 D '48

GERMANY. AUSWARTIGES AMT. Nazi-Soviet relations, 1939-1941; documents from the archives of the German foreign office as released by the Department of state; ed. by Raymond James Sontag and James Stuart Beddie; with an introd. by James Reston. 362p $3 Didier pubs.

327.43 Germany—Foreign relations—Russia. Russia—Foreign relations—Germany. World war, 1939-1945—Documents, etc. sources 48-3470

"A compilation of the captured German documents that trace the career of the German-Russian alliance during the early part of the war in Europe." New Yorker

Reviewed by Donald Wasson
Library J 73:712 My 1 '48 120w

"In spite of the stiffness of its diplomatic language, the record is dramatic and informative."
New Yorker 24:99 Ap 3 '48 140w

GERMANY. AUSWARTIGES AMT—Continued

"The documents are not easy to read, often leading to the conclusion that diplomacy is a pretty dull business for all concerned, but they are vitally important even at this late date because for once in diplomatic history the so-called 'common people' can see word for word how their masters push them around." R. F. H.

Springf'd Republican p10B Ap 18 '48 500w

Times [London] Lit Sup p253 My 8 '48 7350w

GEROULD, MRS WINIFRED (GREGORY). See Gregory, W.

GESELL, ARNOLD LUCIUS. Studies in child development. 224p il $4 Harper

136.7 Child study 48-7406

This book supplements the author's previously published accounts of his studies in child development and psychology, which are being carried out at the Clinic of Child development at Yale. The chapters in this book are grouped under three headings: Methods of approach; Patterns of growth; Clinical and social applications. Index.

"Readable but of more interest to other workers in child study than to most parents."

Booklist 45:4 S 1 '48

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '48

Reviewed by F. G. Slaughter

N Y Times p17 Ag 29 '48 320w

"As the reader will note as soon as he leafs over the book, the subheads for chapters sound pretty heavily technical. The fact of the matter is that the text, when you get into it, is in general not as difficult as these subheads might suggest. Some of the discussions are completely scientific, of course, and an understanding of them requires a working knowledge of the scientist's vocabulary. But such papers as Dr. Gesell's 'Genius, Giftedness, and Growth' are written for ordinary intelligent readers' capacity to take them in. Another example is the discussion of the handicapped preschool child and his adjustment, which, though it is written primarily for those having to do with public instruction, has little in it that the average reader couldn't find useful." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Je 24 '48 500w

School & Society 68:79 Jl 31 '48 10w

Wis Lib Bul 44:145 S '48

GEYER, ERNEST WESTELL, and BRUGES, E. A. Tables of properties of gases; with dissociation theory and its applications; with diagrams. 102p $3 Longmans

533 Gases. Dissociation

"Explanation of the principles on which gas tables are based, written rather for the engineer than the physicist. Properties include entropy, internal energy and total heat for a number of the most important gases, equilibrium constants and heats of reaction for some of the more commonly used hydrocarbons. Based on research of modern statistical thermodynamic analyses. Worked examples are included." Library J

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 73:950 Je 15 '48 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:39 My '48

GHISELLI, EDWIN ERNEST and BROWN, CLARENCE WILLIAM. Personnel and industrial psychology. 475p $4.50 McGraw

658.01 Psychology, Applied. Employment management 48-1744

In writing this book the authors have emphasized the need of using scientific methods and procedures. The choice of topics discussed no doubt is biased by the kinds of specific experiences that they have had in working with personnel problems in business and industry, but the endeavor has been to sample all the major fields that currently demand further study. . . It is the authors' hope that this book will meet the needs both of university students and of those in business, industry, and labor, who desire to obtain a foundation in the basic principles involved in the application of scientific psychology to problems of the worker." (Pref) Partial contents: The scientific study of human factors in industrial problems; Job and worker analyses; Criteria of proficiency on the job; Rating methods; Use and characteristics of psychological tests; The evaluation of tests; Examples of employment tests in use; Conditions of work and productivity; Effective methods of work and design of equipment; Accidents and the safety problem; Monotony. Index.

Library J 73:655 Ap 15 '48 60w

"The comparative neglect of the period since 1940, may imply to some readers that little of significance has been accomplished in recent years. This is not a fact, and it is undoubtedly not the intention of the authors to convey such an impression. The instructor using this text will certainly cover the recent and contemporary period in the lectures for which this text affords supplementary material. It is disappointing to find that the few references made to certain research cite only the less important results. . . For the instructor who is properly oriented in this field, who keeps in touch with recent developments, and who is not inhibited from incisive criticisms of experimental results either in the laboratory or in the office and shop, this is an adequate and useful text." C. A. Drake

+ — Management R 37:334 Je '48 290w

GIBBONS, ROBERT FAUCETT. Patchwork time. 323p $3 Knopf

48-5044

A portrait of a young man growing to maturity in a Southern town. At the same time it is a picture of the town, called Pineboro, and its assorted inhabitants, and their effect on each other, and on Johnny Somers who had come to teach in the high school.

"The Patchwork Time is a patchwork quilt in which here and there, the dye has run and marred the pattern. There is no doubt, however, that Gibbons has an important and original talent. He writes with a compassion and a concern for human dignity which mark a radical departure from the tortured violence of Caldwell and Faulkner." C. J. Rolo

— + Atlantic 181:108 Mr '48 300w

"A naked, wideopen exposure of human frailties and strengths that is not a book for everyone. . . A novel that explores the subtle fashioning of thought and action, that reaches the submerged compulsions and drives of character, that uses the violence of emotions for catharsis. A man's book, rather than a woman's—and one of which Public Libraries should take warning."

Kirkus 15:627 N 15 '47 200w

"This is an unsuccessful attempt at an intimate portrait of a sensitive young man's maturing. In spots the writing hints of Faulkner but it is inadequate to a convincing character study. . . Withal it remains a monotonous uninspiring story of slight appeal." E. P. Nichols

— Library J 73:39 Ja 1 '48 70w

Nation 166:283 Mr 6 '48 850w

Reviewed by John Farrelly

New Repub 118:28 Ja 5 '48 650w

" 'The Patchwork Time' is Main Street south of the Potomac, written with subtlety, peopled with three-dimensional men, women and children, admirable, detestable, pitiable, unforgettable. It is not surprising that a talented young Southerner can write authentically about a sensitive young Southern teacher of high school history, when he writes authentically about the middle-aged and the senile, about bobby soxers, junior Casanovas, nymphomaniacs, social climbers, bums, nice people, poor whites, poor Negroes and about tenuous relations among them." W. T. Hedden

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ja 11 '48 600w

"The total effect is roughly that of a detective story of sex—pace fast, dialogue thin-lipped, and plenty of suspects. However, Mr. Gibbons is after something more serious: the evocation, out of the mouths and minds of some of its typical characters, of a typical small town in the South; and the study of a young man's release, through a valid sexual experience, from the traumas and insularity of his adolescence. Mr. Gibbons' style of narration is heterogeneous but skillful. His writing shows an exuberant virtuosity that is capable of accurate dialogue, free-wheeling changes of pace and mood, and a telling placement of pungent words." A. S. Morris

+ N Y Times p5 Ja 18 '48 470w

"In order to keep his two stories together, Mr. Gibbons uses curious narrative and typographical strategems apparently inspired by the later works of James Joyce. This practice merely serves to make the time between stretches of fine orthodox writing—the kind that attracted attention to Mr. Gibbons' first novel—seem tiresome."

New Yorker 23:81 Ja 17 '48 120w

"Mr. Gibbons writes sometimes extraordinarily well. Sometimes, however, his use of certain methods—derivative, perhaps, from Joyce —does not quite come off. . . Just the same, Mr. Gibbons can write with remarkable vigor and frequently with genuine beauty." J. H. Jackson

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 13 '48 700w

"Robert Gibbons's second novel reveals a mature and sensitive mind at work on a theme that is tragic and yet somehow pathetically humorous. . . There are few modern novels that have been more deeply concerned with sex than 'The Patchwork Time' and certainly few that have treated the search for mature experience in either man or woman as tenderly and understandingly. . . There is a chapter that abandons consecutiveness and tries to tell the reader things he already knows in disconnected paragraphs. These monologues and diversions into experimental prose blur the outlines of a noteworthy and exciting novel. To this reader they are unnecessary and add nothing to a tale which is, on the whole, blessed with universality and simplicity." Harrison Smith

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:17 Ja 24 '48 1100w

"There is too much of everything in The Patchwork Time, too many recollections of childhood in the light of which maturity seems miserable, too many beers, too many fights, too many episodes all ending the same way, too many plots, too many betrayals, so that the reader's instinctive reaction is that it can't possibly be that bad, and that something fundamental has been left out."

Time 51:104 Ja 19 '48 900w

"Whether several of Mr. Gibbons's psychological theories are sound or not is beyond the capacity of most readers to judge. As a work of fiction his novel is flawed by its frequent departures from clarity into mere words. But there is real power in it too, and some extremely effective writing. Difficult and unsavory reading though it is, The Patchwork Time cannot be dismissed lightly." Orville Prescott

+ — Yale R n s 37:574 spring '48 250w

GIBBS, LEWIS, pseud. See Cove, J. W.

GIBBS, SIR PHILIP HAMILTON. The hopeful heart. 328p $3.50 Ziff-Davis

48-2899

A story of post-war England. The principal character is Francis Allingham, returned after three years in a German prison camp, to find things in a bad way at home, both in public affairs and in his own personal relationships.

Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 15 '48 250w

Kirkus 16:314 Jl 1 '48 130w

"While this is a good novel for summer reading, it has the added merit of being idealistic and the Gibbs standards of life are pleasant to read once more." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 73:1026 Jl '48 90w

— N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 S 12 '48 90w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 S 5 '48 220w

GIBBS, WILLA. Tender men. 246p $2.75 Farrar, Straus

48-5369

"Dakota farm boy cuts home ties to become a newspaperman. When he is down to his last dollar a Communist organizer picks him as usable material. Psychoanalyzed, schooled in Marxism and his trade, he becomes a valuable asset. Under severe stress he fails to follow directions and is sentenced to death. Exposé of Communist methods and strategy, individual equality but complete subjection of national and personal rights." Library J

Reviewed by D. Mosdell

Canadian Forum 28:23 Ap '48 100w

Christian Science Monitor p16 Mr 27 '48 420w

Kirkus 15:658 D 1 '47 160w

"The central character scarcely convinces, but the backgrounds of scene and action and the interplay of personality are dramatic and well carried out. Recommended." J. E. Cross

+ — Library J 73:122 Ja 15 '48 100w

"Until the end of the book, where the process of tying loose threads temporarily overpowers the narrative, this is a capable novel. Whether the reader agrees, is indignant or is merely unconvinced, he will certainly be interested."

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p22 F 29 '48 350w

"'The Tender Men' tells us nothing new: in its fashion it is as shamelessly thimble-rigged as Howard Fast's 'Clarkton,' and the fireworks that close its final inning simply do not compel belief. And yet, as tracts go, this is a first-class job: it deserves a wide reading." C. V. Terry

+ — N Y Times p6 F 22 '48 560w

Reviewed by Edith James

San Francisco Chronicle p19 F 29 '48 100w

GIBRAN, KAHLIL. Nymphs of the valley; tr. from the Arabic by H. M. Nahmad [drawings by the author]. 76p $2.75 Knopf

48-5471

"Three fictional parables. . . The first is the tale of the pure in heart triumphant over the evil doings of men; the second that of love enduring dormant for decades to find realization in another age; the third that of Yahauna, the Shepherd whom men called mad because he preached the living Christ rather than Christianity as practiced by the established church." Library J

"Although they partake of the mystical elements characteristic of Gibran, and have a certain Old Testament quality, I doubt that they will attain the popularity of his more mature works. If they do, it will be because of the cult element among the devotees of Gibran, for they are puerile little myths with little value or strength in themselves."

Kirkus 16:44 Ja 15 '48 120w

"Not necessary but welcome to all Gibran enthusiasts." H. R. Forbes

Library J 73:331 F 15 '48 80w

"If it is impossible to praise these stories, it would be surly to belabor them. Gibran's many admirers will want this volume to complete their collection. I cannot imagine that it would have much importance beyond that and the other non-literary consideration that it is a beautiful little book in design and execution." Robert Hillyer

N Y Times p27 Ap 18 '48 550w

"The three rambling stories . . . are couched in biblical language, and are decidedly more pretentious than meritorious."

— Times [London] Lit Sup p21 Ja 8 '49 170w

GIBRAN, KAHLIL. Secrets of the heart; selected works; tr. from the Arabic by Anthony Rizcallah Ferris and ed. by Martin L. Wolf. 339p $4.75 Philosophical lib.
892.78 47-12009

Translation of some of Gibran's early poems and meditations. Partial contents: The poet; Ashes of the ages and eternal fire; Between night and morn; The secrets of the heart; John the madman; The ambitious violet; The crucified; Iram, the city of lofty pillars; The day of my birth.

"If the reader can struggle past the welter of ill-advised adjectives in the preface to Secrets of the Heart, he will be repaid for his persistence when he comes to Gibran." B. D.
+ — Canadian Forum 27:286 Mr '48 350w

"The present volume is a translation of earlier writings than those which first brought Gibran to the attention of the Western world. . . While one may not share wholly the enthusiasm of the editor it must be said that he has done a splendid job and that his preface is an excellent introduction to Kahlil Gibran." T. C. Johnson
Christian Century 65:144 F 4 '48 600w

Reviewed by Helen Singer
Ethics 58:228 Ap '48 850w

J Philos 45:137 F 26 '48 120w

Reviewed by G. D. McDonald
Library J 72:1266 S 15 '47 80w

Reviewed by H. J. Forman
N Y Times p19 Jl 25 '48 450w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
— San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 13 '48 30w

GIBSON, WILLIAM. Winter crook [poems]. 46p $2.75 Oxford
811 48-5818

"William Gibson's style is beaten out of the styles of William Langland (Piers Plowman) and Gerard Manley Hopkins. . . There are 41 poems in the book and [Gibson] turns up in all but seven, and of these, three are devoted to Thomas Wolfe. A New Yorker now living and writing in Kansas, he has put the Mid-and-Far-Western landscapes into his poems." Chicago Sun

"What he has taken (decently) from the 14th century moralist and the 19th century Jesuit are transmuted into something new and beautiful and extraordinarily personal." Leo Kennedy
+ Chicago Sun My 31 '48 230w

"There are defects in the volume, of course —echoes that are occasionally too close, an overenthusiasm now and then for the massing possibilities of the rhythms. But the total effect is of brilliant accomplishment. There are critics who distrust this kind of competence, and look for the miraculous vision in a rougher mould. But lines like 'I heard on each rockface the lichen/Unpeel like a scab' are more than technique in the ordinary sense. Winter Crook does not establish Gibson for certain as one of the best American poets for the fifties, but it definitely enters him as a possibility." James Hall
+ Poetry 72:278 Ag '48 1200w

"Gerard Manley Hopkins has had too much influence on Mr. Gibson. All poets go through stages of imitation, but to become an acolyte to style is to miss entirely the premise out of which any style arises." T. H. Ferril
— San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 13 '48 30w

GIDDENS, PAUL HENRY. Early days of oil; a pictorial history of the beginnings of the industry in Pennsylvania. 149p il $6 Princeton univ. press
665.5 Petroleum industry and trade—Pennsylvania 48-9037

"When the oil industry began its history roughly ninety years ago in northwestern Pennsylvania, it was fortunate enough to have an unofficial and unsolicited recording secretary in John A. Mather, an Englishman by birth, a photographer by trade and a patient and astute worker by temperament. Mather took thousands of photographs and although many of the negatives were destroyed, enough remained for a permanent record of those hectic days . . . Relying mainly on Mather's resources, Paul Giddens has told this story by arranging hundreds of excellent photographs and binding them together with chapter introductions, captions and short running commentary." N Y Times

Current Hist 16:36 Ja '49 20w

"One need have no particular interest in the history of oil to become absorbed in this panorama. . . A review can do little more than indicate the wealth of this picture history and to say it is superb." Stewart Holbrook
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 D 19 '48 650w

"It is a pictorial supplement to Harry Botsford's 'The Valley of Oil' published two years ago, and it adds up to a fascinating bit of Americana as well as an engrossing history of one phase of a significant American industry." Thomas Lask
+ N Y Times p38 N 21 '48 290w

GIDDINGS, ARTHUR F. (ARTHUR BAKER, pseud). Short term. 216p $2.75 Duell
48-5710

A trial for murder is the occasion for this character study of a small American town. As the trial proceeds the judge, the sheriff, the defendant, the prosecutor, witnesses and spectators, all are portrayed.

"Not important."
Kirkus 15:682 D 15 '47 140w

"A good piece of writing but weakened by the preponderance of vulgarisms." M. P. McKay
+ Library J 73:335 F 15 '48 80w

Reviewed by Herbert Kupferberg
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Mr 7 '48 400w

"An unpretentious but better-than-average first novel. . . A couple of Mr. Baker's characters are too bizarre to be altogether credible, but the story is told with such smoothness and conviction that one is inclined to accept them without much argument."
+ — New Yorker 24:82 F 28 '48 120w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Mr 14 '48 100w

GIDE, ANDRE PAUL GUILLAUME. Journals, v 1: 1889-1913; tr. from the French, with an introd. and notes by Justin O'Brien. 380p $5 Knopf
B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. (47-30956)

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

Reviewed by Henry Rago
Commonweal 47:523 Mr 5 '48 950w

"It is a record of active literary life, of thoughts and impressions which went to the shaping of the author's method and outlook, and to some extent of the intellectual trends of France in the quarter of a century preceding the first world war. It is, however, little more than that. What one misses in it is precisely what one is tempted to look for in a work of this type—a sense of human presence. . . The translation is accurate, lively, and thoughtful. The editing is, if anything, too conscientious." Eugène Vinaver
Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 20 '48 750w

Reviewed by Rayner Heppenstall
New Statesman & Nation 34:512 D 27 '47 900w

"Perplexing, even disappointing, though the book may sometimes be it is never flat or commonplace. Throughout it is enlivened by the flickering movement of a naturally restless and constantly inquisitive mind, of a spirit that neither early security nor latter-day fame has ever lulled into quiescence."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p52 Ja 24 '48 1050w

"It took unusual courage for a publisher, even for one who has done much to bring European books of enduring value within the reach of American readers, to undertake the publication of Gide's lengthy Journals, first given out in full form to French readers on the eve of the Second World War. It took skill, taste, erudition, patience, and not a little love for a translator to devote himself to this task. Both have been rewarded by the exceptional quality and the impeccable presentation of this translation." Henri Peyre
+ Yale R n s 37:341 winter '48 900w

GIDE, ANDRE PAUL GUILLAUME. Journals; tr. from the French and annotated by Justin O'Brien; v. 2, 1914-1927. 462p $6 Knopf

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. (47-30956)

"The present volume of André Gide's Journals is the second of three scheduled for publication before 1950. . . Volume Two covers the crucial period in Gide's career. It records his habits of work—the long gestation and then the rapid writing. It gives evidence, too, of the foresight and deliberate unity of his career." New Repub.

Atlantic 182:107 Jl '48 120w

Booklist 44:367 Jl 1 '48

Reviewed by W. S. Rogers
Canadian Forum 28:158 O '48 1900w

Reviewed by Robert Halsband
Chicago Sun Je 7 '48 490w

Reviewed by Anne Fremantle
Commonweal 48:212 Je 11 '48 430w

Kirkus 16:162 Mr 15 '48 250w

Reviewed by Eugène Vinaver
Manchester Guardian p3 N 29 '48 120w

"The reader who advances into the second section of Gide's 'Journals' can be sure of a very nearly complete record of sincerity on all levels. The style takes its tone of truth from the material; the material is clarified by the style. In spite of our romanticisms the classic ring of absolute sincerity in writing is happily recognized by modern ears. . . Gide's 'Journals' are one biographical work of our period whose modern 'truths' are discovered, and then openly presented in a manner equal to their complex demand." Louise Bogan
+ Nation 166:636 Je 5 '48 1200w

"Beyond the external facts, and what makes the Journals more than a brilliant 'literary' memoir, is Gide's record of the inner personality, of his restlessness, scruples, prayers, resolutions." John Farrelly
+ New Repub 118:25 My 24 '48 950w

"What the reader will find here is an account, as moving as any in confessional literature, of man's anguished search for God, for redemption from evil, and for wholeness of being. The terms of this spiritual adventure are set by the nature of our contemporary society, and its outcome in a rational ethics rather than a mystical faith is therefore almost inevitable. That the adventure itself preoccupied Gide almost obsessively is attested by page after page of the journals. For the rest, there are other rich fruits there for the attentive reader; superb insights into literature, music and painting; memorable conversations with writers, like Proust, and statesmen, like Leon Blum and Walter Rathenau; thoughtful analyses of the social problems generated by a rapidly changing world." Lloyd Morris
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Je 6 '48 1300w

Reviewed by Harvey Breit
N Y Times p4 My 23 '48 1200w

"I am sure that Gide has given himself to his journal more freely than to any other book, or idea, or passion. Begun as an exercise, kept up in illness, in travel, in flight from work and as a constant stimulus to work, with many a grumble against its tyranny over him, it has become not only his best book but the symbolic center of his life—its armory, its apology, its supreme justification. If he has surprised himself by living so long, surely one reason has been his unwillingness to finish it." Alfred Kazin
+ New Yorker 24:91 Je 12 '48 1750w

"Physically the current offering is the twin of its predecessor, which itself took a national prize for beauty of general make-up last year. More importantly, it is also a twin in excellence of translation; the text is authentic and lucid, and it is supplemented with plentiful, but unpedantic notes. . . Although originally undertaken as disciplinary exercises in economy and 'purification' of style, and although they are by their very nature discursive and occasional, the 'Journals' seem to achieve an art . . . of their own. . . For many readers, it will be enough that they illuminate life." Kenneth Scholes
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Jl 4 '48 1000w

"André Gide's historical moment may have passed. But his justification seems clear in the eyes of the God whom he finally placed as the object, and not the cause, of human progress. He accepted his final role, too, and he gave to it all his intensity, his marvelous curiosity, his power and humility. The tone of the 'Journals' is often ironical or entertaining, sometimes theatrical, but that is the real story they tell, and that is why, probably before any other work of Gide's, they will become part of the historical record. Mr. O'Brien's translation seems to me, an outlander, a first-rate job." Maxwell Geismar
+ Sat R of Lit 31:14 My 29 '48 800w

Time 51:106 Je 7 '48 2750w

Reviewed by Henri Peyre
Yale R n s 38:162 autumn '48 800w

GIEDION, SIGFRIED. Mechanization takes command; a contribution to anonymous history. 743p il $12.50 Oxford

609 Machinery in industry. Technology—Philosophy. Industrial arts—History. Inventions 48-6357

A study of the evolution of mechanization in the last century and a half, its effects on modern civilization, and its historical and philosophical implications. The author, who earlier wrote Space, Time and Architecture (Book Review Digest 1941) is a Swiss historian and lecturer. He has "consulted not only the meager conventional sources, including our scant industrial histories; he has exhumed and exploited a considerable body of fresh and novel data on the rise of mechanization and its typical forms, the most conspicuous being the drawings in the United States Patent Office, where the hopes and aspirations born in the imaginations of American mechanical genius have found their ultimate resting place. The search for information relevant to his theme has taken the author behind the scenes in the automat, on inspection tours of American industrial plants, and to spend the summer on a working farm." (N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R) Index.

Reviewed by W. F. Ogburn
Am Hist R 54:91 O '48 750w

"Dr. Giedion's discussion is invariably informing, entertaining, and intelligent, though the space given to any particular field seems to depend as much on his personal interest therein as on its intrinsic importance." H. E. Barnes
+ Am J Soc 54:382 Ja '49 850w

Reviewed by Donald Horton
Am Soc R 13:641 O '48 800w

Booklist 44:363 Jl 1 '48

Reviewed by Stanley Pargelli
Chicago Sun D 29 '48 650w

Kirkus 16:185 Ap 1 '48 130w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
+ Library J 73:819 My 15 '48 110w

Reviewed by J. R. Newman
New Repub 119:21 Ag 9 '48 2700w

"Dr. Giedion's pages are crowded with new and fascinating personages with ideas so familiar we have lost sight of their importance, or so half-realized they have been forgotten. . . In presenting his necessarily diffuse body of material, Dr Giedion has disciplined it into a tightly organized literary form. Because the book deals with art forms and objects, it is richly illustrated, and its 500 plates are closely integrated with the text. Typographical as well as chronological divisions are employed. The history of styles is the warp of the book, the history of types its woof." Frederick Gutheim

GIEDION, SIGFRIED—Continued

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 My 16 '48 1700w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:71 S '48

"It is a provocative, enlightening, sometimes frightening story which the author of 'Space, Time and Architecture' (he has also lectured at Harvard and Yale and is presently at the Federal Institute of Technology, Zurich) tells." Thomas Sugrue

+ N Y Times p4 My 16 '48 1400w

"With great pertinacity Giedion has salvaged and appraised some extraordinarily interesting material. By no means all of this book deals with building and furnishing . . . but to such matters of concern to architects as the designing of the Yale lock, the transformation of the kitchen by the efficiency engineer, and the invention of adjustable furniture Giedion has made a rich and original contribution. A most important fact about his book is that, for all his patient research and audacious conclusions, he does not, like Le Corbusier, assume an attitude of pious adoration before the machine. . . No one has done this particular job before, and no one should have to do it again in our generation. Giedion, who has recently demanded a new monumentality in modern architecture, has himself created a monument." Lewis Mumford

+ New Yorker 24:84 My 15 '48 420w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 21 '48 800w

Reviewed by Roger Burlingame

Sat R of Lit 31:22 Je 12 '48 900w

"Many people have wondered what mechanization is doing to man; nobody yet has investigated, documented, and illustrated the question to the extent of this enormous and fascinating book."

+ Time 51:110 My 17 '48 600w

"Here is a fascinating, human, and sometimes exasperating book—a book almost as varied and well illustrated and certainly as much a mirror of our time, in content and manner of presentation, as a mail-order catalogue; and one, too, that changes the subject nearly as often. . . Dr. Giedion's grand tour through our lives is dizzy, exciting, profitable. . . Dr. Giedion has written a book that is not only excellent but noble. In it a foreigner without preaching or self-consciousness has shown Americans what they have been, are, and might become." John Storck

+ Yale R n s 38:180 autumn '48 850w

GILBERG, AAGE. Eskimo doctor; tr. by Karin Elliot; il. with phot. by the author. 229p $3 Norton

919.8 Greenland—Description and travel. Eskimos. Physicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 48-2863

An account of a Danish physician's year (1938-39) as district doctor in the Thule region of Greenland.

Booklist 44:380 Jl 15 '48

Kirkus 16:326 Jl 1 '48 220w

Manchester Guardian p3 F 10 '48 210w

"This year of polar experience is told with such disarming simplicity that the adventure of it is easy to miss, but there are enough touch-and-go moments to last most people a lifetime. . . [Dr. Gilberg's] is an unassuming account of a strange, brave year. The Gilbergs would no doubt object to the word brave. Their Arctic is warm with friendliness, and stripped of heroics, though a challenge to stout hearts." Margaret Hubbard

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Ag 15 '48 750w

Reviewed by F. G. Slaughter

N Y Times p17 Ag 29 '48 360w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 5 '48 140w

"A certain smugness and over-heartiness mar this otherwise extremely interesting account of the far north of Greenland. . . The translation is clumsy, which may partly account for the impression of naïveté, but the many photographs, Dr. Gilberg's own, are both informative and charming."

+ — Spec 180:596 My 14 '48 280w

Springf'd Republican p10B S 5 '48 300w

Times [London] Lit Sup p88 F 14 '48 900w

Wis Lib Bul 44:163 O '48

GILBERT, ALLAN H. On the composition of Paradise lost; a study of the ordering and insertion of material. 185p $3.50 Univ. of N.C. press

821 Milton, John—Paradise lost 47-11312

Assuming that much of Paradise Lost was dictated piecemeal after Milton became blind, Professor Gilbert attempts "to discover those portions of the poem that seem to exhibit the results of the process in order to try to arrange them in the order of their composition. He is convinced that certain portions of Books IV, VIII, XI, and XII, and smaller excerpts from Books III, IX, and X are among the earliest written portions of the poem, and that they were put in their proper places as the poem developed. The revisional processes are assumed to be many and constant, and the rearrangements to have gone forward ceaselessly before the poem took the form in which it was printed in 1667 and 1674." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Index.

Christian Century 65:176 F 11 '48 380w

"Mr. Gilbert's confidence in his procedure is so great that he has felt able to reduce his findings to precise mathematical form. . . It is unnecessary to emphasize the importance these conclusions would have if they could be accepted. We should be able to recover Milton's precise intentions with a certainty hitherto impossible, and we should know all that could be wished about this method of work. It is therefore almost disappointing to have to report that Mr. Gilbert's conclusions cannot be regarded as established." Ernest Sirluck

Mod Philol 45:273 My '48 1600w

"A work of this kind must take into consideration a vast complexity of all known factors involved, and only careful, intensive study of all phases of the poem can determine the validity of Professor Gilbert's judgments. But he is plausible in his presentation; his work is a stimulating excursion into a realm that has been very little explored; and the study could become the first in a new direction and a guidepost for further study."

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:14 Mr '48 240w

GILBERT, ANTHONY, pseud. See Malleson, L. B.

GILBERT, E. ALBERT. Insurance and your security; foreword by Albert Deutsch. 258p $3 Rinehart

368.3 Insurance, Life 48-6585

Practical advice on buying insurance. Describes different types of insurance, including GI insurance, and analyzes each according to advantage and purpose for which each type is best. No index.

Booklist 44:363 Jl 1 '48

"The purpose of the book is to help the layman plan for protection,—life, health, accident, annuity—but there is so much about the 'racket' in life insurance and its branches, and so many statistics, charts, etc., that it needs careful study if it is to do the job intended."

Kirkus 16:70 F 1 '48 220w

Reviewed by M. S. Stewart

Nation 166:583 My 22 '48 450w

Wis Lib Bul 44:162 O '48

GILBERT, HELEN EARLE. Dr Trotter and his big gold watch; pictures by Margaret Bradfield. [32p] $2 Abingdon—Cokesbury

48-8295

Picture book revealing the secret of Dr Trotter's "way with children." For ages 4-7.

Booklist 45:72 O 15 '48

Kirkus 16:476 S 15 '48 70w

"Good new material for any picture book collection." S. J. Johnson

+ Library J 73:1600 N 1 '48 90w

"The large print, plenteous margins and humorously natural colored illustrations help make this story one that young listeners and beginning readers will enjoy." S. C. Gross

+ N Y Times p4 N 14 '48 110w

Springf'd Republican p12C D 12 '48 90w

Wis Lib Bul 44:186 N '48

GILKEY, JAMES GORDON. Gaining the faith you need. 118p $2 Macmillan

248 Faith 48-9143

A book by the pastor of the South Congregational Church of Springfield, Massachusetts. "Dr. Gilkey is convinced that our religious difficulties come from intellectual confusion rather than a purpose to do wrong, and he seeks to clarify our understanding of what is meant by faith." (Springf'd Republican)

"The pastor of the South Congregational Church of Springfield, Mass., is one of the best known preachers in liberal Protestant circles and is much in demand at our schools and colleges and for conferences of ministers and laymen. His message is particularly acceptable in intellectual circles among those who have become thoroughly imbued with the point of view of modern science and are wondering what is left for religion."

+ Kirkus 16:511 O 1 '48 170w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 D 19 '48 200w

+ Springf'd Republican p7C N 14 '48 300w

GILL, ERIC. Letters; ed. by Walter Shewring. 480p il $5 Devin-Adair

B or 92 48-8453

"A book of letters . . . covering the years 1900 when Eric Gill was 18 until just before his death in 1940. The famous British sculptor and engraver, authority on typography, interested in every phase of art and architecture was also an earnest student and keen observer of his time. He knew such men as Chesterton and Belloc; he lectured at Cambridge and abroad. He wrote prodigiously—books, essays, journals and pamphlets, but mostly letters—newsy, chatty ones to his friends, as well as long and controversial letters to such periodicals as the Manchester Guardian, Observer and London Times Literary Supplement. The letters illustrate far more than his autobiography the view of life which he held to be socially urgent and intellectually right." Library J

"Mr. Walter Shewring who edited this collection was very close to Eric Gill and has an intimate knowledge of his thought and work. He has done a remarkable job in compiling, editing, and arranging the letters. It is also an added tribute on the part of the publisher to have had this book set in Eric Gill's own type—Perpetua. The twelve illustrations—five of which are interesting samples of Gill's writing—include three fine portraits of him and several of his drawings." J. P. Ascherl

+ Cath World 168:168 N '48 500w

Reviewed by Mason Wade

Commonweal 48:622 O 8 '48 700w

"Recommended for the discerning." M. H. Zipprich

+ Library J 73:939 Je 15 '48 150w

Manchester Guardian p3 F 10 '48 250w

Reviewed by Graham Greene

New Statesman & Nation 35:221 Mr 13 '48 650w

"The present collection of letters reprinted from an amazing variety of magazines where he challenged, corrected or merely commented on technical, political and religious subjects all have bite and color, dramatic verve and enduring point. The very names of the magazines from which the public letters derive conjure up the variety of his lines of inquiry and indefatigable sense of the duty of controversy." Ernestine Evans

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p27 N 28 '48 650w

"Hard-headed men of business and soft-headed idealists might, I think, profit from reading these letters of Eric Gill." C. P. Rollins

+ Sat R of Lit 31:29 D 4 '48 350w

"The book gives the impression of being a very good piece of editing. The selection and arrangement of the letters provides a continuous picture of Gill during the greater part of his life; some trivialities are omitted, as also are some judgments of individuals that might give offence; obvious slips of the pen are corrected, and there are a few insertions, to explain initials or to supply missing words; omissions and insertions being marked by brackets in the text."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p146 Mr 13 '48 1250w

GILLIES, MRS MARY DAVIS. All about modern decorating. rev & enl ed 249p il $5 Harper

747 House decoration 48-8256

Revised edition of an earlier book with the same title (Book Review Digest 1943). It is enlarged by several chapters on house planning. Illustrated with drawings and photographs. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:140 D 15 '48

"As before the list of designers is well worthwhile; the illustrations continue satisfactory. Should circulate widely." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 73:1744 D 1 '48 70w

GILLIGAN, EDMUND. Storm at Sable island. 368p $3 Little

48-8559

Story of the Yankee fishermen of Folly Cove, who for generations had sailed to the Banks for cod and halibut. A stranger carrying a beautiful baby lands secretly on the shore one night and is kindly received. But he betrays his benefactors, takes his child, and disappears. Years later he returns bringing the girl Diane grown up, and trouble begins between two of the young Cove fishermen.

Booklist 45:66 O 15 '48

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 11 '48 130w

"There's adventure, and romance, but the style is involved, although the mood of the sea will capture again the Gilligan audience."

+ — Kirkus 16:345 Jl 15 '48 170w

"A stirring tale, with the lilt and prolixity of the Irish talk." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 73:1273 S 15 '48 80w

"Like his other books, 'Storm at Sable Island' is not easy reading. Mr. Gilligan deliberately affects an artificial style, a combination of archaic, mystical, exaggerated Irish, not too remote from the style of M. P. Sheil. . . He provides unraveled skeins of secondary plots, grows bombastic and is irritatingly diffuse and digressive. Yet, with these difficulties of mannerisms, his novels possess serious purpose, depth and a sure knowledge of the evil and good in human beings. Read slowly and with proper contemplation, they are abundantly rewarding." P. J. Searles

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p19 O 10 '48 330w

GILLIGAN, EDMUND—Continued

"The place in the general framework of many of the details of this long story is not immediately obvious; and the fog of mystery which broods over the tale produces a certain lowness of spirit in the reader. Yet no lover of sea stories will want to miss this book." Philip Hewitt-Myring

+ — N Y Times p23 O 31 '48 400w

"This reviewer, with the most amiable will in the world, could not help putting down the book with the outraged feeling that the author had never faced the problem of what form in which to cast his story. The result is a hodgepodge—moments of real beauty, scenes of real power, and great stretches of involved verbiage, lush writing, and pretentious presentation that I fear hides an absence of content. And that makes for very difficult reading indeed." J. W. Rogers

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:15 O 30 '48 700w

Wis Lib Bul 44:214 D '48

GILLIN, JOHN PHILIP. Ways of men; an introduction to anthropology. 649p il $4.50 Appleton

572 Anthropology 48-5470

"A comprehensive description of the fields of anthropology with emphasis on the processes of culture. After an introductory chapter recounting the works of early anthropologists and their successors of recent times, there is a discussion of the following main topics under as many parts: The Human Animal; Social Life and Customs; Some Structures of Human Relationships; Patterning and Coordination of Culture; Individuality and Conformity." (Ann Am Acad) Bibliography. Index.

"The Ways of Men can be read with much profit by both anthropologist and sociologist. It marks a growing trend toward a new synthesis of the content and working concepts of anthropology and a growing awareness of anthropology's ramifying relations with other disciplines." Alexander Spoehr

+ Am J Soc 54:175 S '48 1200w

"Professor Gillin has placed us under obligation for the detailed and systematic analyses of psychological principles fundamental to culture." W. D. Wallis

+ Ann Am Acad 257:235 My '48 410w

Booklist 44:229 Mr 1 '48

"This may be, and doubtless is, designed as an introductory textbook for students with fairly mature minds. But any good general book on anthropology is of more than academic interest. This one certainly is. The author treats both physical and cultural anthropology, and gives somewhat more than the usual degree of emphasis to the interplay of these two aspects of man. Only very slight attention is given to art and religion as elements of culture." W. E. G.

Christian Century 65:759 Jl 28 '48 80w

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '48

School & Society 69:15 Ja 1 '49 80w

"This is a distinguished book. Like Ralph Linton's The Study of Man it is both an excellent textbook and an important original contribution to anthropological theory." Clyde Kluckhohn

+ Social Forces 27:98 O '48 1000w

GILPATRIC, GUY. Canny Mr. Glencannon. 213p $2.75 Dutton

48-2087

Ten short stories about Colin Glencannon, chief engineer of the tramp freighter Inchcliffe Castle. All of the stories have been published previously in the Saturday Evening Post.

Kirkus 16:125 Mr 1 '48 120w

"Salty adventure, broad humor, recommended for masculine readers." H. A. Wooster

+ Library J 73:557 Ap 1 '48 80w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Ag 1 '48 150w

"Glencannon's antics are not for those who dislike Scotch whisky spilled over every page or for readers who dislike their characters a little tipsy much of the time. There may be others who don't like the printed imitation of the mutilation done to English speech by the men of the Highlands. But for the rest of us—and there's at least some heather in most of our lapels—Glencannon stories are much too infrequent and completely fun when we can get them." Larry Laughlin

San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 21 '48 320w

"This is all heroic stuff, the grandscale guffaws which old masters like Gilpatric and William Hazlitt Upson—the Alexander Botts-Earthworm tractor man—know so well how to deliver. Except that the plots have a tendency to get short in the breath in the last few paragraphs, the latest cargo of Glencannon stories demonstrates beautifully how good a good man can get when he has been grinding out stories for the shiny paper magazines for a couple of decades." Lee Rogow

+ Sat R of Lit 31:16 Ag 7 '48 450w

GINZBERG, ELI, and CARWELL, JOSEPH. Labor leader; an exploratory study. 191p $3 Macmillan

331.88 Trade unions—U.S. 48-5948

The first part of the book contains an analysis of leaders and leadership, based on the author's knowledge of modern psychology and sociology. The second part gives a factual analysis of the executive board member of ten representative American labor unions, covering the period 1900 to 1940. Part three discusses the continual struggles of the leaders of a union local. Part four deals with tomorrow's labor leaders. Bibliography. Index of names.

"While the book leaves much to be desired, it has the merit of representing the first attempt at a systematic analysis of union leadership. It should stimulate others to pursue more exhaustive and penetrating investigations of the same subject." Joseph Shister

+ — Am Econ R 38:712 S '48 750w

Am Soc R 13:247 Ap '48 150w

Reviewed by M. L. Hoch

Ann Am Acad 259:187 S '48 440w

"An important facet of the labor picture, which has been given short shrift, and now is given its due."

+ Kirkus 16:76 F 1 '48 180w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 73:469 Mr 15 '48 130w

"Professor Ginzberg's study will prove of considerable value to every executive who deals directly or indirectly with union leaders. It includes much new factual material, and it suggests techniques for analyzing leadership which will be highly useful to those who must make this their daily business. The author makes many stimulating observations, and his style is concise and eminently readable—qualities that are comparatively rare in the works of present-day social scientists." Ernest Dale

+ Management R 37:165 Mr '48 340w

"Those whose impressions of labor leadership are derived from the hysteria of the headlines will find his book beneficial in understanding the pressures and problems that confront union executives, but the book's chief value lies in the guideposts it sets up for more intensive research by scholars in the fields of economics, psychology and sociology." A. H. Raskin

N Y Times p34 S 19 '48 470w

"Except on a biographical level, little has been written on the labor leader and leadership in general. Professor Ginzberg has done an interesting and exploratory study of this topic." Mary Jackman

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ap 18 '48 600w

"Mr. Ginzberg has written a pleasant little essay. But I'd still like to learn something about 'The Labor Leader.'" Victor Riesel

Survey G 37:356 Jl '48 700w

GIPSON, HENRY CLAY. Films in business and industry. 291p il $4 McGraw

371.33523 Moving pictures in industry 48-27

"This book is designed not only to tell when and how to use films for industrial purposes, but to give a basic understanding of the grammar of the screen—the how and why of film construction. Fully illustrated and containing numerous case histories, it discusses the various ways in which films can be profitably applied to individual business needs—training personnel, advertising products, promoting safety, etc." Management R

Booklist 44:307 My 15 '48

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Mr '48

"Sales managers, advertising executives, personnel managers, and others concerned with the application of visual aids to the problems of industry will find this a valuable guide."

+ Management R 37:382 Jl '48 80w

GIPSON, MORRELL. Hello Peter; pictures by Clement Hurd. [31p] $1.25 Doubleday 48-7663

A day in the life of Peter "who is two years old, just like you."

Booklist 45:16 S 1 '48

"'Hello Peter' was planned for a very young nephew, and just because he had a particular youngster in mind, aged two, this book has a simplicity and directness of action that will have immediate appeal to other children of one, two and three." F. C. Darling

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 S 28 '48 150w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 24:367 S '48 50w

Kirkus 16:335 Jl 15 '48 80w

"Though book lacks inspiration and charm, pre-school elders probably will lap it up." Mary Strang

Library J 73:1097 Ag '48 70w

"Clement Hurd's clean-cut, realistic, brightly colored green, red and blue pictures follow the actions of Peter's day through a routine whose familiarity will delight little children." V. H. Mathews

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Ag 8 '48 90w

N Y Times p5 N 14 '48 140w

Wis Lib Bul 44:151 S '48

GIRVIN, HARVEY FRANK. Historical appraisal of mechanics. 275p $3.25 Int. textbook

531.09 Mechanics 48-5430

"A contribution to the history of mechanics and its relation to engineering education. The purpose of the work is to provide a critical survey of physical mechanics, with much of the text a summary of the works of noted men. Extensive thorough bibliography makes it a useful reference tool. One chapter is Mechanics and Engineering Education in the United States. Chronologies." (Library J) Bibliography. Indexes.

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 73:480 Mr 15 '48 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:16 Ja '48

School & Society 67:63 Ja 24 '48 20w

GISEVIUS, HANS BERND. To the bitter end; tr. from the German by Richard and Clara Winston. 632p $4 Houghton

943.086 Germany—Politics and government. Germany—Nazi movement. World war, 1939-1945—Germany 47-5861

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"This book is not easy to evaluate and its contribution toward illuminating the history of the Third Reich will long remain debatable. It is too much the work of an exuberant extrovert to please everywhere, though its frank subjectivity may also have a disarming effect. It would be difficult to imagine a volume more revealing of its author." H. C. Deutsch

+ — Am Hist R 54:360 Ja '49 650w

Foreign Affairs 26:574 Ap '48 60w

"Gisevius himself, an able young lawyer who 'found himself' in the Gestapo in 1933, and served later in Admiral Canaris's Secret Intelligence, is not an attractive personality. He has none of the idealism of the Moltke group; and his work lacks the political penetration of Rauschning's Revolution of Nihilism. Like Kravchenko, he protests too much about his own early conversion, and he claims an omniscience about things of which he has no first-hand knowledge, which makes the reader sceptical of his story as a whole. But despite these deficiencies, To the Bitter End is a fascinating book." R. H. S. Crossman

+ — New Statesman & Nation 35:97 Ja 31 '48 700w

"Gisevius' book is primarily an account of his own experiences; it gives, especially in the first part, a wealth of very realistic and often grimly humorous impressions of the social 'atmosphere' in the Third Reich, and it tells in a sober but moving way one of the greatest tragedies of our time." Rudolf Heberle

+ Social Forces 26:352 Mr '48 1050w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Wiskemann

Spec 180:138 Ja 30 '48 600w

Times [London] Lit Sup p103 F 21 '48 900w

GIST, MARGARET ADLUM. Love and war in the Middle English romances. 214p $4 Univ. of Pa. press

823.09 Romances. Women in literature and art. Marriage in literature. War and literature 47-12423

"The purpose of this study is to determine how accurately, in their treatment of relationships between the sexes, and the theory and practice of warfare, the Middle English romances reflect medieval attitudes and actual behavior. Numerous incidents are cited by the author from a large selection of romances to illustrate the ways in which such matters are handled as the marriage of convenience, sexual relations outside of marriage, attitudes of husbands toward wives, conduct of soldiers on the battlefield, and the treatment of defeated enemies." U S Quarterly Bkl

Christian Century 65:18 Ja 7 '48 210w

"The author's constant sneers at the Church's position with regard to the shameful act of love (is there not a blessing for the marriage bed?) warps an otherwise interesting and rewarding study." Anne Fremantle

+ — Commonweal 48:386 Jl 30 '48 130w

"The student of the Middle Ages will not find here fresh illumination of literary or social problems; he will find a certain inflexibility in the handling of the medieval scene. But as a compilation of literary citations and generalizations on history, this work should be of considerable usefulness."

U S Quarterly Bkl 41:130 Je '48 250w

GITLOW, BENJAMIN. Whole of their lives; communism in America, a personal history and intimate portrayal of its leaders; with a foreword by Max Eastman. 387p $3.50 Scribner

335.4 Communist party of America. Communism—U.S. 48-9038

"A former prominent Communist (head of the American Communist Party in 1929) the author describes world Communism with especial emphasis on American Communism. Showing how it first started in this country among various rival factions, he then demonstrates its penetration of earlier liberal and Socialist groups and its emergence as a well-disciplined party. With considerable attention to personalities, he describes the American Communists, reveals their connections with Moscow, and flatly states that American Communism is directly controlled by Russia. Furthermore he contends that it respects no American principles or traditions in its zeal to make our country a Soviet vassal." (Library J) Index.

GITLOW, BENJAMIN—Continued

Booklist 45:115 D 1 '48

Kirkus 16:360 Jl 15 '48 210w

"An interesting and lively book although last quarter reflects the current hysteria toward the American Communist Party. Since author has not been a party member since 1929 some readers may question appearance of his book at this particular time." Donald Wasson
Library J 73:1187 S 1 '48 170w

" 'The Whole of Their Lives' is not a work without value. But the passages of autobiographical reminiscence actually constitute a more powerful indictment of the Communist movement than the lurid charges which make up the last part of the book." Arthur Schlesinger, jr.
— + N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 N 14 '48 1250w

"The story that Gitlow has to tell, he tells in a lively and readable fashion. . . The reader is bound to ask how much of the story can be believed. Mr. Gitlow, it must be reported, expects us to take a great deal either completely on faith or on the basis of testimony that cannot be substantiated. . . Yet the book has the earmarks of essential accuracy." Granville Hicks
+ — N Y Times p3 O 17 '48 1400w

San Francisco Chronicle p14 N 28 '48 450w

"This is a book rich in documentation. It is written from intimate knowledge. All in all, it is easily worth a dozen ill-prepared, publicity-seeking, and inconclusive Congressional investigations." Martin Ebon
+ Sat R of Lit 31:11 O 23 '48 650w

GIVENS, SEON, ed. James Joyce: two decades of criticism, by Eugene Jolas [and others]. 482p il $5 Vanguard

823 Joyce, James 48-7766

"This book is a selection of nineteen essays on James Joyce, several of which are now published for the first time. It opens with personal reminiscences by Eugene Jolas, and closes with the tribute T. S. Eliot published at the time of Joyce's death. Several pieces supply background information, Irish-national and personal. In the main, however, the essays follow the method of textual exegesis. There is a piece on Joyce's play, 'Exiles,' and one on 'Dubliners.' Most of the attention goes to the three novels. Inexplicably no notice is taken of Joyce's poems." (New Repub) Bibliography.

Booklist 45:48 O 1 '48

"While the critical matter contained in Miss Givens' assemblage of writing on Joyce cannot be said to satisfactorily establish his connection with its period (I do not mean only the period covered by his life time) it is a rather remarkable grouping of critical material. A book of this kind which contains matter by Eugene Jolas, Richard Levin, T. S. Eliot, Philip Toynbee, Vivian Mercier, Edmund Wilson and Stuart Gilbert could not be other than interesting and significant." Barry Byrne
+ — Commonweal 48:527 S 10 '48 450w

Kirkus 16:295 Je 15 '48 150w

"On the whole, Joyce has suffered from a curious ineptness in his critics. . . It is altogether in keeping with tradition, therefore, that the present volume should omit the most brilliant American exegete, Harry Levin; that space should be found for two long essays in Farrell's windy style, but none for Pound or Lewis or Gogarty; that it should lack an index, a sensible preface, a statement of criteria for selection, an adequate list of references—and that it should close with two letters by Eliot to the London Times on Joyce's death, one amusingly cautious, the other bold and vehement, which reveal more about Eliot's character than about Joyce. Nevertheless, it would be unjust to conclude that Miss Givens's collection of nineteen essays will not be found useful, perhaps indispensable, as the only one of its kind in English." William Elton
Nation 167:267 S 4 '48 800w

"Any selection such as this must suggest serious omissions, particularly in the face of inclusions of doubtful importance. But it is as much as can be expected of such a book that, as Miss Givens claims for them, most of the essays 'lead the reader where good criticism should—back to the books which evoked it.' " John Farrelly
New Repub 119:24 Ag 16 '48 1100w

Reviewed by Babette Deutsch
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p29 N 28 '48 550w

"Students of Joyce and those who read him simply for pleasure will find useful reference material in this compilation of reminiscence, appreciation, exegesis, criticism and bibliographical data." J. L. Sweeney
+ N Y Times p6 Ag 1 '48 900w

New Yorker 34:80 Ag 21 '48 120w

GLAESSNER, MARTIN F. Principles of micropalaeontology. USA ed 296p il $6 Wiley

560.72 Micropaleontology GS48-107

Contents: Objects and methods of micropalaeontology; Palaeontology of the foraminifera; Stratigraphic micropalaeontology; Bibliography. Index.

"This book is obviously the work of a practical micropaleontologist of wide experience. Some of the more general sections, like those on ecology and the principles of classification and stratigraphic correlation, reflect a sensible modern viewpoint and an understanding of the essential biological background of paleontology. Their application is not bounded by the limits of micropaleontology." J. M. Weller
J Geol 56:244 My '48 1000w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 72:1377 O 1 '47 50w

"In spite of the great importance of micropalaeontology in the petroleum industry, few if any books that present a review of the wide subject have been published up to now. This book, written by a man who has had extensive experience in petroleum geology, therefore fills a gap. It is suitable for use as an introductory work, as a concise reference manual, and as an exposition of practical techniques."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 33:19 Ja '48

GLASOE, GEORGE NORRIS, and LEBACQZ, JEAN VICTOR, eds. Pulse generators [prepared under the supervision of the] Office of scientific research and development, National defense research committee. (Mass. inst. of technology. Radiation laboratory. Radiation laboratory ser) 741p il $9 McGraw

621.384132 Oscillators, Electric. Electronic apparatus and appliances. Electric waves. Radio—Short wave 48-2192

"The present volume . . . written by several members of the staff of the Radiation Laboratory, of the techniques of electrical pulse generation as they were developed chiefly, but not altogether, in the Laboratory. The entire subject is reviewed including circuits, tubes and other basic apparatus, design techniques and applications. The work will be useful to radio engineers, particularly those who are concerned with the design of radar and other very-high-frequency devices." (N Y New Tech Bks) List of symbols. Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:950 Je 15 '48 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:45 My '48

GLASS, MARY LOU. Recipes for two. 387p $3 Wiley

641.5 Cookery 47-11898

Over 600 recipes for all types of foods in which the ingredients are cut to yield two servings or at most four. Cooking time for each is given, and arrangement of recipes is convenient. Lists menus for special occasions. Index.

Booklist 44:146 D 15 '47

"This book should be of value to food teachers as well as to homemakers who need small-quantity recipes which are easy to follow." Iva Mullen

+ J Home Econ 40:329 Je '48 200w

Reviewed by Lois Palmer

N Y Times p25 Ja 18 '48 100w

"The author has experience as a dietitian who wrote her book simply because she couldn't find one like it anywhere." J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 12 '48 100w

GLASSLEY, RAY HOARD. Visit the Pacific Northwest. 182p il $2.50 Binfords

917.95 Northwest, Pacific 48-7148

Guidebook to the Northwest, emphasizing its early history, geology, and geography. Map on lining-papers.

"'Visit the Pacific Northwest' is more likely to send tourists in search of a good guidebook to that region than it is to inspire travelers to start packing their bags." P. J. C. Friedlander

— N Y Times p18 Ag 1 '48 50w

"The first half—sections entitled 'Caves, Craters, Lava Fields,' 'Waterfalls, Springs, and Rivers,' 'Lakes, Canyons, Marshes, and a Lost River,' and 'Mountain Ranges and Peaks'—sounds as if it had been written as a master's thesis by a geology student. . . The second half resembles a thesis by a history student, covering 'Parks, Old Roads, and Trails,' 'Old Forts and Battlegrounds,' 'Indians, Reservations, Wars, and Missions,' 'Picture Writing, Money, Gold, Early Ships' and 'Early Newspapers, Colleges, and Mail Service.'" Beach Conger

— Sat R of Lit 31:38 O 2 '48 230w

GLATZER, NAHUM NORBERT, ed. Language of faith; selected Jewish prayers [tr. by Jacob Sloan and Olga Marx]. 128p $1.50 Schocken

296 Prayers. Jews—Religion 47-7231

"A collection of prayers, Biblical and liturgical, from the Kabbalists, the Psalms, meditations and medieval poems; all rendered into a spirited English version that, for the most part, follows the text closely. The Hebrew, Aramaic and Judaeo-German original appears on facing pages." N Y Times

Booklist 44:186 Ja 15 '48

Reviewed by H. A. Reinhold

+ Commonweal 47:177 N 28 '47 320w

"The translations by Jacob Sloan and Olga Marx are on the whole extremely successful and constitute a real contribution to the appreciation of great Jewish religious utterance. The accompanying Hebrew texts are an added merit." Marie Syrkin

+ Nation 166:330 Mr 20 '48 70w

Reviewed by H. E. Wedeck

N Y Times p19 Ja 18 '48 110w

GLENN, ELSIE, and GLENN, MORRIS. Dumblebum; with pictures by Kurt Wiese. [61p] $2 Macrae Smith co.

47-30456

Picture storybook about a lonely scarecrow who was unhappy until he learned that there were plenty of other scarecrows in the world. It made a difference to him to know that he came from a large family.

"A book a little person will ask you to read more than once. Let's hope he remembers it. He may need it later." M. L. Becker

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 N 16 '47 230w

Wis Lib Bul 43:177 D '47

GLENN, JOHN MARK, and others. Russell Sage foundation, 1907-1946. v 1-2 350;351-746p $5 Russell Sage

061 Russell Sage foundation, New York 47-12385

History of the Russell Sage foundation from its beginning in 1907 to 1946, written by its first director and staff. Contains a list of publications of the Russell Sage foundation. Index.

Reviewed by Geoffrey May

Ann Am Acad 260:235 N '48 480w

Current Hist 14:297 My '48 30w

Reviewed by B. R. Andrews

J Home Econ 40:270 My '48 100w

"These two volumes should be of immense historic interest to those presently engaged in social work, public and private, and in schools of social work, since the text reveals the progressive recognition of emerging social need: study and planning to meet the need, financial assistance wisely directed to the implementation and improvement of standards, interpretation, recording, statistics, and methods of administration."

+ Survey 84:129 Ap '48 700w

"The authors of the volumes, members of the Foundation's staff, present a meticulously detailed narrative, but abstain from critical appraisal. The record itself is valuable for reference purposes."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:175 Je '48 220w

GLICK, CARL. Mickey wins his feathers; from a story told by Ansel O'Banion, who knew Mickey in the Philippines; il. by Bill Crawford. (Whittlesey house publication) 63p $2 McGraw

Horses—Legends and stories 48-2470

Further adventure of Sergeant Farlow and "Mickey, the Horse That Volunteered" (Book Review Digest 1945). Their present mission takes them to Montana to investigate Indian unrest at the Crow reservation. "Mickey wins his feathers" when he helps trap the rustlers that had been stealing the Indians' cattle.

Booklist 44:370 Jl 1 '48

Kirkus 16:214 My 1 '48 100w

"Recommended for fourth grade." Anne Izard

+ Library J 73:954 Je 15 '48 80w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 My 9 '48 230w

"The story isn't quite as funny as the first but it is even more exciting. Bill Crawford's illustrations are vigorous and comic. An easy reading story for 8- to 12-year-olds." E. L. B.

N Y Times p11 My 30 '48 150w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 31:34 Je 12 '48 90w

Springf'd Republican p10A Jl 18 '48 70w

GLIKSMAN, JERZY. Tell the West. 358p $3.75 Gresham press

331.51 Convict labor—Russia 48-2259

"Another eyewitness report on slave labor in the Soviet Union, this time by a Polish lawyer and Socialist who was arrested, for reasons he never fully understood, by the N.K.V.D. shortly after the invasion of Poland and shipped off to a concentration camp to be 'remolded' into a useful citizen by 'productive work and suitable educational approach.' The remolding, Mr. Gliksman says, consisted of nothing more than systematic starvation, ill treatment, and a losing battle to fill hopelessly high daily work quotas; it killed many of his fellows and would have killed him if amnesty had not been granted Poles willing to fight the Germans." New Yorker

"In simple and gripping language he paints the picture of forced slave labor, imposed upon millions of Soviet citizens and hundreds of thousands of foreigners. His book is a monument to many of the men and women of all nationalities and races with whom he shared sufferings and hardships; and it is a flaming charge against a regime which, under the cloak of a 'people's democracy,' has stripped its citizens of all basic human rights." E. S. P.

GLIKSMAN, JERZY—Continued

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 My 5 '48 420w

Reviewed by J. R. Newman
New Repub 119:22 Jl 26 '48 320w

Reviewed by Russell Hill
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 My 16 '48 1000w

"Parts of the book are nauseating and brutal, although I suspect that some of it has been toned down to meet the tastes of a people whose knowledge of the facts of life in modern Europe is still largely rudimentary. But it should be read." Drew Middleton
N Y Times p4 Ap 18 '48 800w

"Calmly written, and thoroughly documented."
+ New Yorker 24:109 Ap 24 '48 130w
San Francisco Chronicle p10 My 30 '48 170w
Time 51:100 Ap 19 '48 270w

GLIMM, FRANCIS XAVIER, tr. See Apostolic fathers

GLOSTER, HUGH MORRIS. Negro voices in American fiction. 295p $3.50 Univ. of N.C. press

813.09 Negro literature. American fiction—History and criticism 48-6740

"History of the short stories and novels written by American Negroes from 1853, when the first piece of fiction was published, to 1940. Divided into three sections: to World war I, Negro renascence, depression; gives social background for each period and discusses almost 200 titles." (Booklist) The author's emphasis is on the themes, attitudes, and backgrounds of the works discussed rather than their literary value. Bibliography. Index.

"Well and entertainingly written, it will interest the historian and sociologist, the student of literature, the Negro, and any friend of the Negro."
+ Booklist 44:310 My 15 '48

"The American public is beginning to accept plainly stated books by Negro authors; and Dr. Gloster contributes a valuable analysis of the currents and forces which have logically and irresistibly opened up these new fields of expressiveness now running deep into the substance of American life." Henrietta Buckmaster
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 29 '48 800w

Reviewed by Arna Bontemps
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Ag 15 '48 600w

"Mr. Gloster carries his story forward to the present time, and is particularly good on the social backgrounds of the depression years. What one misses here is simply the kind of cultural or psychological insight that marks a study like 'Black Metropolis,' and that is necessary in the literary area also. Meanwhile 'Negro Voices in American Fiction' will serve as a useful source of information for further books in this field." Maxwell Geismar
+ — N Y Times p4 Jl 4 '48 550w

Reviewed by John Woodburn
Sat R of Lit 31:17 Je 5 '48 800w

GODDEN, JON. House by the sea. 271p $2.75 Rinehart

48-7381

An imaginative novel about the experiences of a frustrated English spinster who goes to live in a lonely house on the Cornish coast during the last years of the war. An American army deserter seeks refuge there, and stays for a time, but he is hunted down and commits suicide.

Booklist 45:13 S 1 '48

Reviewed by Feike Feikema
Chicago Sun Jl 19 '48 320w

"A strange story, redeemed from melodrama by imaginative, responsive prose; distinguished by an intensity of emotionalism often close to abandon. . . The distortion in character gives this its unusual, often compelling character, but is unlikely to attract average reading tastes."
+ — Kirkus 16:221 My 1 '48 120w

"Distinguished style saves the story whose weaknesses are apparent and makes Miss Godden an author not to be ignored. Recommended." K. T. Willis
+ — Library J 73:944 Je 15 '48 100w

"A most interesting and original novel. . . Miss Godden is not, I think, always careful about probability, but the intensity of her imagination is such that she creates her own original illusion. It is a most moving novel." Walter Allen
+ New Statesman & Nation 34:456 D 6 '47 150w

"Jon Godden's craftsmanship in this her second novel, is excellent. The deftness with which she fuses the exquisite with the grossly primitive is certain to surprise the sensitive reader into tingling shock after shock of pleasant surprise." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Jl 11 '48 550w

"Miss Godden extracts much from her simple language; its images come through cleanly, directed by her personal vision. She occasionally blunders in attempting a poetic prose, but the reader is rarely distracted from the moving directness of her art." Patricia Blake
+ — N Y Times p15 Jl 25 '48 320w

"An excellent job."
+ New Yorker 24:67 Jl 10 '48 120w

"Suspense-packed, beautifully written study of a woman's nature." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 13 '48 550w

"The story of those days and nights, with Edwina and the hunted killer under the same roof, with fear finally giving way to a strange unbreakable bond of understanding between them, gives Miss Godden full opportunity to show us how expertly she can blend the real with the imaginary, and, moreover, how deft she is at driving us headlong toward the terrifying climax of her extraordinarily fine novel." Richard McLaughlin
+ Sat R of Lit 31:21 Ag 7 '48 600w

"An extremely clever and original book. . . The author's tendency to transcribe her characters' soliloquies, whether mental or spoken, in full, gives the story a portentousness which is eventually dispersed by the surety of the treatment; the action, after a little stickiness and hesitation, rushes smoothly over the edge of suspense into doom and mystery. The House by the Sea might have been an experiment; it is in fact a successful picture of the impact of a criminal on a neurotic; the kind of novel that one reads at a sitting; and entirely lacking in humour or satire." H. W. Chapman
Spec 179:540 O 24 '47 130w

"As Author Godden handles this story it becomes at once an anguished lyric and a beautifully balanced tale of suspense."
+ Time 52:110 Jl 19 '48 270w

"The work of a writer who, whatever her other deficiencies, is certainly not lacking in individuality. The book takes the reader's imagination by assault. Its basic plot has the triviality of a melodramatic novelette . . . it is riddled with improbability, its construction is at times fumbling and uncertain. But Miss Godden has drowned herself in her characters with such imaginative abandon, she writes at times with such clarity and at times with such energy and always with such freshness, that even the critical judgment rebelling against the sheer nonsense of her presuppositions is forced to surrender."
Times [London] Lit Sup p573 N 8 '47 360w

GODDEN, RUMER (MRS LAURENCE FOSTER). A candle of St. Jude. 252p $2.75 Viking

48-7754

Novel describing a day in Madame Holbein's ballet school in London.

"In its color and liveliness, this book has the endearing theatricality of The Constant Nymph; and in its understanding of the relationship between age and youth, between Madame Holbein and the brilliant youngsters she was sending out into the world of ballet, the novel has a depth and a wisdom as feminine as it is charming." Edward Weeks

+ Atlantic 182:100 S '48 550w

Booklist 45:13 S 1 '48

"Rumer Godden, with her usual skill in characterization, brings the picture vividly before us. . . It is a tenuous bit of real life, sensitive and subtle, and delightfully told."

+ Cath World 167:573 S '48 200w

Reviewed by Dorothy Sparks

Chicago Sun p8X Ag 8 '48 450w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '48

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin

Horn Bk 24:448 N '48 80w

"Whether or not the ballet is your meat, here is a story to charm and delight you."

+ Kirkus 16:265 Je 1 '48 180w

"One appreciates the romance and skill in depicting character in this story without being a balletomane and this may well be one of RG's most popular stories." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 73:944 Je 15 '48 140w

Reviewed by John Farrelly

New Repub 119:26 Ag 23 '48 110w

"A shrewd character portrayal, sharpened by Madame's wit and wisdom, warmed by her intense femininity, and enlivened by much fascinating lore about the ballet. It would, however, have remained just that but for the incursion of Hilda, a dancer with a touch of genius; and in the presentation of this Miss Godden not only does a difficult thing extremely well but gives her chief character a needed foil." James Hilton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ag 8 '48 850w

"Despite the story's undercurrents of agitation and meaning, the plot wears thin toward the end. Yet Miss Godden has a way of making you feel the presence of her characters constantly; like the recurring themes in a piece of music, one looks for them all." Nona Balakian

+ — N Y Times p4 Ag 22 '48 650w

"Armed only with a better-than-average style, Miss Godden rushes head-on into this legion of clichés. She is trampled."

— + New Yorker 34:71 Ag 7 '48 90w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles

San Francisco Chronicle p10 Ag 8 '48 650w

"I have been reading 'A Candle for St. Jude' to the sound of country rain, an admirable accompaniment to Rumer Godden's clear, tranquil prose, a prose which seems to fall coolly upon the page, and to make whatever she writes about appear fresh and new. . . In fact, I am so susceptible to Miss Godden's work that I have come to believe that she cannot write anything except with distinction, and that even her green-grocer's list would be worthy of Garamond and hard covers." John Woodburn

+ Sat R of Lit 31:20 Ag 7 '48 750w

"A Candle for St. Jude is charming, delicate, mannered and, for the author of Black Narcissus and The River, a minor work. Even so, her minor work is better than many another writer's major work." L. A. G. Strong

+ Spec 181:346 S 10 '48 90w

Reviewed by J. W. Bogan

Springf'd Republican p10B S 5 '48 250w

"This is a charming novel, and although Miss Godden has wisely avoided the danger of trying to project the qualities of ballet itself into words, she has filled her small world with emotions, incidents and people that have for the most part the ring of authenticity." Anthony Tudor

+ Theatre Arts 32:92 O '48 360w

Times [London] Lit Sup p481 Ag 28 '48 210w

Wis Lib Bul 44:165 O '48

Reviewed by Orville Prescott

Yale R n s 38:191 autumn '48 290w

GODDEN, RUMER (MRS LAURENCE FOSTER). Dolls' house; with pictures by Dana Saintsbury. 125p $2.50 Viking

48-8324

Adventures of a brave little hundred-year-old Dutch farthing doll, her family, and the two little girls to whom they all belonged. Tottie's great adventure was when she went to the exhibition, Dolls thru the ages, and was singled out for notice by the Queen who opened the exhibition.

Booklist 45:53 O 1 '48

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson

Cath World 168:222 D '48 50w

Reviewed by M. B. King

+ Chicago Sun D 18 '48 50w

Reviewed by H. F. Griswold

Christian Science Monitor p10 S 30 '48 240w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton

Christian Science Monitor p4 N 9 '48 360w

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '48

"There is quite a bit of philosophy sprinkled throughout the story. This is the kind of story many generations of little girls will clasp to their hearts."

+ Commonweal 49:148 N 19 '48 90w

"I think it is a work of art." A. C. Moore

+ Horn Bk 24:347 S '48 650w

"The pictures are perfect for the story." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 24:457 N '48 150w

Kirkus 16:363 Ag 1 '48 120w

"Writing is delightful, reading as if told intimately, with asides, to an individual child. The incidents are not too exciting but sufficiently so, often causing the child reader to hold her breath hoping everything will turn out satisfactorily, as it does. Illustrations by Dana Saintsbury do not live up to the vigor of the text." J. F. Carter

+ — Library J 73:1097 Ag '48 90w

"An unusually well-told story about dolls." M. C.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 D 16 '47 30w

"Any little girl of 4 to 9 who has a doll's house would like this book." Francis King

+ New Statesman & Nation 34:474 D 13 '47 40w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 N 14 '48 500w

"There are genuine suspense and tensity of emotion in this miniature domestic drama because the dolls, each sharply individualized, are as alive as the little girls who gave them life by loving them. The real and the unreal are deftly mingled with a perfect logic and the whole is illumined by tenderness and humor." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p35 S 12 '48 230w

"Pure pleasure for any mother to read aloud to her daughter."

+ New Yorker 24:129 D 11 '48 100w

"It is an event when the gifted Rumer Godden turns to a children's book. She is one of our most sensitive writers and, in 'The River' and elsewhere, has written about children with understanding and tenderness. Now she writes for them with freshness, assurance, and artistry." Joan Vatsek

+ Sat R of Lit 31:24 N 13 '48 360w

"Each doll has a firmly drawn, recognisably true character; the children think and behave convincingly; only the grown-ups are remote and Olympian, as grown-ups must be. The story is enthralling, and complete in every detail. I was especially pleased to notice that Miss

GODDEN, RUMER—Continued
Godden even lists what the children ate when they went out to lunch; she anticipates all the questions that children are likely to ask. This is an exceptionally good book, and would make an excellent present for girls of five to eleven years old, or for some appreciative grown-up." K. Hornsby
+ Spec 179:690 N 28 '47 360w

"Doll stories have a perennial charm, and among them Miss Godden's delightful tale . . . takes a worthy place."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p636 D 6 '47 40w

Wis Lib Bul 44:167 O '48

GODEY, JOHN, pseud. See Freedgood, M.

GODWIN, EDWARD, and GODWIN, STEPHANI. Warrior bard, the life of William Morris; il. by the authors. 176p $2.50 Chanticleer

B or 92 Morris, William

A brief, romantic biography of the nineteenth-century poet, craftsman, and Socialist, by two present-day disciples.

"In spite of several shortcomings, the little volume has much to recommend it. The authors are the present tenants in Morris's famous Kelmscott Manor (now operated by the University of Oxford) and they have caught their inspiration from close association with this home, rich in memories, and with Miss May Morris, the poet's daughter, who supplied much of the anecdotal material. The chief appeal of the book lies in its steady, absorbing movement and the freshness of its descriptions, such as those in the chapter entitled, 'By River to Oxford.' " C. T. Houpt
+ — Christian Science Monitor p15 D 16 '48 700w

"There are several facts at the end of the volume which supplement Mackail's 'Life'. . . Beyond those items there is nothing in this sickly, sentimental, fervid volume which adds anything to the story so admirably and simply told by Mackail." Carl Rollins
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:20 Ja 8 '49 230w

"Of Warrior Bard it should be said that the authors, who have the advantage of living at Kelmscott Manor, have missed nothing of significance in Morris's life, but have somewhat lessened the significance by a habit of sentimentalizing and dramatizing in picture and prose."
Times [London] Lit Sup p232 Ap 24 '48 1000w

GOEBBELS, JOSEPH. Goebbels diaries, 1942-1943; ed. tr. and with an introd. by Louis P. Lochner. 566p $4 Doubleday

B or 92 World war, 1939-1945—Germany. Germany—Nazi movement 48-6496

"The 7,000 diary pages which have been found so far are hardly more than one-tenth, at best, of the 'little Doctor's' daily effusions. With large gaps in between, they cover the period from the end of January, 1942, to the beginning of December, 1943. And of this material available only about one-fifth has gone into the present publication for which Louis P. Lochner, long-time Associated Press chief in Berlin, signs himself editor and translator. But even this 'fragment of a fragment' contains all the elements that could be desired for drawing up a watertight indictment of Nazi Germany, its leaders and its chronicler." (Christian Science Monitor) Index.

Reviewed by C. E. Schorske
Am Hist R 54:358 Ja '49 1050w

"The material is mildly disappointing in three respects. It side-steps Goebbels's private life—which, judging from Lochner's remarks, makes Frank Harris seem a sluggard in amour. It stops short of the supreme treat: Goebbels's commentary on the German debacle. Written for eventual publication, subject to doctoring, it is far from being a 'true confession.' With these captious qualifications, I've no hesitation in saying that the Diaries are an utterly fascinating document, rich in intriguing disclosures and brimming over with unconscious ironies." C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 181:118 My '48 850w

Booklist 44:296 My 1 '48

"The expression of [the editor's] unrestrained bias against Goebbels and the Nazis, on the other hand, as intelligible as its provocation is, is unnecessary. The statement that he loathed Dr. Goebbels, for example, creates suspicion of his editorial objectivity. The text speaks for itself." J. E. Uhler
Cath World 167:472 Ag '48 600w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p8X Ap 25 '48 550w

"There is no reason to question the authenticity of the diaries. Their style is the same as that of Goebbels' earlier books and of the scores of articles he wrote for the weekly Das Reich during the war. Though they tell little about the author's personal life, they tell the full story of Germany's transition from almost total victory to total defeat. Nobody could have been better qualified for describing the turning of the brown tide than Goebbels, the No. 1 pen and No. 2 voice of the Third Reich." Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p16 Ap 21 '48 1000w

"Unquestionably the Goebbels Diaries are of immense interest for students of history. In the perspective of recent events, most of the falsehood which they contain is obvious for everyone. Such is not the case for all of it, however. The critical reader will do well to keep in mind that he is handling poison." William Solzbacher
Commonweal 48:260 Je 25 '48 1800w

Current Hist 15:38 Jl '48 70w

Foreign Affairs 26:744 Jl '48 120w

"Important as contributing to the overall record, but the actual reader interest is not as great as anticipated."
Kirkus 16:192 Ap 1 '48 340w

"The most interesting part of the book, of course, is Goebbels's account of the psychological disintegration of the Nazi High Command under the stress of events. . . Much of the book, it has to be confessed, is tame and worse. . . Mr. Lochner apparently believes that the average reader has an insatiable curiosity about the lives and thoughts of foreign correspondents, and manages to find the space for Goebbels's reference to himself. To round it out, it is a pity that Mr. Lochner, who is now campaigning for better treatment of the well-intentioned Germans, did not manage to reprint his famous dispatch, sent after the collapse of France, extolling the feats of the conquering Wehrmacht." T. J. Hamilton
— + Nation 166:639 Je 5 '48 800w

Reviewed by Richards Watts
New Repub 118:21 Ap 26 '48 1350w

Reviewed by R. H. S. Crossman
New Statesman & Nation 35:277 Ap 3 '48 1850w

Reviewed by W. L. Shirer
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Ap 25 '48 1950w

"Few of the top Nazis were really literate. Fewer still could be described by any standards as intellectuals. Joseph Goebbels with his brilliant but distorted mind comes the closest to being the exception. His diary is a document of unique and sinister interest." A. W. Dulles
N Y Times p1 Ap 25 '48 1400w

New Yorker 24:106 My 1 '48 160w

Reviewed by W. R. White
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ap 25 '48 1000w

Reviewed by W. H. Hale
Sat R of Lit 31:10 Ap 24 '48 1050w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Wiskemann
Spec 180:440 Ap 9 '48 800w

Reviewed by George Britt
Survey G 37:320 Je '48 700w

Times [London] Lit Sup p234 Ap 24 '48 3600w

Reviewed by Sigmund Neumann
Yale R n s 37:739 summer '48 1000w

GOERTZ, ARTHEMISE. Moon is mine. (Whittlesey house publication) 304p $3 McGraw 48-8998

Pat Eagan of Astoria, L.I. feared marrying poor Tom Hunter, because she did not want to be a household drudge like her mother. She envied the well-dressed women she saw in hotels, so she sought the affections of socialite Ford Harrison, her boss's prospective brother-in-law. After trouble came to her family, Pat realized that her happiness was with Tom who needed her more than Ford.

Booklist 45:88 N 1 '48

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p11 N 11 '48 170w

"Here's a story of the kind of thing many of the Kitty Foyles dream might happen to them. Sympathetic, warm characterization, without attempting any profundity."
+ Kirkus 16:451 S 1 '48 210w

"It's an endearing sort of family, but becomes a little cloying at times with its sentimentality and tawdry romanticism. Characters are engagingly drawn, especially Pat who has charm and vitality. Women who enjoy soap operas will love this light novel. Recommended." Anne Whitmore
+ — Library J 73:1384 O 1 '48 80w

"A sentimental little book, but the background is done with surprising realism."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 O 24 '48 200w

"Despite her talent for creating friendly, engaging people and her obvious sympathy for them, Miss Goertz' superficial handling of their very real problems becomes more irritating than amusing." Ray Pierre
— + N Y Times p51 N 14 '48 230w

San Francisco Chronicle p16 N 28 '48 120w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 31:14 D 11 '48 140w

Wis Lib Bul 45:13 Ja '49

GOETHE, JOHANN WOLFGANG VON. Permanent Goethe; ed, sel. and with an introd. by Thomas Mann. 655p $5 Dial press
838 48-7369

"In commemoration of the two-hundredth anniversary of Goethe's birth, Thomas Mann has compiled this anthology in which all facets of Goethe's genius are represented, and has prefaced it with a long essay on Goethe's life and work. The volume includes Faust (Part One), Egmont, Iphigenia in Tauris; The Sorrows of Young Werther and extracts from Wilhelm Meister; a sampling of the travel sketches, literary essays, maxims and reflections; and a great many poems and letters. New renderings of some of the poems have been prepared by Stephen Spender and stilted translations replaced." Atlantic

"The vogue for anthologies and 'portables' of the great masters has produced some welcome volumes, but none more notable than The Permanent Goethe."
+ Atlantic 182:107 S '48 160w

Reviewed by W. P. Tryon
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 19 '48 420w

"This volume will be indispensable to any literary man, gathering as it does so much of the work of the great German writer in so handy a fashion. It will be particularly useful for libraries without large European resources, for readers with popular rather than scholarly tastes. Thomas Mann's full introduction has biographical as well as high critical interest." G. W. Freedley
+ Library J 73:940 Je 15 '48 100w

"Whether the book's objective—to bring home the greatness of Goethe as a poet and master of language to English-speaking readers—has been more nearly achieved in this collection than in previous ones is problematical. The fog of translation still hovers over much of the book."
New Yorker 24:71 Jl 10 '48 120w

"An anthology invariably reflects the personality of its editor. It is fresh testimony to the conscientiousness of Dr. Mann that he does not emphasize the older Goethe, to whom he feels closest affinity and something of a symbolic resemblance, at the expense of Goethe the exuberant youthful genius. This handsome volume contains many of the most beloved poems and ballads of the German poet. . . In short, here is a great author, glittering in a thousand facets, bewitching through the charm and tranquility of his style, overwhelming through the richness of his personality. And yet, 'The Permanent Goethe' is very much Thomas Mann's Goethe. It is the professional writer and poet who emerges from these pages, not the philosopher and intellectual giant." Claude Hill
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:8 Jl 3 '48 900w

GOETZ, DELIA. Other young Americans; Latin America's young people; il. with photographs. 255p $3.50 Morrow
918 Youth—Latin America. Latin America —Description and travel 48-9183

"After answering questions from high school boys and girls in North America, Delia Goetz presents a frank and practical guide to the way of life and social customs of the young people of South and Central America. Illustrated with photographs." (Sat R of Lit) Index.

Booklist 45:144 D 15 '48

Kirkus 16:445 S 1 '48 90w

"Both Americans and Pan-Americans vouch for author's accuracy. Recommended." Sonja Wennerblad
+ Library J 74:68 Ja 1 '49 70w

San Francisco Chronicle p6 N 28 '48 400w

Sat R of Lit 31:53 N 13 '48 50w

GOETZ, RUTH, and GOETZ, AUGUSTUS. The heiress. 201p $2.50 Dramatists
812 James, Henry—Washington Square
48-8244

A play, suggested by Henry James' novel, Washington Square, which tells of a girl's revenge on the fortune hunter who had jilted her.

Booklist 45:10 S 1 '48

"Highly recommended." George Freedley
+ Library J 73:1667 N 15 '48 50w

"The authors of 'The Heiress' have made a New York period drama which is steadily interesting if never greatly exciting." W. P. Eaton
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 O 31 '48 310w

"The Heiress is a play peculiarly suited to reading. It not only tells a moving story, but it draws a pleasing vignette of the New York of a more langorous day. Everybody should enjoy it."
+ Theatre Arts 32:94 O '48 60w

GOGARTY, OLIVER ST JOHN. Mourning became Mrs. Spendlove, and other portraits, grave and gay. 250p $2.75 Creative age 828 48-6034

Literary miscellany composed of some short stories, and portraits and reminiscences of James Joyce; Yeats; of Bob Flaherty, author of Man of Aran; and of Gogarty's beloved city of Dublin.

Booklist 44:279 Ap 15 '48

Reviewed by Horace Reynolds
Christian Science Monitor p18 Mr 26 '48 600w

Kirkus 16:73 F 1 '48 170w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 73:332 F 15 '48 70w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
New Repub 118:27 Mr 29 '48 320w

"Fourteen essays and tales assembled here by Dr. Gogarty open vistas into a number of worlds, all of which this remarkable character

GOGARTY, O. S.—Continued
has inhabited. Best known, probably, is that world of the Irish literary renaissance in which he was the Buck Mulligan of Joyce's 'Ulysses' and shared a strange tower-residence with that strange man: his reminiscences of the time deserve the blessing of all scholars, whether as of Joyce or of Yeats. But he writes, too and lovingly, of Vermont today." Iris Barry

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ap 4 '48 380w

"The writing runs along like good conversation, and, because the author always chooses his friends with care, it is very interesting conversation indeed."

+ New Yorker 24:90 Mr 27 '48 80w

"The stories in the volume are fiction that might have been written by anyone with a sense of humor and a gift for slightly acid satire. But nobody but Gogarty could have written the chapters on Dublin and the haunting countryside that borders that ancient and most civilized city, or the memorable studies of Robert Flaherty, Yeats, and Joyce scattered through the book." Harrison Smith

+ Sat R of Lit 31:24 Mr 27 '48 1200w

Springf'd Republican p10B Ap 11 '48 240w

GOITEIN, SOLOMON DOB FRITZ, ed. From the land of Sheba; tales of the Jews of Yemen [tr. by Christopher Fremantle]. 122p $1.50 Shocken

296 Jews in Yemen. Folklore, Jewish. Legends, Jewish 48-162

A collection of the folklore and legends of the Jews of Yemen, in southwestern Arabia, the oldest Jewish community in the world.

Booklist 44:186 Ja 15 '48

"'The Land of Sheba' not only opens up a part of Jewry which is practically unknown to us, but gives off sociological, religious and cultural sidelights that fascinate." H. A. Reinhold

+ Commonweal 47:177 N 28 '47 320w

"This collection of the tales and legends of the Jews of Yemen is authentic folklore and has the freshness and charm inherent in such material." Marie Syrkin

+ Nation 166:330 Mr 20 '48 150w

Reviewed by H. E. Wedeck
N Y Times p19 Ja 18 '48 80w

GOLDBERG, HARRIET LABE. Child offenders; a study in diagnosis and treatment. 215p $4 Grune

136.76 Juvenile delinquency Med48-56

"This study in diagnosis and treatment of child offenders uses mainly the material of the Children's Court of New York City with truancy and other school problems as focal point. Cases of this kind seem to the author representative enough to cover the whole field of juvenile delinquency. Her grouping of the case material—the mentally retarded and defective, the emotionally unstable, the cases with neurotic pattern, the neurotics and psychoneurotics, the psychopathic personalities and psychotics—shows that she chiefly dwells on children with pathological deviations. In fact, only one chapter deals with mentally normal cases, i.e., those whose delinquency is caused by social factors and physical illness." Ann Am Acad

Reviewed by F. E. Merrill
Am Soc R 13:786 D '48 160w

"With emphasis laid on mental and emotional abnormalities and with truancy as the main center of interest, the study appears somewhat confined in scope and content. It does not reflect the enormous variety of cases usually found in the juvenile courts of big metropolitan areas, and thus does not do justice to many cases—ordinary as well as unusual ones—which must be reckoned with in every juvenile court. . . Apart from these limitations and without offering scientifically remarkable findings (which could not be expected from such a comparatively small book in a field so thoroughly examined), the study has valuable features. . . As an introduction to, and practical guide in, the field of juvenile delinquency, the book deserves extensive use." Karl Birnbaum

+ — Ann Am Acad 257:238 My '48 400w

"The book, largely the product of the author's own experience, is suitable for a wide reading public of adults interested in the welfare of children and of the home and family as a basic social unit." B. D. Borgman

+ J Home Econ 40:536 N '48 240w

Reviewed by L. G. Lowrey
N Y Times p13 Jl 4 '48 700w

San Francisco Chronicle p15 Ap 18 '48 110w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 68:309 O 30 '48 270w

"Dr. Goldberg has given an able, sound presentation of the problem of the child offender from the standpoint of both modern clinical practice and good community organization." L. J. Johnson

+ Survey 84:378 D '48 420w

GOLDIN, HYMAN ELIAS. Case of the Nazarene reopened. 868p $5 Exposition press, 1 Spruce st, N.Y. 7

296 Jews

"A plea for justice to the Jewish people presented in the form of a trial with judge, attorneys, and jury." School & Society

"I would hate to think that anti-Semitism had to continue until all Christians were convinced that any blame upon any Jews for complicity in the death of Jesus was a late and libellous invention. Since the idea of racial guilt is an outrageous and outmoded perversion of justice, so also the attempt to establish racial innocence, though historically interesting, is irrelevant to the present issues." W. E. G.

Christian Century 65:574 Je 9 '48 340w

"It would be silly to claim that no fault can be found with anything said by Dr. Goldin in these chapters. There are many points on which even the most expert of scholars would differ; there are many occasions where honest convictions clash and where the best of scholarship may be challenged. But by and large it can be said that there is a devastating quality about the book's argument and a high tone dominating its polemics that recommend it to everyone who is honestly concerned with getting at the heart of a problem that for centuries has troubled many good people and has brought indescribable misery to millions of Jews." K. M. Chworowsky

+ Churchman 162:15 Je 1 '48 2450w

Reviewed by C. H. Moehlman
Nation 167:472 O 23 '48 850w

School & Society 67:391 My 22 '48 20w

"Lovers of justice will sympathize with the anti-Semitic aims of this unusual book, but its plea for expurgation of anti-Jewish material from the New Testament can hardly be taken seriously. One must doubt that such expunging of 'all traces' of 'tragic vilification' from the time-honored text would accomplish the purpose desired. By its suggestion for tampering with a book so widely accepted as holy, it might produce a directly opposite effect." E. A. F.

Springf'd Republican p8B Ag 8 '48 480w

GOLDKNOPF, DAVID. Hills on the highway. 242p $3 Harper

48-6180

A novel about a young war veteran who earnestly desires to become a success in his chosen field of writing.

Kirkus 16:33 Ja 15 '48 170w

"'Hills on the Highway' is vigorous, youthful, intransigeantly, solemnly sincere. It is a child crying for the moon—an uncompromising idealist asking for integrities to his own specifications in a world that by its very nature must always badly lack them. But such a vigorous child is, barring accident, bound to grow up. Mr. Goldknopf, the author of 'Hills on the Highway,' gives every evidence that he will." F. H. Bullock

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 My 23 '48 500w

"Every character is planted in 'Hills on the Highway' to talk; talk about a problem, the integrity of the artist. Some of the talk is thoughtful, and unpretentious. Most of it is not." Patricia Blake
N Y Times p23 Jl 18 '48 250w

"Mr. Goldknopf's characters are so sharply patterned that they somehow resemble the figures in a morality tale; they express almost too fluently the ideas and words that automatically belong to their roles. . . But who can object if the author has lightened his dismal subject and relieved the burden of doom on his characters with wit and flashes of humor? This is a book worth owning, for in it the reader can see the hope and the cynicism of the young men who have come out of the war and are trying to steer their interrupted or shattered lives toward art and fame and fortune." Harrison Smith
+ Sat R of Lit 31:13 My 8 '48 600w

GOLDMAN, ERIC FREDERICK. Two-way street; the emergence of the public relations counsel. 23p $1.25 Bellman publishing co, 83 Newbury st, Boston 16

301.154 Publicity

"Very brief summary of the history of public relations in the U.S. in its three phases, which the author sums up as 'the public be fooled,'—the press agent school in vogue before 1900; 'the public be informed,' as pioneered by Ivy Lee; and 'the public be understood,' as developed by Edward L. Bernays. Seven pages of footnotes include bibliographical references." (Booklist) The author is associate professor of history at Princeton university and the former editor of the Public Opinion Quarterly.

Booklist 45:44 O 1 '48
School & Society 67:447 Je 12 '48 10w
Springf'd Republican p10A Jl 4 '48 150w

GOLDMAN, LAWRENCE. Wolf tone. 215p $2.75 Mill

48-6718

"The decline of the hero's musical fortunes sets in when his colleagues in a string quartet demote him from first to second violin, awarding his vacated position to the husband of the woman he loves. In retaliation, he murders his replacement, which, instead of bringing about the combined business and emotional triumph he anticipated, lands him in the hands of the police." New Yorker

Kirkus 16:156 Mr 15 '48 80w
New Yorker 24:117 My 22 '48 120w

"A story of violence and crime as the accompaniment to great musical ability makes an absorbing and at the same time a revolting novel." S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p10B My 23 '48 170w

GOLDMAN, SOLOMON. Book of books: an introduction. (Book of human destiny) 459p il $3.75 Harper

221.7 Bible. Old Testament 48-2742

"During almost all of his adult life Rabbi Goldman has been collecting the materials for the great work, to be called 'The Book of Human Destiny,' to which the present volume forms an introduction. The entire series of thirteen projected volumes will cover 'the origins, development, influence and interpretation of the Bible—meaning of course, the Old Testament. This volume . . . consists of chapters on some fundamental Hebrew ideas, the nature of the Hebrew language, the canon, biblical criticism (brushing off Wellhausen and his like), 'the dawn of conscience' (similarly brushing off Breasted), copious notes and bibliographies and, more than half of the total, a splendid anthology of 'echoes and allusions' culled from the wide fields of general literature." (Christian Century) Bibliography. Index.

"While the forthcoming volumes may be of special interest to the theologian and Biblical scholar, the present volume will prove a delight to anyone desiring a better comprehension of the Book of Books, and to anyone interested in an important source of the richness and flexibility of the English language." J. J. Weinstein
+ Chicago Sun Je 24 '48 550w

"Dr. Goldman has undertaken a project of heroic scale such as would normally demand the cooperative labors of a company of experts, but his own Hebrew scholarship is copious and minute, and his courage and assurance are unlimited. His style is rich and emphatic."
+ Christian Century 65:600 Je 16 '48 210w

Reviewed by R. C. Miller
Churchman 162:16 S 1 '48 150w

"One shudders to think of twelve more volumes appearing in this work, as announced on the jacket of volume one, but this reviewer —now that he has finished reading this one —takes courage from the realization that he will not be forced to read the remaining twelve." J. B. Pritchard
— Crozer Q 25:255 Jl '48 1050w

"It should be of great interest to all students of the Old Testament, both Jewish and Christian, as Rabbi Goldman brings to it not only exact and profound knowledge of his subject, but also outstanding ability to marshall his erudition in a readable style."
+ Kirkus 16:285 Je 15 '48 180w

"Carefully written, showing the author's love for and familiarity with the Scriptures and related fields, 'The Book of Books' is a valuable handbook for those readers seriously concerned with the origin and nature of the Holy Bible." N. K. Burger
+ N Y Times p28 S 19 '48 290w
School & Society 68:31 Je 10 '48 10w

GOLDTHWAITE, EATON KENNETH. Root of evil. 218p $2.50 Duell

48-5176

Detective story.

"The consequence is not awfully surprising but it engages the attention well enough." James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p72 F 6 '48 90w
Kirkus 15:660 D 1 '47 80w

"Mr. Goldthwaite handles a tall plot without mishap, winding up with a burst of surprises that should satisfy." Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 F 8 '48 150w

"A story packed with suspense." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p33 F 8 '48 110w

"Full of suspense, but at times pretty complicated."
New Yorker 23:68 Ja 31 '48 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p20 F 8 '48 150w

"Reader may be pretty sure all along exactly how it will turn out, which makes expected denouement quite satisfactory."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:30 Ja 31 '48 50w

GOLDWATER, SIGISMUND SCHULZ. On hospitals. 395p il $9 Macmillan

362.11 Hospitals Med47-2475

Posthumous collection of essays, papers, and reports on hospital science by the former superintendent of Mount Sinai Hospital, New York. "Some of the papers and addresses deal with specific aspects of hospital administration or planning; all of them are concerned with the fundamental objectives and ideals of the hospital, its history and philosophy. And all bear witness to the author's belief that 'the hospital stands for collective thinking and acting, for the beginning, at least, of a planned community system of medical care.' . . Throughout Dr. Goldwater's writing there is an emphasis on research and planning, and his arguments are reinforced by illustrations from his wide practical experience." (Foreword) The collection was edited and compiled by Mrs S. S. Goldwater. Contains a biographical note; a selected bibliography of papers, addresses and reports by the author, 1905-1942; and an index.

GOLDWATER, S. S.—Continued

"This volume will influence health-minded people of the future as much as Dr. Goldwater's dynamic personality stimulated those who were fortunate enough to know him personally. No other book can surpass it for sound philosophy, keen awareness of problems, and excellence of writing. . . Every doctor, nurse, and person in public health should consider On Hospitals as a 'must' to keep thinking in broad channels." J. E. Gorrell
+ Am J Pub Health 38:289 F '48 120w

Reviewed by Waldemar Kaempffert
N Y Times p35 S 19 '48 500w

"There are several reasons why this book should be read by those who are interested in hospitals. It is a textbook for the student and a reference for the executive. For hospital trustees and for those who are concerned less intimately with the day by day direction of hospitals, however, it is a clever compilation in narrative form of the writings of one man during the forty years of greatest development in the history of hospitals in America." B. C. MacLean
+ Survey 84:57 F '48 450w

GOLLANCZ, VICTOR. In darkest Germany; with an introd. by Robert M. Hutchins. 252p il $3.50 H. Regnery co, 53 S. Washington st, Hinsdale, Ill.
943.086 Germany—History—Allied occupation, 1945- [47-18725]

This is a "factual account of conditions in the British Occupation Zone of Germany and is based on a personal investigation made by the author during October and November of the previous winter [1946]. It is supplied with 144 photographs, most of them made under the author's personal supervision." Publisher's note

Booklist 44:181 Ja 15 '48
Christian Century 65:481 My 19 '48 170w

"Nobody with brains and a heart could have any quarrel with Mr. Gollancz's eloquent and shocking details on the British zone. Anybody receiving any first-hand information from that unhappy zone can only confirm the gruesome details. One should nominate him for a grand peace prize. It is a pity that Robert Hutchins's Introduction makes no effort to make distinctions but indulges in general self-abasement." H. A. Reinhold
+ — Commonweal 47:358 Ja 16 '48 260w
Foreign Affairs 26:744 Jl '48 40w

"It is not easy to do justice to this book. The author's great sincerity and burning sense of mission entitle him to respect and serious attention. . . But the effect is constantly marred by an unbalanced and uncritical approach which results in the ignoring, suppression or even misrepresentation of vital explanations of the facts observed, and occasional misstatement of the facts." M. Zvegintzov
Spec 178:146 Ja 31 '47 700w

"Mr. Gollancz's most significant observations are perhaps to be found in his foreword. In answering critics he says that this is for him a 'question of plain, straight common sense,' because it is 'good treatment and not bad treatment [that] makes men good.' But is not the presumption that this is always true as rash as the utilitarian axiom that men invariably know how best to pursue their own happiness? . . Mr Gollancz, invariably benevolent, is on firm ground as a critic. But as a matter of history, the nihilism of the young in Germany is not the result of the present occupation."
Times [London] Lit Sup p60 F 1 '47 700w

GOMBERG, WILLIAM. Trade union analysis of time study; foreword by David Dubinsky. 243p $4.25 Science research
658.5421 Time study 48-5774

"The chief purpose of the book is to show practitioners of time study methods that their current techniques cannot solve the problem of determining how much an industrial worker should produce in repetitive operations. The study is arranged in two parts. 'Part One examines the theoretical requirements for a science of time study, if such a thing is possible. Part Two examines how closely existing industrial time study practice comes to the scientific ideal.' " (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliography. Index.

"While basic destructive criticism seems to be the theme of this work, no real offer of a better technique seems to be forthcoming. It is much like reading a mystery novel in which everyone is eliminated and the villain never is uncovered. . . It is not quite clear as to what type of person the book was intended to reach. If the intended reader is the average rank and file of the ILGWU, then the highly statistical and psychological approach seems incongruous and even the average time-study practitioner would generally be unable to understand the details. As a highly theoretical work, however, for the advanced statistician and psychologist it points out the uncharted and unresolved areas of the problem which as yet are a burden and which will result in inequities in our present-day time-study techniques, much as a theoretical economist might point out the inequities in our present-day economy." V. D. Schoeller
Ann Am Acad 258:159 Jl '48 650w

"This work should be read not only by practicing time study men but also by executives who plan and direct their policies—not alone because they may meet these arguments over their own bargaining tables but also because management's ability to discharge its functions and our tenuous thread of industrial peace may be strengthened by mutual education and by a more dispassionate examination of all the facts and their validity. To this end, Mr. Gomberg's analysis represents a genuine addition to our knowledge of time study in its unique assembly of related data." M. E. Mundel
+ Management R 37:376 Jl '48 400w
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:160 Je '48 330w

GOOD HOUSEKEEPING (periodical). Needlecraft encyclopedia; ed. by Alice Carroll. 479p il $3.75 Rinehart
746 Needlework A48-77

"This volume, which explains step by step twenty-eight popular needlecrafts, is designed for the novice, the experienced needlewoman, the student, the teacher, and even the professional designer. Fourteen color plates and over 1,000 black-and-white photographs and drawings are included to assist the reader to understand the art. . . Each chapter is introduced with a simple explanation of the handicraft, its required skills, and the materials and equipment necessary. The hobbyist who is interested in specific information about a particular needlecraft, ordinarily found only in those books devoted exclusively to it, will find it in this book." N Y Times

Booklist 44:179 Ja 15 '48
Reviewed by R. S. Robbins
+ N Y Times p29 Mr 7 '48 230w
School & Society 67:286 Ap 10 '48 10w

"Welcome addition to useful arts collection in any library." O. M. T.
+ Wis Lib Bul 44:37 F '48

GOODIS, DAVID. Nightfall. 214p $2.50 Messner 47-11897
Detective story.

Kirkus 15:484 S 1 '47 90w

"Mr Goodis takes hard-boiled stuff, plays it down most cannily, varies his pace, flavors everything with a standard brand of compassion (are we mixing any metaphors?) and offers up an attractive mystery." Will Cuppy

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ja 4 '48 110w

Reviewed by Seymour Krim
N Y Times p32 Ja 11 '48 400w

Springf'd Republican p10B N 30 '47 120w

Times [London] Lit Sup p537 S 25 '48 210w

GOODMAN, ABRAM VOSSEN. American overture; Jewish rights in colonial times. 265p il $3 Jewish pub.

296 Jews in the U.S. 47-11778

Study of religious tolerance and liberty as pertaining to Jews in America before the Revolution. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by W. W. Sweet
Am Hist R 53:831 Jl '48 560w

"This study of colonial Jews has the admirable virtues of detachment and of candor, and it is written in a pleasing style. Its chief defects are a certain amount of repetition, some padding in narrating well-known facts of colonial history, and in several instances generalizing on insufficient evidence." Clement Eaton
+ — Ann Am Acad 258:169 Jl '48 460w

"There is nothing sensational in this book's main stream of argument. It is no tale of bitter wrongs, but rather the recital of rights rather casually and good-naturedly granted to the members of a small, harmless and generally esteemed minority, in spite of a traditional theory of government under which they might have expected worse treatment. All this is good. The author's study of the relation of the Jews to the colonial communities has been thorough, his documentation is extensive and accurate, his view of Jewish-Gentile relations is judicious, and his writing is excellent." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 65:142 F 4 '48 650w

Reviewed by R. E. E. Harkness
Crozer Q 25:368 O '48 1100w

Social Studies 39:48 Ja '48 20w

GOODMAN, CLARK DROUILLARD, and others, eds. Science and engineering of nuclear power. v1 $7.50; student ed pa $6 Addison-Wesley

621.48 Nuclear physics (48-484)

"Twelve chapters by authorities, each in his own field. Basic treatment of nuclear pile design and its practical application. Also presents background material and allied subjects as chemistry of the heavy elements, fission process and control. Segre isotope chart included." Library J

"This volume . . . should occupy a prominent place in the reference literature for development of a nuclear processes industry. It is the first such publication in which stress is laid on the details of industrial application of the fundamental science developed in connection with work on the atomic bomb. While it is directed primarily to the power aspects of nuclear reactions, it should be valuable in any nuclear processing field since the nuclear-fission piles utilized in the production of atomic power are the reaction vessels for large scale nuclear processes." F. T. Barr
+ Chem & Eng N 26:1800 Je 14 '48 400w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 72:1615 N 15 '47 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 32:68 O '47

GOODMAN, MAE WINKLER. Single flame [poems] 61p $2 Am. weave, 1559 E. 115th st, Cleveland 6

811 48-13917

"The clue to the theme of this collection of sonnets is in the title. It is a sequence of love poems addressed to an individual in which the intensity of statement and devotional candor of the poet overcome any critical desire to carp about technical blemishes which obtrude occasionally." Sat R of Lit

"Unlike many sonnets, Mrs. Goodman's are not stodgy, but are replete with bright images, and she has a philosophy that gives her work significance." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 65:241 F 25 '48 180w

Reviewed by Wilbur Watson
N Y Times p24 Jl 11 '48 230w

"To write a collection of love sonnets necessarily invites comparison with the classic efforts of Mrs. Browning, Rossetti, and Shakespeare. Mrs. Goodman's poems fare well, not because they approach the masters, but because she makes no pretense of comparison. The sonnets, despite a few limping lines, and wrenched accents, read well and have a simple convincing eloquence. A number of the lines reach high levels of pleasurable excitement." A. M. Sullivan
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:51 Ap 17 '48 190w

GOODRICH, LLOYD. Yasuo Kuniyoshi; pub. for the Whitney museum of Am. art. 50p il $2.50 Macmillan

B of 92 Kuniyoshi, Yasuo

This book by the Associate Curator of the Whitney Museum presents a biographical account of Kuniyoshi's life and a critical study of his art. The thirty-five illustrations cover the full range of his work, with emphasis on the paintings of the last ten years. Selected bibliography.

Library J 73:1093 Ag '48 100w

Reviewed by Jerome Mellquist
N Y Times p9 Jl 4 '48 550w

Reviewed by J. T. Soby
Sat R of Lit 31:45 O 9 '48 100w

GOODSPEED, EDGAR JOHNSON. Paul. 246p $2.75 Winston

B or 92 Paul, Saint 47-12367

Study of the life and teachings of St Paul, based largely on evidence from his own writings. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 44:195 F 1 '48

"Back of the present volume lie many years of patient research and exposition and also—one suspects—much travel. The research is not dragged into the open, but it is there. . . Nor does the author obtrude himself or his journeys. . . This is a biography, and has all the vividness and charm of a great historian's mastery of detail matched with a novelist's skill in narration." F. C. Grant
Christian Century 65:207 F 18 '48 850w

" 'Paul' is no fictionalized biography such as has appeared in recent years about one or another of the great Bible characters. In the form of a serious study, it is a quiet, affectionate presentation of the man and his work by a distinguished Bible scholar." Millicent Taylor
+ Christian Science Monitor p22 D 18 '47 700w

Reviewed by J. H. Titus
Churchman 162:15 My 15 '48 180w

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '48

"Dr. Goodspeed's life of Paul is pleasantly different. No one can say that the best known of American Biblical scholars is a Fundamentalist; none the less, he finds so much to admire in Paul that he has written a completely sympathetic biography. The author's command of New Testament scholarship is so thorough that the reader is scarcely aware of it." Chad Walsh
+ N Y Times p14 Ap 11 '48 500w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 9 '48 170w

Wis Lib Bul 44:60 Mr '48

GORDON, GEORGE ANGIER. And let us reason together; a meditation for each day in the year; selected and compiled by Elise D. Gordon. 381p $3 Beacon press

242 Devotional exercises

Paragraphs for daily reading thruout a whole year selected from the sermons and writings of the great Scottish preacher who was for many years pastor of the Old South Church, Boston. Index of sources.

Christian Century 65:294 Mr 17 '48 20w

"These paragraphs are not light reading, but are full of profound and inspiring ideas. And they are positive and constructive in their assertion of Christian truth." W. L. C.
+ Churchman 162:18 F 1 '48 60w

"This noble book—noble in conception, in substance, in organization, and in format—a labor of love done with love's wisdom has long been overdue. It was unthinkable that, in the confusions and reactions of our time, what Gordon had done should begin to be forgotten, what he preached become only a memory, and his surpassing gift for utterance become only a tradition. This anthology should go far toward reinstating Dr. Gordon in his proper station as one of the greatest preachers of the nineteenth-century English-speaking pulpits." G. G. Atkins
+ Crozer Q 25:170 Ap '48 1300w
+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 My 2 '48 170w

GORDON, JAMES MELVIN STEWART. Escape from Vermont. 212p $2.75 Holt

818 Vermont—Social life and customs
48-10683

Memories of a Vermont boyhood spent in a household dominated by the author's grandfather, pictured as a close-dealing Yankee.

"Written with wit and sophistication of an adult looking back. . . Gay, colorful, well written, this is way ahead of most books of its genre."
+ Kirkus 16:425 Ag 15 '48 160w

"Perhaps Vermonters can best appreciate how true to life is this crabbed, cross-grained, astringent chronicle, which has an occasional flash of beauty to surprise you. If 'summer people' want to find out exactly what 'the natives' think of them, this is their book. Recommended." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 73:1269 S 15 '48 100w

"Unfortunately, his story is not particularly moving. One realizes that nostalgia is essential to these stories of past generations. Without it, the charm and the humor are gone."
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p36 N 14 '48 220w

Reviewed by H. J. Bresler
N Y Times p36 N 14 '48 140w

"There is wonderful material in Vermont for a satirical novel, and the reviewer sympathizes with Mr. Gordon's attempt to write it. But he must report that 'Escape from Vermont' is not that novel. The field is still wide open." Thomas Foster
— Sat R of Lit 31:15 D 25 '48 700w

GORDON, MRS PATRICIA. Witch of Scrapfaggot Green; il. by William Pène Du Bois. 78p $2.50 Viking 48-1192

Story, based on an English newspaper clipping, describing the amusing events that occurred in an Essex village when an American soldier unwittingly dug up a witch's grave.

Booklist 44:288 Ap 15 '48
Chicago Sun Ap 10 '48 220w

"If anyone knows what a witch's ghost is likely to do, it is Patricia Gordon, and if anyone knows how a witch's ghost ought to look, it is William Pène du Bois. Together they have made a delightful book of magic in a setting of wartime England." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 24:191 My '48 120w
Kirkus 16:49 F 1 '48 90w

Reviewed by Miriam Snow
Library J 73:657 Ap 15 '48 70w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Mr 28 '48 550w

"This is not a story for hard-headed young realists or even traditionalists, but 9- to 12-year-olds who appreciate originality and fantasy should like this very much. William Pène du Bois has added an extra fillip of fun with his illustrations." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p30 Ap 11 '48 230w
New Yorker 24:130 D 11 '48 80w

"No one could be afraid of witches after reading this delightful story. . . It is a book for all the family, perfect for reading aloud and a treasure to possess for its story and for William Pene Du Bois' fine drawings."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:34 Ap 10 '48 290w
Wis Lib Bul 44:84 Ap '48

GORDON, RUSSELL. Dead level. 248p $2.50 Morrow
48-5363

Detective story.

Kirkus 15:661 D 1 '47 60w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p30 F 15 '48 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p17 Mr 7 '48 90w

"Wild."
Sat R of Lit 31:35 F 28 '48 50w

"A fast moving, well written yarn that should get an enthusiastic reception from those who like mayhem with their murder." D. F. M.
+ Springf'd Republican p8B F 29 '48 120w

GORDON, THEODORE. Complete fly fisherman; notes and letters; ed. with an introd. by John McDonald. 551p il $7.50 Scribner

799.12 Fly casting Agr47-408

Theodore Gordon, who died in 1915, was recognized as the leading American angling authority of his time. He introduced and adapted the dry fly for American streams. The present book consists of his letters and other writings on fly fishing, which are here assembled for the first time.

"John McDonald's brilliant detective work in unearthing Gordon's fugitively published, but most solid writings, and his succinct editing, together make up a marvelous contribution to angling literature."
+ Chicago Sun p8X D 21 '47 80w
Kirkus 15:593 O 15 '47 110w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 73:477 Mr 15 '48 70w

"No other medium could so well display the character, knowledge and angling skill of Gordon as the notes and letters written by his own hand. Yet he was not an egotistical man. Primarily, his work and his writing was valuable because it was a genuine labor of love. To this labor he devoted a singleness of purpose that relegates many other writers on the same subject to the lowly status of 'hobbyists.'" R. R. Camp
+ N Y Times p14 Ja 11 '48 500w
New Yorker 23:64 Ja 3 '48 80w

GORER, GEOFFREY. American people; a study in national character [Eng title: Americans]. 246p $3 Norton

917.3 National characteristics, American 48-5913

A study of American character from the "psychocultural" point of view by a British anthropologist who has lived in the United States for seven years. No index.

"Intermingled with all the incorrect and false data and interpretations are occasional illuminating points, but they are rare. One is his analysis of 'man, a machine.' The fact that American technology and efficiency have created the assembly-line type of production in which man's work has a machine-like quality, and in which man himself takes on some of the characteristics of a machine, has been noted by a number of observers and has been well documented by them. At least here Mr. Gorer uses some real data intelligently. Another time he correctly shows the strong need to know that one is loved. Unfortunately, the few illuminating points are lost in a mass of unsupported assertions and highly subjective impressions." Hortense Powdermaker

— + Am Anthropol 50:666 O '48 2050w

Reviewed by G. G. Brown

Ann Am Acad 259:155 S '48 450w

Booklist 44:366 Jl 1 '48

"Like earlier Englishmen on the subject, Mr. Gorer amuses, reveals, and irritates. Being an outsider, he has vantage-points; and, being an outsider, he has blind spots. . . Because he has not depended more on the facts of American history, Mr. Gorer's book lacks the profounder answers and finer distinctions that would make it a solid study, and not just a collection of amusing insights." M. M.

Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 23 '48 750w

"Here is nothing of the smart-alecky-Englishman a-visiting, here is only the scientist, to whom nothing human is alien, offering the fruits of his science, intuition, and quite enchanting humor, to ease the aches of a world suffering from every form of nationalistic auto-intoxication. . . His conclusions are sometimes pushed too far; over the razor's edge of reason, surely, is the view that the American male addiction to cow's milk is so deeply erotic in origin. . . But Mr. Gorer's chapter on 'Dating' will probably survive him and his readers. This is, and may well remain the most thorough and thoughtful study of possibly the most complicated pre-courtship pattern that has ever existed outside of the feathered world." Anne Fremantle

+ — Commonweal 47:597 Mr 26 '48 1200w

Kirkus 16:75 F 1 '48 250w

"As an introductory book, it is wholly deceptive. You need to know more than Mr. Gorer to know where he is being expository or ironic, shrewd or absurd. As a handbook for the intelligentsia, which I am told it threatens to become, its effect will be deplorable, since it succeeds in doing for the Nineteen-Forties, what Siegfried did for the Nineteen-Twenties, but not so well; it mobilises the European's instinctive preconceptions into a pseudo-scientific battle order." Alistair Cooke

— + Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 15 '49 1250w

"[Gorer] writes, by the way, with an easy wit. . . It is occasionally marred, however, possibly for the sake of irony, by the jargon of 'social science.' But The American People is a valuable and informed account of the main aspects of life in the United States in the past decade." George Mayberry

+ — New Repub 118:26 Mr 29 '48 550w

"Mr. Geoffrey Gorer's brilliant, packed and persuasive study of the American character [is] a book no English reader should neglect." V. S. Pritchett

+ New Statesman & Nation 36:137 Ag 14 '48 1900w

"Mr. Gorer himself wrote in these columns a penetrating review that called attention to defects in the Kinsey Report. It seems a shame that he did not apply the same standard to 'The American People.'" Bernard Devoto

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Mr 28 '48 1850w

Reviewed by John Chamberlain

N Y Times p3 Mr 21 '48 950w

"Mr. Gorer's book will please neither professional patriots nor those who deny that national characters exist. He is scrupulous, as objective as an anthropologist studying a culture in living interaction with his own can be, and often brilliant. . . The anthropologists don't always write as well or with as much wit; Mr. Gorer combines the exciting dispassion of scientific method with the inimitable poker face of the cultivated British traveller reporting on the United States. The method is that of Mead, Benedict, and Dollard, but I sometimes hear in this book the voice of Anthony Trollope, noting the unending talk of dollars on Fifth Avenue in the eighteen-sixties." Alfred Kazin

+ New Yorker 24:108 Mr 20 '48 1500w

"Original as his book is in hypotheses, and fertile as it is in specific insight, it is completely unsatisfying as a whole. He has used only enough data to illustrate his ideas, not to prove them even in a prima facie way, and one leaves the volume with a feeling of distrust." Richard Hofstadter

Pol Sci Q 63:440 S '48 1100w

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Mr 14 '48 450w

"'The American People' is as pointed, sense-making, and polite a working-over as the national ego has got in several seasons. Inevitably, being an anthropologist's job, it has some of the defects, as well as the merits, inherent in studies of ant or human colonies observed under glass." Duncan Aikman

Sat R of Lit 31:10 Mr 27 '48 950w

School & Society 67:302 Ap 17 '48 10w

Reviewed by Walter Taplin

Spec 181:210 Ag 13 '48 900w

Reviewed by Katherine Aikins

Survey G 37:274 My '48 550w

"Much of the book is funny, some of it is brilliant; all of it would be improved if the author had left out the high-toned language and one-way-glass point of view of anthropology."

Time 51:106 Mr 29 '48 1000w

Times [London] Lit Sup p483 Ag 28 '48 1150w

GORHAM, CHARLES ORSON. Future Mister Dolan. 350p $3 Dial press

48-7961

"Mattie Dolan of 'The Future Mister Dolan' is a complete monster, in the shape of a not unattractive Irish youth of nineteen who has returned from the army, ravening for the kill, to the slum street in New York in which he grew up. . . To Mattie everyone he knew was a fool and a destined victim, except his Uncle Fred, who had grown fat and rich on wartime rackets. When the book ends, he has money in the bank sent to him by Fred just before he was murdered by his pals for taking more than his share of the syndicate's profits; he is cleared of his entanglement with the simple-minded and virtuous girl he has seduced and betrayed, and he is on his way to take the gilded suckers of Manhattan for a ride." Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by Bruce Taylor

Chicago Sun p6X S 5 '48 250w

"The author of The Gilded Hearse with a second, which should have been unprintable book, chiefly in English scarcely past the bathroom level. . . An unforgivable book."

— Kirkus 16:415 Ag 15 '48 120w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell

— N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ag 29 '48 320w

"'The Future Mr. Dolan,' a study of juvenile delinquency and its final flowering, makes its points in the crudest and most violent terms. But Mr. Gorham's approach is entirely clinical: the over-all effect is a complete revulsion, and the bitter wisdom that comes with understanding. . . Unfortunately, though it is always readable, and though one never doubts the accuracy of Mr. Gorham's note-taking, it belongs in the category of novels that are made rather than felt. . . Everything happens on schedule here: and everyone speaks on cue. . . One is conscious of a total lack of compassion, of the nameless quality that separates the artist from the artisan." William Du Bois

— + N Y Times p4 Ag 22 '48 750w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ag 30 '48 330w

GORHAM, C. O.—Continued

"Mr. Gorham has successfully met his major problem. Through one horrendous episode after the other the sheer mass of the youth's callous iniquities makes him credible. . . The book can be read and endured only because of the peculiar fascination that the spectacle of sheer evil engenders in a mind of any sensitivity. As a work of fiction, it has its gross faults. It is overwritten, especially in the occasional long, descriptive passages; it is as one-dimensional as the hero himself, who has neither soul nor conscience. Take it or leave it, Mr. Gorham seems to say, with such vigor that the reader is not sure the writer's own philosophy is not that the ruthless superman is a force beyond good and evil. The book will not advance his stature as a novelist, but it may make him the runner-up in any contest for whatever laurels belong to the toughest writer in America." Harrison Smith

— + Sat R of Lit 31:11 Ag 21 '48 700w

GORHAM, CHARLES ORSON. Gilded hearse. 246p $2.75 Creative age

48-5213

Sophisticated novel about the book publishing business. It covers one day in the life of a young publicity man, and involves a barroom fight, trouble with his wife and with another woman, and unsuccessful attempts to numb his conscience with drink.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 181:108 Mr '48 120w

"How some of the language in this novel found its way into print is beyond my comprehension. At times it descends to a level I would hesitate to use at any army reunions." Emmett Dedmon

— Chicago Sun p7X F 8 '48 180w

"Personally, I disliked the book intensely."

— Kirkus 16:1 Ja 1 '48 250w

"Aptly titled and competently (and often strongly) put down, this is the spring conversation piece in bookish circles." R. E. Kingery

Library J 73:39 Ja 1 '48 80w

"A clipped, frenetic, splenetic round-the-clock Manhattan excursion, the chief points of interest being marital infidelity, the publishing business, the garment industry, a cocktail party brawl, alcohol consumption, psychiatry and homosexuality.

— N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 F 15 '48 300w

"The wife is drawn with some consistency; befuddled, sad and miraculously hopeful, she is at least understandable. But the bright boys in the publishing office are little more than overlapping types. And such innovations as onesided telephone conversations with dashes instead of responses, read more like crossword puzzles than like fiction." Virginia Dale

— N Y Times p26 F 1 '48 280w

"Brisk and frequently amusing but resoundingly anticlimactic."

+ — New Yorker 23:85 F 7 '48 120w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p14 F 6 '48 750w

"It is difficult to disguise the fact that Richard Eliot is a complete heel, and all the rationalizing of the author about his unhappiness, his dissatisfaction with being the bright young man of a publishing house, his aching soul, does not make him any more attractive, or a likely candidate for a gilded hearse drawn by a unicorn. But the novel is essentially dramatic and exciting; it moves at a fast pace. . . There can be no doubt that Mr. Gorham's first novel reveals a satirical and vocal gift of considerable range and power. He is also an excellent mimic with a good memory and an accurate eye for details." Harrison Smith

— + Sat R of Lit 31:13 F 28 '48 900w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn

Springf'd Republican p10B Mr 14 '48 300w

Time 51:106 F 16 '48 330w

GORMAN, HERBERT SHERMAN. Cry of Dolores. 443p $3.50 Rinehart

47-7053

Historical novel about the Mexican uprising against the Spaniards in 1810. Miguel Hidalgo, the parish priest of Dolores, is the leading character, altho the story of the Indian woman, Luz, and her mestizo son, Ciriaco, provide much of the plot.

Booklist 44:202 F 1 '48

Reviewed by Feike Feikema

Chicago Sun Mr 14 '48 400w

"A story that has slow start and ragged moments, but that builds to a significant whole. Not for the biggest market of historical fiction, but for the more selective."

Kirkus 15:653 D 1 '47 240w

"Highly recommended as an exciting tale of adventure, and for its exposition of this struggle for freedom." J. L. Ross

+ Library J 73:39 Ja 1 '48 60w

"The novel is alive both with the life of a great historical event and with the life of the Indian woman and her son, who sufficiently arouse our sympathies so that we care what happens to them and what happens to the movement they are caught in. It is probably a little disturbing for one who does not know Spanish to see so many Spanish-Mexican words sprinkled through its pages, but any eager child will tell you that such words can be skipped without losing anything of the story. This is a better fictional telling of Mexico's main historical tale than the Mexicans themselves have so far achieved." B. D. Wolfe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 F 8 '48 900w

"A highly readable fusion of historical fact and romantic fancy. Better than most examples of its genre, in writing and purpose, though not supremely distinguished, 'The Cry of Dolores' contains the usual agitations of war and love and the usual quota of spectacle. . . Occasional stylistic excesses will strike some as less objectionable than the bluntness of the sex passages and the detailing of the more gruesome aspects of war. For all the delicacy of his style, Mr. Gorman is one to sledge his point home rather than simply suggest it." Charles Lee

+ — N Y Times p5 F 8 '48 800w

"The novel is so devoid of even superficial analysis of character and motives that it is hard to believe it was written by a man who has produced serious studies of Hawthorne and Joyce."

— New Yorker 23:85 F 7 '48 120w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 17 '48 700w

"Amid the current spate of overstuffed, overwritten historical novels, the majority of which are as formula-ridden as the romances of chivalry which Cervantes once smiled out of existence, Mr. Gorman's stirring story of the opening chapter of the war for Mexican independence stands out like a lighthouse, and is by any criterion a superior piece of fiction." Herschel Brickell

+ Sat R of Lit 31:9 F 7 '48 1050w

GORTNER, WILLIS ALWAY; ERDMAN, FREDERICK S., and MASTERMAN, NANCY KRISTLER. Principles of food freezing; ed. by L. A. Maynard. 281p $3.75 Wiley

664.8 Food, Frozen. Refrigeration and refrigerating machinery 48-1565

Describes the basic principles of selecting and processing foods for freezing, and of storing them when frozen. The book is divided into three main divisions: The product: frozen food; The consumer and his needs; The engineering of food freezing. Indexes.

Booklist 44:277 Ap 15 '48

"This book enters a field which is relatively new—namely, that of textbooks on food freezing adapted to collegiate home economics or food technology. It does not have the commercial outlook of the frozen food processor, and it is rather beyond the usual housewife. It is liberally documented so that the student may consult the original sources of information if he desires." M. E. Pennington

Chem & Eng N 26:2918 S 27 '48 150w

"Its emphasis on mechanical phases of home and locker refrigeration makes this book helpful as a textbook in food technology. It is to be regretted, however, that the discussion does not include the frozen food standards thus far established. . . The theoretical discussion is excellent." Jennie McIntosh
+ — J Home Econ 40:536 N '48 150w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:202 F 1 '48 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:11 Ja '48

Special Libraries 39:23 Ja '48

GOSHAL, KUMAR. People in colonies. 329p $3.50 Sheridan

325.3 Colonies 48-5373

Takes up the colonial problem as a whole—in the Caribbean, in Asia, Africa, and in the islands of the Pacific. The author gives a history of the colonial peoples from the early days of conquest to the post-war developments in Africa and Asia. Selected bibliography. Index.

"Mr. Goshal refuses to credit Britain or any of her sister democracies with good intentions. . . He is more interested in the indictment than in constructive proposals for remedying the situation. His information is far more complete on well-authenticated abuses of the past than on up-to-date conditions, which may or may not show improvement." Henry Sowerby
— Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 24 '48 850w

"An indispensable addition to a shelf of reading on world affairs is 'People in Colonies.'" John Bicknell
+ N Y Times p21 O 3 '48 500w

"If it serves no other purpose, this book reminds us that, in the latterday East as in the West, political man is motivated in large measure by nationalist considerations and prefers self-government, even though inept, to government by others." Chakratong Tongyai
Pacific Affairs 21:436 D '48 90w

GOSNELL, HAROLD FOOTE. Democracy, the threshold of freedom. 316p $4 Ronald

324 Suffrage. Representative government and representation 48-5188

"In the first and last chapters of this book, the issue of democracy versus dictatorship, suggested by the title, is debated. Between these two chapters, are fourteen chapters devoted to Dr. Gosnell's professional specialties in the field of political science, suffrage and representation." U S Quarterly Bkl

"The materials here presented are most timely and will be useful not only in introductory courses in political science, but in courses on political parties, comparative government, and international politics as well." E. A. Helms
+ Am Pol Sci R 42:987 O '48 550w

Reviewed by T. V. Smith
Am Soc J 54:278 N '48 150w

"No part of democracy as a working form of government is more important than the suffrage and representation. The countries of the Western world have been experimenting with them long enough to furnish data for collection and scientific analysis. That is the purpose of this book. The book grew out of the awareness (experienced while teaching classes in political science) of a need for such assembled data. It is designed to fill this need. But it should have a much wider appeal. It will be useful to all architects of governments who are interested in establishing democratic control of political institutions." Frank Paddock
+ Ann Am Acad 257:205 My '48 400w

Reviewed by C. S. Hyneman
Pol Sci Q 63:601 D '48 1000w

School & Society 67:222 Mr 20 '48 10w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:188 Je '48 260w

GOSNELL, HARPUR ALLEN, ed. Rebel raider. See Semmes, R.

GOSS, JOHN MAYO. This magnificent world. 278p $2.75 Rinehart

48-1063

A young American, visiting in Paris in the early 1930's, first befriends and then falls in love with a Parisian prostitute, marries her and brings her back to America with him. Denise, it is revealed, is diseased, and in the struggle to bring her back to health, Rid encompasses his own near destruction. However after a period in an insane asylum he fights his way back to sanity and to a renewed hope of happiness.

"Hemingway overtones in the desperate romance, telling impact in the human terms of the social disease, and a sympathetic understanding of the eccentricities of character. Disputable, readable."
Kirkus 16:31 Ja 15 '48 180w

"An extremely readable book in which author handles touchy subject maturely and honestly. Recommended." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 73:473 Mr 15 '48 70w

Reviewed by George Conrad
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Ap 25 '48 340w

"You will enjoy almost any section of 'This Magnificent World' if you don't stop to look where you're going. (It is significant to note that the final chapter—so incredible, here in a novel framework—won both the Brickell and Foley accolades as a short story). But a prostitute is still just that, no matter how honest her tears—and her clinging: a bum is still a bum, no matter how delicately tinted his visions. Unless they are seen realistically, and explained from the inside out, they are a deadly duo—to any but sophomoric ears." C. V. Terry
— + N Y Times p23 Ap 4 '48 500w

"What Mr. Goss appears to have attempted is a tale of transcendent love. But since he was less interested in his story than in the manner of telling it, he has forgotten to give us any real notion of the spiritual bond between these strange lovers. And since their passion is never quite credible, it does not provoke the pity that Mr. Goss solicits for them." J. M. Lalley
New Yorker 24:92 Ap 3 '48 700w

"The fact is that this is an extremely well done novel. It will be difficult for an American to accept the central situation, though a European will have less trouble with it. Once it is accepted, however, the reader will realize that Mr. Goss' interpretation of a man in the throes of a struggle in which he can have no outside help is admirably accomplished. I have seldom seen so convincing a picture of the decline into utter psychological escape, and never such a vivid picture of the struggle to come back again to normal attitudes." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 18 '48 650w

GOSSETT, MRS MARGARET, and ELTING, MARY. Now you're cookin'; with il. by Jeanne Bendick. 256p $2.50 Presbyterian bd.

641.5 Cookery 48-7962

A cookbook for the young person wishing to entertain his gang. Index.

"A bright, sprightly text, with practical, detailed instructions on how to feed the gang. . . The recipe index at the end doesn't really take the place of the kind of cross index a cookbook should have. But otherwise it's a must for the teens—and a borrow for mother (and father)."
+ — Kirkus 16:311 Jl 1 '48 170w

GOSSETT, MARGARET—Continued
Reviewed by M. B. Snow
Library J 74:205 F 1 '49 70w
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 N 14 '48 50w

"Good timing, or the art of having everything ready at the right moment, is mapped out for each meal and the recipes are simple and easy to follow. . . The illustrations by Jeanne Bendick are infectiously full of pep and a spirit of experimentation and informality makes this an excellent cook book for young people." V. H. M.
+ N Y Times p60 N 14 '48 140w

GOTSHALK, DILMAN WALTER. Art and the social order. 253p $3.75 Univ. of Chicago press
701 Art—Philosophy. Art and society
47-11053

"Dr. Gotshalk, who is professor of philosophy at the University of Illinois and the author of 'Structure and Reality,' here offers an anti-nihilistic theory of art based upon a relational perspective which views artificer, artifact and perception as one. This theory acknowledges that art may serve many functions. It may be a means of escape or of educating. It may be used commercially. It may provide recreation. More important than these ends, however, is art as a terminal value in itself. For true art directly enriches society and strengthens it." San Francisco Chronicle

"This deserves careful study by those seeking answers to such questions as, What is an aesthetic experience? What distinguishes the 'fine' arts? What is 'form'? What are the criteria of good art? What is the function of art in the life of the individual and in the social order? It is to the author's credit that he does not provide dogmatic answers to these and similar questions but assists the reader's thinking."
+ Christian Century 64:1585 D 24 '47 220w
Reviewed by Arthur Child
Ethics 58:315 Jl '48 400w
San Francisco Chronicle p15 N 30 '47 220w

"The total result of the study is indeed, as the author hopes in his preface it might be, 'a realistic, balanced, inclusive, and illuminating view.' "
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 3:335 D '47 240w

GOUDGE, ELIZABETH. Pilgrim's inn [Eng title: Herb of Grace]. 346p $3 Coward-McCann 48-5845

Continues the story of the Eliots begun in The Bird in the Tree (Book Review Digest 1940). Grandmother Lucilla, still charming at eighty-six, presides graciously over Damerosehay, and rules her children, grandchildren, and great-grandchildren as in former days. George and Nadine, with their five children buy an old pilgrim's inn and gradually the influence of the beautiful old place brings peace and happiness to the troubled people who seek its shelter.

Booklist 44:268 Ap 1 '48
Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p8X Mr 28 '48 320w

"There may be too many threads, too many complications that are too swiftly solved, but they make the story move. Probably, too, the setting, though deeply satisfying, has not the rarity and other-worldness of 'Green Dolphin Street,' so that it may not impress readers as keenly." W. K. R.
Christian Science Monitor p16 Ap 7 '48 420w

"The style is somewhat unequal—at times exquisitely beautiful, at times diffuse and pedestrian. The flow of the story is slow, but it is deep and smooth." Bonaventure Schwinn
+ — Commonweal 48:314 Jl 9 '48 220w
Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 24:291 Jl '48 100w

"At times her conversation tends to be a bit esoteric; at other times burdened down with trappings of learning. But in the main it is a charming and appealing story of the disentanglement of tangled lives."
+ — Kirkus 16:26 Ja 15 '48 210w

"A novel effervescing with joy of living and a sincere love of nature and beauty. Again [Miss Goudge's] masterful portrayal of children is impressive. Occasional sentimental splashes are checked by her resolute realism." E. P. Nichols
+ Library J 73:336 F 15 '48 80w

"The vividness of the author's observation and the warmth and keenness of her enjoyment of places and people make this an escape that is likely to leave one a bit wiser as well as gayer. For a vacation from an overlong winter and collective humanity, the doors of Pilgrim's Inn open wide and invitingly." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Mr 28 '48 700w

"Miss Goudge can write good escape fiction, but she can do more. She not only relishes life; she knows things about people, how they think and feel. . . She admirably reveals the sharply discreet, make-believe world of childhood. She describes the English countryside with understanding, and both she and her older characters have the adult enjoyment of small things. Her chief faults are those of over-emphasis. Everything in her novel has a too-too quality. . . Miss Goudge is something of a puzzle. It is a little hard to understand how a woman who can write as well as she can in some moments can have so little literary vanity as to write as ill as she does in others." Horace Reynolds
+ — N Y Times p12 Mr 21 '48 500w
New Yorker 24:89 Mr 27 '48 110w

"It must be admitted that Miss Goudge is never happy to state merely a problem. She must suggest possible solutions. That is why her novels seldom achieve artistic perfection. 'Pilgrim's Inn' . . . can best be described as a fairy tale for grownups. It gives you the momentary illusion of being happy and hopeful and safe. It also affirms the hope that good will triumph provided we are willing to exercise the necessary discipline." Jane Voiles
San Francisco Chronicle p11 Mr 28 '48 650w

"Miss Goudge has a gift for describing birds. beasts, trees, and rivers. Her details about the herbs and the flowering countryside reminded me of the borders of medieval tapestries, the flora and fauna of the region, giving the key to the scene above. What this really is, is escape reading certainly, escape to unreality and sylvan enchantment. Like the Eliots, most readers need to escape from something now—if only the newspaper headlines—and Miss Goudge's pleasant flowering countryside may appeal to them as a refuge." R. C. Benét
+ Sat R of Lit 31:18 Ap 24 '48 600w
Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p10B My 9 '48 550w
Time 51:100 Ap 5 '48 300w
Times [London] Lit Sup p189 Ap 3 '48 110w
Wis Lib Bul 44:104 My '48

GOUDGE, ELIZABETH. Songs and verses. 56p $2.50 Coward-McCann 821
48-7367

This volume contains some hitherto unpublished pieces together with the songs and verses scattered thru the author's other books.

Reviewed by Thomas Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p19 D 5 '48 20w

"The serious reader of poetry will at once recognize the warmed-over quality of what Miss Goudge does. The marks of many original poets of the older generation are on these verses: Stevenson, Tennyson, De la Mare, Browning, Chesterton, Hodgson, Masefield, Stephens; the themes are theirs—childhood, forest mystery, crumbling castles, the out-of-doors (English), and the tone is theirs, watered down—sentimental, 'whimsical.' " G. P. Meyer

Sat R of Lit 32:19 Ja 1 '49 110w

GOUDSMIT, SAMUEL ABRAHAM. Alsos. 259p $3.50 Schuman
940.53185 U.S. War department. Alsos mission. Atomic bomb. World war, 1939-1945—Science 47-11609

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '48
Foreign Affairs 26:740 Jl '48 20w

"Goudsmit's work is important for the scientific information it contains; it is even more important for the insight it gives us into the German mentality." Benjamin Harrow
+ Nation 166:161 F 7 '48 950w

Reviewed by J. R. Newman
New Repub 118:28 Ja 26 '48 2100w

"Dr. Samuel A. Goudsmit is a highly regarded theoretical physicist and, it now turns out, a most competent author." Stephen White
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 My 16 '48 600w
N Y New Tech Bks 33:2 Ja '48
Times [London] Lit Sup p320 Je 5 '48 2900w
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:221 Je '48 320w

GOULD, GEORGE, and YOAKAM, GERALD ALAN. Teacher and his work; a first course in education. 318p il $3.50 Ronald 371.1 Teaching. Education—U.S. 47-4936

A guide for beginning classes in teacher-training institutions. "Teaching as a career, and the economic welfare of the teacher are the central themes of the introductory chapters. The professional relationships of the teacher and his instructional activities are also considered. One of the most significant chapters deals with the child and the teacher. . . Several chapters are devoted to the role of the school in our society and the factors which affect the school in an ever changing social order." (El School J) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

"Because of its easy style, clarity of organization, and general scope, beginning students in education, and especially prospective teachers, should find the reading of this book stimulating and helpful. . . The ultimate objective in teacher education is to help teachers function more effectively in the classrooms and in the communities in which they serve. This volume will contribute to the achievement of that objective. While it is designed primarily for basic orientation of the beginning teacher and student of education, the teacher and the administrator in service can also profit from a careful reading of its pages." W. W. Fishback
+ El School J 48:287 Ja '48 600w
School & Society 66:351 N 1 '47 20w

GOULD, LAWRENCE. Way to be happy. 308p $2.95 Doubleday
150.13 Happiness. Psychology, Applied 48-8944

"Common-sense psychology" (subtitle) which makes use of the Freudian approach. The author writes a syndicated column on popular psychology called Mirror of Your Mind. In this book he discusses such subjects as the perplexities of adolescence, marriage, and parenthood. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:82 N 1 '48

"Much of his advice is sound and down to earth; much of it will shock the ultra-conservative for its frank approach to controversial issues of sex—in marriage, in education, in handling of the adolescent. He traces many causes for unhappiness to immaturity, moral confusion, sense of guilt. . . A good case for psychoanalysis, and a heartening approach to problems of mental illness and its cures."
+ Kirkus 16:422 Ag 15 '48 220w

"As a consulting psychologist and lay psychiatrist, the author has had wide experience in the realm of mental therapy. He is frank, precise and persuasive. An index enables the reader to find his own particular malady with ease, be it claustrophobia, inferiority complex, intolerance, exhibitionism or homeliness."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p33 N 21 '48 170w

"Mr. Gould, a consulting psychologist and lay psycho-analyst who writes a newspaper column devoted to popular presentations of his specialities, has outlined a plan which, if followed, should make it possible to be a human being and like it." Thomas Sugrue
+ N Y Times p44 D 5 '48 650w

GOUZENKO, IGOR. Iron curtain [Eng title: This was my choice]. 279p $3 Dutton
B or 92 Russia—Social life and customs. World war, 1939-1945—Russia. Spies. Secret service—Russia 48-7039

Autobiography of the young Russian code clerk, attached to the Canadian Soviet Embassy, who revealed to Canadian authorities the existence of a plot to turn over atomic bomb secrets to Russian spies.

Booklist 44:367 Jl 1 '48

"Narrates the intensely interesting story of a convert from Communism, who has contributed more than any other single individual to the exposure of the amazing Soviet Spy System. It is his story that provided the substance of the film to which the futile protests of Communists have drawn such wide attention. The highly detailed pictures displayed in these pages will startle even the hard-boiled, weather-beaten reader." Joseph McSorley
+ Cath World 167:379 Jl '48 500w

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p18 My 27 '48 850w
Kirkus 16:276 Je 1 '48 210w
Manchester Guardian p3 O 29 '48 130w

Reviewed by Kingsley Martin
New Statesman & Nation 36:466 N 27 '48 420w

"The broad contrast, here drawn in popular and often moving language, between the appalling tyranny and inhumanity of the 'Soviet paradise' and the freedoms of democratic society, is probably substantially correct. It is about the details that one is forced to wonder. One could wish that we had Gouzenko's story straight, unedited and un-rewritten. What we have here conveys no real sense of the cipher-clerk's own personality; it lacks the direct impact of the testimony and findings published by the Royal Commission; it is a popularized version, interesting, important, but leaving one with some regret that the freedoms of a free journalism are quite as free from the strict canons of history and fact as they sometimes seem to be." Walter Millis
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Je 13 '48 1100w

"A thought-provoking document written with considerable literary skill." Richard Hirsch
+ N Y Times p19 Je 6 '48 650w

"The entire narrative is notable for its simplicity, humility, and candor. 'We have been impressed,' said the Royal Commission appointed in Canada to investigate this matter, 'with the sincerity of the man, and with the manner in which he gave his evidence. . .' You will feel the same way. Moreover, if what Hollywood has done with his story bothers you, go and read the book. It's your duty to do so before making any further comment along that line." Asher Brynes
+ Sat R of Lit 31:9 Je 12 '48 700w

Reviewed by Richard Chancellor
Spec 181:636 N 12 '48 750w

Reviewed by Frederick Reinstein
Springf'd Republican p10B Je 20 '48 550w

GOW, J. RODGER, and HANLON, HELEN J., eds. Five Broadway plays. 432p $2 Harper

812.08 Dramas—Collections 48-5203

Five plays that have had long runs. Contents: Junior Miss, by Jerome Chodorov and J. A. Fields; High Tor, by Maxwell Anderson; On borrowed time, by Paul Osborn; The Barretts of Wimpole Street, by Rudolf Besier; Abe Lincoln in Illinois, by R. E. Sherwood. There are brief biographical sketches of each playwright, introductions, and questions to aid in studying the plays.

Booklist 44:220 F 15 '48

"A good collection for the small library." O. M. T.
+ Wis Lib Bul 44:38 F '48

GRABBE, PAUL, and SHERMAN, JOSEPH E. Outdoors with the camera. rev ed 120p il $3 Harper

770 Photography 48-5787

"A small amount of new material, additional technical information on films, and some new pictures have been added to a book first entered in [Book Review Digest 1941]." Booklist

Booklist 44:250 Mr 15 '48

"The choice of subject-matter, while limited only by the nature of the fan's surroundings, is treated with an eye toward simplicity and good taste." R. S. Robbins
+ N Y Times p23 Jl 11 '48 180w

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Je 6 '48 50w

"Unless you are a trained and experienced photographer, this book is for you. Even if you are in the expert class, you might well brush up in a few of the details, and perhaps refreshing yourself in this manner will save you a bad time in the near future." P. A. R.
+ Springf'd Republican p8B F 29 '48 420w

GRABO, CARL HENRY. Creative critic. 136p $3 Univ. of Chicago press

801 Literary criticism 48-5798

Book setting forth a philosophy of literary criticism. The author suggests that the critic encourage experimentation so that literature may be enriched. He proposes a literary foundation for the publication of worthy books and suggests means of establishing it.

Booklist 44:265 Ap 1 '48

Reviewed by Benjamin Weintroub
Chicago Sun Jl 1 '48 450w

Current Hist 14:295 My '48 50w

Reviewed by Delancey Ferguson
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p36 N 14 '48 430w

"[The author] accepts a 'universe of infinite becoming, in which the creative purpose, or God, is manifest in ourselves.' But the argument comes close to the assumption that the universe is manifest only in ourselves. It is, therefore, unsympathetic toward orthodox Christianity. . . Few readers of the book will follow its author so far as to share his conviction that art may safely be organized and patronized, and that critics, or a single critic, can spot diverse originalities and recognize a truth even when it has never before been seen."
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:131 Je '48 280w

GRAEFENBERG, ROSIE (GOLDSCHMIDT) (COUNTESS WALDECK) (R. G.) Emperor's duchess. 305p $3 Doubleday

48-9163

Historical novel of Napoleonic Europe in the years 1807 to 1813. The central character is the beautiful Duchess d'Abrantès whose husband was Napoleon's aide and Governor of Paris. An epilog describes the later years of the Duchess, after her husband's madness and death.

Booklist 45:104 N 15 '48

"Possibly some will feel this too highly romantic, overdrawn, but none-the-less it bears a stamp of sincerity and reality, and is written with becoming restraint and ease. A different sort of book from the usual concoction for the Napoleon fans."
+ — Kirkus 16:490 S 15 '48 190w

Reviewed by Mary Ross
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 N 7 '48 500w

New Yorker 24:164 N 20 '48 90w

"The novel is adequate, but not distinguished; it is below the level of Waldeck's last." M. S.
— + San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ja 16 '49 250w

Reviewed by Pamela Taylor
Sat R of Lit 31:14 N 20 '48 650w

GRAF, MAX. From Beethoven to Shostakovich; the psychology of the composing process. 474p $4.75 Philosophical lib.

781.61 Composition (music). Music—Psychology. Music—History and criticism 47-11896

"Mr. Graf's book is 'a road to Xanadu' in the world of music, as it concerns itself with the psychology of musical composition. You will find here an exposition of classical and romantic fantasy and of the erotic forces of fantasy. Mr. Graf explores the forms and figures of the subconscious in the work of various composers and discusses some of the factors upon which the productive mood of the artist depends." San Francisco Chronicle

"Mr. Graf's thinking is as two grains of wheat hid in two bushels of cliches." A. S.
— Canadian Forum 27:261 F '48 220w

"It is not collective biography, but unfortunately it is not psychology either. The text soon deteriorates into a collection of observations and anecdotes of limited psychological application that lead the author to unacceptable conclusions drawn from insufficient evidence, but no matter how small the value of the book as psychology, it must be admitted that there is much of general musical interest in it. Editorial standards of both author and publisher are better here than in some of their previous productions but there is still room for improvement." Leonard Burkat
— + Library J 72:1611 N 15 '47 110w

"The title of the book, From Beethoven to Shostakovich, does not indicate the original treatment [the author] gives the material. This treatment actually results in a psychograph of the composer. As an attempt to throw light on a badly neglected aspect of musicology, the book is a genuine contribution to musical literature. The value of such a study is far from being generally recognized at the present time, in spite of the fact that progressive methods of modern psychology have already begun to penetrate the study of the sister arts." Frederick Dorian
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 5:233 Mr '48 480w

"At times the trend of thought becomes confused and Mr. Graf is difficult to follow. A bewildering mass of musical knowledge is here, but it has not been clearly enough organized for the lay reader." J. V.
San Francisco Chronicle p22 F 8 '48 120w

GRAHAM, AELRED. Christ of Catholicism; a meditative study. 381p $4 Longmans

232.9 Jesus Christ—Person and offices 47-6525

The author of this "meditative study" is a monk of the Benedictine Abbey of Ampleforth in York. His book's purpose is to set forth what the Catholic church believes about Christ, and why. The study is intended for the layman. Bibliography. Indexes.

"This new contribution to 'Theology for the Laity' is especially useful in these days of uninformed and frequently confused thinking. . . As a treatise, it is exact without being formal; instructive, yet not academic; learned, not pedantic; devout, not sentimental." Joseph McSorley

+ Cath World 166:566 Mr '48 800w

"His style is clear and succinct... The going is rather hard at first—so packed with solid doctrine is every page, but the ease of style helps one forward and the gathering momentum of incisive truth finally sweeps one on into admiration for the Person of Christ Who fits in so organically with the vital needs of man. This Study will belong beside the commentaries made by scholars, adding to them the devotional interpretations which excite piety and the timely import of the Gospel for everyday living." Richard Flower
+ Commonweal 47:622 Ap 9 '48 400w

Reviewed by J. M. L. Thomas
Hibbert J 46:279 Ap '48 1500w

"The whole volume is a thorough-going exposition of Catholic Christology, and, while not over erudite, still presents to the ordinary Catholic layman some rather formidable reading matter. This is a book which, for those able to follow the arguments, presents a closely argued, logical presentation of the central aspect of the Catholic faith. Others, not of that faith, will at least know from a reading of the book what the Catholic believes and the points of differences with his own faith. But it is Catholic readers who are most able to be interested in this book, especially clergymen and teachers."
+ — Kirkus 15:535 S 15 '47 180w
Times [London] Lit Sup p418 Jl 24 '48 650w

GRAHAM, BESSIE. Bookman's manual; a guide to literature; 6th ed, rev. and enl. by Hester R. Hoffman. 785p $10 Bowker

028 Booksellers and bookselling. Bibliography—Best books. Reference books—Bibliography 48-7664

"This volume is an introduction to book knowledge through the humanities, gauged by the present reading interest of the public. Classical drama has been added and a more extensive list of recently published classical literature will be found in the chapter on 'Classics in Translation.' Increasing interest in philosophy and in psychology and psychoanalysis resulted in a longer chapter. The emigration of European authors and literary activity in the Latin-American countries has meant more translations." Pref

Booklist 45:34 S 15 '48

"The appearance of the 6th edition, the first revision since 1941, is an event of no small importance. . . There can be no doubt of the fact that this monumental work is of inestimable value to both booksellers and librarians, and that the new edition will be welcomed by members of both professions." Fern Long
+ Library J 73:1080 Ag '48 420w

GRAHAM, MALBONE WATSON. American diplomacy in the international community. 279p $3.25 Johns Hopkins press

327.73 U.S.—Foreign relations. International relations 48-6412

"The announced purpose of the six lectures is 'to trace the influence which the United States, as an independent political entity, has exerted on the institutions of the international community, from the beginning of American independence down to the period closing World War II. At the same time they endeavor not only to register the degree of acceptance by the United States of the preexisting political, diplomatic, and legal usages of nations, but also record the impress of contemporary outside forces, at each stage of our national development, on the malleable and ductile practices of the infant American Republic.' " U S Quarterly Bkl

Reviewed by Dexter Perkins
Am Hist R 54:392 Ja '49 400w

"What Professor Graham has done, and done well, should go a long way toward giving all of us the necessary facts on which to interpret and understand American beliefs, traditions, and ideologies that have been, and still are, involved in the formation of at least one aspect of American diplomacy." B. M. Ziegler
+ Am Pol Sci R 42:803 Ag '48 750w

Reviewed by L. M. Sears
Ann Am Acad 260:210 N '48 360w

"A characteristically pungent and scholarly work. . . It cannot be denied that the author of these lectures holds strong personal convictions and allows them to appear clearly in his presentation; but it must also be stated that the result is at once an intensely interesting and a fairly moderate statement."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:176 Je '48 360w

GRAMATKY, HARDIE. Creeper's jeep; il. by [the author]. 68p $2.25 Putnam 48-4403

"Creeper Perkins, who was a nice boy but not much of a worker . . . won the jeep at the county fair. Father Perkins was scandalized. Even when the jeep took over the plowing and the milking of the cows, he wasn't reconciled. . . How [Creeper] evaded selling it and how on a night of storm and fire the jeep justified its existence make a brave climax to some hilarious antics." N Y Times

Reviewed by Jane Cobb
+ Atlantic 182:119 N '48 70w
Booklist 45:53 O 1 '48

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun S 11 '48 140w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 24:435 N '48 70w

"Following the successful story pattern of the earlier books, this is assured an audience among the youngsters."
+ Kirkus 16:394 Ag 15 '48 150w

Reviewed by R. O. Bostwick
Library J 73:1520 O 15 '48 50w
New Repub 119:33 D 6 '48 120w

"A new picture book from Hardie Gramatky is, ordinarily, an occasion for celebration. 'Creeper's Jeep,' however, is less appealing, less convincing than 'Little Toot' or 'Hercules.' But Creeper's adventures are the subject of some lively pictures, which, though sometimes muddy in color, have the action and vitality that will delight little boys." Helen Masten
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 S 26 '48 200w

"The jeep, unlike the tugboat Little Toot, doesn't always stay in character. However, it is such a versatile machine that young ones will be all the more delighted to see it in a barber shop or at the soda fountain. Certainly the 4 to 8 year olds will enjoy the swiftly moving prose and the slashing action of the pictures." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p11 S 5 '48 200w
New Yorker 24:119 D 11 '48 200w
+ Sat R of Lit 31:23 N 13 '48 90w
Wis Lib Bul 44:214 D '48

GRAMOPHONE SHOP, INC, New York. Gramophone shop encyclopedia of recorded music [Robert H. Reid, supervising editor]. 3d ed rev & enl 639p $5 Crown

781.9734 Phonograph records. Music—Bibliography 48-7633

"Described by the compilers as a 'reference tool bringing together in one compact volume, and in as concise a form as possible, all listings of serious music currently to be found in the catalogues of the world's record manufacturers. . . This edition includes all records issued up to and including January of 1948. In addition, it catalogues the major portion of all records placed on the market through June 1st and contains, as well, listing of many important sets which—though in some cases already manufactured—have yet to be released to the public.' Alphabetical index of recording artists." (Booklist) For earlier editions see Book Review Digest 1936, 1942.

GRAMOPHONE SHOP—Continued

Booklist 45:34 S 15 '48
Chicago Sun p6X Jl 4 '48 90w

"Every individual will find mistakes and misprints, but these are unimportant in view of the magnitude of the work, and, like it or not, every library will want to own it (while retaining the two earlier editions for material dropped from the market). The typography is an improvement on the second edition, but unhappily the paper is not of the best." P. L. Miller
+ — Library J 73:1094 Ag '48 140w

Reviewed by R. D. Darrell
Music Lib Assn Notes 5:563 S '48 950w
San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ag 15 '48 100w

GRANT, BRUCE. Isaac Hull, captain of Old Ironsides; the life and fighting times of Isaac Hull and the U.S. frigate Constitution. 418p il $5 Pellegrini & Cudahy

B or 92 Hull, Isaac. Constitution (frigate) 47-11895

"Although Americans have never forgotten Old Ironsides, as her sailors nick-named her, few know anything about her commander. Hull became one of the nation's all-time heroes, but not until now have we had his complete biography. The word 'complete' is misleading: the years have wrought havoc with the details of Hull's life. A modest man, he knew a surprisingly small number of distinguished contemporaries, though he later married one of the beauties of the day. . . With what were presumably all the personal data he could find in scattered places, [Mr Grant] rounds out the picture in certain periods." (N Y Times) Bibliography.

"Bruce Grant has written a careful, painstaking biography. It is clearly and simply written, though by necessity too detailed to make light fare for the casual reader. For the naval student it has a complete bibliography and copious annotations, though oddly enough it seems to lack an index." Clinton Textor
+ Chicago Sun O 21 '47 550w
Kirkus 15:596 O 15 '47 90w

"Mr. Grant—scholar, and during the war, chief of the European bureau of The Chicago Times in London—has done a creditable job in presenting this well-documented biography, based largely on published sources. . . Mr. Grant has at last done biographical justice to one of America's greatest naval heroes." H. D. Cater
+ N Y Times p8 Ja 4 '48 550w

"The elusive quality of the captain, himself, is responsible for the principal limitation of this book."
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:154 Je '48 100w

GRANT, ROBERT MCQUEEN. The Bible in the church; a short history of interpretation. 194p $2.50 Macmillan

220.7 Bible. Whole—Criticism, interpretation, etc. 48-209

"That Biblical interpretation is not just something of current interest to modernists, liberals, the orthodox, fundamentalists, and the neo-orthodox becomes apparent to readers of this book. Methods of interpretation, the author shows, have been developing throughout the Church's history. He discusses the principal methods and circumstances leading to their use. Scope of his discussion is limited to those periods of church history in which significant new developments took place." (Library J) Select bibliography.

"Notwithstanding the author's emphasis upon the historical and critical study of the Bible as a background, it seems to this reviewer that his insistence upon the subjective interpretation by an esoteric group in the light of its theological assumptions leaves the way still open for the super-imposition of an a priori theological system upon the Bible and for its 'modernization' in a highly objectionable form. From this reviewer's point of view, it would be far better to treat the Bible for what it is—a record of past religious experience." W. C. Bower
Christian Century 65:270 Mr 3 '48 450w

"The vast majority of readers of the Bible are neither expert critics nor theologians, but they are in need of at least enough knowledge of the results of historical criticism to enable them to distinguish the wheat of abiding truth from the chaff of temporary circumstances and passing modes of expression. This volume is helpful in meeting that need, but its repeated emphasis upon divination, illumination, and the subjective element in general, throws open the door to both extreme theological assumptions and fanatical ideas." Rittenhouse Neisser
+ — Crozer Q 25:260 Jl '48 950w

"This is quite definitely a scholar's book written by a scholar—for scholars."
+ Kirkus 15:673 D 1 '47 180w

"Grant's book will give readers, whether clergy or laymen, a greater appreciation of biblical interpreters of all ages who did their part to show the function of the Bible in the Church." O. G. Lawson
+ Library J 72:1189 S 1 '47 130w

"The material covered in the book is familiar to all Biblical students save those of the severely fundamentalist churches. It will find its greatest use in study groups in liberal Protestant churches and among laymen who would like some idea of how their pastor studied scripture in theological school." E. M. T.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ap 11 '48 250w
School & Society 67:222 Mr 20 '48 10w

GRATTAN, CLINTON HARTLEY, ed. Australia; chapters by K. H. Bailey [and others]. (United nations ser) 444p il maps $5 Univ. of Calif.

919.4 Australia—History 47-12116

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"In spite of some weaknesses, this is a good book and the editor is to be congratulated for the masterful handling of a very difficult assignment." Werner Levi
+ — Am Hist R 53:544 Ap '48 480w

Reviewed by Edward Littlejohn
Ann Am Acad 257:224 My '48 210w
Foreign Affairs 26:749 Jl '48 20w

"This volume has the quality common to works of this kind, when competently edited and conscientiously written—there is an almost inordinate amount of compression. Each specialist seems to strain against the bonds imposed by space limitations and the result is a very thorough-going, compact collection, replete with information, but rather deficient in generalizations which cut across more than one aspect of Australian life." Harry Baehr
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Mr 14 '48 450w

Reviewed by Alexander Brady
Pacific Affairs 21:324 S '48 750w

Reviewed by P. L. Soljak
San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ja 25 '48 450w
Times [London] Lit Sup p619 N 6 '48 500w

"One of the most informative of recent surveys of the continent down under."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:54 Mr '48 230w

GRAUMONT, RAOUL, and WENSTROM, ELMER WALTON. Fisherman's knots and nets. 203p il $3 Cornell maritime

799.1 Fishing—Implements and appliances. Knots and splices Agr48-423

"All the knots that are fit to be tied will be found in this book, with adequate directions and clear figures. There are also instructions on net repairing, useful to sport and commercial fishermen alike, together with many hints on handling ropes and caring for nets." San Francisco Chronicle

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 73:1514 O 15 '48 20w

Reviewed by R. S. Robbins
+ N Y Times p51 D 5 '48 270w

"The inclusiveness and conciseness of this book should make it useful to all who have anything to do with tying knots, which means practically all of us, at one time or another." J. W. H.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 15 '48 90w

GRAVES, ROBERT. White goddess; a historical grammar of poetic myth. 412p $4.50 Creative age

809.1 Mythology. Poetry 48-8257

"Mr. Graves' proposition is that 'true poetry' or 'pure poetry,' which has never been satisfactorily defined except in the emotional effect that it produces in its readers, has only a single language and a single infinitely variable theme. He shows that this theme is inseparably connected with the ancient cult-ritual of the White Goddess and her Son. The language is called myth and is based on a few simple magical formulas, kept close secrets for thousands of years." (Publisher's note) Indexes.

Atlantic 182:111 O '48 240w

Reviewed by Robert Fitzgerald
Nation 167:438 O 16 '48 1600w

"The theories Graves propounds in 'The White Goddess' are probably less significant than he believes. Indeed, the value of the book lies in incidental insights, not in its general ideas. To all serious readers of Graves' poetry and prose, however, it is of crucial importance. It is, among other things, a monument to the inner consistency of a man who has seemed to be as willfully inconsistent as any writer of this generation. There is greatness in Robert Graves, and in spite of everything it has come through." Granville Hicks
+ N Y Times p4 Ag 29 '48 1150w

"Each reader must decide for himself where hyperbole and philological calisthenics—to say nothing of just plain kidding—leave off and plain sense begins, if, indeed, there is any such cleavage in the book."
New Yorker 24:115 S 25 '48 180w

"Robert Graves perhaps made his mark for his historical novels, but it is as a poet and scholar, a master-bard in the ancient pagan tradition of the Celtic world, that he conceives himself. This book is his testament. It is an extraordinary book, proof that he is not wrong in his conception of himself." Conrad Arensberg
+ Sat R of Lit 31:27 S 11 '48 850w

"Some of the ideas in this book are interesting and stimulating, but its methods can only be described as fantastically uncritical. Its unscholarly methods will discredit any virtue its main thesis may have. Mr. Graves has convinced me again that the folklore and early poetry of Wales contain elements derived from the prehistoric past, perhaps going back to those Mediterranean origins from which so much of the ancient culture of western Europe was derived. He has also convinced me that the task of disentangling the prehistoric elements is dangerous and difficult—perhaps impossible—and one that cannot be achieved by the intuitive enthusiasm on which he relies." G. E. Daniel
— + Spec 180:680 Je 4 '48 750w

"The charm and plausibility of Graves's style, and his curious, dazzling learning, will not in the end distract critics from the enormous eccentricity of his position. Like the smart schoolboy with his hand up, ever ready to correct his classmates and often the teacher, Graves dismisses philosophy as a prose logic inferior to poetic logic, thus making a virtue of his apparently total incapacity for philosophical thinking. Christians acquainted with their religion know that it dignifies nature more than Graves's earthbound Goddess does. And poets may feel that a greater devotee of the Muse could have divulged still more profound secrets about her."
+ — Time 52:94 S 6 '48 800w

GRAY, ARTHUR HERBERT. Secret of inward peace. 159p $2.50 Macmillan

248 Psychology, Religious 48-4586

"A well-known English Presbyterian minister seeks to make clear that the search for inward peace is to be attained only when one's whole life is truly related to God. One need never choose between the practical affairs of daily living and a separate life of meditation and fellowship with God, for true religion, he says, is an experience of God." Library J

Reviewed by M. L. Eglinton
+ Churchman 162:16 N 15 '48 120w

"Those interested in mysticism, psychology, or metaphysics will find no new illumination in these pages. But, as the great masses of people are ready only for the most elementary lessons in the religious life, there are many who would find this book helpful. It is simply written, full of the common sense and practical wisdom that issues from many years of dealing with human problems and human beings."
Kirkus 16:511 O 1 '48 180w

"Recommended for those who seek religious inspiration." G. O. Kelley
+ Library J 73:1084 Ag '48 100w

GRAY, G. D. B. Soviet land; the country, its people and their work. 324p il maps $3 Macmillan (for Black)

914.7 Russia—Description and travel. Russia—Economic conditions [47-6685]

A popular description of the Soviet Union. Part one is concerned with purely geographic subjects. Part two presents population problems and historical phases of the country's development. Part three, which is more than half the book, outlines the agriculture, industries, transport, and settlement. Many pictures, maps, and diagrams. Short bibliography. Index.

"The book is written in a popular style and is intended for the general reader. Because of its numerous misleading conclusions, it should hardly be recommended to such readers. The reader better prepared to be critical of the author's conclusions will find some interesting information in the book but he may find the style too popular for his preference." V. P. Timoshenko
— + Ann Am Acad 259:170 S '48 550w

Foreign Affairs 26:747 Jl '48 20w

"A straightforward factual work, with an uneven mixture of elementary principles of glaciation and soil formation and an excellent evaluation of agriculture, industry, physical features, transport, and people." G. B. Cressey
+ Geog R 38:687 O '48 140w

GRAY, GEORGE WILLIAM. Frontiers of flight; the story of NACA research. 362p il $6 Knopf

629.13072 U.S. National advisory committee for aeronautics. Aeronautics 48-713

"The principal American agency for research in [aeronautics] is the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics. . . [This] book is an attempt to select from the NACA's files significant results that are representative of the entire program, and to set them forth in simple terms for the understanding of the interested citizen. In the preparation of this book, the author had the co-operation of the officers and staff members of the NACA." Preface

"The price makes it out of reach for the young people who would most profit by it—boys who have graduated from advanced model-building into beginnings of design and engineering. Nevertheless, it is a swell job and a Must for High Schools, colleges, P.L.'s."
+ — Kirkus 16:14 Ja 1 '48 180w

GRAY, G. W.—Continued
"Probably needed only in special aeronautics collections, but certainly a must for them." R. E. Kingery
+ Library J 73:196 F 1 '48 100w

"It should be required reading for those members of the Congressional committees in whose hands are the funds for the research on which our survival may depend." John Stuart
+ N Y Times p13 Ag 8 '48 500w
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:229 Je '48 320w

GRAY, JUSTIN, and BERNSTEIN, VICTOR HEINE. Inside story of the Legion. 255p $3 Boni & Gaer
369.1861 American legion 48-7745

The author, as a veteran of World war II, joined the American Legion and for nine months worked as a member of its national headquarters staff. His book, based on this experience as well as on other researches, is an exposé of the Legion, its origins, leadership, and policies.

Booklist 45:44 O 1 '48
Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 14 '48 750w

GREAT pictures—1948; ed. by Clifton C. Edom. 126p de luxe ed $3; pa $1 Garden City pub. co.
779 Photography—Yearbooks (48-7298)

"From 1000 outstanding news, sports and human interest photographs entered in the fifth annual News Pictures of the Year competition sponsored jointly by the University of Missouri School of Journalism and the Encyclopaedia Britannica, experts have selected 100 prints as the best and reproduced them in this volume. With each photograph presented there is the name of the photographer, the newspaper or news association with which he is connected, a description of material or persons in the picture and full data on the camera, exposure and film used in making it." Springf'd Republican

Booklist 44:348 Je 15 '48
San Francisco Chronicle p12 Je 20 '48 200w
Springf'd Republican p12B My 16 '48 330w

GREEN, ANNE. With much love. 276p $3 Harper
B or 92 48-6379

Reminiscences of the author's youth in France, where her parents went to live in the 1890's after her father's business failures in Savannah. The large, extravagant, carefree family were managed, loved and guarded by a gentle father and a gay, beautiful mother. The book closes with the sudden death of the mother in 1914, just as the first World war was beginning.

Booklist 44:310 My 15 '48
Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '48
Reviewed by E. V. R. Wyatt
Commonweal 48:336 Jl 16 '48 550w

"A story of the turn of the century, told in the light, frothy, sparkling style that characterized Anne Green's earlier books and gives this definite charm. Those who liked The Selbys will feel that this gives them another look behind the scenes."
+ Kirkus 16:101 F 15 '48 220w

"A delightful and valuable contribution to American—even if expatriated—family life and recommended to old and young." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 73:555 Ap 1 '48 160w

"The story is told with a childlike gravity that does not in the least disguise the deftness of its writing but does give a particular flavor to its humor and its tenderness. This is not a book to arouse a sickly nostalgia in Miss Green's contemporaries. Very few of us, I imagine, have had a childhood such as hers. It does, however, bring back for me the excitement and uncertainty I felt when I closed one eye and pressed the other end of the telescope toy that my father brought me from New York called a kaleidoscope. . . One has the same impression of the Greens." Emily Kimbrough
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Ap 25 '48 950w
San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 16 '48 150w

"Anne Green's story of the family's life in Paris around the turn of the century and up to the time of the First World War is written with cheerful hyperbole and much charm." S. H. Hay
+ Sat R of Lit 31:12 My 15 '48 850w
Time 51:110 Ap 26 '48 550w
Wis Lib Bul 44:131 Je '48

GREEN, ELEANOR. Dora. 224p $2.50 Doubleday
48-5765

Portrays the childhood, youth and maturity of a sensitive and deeply emotional woman. Just when she thought she had reached the place where she could face life with equanimity, she is completely floored by her husband's desertion. The understanding of a young priest in Mexico finally brings her back to sanity.

Kirkus 16:4 Ja 1 '48 120w

"Dora is a confused book by, I'm convinced, a confused author." Anne Whitmore
— Library J 73:396 Mr 1 '48 80w
Reviewed by Rose Feld
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Mr 7 '48 500w

"A competently written but essentially uninteresting novel."
New Yorker 24:98 Mr 6 '48 140w
San Francisco Chronicle p19 My 9 '48 200w

"This is a very readable book. The prose has a lovely rhythm, and the characters have much more than the usual depth. . . It is a fault to focus all the elements in the book on one climactic point structurally (especially after the nice looseness in the first portion), and it is also a fault intellectually for Miss Green to present us with religious forgiveness as the 'solution' of Dora's problem. . . Of course, the reader of such a book would expect no pat and formalized answer, as is found in 'Dora.' The raising of the question would be satisfaction enough." Walter Grove
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:16 Mr 13 '48 550w

"The reader will admire Miss Green's technical skill, her neat characterization, her sensitive use of language. But he is bound to feel that she has exposed him to a terrible battlefield of human suffering without an adequate explanation of why the guns went off."
— + Time 51:112 Mr 8 '48 350w

GREEN, FREDERICK LAWRENCE. Flask for the journey. 307p $3 Reynal
48-5094

A philosophical novel developing as its theme the nature and meaning of freedom. In it are interwoven the stories of two people: Jack Kaspan, the narrator, who had been a prisoner of war in Germany, and Jane Gellson, the girl he meets in a lonely house and who tells him her story after he has recounted his.

Atlantic 181:112 Mr '48 120w
Booklist 44:233 Mr 1 '48
Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p71 F 4 '48 180w
Kirkus 15:609 N 1 '47 210w

"An earnest exploration of an ambitious theme, fluently written and for the most part well sustained" H. W. Hart
+ Library J 73:39 Ja 1 '48 90w

"As a drama of the conflict of the dream and the fact, so hard to reserve, the book is powerfully suggestive." H. I'A. Fausset
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Je 28 '46 250w

Reviewed by Rayner Heppenstall
New Statesman & Nation 32:53 Jl 20 '46 240w

"The weakness of the book is its division into two separate stories: the prisoner of war, the prisoners of love. Kaspan, for all his inner strength, merely watches these weaker souls from the sidelines. He has been the pivotal character of the book, and one wonders why the author has removed him entirely from an episode so directly related to his own story. But this is a minor shortcoming. As in his earlier novel, 'Odd Man Out,' Mr. Green shows his gift for combining character and suspense. This journey with Kaspan through the nightmare of imprisonment to final contentment is an exciting one." J. D. Ross
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ja 18 '48 850w

"A strangely conceived, honestly absorbing consideration of spiritual doctrine, but recondite to the point where a flashlight for the journey would hugely enhance its influence. . . 'A Flask for the Journey' is an admirably written book and a provocative one. But there is also a question (when it is viewed as a whole) whether Mr. Green does not confuse social responsibility for bondage and suspended animation for freedom." Florence Crowther
+ — N Y Times p20 Ja 18 '48 650w

"Very promising, until the author changes his stride."
+ — New Yorker 23:66 Ja 31 '48 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p22 F 29 '48 100w

"Muddled, philosophico-metaphysical novel." Richard McLaughlin
Sat R of Lit 31:15 Mr 6 '48 750w

"Strictly, Mr. Green's is a philosophic novel and to set it in the present, to arrange his scene, as it were, he has had to strain probability and therefore our credence. . . All the same, despite its partial failure, A Flask for the Journey is a remarkable novel of much beauty." Walter Allen
+ Spec 177:98 Jl 26 '46 450w

Reviewed by S. B. Shear
Springf'd Republican p15A F 22 '48 120w

Time 51:112 Ja 19 '48 500w

"'A Flask for the Journey' is certainly an absorbing and thought-provoking novel, with its assured deployment of action, introspection and paradox."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p317 Jl 6 '46 420w

GREEN, MARY MCBURNEY. Is it hard? is it easy? il. by Lucienne Bloch. [20p] $1 Scott, W.R.
48-4879

"A nursery school teacher presents the idea of tolerance by showing that Tim can do some things better than Ann, Ann some better than Tim, and that some require the two children to work together." (Library J) For ages 3-5.

Booklist 45:108 N 15 '48

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun N 6 '48 70w

"In its simple, unassuming way this book is the discovery of the other fellow." C. H. B.
+ Commonweal 49:146 N 19 '48 50w

"Gay, simple pictures by Lucienne Bloch, and a text that has its own rhythms."
+ Kirkus 16:434 S 1 '48 90w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Hodges
Library J 73:1520 O 15 '48 70w

N Y Times p57 N 14 '48 100w

Reviewed by E. H. Dexter
Springf'd Republican p12C D 12 '48 80w

GREEN, PAUL. Common glory; a symphonic drama of American history; with music, commentary, English folksong and dance; pub. for the Jamestown corporation and Virginia conservation commission. 273p il $2.75 Univ. of N.C. press

812 Virginia—History—Drama. Jefferson, Thomas—Drama 48-11307

"Employing the arts of music and dance in addition to the spoken word, Mr. Green, in 'The Common Glory,' honors Virginia's contribution to the establishment of democratic government in the New World. With a narrator setting the stage and continuing intermittently as the interpreter of events, 'The Common Glory' begins with a scene in George III's palace in 1775 and carries the saga of America through the Revolution. Thomas Jefferson is the leading character, heading a parade of heroes like Patrick Henry, Benjamin Franklin and John Adams." N Y Times

---

"Dramatic and exciting. Highly recommended." George Freedley
+ Library J 73:1821 D 15 '48 50w

Reviewed by Lewis Funke
N Y Times p14 N 21 '48 250w

"The play itself, retelling the story of the American Revolution in terms of Virginia people, with Thomas Jefferson as the leading character, makes exciting reading. Written boldly for spectacular outdoor presentation, it brings American history to life with vividness and stature." Blythe Morley
+ Theatre Arts 33:80 Ja '49 120w

GREEN, ROLAND. Wing-tips; the identification of birds in flight; with 56 drawings by the author. 64p $1.75 Macmillan

598.2 Birds. Flight [48-757]

Describes in text and drawings the flight of fifty-four birds, among them hawks, owls, geese, and other water fowl. The book is of English origin. Index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '48

"A fine book written by a well-known English lecturer and artist. . . Recommended to bird observers who are particularly interested in bird flight." J. F. Kennedy
+ Library J 73:661 Ap 15 '48 80w

"The emphasis upon flight probably makes this book unique. It is not for the ornithologist or scholar but rather for those people from all walks of life who have interest in bird lore. The sections on anatomy are reduced to their simplist terms, with a concern only for those portions of the body that affect flight directly. Wing drawings are carefully labeled and compared in order to show the differences in wing construction and how this produces different kinds of flight." R. S. Robbins
+ N Y Times p23 Jl 11 '48 150w

GREENAN, JOHN THOMAS. Everyday problems of American democracy. rev ed 616p il $2.96 Houghton

342.73 U.S.—Politics and government. Social problems. U.S.—Economic policy 48-3105

"This book is a revised and enlarged edition of Problems of American Democracy by Greenan and Meredith. Some chapters have been entirely rewritten, some revised, others omitted, and several additions have been made. Even the placement of the chapters in the different sections has been changed. Recent controversial problems have replaced those that are out of date and of doubtful value. A significant change in the new edition is the placing of 'Our Democratic Way of Life' in the introduction and not at the end of the book." (Social Studies) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

School & Society 67:487 Je 26 '48 20w

"Particularly valuable are the concrete and thought-provoking questions to arouse thinking on the part of the pupils and with helpful devices to assist in their decisions. The many up-to-date graphs, well-chosen cartoons, illustrations, and recently enacted laws are aids to the teacher as well as the pupil. Accessible references at the end of each chapter are grouped under topics suitable for discussion." Alice Hannigan

GREENAN, J. T.—Continued

+ Social Studies 39:375 D '48 500w

GREENE, EVARTS BOUTELL. Church and state [pub. for Nat foundation for educ. in Am. citizenship]. 48p $1 Nat. foundation press

261.7 Church and state in the U.S. 48-1411

A study of the evolution of the American church and state relationship, from 1649 to 1947.

"No one could speak with more authority on the topic than the author and no one more helpfully about an age-old subject that has come sharply to the fore in our day."

+ Am Hist R 53:625 Ap '48 100w

Reviewed by Henry Janzen
Am Pol Sci R 42:386 Ap '48 180w

"This pamphlet is a concise, fair, multum in parvo analysis of the progress of the American way of life from colonial days to contemporary events. . . It is not made sufficiently clear that the First Amendment originally applied only to the federal aspects of American life. . . The section on religion in public education needs considerable expansion." C. H. Moehlman

Ann Am Acad 256:179 Mr '48 270w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 65:1240 N 17 '48 190w

School & Society 67:286 Ap 10 '48 30w

GREENE, GRAHAM. Heart of the matter. 306p $3 Viking

48-7530

"This is the story of Scobie, whose austere integrity has remained above question during his fifteen years' service as Assistant Police Commissioner in a West African coastal town, has brought him few friends and many enemies. Bound by a severe sense of responsibility to his work, to his wife, Louise, for whom he feels only pity and the pathos of her unattractiveness, Scobie becomes the victim of that pity when to give Louise a fresh start—he borrows the money for her passage from a Syrian, Yussuf. Falling in love again, this time with a childlike widow of nineteen, Scobie again finds that passion dies away, that only pity is left, and his indiscretion exposed to the malevolent Yussuf, he becomes an object of blackmail. In a decrescendo to dishonor which leads from doubt to deceit, indirectly to murder, Scobie commits the unforgivable sin in the tenets of his Catholicism, and suicides, but in so doing, finds the renunciation of his God more painful than the renunciation of his life." Kirkus

Booklist 44:382 Jl 15 '48

Reviewed by Joseph McSorley
Cath World 167:564 S '48 700w

Reviewed by J. S. Kennedy
Cath World 168:211 D '48 110w

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Jl 13 '48 600w

"Too patently contrived to qualify as a true work of art, one still finds here superlative craftsmanship in a moving parable of doom. To this reviewer it is, above all, a study in ambiguities. . . One finds, at the end, only something like nihilism—in masquerade." O. D. Hormel

Christian Science Monitor p9 S 2 '48 1400w

Reviewed by Evelyn Waugh
Commonweal 48:322 Jl 16 '48 3750w

Discussion by Joseph Cartmell
Commonweal 48:325 Jl 16 '48 650w

"This is a novel of considerable seriousness and stature in which the sensational brilliance of his previous writing has been subdued by sincerity, by compassion, and by a strong sense of faith. . . For an adult, appreciative audience."

+ Kirkus 16:90 F 15 '48 340w

"Interesting as a study, but disappointing as a novel." E. L. Lewis

— + Library J 73:651 Ap 15 '48 70w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse
Manchester Guardian p3 My 28 '48 200w

Reviewed by Ernest Jones
Nation 167:212 Ag 21 '48 50w

Reviewed by George Mayberry
New Repub 119:21 Jl 12 '48 1100w

"A powerful, deep-striking novel, with the surface calm of a summer river, and underneath the swift, drowning melancholy of a spirit lost in the darkness of the flesh, the flesh of a man bound in promise, responsibility, theology, and belief to the flesh of a woman he no longer loved." Thomas Sugrue

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Jl 11 '48 1300w

"A policeman's lot is not a happy one. The white (and dark) man's burden must always be heavy. And man's debt to man will be forever in arrears—from West Africa to the West End, from Brooklyn to Bucharest. Generations of novelists have wrestled with these melancholy truisms. It is a pleasure to report that Graham Greene, in 'The Heart of the Matter,' has wrestled brilliantly with all three—and scored three clean falls." William Du Bois

+ N Y Times p5 Jl 11 '48 1150w

"[Graham Greene's] latest book 'The Heart of the Matter', is, to put it as politely as possible, not one of his best, and gives the impression of having been mechanically constructed, the familiar conflict being set out like an algebraic equation, with no attempt at psychological probability. . . One may hope that his next book will have a different theme, or, if not, that he will at least remember that a perception of the vanity of earthly things, though it may be enough to get one into Heaven, is not sufficient equipment for the writing of a novel." George Orwell

— New Yorker 24:66 Je 17 '48 1300w

"Mr. Greene has written a genuinely fine novel—you can approach it from so many angles and still find it good. I'm still happy to say that 'The Heart of the Matter' is the best novel I've read in some years." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 18 '48 1600w

"A work that will unquestionably add another cubit to Mr. Greene's creative stature. . . Major Scobie's unfolding ordeal is a painful spectacle, yet it is strangely relieved for the reader who perceives the author's intended symbolism. . . If I may close on a modest note of dispraise, I might say that Mr. Greene cements together this powerful and original material with binders slightly too exotic and melodramatic for my north-temperate taste." H. M. Robinson

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:3 Jl 10 '48 1050w

Reviewed by R. D. Smith
Spec 180:686 Je 4 '48 750w

Time 52:82 Ag 9 '48 1950w

"The Heart of the Matter epitomizes what has gone before in Mr. Greene's earlier work. He is a writer whom it is not easy to classify, but one whose powers of development, in style and attitude of mind, seem to show an ever-renewed vitality."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p302 My 29 '48 3300w

Reviewed by Orville Prescott
Yale R n s 38:191 autumn '48 320w

GREENE, JOSIAH E. Bridge at Branfield. 466p $3.50 Macmillan

48-2311

The problems of a small Connecticut town form the background of this novel. Jesse Arneau, selectman for forty years, resigns, and the battle is on to fill his place. The town is divided into sections: the rich newcomers dwelling on the Hill, and the descendants of the early settlers, who live in the section called the Hollow. The climax comes with the election and a brutal murder.

Booklist 44:352 Je 15 '48

"A novel of more than ordinary stature."
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 24 '48 170w

"A novel of pertinent problems, which perhaps offers too much in its exploration of all questions. More thoughtful reading than most current fiction."
+ Kirkus 16:149 Mr 15 '48 220w

"Almost all of the dozens of people and plots that make up this big, tightly organized novel are interesting and pertinent. If the author, by his rough, finger-painting method of covering a tremendous canvas, sometimes lacks subtlety, the results are nevertheless powerful and dramatic."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Ap 25 '48 230w

"Mr. Greene has worked hard to make his story more than just the usual small-town saga, but he has not entirely succeeded. . . Lance as a psychopathic case, as a weak, agonized human who is helpless to help himself, does seem real. Perhaps if Mr. Greene had made this Lance's story without any of the extraneous window dressing, he might have had a more interesting, more penetrating work." Andrea Parke
N Y Times p15 My 9 '48 500w

New Yorker 24:105 My 1 '48 120w

"This is an excellent novel, well worth anyone's time both for the story it tells and for the warning it offers." Edith James
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 2 '48 130w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p10B My 30 '48 240w

GREENE, WARD (FRANK DUDLEY, pseud), ed. Star reporters, and 34 of their stories; with notes and an introd. by [the editor]. 402p $3 Random house

810.8 American literature—Collections. Reporters and reporting 48-7591

An anthology of great news stories of the past reprinted as they appeared originally. Partial contents: Stanley finds Livingstone, by H. M. Stanley; No gloves, no gorillas, by Arthur Brisbane; The death of Rodriguez, by R. H. Davis; A woman tells, by I. S. Cobb; When John Reed rode with Villa, by John Reed; A dream-scope comes true, by F. P. Gibbons; Mehitabel on reporters, by Don Marquis; Bye, bye, blackbird! by W. A. Macdonald; The Baltimore nonpareil, by H. L. Mencken; Remember the pig woman? by Dudley Nichols; Broun on the campus, by Heywood Broun; Pegler among the platonians, by Westbrook Pegler; Runyon among the rich, by Damon Runyon.

Booklist 45:48 O 1 '48

Kirkus 16:247 My 15 '48 210w

"Well selected, with brief but sharply etched sketches of the reporters involved." M. C. Manley
+ Library J 73:939 Je 15 '48 130w

"Mr. Greene's choices are weighted in favor of the spectacular, but the spectacular is, after all, what most people like to read about. . . Despite one or two poor choices—Heywood Broun, for instance, wrote better sports stories than the report on the Yale-Princeton game of 1920—this book is an entrancing collection." Herbert Kupferberg
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ag 1 '48 650w

"The veteran editor has an eager, inclusive taste, and anything that is good newspaper stuff suits him. He likes a story a little better if it came out of Georgia, where (on the evidence within the book) he started work. But he's not rule-abiding. He even drops in a piece of fiction—'Eneas Africanus,' a polished, warmly imagined, sentimental short story—but it belongs because it uses newspapers in working out its climax." Robert van Gelder
N Y Times p16 Ag 1 '48 950w

Reviewed by A. J. Liebling
New Yorker 34:71 Ag 21 '48 1250w

San Francisco Chronicle p11 Ag 15 '48 220w

GREENHOOD, DAVID. Love in dishevelment. 279p $2.75 Creative age 48-8174

Novel describing the love affair of an engineer and an untidy career girl. Earl leaves Stella, without regrets, when he has a chance to go to Utah with a topographical survey. After two years he returns to New York and Stella, and discovers he has a precocious baby daughter.

"The light, bright touch here, the sentiment which is casual but appealing, make this just right—particularly for women."
+ Kirkus 16:371 Ag 1 '48 130w

"Good, but much love making." H. G. Kelley
Library J 73:1089 Ag '48 100w

"There is gayety as well as understanding in Mr. Greenhood's attitude toward his boy and girl. With fresh approach he gets inside his characters and conveys the tone and tension of their minds; Stella and Earl become, as he works with them, very real. He is accurate in his reports of love and lust and living in the brownstones off Lexington Avenue." Thomas Sugrue
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 S 5 '48 800w

"Around the middle stretches you get the feeling that you've heard all of it before. Mr. Greenhood has to repeat himself and stretch everything out in order to fill up 279 pages. It's too bad, because the writer has meditated a good deal, and he has several perceptive and witty things to tell us." Seymour Krim
— + N Y Times p25 O 3 '48 230w

"A camouflaged women's-magazine story. . . The camouflage is furnished by the heroine, whose penchant for imitation high talk, most of it about the act of love, is apparently intended to make us forget that she and her friend are actually the same trim, pointless young couple one is forever seeing on the billboards."
— New Yorker 24:103 S 11 '48 140w

" 'Love in Dishevelment' is short, but exceedingly well written. Mr. Greenhood's characters are sensitively drawn, carefully observed, and move through the story like human beings, not idealized images of an author's fancy. If there is any fault to find with the story, it is that Mr. Greenhood's camera eye is too small, too preoccupied with the minutiae of only two people for the story ever to assume stature and importance. The result of this unremitting small focus is to inspire in this reader desire for amplification. More story, perhaps, and less love." Max Wilk
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:30 Ag 28 '48 330w

GREENOUGH, HORATIO. Form and function; remarks on art; ed. by Harold A. Small; with an introd. by Erle Loran. 148p $2.75 Univ. of Calif.

704 Art. Esthetics 48-2503

"A collection of essays by a now almost forgotten nineteenth-century American sculptor of monuments, whose works caused some contemporaneous stir because of their unconventionality. These writings show that he was even more advanced in his thinking than his sculpture indicated, and despite a certain old-fashioned elaborateness of style, the ideas he expresses on the relations between function, beauty, and form seem as modern as if they had been written yesterday." New Yorker

Reviewed by Wayne Andrews
Commonweal 48:166 My 28 '48 330w

"Greenough's prose bears the marks of his time, but the marks are superficial, and he is surprisingly unquaint in his expression and

GREENOUGH, HORATIO—Continued
approach. Then too he has a nice sense of humor. . . These pieces have a queer fascination for anyone interested in the uses of language and tone." Margaret Marshall
+ Nation 166:131 Ja 31 '48 1300w

"This is magnificently vigorous writing, and full of wisdom." Granville Hicks
+ N Y Times p4 F 8 '48 650w
New Yorker 23:87 F 7 '48 100w

Reviewed by Alfred Frankenstein
San Francisco Chronicle p10 F 22 '48 700w

"To read these original, explorative, brilliantly intelligent, hard-hitting papers on art, architecture, and esthetic theory, is to understand why Van Wyck Brooks rediscovered Greenough with enthusiasm, why Matthiessen devoted to him a section of 'American Renaissance.' Our first American professional sculptor may have journeyed east to Italy to learn and live, but in the wilderness of esthetics he was as bold as any Western-looking pioneer." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 31:34 Mr 6 '48 400w

GREENWOOD, IVAN A., and others, eds. Electronic instruments [prepared under the supervision of] Office of scientific research and development, Nat. defense research committee. (Mass. inst. of technology. Radiation laboratory ser, v21) 721p il $9 McGraw

621.38 Electronic apparatus and appliances. Mathematical instruments. Servomechanisms 48-2288

"Details of the design of simple electronic computing systems are followed by several applications to the solution of the aircraft navigation problem and the synthesis of radar data for training purposes. Practical aspects of the design of lightweight, low power electronic servomechanisms and design of accurately stabilized power supplies are discussed." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:819 My 15 '48 70w
N Y New Tech Bks 33:46 My '48

GREET, WILLIAM CABELL. World words; recommended pronunciations. 2d ed rev & enl 608p $6.75 Columbia univ. press

411.5 English language—Pronunciation. Names, Geographical. Names, Personal. World war, 1939-1945—Dictionaries 48-6140

"A greatly expanded edition of a manual of pronunciation of American and foreign names, both personal and geographical. Stresses have been added to Japanese names; and many more foreign provincial towns are listed." (Booklist) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1944.

Booklist 44:316 My 15 '48

"Professor Greet has rather slighted the musical world. Neither Schoenberg nor Copland is listed, and though the pronunciation of Hindemith's name is given, nothing is done about Křenek's with which we need help far more. There are, however, brief guides to the pronunciations of various languages, and it is usually possible to find light on such omissions by consulting them."
New Yorker 24:114 My 8 '48 120w
School & Society 67:271 Ap 3 '48 20w

GREGOROVIUS, FERDINAND ADOLF. The ghetto and the Jews of Rome [tr. by Moses Hadas]. 120p $1.50 Schocken

296 Jews in Rome 48-6100

A description of the Jewish ghetto in Rome from Caesar's days to mid-nineteenth century. The essay is part of the author's Wanderjahre in Italien, written in 1853. The present volume includes the author's poem "Lament of the Children of Israel in Rome," translated by Randall Jarrell. Chronology.

"Recommended for libraries stressing European history and Judaica." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 73:648 Ap 15 '48 140w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 31:27 Ag 21 '48 110w

GREGORY, ALYSE (MRS LLEWELYN POWYS). The day is gone. 213p $3 Dutton

B or 92 48-1260

Reminiscences of the author's youth and her years of early maturity. Born in Connecticut of a well-to-do family, she early developed a promising singing voice and was sent to Europe to study. But she gave up that career to return home and became interested in social work and woman suffrage. The account ends with her appointment as managing editor of the Dial. Miss Gregory is the widow of Llewelyn Powys.

Booklist 44:311 My 15 '48

"It is strange that a life so full of talent, contact, movement, change, can give such a feeble and evanescent impression. . . Her opportunities and contacts in all fields were bountiful, and though she perhaps made the most of them, this memoir gives but a pale reflection of a life. Less interesting lives have yielded more arresting reading."
— + Kirkus 16:17 Ja 1 '48 170w

"Since the book adds nothing to the literary history of the time it is difficult to find a reason for its publication." K. T. Willis
— Library J 73:196 F 1 '48 70w

"Alyse Gregory writes with exquisite sensibility so far as words themselves are concerned, and conveys the precise nature of her experiences with fastidious perfectionism. In spite of the very large number of her love affairs and the important role they played in her life, 'The Day Is Gone' has a charming quality of innocence." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Mr 14 '48 1050w

"Modest and ingratiating volume of memoirs. . . The illusion of time long past in 'The Day Is Gone' is conceivably the result of Miss Gregory's gentle and incidentally winning prose, or of the fact that she is trying to remember emotion in too much tranquility." Herbert Lyons
+ N Y Times p18 Mr 21 '48 500w

"Like any conscientious artist, she expected too much of herself. It is true that the central figure of this small book seems sometimes like an exquisite little ghost stealing down a shadowy corridor of time. But what Miss Gregory succeeds in doing with a great deal of beguiling charm is to suggest what were the shadows that traced their patterns on the sensitive mind of a young woman coming to maturity in the first quarter of the twentieth century." James Gray
+ Sat R of Lit 31:28 Ap 3 '48 700w

"A pleasant, readable, but not very important contribution to the memoirs of our time. It is a mixture of the candid and the superficial, hardly more, in the first analysis, than a collection of anecdotes about the author and her friends." W. H. H.
Springf'd Republican p12B Mr 21 '48 250w

GREGORY, WINIFRED (MRS JAMES THAYER GEROULD), and GEROULD, JAMES THAYER. Guide to Trollope; drawings by Florence W. Ewing. 256p maps $5 Princeton univ. press

823 Trollope, Anthony 48-7405

"Principal feature is an encyclopedic listing in which Trollope's characters are identified and their careers traced through all works in which they appear, plots are synopsized, and places located. Citations of volume, chapter, and page are given for first editions, with a conversion table to be used for other editions.

Some other features are an annotated bibliography of major works on Trollope, a classification of the novels and stories, and maps of the imaginary Trollope country." Booklist

Booklist 45:47 O 1 '48

"The Guide will have its greatest value as an aid to students of Trollope." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 65:806 Ag 11 '48 180w

"Technically A Guide to Trollope is the excellent book that might have been expected from two such eminent bibliographers as Mr. and Mrs. Gerould. But the nagging thought remains—whom will this book serve? It is clearly not a work for the neophyte. . . Nor is its utility for the connoisseur of Trollope unmistakable. The habitué of Barsetshire is not likely to consult the Guide; he delights in being his own guide, and if, by chance, he is planning to write a book on Trollope, he will be the more determined to verify his own references. That the Geroulds' Guide will at some time spare a harried student some effort is altogether probable, but it is a work that, admirable as it is, will be restricted to an extremely limited audience." Milton Crane
+ Library Q 19:70 Ja '49 450w

"It must have been a happy exercise to make the book, though its utility is a trifle doubtful. At any rate, it serves to remind one of how much of Trollope one has still to discover."
Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 4 '49 70w

GRELLE, MRS LEONE (RICE). Remembered weather. 84p $2.50 Macmillan 811 48-5412

Poems of country life.

"There's little to recommend this homespun, amateurish verse, but perhaps the complete lack of sophistication presents the one claim to charm."
Kirkus 16:19 Ja 1 '48 120w

"This is undistinguished verse, doomed to monotony by its failure to see its subject-matter in more than a very limited perspective." Milton Crane
— N Y Times p31 F 15 '48 300w
Sat R of Lit 31:43 Mr 20 '48 20w

GRENE, MARJORIE (GLICKSMAN) (MRS DAVID GRENE). Dreadful freedom; a critique of existentialism. 149p $2.75 Univ. of Chicago press
111 Existentialism 48-6033

A short discussion of the existential philosophy. The author compares the principles of some of the leading exponents: Sartre, Kierkegaard, Heidegger, Jaspers, and Marcel. Parts of the book appeared in the Kenyon Review. Bibliography. No index.

"Although an introductory essay, it probably gives as much as most readers will want on the subject."
Booklist 44:293 My 1 '48

"The study, on the whole, seems to be based on a rather small amount of material when one considers the ground it is supposed to cover. The notes are not helpful, partly because they seem to read 'ibid,' a good deal of the time. Several things which the reviewer would like to have seen documented are left hanging. . . There is a very short and, I think, very poor bibliography, and no index." Robert Marsh
Christian Century 65:542 Je 2 '48 700w

Reviewed by Jean Wahl
Ethics 58:311 Jl '48 900w

Reviewed by Robert Caponigri
N Y Times p21 Jl 18 '48 290w

"Mrs. Grene, who has been a pupil of Heidegger and Jaspers and is the author of a study of Kierkegaard, has produced, in a hundred and fifty pages, an exposition and criticism of Existentialism that is probably the best thing on the subject in English. She covers the whole ground lucidly, from Kierkegaard to the latest exponents of the doctrine in France, and intelligently discusses the relation of Sartre's novels and plays to his philosophical theories."
+ New Yorker 24:106 S 11 '48 150w

"Marjorie Grene calls this challenging critique of existentialism an introductory essay. It is her modest way of preparing us for a stimulating if not altogether exhaustive treatment of the subject." Richard McLaughlin
+ Sat R of Lit 31:18 Je 19 '48 750w
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:144 Je '48 270w

GREW, DAVID. Whitepaw goes north; an arctic adventure. 245p $2.50 McKay 48-6808

A sequel to The Wild Dog of Edmonton (Book Review Digest 1946). In this story Dwight goes to the Arctic in search of Whitepaw who has been shanghaied into an explorer's dog team.

"The author's firsthand knowledge of the Canadian north country is authoritative and the story is a gripping one." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 24:279 Jl '48 110w
Kirkus 16:236 My 15 '48 80w

Reviewed by J. M. Smith
Library J 73:1101 Ag '48 100w

"The detail is interesting and the boy's adventures are certainly harrowing. But as Dwight paddles across a rift on a cake of ice or wades for hours through icy water up to his shoulders, you wonder if Whitepaw, or any other dog, was really worth it." Creighton Peet
N Y Times p17 Jl 25 '48 170w

"It is good story, with convincing characters and an excellent description of life in the Far North." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 31:28 Jl 10 '48 30w

GREY, EVE. Elsa's secret; il. by Gertrude E. Howe. 174p $2.25 Doubleday
48-8597

Story of a winter in a Norwegian town of Minnesota. Elsa's secret was the loose baby teeth that threatened to take away her chance of being Snow White in the school operetta. Biting the "poisoned apple" proved to be a mistake; but the Christmas eve performance became a riot of fun for all concerned. For grades 3-5.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun N 6 '48 100w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p4 N 16 '48 150w

"This is an unusually spontaneous and merry story, written against a real and homespun background of life near the Canadian border." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 24:458 N '48 80w
Kirkus 16:479 S 15 '48 170w

"An amusing and engaging little story. The children are lively, charming, and natural, giving warmth and reality to the story." Judith Stevenson
+ Library J 73:1520 O 15 '48 60w

Reviewed by S. C. Gross
+ N Y Times p60 D 5 '48 180w

"Good background and atmosphere and appealing, natural characters. Illustrations that fit the story." R. H. V.
+ Sat R of Lit 31:30 N 13 '48 30w
Wis Lib Bul 44:186 N '48

GRIERSON, FRANCIS. Valley of shadows. History bk club ed 278p $3.50 Houghton
977 Illinois—Social life and customs. Missouri—History 48-6945

Recollections of the author's boyhood spent in Illinois during the years just before the Civil war. The book, which has been out of print, was first published in 1909 (Book Review Digest 1909).

GRIERSON, FRANCIS—Continued
Reviewed by F. L. Bullard
Am Hist R 54:163 O '48 480w

Booklist 44:355 Je 15 '48

"Regardless of how much or how little the book owes to Francis Grierson's gift for improvisation—it is an unusually perceptive account of our pioneer life." Horace Reynolds
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 15 '48 850w

Reviewed by Paul Kiniery
Commonweal 48:358 Jl 23 '48 160w

"Remarkable autobiographical book. . . Recommended." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 73:877 Je 1 '48 140w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 S 12 '48 430w

"Here and there in the pages Grierson loses his mastery of that peculiar blend of poetry and realism which was his gift and at times he labors too hard to paint the shadows that lay on the valley of the Sangamon, but on the whole his book is memorable Americana." Lloyd Lewis
+ — N Y Times p10 Jl 25 '48 750w

"The book is unique, and I agree with Mr. DeVoto that—so strangely disregarded by historians and writers on American literature—it fills 'a niche . . . which no other book quite fits' and deserves to become a classic. . . Francis Grierson himself deserves to be looked up and presented more fully than Mr. Spencer has been able to do in his introductory memoir—a pioneering piece of work, distinguished by Mr. Spencer's aptitude for quietly hitting nails on the head." Edmund Wilson
+ New Yorker 24:101 S 18 '48 2450w

Reviewed by Sally Carrighar
San Francisco Chronicle p11 Je 20 '48 750w

Time 52:78 Jl 5 '48 650w

GRIERSON, JOHN. On documentary; ed. and comp. by Forsyth Hardy; with American notes by Richard Griffith and Mary Losey. 324p $3.75 Harcourt

791.4 Moving pictures 47-11877

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"Grierson has a command of English that is astonishing only until one learns that he is the son of a Scots 'dominie' (schoolmaster) who took his calling seriously. His phrases ring with the sharp economy that can only be acquired by long immersion in the authorized version, the plays of Shakespeare, and perhaps of Milton."
+ Commonweal 47:453 F 13 '48 390w

"Admirably edited by Forsyth Hardy, with copious American notes by Richard Griffith and Mary Losey, members of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures, this is the last word in the documentary film field. Highly recommended for cinema and theatre collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 73:199 F 1 '48 60w

"Grierson on documentary impressed the reviewer more favorably than Grierson on politics or education or propaganda. In this volume the ideas on all of these subjects are almost inextricably intermingled, which calls for discriminating reading. The Index gives little help in such discrimination because it consists almost entirely of names—names of films, actors, and actresses, producers, etc." S. M. Corey
+ — Library Q 18:124 Ap '48 2150w

Reviewed by Nathan Glick
Nation 166:484 My 1 '48 950w

"Disciples and friends of Mr. Grierson, of whom there are many scattered up and down the world, may be no more than thankful for this collection of the film man's fiery words—this lively and stimulating codex of propagandist's pensées. For there is not a great deal in it, outside of some early Nineteen Thirties film reviews, which will not be familiar scripture to the followers of Grierson's apostolic career. But for those who haven't met the half pint Scotsman—on the intellectual highways, at least—and only know from hearsay of his importance in the field of documentary films, the vigor and range of his ideas will come as a double barreled surprise." Bosley Crowther
+ N Y Times p7 F 8 '48 600w

GRIFFITH, BEATRICE WINSTON. American me. 341p il $3.50 Houghton

325.272 Mexicans in the U.S. 48-10834

Presents the case of the Mexican in California, in the form of chapter narratives and discussions about Mexican boys and girls. The author has been a social worker among the Mexican-Americans. Glossary.

Booklist 45:115 D 1 '48

Reviewed by Kimmis Hendrick
Christian Science Monitor p14 N 30 '48 800w

"This is expressive in use of indigenous, often ingenuously appealing material. . . At all times persuasive, urgent, cogent in its appeal. Don't overlook it."
+ Kirkus 16:592 N 1 '48 130w

"A series of clever, vivid, sympathy-evoking sketches, fictional but startlingly verisimilar. . . A Literary Fellowship Award—and deserves it! Recommended for all libraries." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 73:1511 O 15 '48 140w

Reviewed by Ward Moore
Nation 168:22 Ja 1 '49 600w

"'American Me,' with its combination of human portrayal, sound exposition, and real literary quality, if it has the popular sale I predict for it, will be a real contribution to securing America for all Americans." Oliver La Farge
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 N 7 '48 1600w

Reviewed by Gladwin Hill
N Y Times p6 O 24 '48 850w

"Miss Griffith is to be congratulated upon producing an immensely interesting book, but even more upon her contribution, in it, to the war on stupid and malicious prejudice—a war we have got to win in this country on a dozen different fronts, if we are going to be the Nation we can be." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 N 19 '48 750w

"In making this investigation, Miss Griffith has used a method which, by combining fact and fiction, is both interesting and effective. . . These stories are very good indeed and constitute an excellent collection of 'photographs' of Mexican-American youth." Carey McWilliams
+ Sat R of Lit 31:13 D 25 '48 850w

Wis Lib Bul 44:211 D '48

GRIFFITH, CORINNE (MRS GEORGE PRESTON MARSHALL). My life with the Redskins. 238p il $3 Barnes, A.S.

796.33 Washington, D.C. Football club (national league) 47-31463

The "Redskins" are the professional football team, once of Boston, now of Washington, and owned by the author's husband, George Preston Marshall.

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 73:42 Ja 1 '48 20w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 D 14 '47 400w

Springf'd Republican p7B S 12 '48 120w

GRISWOLD, ALFRED WHITNEY. Farming and democracy. 227p $3 Harcourt

338.1 Land tenure. Democracy. Sociology, Rural 48-6511

"This is a book about an idea—that farming as a family enterprise is the 'backbone of democracy.' The book discusses the origin of the idea, its historic influence on public policy in Great Britain, France, and the United States, and its possible significance for the future of both American agriculture and American democracy." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by C. C. Bayley
Am Hist R 54:179 O '48 400w

Reviewed by C. M. Hardin
Am Pol Sci R 42:993 O '48 750w

"Mr. Griswold has written a very interesting and thought-provoking book along the lines that should be receiving more consideration in the light of present trends." A. F. Vass
+ Ann Am Acad 259:188 S '48 440w

Booklist 44:308 My 15 '48

Reviewed by Emerson Hynes
Commonweal 49:121 N 12 '48 380w

Kirkus 16:203 Ap 15 '48 170w

"Thoroughly documented, the book provides a basis for further studies and political action." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 73:648 Ap 15 '48 110w

"Solid, brilliant book. It is a book that sheds light on a number of important questions. What is the relationship of farming to democracy? Is the agrarian way of life a bulwark for defending democratic institutions? Is the fate of democracy bound up with the fate of the owner-operated, family-size farm?" W. M. Teller
+ N Y Times p29 Je 6 '48 550w

Reviewed by J. I. Falconer
Pol Sci Q 63:629 D '48 700w

Reviewed by A. P. Chew
Sat R of Lit 31:17 Jl 17 '48 900w

School & Society 68:15 Jl 3 '48 40w

Springf'd Republican p10B Je 20 '48 120w

GRISWOLD, GLENN, and GRISWOLD, DENNY (PRAGER), eds. Your public relations; the standard public relations handbook [pub] in assn. with Modern industry magazine. 634p il $7.50 Funk

301.154 Publicity 48-7774

"Practical handbook with case studies to show tested and successful public relations methods. Chapters by 33 experts in the public relations field." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:150 Ja 1 '49

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:819 My 15 '48 20w

GRONEMAN, CHRIS HAROLD. Plastics made practical. 324p il $4.50 Bruce pub.

668.4 Plastics 48-2024

Explains the technique and tools used in working in plastics, and gives working drawings, photographs, and complete instructions for making plastic articles. Lists books, magazines, and sources of materials. Index.

Booklist 44:347 Je 15 '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:819 My 15 '48 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:58 Jl '48

Wis Lib Bul 44:162 O '48

GROSS, FELIKS, ed. European ideologies; a survey of 20th century political ideas; with an introd. by Robert M. MacIver. 1075p $12 Philosophical lib.

321 Political science 48-10359

"A survey of the social, economic, and political ideas of Europe which have so greatly determined world orientation. Introduces the reader to many aspects of modern movements too little understood by the Western World." (School & Society) Index.

"Its rather formidable price may prevent this massive symposium from receiving the attention it deserves from readers and students. However, it should be considered that this is virtually a set of books in a single binding, rather than one book, and that the price is barely more than a cent a page. . . Several of the chapters provoke disagreement. Indeed, the contributors vigorously disagree with one another. The editor, aware of this, and perhaps having deliberately planned it in order to give his book something of the quality of a lively forum debate, prefaces several chapters with notes referring to opposite views in other chapters." W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 66:47 Ja 12 '49 850w

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p16 D 13 '48 650w

"This volume, though somewhat unevenly edited contains several articles of the utmost reference value. Only librarians who have long looked in vain for thorough treatment of Panslavism, will fully appreciate the comprehensive essay contributed by exiled Polish professor Waclaw Lednicki. . . Most chapters contain fairly adequate brief bibliographies. Recommended for larger college and public libraries." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 73:1665 N 15 '48 170w

School & Society 68:286 O 23 '48 50w

GROSSER, MAURICE RICHARD. Painting in public. 235p $2.75 Knopf

751 Painting. Artists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 48-5469

An account of a painter's reactions to such problems as patrons, museums, art dealers, a painter's tools and training, and people who sit for their portraits.

"A sprightly, caustic, and enlightening little book for the layman by a professional painter."
+ Atlantic 181:120 Ap '48 90w

Booklist 44:230 Mr 1 '48

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '48

"A pleasant departure in the field of art books. . . It should be a book of value to students, and of more than usual interest to art followers."
+ Kirkus 16:12 Ja 1 '48 120w

"Maurice Grosser a member of Gertrude Stein's circle, is a painter, not a writer, yet this first book is lucid and lively. It explains to laymen the artist's way of going about his business and the business of showing and marketing the artist's accomplishments." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 73:559 Ap 1 '48 100w

"The best recommendation for this kind of popular book is that the author never exploits any whimsical or romantic elements in his subject: he maintains throughout the decent, workmanlike attitude he has set himself." John Farrelly
+ New Repub 118:30 Mr 22 '48 320w

"This is one of the most fascinating books about painting that have been written in the last twenty years. It is easy to make such an opening statement, but the more one reads 'Painting in Public' the more true it seems. This book shines and sparkles because it has been cut, faceted, polished and composed of the hardest materials." Lincoln Kirstein
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 F 15 '48 500w

"Garrulous, pleasant and provocative book. . . It is the opinionated, good-natured monologue that you might expect from an intelligent, articulate artist." W. G. Dooley
N Y Times p5 Mr 7 '48 800w

"It is addressed primarily to painters and followers of the art, but it is witty and searching enough to interest many others."
+ New Yorker 24:88 F 28 '48 60w

Reviewed by W. E. Parker
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 21 '48 600w

GROSSMAN, JEAN (SCHICK) (ALICE BARR GRAYSON, pseud). Life with family; a perspective on parenthood. 231p $3 Appleton

649.1 Family. Parent and child 48-3451

"Observations on creating and maintaining harmonious family relationships. Practical

GROSSMAN, J. S.—Continued
discussions on successfully combining motherhood and a career, amusements shared by the family, the child's need for security, and on striking the proper balance between guidance and undue restraint." (Booklist) Thruout the book there are anecdotes based on the experiences of the author. Suggested reading.

Booklist 45:45 O 1 '48
Reviewed by Ruth Crowley
Chicago Sun S 13 '48 140w
Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '48

"This is pleasantly discursive, flexible counseling."
+ Kirkus 16:330 Jl 1 '48 130w
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p27 N 21 '48 110w
Wis Lib Bul 44:211 D '48

GROVES, ERNEST RUTHERFORD, and GROVES, GLADYS HOAGLAND. The contemporary American family. 838p $2.60 Lippincott

173 Family. Social problems. U.S.—Social conditions 47-6612

"First published in 1934 with the title The American Family [Book Review Digest, 1934]. The purpose, as stated by the authors, is to 'give the reader an understanding of American family life that will help him handle his own problems whether they are associated with premarriage, marriage, or parenthood experience.'" Booklist

Reviewed by R. F. Winch
Am J Soc 53:507 My '48 430w
Reviewed by Jessie Bernard
Ann Am Acad 256:241 Mr '48 360w
Booklist 44:153 D 15 '47
Reviewed by E. B. Bate
J Home Econ 40:269 My '48 300w

"Enables the reader to gain an understanding of American family life that should assist him in his own experience."
+ School & Society 66:366 N 8 '47 20w

"The whole volume is packed full of authoritative information valuable to persons interested in making a success of family living." E. W. Burgess
+ Social Forces 26:478 My '48 400w

"Both content and style contribute toward a valuable perspective on current rapid changes in family structure and resultant problems." M. R.
+ Survey 84:29 Ja '48 150w

GROVES, HAROLD MARTIN. Trouble spots in taxation. 105p $2 Princeton univ. press

336.2 Taxation. Finance 48-5914

"[Five essays] which were delivered in 1946 as the first in a projected series of lectures made possible by the Charles Phelps Taft Memorial Fund of the University of Cincinnati. The subjects of the essays are; 'Taxation and Equality,' 'The Place of Government in the Scheme of Things,' 'The Future Rôle of the Net Income Tax,' 'Income versus Property Taxes for State and Local Governments,' and 'Unity Versus Diversity in Taxation.' The subtitle, Essays in the Philosophy of Taxation and Other Public Finance Problems, is much more indicative of the character of most of these papers than is the main title." Am Pol Sci R

Reviewed by B. U. Ratchford
Am Econ R 38:679 S '48 300w

"These essays contain little that Groves and others have not said elsewhere, but they are well designed to stimulate more fundamental thinking on the part of public-spirited laymen and others who know something of public finance, but who as yet have little real appreciation of its relation to the well-being and progress of present-day society." R. G. Blakey
+ Am Pol Sci R 42:590 Je '48 450w
Reviewed by Robert Rockafellow
Ann Am Acad 259:183 S '48 380w

"On the whole the essays present a well-balanced evaluation of many controversial aspects of taxation. The student of taxation will find little here that is new but will be impressed once again by the need for an adequate unifying set of principles that has yet to be developed. The eclectic system of Professor Groves is, nevertheless, probably the best we have to date." G. E. Lent
+ — J Pol Econ 56:457 O '48 600w

"Lectures by a good economist, whose political bent is progressive, survey lucidly a number of the most controversial issues in taxation policy." George Soule
+ Nation 167:80 Jl 17 '48 180w
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:160 Je '48 240w

GRUBER, FRANK. The lock and the key. 180p $2 Rinehart 48-4247

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun N 19 '48 70w

"Energetic rather than enigmatic."
Kirkus 16:380 Ag 1 '48 60w
Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 D 12 '48 80w
Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p54 N 14 '48 200w

"Good grade Gruber."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:56 O 9 '48 40w

GRUBER, FRANK. Murder '97; a Simon Lash mystery. 218p $2 Rinehart 48-5132

Detective story.

"Although this one starts off like a skyrocket it fizzles out that way too." James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ja 23 '48 60w
Kirkus 15:633 N 15 '47 20w
Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ap 4 '48 90w

"Oldsters who remember their Horatio Alger will be relieved to learn that that famous author was in no way responsible for the violent deaths recorded here. Fifty years ago boys got a thrill out of Alger. Today they demand stronger, redder meat, such as that supplied by Frank Gruber." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p24 F 1 '48 180w
Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p29 Ja 18 '48 120w

"Agreeable."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:34 Ja 24 '48 40w
Wis Lib Bul 44:83 Ap '48

GRUBER, FRANK. Scarlet feather. 249p $2 Rinehart 48-1847

Mystery story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun My 7 '48 50w
Kirkus 16:156 Mr 15 '48 100w
Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 My 16 '48 60w

"The story moves swiftly and offers plenty of fun and excitement." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p26 My 16 '48 110w
Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p24 Je 6 '48 60w

"Good—but not for queasy."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:32 My 22 '48 50w

GRUBER, RUTH. Destination Palestine; the story of the Haganah ship, Exodus 1947 [phot by the author]. 128p $2.50 Current bks

296 Exodus 1947 (ship). Refugees, Jewish 48-8487

An account in text and photographs of the tragic journey of the Haganah sponsored ship Exodus in 1947. The author, an American newspaper woman was an eye witness of many of the happenings which she reports here.

Booklist 45:63 O 15 '48

Chicago Sun p7X S 12 '48 40w

Reviewed by J. G. Harrison

Christian Science Monitor p14 D 7 '48 600w

"It is written with the clarity and restraint that only a journalist of Miss Gruber's stature could command to accent its human drama. Such an experience cannot be in vain; such a book must move the wills of decent men everywhere." J. H. Titus

+ Churchman 163:16 Ja 15 '49 110w

Kirkus 16:418 Ag 15 '48 160w

"Book is not pleasant reading, but should be read by everyone who professes to believe in democracy, human freedom and dignity." C. W. Roth

Library J 73:1187 S 1 '48 140w

"This book and its explicit, shocking photographs have meaning beyond the immediate Jewish-British conflict. Miss Gruber has reported simply and movingly a story of bravery and determination pitted against incredible stupidity. It is a story as timeless as the original Exodus." Joanna Spencer

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 O 10 '48 700w

"Ruth Gruber, an American newspaper woman . . . has told her story once again, this time in book form to rescue it from the evanescence of newsprint, to shore up our uncertain memories, and as a valedictory to a modern voyage to the Promised Land." Thomas Lask

+ N Y Times p3 S 19 '48 600w

Reviewed by G. G. Stevens

San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 26 '48 200w

Wis Lib Bul 45:12 Ja '49

GRUCHY, ALLAN GARFIELD. Modern economic thought; the American contribution. 670p $5.65; to schools $4.25 Prentice-Hall

330.973 Economics 47-4709

"The purpose of the author is to appraise 'the American movement to reconstruct economic science' which had its beginnings in the work of Ely, Patten, and Veblen. . . After an introductory chapter contrasting the philosphic and cultural background of orthodox and heterodox economics, a separate chapter is devoted to each of the following: Veblen, Commons, Mitchell, Clark, Tugwell, and Means." (Ann Am Acad) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by B. F. Haley

Am Econ R 38:630 S '48 1350w

"The author's style is on the whole clear and readable. His organization suffers from repetitiousness, some of it necessary; much, I believe, could have been avoided. Nevertheless, his book merits and will probably receive wide attention. Specifically it should indicate to psychologists and sociologists that not all economists can be ignored on the ground of their hopelessly inaccurate conception of human behavior. One might suggest that psychologists and sociologists should now reciprocate by devoting more attention to the impact of economic conditions upon their own subject-matter." Ross Stagner

+ — Am Soc R 13:244 Ap '48 1050w

"Since each of these writers except Veblen read and criticized the manuscript pertaining to himself, this book will have an enduring value as to what these economists were trying to accomplish. . . Considering the nebulous and at times chaotic character of some of the writings, the range of concepts and ideas, and the diversity of authors and materials under review, Gruchy has done a skillful job with clear and straightforward writing, even though many may doubt that this constitutes the American contribution." E. P. Schmidt

+ Ann Am Acad 255:207 Ja '48 450w

"Of course, not everyone will agree that Mr. Gruchy has given the correct emphasis in his summaries, or has properly related all parts of each economist's thought. The book is, however, although repetitious, a convenient digest and a useful contribution to an interesting subject."

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 4:44 Mr '48 300w

GRUENBERG, MRS SIDONIE (MATSNER), ed. More favorite stories old and new; for boys and girls; il. by Richard Floethe. 399p $3.75 Doubleday

48-9182

A companion volume to Favorite Stories Old and New (Book Review Digest 1943). The seventy stories are taken from books and magazines and are for an older group than those in the first book. Stories are grouped under the following headings: Boys and girls here and there; Of courage and adventure; Folk tales: animals around the world; When America was younger; Enchantment and wonder; Humor and tall tales; Of man's best friends: horses and dogs; From myths and fables to legend and history. Index.

Booklist 45:124 D 1 '48

"A very valuable collection."

+ Kirkus 16:477 S 15 '48 130w

"Teachers and parents who have used this author's Favorite Stories Old and New will welcome the second collection, similar in arrangement but designed for the 9-12 age group. Well-selected stories, with good blending of the old and the new." M. A. Herr

+ Library J 74:204 F 1 '49 70w

"A nice balance between the real and the make-believe has been maintained. Mrs. Gruenberg, director of the Child Study Association of America, has admirably fulfilled her purpose to select some of the best of the old and of the new. Although intended for the 9 to 12-year-olds, this anthology is one for family sharing." A. N. Fedder

+ N Y Times p14 Ja 2 '49 150w

Wis Lib Bul 44:215 D '48

GUARDINI, ROMANO. Death of Socrates; an interpretation of the Platonic dialogues, Euthyphro, Apology, Crito and Phaedo; tr. from the German by Basil Wrighton. 177p $3 Sheed

183.2 Socrates. Plato 48-2618

"The present work proposes to examine four dialogues from Plato's works: the Euthyphro, Apology, Crito and Phaedo. They describe Socrates, the philosopher, in the situation of death. First he is shown, already under indictment, meeting an acquaintance in the street. . . Then at the trial before the supreme court, defending his life-work against the various accusations; next in prison, at the moment when, towards the end of his imprisonment, a friend urges him to flight and he reassures himself as to his highest duty; lastly, just before the end, as he sums up, in animated conversation with his disciples, the result of his enquiries and knowledge. These texts will tell us how Socrates sees death, how his life appears to him in the face of death, and how he meets his end." Introductory note

"Guardini calls this masterful composition in his spectacular modesty: An interpretation of the Platonic Dialogues, Euthyphro, Apology, Crito and Phaedo. Mr. Wrighton has translated Guardini's work so well that it reads like an original. He has lost none of that deliberate shading and masterful weighing of Guardini for which he has become so famous. I am not in a position to say whether or not Guardini has thrown new light on the Death of Socrates, but one thing is certain, that none of his thoughts or words are superfluous and that the priest and Christian Guardini, without

GUARDINI, ROMANO—Continued
claiming the sage of Athens with a sleight-of-hand or rejecting him as a pagan, has focused his whole life for all times to come." H. A. Reinhold
+ Commonweal 48:432 Ag 13 '48 330w

"The author's study of the argument, in its several stages, is often valuable. His treatment of the Theory of Ideas is of special interest and importance. . . There is much in Mr. Guardini's book that is worthy of attention and of praise. Above all he has done well to guide his readers back to a great theme, and to offer fresh suggestions, if not for the solution of its problems at least for the assimilation of its spirit in terms of the thought of to-day." Dorothy Tarrant
+ Hibbert J 46:281 Ap '48 1250w

Reviewed by H. L. Varley
Springf'd Republican p10A Jl 4 '48 150w

"As an introduction to the great controlling ideas of Platonism the book can be recommended. In making contact with the figure of Socrates the author makes contact with and illumines the foundations of that philosophy. . . Even those who cannot in the end accept Plato's thinking can hardly fail to realize, on putting this book down, that something of what it means to think Platonically has been revealed to them. The translation of the dialogues is that made by F. J. Church for his Trial and Death of Socrates. The author's text is translated from the German, but Mr. Basil Wrighton has done his work so well that the fact is not apparent."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p293 My 22 '48 700w

GUENTHER, ERNEST, and others. Essential oils; v1, History, origin in plants, production, analysis. 427p il $6 Van Nostrand

668.5 Essences and essential oils (48-5788)

A treatise on the industry and science of essential oils which considers history, production, chemistry, analysis and application. The second volume will deal with the chemical constituents of the essential oils. The author is vice president and technical director of Fritzsche Brothers, inc, New York City. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by William Crocker
Chem & Eng N 26:1864 Je 21 '48 400w

"Because of the great contribution the essential oil industry has made to the development of distillation, and because of the attention to progress in distillation given by the industry and by this book, it will have an appeal to organic chemists and chemical engineers who may not be concerned with the production or use of volatile oils. We regret that the bibliographical references are scattered throughout the book, and that they are made all the more difficult to locate because of a lack of an authors index. Otherwise, the book is well indexed, and the material well arranged." Edward Sagarin
+ — Chem Eng 55:318 My '48 500w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:202 F 1 '48 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:10 Ja '48

GUERARD, ALBERT LEON. Personal equation. 317p $3.50 Norton

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 48-6610

Autobiography of a Frenchman who has spent part of his life in England and America, and is professor emeritus of general literature at Stanford University. "He now looks back over the accomplishments of a rich, yet serene life; does not dwell on details of his career, but mainly records the evolution of his thought. Many readers will enjoy his reminiscences of the Paris of his youth. After some pertinent observations on the Dreyfus affair and on the England of his student days, Guérard turns to his experiences in America. Having spent most of his mature life in this country, he is thoroughly familiar with our problems." (Library J)

Booklist 44:367 Jl 1 '48

Reviewed by R. J. Donahue
Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 5 '48 650w

Reviewed by Florence Codman
Commonweal 48:240 Je 18 '48 190w

"A book for thoughtful, unhurried readers. . . A book to be savored, digested slowly; so rich, so concentrated, so rewarding it is."
+ Kirkus 16:75 F 1 '48 120w

"One of the most charming and enlightening autobiographies to appear in many a month. . . His comment on American institutions and attitudes may be controversial at times and certainly will not please narrow nationalists, but his judgment is usually astute. Heartily recommended for college and larger public libraries." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 73:648 Ap 15 '48 170w

Reviewed by Justin O'Brien
Nation 166:663 Je 12 '48 550w

New Repub 119:26 Ag 2 '48 380w

"An extremely entertaining and valuable book." Jacques Barzun
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 My 2 '48 1250w

"The author of this shrewd and pleasant autobiography is one of the most useful citizens the United States has to show. . . That Professor Guérard intended 'Personal Equation' as a fighting document in the eternal war of liberation I very much doubt; that he has written such a document is clear. He reminds us, without raising his voice, of the vast discrepancy between the vision of America which brought him here, and the imperfect fulfillment of that vision in the last thirty years. His long discussion of the Dreyfus case is an indirect warning; and his fine tribute to his colleagues is a lesson in tolerance. All in all, a distinctly cheering volume." H. M. Jones
+ N Y Times p4 My 2 '48 650w

School & Society 67:487 Je 26 '48 20w

Springf'd Republican p12B My 16 '48 360w

GUERRY, EMILE MAURICE. God the Father; meditations; tr. by A. H. C. Downes. 184p $2.50 Sheed

231 God. Roman Catholic church—Devotions 48-5789

"Eighty-nine meditations on 'God the Father.' . . The first and longer part of the work is on the Blessed Trinity, the relations of the Persons to one another and man's relations to them. The second part is on virtues and prayer and the liturgical life." Commonweal

---

"One who makes diligent use of these outline meditations will be well repaid."
+ Cath World 168:176 N '48 170w

"Although the meditations are deeply and richly theological, even the great mysteries of the Trinity, the Incarnation, and the mission of the Holy Spirit are treated simply and clearly." Bonaventure Schwinn
+ Commonweal 48:482 Ag 27 '48 380w

GUILD, MRS CAROLINE. Rainbow in Tahiti; il. by Nicolas Mordvinoff; with a foreword by James Norman Hill. 253p $2.75 Doubleday

919.62 Tahiti 48-6139

Informal, lively account of the experiences of the Guild family in Tahiti, their home from 1923 to 1940.

Booklist 44:266 Ap 1 '48

Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 6 '48 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p21 D '48

"Pretty thin reading, and only mildly interesting."
Kirkus 16:41 Ja 15 '48 130w

"Written somewhat in the style of Our Hearts Were Young and Gay. The Guilds' study of birds and flowers lifts the book out of the category of 'just another travel tale.' Recommended." L. R. Miller
+ Library J 73:470 Mr 15 '48 80w

"Carrie Guild has told the story of these golden Tahitian years in a lighthearted, casual, yet realistic way. The difficulties are all described, just as they appeared to a stalwart and uncompromising New England mother and housekeeper. The ingenuity and humor of the Yankee are there too, visible both in her and Ham; and the joyous things that come naturally from a happy, convivial marriage crowd the book." Thomas Sugrue
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ap 4 '48 750w

Reviewed by Harry Roskolenko
N Y Times p10 Je 13 '48 470w

"All books of this kind fall more or less into pattern, but in this case the story is nicely enough written so that it has a freshness all its own." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Mr 25 '48 550w

Springf'd Republican p10B Ap 11 '48 110w

Wis Lib Bul 44:163 O '48

GULICK, CHARLES ADAMS. Austria from Habsburg to Hitler; with a foreword by Walther Federn. 2v $20 Univ. of Calif.

943.6 Austria—History. Austria—Politics and government 48-1808

History of Austria from the end of the Habsburg Empire to the annexation of the country by Hitler. It is an exhaustive study of the internal economic, social, and political changes in that country, and their effects upon the rest of Europe. The author is professor of economics at the University of California. Index.

"It may be regretted, in the interest of historical science, that a comprehensive work of this kind had to be based almost exclusively on printed source material, among which clippings from Austrian and Anglo-Saxon papers played a conspicuous role. The delay on the part of our government in releasing information from, or granting access to, captured documents from Europe, with the exception of the comparatively small collection which is earmarked for publication, has prevented the author from gaining knowledge which, it may be surmised, would have been priceless. Yet this defect for which he is not to blame should not obscure the great merits of his achievement. He has enriched history by a most valuable contribution of monumental scope and character." G. W. F. Hallgarten
+ — Am Hist R 54:122 O '48 1050w

Reviewed by Hans Kohn
Ann Am Acad 258:129 Jl '48 550w

"The fruit of many years of research in American libraries and of the author's extensive studies in Vienna during 1936 and 1937, this work is equally remarkable for its size and its scholastic qualities. Through accuracy, completeness, and the incisiveness of its observations, it ranks high above all the earlier publications on the same topic by either Austrian or foreign authors." Ernest Pisko
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 Ap 24 '48 700w

"For the student it is a serious and intricate development of a theory that the politics of that period were reflected in the changes in the workers' fortunes. The book is also of value to anyone interested in the grave European situation now and between the two world wars: it demonstrates the power of evil over the lives of millions and the destinies of states." Roy Hillbrook
+ Current Hist 14:293 My '48 900w

"A work that throws light on many difficult problems of twentieth-century history. Its value is not limited to the circle of scholars." Alfred Werner
+ N Y Times p5 Mr 21 '48 1400w

Reviewed by Robert Pick
Sat R of Lit 31:23 Je 5 '48 950w

GULICK, LUTHER HALSEY. Administrative reflections from World war II [lectures delivered before the fellows of the Southern regional training program in public adm. in Nov. 1946]. 139p $2.50 Univ. of Ala. press

353 Public administration. World war, 1939-1945—U.S. 48-6766

"Dr. Gulick examines the history of World war II, first to see to what extent the generally accepted theories and principles of administration were verified under war conditions; second, to see what lessons can be drawn from wartime experiments and developments for peacetime public administration. The author, who has pioneered in the development of administrative theory, was active during World War II in organization and programming for various government agencies." (Management R) Index.

"Interspersed through Dr. Gulick's lectures are frequent epigrammatic sentences which add to the charm and interest of the book. . . Citizens, administrators, and students will all find these thought-provoking and interpretive lectures very well worth reading and will be grateful to the University of Alabama for sharing them with us." L. M. Short
+ Ann Am Acad 259:180 S '48 330w

Management R 37:382 Jl '48 60w

GUPTA, MAHENDRA NATH (M. pseud). Ramakrishna: prophet of new India. See Rāmakrishna

GUTTMAN, SELMA. Foreign sources of Shakespeare's works. 168p $2.75 King's crown press

822.33 Shakespeare, William—Sources—Bibliography 47-11711

"An annotated bibliography of the commentary written on this subject between 1904 and 1940 together with lists of certain translations available to Shakespeare." (Subtitle) Index.

"This is a sound and authoritative bibliography." George Freedley
+ Library J 72:1780 D 15 '47 20w

School & Society 67:326 Ap 24 '48 20w

Reviewed by H. L. Varley
Springf'd Republican p8B F 8 '48 120w

"Students of Shakespeare will find this bibliography a helpful systematization of one tangled area in Shakespearean scholarship. The book should prove valuable, too, to those students of classical and continental literature who are interested in Shakespeare's relationship to it."
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:245 Je '48 270w

GUYON, RENE. Ethics of sexual acts; tr. from the French for the first time by J. C. and Ingeborg Flugel; with an introd. and notes by Norman Haire; with a new introd. by Harry Benjamin. (Studies in sexual ethics, v 1) 383p $4 Knopf

176 Sexual ethics. Sex (48-2599)

"René Guyon is a French lawyer and author who, after extensive travels, settled in Siam where since 1919 he has been a judge in the Supreme Court of that country. . . 'The Ethics of Sexual Acts' was first issued in this country in 1941. . . Guyon discusses briefly the physiology and the morality of sexual acts, reviews the Freudian concepts, traces the origins of sexual taboo in early societies, and describes the personal and social effects of this taboo—developed into the theological concept of sin and the legal concept of crime—in modern times." N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R

GUYON, RENE—Continued

Reviewed by H. M. Parshley
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 Je 6 '48 150w

"More essential and more up-to-date item than any of the post-Kinsey writings we have read thus far. For the big question, 'After Kinsey, what?'—it is, of course, not an adequate answer. There are two excellent and intelligent introductions by Dr. Harry Benjamin and by Norman Haire." Martin Gumpert
+ N Y Times p17 Ag 1 '48 380w

School & Society 68:31 Je 10 '48 40w

GWYNN, DENIS ROLLESTON. Father Dominic Barberi. 254p $3 Desmond & Stapleton
B or 92 Barberi, Domenico 48-6035

A biography of the Italian Passionist priest who received John Henry Newman into the Catholic Church. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Joseph McSorley
Cath World 168:173 N '48 300w

"Not only scholarly, but very readable." Anne Fremantle
+ Commonweal 48:382 Jl 30 '48 280w

Times [London] Lit Sup p354 Je 26 '48 600w

GYSIN, FREDERIC. Swiss medieval tapestries [tr. by Robert C. Allen]. 14p pl $3.75 Studio
746.3 Tapestry

"American reprint of a Swiss publication of 1940. Text elucidates methods of weaving used for these incunabula of industry. . . Reproductions of elaborate portrayal of man, beast, and foliage most adequate, both in black and white and color." Library J

"Useful in larger collections." A. S. Plaut
Library J 73:1386 O 1 '48 70w

"Eleven tapestries are here reproduced, some of them in colour and with several good enlargements of detail; most of these are from the Basle museum, which has the most important collection of medieval Swiss tapestries, but two are in the Zurich museum. All of them are remarkably charming works of delicate craftsmanship and completely unaffected even though elaborate imagery."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p244 My 1 '48 450w

H

HABE, HANS, pseud. (JEAN BEKESSY). Walk in darkness; tr. by Richard Hanser. 314p $3 Putnam 48-8727

"Washington Roach, Negro, re-enlists in the army after the war and is sent to Germany where he finds the same prejudices which had caused him to seek overseas duty. He marries a German girl, deserts, becomes a leader in the underground of deserters and black marketeers in Germany, escapes to France after killing a soldier, is caught, and sent home to be hanged." Library J

"[Mr Habe] has written with honesty and feeling, but without the intimate knowledge a novelist must have when tackling a particular segment of society." Melvin Maddocks
+ — Christian Science Monitor p16 O 29 '48 410w

"Presented as a victim of racism, Roach and his story hold many elements of violence and drama, but leave little play for sympathy. Apart from the sensationalism of the subject, one questions if this will have the popularity of Aftermath, Kathrine, etc."
Kirkus 16:379 Ag 1 '48 180w

Reviewed by Donald Wasson
Library J 73:1193 S 1 '48 90w

Reviewed by F. H. Bullock
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p27 O 17 '48 600w

"Toward its close, the book makes up for its flaws. Perhaps because of its smaller scope, its reasoned restraint, it seems to me the best of Habe's books. And the chapters in which Washington realizes that the French farmers have actually accepted him—when he discovers that he was as blindly stupid in his hatred of a Jew, of all white people, as those whites who call him 'shine'—these chapters are written with a sincerity and compassion which should stir every heart. Habe can delve into the world of the black-marketeer with a cynical detachment that may shock more than one actual observer in post-war Germany. But there is no escaping his sincerity in these final pages." Richard Plant
+ — N Y Times p5 O 10 '48 800w

New Yorker 24:128 N 6 '48 100w

"Rather than strive for human understanding and credibility Hans Habe has settled for melodrama. He is scarcely any more successful with his characters. . . Eva doesn't come off at all. First she is an angel, then she is the devil incarnate. The only reason offered for Eva's abrupt change is that she is a German. Father Durant, intended to be the book's most sympathetic character and the embodiment of all human virtue and wisdom, is merely ridiculous. To Habe's credit it must be said that 'Walk in Darkness' is always exciting, and that quite frequently the excitement makes you ignore the book's obvious weaknesses." W. R. W.
— + San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ja 16 '49 550w

"A sincere, but sometimes depressing narrative with an important theme, however overemphasized." H. B. Kranz
+ Sat R of Lit 31:16 O 9 '48 750w

HABERLY, LOYD. Pursuit of the horizon; a life of George Catlin, painter and recorder of the American Indian. 239p pl $5 Macmillan
B or 92 Catlin, George 48-11465

Biography of a nineteenth-century American painter and writer whose principal work was the painting and study of the American Indians, of the West, and of Central and South America.

Booklist 45:153 Ja 1 '49

"This is good adventure, and is at the same time a fantastic, fascinating and colorful biography of a painter destined to be almost unknown today: George Catlin."
+ Kirkus 16:467 S 1 '48 210w

"As an idolatrous biography of a spectacular man, 'Pursuit of the Horizon' makes good reading for any one who is interested only in an adventure story. But it has little value for students of history, Indians, or art." Bernard Devoto
— + N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 D 19 '48 1300w

"It was a romantic career, so romantic that there is no need to romanticize it. This, unfortunately, Mr. Haberly has done. Because this is the only biography of Catlin—aside from the jumble of information in Donaldson's monumental report to the Smithsonian for 1885—it is a valuable one. Because it is neither critical nor comprehensive, it is not a definitive one. It is littered with minor inaccuracies; it is marred by excessive exaggerations; it is characterized by sentimentalism." H. S. Commager
+ — N Y Times p1 D 26 '48 1100w

"A splendidly written biography, the first life of Catlin to see print. To my mind it is so good a biography of so fascinating an early American that even the general reader, with no specific interest in the West or the Indian, will be enthusiastic about it." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 D 10 '48 850w

"Mr. Haberly has muffed the opportunity to produce an important book about an important but equivocal figure. Had he dredged beneath the obviously picturesque surface of his material, he could have found a story less conventional and more full of meaning." J. T. Flexner

Sat R of Lit 32:13 Ja 29 '49 550w

HADER, MRS BERTA (HOERNER), and HADER, ELMER. Big snow [il. by the authors]. [45p] $2.50 Macmillan

48-10240

Picture book showing how the birds and animals fared during a long cold winter. For ages 4-6.

Booklist 45:91 N 1 '48

"There is no real story but children will enjoy the animals' busy preparation for winter and the book catches some of the excitement of the first snowfall." A. T. Eaton

+ Christian Science Monitor p4 N 9 '48 210w

+ Churchman 162:17 N 15 '48 20w

"A warmhearted and pleasant picture book." C. H. B.

+ Commonweal 49:145 N 19 '48 30w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 24:453 N '48 80w

+ Kirkus 16:524 O 1 '48 90w

"Written with great understanding and sympathy for animals. Recommended for ages 3-8." D. M. Blasco

+ Library J 73:1672 N 15 '48 70w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 N 14 '48 180w

N Y Times p49 N 21 '48 110w

+ New Yorker 24:124 D 11 '48 50w

Sat R of Lit 31:23 N 13 '48 140w

+ Springf'd Republican p7B N 7 '48 60w

Wis Lib Bul 44:186 N '48

HADLEY, MORRIS. Arthur Twining Hadley. 282p il $3.75 Yale univ. press

B or 92 Hadley, Arthur Twining. Yale university 48-8017

Biography of Arthur Twining Hadley, president of Yale university from 1899 to 1921, written by his son. There is a bibliography of Hadley's works. Index.

"This biography sparkles, as any competently written book about Hadley must. But it is equally essential that it have much solid substance, for Hadley was a substantial as well as a brilliant scholar, and again the reader is not disappointed." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 65:883 S 1 '48 210w

Current Hist 15:350 D '48 130w

Kirkus 16:359 Jl 15 '48 120w

"Pleasant, competent biography. . . For college and university libraries primarily, but public and some special libraries will want it also." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 73:1188 S 1 '48 110w

"One does not have to be a loyal son of Eli, delighting in treasured anecdotes, to enjoy this engaging biography, written by Hadley's eldest son with restraint, with affection and, understandably, with careful objectivity." William Avirett

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p26 O 24 '48 550w

Reviewed by C. W. Mendell

Yale R n s 38:349 winter '49 950w

HAFKESBRINK, HANNA. Unknown Germany; an inner chronicle of the first World war, based on letters and diaries. 164p $2.50 Yale univ. press

940.343 European war, 1914-1918—Germany. National characteristics, German 48-6138

An account of the German reaction to World war I, drawn from the letters and diaries of the soldiers of the Kaiser's Reich. The author, who was born and educated in Germany, is head of the German department at Connecticut college. Index.

"A remarkable and scholarly monograph which throws new light on the German war experience of 1914-1918 by an objective analysis of the letters and diaries of German soldiers as well as of autobiographies and the writings of Mann, Zweig, Dehmel, Toller, Rilke, Binding, Buckmayer, George, Jünger, Remarque, and others." R. H. Lutz

+ Am Hist R 54:117 O '48 640w

"The real significance of this anthology, the one which does not meet the eye, lies in what it indirectly signifies for America. . . The pessimism, intellectual despair, frustration of good will, and apocalyptic forebodings, which radiated from Europe at the end of the nineteenth century, have reached this country. Spiritually we stand approximately where Europe stood fifty years ago. It is this parallelism which sounds a grave and timely warning since identical spiritual situations are conducive to identical political developments." Heinrich Hauser

Am J Soc 54:174 S '48 500w

Reviewed by James Stern

N Y Times p12 My 30 '48 800w

"An informative but not totally convincing study."

New Yorker 24:91 Mr 27 '48 160w

HAGEDORN, HERMANN. Prophet in the wilderness; the story of Albert Schweitzer. 221p $3 Macmillan

B or 92 Schweitzer, Albert 47-11858

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '48

Reviewed by C. H. Moehlman

Crozer Q 25:187 Ap '48 350w

"'Prophet in the Wilderness' suffers from a slight tendency to gush but it does give the facts. Interspersed in the narrative are occasional paragraphs of the doctor's own under the title, 'Albert Schweitzer speaking.' If anyone wonders what is this legend of Albert Schweitzer, here it is in a small book that can be read at a sitting. It is a legend worth knowing." E. M. T.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p21 Ap 11 '48 160w

Reviewed by Robert Pick

Sat R of Lit 30:11 D 13 '47 650w

HAGER, MRS ALICE (ROGERS). Janice, air line hostess; foreword by Gill Robb Wilson. 190p $2.50 Messner

48-2310

Janice Hartley had been a flight evacuation nurse during the war, and now, out of the service, she returns to her old job as a flight hostess with a commercial airlines company. This novel for girls tells of her experiences training new hostesses and on a round-the-world flight, and of her romance with Bill Lansdowne, the pilot.

+ Kirkus 16:54 F 1 '48 90w

"Recommended." R. O. Bostwick

+ Library J 73:659 Ap 15 '48 60w

HAIG-BROWN, RODERICK LANGMERE HAIG. Saltwater summer. 256p $2.50 Morrow

48-7698

Don Morgan, hero of Starbuck Valley Winter (Book Review Digest 1943), in this story for older boys, had purchased the 32-foot Mallard and was ready for a summer of fishing. To pay for a friend's hospitalization he mortgaged his boat and nearly lost it, due to his own temper and some bad companions. But his real friends and his own commonsense finally came to his rescue.

Booklist 45:73 O 15 '48

HAIG-BROWN, R. L. H.—Continued

"A real boys' book with the exhilarating smell of salt water." C. H. B.
+ Commonweal 49:151 N 19 '48 40w

"Roderick Haig-Brown writes skillfully and with authority, not only of fisherman's chances, but of a seventeen-year-old boy, carrying a personal worry, and learning to work with hard-bitten men and to know their characters. Don makes good and his story is well worth reading." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 24:376 S '48 120w

"A solid story—though lacking the spark and pace one might like."
+ Kirkus 16:281 Je 15 '48 70w

"Don is not at his best on the sea, but the action is swift and the sea salt enough to make it a fairly good yarn." Mary Strang
+ — Library J 73:1101 Ag '48 70w

"'Saltwater Summer' is full of lucid, water-clear writing about boats, the sea and its tricky tides, about fish and the men who go after them. There is good talk, too, in the snug cabins at night, talk ranging from the market for salmon to the problem of Jap fishermen on our shores." Margaret Ernst
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 S 5 '48 310w

"The action is fast, the description is detailed and interesting, and the character development adds to the worth of the story. The plot is both dramatic and plausible. Older boys will find it fascinating, and the emphasis on honesty, fair play and tolerance will appeal to their parents." R. A. Brown
+ N Y Times p17 Ag 22 '48 170w

Reviewed by R. M. Isaacs
San Francisco Chronicle p14 N 14 '48 70w

Sat R of Lit 31:33 N 13 '48 40w

Springf'd Republican p7C N 14 '48 90w

HAIG-BROWN, RODERICK LANGMERE HAIG. Western angler; an account of Pacific salmon and western trout in British Columbia; il. by T. Brayshaw. 2d ed 356p $5 Morrow

799.1755 Salmon fishing. Trout fishing Agr47-403

A revised and somewhat condensed edition of a work first published in a limited edition nearly a decade ago. References at end of some of the chapters. Index.

Chicago Sun p17A D 3 '47 90w

Kirkus 15:615 N 1 '47 130w

"Invaluable for Western sportsman. Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 73:42 Ja 1 '48 30w

"Perhaps the finest chapters of all are those in which Mr. Haig-Brown steps from the particular to the general, from the present to the future, to consider the ethics of fishing, its place in a workaday world, and the mutual obligations of the angler and the whole people. If sportsmen and everyone else would take these pages to heart, it would be a brighter world indeed." J. R. T. Bueno
+ N Y Times p18 F 8 '48 320w

Reviewed by Stanleigh Arnold
San Francisco Chronicle p18 D 14 '47 60w

HAINES, RAY EDWARD, ed. Home crafts handbook. 1008p il $6.95 Van Nostrand

745.3 Handicraft 48-8634

Encyclopedia for the home craftsman, copiously illustrated. Contents: Leathercraft, by R. L. Thompson; Woodworking crafts, by Raymond Van Tassels; Metal art crafts, by R. G. Miller; Hand made jewelry; by Louis Wiener; Graphic arts, by Désirée Kauffmann; Plastic arts crafts, by J. V. Adams; Basketry and related arts, by M. L. Lee. Index.

Booklist 45:132 D 15 '48

"Written in plain English illustrated by 700 actual photographs of procedures in the shops of New York University showing the actual methods used." L. A. Eales
+ Library J 73:1280 S 15 '48 80w

"The illustrations alone would stimulate enthusiasm for a new craft and for a crafter who has any questions this is an excellent reference book." H. S. Neal
+ Springf'd Republican p12C D 12 '48 120w

HAINES, WILLIAM WISTER. Command decision; a play. 180p $2.50 Random house

812 World war, 1939-1945—Drama 48-5387

Play, based on the author's novel of the same name (Book Review Digest 1947), describing the harrowing war-time responsibilities of an American air force division brigadier general.

Booklist 44:231 Mr 1 '48

"The visiting Congressmen seem rather too brutally caricatured, but the men in uniform sound like studies from life, rendered with understanding and sympathy. The play deserves its success on Broadway." W. P. Eaton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 F 29 '48 140w

Reviewed by James MacBride
N Y Times p30 Je 6 '48 140w

HALDANE, JOHN BURDON SANDERSON. What is life? 241p $3 Boni & Gaer

504 Science 47-12091

"This is a collection of fifty-four essays, each about 1,000 words in length, most of them reprinted from the London 'Daily Worker,' the New York 'Daily Worker' and 'The Canadian.' They are simple lessons in simple science, done by one of the great teachers of our time. All are biological, divided between physiology, heredity, education and social science. A better title for the book would be: What is Biology?" N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R

"In this charmingly written and disarmingly argued volume of 54 essays, only three of which are more than four pages in length, the distinguished British scientist does not answer the question 'What is life?' but he does say a great deal to make it easier for his readers to discover their own answers." K. M. Chworowsky
+ Christian Century 65:145 F 4 '48 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p3 Ja 1 '48

Reviewed by Benjamin Harrow
Nation 166:191 F 14 '48 130w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Ja 18 '48 250w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:25 Ja '48

"In presenting the complexities of modern science for the non-scientific reader, Haldane is probably without peer. The accounts presented here of such subjects as digestion, the nervous system, hormones, evolution and growth are written in a style and language that are at once engaging and understandable. Yet, despite the excellence of the scientific exposition, one who does not follow the party line must of necessity hesitate about recommending this book to the public at large." I. B. Cohen

N Y Times p6 D 28 '47 850w

School & Society 67:30 Ja 10 '48 10w

Reviewed by Ephraim Fischoff
Springf'd Republican p10B Mr 28 '48 470w

HALE, CHRISTOPHER, pseud. See Stevens, F. M. R.

HALE, GARTH, pseud. See Cunningham, A. B.

HALEY, J. EVETTS. Jeff Milton, a good man with a gun; with drawings by Harold D. Bugbee. 430p maps $5 Univ. of Okla. press

B or 92 Milton, Jeff Davis. Frontier and pioneer life—West 48-9186

Biography of an American pioneer. Jeff Milton was born in Florida in 1861, and died in Tucson, Arizona in 1947. He had been a Texas ranger, a train guard, sheriff, and immigration inspector, among other things, and he was always "a good man with a gun." Index.

Reviewed by Stanley Walker
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p30 N 28 '48 700w

"A biography of Jeff Milton is inevitably the history of the Southwest, and Mr. Haley combines the two with praiseworthy skill. All important statements are documented and cross-references are frequent. It is a book to stand with the best of Western biography." Hoffman Birney
+ N Y Times p6 D 26 '48 500w

HALEY, NELSON COLE. Whale hunt; the narrative of a voyage. 304p il $4.50 Washburn

639.2 Whaling. Charles W. Morgan (ship) 48-6870

Personal narrative of a four years' voyage on a whaling ship, the Charles W. Morgan of New Bedford, in the eighteen fifties.

Booklist 44:350 Je 15 '48

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 24:449 N '48 50w

Kirkus 16:188 Ap 1 '48 160w

"Recommended as an important contribution to whaling literature." H. A. Wooster
+ Library J 73:811 My 15 '48 100w

"Haley's descriptions of his shipmates at work and play are vivid. And he records many of the stories that are bound to be told on a long voyage. 'Whale Hunt' is illustrated by pen-and-ink drawings, the work of an unknown fo'c'sle artist of Haley's period, done to decorate the journal of a whaling cruise in the New Bedford bark Clara Bell. They add greatly to the narrative and could not be improved upon for their purpose." W. M. Whitehill
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Je 13 '48 850w

"The manuscript of this book is said to have lain dormant and unpublished for almost a century, and unless it is a literary hoax, which all the evidence says it is not, it is a counterpart of Herman Melville's saga of the hazardous days of American whaling. Not that it apes the metaphysical quest of Captain Ahab in 'Moby Dick.' This is the straightforward narrative of a cruise by a 17-year-old New Bedford youth on the famous and durable vessel Charles W. Morgan. It is a terse, matter-of-fact tale . . . as factual and clear as a documentary film, and as well organized as good reporting." W. G. Dooley
+ N Y Times p5 Je 6 '48 600w

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ag 22 '48 160w

HALL, ANNE (ANDREW HALL, pseud). Like father, like fun. 211p $2.50 Dodd 48-5626

High-school story about Freshman Peeps who tries to follow in his father's footsteps in athletic prowess.

Booklist 44:286 Ap 15 '48

"Girls will read it as often as boys for the family life, Peeps' friend Drue, and the humor. Reads as though originally written as short stories. Not literary, but welcome as a modern story for junior high level." Eleanor Kidder
Library J 73:562 Ap 1 '48 70w

"An unusual sports story, one that is a family story as well, and as such appeals not only to boys but in a secondary degree, to girls as well. . . The talk is like listening to contemporary speech in these circles, funny without being professionally so, and the give-and-take of family conversation is particularly well done." M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ap 18 '48 420w

"With sure knowledge and an engaging sense of humor, the author has written a lively yarn about high school sports—football, baseball, basketball, swimming, and even skiing. . . It's a grand story and is especially recommended for slightly bewildered parents whose teen-age youngsters get a 'large charge' out of things which are quite beyond their elders' comprehension." H. B. Lent
+ N Y Times p31 Mr 7 '48 140w

HALL, DAVID. Record book; a guide to the world of the phonograph. int ed 1394p $7.50 Durrell

789.9 Phonograph records 48-5666

"Differs from the earlier edition [Book Review Digest 1941] in arrangement and treatment. Records are arranged by composers in alphabetical sequence; the selection is now comprehensive, with selective criticism, but with apparently less comparison of recordings. Folk song has been omitted, but will be in the first supplement. Index of performers would have been a welcome feature." Booklist

Booklist 44:316 My 15 '48

"Certainly no one who is building a record library for the future should be without this book." P. H. Little
+ Chicago Sun p8X Je 13 '48 230w

+ Kirkus 16:211 Ap 15 '48 140w

Reviewed by H. D. Tilly
Music Lib Assn Notes 5:376 Je '48 500w

"Mr. Hall's evaluations, based on performances and quality of recordings, are conscientious and serious, though perhaps too pontifical at times. Although it is impossible to share all the author's enthusiasms, the reader feels that Mr. Hall's judgments are those of an honest and exceptionally well-informed critic. Being only human, Mr. Hall has overlooked certain sets that should have been included, although it is my guess he has not missed many." M. C. Hastings
N Y Times p33 S 12 '48 340w

" 'The Record Book' is a volume you should own if you have even the slightest interest in recorded music." E. J.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 9 '48 380w

"Large as the book is, with its listings of many records no longer available (we may always hope that such listings will create a demand for reissue) it still makes no claim to absolute exhaustiveness. It will not take the place of the 'Gramophone Shop Encyclopedia.' Those composers who interest the author least (Italian opera is not his favorite field) are sometimes scantily represented, and he has pretty well ignored the 'historical' record, kept alive because of the interpretative art it represents. But this is a modern collectors' book—written by such a collector and for such collectors everywhere. It is certain that not a few horizons will be broadened by the author's infectious enthusiasm." P. L. Miller
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:26 Ag 7 '48 550w

HALL, JAMES DOYLE. Industrial applications of infrared. 201p il $3.50 McGraw

535.6 Infra-red rays. Heating 47-12368

"Book presents essential nontechnical data on the place infrared radiation occupies in the field of heat transfer. Details of infrared lamp operating characteristics are given and a description of certain equipment, test procedures and data on installation design. Covers domestic and other uses of infrared radiation, its effect on the human body, infrared glass filters and gas-fired infrared generators." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 44:212 F 15 '48

HALL, JAMES D.—Continued

"The admitted purpose of the book is to provide a non-technical source of reference, which purpose the book accomplishes very well. Emphasis is placed upon the practical rather than the theoretical aspects of the use of infrared. . . The only feature in the book that might be considered lamentable is the poor arrangement of the 61 references in the bibliography. They are listed by title of articles and books, not alphabetically, when it would have been much better to have listed them by authors, alphabetically. Aside from this one criticism, I believe that the book marks a definite step forward into the frequently misunderstood and abused field of infrared radiation." J. A. Massaro

+ — Chem Eng 55:292 Je '48 320w

Library J 72:1274 S 15 '47 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 32:76 O '47

HALL, JOHN SCOVILLE, ed. Radar aids to navigation [prepared under supervision of Office of scientific research and development, National defense research committee]. 398p il maps $5 McGraw

621.38 Radar. Navigation 47-6581

"Volume 2 in the Massachusetts Institute of Technology Radiation Laboratory Series. Explains in a non-technical manner the advantages and disadvantages of various types of radar—airborne, shipborne and ground-base systems as aids encountered in navigation. Discusses also radio beacons and other auxiliary equipment. Diagrams. Maps." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 44:212 F 15 '48

Library J 73:44 Ja 1 '48 70w

"Although some parts of the book are somewhat technical, the treatment is intended for persons interested in the potentialities and limitations of available radar navigational equipment rather than for specialists in the radar research and design. A considerable portion of the book will be intelligible to the untrained lay reader."

N Y New Tech Bks 32:80 O '47

"In general, the treatment is critical and authoritative although sketchy, the intent being to round out the subject in later volumes. For workers in the field of radar, and for others interested, the book is a valuable source of information on a major advance in the art of navigation."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:108 Mr '48 240w

HALL, MARGARET ESTHER, ed. Selected writings of Benjamin Nathan Cardozo. See Cardozo, B. N.

HALL, WILLIAM NORMAN. Christmas pony; il. by Roger Duvoisin. [28p] $1.50 Knopf

48-8237

A Christmas eve story telling how Easter, the rabbit, and Thanksgiving, the turkey, followed Santa Claus when he delivered their friend Christmas, the pony, to a little boy's house.

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun D 11 '48 50w

Kirkus 16:435 S 1 '48 130w

"Recommended." Elizabeth Hodges

+ Library J 74:69 Ja 1 '49 100w

"Duvoisin's gay illustrations are in a different mood but cannot give the text life. Not recommended." E. W. Turpin

— Library J 74:69 Ja 1 '49 100w

"A tale to delight any 4-to-7-year-old who enjoys a story in which Santa Claus and amazing animals take part." Marjorie Burger

+ N Y Times p24 D 12 '48 90w

Wis Lib Bul 44:186 N '48

HALL-QUEST, MRS OLGA (WILBOURNE). Shrine of liberty, the Alamo; il. by Kurt Werth. 120p $2.25 Dutton

976.4 Alamo—Juvenile literature 48-8138

The story of the Alamo as Spanish mission, deserted church, beseiged fortress and Texas museum. Bibliography.

Booklist 45:73 O 15 '48

"Companion volume to How the Pilgrims Came to Plymouth [Book Review Digest 1946] but not as happy a choice of subject matter, for on any count the Alamo story is a grim and bloody one, with implications beyond the grasp of third to fifth graders."

Kirkus 16:400 Ag 15 '48 120w

"Recommended." S. J. Johnson

+ Library J 73:1601 N 1 '48 70w

"The book opens slowly. The first chapters are marred by a sometimes superficial coverage and by a tendency to write down. While there is a lack of the detailed description that appeals to youngsters, the approach is not adult enough for adolescents. The last section, dealing with the days in which Travis, Bowie, Crockett and fewer than 200 Americans held off more than 5,000 Mexicans until their ammunition was nearly exhausted and the men were completely so, is far superior. It is one of the more thrilling chapters in American history and young people will enjoy it." R. A. Brown

+ — N Y Times p53 O 17 '48 180w

Sat R of Lit 31:36 N 13 '48 110w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p8B Ag 22 '48 330w

Wis Lib Bul 44:167 O '48

HALLERAN, EUGENE E. Outlaw guns. 239p $2 Macrae Smith co.

47-11463

Western story.

Booklist 44:300 My 1 '48

Kirkus 15:410 Ag 1 '47 70w

Wis Lib Bul 43:176 D '47

HALLIDAY, JAMES LORIMER. Psychosocial medicine; a study of the sick society. 278p $3.50 Norton

616.8 Medicine, Psychosomatic. Social psychology Med 48-61

"Symptoms and cure of the illness of communities and social groups studied by use of the techniques of psychosomatic medicine." Christian Century

Reviewed by M. B. Loeb

Am J Soc 54:251 N '48 450w

"This is an excellent book." J. W. Woodward

+ Ann Am Acad 259:167 S '48 650w

Christian Century 65:298 Mr 24 '48 20w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '48

Kirkus 16:133 Mr 1 '48 150w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 Jl 18 '48 250w

HALSTEAD, WARD CAMPBELL. Brain and intelligence; a quantitative study of the frontal lobes. 206p il $6 Univ. of Chicago press

612.825261 Brain. Intellect Med47-2506

A monograph on mental function, based on the author's twelve years of research and examination of 250 subjects, under the auspices of the Otho S. A. Sprague memorial institute and the Division of psychiatry, department of medicine of the University of Chicago. The author believes in the existence of biological intelligence. "Thus it is that the first section of this monograph is devoted to the structure of biological intelligence, while the second section is concerned with evidence for localization of its functions in the brain." (p.7) References and bibliography. No index.

School & Society 67:286 Ap 10 '48 20w

"This is a most important contribution to an extremely difficult field of knowledge."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:93 Mr '48 220w

HALSTED, HOMER B. How to live in the woods; il. by Don Greame Kelley. 249p $2.75 Little

796.54 Camping. Outdoor life 48-6224

"Advice on planning, outfitting, and managing the camping expedition." (Subtitle) Covers such items as: necessary clothing; areas available for outdoor living, the specific requirements of equipment; preparation for canoe, auto, hiking, dog sled, or pack-train parties; what to do when lost; first aid; and camp cookery with menus and recipes. Index.

Booklist 44:265 Ap 1 '48

"Of value to serious campers. . . Sound, practical, how to do it book."
+ Kirkus 16:16 Ja 1 '48 80w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 73:711 My 1 '48 30w
Wis Lib Bul 44:183 N '48

HAMER, ALVIN C., ed. Detroit murders; by Patricia Brontë [and others]. (Regional murder ser) 218p $3 Duell

364 Murder 48-6269

Contents: Wilful murder on the border: the Kickapoo Indian killing, 1815, by A. C. Hamer; The dog in the night: the Latimer case, 1889, by A. M. Wells; Murder domestic: The Loomis case, 1927, by C. G. Givens; Six killings and a cult: the Evangelista case, 1929, by Royce Howes; Bloody July; the Buckley case, 1930, by C. T. Haun; Murder of a big-shot: the Dickinson case, 1935, by P. S. McDougall; Night terror: the case of the Black Legion, 1936, by C. T. Haun; A man and his double: the Beaver case, 1945, by Elizabeth Coulson; Strange woman: the Lydia Thompson case, 1945, by Patricia Brontë.

Kirkus 16:183 Ap 1 '48 120w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 My 2 '48 250w

"The interesting material on which the stories are based is, unfortunately, more often than not obscured by mediocre writing."
— + New Yorker 24:111 Ap 24 '48 80w

"Take it all in all, 'Detroit Murders' stands up with the others in the series. For my own taste, however—and I recognize that it may not be that of all readers by any means—I'd rather have seen, say, one less murder covered here and the others written at greater length with a bit more in the way of discussion of the character of murderer and victim. In general, these stories are straight reporting, some of it very good, too." J. H. Jackson
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 5 '48 800w

HAMILTON, BRUCE. Hanging judge. 250p $2.50 Harper

48-5487

Tells the story of the arrest and trial of a British judge, noted for the severity of his decisions. He is convicted of murder, and hanged.

Booklist 44:300 My 1 '48

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p63 F 13 '48 90w

"Tight, careful reading, and a fair condemnation of justice as it is practised."
+ Kirkus 15:661 D 1 '47 100w

"I enjoyed [the book] enormously, and friends who know the field better than I do confirm my feeling that it is an unusually satisfying job." Diana Trilling
+ Nation 166:447 Ap 24 '48 130w

"Superior psychological thriller of murder and revenge." E. H.
+ New Repub 118:32 F 9 '48 90w

"More than your money's worth of sound mystery entertainment, though you may have a gripe or two about some of the details." Will Cuppy
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 F 22 '48 320w

"The plot ingredients are simple . . . but the story's impact is expertly maintained." W. J. Glick
+ N Y Times p30 F 29 '48 200w

"In less skillful hands might have seemed entirely too pat. Mr. Hamilton knows his job, though. Most satisfactory."
+ New Yorker 23:86 F 14 '48 90w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p15 F 22 '48 100w

"Very good."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:35 F 28 '48 40w
Wis Lib Bul 44:83 Ap '48

HAMILTON, DONALD. Steel mirror. 252p $2.50 Rinehart

48-9185

Mystery story.

Booklist 45:194 F 1 '49

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun N 12 '48 70w

"Psycho-thriller, well-paced and produced."
+ Kirkus 16:457 S 1 '48 130w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p28 N 21 '48 170w

"Though the story is not in the highest, or Eric Ambler, class of 'naturalistic' thriller, it is much more convincing than most of these tales of beauty on the run; and Emmett is an agreeably ordinary, though not an unheroic, hero. The ending of the story is positively cynical—and that is a change, too." Philip Hewitt-Myring
+ N Y Times p22 D 12 '48 160w
New Yorker 24:152 N 13 '48 100w

"Commendable."
Sat R of Lit 31:30 D 18 '48 70w

HAMILTON, DONALD ROSS, and others. Klystrons and microwave triodes; editorial staff, George B. Collins [and others; prepared under the supervision of] Office of scientific research and development, Nat. defense research committee. (Mass. inst. of technology. Radiation laboratory ser) 533p il $7.50 McGraw

621.384132 Vacuum tubes. Radio—Short wave 48-1936

"This volume is primarily concerned with low-power microwave triodes and klystrons and their performance as local oscillators, signal generators, and low power transmitters. A theoretical treatment is given covering the use of triodes and klystrons as mixers, amplifiers, oscillators, and frequency multipliers." Library J

Library J 73:655 Ap 15 '48 70w
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:230 Je '48 340w

HAMILTON, EARL JEFFERSON. War and prices in Spain, 1651-1800. 295p $5 Harvard univ. press

338.52 Prices. Spain—Economic conditions 47-11235

"This book completes a series of three by Professor Hamilton dealing with price movements in Spain between the years 1351 and

HAMILTON, EARL J.—Continued
1800. Money, Prices, and Wages in Valencia, Aragon, and Navarre, 1351-1500 was the second published, in 1936. The first published was American Treasure and the Price Revolution in Spain, 1501-1650, in 1929. Of the present volume Professor Hamilton says: 'The chief purpose of this study has been to determine the effects upon commodity prices of the long, frequent, and disastrous wars in which Spain engaged.' " U S Quarterly Bkl

"The rich mines of Spanish price history have been worked with consummate skill. The tabular materials presented will serve as tools for a great variety of research by historians and economists. The author in this as in the earlier volumes has eased the tasks of others by his careful descriptions of sources and methods used, his explanations of terms, and his descriptions of the historical background." Witt Bowden
+ Am Hist R 53:586 Ap '48 310w

"The book is both a valuable compilation of data on prices and wages, which the author has collected from original sources over a number of years, and an interesting commentary upon the relation of prices to Spain's economic development."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:45 Mr '48 280w

HAMILTON, EDITH. Witness to the truth; Christ and his interpreters. 230p $3 Norton
232.9 Jesus Christ 48-6178

A study of the life and teachings of Jesus, and their interpretation by the evangelists, St Paul, and the early church.

Booklist 44:306 My 15 '48

Reviewed by Adelaide Hawley
Churchman 162:16 S 1 '48 120w

"Orthodox Christians, whether Protestant or Catholic, will not follow Miss Hamilton in many of her arguments. But it is not for such that she writes. Rather her appeal is to the wistful, seeking souls for whom Christ has become an ecclesiastical personage or a theological dogma."
Kirkus 16:83 F 1 '48 100w

"It is a brief, intense, quietly brilliant book; it gleams with the substance of learning; it is luminous with understanding and perception." Thomas Sugrue
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 My 16 '48 1000w

"Edith Hamilton, in three earlier books ('The Greek Way,' 'The Roman Way,' and 'The Prophets of Israel'), has made a distinguished contribution to our understanding of three sources of modern society. In this latest work she turns to a study of 'the living Jesus,' and in it she has produced a reverent, albeit in my opinion a confused, picture of the central figure in Christian thought and life." G. R. Stephenson
+ — N Y Times p23 My 2 '48 500w

San Francisco Chronicle p15 Je 20 '48 400w

"I, as a mere believer in Christ and no theologian, have neither the equipment nor the inclination to criticize 'Witness to the Truth.' I am content to stammer my gratitude for the illumination it has brought me, the pleasure it has given me, and the qualities it possesses which are very much its author's and hers alone." J. M. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 31:28 Mr 27 '48 2000w

Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich
Springf'd Republican p10B My 23 '48 330w

Wis Lib Bul 44:145 S '48

Reviewed by A. N. Wilder
Yale R n s 38:173 autumn '48 850w

HAMILTON, ELIZABETH. Go West, young bear; il. by Kurt Wiese. 94p $2.50 Coward-McCann
Bears—Legends and stories 48-2249

"Charles is a young and friendly black bear who lives with his mother and father and his Uncle Horace in a roomy cave in eastern Canada. His mother, Ursula, and his father, Sad William, are engaged in the business of making and selling Black's Salve. . . The story concerns the adventures of Charles and Uncle Horace on their trip to Yellowstone Park, where Charles, who loves people, hopes to see more of them and lead a social life." N Y Times

Booklist 44:358 Je 15 '48

"A refreshingly fanciful story for the 8 to 12 year olds." Martha King
+ Chicago Sun Je 5 '48 190w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p9 S 14 '48 120w

"This jolly nonsense story about a young bear named Charles and his Uncle Horace is good for many a laugh, whether read aloud or to one's self." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 24:277 Jl '48 80w

Kirkus 16:47 F 1 '48 120w

"Paper, binding, type are excellent and drawings full of fun. Text is disappointing; it has been worked out carefully, almost to the last word, in a too obviously adult attempt to be clever and amusing." Anne Izard
— + Library J 73:824 My 15 '48 90w

"It would be hard for anybody to keep his face straight through a page of the book, and nobody with sense would try to do so—certainly not the younger children for whom it is written." M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 My 9 '48 320w

"The author labors over-hard to make the point of her humor, and her use of words becomes at times almost intolerably playful. If read aloud to a 6-to-9-year-old group, however, the book should be able to hold its own." V. H. Mathews
N Y Times p11 My 30 '48 130w

New Yorker 24:129 D 11 '48 80w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 31:28 Jl 10 '48 100w

HAMILTON, GORDON. Psychotherapy in child guidance. 340p $4 Columbia univ. press
618.92 Psychotherapy. Child study Med47-2486

"This present book is the result of a study Miss Hamilton made of the social worker's role in psychotherapy at the New York Jewish Board of Guardians. That organization has gone through several interesting stages of evolution to its present status as a social agency utilizing a 'comprehensive clinical approach to all problems of child behavior'. . . After preliminary discussion of clinically oriental social case work and the diagnostic process in child guidance, there are three chapters in the book on children who present particular symptoms. Case illustrations are included. Then comes a chapter on direct treatment and one on the therapeutically conditioned environment; three on treatment of children at certain age levels; one on treatment of the family. A final, very important chapter is on training." N Y Times

Reviewed by M. W. MacDonald
Am J Pub Health 38:1703 D '48 320w

"For clarity and thoughtful exposition in this most difficult and controversial field (who may do psychotherapy, under what conditions, and for whom, in terms of social work clients) this is the best book so far published." L. G. Lowrey
+ N Y Times p11 Jl 4 '48 650w

"This book by a professor of case-work at the New York school of Social Work is an enunciation of both the philosophy and practices of the Jewish Board of Guardians. It may well become a 'must' reading for every social worker and, indeed, for psychotherapists as well, insofar as they are interested in pursuing their work beyond the four walls of office or institution." A. W. M. Wolf
+ Survey 84:218 Je '48 450w

"This well-organized study is a valuable contribution to the field of child study."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:194 Je '48 280w

HAMILTON, HENRY. England: a history of the homeland [Lancelot Hogben, editor] [Eng title: History of the homeland]. 597p il maps $6 Norton

942 Great Britain—History 48-5131

An informal social and economic history of the British people, written from the Fabian viewpoint. The author is Jaffrey professor in political economy at the University of Aberdeen. Bibliography. Index.

"The maps and pictures are excellent, though thrown together in somewhat chaotic form, but I can say nothing for the scholarship of the book except to regret that one so well known should take such liberties with his reputation. In no sense is there a British background for this book. It is a jumble of matter thrown together with little regard for sequence and no regard for balance. No doubt in isolation most of the facts are true or near-true, but they tell no story. They are merely endless tips and tags joined together by a rather foolish affection for the pseudo-history of certain natural scientists." C. R. Fay

— Am Econ R 38:648 S '48 850w

"Only the past one hundred and fifty years of history is set forth in any detail. References to Stuart and Tudor times are frequent and helpful but those to medieval times are so brief as to be worthless unless the student brings with him a trustworthy knowledge of the Middle Ages. . . As a social history of the past century and a half the book should serve a useful purpose in American university classrooms, especially if used with another work built upon more conventional lines. Students will find an abundance of detail on the topics considered, but teachers will find that the facts are familiar. There are more than one hundred illustrations, some of them not very familiar, which light up the subjects under discussion better than many pages of print. Unfortunately, owing to technical handicaps no doubt, the reproductions are poor." W. O. Ault

Am Hist R 53:805 Jl '48 490w

"Though the book was written amid the handicaps of wartime, it is attractively gotten up and has some very interesting illustrations and ingenious charts. The maps, however, are scarcely adequate." Preston Slosson

+ — Ann Am Acad 256:219 Mr '48 200w

"The vast fund of information that Dr. Hamilton has compressed into this volume constitutes an experiment of genuine importance in meeting contemporary problems. The chief drawback of his method seems to be that it tends to become unmanageable as the number of subhistories needed for completing a nation's balance sheet multiplies indefinitely. Unless historians of this method limit themselves to a special field, their chronicles are liable to become, as Dr. Hamilton's virtually has become, histories in content, but encyclopedias in form." Henry Sowerby

+ — Christian Science Monitor p18 F 21 '48 700w

"Professor Henry Hamilton is to be congratulated on an ingenious compilation. . . He traverses the social, economic, and institutional history of the British Isles . . . with skill and deep knowledge and without concealing his own prejudices. If sometimes he begins a chapter with a bang and ends it with a whimper, that is an experience shared by most authors who write a set piece. Lavishly illustrated and mapped and with an adequate [bibliography], the book, as they say, covers the ground, and the impression that emerges from it is, on the whole, a record of human progress." M. P. A.

Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 6 '48 300w

"This volume is excellent social, not political, economy and good prose positivism without much poetic insight or imagination." J. B. Brebner

+ — Nation 166:280 Mr 6 '48 850w

"It is not an economic and social history of England alone, for Professor Hamilton, a good Scot himself, makes much more of Scotland than the afterthought that country usually provides for our textbooks; he makes much of the empire, and even something of the United States. Mr. Lancelot Hogben's name as editor does, however, like a well known trademark, indicate pretty well what's inside the covers. This volume is British history for the citizen of the Fabian Socialist society that is just around the corner for Mr. Hogben and his fellow workers. . . If you like the work of the Webbs, the Hammonds, the mature H. G. Wells, Graham Wallas, Harold Laski, you will probably like this book, and gain comfort as well as information from it." Crane Brinton

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 F 1 '48 1650w

"Across the water this long and important book appeared under the title 'History of the Homeland.' Obviously, that had to be changed for its American debut; but why, I wonder, did the publishers decide on 'England' rather than 'Britain'? . . There is even a chapter on American development from 1776 to 1929, which, incidentally, is the weakest section of the book and might well have been dropped from the American edition. No doubt it is useful for comparative purposes to British readers, but it seems to reflect merely a cursory study of a few standard authorities. . . These, however, are minor flaws in a work which, taken as a whole, constitutes an impressive and original achievement. Some readers will, no doubt, object that Professor Hamilton has ignored many of those events which are usually regarded as the true stuff of history. The omission is quite deliberate. References in this book to politics, wars and diplomacy are incidental to social and economic changes." Keith Hutchison

+ — N Y Times p4 F 1 '48 1000w

New Yorker 23:86 F 7 '48 80w

Reviewed by Howard Robinson

Pol Sci Q 63:477 S '48 600w

San Francisco Chronicle p15 My 16 '48 200w

Social Studies 39:144 Mr '48 20w

"A useful book to possess. The borrower, continually frustrated, will find he has returned it too soon, however long he kept it, for it has some of the uses of a book of reference. It also has the zest of narrative and the colourful qualities of social history; further, and most important, it is satisfactorily and securely anchored to contemporary records."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p62 Ja 31 '48 700w

HAMLIN, MRS HELEN (LEIDY). Pine, potatoes and people; the story of Aroostook. 238p $3 Norton

917.41 Aroostook county, Maine. Country life 48-6862

An informal, anecdotal history of Aroostook county, Maine, by the author of Nine Mile Bridge (Book Review Digest 1945).

Booklist 44:350 Je 15 '48

"This is a regional book of a high order and while it does not have quite the personal appeal or human interest touch of Nine Mile Bridge (which sold well), this might easily be the best picture of the great section of Maine we have."

+ Kirkus 16:164 Mr 15 '48 130w

"The stories of individual French-Canadians and New Englanders who settled this remote section are colorful background for a history lesson. In spite of being occasionally repetitive and not particularly well written, the book is readable throughout and downright fascinating in parts. Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ — Library J 73:811 My 15 '48 130w

"Some of the finest parts of the book deal with the French people in Maine. This is authentic, for Miss Hamlin herself is half French and writes from an intimate knowledge. I hope many a Yankee of non-French descent will read this portion of the book, and if they do, they are likely to read it all, and they will come away with a better understanding of both the French and of Maine's superb and unique region. This is a modest but a charming book." Stewart Holbrook

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Je 6 '48 450w

"As an effort to delineate and explain Aroostook County, Maine's inland empire,

HAMLIN, H. L.—Continued
'Pine, Potatoes and People' leaves several desires unfulfilled, but it is an enjoyable bit of Helen Hamlin's lively, folksy, conversational Maine commentary, and it merits companionship with many another book about the State of Maine." John Gould
+ N Y Times p5 Je 6 '48 460w

"Uninfested by tourists and vacationers, Aroostook county has kept a fresh, primitive quality. Bestowing her own gay mood upon it, Miss Hamlin gives a delightful companion piece to 'Nine Mile Bridge.' " J. V.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 Je 20 '48 320w

"The book is written in [an] easy-going and entertaining style, and while it is certainly history in a light vein Mrs. Hamlin provides a rich fund of information on a comparatively little known but fascinating corner of New England." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p10B My 30 '48 210w

HAMMERSCHMIDT, WILLIAM W. Whitehead's philosophy of time. 108p pa $2 King's crown press

115.4 Space and time. Whitehead, Alfred North 47-12040

"This monograph singles out from the writings of Whitehead his numerous reflections on space-time, orders them temporally and topically, and presents them in a context of critical understanding. It is, then, much more than a collection of quotations. The author, in the many cases of obscurity, develops the alternative possibilities of interpretation and attempts to identify that interpretation most plausibly assignable to the Whitehead of the period." (Ethics) Glossary. Bibliography.

Reviewed by E. M. Austin
Crozer Q 25:282 Jl '48 300w

"The work is very closely controlled by the texts: it deals with what Hammerschmidt believes Whitehead actually to have meant rather than what he believes Whitehead would have meant if Whitehead had been as smart as Hammerschmidt. I take it that this is a merit." Arthur Child
Ethics 58:317 Jl '48 120w

"A reader familiar with Whitehead will find here a valuable account of atomic events, of the difficult theory of extensive abstraction, and of the functions of presentational immediacy and of causal efficacy both in the order of durations and in the theory of space-time as real. The study is however, too minutely analytical and too condensed to be useful to the beginner, while the advanced student will miss characteristic concepts of Whitehead's mature periods."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 4:28 Mr '48 240w

HAMMERTON, SIR JOHN ALEXANDER, ed. New Illustrated world history; a record of world events from the earliest historical times to the present day; il. with nearly 1000 historical documents and scores of specially drawn maps. 1364p $5 Wise

909 History, Universal 47-6300

"This work is a revised edition of the Illustrated World History published first in 1935 under the joint editorship of Sir J. A. Hammerton and Harry Elmer Barnes. . . The book was originally based on the ten-volume Universal World History also edited by the distinguished British historian, Sir J. A. Hammerton. A review of an English version of the latter was given in Subscription Books Bulletin of April 1934. . . A careful comparison with the 1935 edition shows no apparent change in text or illustrations in the first thirty-two chapters, (p. 1-990). Chapter 33, the first in the Tenth Era, has received a new title, 'World War I: 1914-1918' but is otherwise unchanged. Chapters 34 through 42, (p. 1047-1346) are new material. . . The drastic condensation of material necessary to cover the whole of world history in one volume has resulted in a well-written, but poorly organized political narrative history of the world and, as the preface admits, with little mention made of the economic, social and cultural factors involved." Subscription Bks Bul

"The book is profusely illustrated with reproductions of photographs, paintings, portraits, cartoons, and drawings. The selection on the whole is very good. However, worn plates and poor reproduction make a large percentage nearly indistinguishable. . . The New Illustrated World History is on the whole an ably written narrative political history which might have some place in the home library of the general reader wishing a brief readable survey of history, one-sided though some of it is. However, he should be fully aware that the publisher's statements in the preface and more particularly on the jacket are the voice of the huckster. Poor organization, lack of adequate index, cross references and bibliographies, will prevent its usefulness as a reference book. It is not recommended."
— Subscription Bks Bul 19:4 Ja '48 1300w

HAMMOND-INNES, RALPH (HAMMOND INNES, pseud). Gale warning. 272p $2.50 Harper

48-6095

A tale of piracy and adventure on the high seas during the late war.

Booklist 44:282 Ap 15 '48
Kirkus 16:30 Ja 15 '48 190w

"Given a lively imagination, a well contrived plot and a seaworthy style, a yarn spinner has us lashed to the mast on anything that floats. . . Hammond Innes has the specified qualifications in abundance, and 'Gale Warning' leaves us buffeted, breathless and delighted."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ap 4 '48 180w

Reviewed by W. J. Glick
N Y Times p15 Mr 21 '48 140w
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ap 25 '48 100w

"Viewed either by land or by sea 'Gale Warning' is a first-class suspense-adventure yarn. Vardy's escape from Dartmoor and his adventures in England and Scotland before he embarks for Maddons Rock, are, so far as terra firma is concerned, a novel in themselves; while the seascapes of the voyage to the rock, and the happenings there, are brilliantly handled." William Weber
+ Sat R of Lit 31:14 Ap 10 '48 400w
Wis Lib Bul 44:133 Je '48

HAMMOND'S new world atlas; containing new and complete historical, economic, political and physical maps of the entire world in full colors, with complete indexes and the races of mankind, il. gazetteer of the world, il. gazetteer of the U.S. and territories. rev ed 344p $16.95 Garden City pub. co.

912 Atlases Map48-519

"This is a revised edition of Hammond's New World Atlas, reviewed in Subscription Books Bulletin, January 1938. . . An air age map of the world with a Mercator's map opposite it introduces the section of maps of the continents and foreign countries. A political map of each continent and individual maps of the important countries of the continent are included. The boundary lines are those set forth by treaties and armistices signed after World War II. Most of the maps are not dated. Some outstanding features of this section: 'a dated events map of World War II in Asia and the Pacific showing the rising tide of Japanese aggression and its recession' on p. 94; the language map of Europe, 1939 (p. 25); and the tables of airline distances between principal cities of the world (p. 26). . . There is a 20-page 'Illustrated Gazetteer of the U.S. and Territories,' the text of which 'gives location, land and water areas, rank among the states in regard to size, and an outline of history.' . . Also included is a 16-page 'Illustrated Gazetteer of the World' with colored illustrations. . . The texts of the gazetteers are brief and entirely unsatisfactory. Added features of this edition are A Description of Boundary Changes Resulting from World War II, based on the treaties of peace and surrender terms; a discussion of map projections by Erwin Raisz; and a section on 'The Races Of Mankind' by Dr. Henry Field and Dr. W. D. Hambly, Chicago Natural History Museum, and illustrated by the sculpture of Malvina Hoffman. These illustrations are those which surrounded the Map of Mankind, reviewed in Subscription Books Bulletin, October 1945." Subscription Bks Bul

Reviewed by Edith James
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ja 11 '48 290w

"If you have been looking for a serviceable, comprehensive atlas, you need now look no further." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 31:23 Ja 10 '48 90w

"The maps vary a good deal in quality, from the clearness of Oklahoma and Tennessee to the faded appearance of Illinois and Washington. Texas serves as an admirable example of this variation with the indistinct eastern part facing the clear western part. Certain details also differ, for example, on most state maps railroads are listed with key number which is used on the map while in others, as Alabama and Georgia, no list is given and the railroads are named on the map. Color work is restrained except in a few instances, notably the map of the United States. . . Many of the maps are the same as those found in the 1936 edition, but in the case of countries affected by the war, new maps have been made. . . The omissions of a general index of cities and towns of the world is a serious drawback to the most effective use of the atlas." . . Paper is good; the binding, poor. The inexpensiveness of Hammond's New World Atlas will make it of value to many libraries needing an additional atlas but its deficiencies are such that it is not recommended as an essential purchase."
— + Subscription Bks Bul 19:28 Ap '48 1300w

HAMPTON, TAYLOR. Nickel plate road; the history of a great railroad. 366p il $3.75 World pub.

385 New York, Chicago and St Louis Railroad company 48-5229

Traces the history of the New York, Chicago and St Louis railroad from its rapid building by the Seney Syndicate, six hundred miles in six hundred days, in the early 1880's to June, 1947. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by H. S. Hayward
Christian Science Monitor p16 Mr 13 '48 1400w

Reviewed by Horace Reynolds
N Y Times p18 F 22 '48 420w

"Taylor Hampton's book gives details of its organization and capitalization throughout the years but little analysis of the forces behind the recorded events." R. T.
San Francisco Chronicle p23 Mr 21 '48 280w

HANAUER, MILTON L. Chess for you and me. 150p $2 McKay

794.1 Chess 48-6277

"Adequate, simplified instructions for the chess beginner. The designation of moves is not one commonly used since the files are lettered alphabetically and the ranks numbered, but it may be easier for beginners." Booklist

Booklist 44:296 My 1 '48

"Milton Hanauer is a teacher in the New York public schools, and, like a good teacher, he does not talk beyond the range of the pupil's knowledge." Dana Brannon
+ N Y Times p19 Ag 15 '48 90w

HANCOCK, RALPH. Magic land: Mexico. (Invitation to travel ser) 307p $4 Coward-McCann

917.2 Mexico—Description and travel 48-8127

"This volume gives little attention to historical background, but furnishes details on subjects always perplexing to the expectant traveller—tourist cards, entrance requirements, U. S. custom regulations, etc. Among features of this volume are lists of hotels with their daily rates, of hunting and fishing clubs, of traffic regulations. There is a separate section on Yucatan." (Library J) Index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p21 D '48

"Serviceable volume." Joseph Borome
+ Library J 73:1022 Jl '48 130w

Reviewed by B. D. Wolfe
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 O 31 '48 250w

"This is about as complete a guidebook on Mexico as could be put into one volume—Mexico City alone deserves a book by itself. There is information on everything from tourist cards to entrance requirements for commercial travelers."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:39 O 30 '48 180w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p10B S 5 '48 550w

HANDBOOK of basic economic statistics; a manual of basic economic data on industry, commerce, labor, and agriculture in the United States. 242p pa $5.75 Government statistics bureau, Washington, D.C.

330.973 U.S.—Economic conditions—Statistics

"The Handbook of Basic Economic Statistics, now in its second year of publication, is designed to bring together in convenient form a collection of the most significant statistics relating to the national economy. These are compiled by various agencies of the federal government and issued in a wide variety of publications, not all easily accessible. . . [It] contains eight sections: National Product and National Income; Employment and Earnings of Labor; Production, Labor Productivity, and Labor Cost; Profits and Working Capital; Prices; General Business Indicators; Social Security Operations; and Federal Financial Operations. Under each topic statistics are broken down into appropriate sub-topics to cover various phases of the subject. For example, Part III, Production, Labor Productivity, and Labor Cost, includes industrial production in durable and non-durable manufactures by industry with totals and productivity and costs in certain specified industries. A large proportion of the figures take the form of index numbers. Figures are almost always for the continental United States, and are given annually as far back as 1910 or 1913 when available, though many series do not begin until 1939. Monthly as well as annual statistics are generally given beginning with 1944 or 1945." Subscription Bks Bul

"Considering the wide variety of sources from which the figures are taken, a considerable degree of uniformity in coverage and presentation has been achieved. . . Although many of the statistics in the Handbook may be found in government publications which would already be available in many libraries, the Handbook performs a valuable service in collecting material from a variety of sources, some of them difficult to obtain and keep up-to-date, and also in bringing together on the same pages a long continuity of figures from past years and recent months. The Handbook of Basic Economic Statistics, 1948, is recommended for large public, university, and special libraries where such information is in demand."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 19:60 O '48 700w

HANDLEY, ALAN. Kiss your elbow. 210p $2 McKay 48-8269

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun S 17 '48 110w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p32 S 12 '48 180w

"The dialogue is monotonously representative of its New York theatrical locale, and there aren't really enough worthwhile suspects to make the chase exciting."
New Yorker 24:112 S 11 '48 120w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p24 O 31 '48 100w

Sat R of Lit 31:56 O 9 '48 50w

HANNA, ALFRED JACKSON, and HANNA, MRS KATHRYN (ABBEY). Lake Okeechobee, wellspring of the Everglades. (American lakes ser) 379p il maps $4 Bobbs

975.93 Okeechobee, Lake 48-5872

A history of Florida's Lake Okeechobee, the second largest fresh-water lake entirely within the United States. The authors begin with Indian pre-history and early Spanish history of the nearby territory, and bring it up to the present. Bibliographical notes. Index.

Booklist 44:246 Mr 15 '48

"The book was written by two of Florida's most eminent educators and historians, Alfred Jackson Hanna and Kathryn Abbey Hanna, who have here produced the finest research and compilation job in their individual or their combined careers. In twenty-nine short meaty chapters they have packed in so many facts and figures and names . . . that if any have been omitted it could be only because they are utterly unimportant. The book becomes the basic work of historical and contemporary reference for the entire area of inner Florida." M. S. Douglas
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Mr 7 '48 850w

"Dr. and Mrs. Hanna deserve the thanks of the Floridians who know and love this strange and incredibly rich section. The general public will find in this account a store of important information, told in a manner that makes excellent reading." F. G. Slaughter
+ N Y Times p19 Mr 7 '48 750w

San Francisco Chronicle p16 My 16 '48 350w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:177 Je '48 340w

Wis Lib Bul 44:164 O '48

HANNAU, HANS W. Florida; a photographic journey. 117p il $3.50 Hastings house

917.59 Florida—Views 48-5705

A collection of photographs of Florida, showing many places off the beaten paths. Contains a brief introductory chapter, by the compiler, who was born in Vienna.

"An unusually attractive collection of 138 excellent photographs of Florida."
+ Cleveland Open Shelf p21 D '48

Kirkus 16:106 F 15 '48 70w

"Mr. Hannau's affection for his adopted State is evident in his choice of pictures, and his book should appeal to Floridians in exile and to many a tourist for many a year to come." E. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 My 16 '48 100w

HANSEN, HOWARD JAMES, ed. Timber engineers' handbook. 882p $10 Wiley

620.12 Building. Building—Tables, calculations, etc. Strains and stresses 48-5414

Contains the latest information on the properties of wood, grading specifications, working stresses, preservatives, fastenings, and design formulas. Can be used by students, engineers, and those using wood for construction or fabrication purposes. Index.

Booklist 44:277 Ap 15 '48

Eng N 142:80 Ja 6 '49 80w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:45 Ja 1 '48 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:4 Ja '48

HANSFORD-JOHNSON, PAMELA. See Johnson, P. H.

HARBISON, FREDERICK HARRIS, and DUBLIN, ROBERT. Patterns of union-management relations, United automobile workers (CIO), General motors, Studebaker. 229p $3.75 Science research

331.152 Industrial relations 47-12386

"This study contrasts the relations of two automotive industry organizations with the union, the one representing the big corporations where power struggle is a keynote, and the other representing smaller industries that deal primarily with the union local and where labor-management relations have been good. For students of industrial relations rather than general readers." (Booklist) Index.

Reviewed by Vera Miller
Am J Soc 54:378 Ja '49 1800w

Reviewed by W. E. Moore
Am Soc R 13:348 Je '48 250w

Booklist 44:178 Ja 15 '48

Columbia Law R 48:489 Ap '48 100w

"Unique and interesting book." R. S. Newhouse
Management R 37:50 Ja '48 550w

"The book is well written and a valuable start on the company-by-company accounts which are necessary to any real understanding of the problems of collective bargaining in the modern economy; but many more such studies are needed before such broad conclusions are attempted." H. J. Lahne
+ Pol Sci Q 63:459 S '48 900w

HARDING, MRS BERTITA (LEONARZ). Southern empire: Brazil. (Invitation to travel ser) 215p $3.50 Coward-McCann

918.1 Brazil—Description and travel 48-8774

A popularly written guide book for the North American tourist. Includes a chapter on the historical background and one on "the traveller's approach," and then proceeds to consider in detail Rio de Janeiro and other parts of the country. Two final chapters are devoted to Feast days and celebrations, and Cultural aspects. Index.

Booklist 45:86 N 1 '48

Cleveland Open Shelf p21 D '48

"No illustrations, and the included map, an undated standard model for all South America, is of limited usefulness."
Commonweal 49:78 O 29 '48 30w

"The approach is definitely for the tourist, with bits for the business man and explorer. Bertita Harding is well-informed on this area and provides a fine introduction to the country."
+ Kirkus 16:549 O 1 '48 150w

"Miss Harding is writing about the tourist's Brazil, but she does not confide in her readers how cheap and tawdry that Brazil is. She is writing for (if we may borrow one of her favorite words) 'the chic,' if not, indeed, 'the very chic.' " Hubert Herring
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 O 24 '48 650w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 22 '48 550w

"Travel facts written without humor go down rather drily, and if there is to be a criticism of Bertita Harding's otherwise capable compilation of Brazilian tourist information that's where the trouble lies."
Sat R of Lit 31:40 O 30 '48 100w

HARDMAN, OSCAR. Christian doctrine of grace. 128p $2 Macmillan

234.1 Grace (theology) A48-6412

"The problem of grace has beset the church across the centuries. How far does God's grace extend? Does it reach to all men or touch only an elect few? Is it a spiritual energy necessary even for the beginning of man's salvation, or does it operate only after man has done his part by turning himself Godward through an active desire to do good? . . Such are some of the questions which have concerned Christians as they have thought of the operation of God's grace. With these and other questions the author seeks to deal intelligently that grace may not be thwarted in its ultimate function of producing Christian character. Starting with a brief historical survey of the primary Christian interpretations of grace, the views are noted of such Christian thinkers as Tertullian, Cyprian, Augustine, Pelagius, John Cassian, Gottschalk of Orbais, Anselm, Alexander of Hales, Bonaventura, Thomas Aquinas, the Reformers, Arminius, and the crisis theologians of our day." (Crozer Q) Index.

"The volume carries a healthful influence in its pointed repudiation of all views of grace which regard it as a divine influence arbitrarily employed. . . Set against the historical background of the development of Christian doctrine, this little book can bring perspective, understanding, and a working Christian philosophy of grace to all who diligently seek them." G. W. Davis
+ Crozer Q 25:90 Ja '48 500w

"The book will be rewarding to the reader who brings to it a fair working vocabulary of theological terms and some power of concentration." E. M. Tainton
+ San Francisco Chronicle p8 N 30 '47 180w

HARDY, KAY (MRS DOUGLAS JOHN CONNAH). Costume design. 277p il $5; text ed $3.75 McGraw

646.01 Costume design. Clothing and dress 48-5458

"Aim of the book is to train young women for a career in costume fashion design. Differences in various clothing careers with opportunities and salaries discussed. Book provides training in four designing principles—in color design, presenting ideas through sketches, fabric requirements and adaptation of period styles. Covers also short sketch of the dress industry, design for children, design accessories and publicity work. Chapter references. Glossaries. Illustrated." (Library J) Index.

"This book presents a good over-all picture of the clothing and clothing accessories industries which might arouse more enthusiasm on the part of students wishing to become costume designers than present available positions would justify. It gives practical instruction for drawing the fashion figure and cutting and draping materials." E. F. Mathieson
+ J Home Econ 40:468 O '48 200w

Reviewed by B. G. Chambers
Library J 73:655 Ap 15 '48 100w
N Y Times p19 Ag 15 '48 230w
School Arts 48:14a N '48 70w

"An excellent introduction for the person wishing to get an all-over picture of designing as a career." O. M. T.
+ Wis Lib Bul 44:61 Mr '48

HARGROVE, MARION. Something's got to give. 312p $3 Sloane

48-6673

Joe Dobbs' story of what happened when his wife and cousin had a brain storm about producing a radio show of baby advice for young mothers. The idea became an actuality and two happy homes were nearly wrecked before the broadcast exploded.

"Something's Got to Give is inconsequential fare. But Hargrove's geniality is contagious. His wry sanity, his freedom from pretentiousness are pleasantly bracing." C. J. Rolo
+ — Atlantic 181:116 Je '48 550w
Booklist 44:313 My 15 '48

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun My 11 '48 360w
Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '48

"Without the broad humor of his Private Hargrove books, this is still entertaining reading, with enough honest situations to establish that recognition quality that makes for a certain kind of popularity."
+ Kirkus 16:148 Mr 15 '48 270w

"Bright, humorous dialogue, with plus appeal for sufferers from sponsoritis. Recommended." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 73:558 Ap 1 '48 80w

"Hargrove has an easy touch; his dialogue, which comprises 99 percent of the book, is airy and usually convincing. But the novel's real sparkle lies in its anecdotes involving such things as the inquisitiveness of minuscule sons and what a young matron is liable to say when she feels the first faint stirrings of a career." J. P. Lyford
+ New Repub 118:25 My 24 '48 430w

"Mr. Hargrove has a keen ear for amusing dialogue and a perception of what makes for good satire. His incidental characters—Alberta the maid, the baby-lotion sponsor, a daytime serial writer, the frenetic celebrities at a fashionable Central Park South party—all come in at just the right time and play their parts well." J. D. Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 My 9 '48 450w

"Joe Dobbs tells the story—a mechanical fault, since it is primarily the wives, and not Joe, who are the real cut-ups. Perhaps the temptation to turn around and talk to the reader whenever he wished was more than the author of 'See Here, Private Hargrove' could resist, when he sat down to write his first novel. The result is that there is more author than story. . . It's all fast and easy, clean and jejune—and very largely unreal." Max Wylie
+ — N Y Times p17 My 9 '48 550w

"Your enjoyment of all this will depend on what you think of the author's brand of humorous writing, which contains a high percentage of rather obvious bounce."
New Yorker 24:102 My 1 '48 160w

Reviewed by Paul Speegle
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Je 6 '48 400w

"A fresh, fast-paced, and thoroughly enjoyable light novel. . . Because of its somewhat episodic structure, the novel slows down here and there; but the people are so likable, and Mr. Hargrove's dialogue so bright that few readers will put down 'Something's Got to Give' until they find out how the quartet gets untangled from the web they have made for themselves." R. B. Gehman
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:23 My 1 '48 600w
Springf'd Republican p10B My 9 '48 180w
Wis Lib Bul 44:133 Je '48

HARK, MILDRED, and MCQUEEN, NOEL. Special plays for special days. 397p $3 Plays, inc, 8 Arlington st, Boston 16

812.08 Dramas—Collections. Holidays 47-11926

Twenty-four non-royalty plays for schools, clubs, and little theater groups. There are one or two plays under each of the following subjects: Lincoln's birthday; Valentine's day; Washington's birthday; Saint Patrick's day; Easter; Spring; Arbor day; Mother's day; Memorial day; Flag day; Health week; Columbus day; Hallowe'en; Book week; Safety week; Thanksgiving; Christmas; New Year's. For grades four to eight.

HARK, MILDRED—Continued

Booklist 44:189 Ja 15 '48

"The purpose of the book is to provide new plays, not a compilation of those which have been 'tested by time,' to be staged by schools, clubs, or similar amateur groups. One of the especially good points about this series of plays is that no royalty need be paid for actual production by any of the interested groups. In addition, all plays included can be easily produced." W. E. Gauerke
+ El School J 48:288 Ja '48 550w

"The plays recognize all the usual occasions observed in schools; they are fresh and lively and have already proved popular with children, since they have appeared previously in Plays, the Drama Magazine for Young People." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 24:126 Mr '48 80w

"Will be useful for schools, church dramatic groups and granges but are not recommended for purchase except on demand." George Freedley
Library J 72:1780 D 15 '47 30w

HARKEY, DANIEL R. Mean as hell; line drawings by Gene Roberts. 223p $3 Univ. of N.Mex. press
917.89 Frontier and pioneer life—Southwest. Outlaws 48-8482

Recollections of a Southwestern peace officer of the late 1800's and early 1900's. The title "Mean as hell" refers to criminals Bill Washington and Jim Miller. Index.

Booklist 45:87 N 1 '48

"A basic source book of bad men and actual events, the appeal is for all open air readers, followers of horse opera, and lovers of true adventure."
Kirkus 16:494 S 15 '48 120w

"[Harkey's] book is honest, sincere, and of considerable value. Of particular interest is his account of the life and doings of Jim Miller, an assassin who has not had his due in Southwestern literature."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p32 N 7 '48 200w
N Y Times p55 N 14 '48 180w

HARKINS, PHILIP. Southpaw from San Francisco. 247p $2.50 Morrow
48-8792

A baseball story for boys. Larry Allen, just bought by the Giants from the San Francisco Seals, is proving to be a flop as a pitcher and as a man. Between innings of a game between the New York Giants and the St Louis Cardinals, his mind flashes back to the events that have brought him to this crisis.

Booklist 45:124 D 1 '48

"Excellent baseball story."
+ Kirkus 16:401 Ag 15 '48 90w

"Tricky and absorbing writing." M. C. S.
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 N 14 '48 280w

"A fine book for boys, with much good sense dressed up with the excitement of the diamond."
+ Springf'd Republican p12C D 5 '48 60w
Wis Lib Bul 45:16 Ja '49

HARKNESS, GEORGIA ELMA. Prayer and the common life. 224p $2.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury 264.1 Prayer 48-7078

"Contending that there is need for an 'upsurge of vital, God-centered, intelligently grounded prayer' the author offers practical counsel on the theology or content of prayer, the methods, and the psychology or rewards to the individual and society." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 44:331 Je 1 '48

"Miss Harkness understands the profundities of theology. She can stand on her own two feet alongside any male theologian in the country. Her special genius, however, seems to lie in making these great theological ideas simple enough for the beginner or the average layman to comprehend. This present book, therefore, well deserves the award which the publishers make annually for a book that will 'accomplish the greatest good for the Christian faith and Christian living among all people.'" K. B. Cully
+ Christian Century 65:831 Ag 18 '48 630w

Reviewed by E. C. Herrick
Crozer Q 25:350 O '48 700w

"The most valuable material in her book is the concluding section on the fruits of prayer: peace of mind, the conquest of fear, loneliness and grief, and the relief from the sense of sin and guilt through prayerful surrender to God. The book should aid many who have never learned to pray or who have been ashamed to pray." E. M. Tainton
+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 My 17 '48 300w

HARPER, ALLANAH (MRS ROBERT STATLENDER). All trivial fond records. 238p $3 Harper
B or 92 48-5521

In this book the daughter of a famous English engineer recalls the days of her childhood and youth spent in England, France, China, and in various other countries.

Booklist 44:267 Ap 1 '48
Kirkus 15:689 D 15 '47 200w

"Title is extraordinarily appropriate to the book's content. Public libraries buy if the book budget affords entertaining, well-written trivia." H. R. Forbes
+ Library J 73:332 F 15 '48 110w

"She sets down her recollections in distinguished and perceptive prose. The tenderness with which most people regard the events of their childhood too often makes for dull reading. Autobiography depends for interest not only on the autobiographer but on participation in a time and place, and Miss Harper succeeds on both counts. The result is a rounded picture as well as a fascinating self-portrait." Virginia Dale
+ N Y Times p18 Mr 21 '48 500w

HARPER, MARTHA REBECCA (BARNHART). Bittersweet; decorations by Erick Berry. 238p $2.50 Longmans
48-5386

A novel for young teen-agers, depicting family life in Pennsylvania during the Civil war. "Bittersweet has grown from stories told by my father about his family and their life on the farm at Dowdy's Hole, eight miles from my childhood home, Bellefonte, in central Pennsylvania." (Author's note) Bibliography.

Booklist 44:286 Ap 15 '48

Reviewed by H. F. Griswold
Christian Science Monitor p12 Jl 8 '48 180w

"While for story purposes Mrs. Harper has invented some of the characters and happenings, in the main the portraits of the family are true to life. The heroine of the romance, which is warm and touching, was an aunt." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 24:123 Mr '48 100w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 24:212 My '48 50w

"Interestingly detailed story."
+ Kirkus 16:22 Ja 15 '48 120w

"Once in a long time there comes along a charming love story for the young teen-agers. Bittersweet falls into that category. . . Recommended." C. W. Field
+ Library J 73:400 Mr 1 '48 70w

"It is not a tragic book: there was a real Lucy Barnhart and she went on living. Her story deserves to do so." M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 My 9 '48 340w

"The adventures are slight, but the book is a happy combination of careful setting, nice family give-and-take, with a heroine both youthful and sincere. The undercurrent of serious romance gives depth to what might otherwise be too much a period piece and adds appeal for girls 11 to 15." M. C. Scoggin
+ N Y Times p26 Mr 14 '48 110w

School & Society 67:191 Mr 6 '48 10w

Springf'd Republican p10B Mr 7 '48 240w

Wis Lib Bul 44:65 Mr '48

HARPER, RALPH. Existentialism: a theory of man. 163p $3 Harvard univ. press

111 Existentialism 48-7276

"An attempt to elucidate Existentialism as well as to reconcile the leading schools of that brand of philosophical thought—chiefly the ones that have drawn their inspiration from Kierkegaard, Heidegger, and Sartre." (New Yorker) The author, an Existentialist, is a teacher of humanities in the General education program at Harvard.

"The book, though objective, is written from an avowedly sympathetic standpoint. Its public, however, will inevitably be limited by the wide knowledge of philosophical theory and terminology which it presupposes." R. A. C.
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 12 '48 100w

"The author writes in a clear, unvexed prose, and the expository parts of his book are a good introduction to this controversial philosophy."
+ New Yorker 24:68 Jl 10 '48 100w

HARPER, WILHELMINA, comp. Down in Dixie; stories from the south central states; il. by Dorothy Bayley Morse. (Our states in story) 245p $2.75 Dutton
48-4689

Anthology of stories from the south central states: Alabama; Mississippi; Louisiana; Texas; Oklahoma; Arkansas; Tennessee; and Kentucky. The stories have been reprinted from books and magazines. Grades four to eight.

Booklist 45:73 O 15 '48

Reviewed by H. F. Griswold
Christian Science Monitor p7 Ja 27 '49 230w

"There isn't a dull story in the lot. An index would add to its reference value, but primarily it is a book for entertainment, not information."
+ Kirkus 16:527 O 1 '48 150w

Wis Lib Bul 44:216 D '48

HARRINGTON, FRED HARVEY. Fighting politician, Major General N. P. Banks. (Am. hist. assn. Albert J. Beveridge memorial fund. Publication) 301p $3.50 Univ. of Pa. press

B or 92 Banks, Nathaniel Prentice

The subject of this biography was a nineteenth-century successful American who began his career at the age of eleven as bobbin boy in a Massachusetts mill. Ambitious, talented, good-looking, he used his gifts of oratory to rise in public life, becoming a leader of the Republican party and three times governor of Massachusetts. He served in the Civil war and then returned to political life, serving his district as Congressman intermittently until 1891. Bibliography. Index.

Current Hist 15:39 Jl '48 50w

"Of interest to a limited market, this is nonetheless a careful, coordinated picture of a military amateur, who achieved fame also as a fighting politician."
+ Kirkus 16:252 My 15 '48 110w

"After years of research, Mr. Harrington, professor of history in the University of Wisconsin, has produced the only authoritative life of Banks. His pages are not overloaded, nor are they eulogistic. Banks's desperate effort to become a famous man—also to pay his bills—is given as the clue to the changing pattern of his life. 'Fighting Politician' is the work of a keen student and a skilful writer. The numerous Banks letters in the newly opened collection of Lincoln papers seem not to have been used. Nevertheless this biography has the all-round quality of competent scholarship combined with lively interest and sustained readability." J. G. Randall
+ Sat R of Lit 31:14 Je 5 '48 650w

HARRINGTON, RICHARD HARRY. Modern metallurgy of alloys. 209p $3.50 Wiley

669 Alloys. Metallurgy 48-2637

Discussion of the "whys" of alloy properties which adds practical data to modern theory. The author "discusses the building up and classification of equilibrium diagrams, the effect of strain on alloys and the physical and chemical properties of alloys. The outstanding qualities of the work are its clear presentation of basic principles, and its emphasis on correct terminology." (N Y Times Tech Bks) Index.

Library J 73:655 Ap 15 '48 50w

"It should be of much value not only as an introductory text but also an 'orientation' for professional metallurgists."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 33:34 My '48

HARRIS, BEN JORJ, pseud. of BEN R. HARRIS and GEORGETTE HARRIS. Airbrush illustration. 78p $4 Manual arts

741.29 Drawing—Instruction. Arts, Commercial 48-387

"Techniques of airbrush drawing and using airbrush equipment in commercial art. Some illustrations in color." Booklist

Booklist 44:214 F 15 '48

School Arts 48:13a S '48 70w

HARRIS, MRS BERNICE (KELLY). Hearthstones; a novel of the Roanoke river country in North Carolina. 273p $3 Doubleday
48-8327

A story of two deserters in two wars. The first, Caje Day, deserted from Lee's army in the 1860's and the resultant shunning of his family by the neighbors caused the whole Day family to retreat to wild Haw Island. There they lived an almost self-sufficient life for many years. In 1941 the four old Day sisters found a new deserter, this time from the United States army. Their adoption of the young deserter sent him back to fight for his country.

Booklist 45:32 S 15 '48

"An odd sort of story, less coordinated than Bernice Harris' Purslane and considerably less interesting than her last—Janey Jeems. . . Tenuous throwbacks to the old tragedy are too slender threads for weaving the two parts of the story into a fully realized whole, and the interest lag in the middle section hurts its chances for popular appeal."
Kirkus 16:371 Ag 1 '48 180w

"Recommended." E. S. Brown
+ Library J 73:1089 Ag '48 130w

" 'Hearthstones' has that solid virtue, not so common among novels as one could wish, of holding the reader's attention through the last chapter. . . [It] is a work off the beaten track and an entertaining addition to Miss Harris's growing list of novels." Coleman Rosenberger
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 S 26 '48 500w

HARRIS, B. K.—Continued
"As for structure, 'Hearthstones' demonstrates what has been evident all along: Mrs. Harris is at her best when least concerned with plot. Her portrayal of people and setting is first-rate and sufficient in itself. . . Unfortunately, as it seems to this reader, complications of plot take precedence over the rich store of setting and character." N. K. Burger
+ — N Y Times p27 O 3 '48 440w

Reviewed by Ray Pierre
Sat R of Lit 31:36 S 25 '48 400w

HARRIS, MRS FLORENCE (LA GANKE), and KAUFFMAN, TREVA ERDINE. Young folks at home. 444p il $2.60 Heath

640 Home economics 48-2067

Textbook in home economics for junior high school. Partial contents: Does your own room look like you?; Anybody hungry at your house?; Spending the family's money; How nice you look!; Do people like you? Chapter bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 44:320 My 15 '48

"Basic principles and standard procedures in family living, presented in an original and attractive manner, are the substance of this book with its appealing title. . . Though this book should be useful in many situations, it should be of value in setting the stage for enjoyment of family living, especially when boys are members of the class." Virginia Messenger
+ J Home Econ 40:537 N '48 170w

HARRIS, SEYMOUR EDWIN. European recovery program. 309p $4.50; text ed $3.50 Harvard univ. press

338.91 Reconstruction (1939-)—Europe. Europe—Economic conditions 48-10614

This book contains what the author, a professor of economics at Harvard hopes, is an "objective" discussion of ERP. In his words: "The object of this book is not only to explain the ERP and the major issues involved; but also to offer some points for consideration when the legislation is again reviewed early in 1949 and later years."

Booklist 45:131 D 15 '48
Current Hist 16:35 Ja '49 70w

"Book is exceptionally well-written. Educated layman will have little trouble in following Harris' line of reasoning. Technical terms are explained; conclusions are always carefully drawn. Indispensable for all public and college libraries." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 73:1507 O 15 '48 160w

"Not only does Professor Harris give convincing indication of having read the record. He has summarized what is important for the everyday reader—and he accompanies it all with an interesting and reasoned analysis of the points of controversy. It is not an especially easy volume to read, and it is marred by some repetition. But anyone who wants either a quick or an exhaustive view of the economics of European aid, anyone who needs a standby reference to all the important data, will feel indebted to Professor Harris." J. K. Galbraith
+ N Y Times p1 N 7 '48 1050w
Wis Lib Bul 45:11 Ja '49

HARRIS, SEYMOUR EDWIN, ed. Foreign economic policy for the United States. 490p $6; text ed $4.50 Harvard univ. press

337 U.S.—Foreign policy. U.S.—Economic policy 48-4988

"Fundamentals by practical men. Over four hundred pages from the thinking and experience of eleven professors of economics, three economists of the Federal Reserve System, the Assistant to the Secretary of Commerce, the Assistant Deputy Finance Minister of Canada, six Department of State officers working with the European Recovery Program and our foreign affairs, the Chairman and Managing Director of the International Monetary Fund. Several have had special opportunity to gain first-hand knowledge of the conditions and problems in the particular countries about which they write: The United States, Britain, Germany, Japan, Canada, Latin America, Russia, China. There are six contributions on the problems of international equilibrium." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 45:151 Ja 1 '49
Current Hist 16:35 Ja '49 30w

"The student of international affairs in this field will find guidance for his thinking. The array of discussions directs attention to all the factors in our complicated economic relations. . . The book is a valuable asset to our material for solution of vexing questions, and should encourage belief in our hope for the future." A. B. Lindsay
+ Library J 73:1188 S 1 '48 220w

"In this book twenty-five scholars and experts attack the subject of the foreign economic policy of the United States. They do so with unsmiling sincerity and a kind of desperate factuality. The result should be like lead, but for some reason, possibly personal, I find this an enchanting volume." H. J. Laski
+ New Repub 110:20 D 6 '48 1150w

Reviewed by Keith Hutchison
N Y Times p16 N 14 '48 950w

Reviewed by Abe Pivowitz
San Francisco Chronicle p22 N 21 '48 700w

"Informed and authoritative, but, made up as it is of individual contributions by some twenty-five practising and academic economists, there is a greater tendency for interpretation to conform to individual theories on the proper approach to an adjustment of the world's economic ills." F. R. Dulles
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:20 N 13 '48 320w

Reviewed by G. V. Price
Survey 85:51 Ja '49 600w

HARRIS, SEYMOUR EDWIN. How shall we pay for education? approaches to the economics of education. 214p $3 Harper

379.11 Education—Finance 48-5579

An analysis of the present critical financial problems in American education, by an American economist, now professor of economics at Harvard graduate school of public administration. Index.

"One cannot help concluding from the evidence presented that, regardless of theories that the federal government ought not to get into educational aid, there is little hope under present economic conditions that private and local agencies can by themselves handle the problem of rising educational costs and increasing student loads. It is Mr. Harris' contribution to make clear that in education we are really at this moment confronted with a set of facts, not theories. Too much cannot be said for the author's technique of presenting his great mass of data. Would that more social scientists would be equally considerate of their readers!" P. P. Van Riper
+ Am Pol Sci R 42:591 Je '48 450w

Reviewed by Harold Benjamin
Ann Am Acad 258:165 Jl '48 450w

Reviewed by J. C. Moffitt
El School J 49:54 S '48 600w

"Comprehensive, sound study of the economic factors in education today and its background in the past."
Kirkus 15:688 D 15 '47 170w

"Dr. Harris writes clearly and with a minimum of technical terms. He gives a succinct, intelligent picture of the financial structure necessary to support an adequate educational program. It is a realistic approach to an important social problem and one that can be readily understood by non-educators." Benjamin Fine
+ N Y Times p19 Mr 14 '48 700w
School & Society 67:126 F 14 '48 10w

HARRIS, SEYMOUR EDWIN. National debt and the new economics. 286p $3.50 McGraw

336.3 Debts, Public. U.S.—Economic conditions 47-6872

"Technical, detailed consideration of national finances and taxes, of tax capacity and debt potential, and the management of the public debt. Not an alarmist book; the author thinks the U.S. can still stand a large public debt." (Booklist) Indexes.

"This book covers a wide range of topics, theoretical, statistical, and historical. . . Notwithstanding elaborate paragraph numbering, the organization of the volume might have been tightened and duplication might have been reduced. However, it contains a good deal of stimulating and useful material. The discussion, if sketchy in part, is interesting and well designed to set the reader's mind to work." R. A. Musgrave

+ — Am Econ R 38:673 S '48 1700w

"It would appear to the reviewer that the happy conjuncture of right factors may ultimately justify the optimistic conclusions on public debt, and the policies to be pursued regarding it, advanced by the author. But these are imponderables, and these are either ignored or passed over too lightly. On the whole, however, the conclusions of the author are well supported by references to a wide variety of source material. . . The book is a provocative treatise which should be read and studied by all interested in and concerned with our national debt problem." M. L. Faust

+ — Am Pol Sci R 42:345 Ap '48 700w

"The economics of a public debt is an important subject, worthy of wide discussion both public and private. This volume should help to stimulate discussion. Prospective readers must be forewarned, however, that the style of writing and the organization of the material detract from the interest and readability of the text." Leo Fishman

+ — Ann Am Acad 257:247 My '48 420w

Booklist 44:244 Mr 15 '48

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:161 Je '48 280w

HARRISON, CHARLES YALE. Nobody's fool. 300p $3 Holt

48-8218

A novel using the public relations world for a background. The plot concerns the search for and exploitation of the typical "common man," who when discovered proved to be almost more than the public relations firm could handle.

Atlantic 182:15 N '48 300w

Kirkus 16:344 Jl 15 '48 190w

"Controversial theme may stir interest in spite of other defects." A. J. Gaines

Library J 73:1090 Ag '48 90w

"The gilded profession of public relations is Mr. Harrison's chief target, but he also sideswipes the worlds of politics, finance, publishing and journalism. Most of his blows are devastating, but, unfortunately, one feels they are being struck at straw men. . . It is an astonishing world that confronts the reader in 'Nobody's Fool'; lush, plush and glittering. Mr. Harrison makes you see it in all its dazzling phonyness, but he doesn't quite make you believe in it." Hubert Kupferberg

— + N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 S 19 '48 650w

"Hilarious and ruthlessly stinging novel. . . Mr. Harrison, however, gets fresh life into the tired dance, and produces some piercing melodies from the aging tunes. His story skillfully combines the cool and merciless exploitation of the common man with an account of how a political investigation of wartime profiteering might be throttled, and he pursues the personal fortunes of his characters with an enthusiasm that never—well, hardly ever—flags." Charles Poore

+ N Y Times p5 S 19 '48 700w

New Yorker 24:114 S 25 '48 100w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p16 O 4 '48 700w

"This could have been a brilliant assault of the American success theme if it were not presented in so banal a fashion. Mr. Harrison can be occasionally caustic but he can also be very heavy-handed with his humor. None the less, Jack Sherrod's lack-luster saga does set us to pondering whether there isn't something radically wrong with a civilization that deems it necessary to have 'all this shoving, shouting, and showmanship' to keep it going." Richard McLaughlin

— + Sat R of Lit 31:16 O 2 '48 600w

HARRY, RALPH GORDON. Modern cosmeticology; with a foreword by P. B. Mumford. 3d rev ed 515p il $12 Chemical pub. co.

646.7 Cosmetics 48-5385

"In the present edition of this work by a British author, there is greatly increased emphasis on both the dermatological and chemical aspects of cosmetics. As before, the book is intended for the practical manufacturer. Numerous formulas are again included. The increase of more than 200 pages is accounted for largely by new chapters on hair dyes; insect bite, baby and foot preparations; coloring and application of cosmetics; chemical examination of cosmetic preparations; and basic manufacturing operations. In this edition, no proprietary products are mentioned and revised formula quantities are given in percentages instead of grams." (N Y New Tech Bks) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1940.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 73:480 Mr 15 '48 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:8 Ja '48

HARSHAW, MRS RUTH (HETZEL), and MACBEAN, MRS DILLA WHITTEMORE. What book is that? fun with books at home, at school [il. by Grace Paull]. 96p $1.50 Macmillan

028.5 Books—Examinations, questions, etc. Children's literature 48-9023

Based on radio program The Battle of the Books. Contains first a group of book quizzes—questions and answers on characters, etc. from children's literature (or reading) from Mother Goose to Shakespeare, Poe and Hawthorne; and secondly a number of playlets, bits of dialogues, to be identified as to source.

Booklist 45:108 N 15 '48

"This is a book to lure new readers and challenge old." M. B. King

+ Chicago Sun O 16 '48 280w

"Precocious, well read youngsters will delight in these quizzes and games." E. R. J.

+ Churchman 162:17 N 15 '48 10w

Kirkus 16:533 O 1 '48 100w

"This volume should prove a handy tool for any adult in need of help in planning a club program, enlivening a reading period, or varying the monotony of the formal book report. Children, too, will welcome it as the source of a new kind of game." Elizabeth Hodges

+ Library J 74:122 Ja 15 '49 260w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p5C O 31 '48 120w

Wis Lib Bul 44:215 D '48

HART, JAMES. American presidency in action, 1789; a study in constitutional history. 256p $4 Macmillan

353.03 Washington, George. Executive power 48-4320

"Intensive study of the constitutional beginnings of the presidency in action based on a minute examination of contemporary historical materials, relating to the first year of activity

HART, JAMES—Continued
after the adoption of the constitution—especially the problem of setting up acceptable precedents and administrative and legislative procedures. From the point of view of a political scientist rather than a professional historian." (Library J) Index.

"The reader may object to the author's inclusion of numerous sections which seem either pointless or unimportant. Nevertheless the profusion of documentation may make the book of some practical value. Its contribution to an understanding of an 'unwritten American Constitution' however is somewhat doubtful."
Columbia Law R 48:1273 D '48 130w

"For reference shelves, largely in college libraries, this is a learned study."
+ Kirkus 16:356 Jl 15 '48 150w

"Encyclopedic in character, each point stated clearly, and assembling a wealth of material under each head. Excellent, but suitable for advanced student rather than for general reader." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 73:1084 Ag '48 100w

Reviewed by Richard Hofstadter
New Repub 119:26 D 6 '48 500w

"Mr. Hart is possessed of a sound view and a good idea. . . All of this is of interest to the citizen, but little of it is new, and it is seldom presented in so lamentable a style and manner as that which Mr. Hart permits himself. He demands too much of the reader. The idea of concentrating on 1789, which seemed promising, turns out not so good." W. B. Hamilton
— + N Y Times p26 O 17 '48 550w
School & Society 68:223 S 25 '48 20w
Springf'd Republican p9B O 17 '48 500w

HART, JAMES DAVID. Oxford companion to American literature. 2d ed rev & enl 890p $7.50 Oxford

810.2 American literature—Dictionaries, indexes, etc. 48-9436

"Thoroughly revised, with more than 100 new entries, several new book summaries, and additional data on authors." (Booklist) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1941, 1942.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 183:88 Ja '49 110w
Booklist 45:140 D 15 '48

"In the seven years since the publication of the first edition, it has proved its value as a reference work, going far beyond its model, The Oxford Companion to English Literature, in expanding the frame of reference of the term 'literature.' Although Hart bit off more than he could chew by trying to cover the whole field of American literature by himself (and the second edition reproduces many of the errors and omissions of the first), he has given us an indispensable desk-book which firmly roots American literature in the subsoil of our social and intellectual history." George Mayberry
+ New Repub 119:25 D 27 '48 260w

HARTLEY, FRED ALLAN. Our new national labor policy; the Taft-Hartley act and the next steps; foreword by Robert A. Taft [pub] in association with Modern industry magazine. 240p $2.85 Funk

331 Labor laws and legislation—U.S. Industrial relations 48-8744

History, exposition and defense of the Taft-Hartley labor act by its co-author, retiring chairman of the House committee on education and labor. Index.

Booklist 45:131 D 15 '48

"Anyone interested in labor relations will find this illuminating reading. Those outside the field will find it repetitious and labored at times."
Kirkus 16:421 Ag 15 '48 150w

Reviewed by R. E. Kingery
Library J 73:1382 O 1 '48 80w

"While there is no question but that many abuses existed—this book is full of them—it would be a more objective story—and the law might have been different—if equal diligence had been shown in getting accounts of good labor relations and searching for the explanation thereof." Elinore Herrick
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 Ja 30 '49 850w

Reviewed by Warren Moscow
N Y Times p31 O 3 '48 460w

Reviewed by Louis Burgess
San Francisco Chronicle p10 O 3 '48 400w

Reviewed by Joseph Rosenfarb
Sat R of Lit 32:49 Ja 22 '49 320w

HARTMAN, GERTRUDE. In Bible days; il. by Kathleen Voute. 189p $2.50 Macmillan

220.95 Bible stories 48-9509

Stories from the Old and New Testament, arranged in historical sequence with commentary and interpretation by the author. For grades six to nine.

Booklist 45:161 Ja 1 '49

"Reads extremely well. The sustained dignity of the style, the unbiased general outlook of the writer make it an ideal historical approach to the Bible. . . Excellent reading for older boys and girls."
+ Commonweal 49:150 N 19 '48 130w

"Maps and line drawings add value to this useful book." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:42 Ja '49 120w
Kirkus 16:435 S 1 '48 130w

Reviewed by Nelle McCalla
Library J 74:204 F 1 '49 70w

HARTMAN, GERTRUDE, and SAUNDERS, LUCY SUMERVILLE. Builders of the Old World [il. by Marjorie Quennell, assisted by Harold Cue; maps by B. Magnuson Derwinski]. 468p $3 Little

909 History, Universal—Juvenile literature 48-6129

"Originally prepared as a textbook for the middle grades of the elementary school, this book covers the wide range of Western civilization from prehistoric times to the discovery of America. . . The book is divided into eleven units. The first covers the years before man learned to make written records. Then follow stories of the early Egyptians, the Greeks and the Romans. Separate units are devoted to the founding of nation states, the Medieval period, the beginnings of freedom in England, the Renaissance, European contacts with Asia and the discovery of the Western Hemisphere." (N Y Times) Chapter bibliographies. Index. For text edition see Book Review Digest 1946.

Booklist 44:303 My 1 '48

"Obviously prepared for school use by another publisher, this edition is attractive for leisure reading at home. There are many line drawings, with color, which follow historical sources. The type is clear and agreeable; the book is strongly bound, opening easily." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 24:198 My '48 150w
Kirkus 16:145 Mr 15 '48 70w

"Well-written material is interspersed with anecdotes and human interest stories. . . Recommended for school libraries." Helen Swartz
+ Library J 73:825 My 15 '48 100w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 Je 27 '48 310w

"This volume contains the teaching aids usually found in textbooks. These aids, are, however, suggestive and they will appeal to many 10-year-olds. The illustrations are profuse, many of them in color. The type is large and clear, the sentences short, and the narrative smooth-flowing. Youngsters who are not daunted by the size and the scope of the book will find it interesting." R. A. Brown

+ N Y Times p27 My 16 '48 200w

"This history of the world . . . is so arranged that it could be used as a text book. It has an index, a table of dates, and an unusual number of fascinating and informing maps. On the other hand, it is so interesting in both text and illustration that we can easily imagine reading it as one reads a story." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 31:34 Je 12 '48 110w

HARTZ, LOUIS. Economic policy and democratic thought; Pennsylvania, 1776-1860; with a foreword by Benjamin F. Wright. 366p maps $4 Harvard univ. press

338.9748 Pennsylvania—Economic policy
48-6085

"One of four similar inquiries sponsored by the Social Science Research Council's committee on research in economic history. Taking Pennsylvania as a test case, Dr. Hartz shows how mythical is the still widespread view that the period from 1776 to 1860 was one of laissez faire dominance in theory and practice for state governments in the United States. He effectively demonstrates how active and leading a rôle the state of Pennsylvania played in the development of its resources and enterprises during this era. . . Then he explains how this pattern of state intervention and control was supplanted by one of far more restricted state action just before the outbreak of the Civil War, partly as a result of state bankruptcy and administrative failure in public enterprises, partly as a consequence of attacks by pressure groups adversely affected by state activity, e.g., the liquor interests and the Pennsylvania Railroad." Am Pol Sci R

Reviewed by W. C. Bagley
Am Econ R 38:920 D '48 850w

Reviewed by K. W. Porter
Am Hist R 54:166 O '48 400w

"Political and social scientists will be grateful for Professor Louis Hartz' excellent study. . . Sound and valuable as this work is, some points of omission deserve attention. I regret that Professor Hartz did not correlate the role of Pennsylvania's representatives in the national government in this period with his findings on intrastate matters. I also wish that he had made fuller identification of key individuals." Sidney Ratner
+ — Am Pol Sci R 42:1039 O '48 370w

"A seventeen-page bibliography contains many important items and adds to the usefulness of the book for those economists, historians, or lawyers who may wish to pursue further many of the author's ideas. For them, the value of the book for its critical appraisal of the laissez-faire cliché is obvious." G. L. Haskins
+ Harvard Law R 61:1280 Jl '48 1850w

"Professor Hartz has produced an excellent work, judicial in tone and scholarly in character. The careful documentation shows extensive use of newspapers, legislative proceedings and documents, legal decisions, and pamphlet material. As compared with the failure to cover most economic activities of local governments, his slighting of such issues as the struggle to eliminate lotteries or to control the auction system is of minor importance." C. W. Wright
+ — J Pol Econ 56:455 O '48 900w

HARVEY, HARRY B. Claude of France; the story of Debussy; il. by Salcia Bahnc. 190p $2.75 Allen, Towne & Heath

B or 92 Debussy, Claude—Juvenile literature
48-8516

"A biography of Claude Debussy that is not only a life of the composer but an interesting picture of social and artistic France in the last half of the nineteenth century. It would appeal to adults and young alike." Sat R of Lit

"The lack of material, biographically speaking, on Debussy, makes any contribution an asset, not only in the field of juvenile biography."
+ Kirkus 16:23 Ja 15 '48 90w

"Intimate and charming story of Debussy. . . Especially recommended for junior high school." S. J. Robinson
+ Library J 73:1675 N 15 '48 70w

"Claude of France is particularly interesting because Mr. Harvey has talked with people who knew Debussy personally and has included their observations. I still object to the attitude that results in 'his little black sateen shirt,' but on the whole these books indulge in a minimum of writing down. The factual information on which they are based seems to be accurate, and the authors have successfully painted the picture of the man in his environment."
+ — Music Lib Assn Notes 6:167 D '48 180w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ja 16 '49 280w

Reviewed by N. B. Baker
N Y Times p31 Ja 16 '49 110w

Sat R of Lit 31:34 N 13 '48 40w

HARVEY, JOHN H. Gothic England; a survey of national culture, 1300-1550. 242p il $6 Scribner

709.42 Art—England. Art, Gothic. Great Britain—Civilization [47-28364]

The thesis of the book is that "English civilisation, English culture, English art reached their highest peak" in the late fourteenth century. "Like most people who write about the past, Mr. Harvey, English architect who has practiced in the restoration of medieval buildings, has an axe to grind. But the prejudices of a cultivated man are no more than his own conscious preferences; they are here self-confessed, and justified. His book is an apology, in the high sense of that word, for English culture of his favorite period." (N Y Times)

Manchester Guardian p3 S 12 '47 150w

"The book has beautiful illustrations, some of them in colors. It has interesting appendices containing literary references to building, the wills of certain persons mentioned, and items relating to cookery. It has also an excellent classified bibliography." Abbott Martin
+ N Y Times p16 Ja 11 '48 750w

"The strong-nerved reader, clinging tightly to the rigging, should be able to weather [the author's] Bellocian storms and will find much to reward him in this diffuse, enthusiastic and eccentric book." Lionel Brett
+ — Spec 179:86 Jl 18 '47 550w

"Mr. Harvey is a serious and learned writer, with a sense of style and a remarkable knowledge of Gothic architecture, and the men who created the English versions of it. This knowledge he reveals abundantly in every chapter. . . The author's passion for his period leaps ahead of his scholarship, and to those for whom the story of the fourteenth century is no new discovery, his treatment in general will be a disappointment."
Times [London] Lit Sup p335 Jl 5 '47 950w

HARVEY, JOHN H. The Plantagenets, 1154-1485. 180p il $5.50 Batsford

942.03 Plantagenet, House of. Great Britain—Kings and rulers. Great Britain—History—Plantagenets, 1154-1485 48-11006

"In his sketch-biographies of the thirteen Kings (excluding the uncrowned Edward V) for whom modern usage has adopted the Yorkist surname of Plantagenet, Mr. Harvey is guided throughout by the faith of classic royalism, that the king is pre-eminently the father of his people, and their natural leader and defender against the self-interest of the great. . . To maintain this as a consistent motif from 1154 to 1485 needs a certain amount of special pleading, or at any rate careful selection from the evidence; but although Mr. Harvey necessarily omits much that others would consider relevant, he uses only facts that are accepted by the best contemporary scholarship." Times [London] Lit Sup

HARVEY, J. H.—Continued

"The only feature of this book that is of real interest to historians is the illustrations. Mr. Harvey gives excellent reproductions of contemporary representations of the Plantagenet monarchs and their spouses in sculpture and illumination. He believes that they were intended as portraits, and his arguments are thoroughly convincing. For the rest Mr. Harvey's work is not to be taken very seriously. He makes no pretense of having used original sources, and if his bibliography is to be taken as an indication of the secondary works consulted, he made no very thorough perusal of this type of material." Sidney Painter
— + Am Hist R 54:185 O '48 280w

"Mr. Harvey has made 'The Plantagenets' not so much a history of a family as a fascinating series of biographies about the individual rulers. All are interesting, but perhaps the most provocative is the account of Richard III. . . 'The Plantagenets' has been printed in England, and the illustrations, particularly the color plates, are excellent." W. R. W.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 Je 20 '48 220w

Times [London] Lit Sup p598 O 23 '48 1350w

HARVIN, EMILY, pseud. Stubborn wood. 365p $3 Ziff-Davis
47-7151

Novel based on an actual case of a sane woman committed to various mental hospitals by her philandering husband.

Booklist 44:268 Ap 1 '48

Reviewed by Wendell Johnson
Chicago Sun p8X Mr 28 '48 450w

"Interest in the subject is still intense; it should stimulate the market."
+ Kirkus 15:677 D 15 '47 210w

"The story is so well told and the characters so realistically depicted that the last ounce of sympathy is wrung from the reader. . . Recommended." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 73:197 F 1 '48 70w

"As a novel and one with very little literary merit, this book under ordinary circumstances probably would not have attracted a great deal of attention. Such things could not possibly happen in the civilized U. S. A. But . . . it turned out 'The Stubborn Wood,' was Miss Harvin's own story—a novelized but factual account of her personal experience. So it could happen here. Read as a factual experience, the book takes on an interest and importance it could not possibly have as a piece of fiction. If it doesn't shock this country into cleaning up its mental institutions, both private and public, we are indeed a callous people." William Shirer
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 Ap 4 '48 650w

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ap 4 '48 100w

"Miss Harvin is at her best describing the patients and the interiors of the asylums. These descriptions are extremely vivid and contain a wealth of detail. However, they do not save the book from being a poorly written, badly put together, and trite piece of work. If Miss Harvin yearned to expose the mental hospital, she should have chosen some form other than a novel. A straightforward account of institutional shortcomings would have been far more effective than what we have here. As 'The Stubborn Wood' stands now the reader is unable to tell how many of the facts presented are true and how many are the products of Miss Harvin's imagination. 'The Stubborn Wood' is neither a good story, nor is it an illuminating and valid account of social conditions." S. J. Benét
— + Sat R of Lit 31:31 Mr 27 '48 500w

HASELMAYER, LOUIS AUGUST. Lambeth and unity [prepared under the editorship of the Joint committee on doctrine of the American church union and the Clerical union for the maintenance and defense of Catholic principles]. 162p $2.75 Morehouse

283 Lambeth conferences. Church unity. Anglican communion 48-5468

"The Episcopal 'Quadrilateral' basis of Christian union originated with a committee of the American house of bishops and was presented to the Episcopal General Convention of 1886. It was adopted by the Anglican Lambeth conference of 1888—but with an important change, according to this author, who writes as a spokesman for the American Church Union. Whereas the original, which might be called the Chicago Quadrilateral, declared that the four principles were 'inherent parts of the sacred deposit and therefore essential to the restoration of unity,' and consequently (in the author's words) 'not open to discussion,' Lambeth regarded them as 'a basis for discussion and open to a variety of meanings and interpretations.' The difference applies most significantly to the 'historic episcopate.' The contention of the book is that 'the Faith and Order . . . contained in the formularies of the Anglican Communion' is the basis of any possible union." Christian Century

Christian Century 65:352 Ap 21 '48 200w

Reviewed by N. K. Burger
N Y Times p19 Jl 25 '48 240w

HASKINS, GEORGE LEE. Growth of English representative government. 131p $2 Univ. of Pa. press

328.42 Great Britain. Parliament. Representative government and representation 48-1112

"The subject of this book is the growth of the English parliament from its beginning in the thirteenth century to the outbreak of the civil wars in the seventeenth. So described, the subject has been treated before, so that much of the material which is presented here will be familiar to those interested in parliamentary history. Recent investigations, however, have given historians cause to question the accepted outlines of even a generation ago, and it has accordingly seemed worth while to reëxamine the conclusions of earlier writers in the light of the sources and of recent studies. At the same time, the book is less concerned with describing the evolution of parliament in the period under discussion than with singling out the persistent currents in English society and government in order to show why the representative feature of parliament became its significant feature." (Pref) No index.

Reviewed by R. F. Treharne
Ann Am Acad 260:199 N '48 390w

"No pretensions of creative scholarship have been made; yet the author deserves much praise for his persuasive support of the theses which Chrimes, Jolliffe, and Richardson have so effectively developed. . . As a survey of the results of modern research into the beginnings of representative government in England the volume is of the highest merit." M. DeW. H.
+ Harvard Law R 61:920 My '48 200w

"As lectures the six chapters of the book are admirable, for they are clear, well arranged, and have an engaging liveliness of style well calculated to hold the attention of an audience. . . There is doubtless much further research to be done, but meanwhile, for those who are anxious to learn the truth and have no extensive previous knowledge, Professor Haskins's book will be of great value."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p7 Ja 1 '49 1050w

"Thoughtful essay for the general reader. It is a timely study also because it rehearses the painful, almost imperceptible, and often unintelligible process by which an institution acquires its functions." Hartley Simpson
+ Yale R n s 37:553 spring '48 1100w

HASTINGS, LOUISE, and HASTINGS, DONALD. Southern garden book; assisted by Charles J. Hudson, jr. 276p il $4.95 Doubleday

635 Gardening—South Agr48-18

Study of what to grow in Southern gardens, and information on soil, drainage, plant nutrition, etc. Partial contents: The southern lawn; Trees; Evergreen shrubs and trees typical of the South; Deciduous flowering shrubs; Coniferous evergreens; Vines, ground covers, and creepers; Annuals and tender perennials; Roses in the south; Dahlia growing; The fruit garden; The home vegetable garden; House plants; Seaside gardening; Pruning; Pest control. Includes plant lists and tables. No index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '48

"Some new angles are introduced to the amateur in the chapters on plant hormones and stimulants, and pest control. And the excellent lists and diagrams and charts of planting through the months will provide valuable aids to Southern gardeners. The authors are the owners of the largest seed company in the South."

+ Kirkus 15:666 D 1 '47 230w

"A good all-around ornamental gardening book by and for Southerners is sufficiently rare to be something of a landmark in horticultural publishing and the Hastings are to be congratulated on being the authors of just such a volume. It makes no pretense to being exhaustive, but it does get right down to the basic, practical facts of how to grow successfully a wide range of home-grounds plants, from lawn grass to fruit trees." R. S. Lemmon

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p21 My 16 '48 110w

HASTINGS, MARGARET. Court of common pleas in fifteenth century England; a study of legal administration and procedure; pub. for the Am. hist. association. 302p il $3.75 Cornell univ. press

347.99 Great Britain. Court of common pleas 48-5130

"A picture of one of the ancient courts of common law during a period of its prominence. . . Basing her determinations primarily on original records of the Court, Miss Hastings vividly discusses its activities as a whole, its personnel and its procedure. Justices of the Court, prothonotaries, filacers, serjeants, attorneys and their clients are all vividly portrayed as part of the legal scene at Westminster. This centralization of a large part of the information concerning the activities of Common Pleas should prove a boon to students of the period." (Columbia Law R) Index.

Reviewed by R. A. Newhall

Am Hist R 53:800 Jl '48 560w

"Well documented study."

+ Columbia Law R 48:489 Ap '48 80w

"This book is the result of long, careful investigation, much of it original research in the English Public Record Office. It is a mine of information. Miss Hastings does not try to read into the records what she would have liked to find, and what we wish she could have found. She confines herself to what is there. Yet we marvel at the survival of so much when we learn of the slipshod methods of keeping and storing the records. Miss Hastings has given us a reasonably clear picture of this busiest court of the fifteenth century." E. M. Morgan

+ Harvard Law R 61:914 My '48 1550w

"Through her study of the plea rolls, Miss Hastings has made a definite contribution to the body of information concerning the operation of the Court of Common Pleas and to the history of English law. Although the author knows so well the times and the existing literature concerning the court that it is sometimes uncertain to what extent her account is based on the plea rolls themselves, the volume of evidence she has examined is enormous."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:71 Mr '48 250w

HAUG, ARTHUR E. Chicago; phot. by Arthur Haug; text by Robert Cromie. 94p $2.50 pa $1.25 Ziff-Davis

917.7311 Chicago—Views 48-6942

"A picture book largely of the Chicago that the visitor is most likely to see—lake front and Loop." Booklist

"The pictures are good, many are panoramas, and the short text is accurate."

Booklist 44:379 Jl 15 '48

"Arthur Haug is such a competent photographer in a technical sense that one wishes he had a neater facility for catching the spirit and heart of Chicago in his pictures. . . Accompanying the many photographs—and far superior to the pictures themselves—is a readable breezy text by Robert Cromie. . . Cromie's fluent prose reflects the city's personality and, incidentally, adds up to a succinct biographical sketch of the city itself." Herman Kogan

Chicago Sun p6X Je 6 '48 190w

Kirkus 16:253 My 15 '48 90w

"It could not fairly be said that Mr. Haug's photographs or Mr. Cromie's accompanying text are inspired, dynamic, or even original. Each seems to have accomplished a simple, capable job."

Sat R of Lit 31:29 Ag 21 '48 140w

HAUGLAND, VERN. The AAF against Japan. 515p il $5 Harper

940.544 U.S. Army air forces. World war, 1939-1945—Aerial operations. World war, 1939-1945—Pacific ocean 48-7326

"The strictly factual account of the AAF activities in the Pacific from Pearl Harbor to the Tokyo surrender written by a veteran correspondent who not only had been there but had access to the confidential files in Washington as well." (N Y Times) Index.

Booklist 45:49 O 1 '48

"Overwhelmingly detailed record that should answer all questions about air triumph over Japan."

+ Kirkus 16:207 Ap 15 '48 130w

"Haugland is a reporter and writes as such in an uncolored, highly factual style. If anything his writing is too factual, as though he honestly attempted to include all and everything which contributed to the victory. Important as the hundreds of strikes and sorties mentioned may have been in the action, they nevertheless produce a monotony which a good history lacks and which might be well eliminated by careful editing." C. M. Donovan

+ — N Y Times p13 Ag 8 '48 750w

San Francisco Chronicle p15 Ag 22 '48 300w

Reviewed by E. P. Curtis

Sat R of Lit 31:11 N 20 '48 230w

HAUSMAN, MRS ETHEL (HINCKLEY). Beginner's guide to wild flowers; il. by the author. 376p $3.50 Putnam

582.13 Flowers 48-3074

Manual of wild flower identification, containing descriptions of approximately a thousand flowers found east of the Mississippi. They are arranged alphabetically under their dominant colors. Illustrations in black and white. Index.

Booklist 45:7 S 1 '48

"Both young and old who are making a first acquaintance with wild flowers can profit by this simple attractive handbook. . . There is an excellent index." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 24:378 S '48 80w

"This book is better than most for beginners in the study of botany. Arrangement is excellent. . . Recommended for school libraries." J. F. Kennedy

+ Library J 73:1199 S 1 '48 50w

New Yorker 24:72 Jl 10 '48 60w

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ag 8 '48 50w

HAUSMAN, LEON AUGUSTUS. Bird hiking; with il. by Harold Minton. 107p $2 Rutgers univ. press

598.2 Birds—Study and teaching 48-10578

Primer for bird lovers who are just learning the joy of identifying birds. The author is professor of zoology at New Jersey College for Women, Rutgers university. Annotated bibliography. Index.

"Recommended." J. F. Kennedy
+ Library J 74:68 Ja 1 '49 70w

"The text throughout is pleasantly written, although references to 'nature lovers,' the 'Dear Reader' and 'Gentle Reader' give some sections a slightly old-fashioned cast. But there is commendable emphasis on the importance of studying the habits of the birds instead of the mere listing of species seen. . . The book is designed primarily for those who are just discovering the fun of bird study. Such readers will find much that will be helpful in its pages." E. W. Teale
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 D 12 '48 220w

New Yorker 24:167 N 20 '48 50w

HAWAII. UNIVERSITY. Pacific era. See Davenport, W. W. ed.

HAWES, ELIZABETH. Anything but love. 277p $2.75 Rinehart

396 Women in the U.S. U.S.—Social life and customs 48-3658

A satirical survey of the advice given thru women's magazines, the screen and radio, to the American woman on how to conduct herself in her pursuit of a mate.

"As funny as a conk on the head, but maybe that's the intention. You can't say she doesn't give battle."
Kirkus 16:330 Jl 1 '48 190w

Reviewed by H. R. Forbes
Library J 73:1084 Ag '48 100w

Reviewed by Ernestine Evans
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 S 12 '48 800w

Reviewed by Thomas Sugrue
N Y Times p18 S 26 '48 1000w

"Lots of lively stuff here, but the subject might have been more effectively taken care of with an icepick than with a set of brass knuckles."
New Yorker 24:104 S 11 '48 200w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 26 '48 250w

HAWKINS, REGINALD ROBERT, and ABBE, CHARLES HOWSON. New houses from old; a guide to the planning and practice of house remodeling. 558p il $4.95 McGraw

728 Building—Repair and reconstruction. Architecture, Domestic—Designs and plans 48-7368

Practical advice on remodeling old houses, written by the chief of the Science and Technology division of the New York public library. Considers such aspects of the problem as masonry, foundations, framing, roofing, fireplaces, painting, wallpapering, plumbing, water supply, wells, sewerage disposal, etc. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 44:378 Jl 15 '48

"Book is invaluable for homeowners. List of useful books and pamphlets. Well illustrated." L. A. Eales
+ Library J 73:820 My 15 '48 100w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:35 My '48

Wis Lib Bul 44:162 O '48

HAWTHORNE, NATHANIEL. Portable Hawthorne; ed., with an introd. and notes, by Malcolm Cowley. (Viking portable lib) 634p $2 Viking

818 48-7869

A collection of Hawthorne's "various manners." It contains The Scarlet Letter; selections from The House of the Seven Gables, The Marble Faun, and The Dolliver Romance; twelve short stories; passages from his notebooks; and eleven letters. Bibliography.

Booklist 45:69 O 15 '48

Reviewed by Lloyd Morris
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 N 7 '48 90w

"He has some fascinating things to say of Hawthorne's narcissism, and of the autoerotic quality of his seclusion in Salem, and he makes many pertinent remarks on the character, development and general approach to life of his author, but he omits too much, at least to this reader's taste, and drops his plummet into rather shallow water." Anthony Bower
+ — N Y Times p4 O 17 '48 600w

New Yorker 34:80 Ag 21 '48 120w

San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 26 '48 170w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 31:40 O 16 '48 230w

"Editor's notes stirred into the concoction supply condiment and cohesion, and bring one closer to this shy and introspective man, who seems still closer in Mr. Cowley's sympathetic introduction." D. B. B.
+ Springf'd Republican p15A Jl 25 '48 310w

HAYDN, HIRAM COLLINS. Time is noon. 561p $3.50 Crown

48-6193

"Novel built around the lives of six young people coming to their maturities in the late 1920s. Told against an incisive picture of the turbulences of that time with a result something akin to Briffault's Europa. Searching diagnosis of sick people and sad times that adds up to a positive argument for real democracy." Library J

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun Mr 14 '48 270w

"The book is written with a certain penetrating brilliance, but it makes unpalatable reading for all but the hard-boiled reader."
Kirkus 16:59 F 1 '48 410w

Reviewed by R. E. Kingery
Library J 73:396 Mr 1 '48 80w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 166:446 Ap 24 '48 850w

"If the combination of emotional power and intellectual significance still appeals to readers of fiction, Hiram Haydn's 'The Time Is Noon' should soon be among the most widely discussed of recent novels. For it is a book which while keeping the reader's feelings at high pitch, insidiously compels him to reflect. Viewed only as a story, it is swift-paced, dramatic, and almost continuously exciting. But the story illustrates a theme which, in our present moment of crisis, has a special urgency—and few readers are likely to escape the sense of being personally involved by it." Lloyd Morris
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Mr 28 '48 1000w

"In this sprawling, overweight, engrossing novel, Mr. Haydn has undertaken an ambitious project and—within limitations—succeeded brilliantly. . . With a book of this size (and we refer to its ambitions as well as its length) spotty writing is inevitable. We are particularly confused by the series of Joycean doodles with which Mr. Haydn insists on opening each of his major sections; and Sol's long articles on the Gastonia trials, printed in a kind of typoscript, simply bring the novel to a standstill, for all their polemic fireworks. . .

But even the most turgid interludes have the breath and bustle of life about them: there's enough emotional drive (in both Mr. Haydn and his cast) to keep the whole book moving, despite its elaborate geometry." William Du Bois

+ — N Y Times p7 Mr 28 '48 800w

"His achievement will probably be admired more widely as a handbook than as a novel."

New Yorker 24:97 Ap 3 '48 110w

"What would have helped it, I believe, and made it a far better piece of work, is selection of the most rigid kind. Perhaps Mr. Haydn did select; his may be the kind of imagination that pours scenes out so rapidly that this novel could have been—heaven forbid—twice its length. But that's not the point. It would have been still better at half its present length, and its genuinely fine scenes, of which there are many, would have had a far better chance to shine." J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 9 '48 650w

Reviewed by Walter Havighurst

Sat R of Lit 31:12 My 8 '48 450w

"The scope of the novel, with its scenes shifting swiftly, is tremendous, and the characters are so brilliantly drawn that they remain intensely interesting even when the author himself becomes a little boring. The reflection of lives which Mr. Haydn shows is not so shallow as it is hypocritical." L. S. Munn

+ — Springf'd Republican p10B Ap 11 '48 450w

Time 51:100 Ap 5 '48 450w

"Mr. Haydn writes with an idea; the integrity of each individual must be preserved. This is, of course, an important idea, but Mr. Haydn's concentration on it prevents the novel from being as good as it might be. The characters created illustrate the idea—they are good teaching devices—but the amount of 'felt life' in them is not quite enough."

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:138 Je '48 210w

"Even when his story is a little awkward or, occasionally, mounts a soapbox, it does not cease to move. Mr. Haydn is a true novelist. He has the touch. If he took time on his next book to cut, condense, and polish, as he neglected to do in this one, no reader interested in American fiction could afford to miss it." Orville Prescott

+ — Yale R n s 37:767 summer '48 290w

HAYEK, FRIEDRICH AUGUST VON. Individualism and economic order. 272p $5 Univ. of Chicago press

330.4 Individualism. Economics 48-4149

A volume of speeches and articles, most of them of a technical nature, by the author of The Road to Serfdom (Book Review Digest 1944). Contents: Individualism: true and false; Economics and knowledge; The facts of the social sciences; The use of knowledge in society; The meaning of competition; "Free" enterprise and competitive order; Socialist calculation I: the nature and history of the problem; Socialist calculation II: the state of the debate (1935); Socialist calculation III: the competitive "solution"; A commodity reserve currency; The Ricardo effect; The economic conditions of interstate federalism.

"Hayek is above all a scholar, with a keen and subtle mind, and he would scarcely choose to be the propagandist for the N. A. M. type of economics. Because he is among the most thoughtful and consistent supporters of a market economy as against planning either by the state or by private monopoly, those who disagree with him cannot afford to ignore him; they may easily sharpen their wits on his ideas. This is especially true of a book like the present one, which is a collection of his lectures and articles, directed not to the Rotary Club luncheon but to academic audiences." George Soule

Nation 167:349 S 25 '48 1200w

Reviewed by J. R. Newman

New Repub 119:22 O 4 '48 2800w

"Mr. Hayek's chapter on 'true' and 'false' individualism ought to be read by every liberal who is unable to distinguish between a democracy descended from Locke and Jefferson and one descended from Rousseau and the French Revolution of 1789. . . Two other chapters are accessible to the general reader. The first constitutes part one of the long section entitled 'Socialist Calculation' and though it leads into a severely professional treatise, it is an enlightening introduction to the problem of running a centrally administered economy. . . The other, entitled 'The Economic Conditions of Federalism,' is a useful warning that difficult economic problems are involved in any kind of federation of sovereign states." Lewis Galantiere

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 S 26 '48 1000w

"The reader should be advised that there is much interesting and valuable material in this meaty and difficult book which must ultimately help the world make up its mind on a vital issue: to plan or not to plan? Hayek does nothing if he does not give the impression of sincerity and honesty—even, as a means of preserving the System, to the extent of suggesting limitations on property rights, corporate rights, exercise of patent rights. The reviewer disagrees with the central theme; perhaps the reader will be more sympathetic." S. E. Harris

+ — N Y Times p9 S 5 '48 900w

"The Professor is a persuasive writer, and some of his faultfinding with collective and socialist economic schemes is doubtless well founded. One cannot help feeling, though, that one is witnessing a brave but, in this case, basically futile spectacle of a man taking on an opponent much too big for him."

+ — New Yorker 24:117 S 25 '48 160w

Reviewed by Asher Brynes

Sat R of Lit 31:19 O 23 '48 750w

HAYES, MRS FLORENCE (SOOY). Skid; il. by Elton C. Fax. 216p $2.50 Houghton

48-8307

Skid was a little Negro boy who lived in Georgia and was captain of his school's baseball team. But then Aunt Alice, who had been to college, found Skid's father a good job in Connecticut and the family moved North where Skid had to earn his way into a new position among strangers.

"Presented from the Negro point of view, this is a sympathetic but honest portrayal and an all-round good story of an average, likable boy. Superior in every way to Call me Charley."

+ Booklist 45:53 O 1 '48

"There are hilarious happenings in this story to offset the gripping theme of race relations. My 11-year-old son said, 'Skid is as good as any book that I ever read if not better. I liked it because it was adventurous, because I like baseball, and because it was funny.' " H. F. Griswold

+ Christian Science Monitor p10 S 9 '48 270w

Churchman 162:17 N 15 '48 20w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 24:462 N '48 90w

"All this may serve a purpose as read by white boys and girls. But aren't the Negroes going to resent it, realistic as they may know it is? Aside from its 'social significance,' its a good enough story of a boy winning his right to a place against odds. And there's enough baseball in it to delight young fans."

Kirkus 16:440 S 1 '48 150w

"A Negro librarian who reviewed this book was delighted with it and thought the characterization good, the spirit throughout excellent, and recommended it highly for general purchase." J. F. Carter

+ Library J 73:1673 N 15 '48 100w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p22 N 14 '48 230w

"Into an easy-flowing, though somewhat rambling narrative, the author packs plenty of amusing incidents and plenty to think about.

HAYES, F. S.—Continued
She gets right into the heart and mind of an outsider and without underscoring them presents some of the problems which young Negroes face in a way which brings them home to 9-to-14-year-olds." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p41 N 7 '48 180w
Wis Lib Bul 44:215 D '48

HAYES, ROLAND, ed. My songs; Aframerican religious folk songs arr. and interpreted. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 128p $3 Little 784.756 Negro spirituals 48-8965

Words and music for thirty of the Aframerican religious songs, as sung by Roland Hayes. Includes an introductory chapter, and brief introductory notes for each song. The introductory notes serve to reconstruct the spirit of the individual song, or to give a little of its history.

"There are unusual songs and song-sermons here, some of which have long been favorites with Hayes audiences. The vocal range is for the most part medium, and the effectively unpretentious piano accompaniments are not beyond average difficulty." P. L. Miller
+ Library J 73:1666 N 15 '48 130w

"Throughout the book the various prefaces to the songs bear witness to the religious spirit and, indeed, to the ecstasy of the arranger and editor. In fact the book may be, and doubtless will be, regarded as a souvenir and reminder of the art of Roland Hayes by those who purchase it. As such it completely fulfils its purpose." Carl Van Vechten
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 N 21 '48 700w

"Interpretations of such depth and penetration [as Roland Hayes'] stem from study and understanding, of course. They require, in addition, an emotional identification that no amount of cerebration can provide; personal experience is the only source. . . If you did not realize this from hearing Mr. Hayes sing these songs in concert and on records, his brief and touching commentary in this book would make it amply clear. . . Mr. Hayes' arrangements are simple and tasteful. There is little in the way of frills and ornamentation, and in at least one case, 'Lit'l Boy,' he has written the accompaniment in what he describes as 'a pure African design.'" Howard Taubman
+ N Y Times p13 D 19 '48 700w
Wis Lib Bul 44:212 D '48

HAYNES, BENARTHUR CASTLE. Techniques of observing the weather. 272p il $4 Wiley
551.5 Meteorology. Weather 48-544

Practical book intended for the high school and college courses in elementary meteorology and weather observing. Contents: The atmosphere; The weather observatory; Clouds; Visibility; Hydrometeors; Temperature; Humidity; Wind; Pressure; Precipitation; Winds-aloft observations; Electronic meteorological observations; An improvised weather station. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:480 Mr 15 '48 50w

"Practical book for the amateur weather observer. . . Some of the suggestions for improvising instruments are very ingenious."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 33:17 Ja '48

HAYSTEAD, LADD. The squires can take it. 240p $3.50 Pellegrini & Cudahy
631 Agriculture—U.S. 48-10093

Advice, some of it tinged with humor, for the city dweller who wants to own a farm. Farm ownership and operation in the United States is considered, and those in the higher income brackets are the "squires" of the title. Bibliography.

Booklist 44:347 Je 15 '48

"A final and amusing chapter on city farms and their clubs and a list of farm books that all might study before they take the plunge into res rustica bring this informative and highly readable book to its fitting close." Richardson Wright
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Je 20 '48 650w

Reviewed by Thomas Foster
N Y Times p15 Ag 1 '48 320w

HAYWOOD, CAROLYN. Penny goes to camp; il. by [the author]. 192p $2 Morrow 48-2898

Story of two small boys, Peter and Penny, and their happy summer in camp.

Booklist 45:16 S 1 '48

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p5 Ag 31 '48 250w
Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '48

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 24:368 S '48 70w
Kirkus 16:214 My 1 '48 130w

"A pleasant story, not too exciting, but it has a definite place in the collection for third and fourth grade boys for whom there are so few boys' stories. Recommended." Elizabeth Johnson
+ Library J 73:1097 Ag '48 70w

"The author has a gift for making small boys' activities important and exciting, and her books are deservedly popular." V. H. Mathews
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Ag 8 '48 280w

"The characterization of individuals is rudimentary but the story is full of that kind of humor which, while often baffling grown-ups by its very simplicity, is highly relished by the 7-to-10-year-old group." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p14 Ag 8 '48 150w

"All the colorful doings of camp life are graphically described and delightfully illustrated by this two-fold gifted author with Penny and Peter always right in the center of things." E. H. Dexter
+ Springf'd Republican p7B Ag 29 '48 290w
Wis Lib Bul 44:151 S '48

HAZARD, JOSEPH T. Our living forests; the story of their preservation and multiple use. 302p il $4 Superior pub.
634.9 Forests and forestry. Forest products Agr48-227

Some facts and photographs on lumbering and forest preservation in the United States. The author is a naturalist and geographer who has spent most of his life in the Pacific northwest. No index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '48

"One of the most interesting sections of the book is devoted to a discussion of lumbering methods, from the use of oxen to the modern 'cats.' . . Another interesting portion of his book is devoted to the discussion of the school timber reserves of the Northwest. . . In spite of the book's merits, many a reader will distrust Mr. Hazard's breezy optimism about our inexhaustible timber resources." W. J. Marx
+ — Commonweal 48:312 Jl 9 '48 450w

"A book not only for the conservationist, but for students of economics, and those interested in the outdoor life."
+ Kirkus 16:231 My 1 '48 100w

HAZLITT, HENRY. Will dollars save the world? 95p $1.50 Appleton
336.343 U.S.—Commercial policy. Reconstruction (1939-) 47-12021

"In terms which the lay reader understands, this little book states the European economic problem as the author sees it, and suggests positive steps for the U.S. to take to help the world make a satisfactory economic adjustment. He is opposed to the Marshall plan, socialism in government, and controlled economy. Appendixes show American funds available for foreign aid and the amounts already granted to individual countries." Booklist

Reviewed by L. A. Mander
Am Pol Sci R 42:601 Je '48 500w
Booklist 44:196 F 1 '48
Kirkus 15:642 N 15 '47 170w

"So far as possible I am going to bypass Mr. Hazlitt's theoretical system and deal with his conclusions. It is the latter which give the book its importance and insure it a considerable audience in the months to come. . . It is of some importance, in considering Mr. Hazlitt's diagnosis and prescription, that he has no great affection for his patient. . . On international trade, Mr. Hazlitt's formula is appropriate, so far as any such generalization is appropriate, to an unplanned system. He has incautiously applied it to a world of inelastic demand and highly regulated supply where it is almost totally irrelevant. . . Mr. Hazlitt, in short, makes the increase in food prices the result of foreign demand, although the basic cause is prosperity here at home. The generous thing is to suggest that the author is here guilty of nothing more serious than careless statement. It could be wished, though, that Mr. Hazlitt were himself more restrained in identifying evil or underhanded motives in those with whom he disagrees or in charging them with ignorance and confusion." J. K. Galbraith
N Y Times p6 D 21 '47 1950w

"Mr. Hazlitt, a writer on diverse fields—literary criticism, philosophy, politics, economics and finance handles the subject matter of this his latest book in concise, meaty chapters and concludes with a convenient summary. The book is short and deals with the problems of aid to Europe in a way well calculated to hold interest while stimulating controversy." E. A. F.
+ Springf'd Republican p10B Ja 4 '48 600w

HEARD, GERALD. Is God evident? an essay toward a natural theology. 254p $3 Harper

210 Natural theology. Christianity—Evidences 48-2695

"[The author's] purpose here is to examine and evaluate the evidences of God to be found in nature and in life." (Kirkus) Index.

"Mr. Heard is, I believe, right in his insistence on the necessity of natural theology, but wrong in his too sweeping deductions from the evidences of design and in his almost exclusive reliance on that argument. If he had explored instead the moral argument, making the arguments from nature merely secondary, he would have found a way to a more defensible, and more Christian, theology." A. C. Garnett
Christian Century 65:912 S 8 '48 950w

"When he is writing capsule philosophy, Mr. Heard is embarrassingly naïve: when he is writing capsule science, he is, at any rate, very interesting: his remarks on Heisenberg's Principle of Indeterminacy, and his whole chapter on Life as Creative Choice, are fascinating, and as a summary, superficial but illuminating, of the non-determinist position today, Mr. Heard's book is valuable." Anne Fremantle
— + Commonweal 48:385 Jl 30 '48 330w

Reviewed by Eugene Ayres
Crozer Q 26:93 Ja '49 300w

"The philosopher, the theologian and the scientist will all find this volume of pertinence to their fields of interest. . . [The author's] position is that of a positive theist and his book is one which can be read with profit by Catholic, Protestant or Jew."
+ Kirkus 16:285 Je 15 '48 120w

"While the question in Mr. Heard's title must go begging, his book is nevertheless provocative. . . Actually, although he makes optimistic noises at the end of the book, he has done a far better job of showing how man may destroy than how he may save himself." E. M. T.
San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ag 15 '48 460w

HEARD, GERALD. Lost cavern, and other tales of the fantastic. 262p $3 Vanguard 48-5706

Four stories dealing respectively with bat men in a volcanic cavern, the mystery of an antique chalice, the world of the future, and terror in a chapel. The titles are: The lost cavern; The cup; The Thaw plan; The chapel of ease.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Mr 12 '48 100w
Kirkus 16:57 F 1 '48 120w

"'The Thaw Plan,' concerned with the state of the world in 1975, is a plausible-sounding conjecture; two of the others, which involve the supernatural, can be accepted as easily as rejected; but [The Lost Cavern] is too ludicrous for even the most gullible of readers. For devotees of the unusual." H. G. Kelley
Library J 73:336 F 15 '48 80w

Reviewed by R. G. Davis
N Y Times p21 Mr 7 '48 700w

"First-rate."
+ New Yorker 24:124 Mr 13 '48 160w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p24 Mr 21 '48 70w

Reviewed by Basil Davenport
Sat R of Lit 31:18 My 15 '48 850w

HEATING AND VENTILATING (periodical). Engineering databook; selected tables and charts; [ed. by] Clifford Strock. 576p il $7 Industrial press

628.8 Heating. Ventilation. Air conditioning. Pipe fitting 48-1114

"Intended for use by contractors, architects, plant engineers and engineering students. . . The book is divided in ten sections—heat and moisture in air, fuels and combustion, piping, air handling and ventilation, heating and heat transmission, cooling and air conditioning, motors and drives, contract law, mathematical data and drafting room practice, and terminology. It includes information on the heat pump, air sanitation, refrigeration, electrothermal storage, snow melting, heating with diesel engines, solar water heating and radiant heating." Eng N

"Pithy reference work."
+ Eng N 140:95 Ap 1 '48 150w

"Reference book, practical in character for all types of engineers concerned with heating and ventilating and for architects and students." L. A. Eales
+ Library J 73:822 My 15 '48 80w

"A useful addition to the reference books in the field. It contains less material than some of the older handbooks, but as might be expected in a new work, it presents data on a number of topics that are not covered in them. Many of the graphs and tables are larger than usual in size and are therefore somewhat easier to consult. The fact that the index contains about 1,000 entries indicates the variety of information in the book."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 33:13 Ja '48

HEBERDEN, MARY VIOLET (CHARLES L. LEONARD, pseud). Case of the eight brothers. 192p $2 Doubleday 48-8294

Detective story.

"Proficient, professional."
+ Kirkus 16:323 Jl 1 '48 80w

"Slowly but surely Mary Violet Heberden has been adding screwball notes to her saga of the powerful Shannon, until now he can be taken as a completely ruthless guy or whatever, according to your mood. This is welcome light reading." Will Cuppy

HEBERDEN, M. V.—Continued

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 S 12 '48 150w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p37 O 24 '48 90w

New Yorker 24:108 O 2 '48 80w

"We loved every minute of it." E. D. Doyle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 O 17 '48 100w

Sat R of Lit 31:38 O 23 '48 40w

HEBERDEN, MARY VIOLET. (CHARLES L. LEONARD, pseud). Drinks on the victim. 190p $2 Doubleday 47-12510

Detective story.

Kirkus 15:612 N 1 '47 70w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ja 18 '48 110w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p26 Ja 18 '48 250w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 11 '48 100w

"Routine."
Sat R of Lit 31:26 Ja 17 '48 50w

HEBERDEN, MARY VIOLET (CHARLES L. LEONARD, pseud). 4th funeral. 189p $2 Doubleday 48-8052

Detective story.

Booklist 45:52 O 1 '48

Kirkus 16:293 Je 15 '48 60w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p30 N 14 '48 50w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p13 S 5 '48 180w

New Yorker 24:84 S 4 '48 80w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p23 S 26 '48 60w

"Good entertainment."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:39 S 11 '48 40w

HECHT, DAVID. Russian radicals look to America, 1825-1894. 242p $4 Harvard univ. press 335 Socialism in Russia. Russia—Biography. Russia—Relations (general) with the U.S. U.S.—Relations (general) with Russia
47-11472

"Traces the substantial impact of American ideals and experiences in government on the radical thought of the pre-Marxian Russian revolutionists—Alexander Herzen, Nicholas Ogarev, Bakunin, Chernyshevski, Lavrov and Nicholas Chaikovski." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by A. G. Mazour
Am Hist R 53:537 Ap '48 420w

"In spite of some digressions into American history, which—though pertinent—are too extensive and detailed to coalesce readily with the rest of the material, the book is written interestingly and well. The numerous footnotes are more than a concession to academic pedantry." Henry Janzen
+ — Am Pol Sci R 42:171 F '48 380w

Reviewed by N. S. Timasheff
Ann Am Acad 255:187 Ja '48 350w

Canadian Forum 27:263 F '48 140w

Current Hist 14:297 My '48 40w

"Fully documented and significant for any study of the origins of the Russian Revolution of 1917 as well as any thorough examination of the earliest cultural relations between the United States and Russia. However, interest and use probably limited to scholarly collections." R. E. Kingery
Library J 72:1537 N 1 '47 80w

Reviewed by Deming Brown
New Eng Q 21:400 S '48 850w

"On every point of any consequence—the influence of the frontier federalism, the doctrine of the separation of powers, the Bill of Rights—to name but a few—Mr. Hecht brings in his demurrer. These things are not what we thought they were, nor are they what the six Russians thought they were. We stagger away wondering why Harvard and Mr. Hecht thought it worth while to resurrect those six Russians." Asher Byrnes
— Sat R of Lit 31:17 F 14 '48 600w

School & Society 66:351 N 1 '47 20w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:72 Mr '48 450w

HEDRICK, ULYSSES PRENTISS. Land of the crooked tree. 350p il $4 Oxford 917.74 Frontier and pioneer life—Michigan
48-8151

In 1874 the author's father took his little family to the newly opened Indian lands of the lower Michigan peninsula, to make a home in what was then a frontier section. These chapters are the author's recollections of the life among the descendants of the French-Canadians and Ottawa Indians with whom the trappers had intermarried.

Booklist 45:49 O 1 '48

Reviewed by Feike Feikema
Chicago Sun p66 O 27 '48 420w

"It makes good reading. Every man and woman who has regard and respect for the old skills of the land will read this book with delight." Horace Reynolds
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 O 21 '48 900w

"It gives a keen sense of living in the wilderness, and a real understanding of the hand labor so vital to their existence."
+ Kirkus 16:424 Ag 15 '48 120w

"The people of the region, including the Indians, are interestingly portrayed, but the chief interest of the book lies in the excellent descriptions of everyday farm life and activities, and natural scenes and events. . . A homely, enjoyable story." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 73:1382 O 1 '48 100w

" 'The Land of the Crooked Tree' is not a book made from other books. It is an original source, a museum of minutiae concerning life as it was lived on the frontier in the author's youth. That frontier era is swiftly receding from us. Such books as this form a valuable addition to the real history of our country." E. W. Teale
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 O 17 '48 600w

"This book unquestionably ranks among the best of its reminiscent kind. Mr. Hedrick's impressions of horse racing on the frozen lake, of gathering tanbark, of chores, crops, the first locomotive and of violent winter weather are as fresh as if lived through only yesterday. The writing brings Turgenev to mind, at least so far as it is similarly charged with adoration of the land. Indeed, Mr. Hedrick writes like a finished essayist, as if his entire life had been spent in nothing but literary discipline. His style is calm and simple, his rural tableaux are bathed in a golden light." E. B. Garside
+ N Y Times p6 O 17 '48 650w

"In the field of nature writing, into which this book to a certain extent falls, and yet from which it escapes in its larger aspects, Mr. Hedrick has achieved a realm of his own. This does not prevent the reader from being reminded of certain passages in Thoreau, of John Burroughs, of the late Dallas Lore Sharp, and of more recent books in the same category such as David Fairchild's 'The World Was My Garden.' Space forbids to prove it by quotation, but in such high company Ulysses Hedrick comes off extremely well." Hervey Allen
+ Sat R of Lit 31:17 O 30 '48 1200w

HEGGEN, THOMAS, and LOGAN, JOSHUA. Mister Roberts, a play; with a foreword by John Mason Brown. 162p il $2.50 Random house
812 48-7288

Text of the play based on the novel of the same name (Book Review Digest, 1946). The vocabulary of the play has been toned down somewhat.

Booklist 44:349 Je 15 '48

Reviewed by Theodore Kalem
Christian Science Monitor p11 S 16 '48 850w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Jl '48

"Especially as acted, it is very funny and at moments quietly moving with unforced sentiment. As once in fiction we faced down the facts of war with romantic glory, now we face them down with comedy." W. P. Eaton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Je 13 '48 180w

"As they have cut the novelist's description into the playwright's dialogue the two authors have been careful to give full characters to Mister Roberts and his colleagues. The language is male; most incidents are very funny, although some are touching, and the authors know better than to stop their play when Mister Roberts is transferred. That would have made only and easy comedy, but by continuing to his death they have made more." Lewis Nichols
+ N Y Times p15 Je 13 '48 370w

HEIDINGSFIELD, MYRON SAMUEL, and BLANKENSHIP, ALBERT BRENEMAN. Market and marketing analysis. 335p $4 Holt
658.8 Marketing. Market surveys 47-11380

"Textbook for beginning students in marketing research, and for business men without a specialized background in commercial research. In describing methods for getting answers to the many marketing problems which beset the manufacturer, the wholesaler, and the retailer, the authors evaluate alternative techniques and discuss situations in which each technique may be best applied." (Management R) Glossary. Suggested readings. Index.

"A good book in this field would be most welcome to all who are attempting to teach courses in market research. Personally I had hopes that this might be 'it.' The outline and much of the treatment are splendid, but evidences of hasty writing mar the usefulness of the book. A second edition might easily eliminate the weaknesses of the present volume, and I, for one, hope the authors will undertake a revision in the near future." R. S. Vaile
+ — Ann Am Acad 255:207 Ja '48 360w

"An excellent textbook."
+ Management R 37:223 Ap '48 60w

HEILMAN, ROBERT BECHTOLD. This great stage; image and structure in King Lear. 339p $3.50 La. state univ. press
822.33 Shakespeare, William—King Lear 48-8095

A detailed, exhaustive study of the interrelations between figures of speech, "patterns" of words, etc., and the structure and inner significance of Shakespeare's play, King Lear. Indexes.

Reviewed by P. W. Timberlake
Christian Science Monitor p15 D 16 '48 500w

Current Hist 15:351 D '48 40w

"The publishers do not do Mr. Heilman's book a service by saying that he 'undertakes a fresh approach to Shakespeare criticism.' He does not. But his book is an admirable consolidation of much of the most fruitful work done on Shakespeare in the last twenty-five years, and is the first satisfactory large-scale study of a single play in terms of structural imagery. The progress at times seems slow . . . but as Mr. Heilman proceeds he wins the reader's confidence more and more, and the play comes to make better sense—sense at once complex and lucid—than it ever did before." J. C. Maxwell
+ Spec 181:708 N 26 '48 600w

HEIMANN, EDUARD. Freedom and order; lessons from the war. 344p $3 Scribner
321.8 Democracy. Liberty. Political science 47-2608

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"Despite the rationalistic tendencies referred to, liberal society does possess a tacit system of values and is not, in my opinion, what Heimann designates a moral failure. . . I find myself questioning Heimann's optimistic expectation that Russia will ultimately become a pluralistic democracy, or that her territorial expansion has no economic motivations. Heimann's position rests partly upon his belief that the Soviets have fostered private peasant holdings and have abandoned total proletarianization, both of which are doubtful. . . I believe that Heimann concedes too much to economic planning at the expense of the price system. . . This is a deeply sincere book, one that points out several weaknesses in our society. It calls for a broad and morally responsible outlook among the social scientists, for that quality of dignity and honesty which led Marshall to cast the economist chiefly in the role of a censor of policy, though certainly equipped with the technical skills to be an intelligent one." G. H. Hildebrand
+ — Am Econ R 38:940 D '48 2500w

"Mr. Heimann presents a searching analysis of fascism, communism, democracy, and the present position of the social scientist. His work also includes a short history of the state, and an economic program for democracy. His comparison of Calvinism and Lutheranism is an outstanding performance. If the reader will persevere through what at times may be called a 'Germanic' style—the use of abstract nouns without specifying their definite meaning—he will be amply rewarded. For Mr. Heimann's work is characterized by insight and a wide background of knowledge." B. E. Lippincott
+ Am Pol Sci R 42:151 F '48 650w

Reviewed by O. P. Field
Ann Am Acad 258:142 Jl '48 450w

Foreign Affairs 26:393 Ja '48 20w

"There are a number of fundamental objections which arise in the consideration of this book. Chief among these is the peculiar meanings attached to the words 'freedom' and 'order.' . . In summary, this book continues in the same vein of irrationalism that leads to the very things Heimann opposes. What we need is a more rational approach to our problems in terms of human welfare." L. O. Kattsoff
Social Forces 26:361 Mr '48 1000w

U S Quarterly Bkl 3:373 D '47 280w

HEINE, HEINRICH. Rabbi of Bacherach; a fragment; with a selection from Heine's letters and an epilogue by Erich Loewenthal [prose tr. by E. B. Ashton]. 93p $1.50 Schocken
48-5121

An unfinished novel by the German Jewish poet. It was written in his youth and later part of it was destroyed by fire. It is the story of the escape of a rabbi and his wife from a ritual murder libel in the Rhineland of medieval days.

Booklist 44:186 Ja 15 '48

"It can scarcely be called great fiction, but in view of its source it is a precious fragment." W. E. G.
Christian Century 64:1337 N 5 '47 170w

Reviewed by H. A. Reinhold
Commonweal 47:177 N 28 '47 320w

"It is a most interesting fragment of a book."
+ Kirkus 15:539 S 15 '47 160w

HEINE, HEINRICH—Continued
Reviewed by Marie Syrkin
Nation 166:329 Mr 20 '48 450w
Reviewed by H. E. Wedeck
+ N Y Times p19 Ja 18 '48 70w

HEINLEIN, ROBERT ANSON. Space cadet; il. by Clifford N. Geary. 242p $2.50 Scribner 48-4723

Science-fiction story of the training of airship cadets in the year 2075. For boys 11-14.

Booklist 45:122 D 1 '48

"Good plot, excellent suspense and fantastically beautiful machines blend in a story that should make long time good reading for readers interested in mechanics."
+ Kirkus 16:312 Jl 1 '48 100w

"More difficult to read than author's Rocket Ship, Galileo [Book Review Digest 1947], because it is more technical. Accurate in all statements, it is a definite contribution to books on rocketry and outer space. . . Recommended." M. I. Ross
+ Library J 73:1675 N 15 '48 80w
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p22 N 14 '48 230w
N Y Times p59 N 14 '48 140w

"Fascinating in its scientific details and its presentation of people from other planets."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:46 N 13 '48 50w

HEINRITZ, STUART F. Purchasing. 671p $5.35; to schools $4 Prentice-Hall
658.7 Buying 47-11756

"Discussed from the functional viewpoint. Material was tested in author's course on the subject at Columbia University School of Business and much of data was drawn from current studies in purchasing and reports of purchasing development, published in Purchasing Magazine of which he is editor. Topics are organizations for purchasing, purchasing principles and procedure, tools of purchasing and purchasing policies." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 44:229 Mr 1 '48
Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:45 Ja 1 '48 70w

"The author is highly qualified for the task he has assumed. Years of experience with the National Association of Purchasing Agents, and as editor of the magazine Purchasing, have given him a broad, over-all viewpoint. He sees purchasing on the executive level and the purchasing agent as an executive contributing, along with production, engineering, sales, and finance, to the success of the enterprise; and he gives his readers the benefit of his insight into purchasing practices of varied types of businesses with which he has had contact. . . As fine as this book is, however, some subjects might have been dealt with more fully—e.g., procedures, and the problem of 'rush and small orders.' ". A. G. Pearson
+ — Management R 37:110 F '48 700w

HEINTZELMAN, ARTHUR WILLIAM, ed. See Rowlandson, T. Water color drawings

HEINZ, HENRY JOHN, and IORGY, J. Last defense. 194p $3 Duell
172.4 Peace. Social psychology 48-5975

"A moral and humanistic consideration of political and economic concepts and the presentation of a theory of 'human democracy' as the last defense against the decline and self-destruction of our civilization. The authors believe that political and economic organization should recognize the facts of human nature, in particular man's dominant desire for security against aggression and at the same time man's inherent urge toward aggression which causes wars and internal strife. In this light, the authors examine the ideas of racial tolerance, ideological war, totalitarianism, liberty, liberalism, conservatism, religion, etc." Kirkus

Kirkus 16:11 Ja 1 '48 160w

"Not recommended." Scott Adams
— Library J 72:1776 D 15 '47 50w

"Mr. Heinz and Dr. Iorgy are not unaware of the need for closing the gap between professed ideals and deeds, but this study will do little to meet that need; nor will it deepen man's understanding of himself or of the conflicting forces in human history." G. R. Stephenson
N Y Times p16 F 22 '48 500w

"Here is a book that says many good and true things, yet is so contradictory in places that it makes the reader wince. . . We believe in these things, wholeheartedly. We need more who believe in them. Any book which promotes them is admirable in its purpose, and if it persuades a hundred readers it will have helped. Unfortunately, this book is not going to promote an international recantation of doubt and greed. Its heart is in the right place, but its tongue gets twisted too often to be moving or lastingly persuasive." Hal Borland
— + Sat R of Lit 31:15 My 15 '48 500w

HELM, MACKINLEY. John Marin; with a foreword by John Marin. 255p pl $6.50 Pellegrini & Cudahy
B or 92 Marin, John 48-10619

Biography of the American painter, John Marin, and an analysis of his work. "In the course of [this work] more than enough information appears—a great part of it in Marin's own words—about the artist's way of life, his working methods, and his philosophy to make the book an unusually definitive one. There are seventy-three plates, nine of them in color." (New Yorker) Index.

Booklist 45:177 Ja 15 '49
Kirkus 16:541 O 1 '48 150w

"Helm's close and friendly association with Marin has enabled him to watch Marin at work and to discuss with him his ideas about painting. When these observations and discussions are utilized, as particularly in the last chapter, Helm makes a valuable contribution. . . Marin may or may not be the greatest living American painter. . . I am enchanted by Marin as a human being, a nature lover, a Yankee craftsman, and a poetic mariner. . . But I think that the best Marins are emotive fragments, and I do not share today's worship of the sketch at the expense of yesterday's belief that what counts is the long pull, the orchestration of emotive fragments into the complex work of many simultaneous levels of meaning." S. L. Faison
+ — Nation 167:640 D 4 '48 900w

"This chuckling biography of John Marin, the American painter and etcher, avoids at least two of the bogs into which students of the modern artist often tumble. Already trained as a biographer on Roland Hayes and as an annalist of Mexican painters, Mackinley Helm does not summon the reader to gasps and torments as he confronts the artist parboiled in the flames like a martyr. Nor does he join the ranks of the propagandist of Americanism-in-paint. Rather, he twinkles with urbanity and sometimes pauses for a philosophical reflection, and this makes him a perfect prism for his subject." Jerome Mellquist
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 N 21 '48 1250w

"What wonderful work [Marin's] has been is freshly stated in this labor of love, where [his] first fumbling sketches are traced through a career that even today, at the age of 78, produces water-colors that for technical bravura are the envy of his younger colleagues. . . It is a feeling tribute to a humble man and a great artist." W. G. Dooley
+ N Y Times p6 D 5 '48 460w

"In a rather pedestrian style, but with a truly admirable massing of detail, Mr. Helm tells the life story of the man who is . . . almost unquestionably America's foremost artist."
+ New Yorker 24:147 N 27 '48 100w

HELM, MACKINLEY. Journeying through Mexico; decorations by William C. Estler. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 297p $3 Little

917.2 Mexico—Description and travel 48-5847

A combination of guidebook and travelogue on Mexico. Starting at Houston, Texas, by car, the route leads thru Mexico City, Cuernavaca, Taxco, Acapulco, Yucatan, etc. Contains historic, architectural, and scenic data, road routes, lists of hotels and restaurants, lists of holidays and fiestas, etc. Map on end papers. Index.

Booklist 44:267 Ap 1 '48

"An excellent guide—sympathetic, detailed, clear, humorous and adult." Oden and Olivia Meeker

+ Chicago Sun Mr 31 '48 400w

Christian Science Monitor p13 Ap 24 '48 250w

"Two intelligent features are a résumé of Mexican history and colonial architecture and some advice as to a wardrobe, with a warning to the ladies that slacks and shorts are bad taste in Mexico City. Of one thing I am certain; that the Helms and their dogs would be delightful companions on any motor trip anywhere." E. V. R. Wyatt

+ Commonweal 49:45 O 22 '48 390w

"As pleasure reading, there's little of personal interest, too much functional detail. But as a handbook for the tourist, the practical details bog down in descriptions of what the traveller will see for himself. Nonetheless, with the tremendous increase of travel in Mexico, this has its place."

— + Kirkus 16:17 Ja 1 '48 130w

"Only in one respect would I venture to differ with so knowing a guide. Having lived ten years in Mexico and become immunized to its contaminated water and sometimes contaminated food, Mr. Helm is a little bullish on these matters and tends to ascribe sudden attacks of mild dysentery exclusively to 'fatigue.' . . In this one regard, the novice would do well to consult the more alarming guidance of others. Beyond that, Mr. Helm will do very well to see you all the way through." B. D. Wolfe

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Mr 14 '48 450w

"Those contemplating a trip to Mexico by whatever mode of travel will find the book accurate and of great practical assistance. Those who already have been to Mexico will set it down with the resolve to go back and recover pleasures that slipped them by; and armchair travelers who find the book in their hands will encounter a rare combination of facts on travel, art, architecture, legends and the people of the country." H. W. Bentley

+ N Y Times p3 My 9 '48 550w

"The visitor to Mexico can use this friendly guide for a quick, two-week high-spotting, or he can take it easy as Helm himself has so often done. In either case, Mr. Helm's book can and will be of use to him." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Mr 16 '48 600w

Wis Lib Bul 44:148 S '48

HELMERICKS, MRS CONSTANCE, and HELMERICKS, HARMON. Our summer with the Eskimos. 239p il $3.50 Little

917.98 Eskimos. Alaska—Description and travel 48-8905

Records the experiences of this young American husband and wife during a summer spent with the Eskimos on the edge of the Arctic. Illustrated with photographs. Map on end papers.

Booklist 45:64 O 15 '48

"For good family reading of an adventurous type, it would be hard to find a more lively and informative book than 'Our Summer With the Eskimos.'" O. D. Hormel

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 O 7 '48 210w

"The authors maintain throughout their record an informal familiarity of style, portraying the happy, nonchalant Eskimos not as uncivilized aborigines but as the Mr. Joneses and Mrs. Browns of our daily acquaintance. . . And those who have read 'Our Winter With the Eskimos,' the Helmericks' earlier book, will need no further incentive to embark upon this one." D. K. L.

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 N 10 '48 390w

Kirkus 16:387 Ag 1 '48 180w

"Entertaining and well written, should prove popular in all public libraries. Recommended." M. P. McKay

+ Library J 73:1188 S 1 '48 130w

"The Helmericks have written an interesting book. Not the least attractive quality about it is their engaging modesty. It is the first record of adventure into far places that this reviewer has read in many a day in which the traveler admitted learning more from the natives than he could teach them." J. H. Durston

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 N 7 '48 950w

"They have written of the north before, and they will write more, for their saga is not ended. The present volume is well worth reading, if only for the misconceptions it will dispel. One cannot help but admire the authors' courage and resourcefulness, of which they say little, but which is inherent in their way of living." Russell Owen

+ N Y Times p37 N 7 '48 410w

San Francisco Chronicle p24 D 5 '48 250w

Sat R of Lit 31:40 O 30 '48 100w

Wis Lib Bul 44:212 D '48

HELPER, HINTON ROWAN. Dreadful California; being a true and scandalous account of the barbarous civilization, licentious morals, crude manners and depravities, inclement climate and niggling resources, together with various other offensive and calamitous details of life in the Golden State; ed. by Lucius Beebe and Charles M. Clegg; il. by James Alexander. 162p $2.50 Bobbs

917.94 California—Description and travel 48-8325

"'Dreadful California' is by that Hinton Helper whose 'Impending Crisis' shook the country just before the Civil War and made its author one of the most famous and notorious men of the time. He had visited California in 1852 and been unfortunate there. He vented his feelings in a book called 'The Land of Gold: Reality Versus Fiction.' The present work is a condensation of that original with 300 pages reduced to 162 and a reworking of connectives. Hinton Helper disliked nearly everything about California, and pulled no punches when he wrote. He worked with the muck-raker's method of choosing facts and figures that illustrate only the bad." N Y Times

---

Reviewed by Carey McWilliams

Nation 167:473 O 23 '48 360w

"In their introduction to 'Dreadful California,' the editors suggest that California's reputation as an earthly paradise is one of the great American hoaxes. There are moments in this book when one almost harbors a suspicion that Hinton Helper is a hoax. The warp of his prose has a Lucius Beebe woof." Lisle Bell

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 O 10 '48 470w

"'Dreadful California' seems to be published as a half-hoax, a volume to be pressed into the hand of the friend departing westward, with the mysterious warning that this will let him know what he must really expect in California." G. R. Stewart

N Y Times p25 S 12 '48 270w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ag 31 '48 600w

HEMMING, JAMES, and BALLS, JOSEPHINE. The child is right; a challenge to parents and other adults. 176p $2.25 Longmans

649.1 Children—Management. Child study 48-908

A psychology of childhood, with case histories showing mistakes parents have made and how they could have been avoided.

"Parents who are sympathetic to the psychological approach but don't quite know how to apply it should find this book particularly useful."

New Statesman & Nation 34:514 D 20 '47 180w

School & Society 68:31 Je 10 '48 10w

HENDEL, CHARLES WILLIAM. Civilization and religion; an argument about values in human life; pub. for the Rice institute. 78p $2 Yale univ. press

261.6 Civilization, Christian. Religion—Philosophy 48-6939

The Rockwell lectures on religion delivered March 25-27, 1947, at the Rice Institute. They give an account of what GI's thought about fundamental reality during the author's philosophy course at the United States Army University at Shrivenham, England. The last lecture gives the views of the author and veterans about politics, education, and religion in the postwar world. Indexes.

"It is remarkable with what skill and clarity Dr. Hendel brings Socrates, Kirkegaard, Plato, St. Paul and the students into grips together." P. E. Osgood

+ Churchman 162:15 My 15 '48 240w

Reviewed by Arthur Child

Ethics 58:314 Jl '48 280w

"As a whole this little book is a simple, balanced, and thoughtful statement of the value of philosophy and high religion in this period of cultural chaos. It can be warmly recommended to both philosophers and laymen." J. R. E.

+ J Philos 45:634 N 4 '48 300w

Reviewed by S. S. S. Browne

J Religion 28:282 O '48 650w

School & Society 68:31 Je 10 '48 20w

Springf'd Republican p8B F 15 '48 80w

HENDELSON, WILLIAM H., ed. See Worldscope encyclopedia

HENDERSON, LE GRAND (LE GRAND, pseud). Augustus and the desert; il. by the author. 158p $2 Bobbs

48-9040

"With all the curiosity, ingenuity and hindsight competence that has seen him through a long series of varied adventures, Augustus tackles the Arizona desert, tangles with an archeologist, some Indians, a gold mine, and a slick scoundrel, and comes out on top." N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p9 Ja 25 '49 130w

"Recommended for ages 8-10." Judith Stevenson

+ Library J 73:1746 D 1 '48 70w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 N 14 '48 60w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

N Y Times p45 O 17 '48 80w

HENDERSON, LE GRAND (LE GRAND, pseud). Cats for Kansas [pictures by the author]. $1.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury

48-8277

Story of how Trader Gabe Slade brought a crate of cats from the East to Kansas despite a drying river, an Indian attack, and a wild buffalo.

Booklist 45:73 O 15 '48

"Exaggerated folk tale style and a few pictures which bother the sticklers for detail. Several children pointed out to me that any cat could squeeze between the bent slats of Gabe's crate." M. B. King

Chicago Sun p21 O 2 '48 80w

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '48

Commonweal 49:145 N 19 '48 20w

"Regional yarn, retold with fun and fancy, in gay rhythmic prose and joshing illustrations."

+ Kirkus 16:476 S 15 '48 90w

"Well told, charming picture book of the West. Humorous illustrations. Recommended highly for girls and boys of 4-8." Barbara Perkins

+ Library J 73:1388 O 1 '48 50w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 N 14 '48 160w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p45 O 17 '48 140w

New Yorker 24:136 D 11 '48 80w

Springf'd Republican p7B N 7 '48 70w

Wis Lib Bul 44:186 N '48

HENDERSON, LUIS M. Amik, the life story of a beaver; il. by [the author]. 158p $2.50 Morrow

Beavers—Legends and stories 48-5951

Life story of the beaver Amik, from the time of his birth to his maturity. Gives a sense of the skilled workmanship of the beaver colony, and of their happy home life. For ages nine to twelve.

Booklist 44:302 My 1 '48

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun My 1 '48 180w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 24:278 Jl '48 80w

"The author knows and reveres beavers, and manages in his story to impart a sense of personality into his subject without trying to humanize them sentimentally."

+ Kirkus 16:110 Mr 1 '48 90w

"Recommended especially for children 9-12 and all nature-lovers." J. F. Kennedy

+ Library J 73:657 Ap 15 '48 70w

Reviewed by Marjorie Burger

N Y Times p12 Ag 1 '48 140w

Springf'd Republican p10A Jl 18 '48 120w

Wis Lib Bul 44:84 Ap '48

HENDERSON, MRS STELLA (VAN PETTEN). Introduction to philosophy of education. 401p $4 Univ. of Chicago press

370.1 Education—Philosophy 47-12128

"A textbook intended to be helpful to the student preparing for a career as a teacher. Mrs. Henderson has used the text in her classes at Illinois State Normal University." (Current Hist) Bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 44:228 Mr 1 '48

Current Hist 14:105 F '48 40w

"A supplementary feature of this book is a philosophical glossary, containing five pages of serviceable definitions. The bibliography of fiction is another exceptionally interesting unit and indicates the helpfulness of literary background material for the ambitious student of the philosophy of education. . . The author is a teacher as well as a philosopher and textbook-writer. It is anticipated that the time and energy consumed in plotting and arranging the subject matter of this book will contribute conspicuously to its popular use in the college classroom." C. D. Champlin

+ El School J 48:342 F '48 700w

"Mrs. Henderson has succeeded in the difficult task of introducing the philosophy of education in terms drawn from philosophy rather than from education, and in applying the tentative conclusions thus reached to educational problems. There are, as a result, sections of this book which might come straight out of one of the better introductory texts in philosophy. The author is to be congratulated on achieving this, her expressed intention." J. L. B.

+ J Philos 45:249 Ap 22 '48 360w
School & Society 67:111 F 7 '48 20w

HENDRY, CHARLES ERIC, ed. Decade of group work. 189p $2.50 Assn. press
301.1535 Group work 48-5775

"The American Association of Group Workers sponsors this book as a record of the experimental decade leading up to its organization in 1946. The contributors to the Decade of Group Work represent the many different settings where the group-work method is used." (Pref) Partial contents: Group work in camping—yesterday, today, and tomorrow, by L. H. Blumenthal; Group work in child welfare services, by J. M. Luck; Group work and therapy, by Gisela Konopka; Group work in religious education, by L. K. Hall; Group work in the low-rent housing setting, by C. C. Jones; Group work in schools and institutions of higher learning, by Ruth Strang; Practices and applications during wartime, by Ray Johns; Group work in management and personnel, including public administration, by T. H. Nelson; Socio-psychological research and group work, by Ronald Lippitt. Bibliographies. No Index.

"Not all articles sustain the interest of the reviewer, not all writers (or, rather, discussants) approach their subject matter from an impartial standpoint and broad perspective; some sound like reformers rather than administrators. On the whole, however, the volume is highly readable and does constitute a record of 'notable achievement.'" P. V. Young
+ — Am J Soc 54:256 N '48 370w

"An important book for our times. . .Of special interest are the reports on groupwork in the war years." M. R. Ephraim
+ Survey 84:346 N '48 700w

HENKLE, HENRIETTA (MRS P. J. STEPHENS) (HENRIETTA BUCKMASTER, pseud). Fire in the heart. 351p $3 Harcourt
Kemble, Frances Anne—Fiction 48-8791

Novel based on the life of Fanny Kemble. It begins with Fannie's debut as Juliet at Covent Garden when she was eighteen, and covers the years of her marriage with the American, Pierce Butler. The novel closes with the news that Butler is about to divorce her.

Booklist 45:88 N 1 '48

"The rich drama of Fanny Kemble's life story, stemming from one of the most colorful epochs of the English-speaking theater, has been told many times by ardent and prolific biographers. Now, the dramatic high point of the story . . . has been brought within the compass of a novel and given fresh focus, in an effective blend of vivacious charm and fervent idealism." O. D. Hormel
+ Christian Science Monitor p15 O 28 '48 650w

"This is a fascinating book."
+ Kirkus 16:407 Ag 15 '48 180w

"Adhering closely to source material, author has evoked the revolutionary spirit of the times abroad both in England and America. Most heartily recommended for small library purchase." F. A. Boyle
+ Library J 73:1272 S 15 '48 70w

"'Fire in the Heart' is easy to read and hard to forget." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 O 24 '48 550w

"Her account is sensitive, revealing and filled with evidence of Miss Buckmaster's careful researches into the life of the period and the career of Fanny Kemble. Although Miss Buckmaster does no violence to the facts, her treatment is imaginative and literary rather than biographical." N. K. Burger
+ N Y Times p31 O 24 '48 600w
Wis Lib Bul 45:14 Ja '49

HENNEKE, BEN GRAF. Radio announcer's handbook. 308p $4 Rinehart
621.384193 Radio broadcasting 48-1593

Handbook for those already in the radio field and for students who wish to make it their career. The first fifty pages contain instruction on speech and pronunciation for announcers, on ad libbing, and on the duties of the announcer. This is followed by many exercises, perforated for removal and rating charts for individual marking. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 44:294 My 1 '48
School & Society 67:254 Mr 27 '48 20w

HENNEY, KEITH. Color photography for the amateur. (Whittlesey house publication) rev ed 355p pl $5 McGraw 778.6 Color photography 48-7778

"The author of this book is an amateur color photographer of long standing. His descriptions of developing and printing materials and procedures are based largely on his own experiences. . . In comparison to the first edition (1938), there has been a good deal of revision and expansion, particularly in the chapters on transparencies, separation negatives, and color printing processes. There are also much new material on masking for color correction and a bibliography of this subject." (N Y New Tech Bks) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1938. Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1517 O 15 '48 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 33:75 S '48

HENRY, MRS MARGUERITE. King of the wind; il. by Wesley Dennis. 175p $2.75 Rand McNally
Horses—Legends and stories 48-8773

Story of Sham, the Godolphin Arabian who was an ancestor of the famous race horse Man O' War. Contains a list of books consulted. For ages 8-14.

Booklist 45:91 N 1 '48

"The story is true to all known facts. The legendary part is inspiring." M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun O 16 '48 230w
Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '48

"Sham, Agba and the cat, Grimalkin, are so well drawn in word and picture that they will long be remembered by all who read this fine book." J. D. L.
+ Horn Bk 24:463 N '48 90w
+ Kirkus 16:529 O 1 '48 180w

"Vivid portrayals of Morocco, France, and England during the 1700's are presented while the story unfolds. With its illustrations by Wesley Dennis, this is one of the most distinguished books of the year." J. M. Smith
+ Library J 73:1825 D 15 '48 100w

"In 'King of the Wind' Marguerite Henry stirs the reader's imagination, holds his interest, makes him laugh a little and cry a little —satisfies him. The moving quality of the writing is echoed in Wesley Dennis's beautiful pictures, and the book as a whole has been given a format worthy of a story which boys and girls will read again and again." P. A. W.
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 N 14 '48 230w

Reviewed by G. C. Castor
N Y Times p3 N 14 '48 140w

"Ably written and beautifully illustrated."
+ New Yorker 24:140 D 11 '48 120w
Sat R of Lit 31:42 N 13 '48 30w
Wis Lib Bul 44:187 N '48

HENRY, PORTER, and ALLARD, WILLIAM. Handbook of outboard motorboating; drawings by M. B. Wakefield. (Whittlesey house publication) 252p $3.50 McGraw

797.125 Motor boats 48-5459

"With the cooperation of outboard manufacturers, dealers, and associations, the authors have attempted to assemble a complete guide to all phases of outboard motorboating, useful and practical for both the novice and the experienced outboard owner." (Foreword) Index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:202 F 1 '48 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:34 My '48

HENRY, WILLIAM MELLORS. An approved history of the Olympic games. 371p il $5 Putnam

796.4 Olympic games 48-2889

Outline history of the Olympic games. Contains a chapter on the ancient Olympic games, and describes each modern meeting, with official results and complete record of champions. Illustrated with photographs. Approved by the Olympic committee. No index.

Library J 73:1030 Jl '48 30w

"Authoritative, thorough and impartial book. . . The history of the Olympics, intelligently presented, makes engrossing reading." Rex Lardner
+ N Y Times p19 Ag 1 '48 360w

Springf'd Republican p11B Je 6 '48 550w

HENTIG, HANS VON. Crime: causes and conditions. 379p $3.50 McGraw

364.2 Crime and criminals 47-3651

"One of Europe's leading authorities, resident in America for several years, has written a volume dealing with crime causation only and not treatment aspects. Divided into four parts, the book deals first with the problem of crime, its characteristics, origin and evolution, and method of approach. . . Parts II and III deal with the causes of crime, the first being physiological variables and the second social forces, including economic conditions and social units such as the family and neighborhood. Part IV is an original approach called conditions of crime, such as organized mass impellants, mass crises of war and revolution, and the element of chance." (Am J Soc) Indexes.

Reviewed by M. B. Clinard
Am J Soc 53:410 Mr '48 950w

Reviewed by Verne Wright
Am Soc R 13:114 F '48 600w

School & Society 66:96 Ag 2 '47 30w

"Teachers and students both will find in its specialized approach and in its penetrating realism something different in the way of a criminology textbook." P. W. Shankweiler
+ Social Forces 26:487 My '48 600w

HENTIG, HANS VON. Criminal and his victim; studies in the sociobiology of crime. 461p $6 Yale univ. press

364.3 Crime and criminals. Criminal psychology 48-8098

"Former German, now American, recognized authority, digs deeply into the causes of criminal behavior. Book's four parts are: Constitutional Factors and Crime; Sociobiological Behavior; Geophysics and Crime and The Victim. Author abandons old controversy of social or constitutional causation of crime. Making use of a wealth of well-documented data he shows that 'environmental forces frequently produce criminal behavior through disposition-conditioned media such as: a mental defect, a physical handicap, a tempting vocation or a living tempter, called 'victim.'" (Library J) Indexes.

"Widely researched, these studies are the result of intensive investigation and should be of value to socio-criminologists."
+ Kirkus 16:383 Ag 1 '48 170w

"Scholarly work, strongly recommended, not only for criminologist, but for much wider circle such as psychologist, educator, lawmaker, political scientist, etc." H. H. A. Bernt
+ Library J 73:1087 Ag '48 140w

Reviewed by E. J. Lukas
N Y Times p10 O 3 '48 900w

"As Dr. von Hentig knows, much more is needed in the way of scientific investigation. But this book pioneers soundly in that direction, especially concerning the 'crime-provocative' qualities in the victim. With more study in this area particularly, crime prevention might be made possible on a far wider scale than ever before." J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 S 27 '48 800w

School & Society 68:224 S 25 '48 10w

HERBAGE, JULIAN LIVINGSTON-. Messiah. (World of music ser) 71p il $2 Chanticleer

783.3 Händel, Georg Friedrich—Messiah 49-899

A history of Handel's famous oratorio, including background of Handel's life and achievements in London during the years 1710-1741, the writing of the work and its earliest performances, Handel's connections with the Foundling Hospital where for many years performances were given annually, and the subsequent history of the work, the re-writings by Mozart and others. Index.

"This is Handel, and he will come to life more for many in this brief and special study than in most longer reading experiences." John Brubaker
+ Commonweal 49:212 D 3 '48 130w

"Himself an editor of the Messiah score, Herbage executes his scheme with firm assurance, relating the fortunes and misfortunes of Messiah in a graceful, relaxed style which should delight the average music-lover while it enlightens the serious student." R. M. Myers
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 5:570 S '48 480w

HERBERT, SIR ALAN PATRICK. Leave my old morale alone. 445p $5 Doubleday

827 World war, 1939-1945—Humor, caricatures, etc. 48-5559

An omnibus volume containing six volumes dealing with World war II, published at various times in England. The section: Well Anyhow, is the only prose book in the collection and consists of dialogs.

Booklist 44:214 F 15 '48

Kirkus 15:637 N 15 '47 190w

Reviewed by Gerald McDonald
Library J 73:474 Mr 15 '48 100w

"This book was war work and served a war purpose. But even the liveliest war poster seems a little dead and dated now. The war is over, and one waits for Mr. Herbert to return to the arts of peace and the art of poetry." Irwin Edman
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ja 25 '48 900w

"In the introduction, Mr. Herbert explains that the various items of his collection were written while he operated a patrol boat (Water Gipsy) on a sixty-mile stretch of the river. He telephoned the pieces to the papers, at times against considerable odds, and he thinks of them as items in a war diary. One section of the book is in the form of prose dialogues, and sometimes, as is often true of English comedies, the humor of these has not fully crossed the Atlantic. As a versifying war diarist, however, Mr. Herbert knew his job. His old morale was high." Lewis Nichols
N Y Times p6 Ja 11 '48 700w

"This volume is a sort of humorous, but, justifiably, not good-humored, history of the war, and the hundreds of poems in it touch on just about every topic that Englishmen were concerned with during six years of fighting."
+ New Yorker 23:83 Ja 10 '48 80w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ja 14 '48 550w

"'Leave My Old Morale Alone' is certainly not the best introduction to A.P.H., but it is a pretty valiant chapter in private as well as public history." David McCord
+ — Yale R n s 37:557 spring '48 1100w

HERKIMER, HERBERT, and HERKIMER, HAROLD. Air conditioning. 692p il $12 Chemical pub. co.

628.8 Air conditioning 47-5399

"Data accumulated during 35 years experience in the air-conditioning industry is presented in this book. The first part deals with pertinent chemistry, physics and thermodynamics, and the second part with application aspects, such as equipment and costs. Included are chapters on heat transmission of building materials, air distribution, humidification control, spray systems, cooling towers, refrigeration, unit and central air-conditioning systems, automatic controls, cost estimation and practical applications." Eng N

"Clearly and concisely written, the book should be useful as a text or handbook to the engineers engaged in design and installation."
+ Eng N 139:128 D 11 '47 150w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 72:615 N 15 '47 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 32:68 O '47

HEROLD, JEANE CHRISTOPHER. Swiss without halos. 271p il maps $3.75 Columbia univ. press

949.4 Switzerland. National characteristics, Swiss 48-8907

"Unbiased account of the Swiss people, their history and customs, their literature, art and science, religious turmoil, and economic problems. Does not attempt to underestimate the abilities of the Swiss, but shows that their unity was not achieved without cost, and that they still have their problems." (Booklist) Selected bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:101 N 15 '48

Chicago Sun p8X Ja 9 '49 60w

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 13 '49 750w

Current Hist 15:350 D '48 70w

"Plenty of controversial but revealing material here; scholarly without being pedantic in style."
+ Kirkus 16:541 O 1 '48 300w

"Delightful background book for intelligent travelers and for college students who are sick of dull textbooks. Illustrations, maps, extracts from the Swiss federal constitution, statistics and a very carefully selected bibliography add to the usefulness of charming volume." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 73:1508 O 15 '48 150w

Reviewed by E. W. Fox
N Y Times p20 N 7 '48 350w

"'The Swiss Without Halos' is not a travel book designed to transport the breathless reader to the Switzerland of the postcards. It is more solid stuff and excellent reading." E. J.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 N 28 '48 210w

Springf'd Republican p14A Ja 23 '49 150w

HERON, ALEXANDER R. Why men work. 197p $2.75 Stanford univ. press

331.1 Labor and laboring classes. Employment management 48-6704

A study which presents arguments for better management-employee relations and more employee participation in industrial planning. Directed primarily to management. No index.

Reviewed by Robert Dubin
Am J Soc 54:377 Ja '49 550w

Booklist 44:307 My 15 '48

Reviewed by Harold Wolff
New Repub 119:24 Jl 12 '48 470w

"Mr. Heron's book is a significant landmark in the thinking of industrial management. . . It is unfortunate, however, that Mr. Heron has grounded his entire work on a question which is posed inadequately. The fact that productivity per worker is less in 1946 than in 1941 is, as Professor Sumner Slichter has pointed out, the result of the fact that our machinery is becoming old rather than of a decline in effort. This does not, however, reduce the importance of the book because the sad fact is, as Mr. Heron recognizes, that pride in work has become among both top management, unions, and the rank and file, a disappearing value." H. R. Northrup
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:41 Ja 22 '49 550w

"Readable and practical, 'Why Men Work' is a 'must for students of economics and management leaders as well as the average American who is disturbed by the conflicts within our industrial world." R. J. Gray
+ Survey 84:381 D '48 400w

HERSCH, VIRGINIA (DAVIS) (MRS LEE HERSCH). To seize a dream. 341p $3 Crown

Delacroix, Eugène—Fiction 48-9092

Fictionized biography of the French artist, Eugène Delacroix, based on his journal and letters.

Booklist 45:159 Ja 1 '49

Reviewed by Irving Stone
Chicago Sun p28 N 30 '48 600w

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p15 D 16 '48 190w

"For the factual material, well worth the reading, but as a novel not as important."
+ — Kirkus 16:453 S 1 '48 220w

"In 'To Seize a Dream,' Mrs. Hersch enables you to view, to appraise and to enjoy thoroughly the changing landscape of a great artist's life." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 N 14 '48 1100w

"Rich, warm, fast-paced novel." Anne Fremantle
+ N Y Times p10 N 14 '48 470w

HERSCHBERGER, RUTH. Adam's rib. 221p $3.50 Pellegrini & Cudahy

612.6 Sex. Woman—History and condition 48-5831

An analysis of the position of women in modern society. The author argues that because women have been taught from infancy to regard themselves as receptive and passive and to repress their physical desires, society has in fact educated women to be frigid and frustrated. This role, says the author, is not what nature intended. No index.

Reviewed by M. J. Ward
Chicago Sun p8X Mr 28 '48 240w

"'Adam's Rib' is an old-fashioned title for a book that in part at least, wears the New Look. It is a book by an indignant woman, and a clever one, who disguises her indignation by a humorous approach. Sometimes this approach is highly entertaining and sometimes it becomes mere coyness." Lorine Pruette
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p19 My 16 '48 700w

Reviewed by Edgar Brooke
— N Y Times p20 Ag 1 '48 550w

"A clever, literate, and coldly logical analysis."
+ New Yorker 24:126 Mr 13 '48 80w

"The psychological implications of this admittedly unconventional attitude toward woman's role may well continue to cause acrimonious debate, but a new point of view in regard to the 'facts' about women is refreshing in itself. Many of these 'facts' are commonplaces to the reader of those dreary little volumes on 'sane sex life' but the somewhat oblique angle from which Miss Herschberger views them shows some of them in a new light. Furthermore, the book is fun to read." W. H. H.

HERSCHBERGER, RUTH—Continued
+ Springf'd Republican p10B Mr 28 '48 370w

HERSCHBERGER, RUTH. Way of happening [poems]. 56p $2 Pellegrini & Cudahy 811 48-1219

A first book of poems by an American poet. "The title of the book may be presumed to indicate her admiration for Auden. . . Yet the influence of Auden, a thing almost as pervasive in poetry today as Picassoisms in painting, is totally assimilated." (N Y Times)

"Miss Herschberger, to begin with, is one of those rare poets who never write an off-key or dull poem; the shock of recognition is on every page. . . It is a delight to encounter a woman poet who is neither an eater of her own soul (obscurantism is usually the fruit of this vice), nor a militant feminist, nor a purveyor of the coy and endearing. . . It would give one great satisfaction to believe that this book could (as it should) become a popular success. One suspects that it is too good." Selden Rodman
+ N Y Times p14 My 9 '48 850w

"I read these 36 poems three times because they beckoned me back. I hope many others will share my experience. Miss Herschberger writes beautifully. Her limitations involve willingness to be unnecessarily clever and she has yet to attain full orchestration of poetic elements. Her treatments of scientific material are resourceful and her love poems are intense." T. H. Ferril
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 13 '48 80w

"Perhaps the most striking quality of this too-long delayed first book of poems is its exuberance. This manifests itself in many ways: in the fresh, scoured diction; the sympathetic clarity of observation, particularly of animal and vegetable shapes and textures, which clothes itself in imagery at once homely, strange, and just; the urgent rhythms, controlled, yet always on the point of bursting." Dudley Fitts
+ Sat R of Lit 31:31 S 25 '48 500w

HERSKOVITS, MELVILLE JEAN. Man and his works; the science of cultural anthropology. 678p il $6.75 Knopf
572 Society, Primitive. Anthropology
48-8147

"This book is a reconnaissance mission covering the entire field of cultural anthropology . . . In the course of this work, the author considers such things as the nature of culture, which he defines as 'the way of life of a people;' the differences between primitive and civilized society (some of which have been exaggerated in the past, it would appear); religion; 'absolutes' in morality; cultural change and what causes it; habitat and its effect on behavior; and race and discovery and invention and the old dependable—sex." (New Yorker) Bibliographies. Index.

Reviewed by Cedric Dover
+ Am J Soc 54:384 Ja '49 1350w

"This book is written with a minimum of jargon and a wealth of illustrations. . . It is a particular pleasure to be able to pay tribute to Dr. Herskovits' mature evaluation of the whole field of anthropology since his own considerable contributions to particular aspects of the discipline have not always been free of wholesome challenge." Cora Du Bois
+ Ann Am Acad 260:204 N '48 550w
Booklist 45:60 O 15 '48

"Primarily a textbook for students in colleges, Professor Herskovits' newest book should fulfill the requirements for that purpose without question, but it may possibly find a wider field. Because of its simplicity of style and freedom from professorial preaching, it offers an excellent introduction to the subject for the discerning reader. More than that, it gives a rounded-out review of the topic for the postgraduate, or anyone who finds the study of man absorbing reading." Roy Hillbrook
+ Current Hist 15:224 O '48 800w

Reviewed by Gitel Poznanski
N Y Times p26 N 14 '48 800w

"Altogether, it is quite a book."
+ New Yorker 24:110 S 18 '48 220w

"The volume is profusely illustrated, completely indexed and equipped with an excellent bibliography. It is to be hoped that a study which emphasizes the basic unity of the human family will find a wide reading public." R. G. C.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 24 '48 250w

" 'Man and His Works' is a handsome volume, easy upon the eye in every sense. The author deserves high praise for the effort and imagination that went into the selection of the excellent figures and beautiful plates. This is visual education in the best sense, for every illustration is both pleasing in itself and highly relevant to the text. The writing is lucid, perhaps needlessly academic in spots, perhaps a little prolix." Clyde Kluckhohn
+ Sat R of Lit 31:11 S 18 '48 1250w

Reviewed by M. E. Opler
Social Educ 13:41 Ja '49 700w

Reviewed by J. A. Neprash
Social Studies 40:45 Ja '49 700w

HERTZ, LOUIS HEILBRONER. Handbook of old American toys. 119p il $3.50 Mark Haber & co, 12 Kenwood rd, Wethersfield, Conn.
688.7 Toys 47-12372

"A short summary of the various types of toys, and the toy industry as it developed in this country from the 1840's to the present is provided in these informal chapters, illustrated with several hundred pictures from manufacturers' catalogues. Classified on the basis of material or motive power, the toys are briefly described as to coloring, lettering or other characteristics, and dates assigned to the important types of each group to indicate their historical interest and relative value as collectors' items. In view of the fact that mechanical banks represent a field of special interest, the author has compiled a list of all known examples, totaling over 300 and including a few of foreign make. These are evaluated as to rarity and desirability." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

N Y New Tech Bks 33:30 Ja '48
Reviewed by R. S. Robbins
N Y Times p23 My 16 '48 110w

HERZBERG, MAX JOHN, comp. Treasure chest of sea stories. 349p $3 Messner 48-9315

Contents: Troubled voyage, by William Holder; Chances, by K. W. Detzer; A plain tale of the sea, by A. F. Loomis; The fourth man, by John Russell; Cape Horn pilot, by Jacland Marmur; The Corvette Claymore, by Victor Hugo; Salt on the braid, by R. W. Daly; The extraordinary adventures of a chief mate, by W. C. Russell; The derelict Neptune, by Morgan Robertson; The engraved oarblade, by Jack London; The fifth John Traynor, by Arthur Mason; Gulliver the Great, by W. A. Dyer; The last pilot schooner, by R. D. Paine; David Mackleby, by J. F. Wilson; The guardian of five-fathom channel, by Don Waters; When the anchor dragged, by A. F. Loomis; April first on April second, by J. N. Hall; Dixon's return, by W. W. Jacobs; Captain Jonathan, by Richard Stern; Throw the man overboard, by A. R. Wetjen.

Booklist 45:160 Ja 1 '49

Kirkus 16:441 S 1 '48 70w

"For sheer excitement, the book will intrigue boys, and probably their fathers, too. Recommended for high school and public libraries." Clara Adams

+ Library J 74:68 Ja 1 '49 90w

Wis Lib Bul 45:15 Ja '49

HERZOG, WILHELM. From Dreyfus to Petain; the struggle of a republic; tr. by Walter Sorell. 313p $3.50 Creative age

944.08 Dreyfus, Alfred. France—Politics and government 47-31286

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

Foreign Affairs 26:402 Ja '48 40w

"The book has a truly historical sweep, and I happen to agree with its spirit—or bias. I deeply regret that I have to speak harshly of an unknown friend. The work is badly constructed. It tells the story over and over again, with each of the protagonists as a center—a 'Ring and the Book' technique, but Herzog is no Browning. With many repetitions and no straight narrative the effect is confusing. The style may be good German; the translation is unidiomatic." Albert Guerard, Sr.

— + Nation 166:105 Ja 24 '48 400w

"Mr. Herzog knows too much about the Dreyfus Affair, perhaps, to write clearly about it. His book will interest the already interested, for it has gleanings from all parts of the vast literature on Dreyfus, and it is full of judgments one can only call philosophical. But to the casual or uninformed reader it will seem no more than a hodge-podge." Crane Brinton

Sat R of Lit 31:10 F 28 '48 600w

"In all candidness Herzog proves rather too much, and weakens a powerful case by writing and thinking on a perilously exalted level. So the very intensity which makes his impassioned pages engrossing also leaves the reader not only a little drained emotionally but more than a little restive intellectually. Was it all as pat as he would make out the plot against the republic to be? Doesn't he allow perhaps too much for human duplicity and cunning and not enough for human indifference, moral cowardice, or plain stupidity? Such, in any case, are queries that come to mind. But these observations should not count too heavily in the balance against a courageous and highly informative work which has the special merit of coming to close grips with the forces of chauvinism and racial and religious intolerance." Leo Gershoy

+ — Yale R n s 37:348 winter '48 380w

HESSE, HERMANN. Demian; the story of a youth; with a foreword by Thomas Mann. 207p $3 Holt

48-539

A reprint of a novel first published after World war I. The present edition has a foreword by Thomas Mann which sums up the personality and achievement of the Swiss author. The story is of a young German of well-to-do family and of his school and early university days, and the effect of the war upon him.

"'Demian' may be too much a 'novel of ideas' for the average American palate. But it is written with poetic imagination and reveals, as few books have, the unapologetic philosophic origins of Germany's unquenchable thirst for the intoxicating waters of world domination." Emmett Dedmon

Chicago Sun Ja 21 '48 550w

"A reissue of an unusual book first published in Germany before World War I this is beautifully done, and illustrates Hesse at his best."

+ Kirkus 15:609 N 1 '47 130w

"Demian is certainly one of the most significant works of Hesse and should be available in any good American public or college library." F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 72:1685 D 1 '47 90w

Reviewed by John Farrelly

New Repub 118:24 F 23 '48 550w

"'Demian' has been admirably translated, and its foreword by Thomas Mann is not only a tribute to the Nobel winning Hesse, but is an essay on what is good and evil in the 'German soul.' Hesse has been Swiss since 1912, so he is excellently qualified to study his native land both from outside-in and inside-out. And 'Demian' typifies the 'torn' German soul." Anne Fremantle

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p27 F 29 '48 700w

"The last half of the book suffers a sea change into something rich and strange—too rich and too strange for what has gone before. Symbolic dreams and painting, cryptic messages and meetings, transcendental relationships, culminating in a cult of self and of 'Fate,' replace the solution through rational experience that the earlier development seemed to promise. The luminosity of the story grows vaporish with only spasmodic flashes of the earlier intensity and light." A. S. Morris

+ — N Y Times p6 F 1 '48 550w

"In a lucid foreword, Thomas Mann tells the story of 'Demian's' publication, and the enthusiastic response it had among German youth emerging from the holocaust of the war. Later, it was also hailed as one of the first 'psychoanalytical novels.' As such it may have lost some of its appeal. But of its beauty it has lost nothing." Robert Pick

+ Sat R of Lit 31:18 Ja 24 '48 440w

HESSELTINE, WILLIAM BEST. Lincoln and the war governors. 405p $4.50 Knopf

973.7 Lincoln, Abraham. U.S.—Politics and government—Civil war. State governments —Federal relations 48-6847

History of the conflict between Abraham Lincoln and the governors of the various northern states over the conduct of the Civil war. Each governor had the power of commander-in-chief of the military force in his own state, which caused widespread difficulties, until Lincoln won the battle for national sovereignty. The work is based in part on the newly available Robert Todd Lincoln collection. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 44:365 Jl 1 '48

Current Hist 15:39 Jl '48 90w

Kirkus 16:163 Mr 15 '48 170w

"An historical and multi-biographical study of considerable value." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 73:811 My 15 '48 130w

Reviewed by Richard Hofstadter

Nation 167:190 Ag 14 '48 850w

"Scholarly and stimulating volume. The approach is new; the research is thorough and well presented; the temper is critical but never biased. With rare skill the author has shown again that the Lincoln story is far from being completely told." Avery Craven

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 My 30 '48 1450w

"This book is an unsentimental survey of Lincoln's work—some may find it, in places, a little dull. It views the man almost coldly, with chief emphasis on his great accomplishment. It is, therefore, something of a welcome change from the sheaf of Lincoln books forthcoming every year, which deal too sufficiently with the man's emotional qualities and have little to say about his great mind. Lincoln's work in transforming inharmonious states into a solidified union is not so frequently set forth." B. J. Hendrick

+ N Y Times p3 Je 6 '48 1100w

"A valuable study."

+ New Yorker 24:109 Je 5 '48 120w

"It is a good, solid, and handsome book that adds to the Lincoln story—a story that bears retelling these skitterish days." Alfred Kay

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 6 '48 330w

Reviewed by J. G. Randall

Sat R of Lit 31:12 Je 26 '48 900w

HESSELTINE, WILLIAM BEST. Rise and fall of third parties, from anti-masonry to Wallace. 119p $2.50 Public affairs press

329 Political parties. U.S.—Politics and government 48-6137

A history of American third parties, from 1826 to 1948, based on the author's articles in the weekly Progressive and lectures delivered at the University of Maryland. Bibliography.

"More than a few historians will want to question some of the author's interpretations of the past, and progressive strategists may doubt some of his assumptions about the present and the future. But on the whole the book is a highly stimulating and suggestive commentary upon twentieth century political history and at the same time a worth-while tract for the times." G. E. Mowry

+ — Am Hist R 54:220 O '48 260w

Reviewed by E. A. Helms

Am Pol Sci R 42:1024 O '48 340w

"The book is worth reading despite the blend of contradictions and prejudices, together with some inaccuracies." A. C. Breckenridge

+ — Ann Am Acad 259:153 S '48 350w

Booklist 44:262 Ap 1 '48

Reviewed by R. J. Purcell

Commonweal 48:192 Je 4 '48 600w

"Factually, Mr. Hesseltine is fairly reliable most of the time, but a few minor errors appear: two different figures for the number of Representatives elected to Congress in 1878 by the Greenback party, an incorrect date for the Civil Rights Act of 1866, and some wrong or misleading data on what the various states require before they give a third party a place on the ballot. There are, however, far more serious shortcomings than these in Mr. Hesseltine's biases and interpretations, for he is offering the very special viewpoint of a Midwestern agrarian (isolationist) radical, which leads him into some sentimental inaccuracies. . . Mr. Hesseltine's controversial views, expressed sharply, give this timely book a spicy quality. 'The Rise and Fall of Third Parties' will make you think deeply about the American past—and future." Morroe Berger

N Y Times p28 Ap 11 '48 800w

San Francisco Chronicle p26 My 23 '48 450w

HETH, EDWARD HARRIS. We are the robbers. 248p $2.75 Harper

47-11577

Sophisticated novel of life in Manhattan and Hollywood. The protagonists are wealthy and glamorous, but the novel touches on the problems of the returned veterans, the Negro problem, and several types of neurosis.

"Brittle, splashy, hardly deep enough for the monumental tragedy which is intended, this is readable, rentable and expendable."

Kirkus 15:445 Ag 15 '47 120w

"Someone must have told Mr. Heth that a dash of Steinbeck, a smattering of Wakeman, a 'pinch' of Charles Jackson, and three drops of race conflict are the ingredients for a best-seller. Sadly, the credulous man tried just that—and Lordy! it's worse than pickles and ice cream!" C. W. Roth

— Library J 72:1470 O 15 '47 80w

"It must be owned that Mr. Heth has written a very complex and even exciting narrative. And he manages at times to draw devastatingly acid pictures of the blessed trinity of so many Americans' dreams: The Big Hotel, Manhattan and Southern California." W. R. W.

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ap 4 '48 200w

HEUMANN, GERHART W. Magnetic control of industrial motors. 589p il $7.50 Wiley

621.3174 Control equipment. Electric motors 47-12167

"This is one of a series of books written by engineers of the General Electric Company in connection with their Advanced Engineering Program. The volume is chiefly descriptive, and deals rather with applications than with the theoretical design of magnetic control devices. After the initial chapter on symbols and diagrams, two chapters discuss the various types of direct-current and alternating-current motors. These chapters provide a background for the descriptions of commercial control devices which follow in the next fifteen chapters. . . The final chapter gives practical information on the inspection and maintenance of control equipment." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 72:1274 S 15 '47 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 32:73 O '47

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:109 Mr '48 150w

HEWES, THOMAS. Decentralize for liberty. 2d ed 238p $3 Dutton

330.973 U.S.—Economic policy. Reconstruction (1939-)—U.S. 47-11338

"A layman's view of our politically, economically, physically and morally over-concentrated country, and his detailed, if sometimes cloudy, solution for saving the country by decentralization. In the first part he analyzes the origin and nature of concentration and its development, and he views the economic and political decentralization of the country as the answer to our major problems, inflation, the atomic bomb, and world peace. In the second and major section he attempts to outline the operation of his system in terms of individual liberty, opportunity for security, initiative and economic independence, government aid and education." (Kirkus) No index.

"Mr. Hewes's preoccupation with the economic aspects of society apparently blurs his vision of the true nature of group life. . . The author abhors the 'slave economies' of Russia and Europe, but he seems unaware of the historical fact that these systems were, at least in part, a desperate reaction to the kind of economic, moral, social and political individualism which he advocates." J. H. Fichter

Cath World 166:474 F '48 400w

Kirkus 15:454 Ag 15 '47 110w

"Mr. Hewes, a Connecticut lawyer who has served in the Treasury and State Departments, has given effective voice to many of the feelings of the average American today. If he has bogged down a bit in certain aspects of his specific program, he also has performed a valuable service in focusing attention on a central American problem; the need to reestablish the importance and dignity of the human being through a program of individualism and family security." H. J. Bresler

+ — N Y Times p12 F 15 '48 600w

Reviewed by J. J. Graham

Pol Sci Q 63:297 Je '48 1000w

"This appealing and provocative book has something in it for everyone, from Knutson to Mencken." D. C. Coyle

+ Sat R of Lit 30:24 N 8 '47 230w

Social Studies 39:48 Ja '48 20w

Reviewed by A. T. Mason

Survey G 37:403 S '48 850w

HEWITT, EDWARD RINGWOOD. Trout and salmon fisherman for seventy-five years. 338p il $4.50 Scribner

799.1755 Trout fishing. Salmon fishing Agr48-261

A book based on two earlier works Telling on the Trout (published 1922) and Secrets of the Salmon (Book Review Digest 1926). New material has been added during the rewriting. (cf. Author's note)

"Makes controversial, highly argumentative, inflammable reading for the Isaac Walton clan."

+ Kirkus 16:299 Je 15 '48 100w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 73:1514 O 15 '48 30w

Reviewed by T. S. Sweedy

N Y Times p27 Ja 30 '49 200w

"One of the country's famous sportsmen has revamped two earlier volumes . . . and produced an outstanding work on angling, full of stream lore, wise observation, and effective anecdote."

+ New Yorker 24:118 S 25 '48 80w

Reviewed by G. S. Arnold

San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 28 '48 100w

HEWLETT, JOHN HENRY. Harlem story. 242p $2.50 Prentice-Hall

48-10998

Disgusted with Harlem, Flutie met a white man on her flight downtown. She never suspected that Jim, too, was "passing."

Kirkus 16:488 S 15 '48 130w

"Sensation seekers will enjoy this." Anne Whitmore

Library J 73:1511 O 15 '48 80w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p32 N 28 '48 270w

"The two or three straight characters in the book are really little more than onlookers; for this reason the total effect is more vaudeville than novel." Dorothy McCleery

— + N Y Times p40 N 21 '48 550w

New Yorker 24:164 N 20 '48 90w

Springf'd Republican p10B N 21 '48 130w

HEYER, GEORGETTE (MRS G. R. ROUGIER). The foundling. 380p $3 Putnam

48-5866

Adventure story of early nineteenth century England. The young Duke of Sale was a nice, unpretentious young man, despite his many titles and worldly goods. In order to protect a young cousin he embarked on a series of adventures ending with a beautiful but dumb girl on his hands. When he had finally established her in her rightful position, he found he was quite capable of taking care of himself, to the surprise of his family.

Booklist 44:248 Mr 15 '48

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin

Horn Bk 24:291 Jl '48 90w

"Done to a turn, in full period decor, this will appeal to those who like the lighter of this writer's work."

+ Kirkus 16:6 Ja 1 '48 100w

"A very good tale. The technique of this story is much the same as that of the earlier novels of GH, if not the same period. Slow going at first the novel moves along to a gay close and one is delighted that virtue is rewarded. For the general reader and general purchase." K. T. Willis

+ Library J 73:197 F 1 '48 90w

"Miss Heyer writes cheerful and highly unorthodox historical novels, set in Regency England, in which people never lose their lives, their virtue, or even their tempers. The author of 'The Foundling' is as much at home in Almack's Assembly Rooms and the Grand Pump Room at Bath as you would be in the Automat. But she likes her people and their century too much to take them seriously." Richard Match

+ N Y Times p20 Mr 21 '48 500w

Reviewed by Edith James

San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ap 4 '48 160w

Springf'd Republican p10B Ap 4 '48 120w

Times [London] Lit Sup p229 Ap 24 '48 330w

Wis Lib Bul 44:105 My '48

HEYM, STEFAN. Crusaders. 642p $3.50 Little

48-7318

A historical novel that follows the men in an American division from Normandy, through the liberation of Paris, to the Battle of the Bulge and the occupation of Germany. Some of their experiences are drawn from the author's life while serving as lieutenant in the psychological warfare branch in the European theater of operations.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks

Atlantic 182:108 N '48 300w

Booklist 44:382 Jl 15 '48

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon

Chicago Sun p7X S 12 '48 1250w

"'The Crusaders' is at once the work of a gifted writer and a fine example of fiction with a challenging thought—deserving, incidentally, a special citation for achieving a high degree of realism with a minimum of profanity." Ernest Pisko

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 S 16 '48 1200w

"Not always an easy book to read—the scenes and characters shift so fast—but a book that demands reading, close reading, for the revealing picture of men's souls under the stress of war. The little men are as important to the veracity of the whole as are the top characters. The women, even including Karen, who is more a catalytic agent than a participating figure, are not quite so authentic. But the whole leaves an overwhelming—and, for many readers I feel sure, a depressing sense of 'This is war.' . . In my opinion, here is a book that will live!"

+ — Kirkus 16:313 Jl 1 '48 400w

"A worthwhile book, especially in this postwar period of disillusionment." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 73:1090 Ag '48 80w

"The novel has everything, in the Hollywood sense of the phrase. It has combat, pursuit, cruelty, sex, a host of characters including General Patton and a story that plunges ahead like an armored division to the final pages where the forces of corruption in the Military Government are at least temporarily vanquished by the forces of good. It also has a thesis and a sound one, namely, that the war was fought against evils some of which exist in our own army and nation. There is only one thing the novel lacks: the respect for his characters and for truth as opposed to bombast that one has a right to expect from a writer of Heym's talent." Malcolm Cowley

+ — New Repub 119:33 S 27 '48 410w

"Mr. Heym has sought to depict the war by means of the cumulative method, and the result is a long drawn-out, ponderous serial . . . Chiefly, the fault lies in Mr. Heym's failure to develop his main characters. . . One can find no fault with a number of the background situations. Mr. Heym has a keen reporter's eye. His descriptions of a concentration camp, of German townspeople trapped in a mine, of tanks and armored vehicles on the move, are all strikingly vivid. But these situations lose their force the minute the main characters appear." J. D. Ross

— + N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 S 12 '48 800w

"Large-scale, complex and splendidly brought-off novel. . . Undoubtedly, the book is too long. Perhaps the author could have left out the parts dealing with occupation. Furthermore, although Mr. Heym was born in Europe, the weakest figures are the Nazis, such as Obersturmbannfuehrer Pettinger. They never come to life. While Mr. Heym has caught splendidly all sorts of GI's, in speech and mannerism, he is ill at ease with most of his European characters." Richard Plant

+ — N Y Times p4 S 12 '48 1050w

New Yorker 24:108 S 18 '48 160w

"Maybe, like a lot of others, you've been waiting for the big novel that would come out of World War II. Well, in 'The Crusaders' you've got it. Written with a notable talent for sheer narrative, it goes much farther than this, opening up any number of questions about why we fought the war—the kind of questions many an American has asked himself." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 S 12 '48 1900w

"This is a long book, written with great earnestness, and with the author very close to the book, it would seem, at all times. It is marred by occasional melodrama, by dialogue

HEYM, STEFAN—Continued
which sounds sometimes as though it were being written as a vehicle for Mr. Heym's highly commendable opinions rather than in the oblique, idiomatic, truncated speech of soldiers, and by characters which fall too quickly, too neatly into the categories of Good and Evil. On the other hand, it is passionate, sincere, urgent and enlightened, and there are dramatic passages of great clarity and eloquence, making clear and immediate the place, the time, and the things which were taking place." John Woodburn
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:18 S 11 '48 1050w

"An authentic and magnificent novel of the war in the West." L. S. Munn
+ Springf'd Republican p7B S 12 '48 400w

"The Crusaders is a good, readable novel, conscientious and sober. . . It is distinguished primarily for its level-headed and generally balanced view of a conflict that few writers have been able to write of with detachment. . . Author Heym's uncertainty with American idiom and American psychology is frequently apparent. His prose is surprisingly matter of fact and informal for an acquired language, but it is nevertheless flat and lacks any quality of suspense.
+ — Time 52:114 S 13 '48 1050w
Wis Lib Bul 45:14 Ja '49

Reviewed by Orville Prescott
Yale R n s 38:382 winter '49 180w

HEYWOOD, ROBERT B., ed. Works of the mind, by Mortimer J. Adler [and others] ed for the Committee on social thought; with a pref. by John U. Nef. 246p $4 Univ. of Chicago press

155 Creation (literary, artistic, etc.) 47-11992

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"Most of these papers admirably accomplish the editorial intention. The section on the arts seems least valuable; it offers much interesting biographical data but, except for the contribution of Mr. Wright, does not make very vivid contact between the particular and the universal. The papers on 'Thought and Scholarship' are all completely faithful to their task: lucid, systematic, and centrally placed in the contemporary problem. Mr. Simon's paper on the concept of work is an excellent example of his ability to put abstruseness and uncompromising rigor into extraordinarily humane service." Henry Rago
+ Commonweal 47:451 F 13 '48 550w

"All have something to say, but frequently not the thing we want to know about their actual ways of work. S. Chandrasekar and John von Neumann are good about science, and Arnold Schönberg in music is the most illuminating on the actual methods of work in the fine arts. But to this reviewer the papers he is glad he did not miss are the humorous account of being a university president by Robert M. Hutchins, and the really acute analysis of the problems of a prime minister by Heinrich Brüning." H. T. C.
+ J Philos 45:108 F 12 '48 120w

Reviewed by J. R. Newman
New Repub 119:22 Jl 5 '48 2050w
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:27 Mr '48 200w

HIBBEN, FRANK CUMMINGS. Hunting American lions; il. by Paul Bransom. 225p $4 Crowell

799.2 Hunting—West. Pumas 48-8410

"An account of hunting and capturing mountain lions (cougars) in New Mexico, Arizona and Vancouver, including jaguars and bobcats." (Library J) No index.

Booklist 45:47 O 1 '48
Kirkus 16:356 Jl 15 '48 130w

"Exciting, excellent reading."
+ Library J 73:1030 Jl '48 40w

"This is a beautifully presented book. . . The text of the book, however, leaves one somewhat dismayed. The author is an anthropologist, and a good one, but, except for all too few brief flashes he does not appear to be a naturalist. This is perhaps unimportant if he sets out deliberately to write a saga of the hunt. But there is every indication that he meant to do more." Ivan Sanderson
— + N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p29 N 7 '48 550w

Reviewed by J. W. Lippincott
Sat R of Lit 31:19 D 11 '48 800w

HICKMAN, CHARLES ADDISON, and others. World economic problems; nationalism, technology and cultural lag. 400p $4 Pitman

338.91 Economic conditions. Commerce. International cooperation 47-22295

"Understanding of the basic social, economic, and political factors which have been at least partly responsible for Twentieth Century breakdown is now essential. It is the purpose of this book to probe into these forces which have shaped and molded the world." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

"The major contribution of this excellent study is to underline the all-important fact that the international economic warfare of the thirties, while its immediate raison d'être may have lain in cyclical unemployment, had its fundamental origin in the climactic development of such long-term problems as ethnocentrism, extreme nationalism, and cultural lag." H. W. Davey
+ Am Pol Sci R 42:145 F '48 500w
Foreign Affairs 26:396 Ja '48 20w

"Mr. Hickman and his associates have performed a useful service in turning out a book which has been much needed." A. E. Coons
+ J Pol Econ 56:83 F '48 1000w

"The individual essays are, on the whole, penetrating, but as a broad guide to the study of contemporary problems the analysis shades off somewhat into speculation. The authors manage successfully, however, to keep attention directed to the importance of the effective use of resources and production to maintain peace. There are chapter bibliographies and an index."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 3:354 D '47 300w

HIGGINS, ALEX. Engine room questions and answers. 154p $4 McGraw

621.1 Steam engineering 48-6659

"Home-study guide and reference manual for engineering students and practicing engineers. . . It provides in question-and-answer form, a review of typical examination questions dealing with the design, construction and operation of steam engines and steam turbines." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:202 F 1 '48 40w

"The many excellent diagrams illustrating details of construction and operation constitute a valuable feature of the book."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 33:48 My '48

HILDEBRAND, JOEL HENRY. Principles of chemistry. 5th ed 446p $4.25 Macmillan

540 Chemistry 48-6201

"The main changes in this standard introductory textbook consist in the addition of two new chapters: Carbonic acid and its ions; and Acid-base systems. . . The rest of the book has been thoroughly revised and many sections have been rewritten or reorganized. The author is Professor of Chemistry in the University of California. The same text is available bound with the 1940 edition of W. M. Latimer and J. H. Hildebrand, Reference Book of Inorganic Chemistry, $6.00." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 44:284 Ap 15 '48 (Review of combined volume)

"The fifth edition of Hildebrand's well-known book follows the pattern set in previous editions but has undergone an expansion of approximately 100 pages over the 1940 version. . . One is led to question its suitability for students other than those who have already had a good background of high school chemistry and mathematics. It would appear to be well suited to a course given solely for chemistry majors and chemical engineers, particularly if supplemented with . . . Latimer and Hildebrand's 'Reference Book of Inorganic Chemistry.'" A. J. Ihde

+ Chem & Eng N 26:896 Mr 22 '48 320w

"When its use is supplemented by use of a good descriptive chemistry text and a laboratory manual, Hildebrand's book serves admirably in teaching the introductory course in chemistry, particularly the course for students majoring in the field. It is also a convenient and useful guide that the practicing chemist, chemical engineer or executive might dip into occasionally to check up on some relatively simple but perhaps hazy point." J. A. O'Connor
+ Chem Eng 55:316 My '48 300w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:45 Ja 1 '48 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 32:71 O '47

HILDITCH, THOMAS PERCY. Chemical constitution of natural fats. 2d ed rev 553p $9 Wiley 547.2 Oils and fats [47-28230]

"This volume offers a comprehensive survey of existing knowledge regarding the chemical composition of fatty acids and glycerides, and serves as a guide to important investigations carried out in this field up to the end of 1945. The greater part of the book deals with natural fats as a group of organic compounds, and it is only in the latter chapters that individual fats are discussed. In this edition the inclusion of new data accounts for more than 100 additional pages. The chapters on the component acids of animal and vegetable fats are particularly rich in new material; a section on the component glycerides of human milk has been added; and the compositions of such fatty acids as tricosenoic, ricinaleic, gorlic and parinaric acids are now included in the ninth chapter. As in the 1939 edition, the tabulated data relating to the fractionation and composition of various fats and the extensive lists of references at the end of each chapter are valuable features." (N Y New Tech Bks) Indexes.

"Addition of numerous data throughout the book will be welcomed by research and development engineers. Revision and expansion of the chapter on experimental technique employed in the quantitative investigation of fats is noted, especially in regard to the methods of interpretation of ester-fractions involved in the determination of component acids. . . The book is well printed and well bound. Its value as a reference volume should win it many friends." G. W. McBride
+ Chem Eng 55:286 Ag '48 200w

"The author has expanded the last chapter dealing with analytical techniques. This new material will be welcomed by many research workers. . . This work continues to be the outstanding source of information in its field. It is all the more remarkable since so much of the information on the composition of fats and so many of the ingenious analytical methods have been contributed by the author himself." W. O. Lundberg
+ J Phys & Colloid Chem 52:1275 O '48 450w

"Authoritative book, an outcome of the work of thirty years by the English author." L. A. Eales
+ Library J 73:820 My 15 '48 100w
N Y New Tech Bks 33:18 Ja '48

HILL, LAWRENCE FRANCIS, ed. Brazil; chapters of Manoel Cardozo [and others]. (United nations ser) 394p il $5 Univ. of Calif.
981 Brazil 47-12016

"A symposium on the empire of Brazil by a dozen Brazilians and Americans, edited by Lawrence F. Hill of Ohio State University." (N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R) Partial contents: Political romanticism, by L. F. Hill; The Vargas regime, by Harvey Walker; Art, by Mário de Andrade; Agriculture, by F. W. Ganzert; Industry, commerce, and finance, by F. W. Ganzert; Europe and the South American neighbors, by Heitor Lyra. Selected bibliography. Index.

"In spite of the weaknesses inherent in any collection of this sort, the book is important and deserves to be widely used. In no other single place can one find as much that is sound about such a wide range of subjects. It should prove particularly useful as collateral reading for courses in history and political science; but it is also to be recommended to the general reader. Not a few defects, errors, and inconsistencies mar the text." T. L. Smith
+ — Am Hist R 54:398 Ja '49 800w
Booklist 44:200 F 1 '48
Chicago Sun p18A D 3 '47 50w
Foreign Affairs 26:752 Jl '48 20w

"All in all, this is a useful volume for the general reader intent upon understanding one of our important allies. But the volume suffers somewhat from the illness of all books dedicated to a cause. . . Dedicated history tends to become something less than candid. So will this 'Brazil.' . . It is tough enough, realistic enough, until its authors get you down to the day-before-yesterday; then it smooths out, recalling the gentle out-puttings of official Washington in the wooing of South America during the late unpleasantness." Hubert Herring
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 F 1 '48 800w

Reviewed by P. L. Soljak
San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ja 25 '48 650w

"To be quite fair, this volume has a certain value for reference and review; it assembles scattered information to make it more accessible, and some of its chapters are good in themselves. As the portrait of a nation, however, it represents the failure of a method." L. J. Halle
— + Sat R of Lit 31:17 My 8 '48 480w

"There is inevitably a certain bareness about symposia of this kind; neat tables showing the default status of Brazilian dollar bonds or the figures for textile exports spring to the eye when what the reader might prefer is dismissed in a sentence; but the historical background is both full and clear. The least satisfactory essays are those devoted to the arts."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p494 S 4 '48 250w
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:55 Mr '48 300w

HILL, RALPH. Brahms. (Great musicians ser) 143p $1.50 Wyn
B or 92 Brahms, Johannes 48-11143

Brief biography of this famous nineteenth century German composer. "Mr. Hill was music critic on the Daily Mail from 1933 to 1945, music editor of the Radio Times from 1935 to 1945, and has been editor of Penguin Music Magazine since 1946. He is the author of 'An Outline of Musical History' and 'Liszt.'" (Publisher's note)

Reviewed by R. W. Flint
Nation 167:584 N 20 '48 100w

"The 'Brahms' suffers from Ralph Hill's cluttered and muddy writing and the dun monotony of most of Brahms's career. . . Mr. Hill finds time for tiresome attacks on such critics as have dared to question Brahm's perfection as a stylist, time he might have expended more usefully on discussion of the music itself. He addresses himself, indeed, to unquestioning Brahmsians. The result is a panegyric bound to seem stuffy and tasteless to some."
— N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p28 D 5 '48 170w

HILLE, WALDEMAR, and others, eds. People's song book; foreword by Alan Lomax; pref. by B. A. Botkin. 128p $2.50; pa $1 Boni & Gaer
784.4 Songs 48-6686

"The title of this book accurately describes its contents; while the nature of the songs themselves may be gleaned from the four

HILLE, WALDEMAR—Continued
group headings: (1) songs that helped build America; (2) world freedom songs; (3) union songs; and (4) topical-political songs. . . People's songs, the output of workers in an urban environment, are written for mass-singing and mass-action on the picket-line and at workers' meetings, especially in time of strikes. The purpose of this book, therefore, is to harmonize the simple tunes for group singing. . . The accompaniments are simple, although not especially pianistic. A variety of keys have been used to accommodate the average voice range. Guitar chords are indicated on all the songs, and a simple chord chart in the back of the book clearly explains symbols and fingering for guitar. The headnotes give mood and tempo and other useful aids to performance." Music Lib Assn Notes

Booklist 44:296 My 1 '48

"The whole has a little too much of the flavor of propaganda to rate as a bona fide collection of folk music, but enough of the genuine folk quality to appeal to those who are interested in this field. Besides propaganda may be good folklore." W. E. G.

+ — Christian Century 65:240 F 25 '48 170w

"The arrangements are good and are well adapted to group singing with piano or guitar accompaniment. Librarians, however, should be warned of the very pro-labor slant of both sponsoring group and song book before deciding upon purchase." H. E. Bush

+ — Library J 73:476 Mr 15 '48 110w

"All the songs in this unique collection share in common a protest against the status quo, now or yesterday, in the United States or abroad—a concentration that packs a powerful punch. It is obvious that social significance—suitability to the overall plan of protest—governed the editor's selections. This is not necessarily a reflection on his judgment, as he has done a good job of editing within the task he set for himself. . . The book is well-designed and the printing clear." George Korson

+ Music Lib Assn Notes 5:378 Je '48 600w

"There are one or two points I'd like to make about this collection, as objectively as I can make them. One is that if the term 'the people' means just that, there are songs here included which don't belong, since they can be sung with conviction only if you believe that 'the people' are just one part of the American people." J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 24 '48 700w

"In this book of vigorous, hard-hitting songs the singer will find pieces he will not find in such general collections as the Lomax one. It is worth having for 'I'm on My Way' and 'So Long, It's Been Good to Know You,' to mention only two of its good songs, the former a magnificent rolling gospel-hymn, the latter a fine, swinging tune superb for mass-singing." Horace Reynolds

+ Sat R of Lit 31:15 Je 26 '48 250w

HILLER, ERNEST THEODORE. Social relations and structures; a study in principles of sociology. 692p $4.50 Harper

301 Sociology 47-31186

Textbook for an introductory course in sociology. "Its contribution consists of a detailed and intricate analysis of what might be called the 'statics of culture.' . . The book is divided into seven parts: I. Introduction; II. The Cultural Basis of Society; III. Elements of Social Relations; IV. Valuation of the Person; V. Organization of Social Relations, Institutions, Groups, Societies; VI. The Structure of Society: Statuses; VII. Conclusion (the unity and continuity of society)." (Ann Am Acad) Suggested readings at the end of each chapter. Indexes.

"The merits of this book, like its deficiencies, stem from its basic orientation. . . The survey is distinguished by an attempt to dissect the relationships between the functions performed and the structures that emerge. . . The possibilities of accounting for much behavior in terms of social values and statuses are well exploited. . . Some users may feel that the omission of materials on population, ecology, and comparative communities is a serious limitation." G. E. Swanson

+ — Am J Soc 53:398 Mr '48 1600w

"All of this material is presented on a high level of abstraction, with only an occasional example in the body of the text, and with no attempt at proof, statistical or otherwise. None of the customary enticements to students are included. . . The book has been used at the University of Minnesota as the text in an intermediate sophomore course. Student response has been generally favorable, and students have appeared to appreciate the opportunity to study a coherent verbal system, shorn of doubts and uncertainties. In view of the austere format, this reaction raises some question as to the necessity for the sugar-coating so lavishly applied to most new elementary texts in the social sciences." Theodore Caplow

+ Ann Am Acad 256:242 Mr '48 480w

Reviewed by J. A. Kinneman

Social Educ 12:286 O '48 550w

Social Studies 38:380 D '47 10w

HILLS, VERNA. Here, Suzy! il. by Marion Downer. 123p $2 Lothrop

48-3989

When Aunt Cindy and her hen, Suzy, came to visit Amos, he thought about making money with the little red hen in order to take a trip like his parents. Amos and friend Joey started a series of ventures: a travelling show and an egg business; but all failed. Success came when Suzy presented them with six yellow chicks which proved to be the star performers in a second show. For ages 7-9.

Booklist 45:73 O 15 '48

"A silly story with unattractive line drawings."

— Kirkus 16:437 S 1 '48 60w

"Simple, easy sentences, everyday adventures, and many pictures combine to make a successful book for young readers to read for themselves." D. M. Blasco

+ Library J 73:1283 S 15 '48 70w

Reviewed by Margaret Ernst

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 S 12 '48 140w

"A good story that 7-to-10 readers can comfortably read themselves." S. C. Gross

+ N Y Times p11 D 26 '48 150w

HILLYER, VIRGIL MORES. Child's history of the world; rev. and enl. by Edward G. Huey; il. by Carle Michel Boog and M. S. Wright. 510p $5 Appleton

909 History, Universal—Juvenile literature 47-12166

This new edition of an old favorite contains five additional chapters which bring the history of mankind up to the close of World war II. Contains a pronouncing index. For fourth grade and up.

Booklist 44:158 D 15 '47

"A thoroughly readable history that has stood the test of twenty years steady demand. . . 'Makes me want to teach history' was one lad's comment."

+ Commonweal 47:157 N 21 '47 60w

"Recommended for ages nine and up." Nelle McCalla

+ Library J 73:128 Ja 15 '48 60w

HILSCHER, HERBERT H. Alaska now. 299p il $3 Little

917.98 Alaska—Description and travel 48-6803

An outspoken guidebook for those who want to know about Alaska, or contemplate going there to live. The author lives in Fairbanks and is in business there. He discusses such problems as the high cost of living, education, Alaska agriculture, how to homestead a farm in Alaska, eggs in the Arctic, prospecting, salmon fisheries, forests, etc. No index.

Booklist 44:350 Je 15 '48

"A corrective to some of the over-optimistic books on the recently acclaimed 'promised land', this is a realistic personality profile of the territory."
+ Kirkus 16:140 Mr 1 '48 120w

"Restless Americans with intentions of going to Alaska to look around, to settle, to go into business—or even to dig gold—should find this account of present-day life in the territory invaluable." A. E. Talbert
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Je 27 '48 600w

"A pioneer Alaskan, Herbert Hilscher has done an excellent stint of explaining 'Alaska Now.' He has used a lifelong knowledge of his subject. He has made his result as lively, as authentic, as vivid as it is thorough. . . The final twenty-five pages you will discover, contain his real and very walloping contribution. Here are some hot truths about a cold land. Here is an original low-down on Alaska of today. . . Reticences are beaten down here. Personalities are beaten up. If and when the territory does at last become a state, the majority who want it that way will have to thank both the scrapper and the author in Mr. Hilscher's all-Alaskan body." G. W. Gabriel
+ N Y Times p22 My 23 '48 450w

"Anybody going to Alaska, whether for homesteading, gold seeking, sightseeing or a job would be foolish to do so without reading at least one book of warning and advice on what to expect. And 'Alaska Now' is a first-rate one for the purpose." Marvin Sargent
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 14 '48 800w

"Herbert Hilscher, a journalist whose home is in Fairbanks, has written one of the best books about Alaska to be published in recent years." R. L. Neuberger
+ Survey G 37:355 Jl '48 360w
Wis Lib Bul 44:132 Je '48

HINE, REGINALD LESLIE. Confessions of an un-common attorney. 268p il $4 Macmillan

B or 92 Lawyers—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 47-12373

Memoirs of an English lawyer, member of a firm founded in 1591. The book is divided between his life in the law, and his experiences as a scholar, historian, book collector, and chronicler of the little town of Hitchin in Hertfordshire. Illustrated with old pictures and cartoons. Index.

Booklist 44:201 F 1 '48
Columbia Law R 48:171 Ja '48 160w
Harvard Law R 61:1094 Je '48 150w

"Among the forty-five ways of writing tribal memoirs, this member of the forensic tribe chooses the way most difficult and entertaining—the discursive. . . At his ease, this Hertfordshire solicitor becomes, indeed, a highly civilized host talking about his vocations, and especially his avocations over wine that has rounded the Cape." R. W. Kauffman
+ N Y Times p14 F 22 '48 600w

"A rather charming example of informal writing in the Latin-tag tradition."
+ New Yorker 23:145 D 13 '47 100w
Springf'd Republican p15A F 22 '48 210w

HINES, JOHN CHESTERFIELD. Minstrel of the Yukon; an Alaskan adventure; with a foreword by Lucius Beebe. 231p $2.75 Greenberg

917.98 Frontier and pioneer life—Alaska 48-6201

The author's story of the years he spent in Nome as prospector and ballad singer. Interwoven in his account are the history and legends of frontier days in Alaska.

Booklist 44:298 My 1 '48

"Some of the wonderful dog stories were first published years ago in the author's Seegar and Cigaret and The Blue Streak and they are well worth retelling. Recommended." Gerald McDonald
+ Library J 73:470 Mr 15 '48 100w

"The old days live again in Jack Hines' reminiscences. They are told matter-of-factly in straight reportorial fashion and at times with almost painful attention to detail, but there is a compelling ring of truth about them that carries the reader from page to page unwilling to lay the book aside." D. F. M.
+ — Springf'd Republican p12B My 2 '48 150w

HINSHAW, DAVID. Take up thy bed and walk. 262p il $2.75 Putnam

331.86 Disabled—Rehabilitation, etc. 48-7339

"Recent work in rehabilitation of physically disabled persons is reviewed in this account of the founding and work of the Institute for the crippled and disabled in New York City." (Booklist) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 44:375 Jl 15 '48

"For the human meaning of rehabilitation, the classic is still Betsey Barton's 'And Now to Live Again,' but Mr. Hinshaw's eyeopening book should prove extremely helpful to communities which wish to set up their own rehabilitation centers. The need is great." Richard Match
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Ag 15 '48 550w

"Mr. Hinshaw, who sees in the handicapped person more than a statistic, brings a rare sympathy to the writing of this book." J. V.
San Francisco Chronicle p12 Jl 11 '48 70w

Reviewed by Betsey Barton
+ Sat R of Lit 31:13 Ag 14 '48 950w
Springf'd Republican p10B Je 20 '48 130w
Wis Lib Bul 44:183 N '48

HINTON, HAROLD BOAZ. Air victory: the men and the machines; with a foreword by Barton K. Yount. 428p il $5 Harper

358.4 U.S. Army air forces. World war, 1939-1945—Aerial operations 48-7274

A history of United States air power, chiefly the army air power, from 1909 thru World war II. The greater part of the book is devoted to a detailed account of air power in World war II.

Booklist 44:376 Jl 15 '48
Current Hist 15:101 Ag '48 50w

"Few aviation books show such evidence of thorough and painstaking research. To the general reader this very mass of accumulated data, presented chronologically in swiftly succeeding paragraphs on widely divergent subjects, may occasionally produce a sense of confusion. The scholar and historian will deplore the lack of notes and bibliography describing accurately the sources of the wealth of assembled materials. Some enthusiasts will regret the limited approach which practically excluded the homefront development of naval and civil aviation as part of national air power. But none of these criticisms can destroy the real value of the great contribution which Mr. Hinton has made in giving us 'Air Victory.'" J. C. Cooper
+ — N Y Times p6 Je 20 '48 1100w
San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 26 '48 160w

Reviewed by E. P. Curtis
Sat R of Lit 31:11 N 20 '48 410w

HIRSCH, MARK D. William C. Whitney, modern Warwick. (American political leaders ser) 622p il $5 Dodd

B or 92 Whitney, William Collins 48-8391

"William C. Whitney, millionaire through his own labors as well as through marriage, turfman, patron of grand opera, traction magnate, and astute guide of New York Democrats, was equally potent, in the late nineteenth century, in business, political, and social circles. Educated at Yale and Harvard Law School, he came to New York in 1864, at the age of twenty-three, to make his fortune. In so doing, he was like thousands of other young men. But unlike many of them, he knew from the start precisely what he wanted—the pleasures of political power and of money; and unlike most of them, he got what he sought. . . This biography is primarily concerned with Whitney's political life from 1870 to 1896." (Sat R of Lit) Bibliography. Index.

HIRSCH, M. D.—Continued

Reviewed by M. R. Werner
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p22 N 28 '48 600w

"The Hirsch book is the story of an era in action as well as of an era's values. It contains, too, for reference-seekers, as paralyzingly complete an account of the internecine feuds of New York City and State politicians of the Eighteen Seventies and Eighties as could easily be imagined. The pedestrian pace of scholarly achievement is so slow and complicated that just humanly biographical matters, such as Mr. Hirsch's frequent references to the Whitney charm, seldom seem entirely convincing or alive." Duncan Aikman
+ — N Y Times p6 O 3 '48 650w

"Dr. Hirsch has written not only an accurate, complete narrative of Whitney's noteworthy rise to power in the Democratic Party and the business world, but in the process has added considerably to our knowledge of the period and of the often mentioned but rarely documented relation of petty local bosses to large national issues." Margaret Clapp
+ Sat R of Lit 31:13 O 16 '48 750w

HIRSHBERG, ALBERT. The Red Sox, the bean and the cod; il. by Ferguson; foreword by Ted Williams. 220p $2.50 Waverly house

796.357 Boston. Baseball club (American league) 47-3498

A history of the Boston baseball team, the Red Sox, from 1933 to 1946, written by a sports writer for The Boston Post.

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '48

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 73:41 Ja 1 '48 30w

"These years are replete with baseball drama and Mr. Hirshberg is a good story-teller, even when covering ground familiar to the initiated." J. W. C.
+ N Y Times p27 Je 8 '47 450w

HISLOP, CODMAN. Mohawk; il. by Letterio Calapai. (Rivers of America) 367p $3.75 Rinehart

917.47 Mohawk river 48-9184

History of the Mohawk river valley and its part in the development of New York state, from Indians and canal builders to Remington-Rand and General Electric. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:101 N 15 '48

"Not so regionally rounded a presentation as some of the other books, but a richly tapestried fighting saga of a region."
+ Kirkus 16:498 S 15 '48 160w

"Readable account of an exceptionally dramatic river and valley." E. L. Lewis
+ Library J 73:1592 N 1 '48 80w

Reviewed by Harold Thompson
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 N 28 '48 1000w

"Mr. Hislop has a deep understanding of the Mohawk as a river of seeking humanity. His remarks on the architecture of Schenectady suggest how ably he might have acquitted himself had he not been pinned down to a chatty, breezy, too salable formula." E. B. G.
N Y Times p40 N 14 '48 650w

HITCHCOCK, ALFRED JOSEPH, ed. Fireside book of suspense; with introd. notes. 367p $3.50 Simon & Schuster
47-12114

Twenty-seven examples of "suspense" literature, including twenty-five short stories, one radio play, and one factual account of a disaster. Partial contents: Leiningen versus the ants, by Carl Stephenson; The liqueur glass, by Phyllis Bottome; With bated breath, by Ross Santee; The hangman won't wait, by J. D. Carr; The second step, by Margery Sharp; After-dinner story, by William Irish; R. M. S. Titanic, by Hanson Baldwin; Two bottles of relish, by Lord Dunsany.

"Curiously at one point Hanson Baldwin's powerful factual account of the sinking of the Titanic, the only non-fiction piece chosen by the editor, reduces the rest of the volume to child's play—meaning no offense, for the main object of the anthology is entertainment. 'R. M. S. Titanic' is 'a fine example of the true story of suspense,' all right, but it doesn't belong." Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 D 21 '47 270w

"Some of them are frankly pulp fiction, some pretend to a somewhat higher station. A few are imaginative and entertaining, many are childish and dull, but the premise of the collection is that all of them have suspense. Curiously enough, suspense is one quality in which these stories are conspicuously deficient." MacLennan Farrell
N Y Times p26 Ja 11 '48 370w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p24 D 7 '47 150w

HITCHCOCK, HENRY RUSSELL. Painting toward architecture; the Miller co. coll. of abstract art; foreword by Alfred H. Barr, jr. ltd ed 118p 26il 24 col pl $6 Duell

720.904 Architecture, Modern. Art, Abstract 48-9557

"The Miller Company of Meriden, Conn., manufacturers of lighting equipment, has formed an intelligent and provocative collection of modern painting and sculpture, showing points of comparison and influence between these arts and their architectural sister. Of this collection Henry-Russell Hitchcock has prepared an excellent catalogue which conveys an impression of central momentum in the contemporary visual arts as a whole." Sat R of Lit

---

Booklist 45:174 Ja 15 '49

"As a knowing, succinct discussion of parallel developments in abstract painting and modern architecture over the past five decades, 'Painting Towards Architecture' performs definite service. . . Mr. Hitchcock's apostleship and encyclopedist fervor, here and elsewhere, have done much to delineate for the layman the main features of the abstract vision. . . At the same time it is distressing to find the bias for pure design, the emphasis on category and movement, settling into a queasy, obfuscating party-line modernism." Sam Hunter
+ — N Y Times p20 Ja 9 '49 290w

Reviewed by J. T. Soby
+ Sat R of Lit 31:44 O 9 '48 200w

HITCHENS, MRS DOLORES (BIRK). Cats have tall shadows, by D. B. Olsen [pseud]. 222p $2.50 Ziff-Davis 48-1375

Detective story.

Kirkus 16:179 Ap 1 '48 70w

"Friends of that redoubtable spinster-lady, Miss Rachel Murdock, are going to be delighted with her new adventure." E. D. Doyle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 11 '48 90w

"Better than last Olsen opus. Crammed with cats, alive and carved; competently plotted, occasionally shivery. But spinster sleuth may induce catalepsy."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:52 Ap 17 '48 40w

HITCHENS, MRS DOLORES (BIRK). Devious design, by D. B. Olsen [pseud]. 187p $2 Doubleday

48-7144

Detective story.

Kirkus 16:180 Ap 1 '48 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Jl 4 '48 90w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p24 Je 13 '48 180w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle Jl 4 '48 50w

"Considerable action, plenty of 'atmosphere,' some faithful portraits of rather unappealing people, and roundabout but effective detecting. Fair."
Sat R of Lit 31:25 Jl 3 '48 30w

HITREC, JOSEPH GEORGE. Son of the moon. 383p $3 Harper

48-5764

The son of the moon is Vijay, an Anglicized Hindu with a love of flying. After two years in England he comes back to his native land and the reconciliation of the clash of Eastern and Western ideas. Finally his marriage to a Hindu girl shows him how to make the compromise.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 181:118 My '48 120w

Booklist 44:248 Mr 15 '48

"This Indian youth with all his centuries-old ideals of Karma-Yoga, yields to the lure of the flesh in very up-to-date fashion, not creditable, but, at least, credible of the universal male. A false note is struck, however, when we discover that Chanda, high-caste Hindu woman, strictly inviolate, proves her emancipation from oriental restriction by ultra-modern and very occidental behavior. This is a beautifully written book, lyric with descriptions of exotic Indian days and nights. The essays into politics and philosophy keep this side of the profound and prevent any accusation of propaganda or tractarianism." + — Cath World 167:189 My '48 210w

Reviewed by Feike Feikema
Chicago Sun Mr 10 '48 430w

Reviewed by Anne Fremantle
Commonweal 48:383 Jl 30 '48 350w

"An ambitious undertaking, reminiscent of Passage to India, which lags however under the weight of inert material."
+ — Kirkus 16:28 Ja 15 '48 130w

Reviewed by John Woodburn
New Repub 118:23 Ap 19 '48 1150w

"A leisurely, charming, completely realistic account of modern family life among high caste Hindus of India." Thomas Sugrue
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Mr 14 '48 900w

"'Son of the Moon' is profuse with concrete details—merely pictorial at their weakest, but genuinely atmospheric at their best. The long and grim funeral rites; the infectious excitement of the mass meeting; the lyric-exotic settings of the love scenes within earshot of jackal and mongoose, and the rambling family conferences where everybody, in old Russian style, talks for the mere joy of talking—all carry the persuasive power of atmosphere by which Vijay (and the reader, too) is quickly taken. On closer inspection, one detects a certain artificiality in Mr. Hitrec's arrangement of scenes. Now and again the narrative structure seems to sag." Nona Balakian
+ — N Y Times p7 Mr 14 '48 1050w

"The story is so smothered in information relating to Indian history, politics, and prevailing social customs that its artistic rays are reduced to a sallow glimmer. As a result, the book . . . has more in common with the works of John Gunther than with those of, say, E. M. Forster."
New Yorker 24:123 Mr 13 '48 120w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p10 F 14 '48 280w

"At first as the reader enters the novel he has a sense of bewilderment as if he had been plunged into the midst of people who spoke another language and obeyed strange impulses. Suddenly they seem less alien, understandable, and warm-hearted, at times a little pathetic. . . There are remarkably vivid and memorable chapters in 'Son of the Moon.' . . Mr. Hitrec has intentionally painted his wide canvas in bright colors. That he finds Indians admirable and that he believes that their institutions will endure through the centuries is apparent." Harrison Smith
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:14 Mr 13 '48 950w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p10B Mr 28 '48 600w

"These days, there are two ways of describing a novel laid in India: as the best thing of its sort since Forster's Passage to India—or not as good as Forster. This one is not as good. But it is a cool and intelligent book in its own right."
+ Time 51:108 Mr 15 '48 700w

Wis Lib Bul 44:105 My '48

"Son of the Moon is able and illuminating; but it is interesting only for its information about Indian thought and feeling, not as a story about people whose affairs become of true concern to the reader. And thus it fails in the primary purpose of fiction." Orville Prescott
— + Yale R n s 37:765 summer '48 250w

HOAG, J. BARTON. Electron and nuclear physics; 3d ed, rev by S. A. Korff. 522p $5 Van Nostrand

541.2 Electrons. Nuclear physics 48-5763

"This book has two main purposes: first, to give concise accounts of experiments which have established or confirmed currently accepted facts and theories in electron and nuclear physics; second, to give instructions for performing similar experiments in the college laboratory. It is designed chiefly for senior college and graduate students of physics, but it has also considerable historical and reference value for persons trained in physics. The scope and arrangement of material remain the same as in the previous edition (1938) but considerable material has been added to cover the developments of the last decade. The chapters on artificial transmutation and cosmic rays show the greatest revision, but other sections, such as those dealing with counter tubes, have also been expanded." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:713 My 1 '48 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:20 Ja '48

HOBART, MRS ALICE TISDALE (NOURSE). Cleft rock. 376p $3 Bobbs

48-7817

Novel based on reclamation projects in California's Central Valley. The main characters are the son of an established wealthy family; his first wife, a beautiful Russian girl whom he met in China; and their son, who defied his heritage to fight for the small land holder.

Booklist 45:13 S 1 '48

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun Ag 24 '48 500w

"In character building, plot construction, and execution this novel stands with Mrs. Hobart's best, in spite of evidences of haste in the conclusion. It is a human narrative. The Central Valley drought of last winter gives it a special timeliness, unforeseen when the book was planned; and its background symbolizes a long and as yet unresolved issue in economics." W. K. Rugg
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Ag 26 '48 550w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '48

"However worthy its thesis may be, 'The Cleft Rock' is, as a novel, a tiresome performance. Burdened with a grim social-economic message, the novel becomes a political

HOBART, A. T. N.—Continued
vehicle without humor; Mrs. Hobart maneuvers her characters and situations like someone playing chess, and not very slyly, at that. She never really gets 'inside' her people, and frequently the reader has a hard time following their capricious moods and changes of soul." E. F. Meagher
— Commonweal 48:526 S 10 '48 800w

"Theme is more compelling than its presentation for occasionally plot and characterizations lack complete persuasion. Nevertheless novel merits consideration. It reads well, albeit not another Oil For the Lamps of China." Elizabeth Nichols
+ — Library J 73:1090 Ag '48 100w

"For those who would know something about this century-old fight for control of the richest farming area in the United States, I can highly recommend The Cleft Rock. Forget the 'fiction'—it is silly but inoffensive; concentrate on the real story. You will find it to be one of the most exciting and dramatic in the struggle for democracy in the West." Carey McWilliams
+ — New Repub 119:21 S 20 '48 1150w

"Though Mrs. Hobart has a thesis she does not forget that she is writing a novel. She moulds her encyclopedic account of what has been going on in the Valley of California in the State Legislature, in the Reclamation Bureau of the U. S. Department of the Interior, and in the Congress at Washington into a well integrated and engrossing story of one California family." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ag 22 '48 1050w

"Mrs. Hobart deals lavishly with the themes of land and family conflicts, business, legislation, politics, reform, the small producer, the errant juvenile, the migrant. Her style here is adapted more for exposition than communication. Her stage is crowded with diverse characters, and they often block out those demiurges, the desert-earth and the sun. Perhaps there are too many characters, too many situations. But Mrs. Hobart, nevertheless, feels strongly about her people. She knows her ground well, and working in a controversial subject, she has too great a regard for the truth to be glib with condemnations—or solutions." Idwal Jones
N Y Times p5 S 5 '48 500w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles
San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ag 22 '48 700w

"Mrs. Hobart knows her subject thoroughly and presents it to the reader with some unanalyzable magic that makes it, at once, of vital concern to that reader." Graham Bates
+ Sat R of Lit 31:20 O 16 '48 800w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p10B S 26 '48 400w

Wis Lib Bul 44:165 O '48

HOBBS, DOUGLAS BROWN. Working with aluminum. 126p il $2.50 Bruce pub.
671 Aluminum. Machine shop practice
47-5665

"Details of 25 projects made of aluminum arranged in order of workmanship from the simplest to those requiring skill. Introductory chapters discuss aluminum and its alloys with simple explanations of metal working processes —casting, core making, etching, machining, riveting, spinning, etc." Library J

Booklist 44:84 N 1 '47

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 72:1377 O 1 '47 40w

HOBSON, HOWARD ANDREW. Basketball illustrated. 86p $1.50 Barnes, A.S.
796.32 Basketball 48-5707

A handbook for basketball coaches or the players themselves, written by the head basketball coach at Yale. It covers individual and group fundamentals, offensive and defensive team plays, and conditioning. Illustrated with photographic and other diagrams.

Booklist 44:250 Mr 15 '48

"A book which is best in its field: a must for coaches in schools, for players who would know the fine points of the game, for observers who want to understand the whys behind the plays. Excellent text, clear, concise, to the point, a how-to-do-it book, liberally illustrated with first rate photographs and diagrams."
+ Kirkus 16:142 Mr 1 '48 80w

"Excellent illustrations." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 73:477 Mr 15 '48 30w

HOCKING, ANNE (MRS M. N. A. MESSER). Finishing touch. 192p $2 Doubleday 48-6481

Detective story.

"A Cyprian setting for smooth English detection."
+ Kirkus 16:130 Mr 1 '48 70w

"An absorbing and carefully integrated study of the minds of a murdered man and the three most likely suspects." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p24 Ap 25 '48 130w

"Satisfactory."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:32 My 22 '48 50w

HOCKMAN, WILLIAM SMITHSON. Projected visual aids in the church. 214p $3.75 Pilgrim press
268.635 Visual instruction. Church work
47-12092

"This thorough study of the use of visual aids in religious education and in worship services discusses principles and techniques. It also offers expert guidance in selecting projection equipment and appropriate film strips and other material." Christian Century

Christian Century 64:1616 D 31 '47 50w

"The chapters are practical in every necessary detail of advice, winnowed out of trial-and-error experience, but they are also wise in their attack on the more imponderable problems of aesthetics and general parochial policy. Users of visual aids should surely arm themselves with this wise and nearly-indispensable guide." P. E. Osgood
+ Churchman 162:17 Ja 15 '48 240w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 67:324 Ap 24 '48 180w

HODAPP, WILLIAM C., ed. Pleasures of the jazz age. 417p $4 Farrar, Straus
808.8 Literature—Collections 48-7973

"Divided into three sections 'The People of The Jazz age—Their Problems—Their Pleasures,' this is a collection of pieces from a heterogeneous field of literature ranging from The Sheik to Mother India and Lindsay's Companionate Marriage and including even Adolph Hitler." Library J

Booklist 45:10 S 1 '48
Kirkus 16:222 My 1 '48 170w

"Perhaps we should have this book as a shuddering reminder of that which brought us to today." L. M. Kinloch
Library J 73:1084 Ag '48 70w

"Brief, lively and revealing extracts from the principal writers of the 1920s, good, bad and characteristic."
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 Ag 29 '48 70w

"Part of the trouble may be that the volume attempts to cover too much ground; it might have been better to concentrate on the American scene, and really represent it. But the basic fault seems to me one of taste and knowledge, while the final criterion is almost always that of thrills and shocks. I still respect Mr. Hodapp's own feeling for his material, and I wish he had done a more thoughtful job." Maxwell Geismar

N Y Times p12 S 3 '48 800w

New Yorker 24:115 S 25 '48 140w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ag 27 '48 650w

"If read for literary value, this book soon resembles a Coney Island museum of horrors, in which are displayed the works of such literary curiosities as Vicki Baum and Warwick Deeping, such terrible stuff as Michael Arlen's green-plush patter about the smarter set and Vina Delmar's teary tribute to the 'bad girl.' If read, however, as a social document, The Pleasures of the Jazz Age has the same kind of interest as a report on mating customs of ancient Egyptians. . . It is possible that many middle-aged readers will find in this book's backward glance a nostalgic moment."

Time 52:80 Ag 30 '48 350w

HODGIN, EDWIN STANTON. Confessions of an agnostic clergyman; a lifelong search for a satisfying faith. 235p $2.50 Beacon press

B or 92 Clergy—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 48-5645

Reminiscences of a Quaker clergyman, from the Dakota prairies. "From his earliest days everything smacking of ecclesiasticism was repugnant. The greatest relief, he confesses, which he ever found was when, as a young man, he fully realized that he did not need to be saved—that he had never been lost. And for many years he sought in a most constructive way to make that fundamental really fundamental." (Crozer Q)

"A fascinating little book." Roger Shaw

+ Churchman 162:17 My 1 '48 150w

"Constantly I found myself saying, as I read this simple and unpretentious odyssey . . . 'This is a man I would really like to know.' And I fancy many, like me, will read it with respect and the feeling that here is a genuinely honest man. Not all will see eye to eye with him on many a point. No matter. . . Read this book and enjoy fellowship with one who is every inch a man and who, amazingly enough, cannot seem to grow old." M. S. Enslin

+ Crozer Q 25:283 Jl '48 400w

HODGKIN, LUCY VIOLET (MRS JOHN HOLDSWORTH). Gulielma: wife of William Penn. 227p il $4.50 Longmans

B or 92 Penn, Gulielma Maria (Springett) (Mrs William Penn). Friends, Society of A48-6444

A brief history of the English Quakers from 1650 to 1695, with emphasis on the Penington-Penn group. It contains, also, all that is known about the wife of William Penn. It is based on quotations from journals and letters written by a group of Quakers who lived near Jordans in Buckinghamshire. Index.

"The assembling of this cloud of witnesses and the recording of their evidence has obviously been a pleasant labour and profitable; and so is the reading of the finished work, which is well illustrated, well documented and indexed, and well turned out by the publisher." T. W. M.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 S 2 '47 240w

"If there is nothing new to be told us about 'Guli,' this book does at least give us the setting in which she lived, and in which we know her to have been a characteristic figure—a setting described with whole-hearted admiration. It can be recommended to anyone who has yet to make his entry into this strange and moving world of devotion persecuted by malice, of love harried by injustice and of honesty treacherously attacked. . . The little book, written by a Quaker (one supposes) for Quakers, allows no breath of criticism of any of their actions to intrude, suggests no suspicions of their dissensions. It is indeed a pious tribute, and to dwell on any omissions would be ungracious." Bonamy Dobrée

+ Spec 179:116 Jl 25 '47 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p426 Ag 23 '47 1650w

HODGSON, WILLIAM HOPE. Carnacki, the ghost-finder. 241p $3 Arkham house 48-5230

"Nine stories about 'psychic sleuth' and his dealings with spooks in England, Ireland, and on high seas." Sat R of Lit

"The tales bear their thirty-odd years pretty lightly and the best of them ought to become the anthologists' delight." James Sandoe

+ Chicago Sun p72 F 6 '48 90w

"Carnacki's exploits with real ha'nts better than his 'ghost breaking.' Stories vary in merit but general effect is amply shivery."

Sat R of Lit 31:34 F 14 '48 40w

HOEHN, MATTHEW ANTHONY, ed. Catholic authors; contemporary biographical sketches, 1930-1947. 812p il $10 St Mary's abbey, 528 High st, Newark 2, N.J.

928 Authors, Roman Catholic 48-2039

"[The] purpose of [this] work is to afford the reading public an intimate introduction to contemporary Catholic authors. It attempts in no wise to appraise critically the literary standing of the writers presented, nor to stamp all the works discussed as entirely representative of Catholic thought and doctrine. . . A list of more than sixteen hundred authors, comprising those who have died since 1930 as well as those who are still living, was sent to each of several librarians, editors, and literary critics who independently selected the authors they thought qualified. From these check lists our 620 Catholic authors were chosen. As a rule more space has been devoted to well-known authors than to beginners." Pref.

+ Cath World 167:478 Ag '48 250w

Reviewed by J. S. Kennedy

Cath World 168:213 D '48 40w

"The collection is remarkably comprehensive—a handful of recent authors are the only serious omissions which are at first apparent. . . The volume represents eight years of strenuous work. It is hard to see how any American Catholic secondary school or college library will want to be without it."

+ Commonweal 48:122 My 14 '48 200w

HOFFMAN, WILLIAM GEORGE. How to make better speeches. 266p $3 Funk

808.5 Public speaking 48-6985

"Deals with the content as well as the form of the speech, useful to individuals as well as classes. Has a check list to use in judging speeches of others, and so is a guide to a speaker, also. Practical for the amateur as well as the professional speaker." (Wis Lib Bul) Index.

Booklist 44:378 Jl 15 '48

"An excellent, well-rounded book, covering all the salient points, but offering nothing particularly new or revolutionary."

+ Kirkus 16:74 F 1 '48 100w

Wis Lib Bul 44:163 O '48

HOFSTADTER, RICHARD. American political tradition and the men who made it. 378p $4 Knopf

973 U.S.—Politics and government. Statesmen, American 48-8258

Twelve essays forming together an interpretation of American political tradition from the forming of the nation to Franklin D. Roosevelt. All but two of the essays are on specific individuals: the two are titled The founding fathers, and The spoilsmen. The author is assistant professor of history at Columbia university. Bibliographical essay. Index.

HOFSTADTER, RICHARD—Continued

"This is the work of a keen and cultivated mind which has organized a prodigious mass of material into a forceful challenge to contemporary reflection on what is commonly called 'the American heritage.' " A. G. Huegli
+ Am Pol Sci R 42:1214 D '48 600w

Booklist 45:49 O 1 '48

Reviewed by H. J. Sowerby
Christian Science Monitor p15 S 23 '48 950w

Reviewed by Wayne Andrews
Commonweal 49:198 D 3 '48 650w

Kirkus 16:384 Ag 1 '48 130w

"A thoughtful, penetrating controversial study. Highly recommended." J. H. Berthel
+ Library J 73:1188 S 1 '48 110w

"This is an able, witty, urbane book." Perry Miller
+ Nation 167:439 O 16 '48 900w

"This is an extremely important book, but it must be read with caution. In his attempt to clear the record of the folk-myths that have grown up about the Lincolns and Roosevelts, Hofstadter himself has made the mistake at times of belittling the genuine contributions of the men he has chosen to represent." George Mayberry
+ — New Repub 119:27 N 29 '48 550w

Reviewed by Max Lerner
New Repub 119:19 D 6 '48 320w

"Stimulating study of American political thought. . . The approach from a definite point of view tends to oversimplify and, in some cases, to distort—to distort particularly by omission—but the analyses are always penetrating and the grasp on events and personalities firm enough to make most interpretations at least plausible." Avery Craven
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 S 19 '48 2100w

"Mr. Hofstadter's analyses rarely go to extremes—never to a patently absurd extreme. He is too intelligent to mistake debunking for history, or cast iron logic for perfect wisdom. . . This book is shrewd, bold, honest—and, on occasion, brilliantly illuminating. The discussion of Hoover has sometimes the look of an autopsy, rather than an estimate, but it is one of the most persuasive things in the book." G. W. Johnson
+ N Y Times p1 S 19 '48 1100w

Reviewed by Caspar Weinberger
San Francisco Chronicle p23 S 12 '48 500w

"The book is superficial by serious intellectual standards, and supercilious by realistic political standards. Anecdotes, footnotes, and occasional apercus make pleasant reading, but the book suffers from its tendency to 'expose' such established facts as the intellectual conservatism of Lincoln, Wilson, and, particularly, Theodore Roosevelt." Eliot Janeway
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:19 O 9 '48 1850w

School & Society 68:176 S 11 '48 30w

"The essays are brilliantly written, with telling phrase and epithet, and analyze our public figures, without the usual propensity for hero worship, in a refreshingly honest and critical appraisal." J. N. Stalker
+ Survey 85:53 Ja '49 550w

HOGAN, BEN. Power golf. 166p il $3 Barnes, A.S.

796.352 Golf 48-2498

Golf instruction by a great player. Contents: Evolution of the Hogan grip; Clubs: selection and use; Stance gives you balance; The full swing; Turning on the power; Iron shots for accuracy; Putting; Bunker shots are easy; Uphill and downhill shots; Stormy weather golf; Now, it's up to you.

Booklist 44:348 Je 15 '48

Kirkus 16:210 Ap 15 '48 40w

Library J 73:1030 Jl '48 20w

"Hogan's tips for 'power golf' are endless, and best of all are the 122 splendid illustrations that show the professionals, the distaff divoters, the tired business man and the tyro alike how to stroke in every possible situation from tee to green." Maureen Orcutt
+ N Y Times p23 Ag 29 '48 180w

HOGAN, INEZ (MRS RANDOLPH BOWERS). Giraffe twins [il. by the author]. [48p] $1.25 Dutton

48-4246

The giraffe twins, Lanky and Lofty, were the tallest of all the animals; but the lion was the "fiercest." When the twins ran from the lion, Mother Giraffe decided her sons were also the smartest.

Commonweal 49:147 N 19 '48 40w

Kirkus 16:394 Ag 15 '48 100w

"Recommended." Elizabeth Sussdorff
+ Library J 73:1283 S 15 '48 50w

"The large sepia manuscript writing is easy on young eyes, and the rhythm of repeated words helps beginners in the world of books." Margaret Ernst
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 S 5 '48 110w

Sat R of Lit 31:23 N 13 '48 110w

Springf'd Republican p8B Ag 22 '48 120w

HOGAN, INEZ (MRS RANDOLPH BOWERS). Read to me about Peter Platypus; il by [the author]. 45p $1.25 Dutton

48-5848

Picture story book about a young platypus who wanted to see what other animals were like. He visited the farm creatures and was regarded with such surprise that he was relieved to arrive at the zoo, where everybody knew what a platypus was and where he lived very happily.

Reviewed by Martha King
Chicago Sun Ap 24 '48 180w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p14 O 26 '48 200w

Kirkus 16:108 Mr 1 '48 110w

"Written in short sentences for reading aloud to little folk, this latest 'Read-to-Me' book will have a special appeal because of the many amusing pictures and the strangeness of the animal it tells about. . . Recommended." M. F. Cox
+ Library J 73:560 Ap 1 '48 60w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Mr 7 '48 110w

"Miss Hogan combines fantasy and fact skillfully and with a humor that will make young children take the platypus to heart. She writes in a conversational style that makes easy reading aloud. . . The lively text is accompanied by attractive black and white page drawings, and a theme song at the beginning and the end offers parents the opportunity to encourage an interest in music and reading at the same time." Lillian Gerard
+ N Y Times p31 Mr 7 '48 180w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 31:37 Mr 13 '48 70w

HOGEBOOM, AMY. Horses and how to draw them. 39p il $1.50 Vanguard

743.6 Horses—Pictures, illustrations, etc. Drawing 48-9144

Photographs of nine different horses, with a descriptive text, and step-by-step line drawings to show how to draw them. Grades three to five.

Booklist 45:108 N 15 '48

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 168:220 D '48 50w

"The many, many children with a passion for horses will be given good shortcuts for watching and drawing in this book."
+ Commonweal 49:158 N 19 '48 50w

"While I can hardly agree that this is the way to learn to draw, Amy Hogeboom's books are attractive, well thought out, and show photographs and diagrams of many beautiful types of horses. As a supplement to sketching from life and for those children who are not going to be creative artists, it is perhaps the best of its kind." J. F. Kennedy
+ Library J 74:66 Ja 1 '49 80w

HOGEBOOM, AMY, ed. Tales from the high seas; with an introd. by Charles Lee Lewis; and decorations by Richard Floethe. 302p $3 Lothrop
48-9073

Collection of sea stories, ranging from the time of Caesar to the present. Partial contents: The capture of Young Caesar, by Henry Gilbert; Kubla Khan attacks by sea, by Marco Polo; Blackbeard, by Howard Pyle; Jim Hawkins strikes the Jolly Roger, by R. L. Stevenson; The Bon Homme Richard, by Herman Melville; Port of many ships, by John Masefield; The heathen, by Jack London; On ice patrol, by Kensil Bell; The ship: in support of destroyers, by C. S. Forester. Glossary of sea language.

Commonweal 49:152 N 19 '48 50w
Kirkus 16:573 N 1 '48 120w

"On the whole, quite a good collection dealing with shipwrecks, whaling, mutinies, etc. by Conrad, Stevenson, etc. Recommended for older boys and girls who will find plenty of excitement here." Virginia Swift
+ Library J 73:1675 N 15 '48 80w

HOGNER, DOROTHY (CHILDS) (MRS NILS HOGNER). Barnyard family; pictures by Nils Hogner. 70p $2.75 Oxford 636 Domestic animals—Juvenile literature
48-8045

"Author and artist introduce children to the breeding and raising of farm animals through a discussion of the care and, in some cases, training of young animals during the first months of their lives. Animals included are colts, calves, lambs, kids, pigs, puppies, kittens, and rabbits. Point of view is value to the farmer rather than desirability as pets. . . Grades 4-7." Booklist

+ Booklist 45:53 O 1 '48
Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 24:467 N '48 90w

"Of the three books in this category, The Animal Book, Farm Animals and Barnyard Family, which deal with the young, I think this seems somehow better integrated and less encyclopedic in both inclusions and presentations. It comes closest to universal child interest. . . Nils Hogner pictures are factually sound and decorative as well."
+ Kirkus 16:400 Ag 15 '48 90w

"There is no index, but a very complete table of contents is an adequate substitute. Recommended." Anne Izard
+ Library J 73:1283 S 15 '48 60w

"The uncondescending presentation and the clear detailed illustrations make this a fine book to pore over on a long winter afternoon."
+ New Repub 119:34 D 6 '48 90w
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 N 14 '48 140w
Reviewed by Phyllis Fenner
N Y Times p31 Ja 16 '49 130w
Sat R of Lit 31:44 N 13 '48 50w
Wis Lib Bul 44:167 O '48

HOGREFE, PEARL. Process of creative writing; growth through self-understanding. 369p $3 Harper
808 Authorship 48-239

College textbook for students of creative writing by a professor of English at Iowa State college. The author bases her teaching on the premise that normal people have creative power and that it can be developed when stimulated by honest motivations. Book covers narrative-descriptive writing, creative exposition, and suggestions on writing verse.

School & Society 67:175 F 28 '48 40w
Wis Lib Bul 44:80 Ap '48

HOKINSON, HELEN ELNA. When were you built? [88p] $2.75 Dutton
741.5 Caricatures and cartoons 48-8635

Collection of Helen Hokinson's cartoons, all of which first appeared in the New Yorker. The heroine is the stout middle-aged club woman, kindly but unconsciously ridiculous.

Booklist 45:47 O 1 '48
Reviewed by Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 D 5 '48 450w

"Miss Hokinson's satire is gentle (until you begin thinking about it) and it is based on familiar things, as well as upon every one's neighbor across the street and down three houses. . . Any good club woman—or, well, Miss Hokinson has drawn them all, and in these reprints from The New Yorker they are wonderful." Lewis Nichols
+ N Y Times p5 D 5 '48 600w

HOLBERG, MRS RUTH (LANGLAND). Gilbert Stuart; il. by Lloyd Coe. 183p $2.50 Crowell
B or 92 Stuart, Gilbert—Juvenile literature
48-8139

Fictionized account of the life of Gilbert Stuart, for grades six to eight. The author does not gloss over Stuart's personal faults. The story covers his life and work in America, London and Dublin.

Booklist 45:73 O 15 '48
Kirkus 16:367 Ag 1 '48 180w

"Recommended for junior high school students who are particularly interested in art." F. W. Butler
+ Library J 74:134 Ja 15 '49 70w
Reviewed by M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ja 2 '49 320w

"Pleasing in format and illustration, and ably and unassumingly written, this biography of Stuart should appeal to readers of ten to fourteen years, who for the most part know of Stuart only as the painter of the popular portraits of Washington. . . An honest job."
+ New Yorker 24:146 D 11 '48 100w

HOLBORN, HAJO. American military government; its organization and policies. 243p $3.50 Infantry journal 940.5338 Allied military government. U.S.—Foreign relations. World war, 1939-1945—Occupied territories 47-3001

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"Professor Holborn tells an involved story with clarity, though an author even of his skill cannot always succeed in disentangling military government functions from political and diplomatic crosscurrents. The book constitutes a solid foundation for more specialized studies of military government in action which will have to continue where, following the limitations of his assignment, Professor Holborn left off. As an over-all treatment of planning and organizational phases the book is definitely an addition to our information concerning American military government." Karl Loewenstein

HOLBORN, HAJO—Continued

+ Am Hist R 53:363 Ja '48 1350w

Foreign Affairs 26:400 Ja '48 40w

"More than half of Professor Holborn's work is devoted to an Appendix which reproduces the principal documents, 1943-46, within which American and Allied policies on military government have been enunciated. Some are published here for the first time. This convenient collection should be of value to all students of military government."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 3:374 D '47 320w

"It should be read not only by the 'expert,' but by the student of world affairs who realizes that our performance in military government may well spell success or failure in creating the conditions of lasting peace." Sigmund Neumann

+ Yale R n s 37:364 winter '48 100w

HOLBROOK, STEWART HALL. Little Annie Oakley and other rugged people. 238p $3.50 Macmillian

920 United States—Biography 48-9366

A series of sketches about some Americans and places of rather individual character. All the articles have appeared in magazines or newspapers during the past few years. Partial contents: Little Annie Oakley; Murder at Harvard; The late Calamity Jane; Ethan Allen, author; Life and times of Ned Buntline; A salute to Buffalo Bill; Boston's Scollay square; Frank Merriwell; Kit Carson; Whistle punks.

Booklist 45:119 D 1 '48

Reviewed by Ben Kartman
Chicago Sun D 14 '48 220w

Christian Century 66:21 Ja 5 '49 210w

Churchman 162:29 N 15 '48 30w

"A series of delightful pieces, pure Americana. . . Lively reading."

+ Kirkus 16:426 Ag 15 '48 160w

"Well written, entertaining, historically accurate. Contains table of contents but no index which would have made this an important reference book. Well recommended." L. R. Etzkorn

+ Library J 73:1269 S 15 '48 140w

Nation 167:673 D 11 '48 70w

"This is one of the rarities of modern publishing, a book that is even better read aloud than alone. . . It is written with the speed and conversational raciness of a man who forever is imagining himself in the presence of open-mouthed listeners. Holbrook's genuine delight in imparting to the reader the curious things he has discovered is infectious, and his salty common sense and terse humor keep him from redundancy." Lloyd Lewis

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 N 21 '48 650w

"A fine bunch to get acquainted with." R. L.

+ N Y Times p37 N 21 '48 470w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 N 22 '48 750w

Reviewed by Duncan Aikman
Sat R of Lit 31:26 D 11 '48 550w

Springf'd Republican p9B N 28 '48 330w

HOLBROOK, STEWART HALL. Northwest corner. See Sheldon, H. D., il.

HOLBROOK, STEWART HALL. Story of American railroads. 468p il maps $4.50 Crown

385 Railroads—U.S. 47-6799

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '48

"I confess that it's too crowded with detail for my especial liking. I confess I'm interested in details only when they serve as data to reveal or confirm, or to illustrate or concretely dramatize, some fundamental truth. Details that aren't needed for this purpose become excessive and annoying; become even suffocating. I don't say that Holbrook's book is as bad as all that. I mean only to suggest that his pile-up of facts, of sheer data, stands in the way of his telling the story as swiftly as he might have told it. I believe, in short, that he might have written a better book if he had done the job in half as many words." David Marshall

+ — Commonweal 47:475 F 20 '48 350w

Reviewed by Keith Hutchison
Nation 166:163 F 7 '48 230w

Reviewed by Leo Marx
New Eng Q 21:416 S '48 550w

Reviewed by W. G. Tyrrell
Social Studies 39:133 Mr '48 450w

Springf'd Republican p10B F 1 '48 600w

"Covering so great a territory and compressed into a little over 400 pages, this account exhibits a number of sins, both of omission and commission. It falls, in its approach, somewhere between entertainment for budding rail fans and serious introduction to its subject. Nevertheless, written with zest and imagination, the book is as interesting in the large as it is irritating in much of its detail."

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 4:55 Mr '48 280w

HOLE, CHRISTINA. English folk-heroes; il. from original woodcuts by Eric King. 182p $3.75 Batsford

398.22 Folklore—England. Heroes 48-11322

"An explanation of what it takes to become an English folk hero, supported by references to the lives, as far as they are known, of Saint George, King Arthur, Robin Hood, Saint Thomas à Becket, and others." New Yorker

Reviewed by Jacquetta Hawkes
New Statesman & Nation 36:311 O 9 '48 600w

"From the lively scholarship shown in her books about ghosts and witches it was to be expected that Miss Hole would do something special with that liveliest of shadows, the folk hero. She has done it."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p32 N 28 '48 290w

"Even if Miss Hole does not re-create her period and people with the warmth and color that, say, Helen Waddell gives the Middle Ages, still she writes an interesting account that is clear, satisfying and usually revealing." N. K. Burger

+ N Y Times p5 D 26 '48 550w

"Interesting, pleasantly written."

+ New Yorker 24:144 N 27 '48 120w

"Miss Hole has more zest for the recording of facts than for their interpretation, with the result that her work is often lacking in the formal articulation which a line of argument will stimulate. It is to be regretted, too, that more consideration has not been given to the dissemination of the legends through ballads, mummers, poetry, plays, stories, films and pantomimes."

Times [London] Lit Sup p567 O 9 '48 800w

HOLE, MYRA CADWALADER. Bartolomé Mitre; a poet in action. 206p pa $2.80 Hispanic inst. in the U.S.

B or 92 Mitre, Bartolomé A47-3857

"The life and times of a military, political, and intellectual leader of Argentina, one of the makers of the nation's history, are here summarized." U S Quarterly Bkl

"Unfortunately this biography of a 'Maker of History' has been written by one of obviously nonhistorical training. As a result, blithe historical generalities and a lack of specific documentation for many a controversial point prove a very real weakness in a book which, in its consideration of Mitre as a man of letters, makes a useful contribution to critical literature. Historical material is handled in a strikingly casual manner and with an oversimplification which results in a totally inadequate relation of the course of historical events; there are individual statements of highly questionable accuracy... But [the author] does introduce the general reader to a long-needed, popularly written account, in the English language, of the life of a great American, and in the pages devoted to Mitre's literary work she makes her contribution to the field of literary criticism." M. W. Nichols

— + Am Hist R 53:366 Ja '48 480w

"Not withstanding the rather ornate appellation, 'A Poet in Action,' included in the title, the author maintains throughout a remarkable sense of proportion, thanks to which Mitre's political sagacity and resiliency are given proper emphasis in the unfolding of his career. The colorless style and the didactic tone often used by the author are not to be regretted, but rather welcomed, since they help in clarifying the confused history of the period."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:35 Mr '48 260w

HOLLAND, RAYMOND PRUNTY. Bird dogs; il. by Fred McCaleb. (Sportsman's lib) 204p $5 Barnes, A.S.

636.75 Dogs Agr48-221

Basic facts about setters, pointers, spaniels, and other breeds of dogs used in hunting birds in the United States. Standards and descriptions are those of the American kennel club. Illustrations are partly photographs; others are in color or in black and white. No index.

Booklist 44:363 Jl 1 '48

Kirkus 16:229 My 1 '48 120w

"Recommended."

+ Library J 73:1030 Jl '48 20w

Reviewed by Leo Marceau

Springf'd Republican p12B My 2 '48 550w

HOLLING, HOLLING CLANCY. Seabird; il. by [the author]. 63p $3 Houghton

48-7832

"Ezra Brown carved Seabird from a walrus tusk during his first trip aboard a New Bedford whaler. Later the bird became the mascot of Ezra's son's clipper ship on its trips to the Orient. When Ezra's son's son captained his first steamship across the Atlantic, Seabird went too, and when Ken Brown, Ezra's great-grandson, piloted his airship through space Seabird soared higher than a live bird above the sea." N Y Times

Booklist 45:16 S 1 '48

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun O 30 '48 290w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling

Christian Science Monitor p9 S 14 '48 360w

"A rare book, beautifully written, to be enjoyed by all." L. S. B.

+ Commonweal 49:152 N 19 '48 130w

"The subject takes the reader over the globe and provides room for imagination to aid history in vitalizing the period. The beauty of the illustrations gives the book distinction." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 24:375 S '48 90w

"Fascinating details of whaling ships make the early part of the book a delight, but it tends to get rotund and stuffy in the later sections. However, the author's vivid, full color illustrations, and detailed decorative sketches are worth the price."

+ — Kirkus 16:398 Ag 15 '48 150w

Reviewed by M. B. Snow

Library J 73:1197 S 1 '48 80w

"'Seabird' is an entrancing and beautiful book for anybody, from the age of eight on, who cares about the sea and ships." M. C. Ernst

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 N 21 '48 320w

"The prose is evocative, exciting to the imagination. The full-page illustrations are academic in style but lush in color. Together with informational marginal drawings they contain just about everything a boy would want to see on the subject." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p17 Ag 22 '48 180w

New Yorker 24:142 D 11 '48 140w

"This fascinating record of America expanding looks like a picture book because space was needed for the illustrations, reproduced in full color from paintings. They are exciting and beautiful. Children all over the world would understand the story that they tell without words." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 31:37 S 18 '48 270w

Wis Lib Bul 44:151 S '48

HOLLISTER, MRS MARY (BREWSTER). Dike against the sea; il. by Kurt Wiese. 126p $1.50; pa 90c Friendship press

48-3012

Story of a Chinese Christian family of present-day Fukien province. When the dike was destroyed by a typhoon the Langs faced destitution until their daughter effected a reconciliation with her mother's estranged parents. The book ends with the celebration of Christmas with its gifts of a new dike for the village and the reunion of the two families. For age 8-11.

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 24:373 S '48 100w

Kirkus 16:307 Jl 1 '48 90w

"A missionary in Central China, Mrs. Hollister has experienced many of the incidents introduced into her book, which is informative almost at the expense of being entertaining. Incidents are too sketchy to make for a clearly defined plot; characters are shadowy, conversations stilted, yet the atmosphere of China today is there. Well bound, nicely illustrated by Kurt Wiese." Claire Nolte

+ — Library J 73:1098 Ag '48 100w

Reviewed by Irmengarde Eberle

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 Jl 4 '48 320w

HOLLOS, CLARA. Story of your bread; pictures by Lászlo Roth. [46p] $1.50 Int. pubs.

641 Bread—Juvenile literature 48-9323

"History of bread making in 44 pages, from the discovery of grain in the Stone Age to the modern bakery. Laszlo Roth has done the illustrations in sepia ink and yellow wash in such a way as to record the events in pictures styled to fit the various periods in history in which the developments took place." (Library J) "At the end there are pictured sequences of the discoveries and inventions that made bread possible, and the different steps in modern breadmaking from wheat to consumer. Grades 4-6." (Booklist)

Booklist 45:144 D 15 '48

"Not an easy-reading book but one suited to upper elementary grades. Suitable for school libraries or school departments of public libraries." E. T. Dobbins

Library J 73:1826 D 15 '48 70w

HOLME, BRYAN, ed. Master drawings in line. 8p 86pls $4.50 Studio

741.9 Drawings 48-7433

Line drawings by famous artists, arranged chronologically by birth date of artist from 1700 B.C. to 1907. There are a few pages of discussion for artist and layman, on drawing in pen and ink. Index.

HOLME, BRYAN—Continued

"Acceptable for libraries, large and small." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 73:1386 O 1 '48 100w
New Yorker 24:109 S 11 '48 80w

"Reproductions in black and white are excellent, and many of them have been enlarged to framing size. The student draughtsman should find this book a gold mine for study of perspective and line."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p11 Jl 11 '48 90w

HOLMES, MARJORIE ROSE (MRS L. B. MIGHELL). Ten o'clock scholar. 319p $3 Lippincott 48-5034

Study of the rise of an idealistic and brilliant young man from a position as superintendent of a small rural school to that of head of the educational system of a large city. Ralph had married Jan early in his career, thinking that Jan was not his equal. But Jan was lovely, and intelligent if not intellectual, and it was Jan who helped him all the way, even though it took years for Ralph to learn the truth.

Booklist 44:202 F 1 '48

"The author writes without bitterness, but the overall picture of our educational system is not a consoling one. However, she tells a good story whose interest is by no means restricted to the field it explores."
Cath World 167:189 My '48 170w

"Against the background of the field of American education, Marjorie Holmes in 'Ten O'Clock Scholar' tells the diverting story of a woman's influence on a man's career. . . In developing the story of the Mallisons, Mrs. Holmes throws the limelight on many weaknesses of American education." Rose Feld
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ja 25 '48 320w

"A well-realized character in himself, Mallison's Middle West background and his typical emotional ups and downs, suggest a lesser, softer Arrowsmith (who was one of his ideals, by the way). And the towns and cities of his career with their leading types have the flavor of Main Street and Zenith revisited." Catharine Brody
+ N Y Times p16 Ja 25 '48 470w

Reviewed by Edith James
San Francisco Chronicle p19 F 29 '48 70w

HOLMES, PAUL A. Murder buttoned up. 253p $2.50 Dutton
48-11088

Detective story.

"It is unpretentious, swift, neat and surprising—a capable and highly readable job." James Sandoe
+ Chicago Sun D 10 '48 170w
Kirkus 16:537 O 1 '48 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 D 26 '48 180w
N Y Times p25 D 12 '48 120w

"Fair."
Sat R of Lit 32:32 Ja 22 '49 40w

HOLMES, SAMUEL JACKSON. Life and morals. 232p $3 Macmillan
171.7 Ethics, Evolutionary 48-5952

"Mr. Holmes belongs to the naturalistic school of ethics. Eschewing all that smacks of the supernatural and metaphysical, he staunchly maintains that man's moral sense is nothing more than intelligence applied to the animal-social instincts, and that the time is long overdue when a purely scientifically grounded ethics should be established. In developing his thesis he makes numerous attacks on religion, especially on the Catholic authoritative point of view on such subjects as divorce, birth control and euthanasia. A lengthy annotated bibliography is appended." (Library J) Index.

"In the process of commending and illustrating an attitude or point of view Holmes presents material of considerable interest. He makes astute remarks about human nature, human behavior, and society. He runs over, with shrewd and thoughtful comments, various doctrines of the evolution of morality, citing writers . . . who are today almost forgotten. The substance of the book, however, is the author's conviction that science liberates man from emotion, superstition, and muddled thinking and that discussion of moral problems is badly in need of such liberation." Charner Perry
Am J Soc 54:173 S '48 600w
Columbia Law R 48:827 Jl '48 120w

"Professor Holmes' review of the development of moral standards and his consideration of some of the perplexing ethical problems of the day in the light of the findings of the biologists and psychologists will not satisfy every reader. However he does throw much needed light on these subjects, and every one interested in the philosophical basis of ethics should be familiar with this scholarly book."
Kirkus 16:83 F 1 '48 150w

"Though philosophically somewhat superficial, book is recommended for those libraries desiring simple, modern treatment of the naturalistic point of view." G. W. Wakefield
+ — Library J 73:394 Mr 1 '48 130w

Reviewed by Paul Ramsey
N Y Times p19 Ap 25 '48 400w
School & Society 67:286 Ap 10 '48 20w
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:145 Je '48 280w

HOLTON, EDITH AUSTIN. Green carpet. 248p $2.75 Putnam
48-5708

"Jonathan, returned from the recent war, and a veteran of the first world war, returns to his New England home to find that he is still encumbered with family, with involuntary as well as personal obligations. He is particularly in debt to the Honeywell family, on whom his father, as well as he, had been dependent for their income. Widowed, and unwillingly happy over this fact, Jonathan fights his solid Victorian background in finding that he has to lay a ghost, to survey his past in terms of the present, to locate his happiness in the woman with whom he had always been in love." Kirkus

Booklist 44:268 Ap 1 '48

"A quite comfortable, adult romance. . . Niceties of conventions as well as niceties of possible situations give this a wider appeal than most rental stock."
+ Kirkus 16:57 F 1 '48 130w

"This is a mediocre book; the writing is clumsy, the characters unreal, and the devices obvious." Anne Whitmore
— Library J 73:336 F 15 '48 70w

"A pleasant, inconsequential novel."
+ — New Yorker 24:116 Mr 20 '48 120w

"What is nowadays all too rare, a delightful love story." Ethel Dexter
+ Springf'd Republican p10B My 23 '48 300w
Wis Lib Bul 44:105 My '48

HOLZMAN, ROBERT S. Corporate reorganizations; their federal tax status. 411p $7.50 Ronald 658.168 Corporations—Taxation 48-957

"First recent book on the subject, written from practical experience to fill the needs of accountants, lawyers, revenue agents and others concerned with taxes. Its purpose is classification of the reorganization section of the law for the benefit of the user. It provides a workable knowledge of what reorganization is under present theory, what the courts will or will not sanction and what the tax payer must do before and after reorganization. Economic events, changes in technology, legislation and judicial decisions are considered, cases cited. Bibliography." (Library J) Indexes.

"That there is need for an accurate technical vocabulary is convincingly demonstrated, but the author is content to point out the crucial difficulties without attempting to resolve the vagaries and inconsistencies. To the practitioner this helpful book demonstrates the need for a thorough understanding of the complex problems in the field."
Columbia Law R 48:1122 N '48 110w

Harvard Law R 61:1287 Jl '48 230w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:713 My 1 '48 90w

HONEY, WILLIAM BOWYER. German porcelain. 56p 96pl 4 col pl $7.50 Van Nostrand

738.27 Pottery, German 48-9607

"Comprehensive survey of Meissen, Dresden, Hochst and other German porcelains of the 18th century. After a general discussion of the origins of European porcelain and various techniques and factory methods, he divides his text according to localities and writes of the outstanding periods of production, the artists, and the wares produced in each part of the country. For collectors and students he includes a very detailed section on factory marks." (San Francisco Chronicle) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Carolyn Stull
San Francisco Chronicle p16 D 19 '48 90w

"A most valuable and delightful addition to the study of Rococo."
+ Spec 179:812 D 26 '47 90w

Springf'd Republican p12C D 12 '48 40w

HONEY, WILLIAM BOWYER. Korean pottery. 19p 96pl 4 col pl $7.50 Van Nostrand

738.2 Pottery, Korean

"Discusses Korean history and the periods in which the most prized types of pottery were produced. For purposes of comparison, he relates the periods loosely to corresponding Chinese dynasties. He then describes in detail and in chronological sequence pieces of the pottery that survive in various collections, after which the remainder of the book is devoted to the illustrations." (San Francisco Chronicle) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Carolyn Stull
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 D 19 '48 270w

Spec 179:812 D 26 '47 90w

Springf'd Republican p12C D 12 '48 40w

HOOKE, HILDA MARY (MRS RICHARD SMITH). Thunder in the mountains, legends of Canada; il. by Clare Bice. 223p $2.50 Oxford

398.22 Legends—Canada. Indians of North America—Legends. Indians of North America—Canada 48-204

Collection of Canadian folk tales gathered from existing source material. The book is arranged in three sections. In the first: The garden of Gitche Manitou, the author retells the Indian legends of the early inhabitants of the garden created by Gitche Manitou, the Great Spirit. The second section has three tales of the coming of the white men to Canada; and the third section deals with the white men's stories of magic, witches, pixies, saints, and the legend which explains why Montreal is such a windy city. Bibliography.

Booklist 44:269 Ap 1 '48

Reviewed by L. D. Milani
Canadian Forum 28:47 My '48 80w

"The story of Gitchi Manito, the Great Spirit of Algonquian religion, has been told many times, but the tales have never exceeded the beauty and simplicity of Miss Hooke's collection of Canadian legends."
+ Cath World 167:94 Ap '48 200w

Reviewed by Martha King
Chicago Sun Je 26 '48 90w

"These childish tales of the Indians have in them something of the majesty that conjured them, and something of the delight and cunning which man learns from the animals, and with which he also endows them. It is particularly good for United States children to be made aware, through such a book as Mrs. Hooke's, of the one-ness of the American continent at the basic levels." Anne Fremantle
+ Commonweal 48:386 Jl 30 '48 130w

Commonweal 49:148 N 19 '48 70w

"Miss Hooke includes some familiar tales from folklore cycles that are widely spread among different Indian tribes, but the collection, as a whole, is fresh and vigorous, the choice is excellent, and the retelling is sincere and full of flavor." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 24:191 My '48 120w

"An excellently written, appreciative but humor-filled account of the legends of Canada."
+ Kirkus 16:85 F 15 '48 110w

"Prose is smooth and vivid. Many of the stories are too long for telling without adaptation, but children will enjoy reading them or hearing them read aloud. Clare Bice's black-and-white illustrations are blurred in reproduction. . . Book fills a gap in our national folklore collections. Recommended." Clara Adams
+ Library J 73:484 Mr 15 '48 80w

Reviewed by V. H. Mathews
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Ag 8 '48 200w

"The language is colloquial, almost personal. For the local 'old wives' tales' this is fairly successful, but for the Indian legends it is far less effective. They need dignity and rhythm. As a collection this book offers new material to storytellers and to lovers of folklore."
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:35 Ap 10 '48 90w

HOOPER, ALFRED. Makers of mathematics. 402p $3.75 Random house

510.9 Mathematics—History. Mathematicians 48-7590

Discusses the history and development of the science of mathematics by tracing the lives of mathematicians from Thales to Gauss. Bibliography. Indexes.

Booklist 45:46 O 1 '48

Cleveland Open Shelf p22 D '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:950 Je 15 '48 60w

"The reader of 'Makers of Mathematics' may well close it with the hope that the author's next book will be an account, in the same vein, of the mathematical men and ideas of the eighteenth century. This is a tall order, but Mr. Hooper seems excellently fitted for broadening the historical horizons of those mathematical amateurs who imagine —so needlessly—that the calculus stands like a stone wall debarring them from further progress in their favorite subject." D. D. Miller
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ag 29 '48 430w

"An entertaining history and primer of the science."
+ New Yorker 24:82 S 4 '48 100w

"It should be especially useful and interesting to high school students who are seriously interested in mathematics and to those with an avocational interest in the subject." J. W. H.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p11 Ag 15 '48 70w

HOOVER, EDGAR MALONE. Location of economic activity. 310p maps $3.75 McGraw

658.21 Industries, Location of 48-3997

"This book presents an organized body of principles relating to the spatial relations of economic activities. . . The book is primarily analytical rather than descriptive, devoting particular attention to problems of locational change and adjustment, and to objectives, methods, and implications of policies of public control. In general, the book develops ideas on the selection of locations for private and public facilities, land utilization, metropolitan and regional planning, and programs of industrial development and stabilization at local, state, regional, and national levels." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:60 O 15 '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1033 Jl '48 100w

HOOVER, MERLE MONTGOMERY. Park Benjamin, poet and editor. 229p il $3 Columbia univ. press

B or 92 Benjamin, Park 48-5659

A biography of Park Benjamin (1809-1864) who was an American editor, poet, and lecturer. At one time he edited the New England magazine, the chief predecessor of the Atlantic Monthly. From 1839 to 1845 he was editor of the weekly New World, which was the best periodical of its kind at the time. The study explains Benjamin's considerable influence upon American literature during the 1840's. Selected bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by F. L. Mott
New Eng Q 21:397 S '48 350w

Reviewed by Maxwell Geismar
N Y Times p6 Ap 4 '48 750w

Reviewed by Allan Nevins
Sat R of Lit 31:19 Jl 31 '48 190w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:154 Je '48 300w

HOOVER, MRS MILDRED (BROOKE) and others. Historic spots in California; rev. by Ruth Teiser; with an introd. by Robert Glass Cleland. new ed 3v in 1 411p il $5 Stanford univ. press

917.94 California—Description and travel 48-6969

"Originally sponsored by the California State Conference of the Daughters of the American Revolution, this guide appeared in three volumes between 1932 and 1937. There is little change in this edition, except the correction of some errors and the addition of a small amount of up-to-date material. The state is divided in three sections and each county is covered. Double column page, small but legible print." Booklist

Booklist 45:34 S 15 '48

Sat R of Lit 31:28 Ag 21 '48 50w

HOPKINS, ARTHUR MELANCTHON. Reference point; reflections on creative ways in general with special reference to creative ways in the theatre. 135p $2.50 French

792 Theater

"'Reference Point,' a series of papers on Stage Direction and Production read by Arthur Hopkins at the 1947 Theatre Seminar at Fordham University, is a recapitulation of personal theories, practices and conclusions after years of play producing." (Publisher's note) At the end of each paper points brought out during the question period are summarized. There is an introductory essay: Half men and whole men. The Fordham papers are: The community theatre; The director and classic plays; The director and modern plays; The director and the actor; Rehearsal approach; Revelations in acting; Unnoted precepts; John Barrymore; John, Ethel and Lionel; Flashes of genius.

Booklist 45:8 S 1 '48

"Recommended." George Freedley
+ Library J 73:816 My 15 '48 70w

Reviewed by Harold Clurman
New Repub 119:27 Jl 26 '48 600w

"This is the Alpha and the Omega of creative theatre. For a long, long time to come no other books need be written about writing, direction, acting." Emmet Lavery
+ Theatre Arts 32:100 Ag '48 370w

HOPKINS, DONALD PERCY. Chemicals, humus, and the soil; fertilizers, manures, and soil fertility. 358p il $8.50 Chemical pub. co.

631.8 Fertilizers and manures. Humus Agr48-213

"The author's objectives in writing this book appear to be twofold—to present a discussion of the various factors involved in soil fertility maintenance and to defend the use of chemical fertilizers against the attacks of the so-called humus school of proponents for 'natural' or compost fertilizers. As stated by the author in his preface, it is written for the ordinary man and not for scientists and technicians." Chem & Eng N

"For leisurely reading by the practical farmer this book has a place, but as a reference for practical applications it is probably not worth the purchase price." W. L. Lott
Chem & Eng N 26:2837 S 20 '48 300w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '48

HOPKINS, GERARD MANLEY. Poems; introd. by W. H. Gardner. 318p $3.50 Oxford

821 48-4834

"This is the third edition of Hopkins's Poems. They were first published in 1918 under the editorship of Robert Bridges. Additional poems were added to the second edition by Charles Williams. W. H. Gardner has now rearranged the poems in chronological order and provided a biographical introduction. Revisions, based on manuscripts unavailable to earlier editors, have been made and several poems are published for the first time, including those written in Welsh, Latin and Greek." Library J

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Chicago Sun N 1 '48 230w

"This third edition of the poetry is an improvement over the previous ones; it contains a greater body of Hopkins' poetry, more precisely arranged in chronological order, and more intelligently annotated. For a poet who rose from the dead thirty years ago, and who has done so much for English poetry, such a presentation of his work comes none too soon." E. F. Meagher
+ Commonweal 48:505 S 3 '48 130w

"The notes are extensive, reprinting most of the earlier notes and adding many new ones. An excellent gathering of the work of a poet who has been a major influence on our young writers." Gerald McDonald
+ Library J 73:1277 S 15 '48 100w

"This third, and augmented, edition of Hopkins' poetry is likely to be the definitive one for some time to come. . . The book, carefully arranged and annotated, is designed, as its editor remarks, not to further the Hopkins 'cult' but to establish a basis for the poet's 'legitimate and lasting fame.'"
+ New Yorker 24:107 O 2 '48 120w

HORAN, ROBERT. A beginning; with a foreword by W. H. Auden. (Yale series of younger poets) 87p $2.50 Yale univ. press

811 48-6948

First collection of poems by an American writer.

"Robert Horan's vision of the world is unusual and stimulating and difficult. . . What will exhilarate a general reader is Horan's translation of natural happenings—like a spider's manufacture and operation of its web—into modern, urban terms. . . It's a new way of looking at nature, one that Wordsworth never knew. It is right for us." Leo Kennedy
+ Chicago Sun My 31 '48 310w

"Nature is superbly realized in his poems, but Man is a little dim, and the unpleasant 'facts' of twentieth-century life—oppression, war, individual isolation, advertising, brutality, mass sanitation and mass neurosis—are at least never explicitly indicated. . . He is exploring the world about him, even if so far only the sensuous surfaces break through. There is no deliberate obscurantism in his poems, and very frequently a piercing and even epigrammatic lucidity. He has a style. There is every reason to hope that he will find a fitting subject." Selden Rodman

+ N Y Times p12 Ag 8 '48 700w

"The baroque word is somewhat in the ascendant in this first book, but the tone of a gifted lyricist is undeniably present."

New Yorker 24:99 Je 12 '48 80w

Reviewed by Paul Goodman

Poetry 73:166 D '48 1000w

Reviewed by Thomas Ferril

San Francisco Chronicle p9 D 5 '48 90w

Reviewed by Dudley Fitts

Sat R of Lit 31:32 N 20 '48 340w

"Mr. Horan is obviously a poet with a future. It is to be hoped that this future will include the absorption of ordinary human experience and the gain, for his verse, of a certain expansiveness and warmth which this first volume lacks. Nevertheless these tense and oblique poems are worth reading not only for their promise but for their modest and precise achievement."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p500 S 4 '48 800w

"Although his best work has originality, many of Horan's poems are flawed, I think, by excessive imitation of Hopkins, and by a tendency to heap up images without coherence, after the manner of the 'surrealist' or 'apocalyptic' writers. But the volume as a whole testifies to the healthful poetical atmosphere in which a young American poet can today begin, in sharp contrast to the literary climate some forty years ago, when Ezra Pound began." L. L. Martz

+ — Yale R n s 38:150 autumn '48 430w

HORN, GUNNAR. Public-school publicity; a practical guide for teachers and administrators; foreword by Belmont Farley; il. by Kay White. 226p $3.50 Inor

371.2 Publicity. Advertising—Schools 48-10051

"Essential information on what is good publicity material and how to present it in newspapers and on the radio." (Booklist) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:82 N 1 '48

School & Society 68:223 S 25 '48 20w

"This book was written primarily for the benefit of teachers who are untrained and inexperienced in the ways of school publicity. The suggestions given and the activities described have worked successfully in some school systems, and it is believed that they may be employed to good effect in many places. The numerous illustrations presented in the book to clarify or supplement an idea, technique, or activity and the resource materials in the Appendix add much to its practical uses. This volume will be read with interest by students of educational administration generally." O. N. Peterson

+ School R 56:554 N '48 800w

HORNER, FRANCIS J., pseud. See Lyell, T. R. G.

HOROWITZ, MRS CAROLINE, and HART, HAROLD, eds. A treasury of laughs for boys & girls; ed. by Joanna Strong [pseud] and Tom B. Leonard [pseud] with il. by Adolphe Barreaux. 192p $2 Hart

817.08 Humor—Juvenile literature 48-6992

A collection of jokes, riddles, limericks, funny poems, tongue twisters, newspaper boners, classroom boners, humorous dialogs, and other material for minstrel shows and other group entertainments. Grades six to nine.

Booklist 44:371 Jl 1 '48

"This is a goldmine of the kind of humor youngsters find irresistible."

+ Kirkus 16:256 Je 1 '48 90w

"Actually a joke book, this will still have a definite place in children's library collections. . . Recommended specifically for program material." S. J. Johnson

+ Library J 73:955 Je 15 '48 70w

"'A Treasury of Laughs' fills a real need in modern reading for youngsters, the need for unadulterated fun, and carries the type of humor most appealing to the adolescent age, though the older members of the family too will find much to tickle their risibles." E. H. Dexter

+ Springf'd Republican p10A Jl 18 '48 180w

HOUSEHOLD, GEOFFREY. Arabesque. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 312p $2.75 Little 48-5976

Novel of intrigue in the Middle East during the last war. Armande Herne, a beautiful French-English girl, undertakes a mission to secure arms from an Arab sheikh, and finds herself in trouble when the arms are diverted from the British to the Jews. She is protected more than once by Sergeant Prayle, a British Field security officer. The racial and national discords between French, English, Jew, and Arab, are part of the story.

Booklist 44:299 My 1 '48

"As it happens, what intrigue there is concerns only the ramifications of a minor adventure in gun-running; while the conflict between Arab and Jew is referred to impartially, whenever it appears, in such a way as to be a model of official discretion. Mr. Household is not so discreet in other aspects of his book, and some readers may find it questionable on that score. Much of the dialogue, as well as the progress of the love affair, contains elements which in less skillful hands might be considered objectionable. Here, the author's honesty, combined with his gift for roguish humor, makes it possible to forgive him much. On the other hand, there can be no doubt as to the timeliness of the book." M. W. Stoer

+ — Christian Science Monitor p16 My 12 '48 600w

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '48

"Adventure, which, if perhaps less direct than his earlier Rogue Male, is both assured and suave."

+ Kirkus 16:148 Mr 15 '48 140w

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset

Manchester Guardian p3 D 4 '48 60w

"Mr. Household has built his story so much upon the exploits of Armande that it may seem rather disparaging to add that she does not wholly come to life. Actually, however, 'Arabesque' has enough compensating virtues . . . and there is on nearly every page some word that seems effortlessly right in its context, or some descriptive sentence that paints a vivid picture." James Hilton

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 My 9 '48 700w

"Household spent most of the war as an intelligence officer in the Levant, and his knowledge of people and politics in the area is thorough and coldly sensible. . . He has an unmatched feeling for the romance of far places and high adventure, for intrigue and vivid personalities. All the old lure of the storyteller's East is in his novel. . . At the same time nothing could be more sordid than his military bureaucrats, his petty political chicanery, his doctrinaire gun-runners. It is almost a tribute to the vividness of the story that its one or two flaws should even be classed as flaws. . . It is an exciting work, and it is exciting not only for itself but because it brings to an end a silence of nine years." Donald Barr

+ N Y Times p7 Ap 25 '48 950w

HOUSEHOLD, GEOFFREY—Continued

"Not on a par with the bevelled craftsmanship the author displayed in 'Rogue Male.'"

New Yorker 24:102 My 1 '48 130w

Reviewed by Larry Laughlin

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 28 '48 600w

"Woven through the book is the love story of Armande and Sergeant Dion Prayle of Field Security. Prayle's intuitions and laconic inferences do full justice to British Intelligence tradition. He not only rescues Armande eventually; he makes the book. In creating him . . . Mr. Household demonstrates once more a sure gift for characterization, as well as an enviable talent for weaving his way with assurance through the maze of Middle East politics." G. G. Stevens

+ Sat R of Lit 31:12 My 8 '48 700w

Springf'd Republican p14A Je 11 '48 90w

Time 51:109 My 10 '48 330w

"Mr. Household's picture of army life, and liaison with the French, is, to put it mildly, a romantic one."

Times [London] Lit Sup p677 D 4 '48 190w

HOUSELANDER, FRANCES CARYLL. Dry wood. 257p $3 Sheed

47-11634

The story of the death of a beloved old Catholic priest in the poor East End dock district of London. His parishioners seek a miracle for his canonization, but their prayers for the recovery of a little crippled boy are not answered.

"The plot is very good and holds your interest from first to last. Unfortunately, and perhaps naturally in a poet's work, the characters are not too real. . . Doubtless this young novelist will mature, and come to a truer concept of the level of life. She will find that, unfortunately, few Catholics have the keen awareness of 'Christ-within-us' that she imputes to certain characters. But by and large this novel gives promise of a great future."

+ — Cath World 166:475 F '48 220w

"Written with striking beauty and skill, with a subtle sensitive ability to translate the emotions of religion in terms of individual lives." Andrea Parke

+ N Y Times p20 D 7 '47 180w

HOWARD, FLORENCE RUTH. Sailmaker. 222p $2.75 Morrow

48-2313

Novel about two men and two women and a wonderful horse, once a great racer. The scene is present-day California.

"A story which subdues sentiment [and] provides a drama which is emotional rather than strictly sporting. . . Sex sophistication smartens a drama of pique and possession, makes it highly readable."

Kirkus 16:176 Ap 1 '48 150w

"Melodramatic. Distorted values. Not recommended." R. W. Henderson

— Library J 73:707 My 1 '48 70w

"'Sailmaker' is, in fact, the kind of book that you might read as a full-length novel in a magazine. It has a couple of saving graces, however. Trite though it is, it is not pretentious. And the horse himself is gallant and reserved—much more impressive than the humans who gyrate around him."

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Je 20 '48 170w

N Y Times p20 Je 20 '48 100w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p15A Ag 1 '48 120w

HOWARD, JOHN TASKER. World's great operas. 488p $2.95 Random house

782 Opera—Stories, plots, etc. 48-8122

Brief synopses of about 200 operas, with introductory notes for each. Arrangement is alphabetical by title. Includes old and new operas, up to and including Peter Grimes. Includes biographical list of composers; a list of librettists; sources and derivations of plots; and characters in the operas.

Booklist 45:47 O 1 '48

Reviewed by Felix Borowski

Chicago Sun D 15 '48 90w

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '48

Kirkus 16:206 Ap 15 '48 50w

Reviewed by George Hanson

Library J 73:653 Ap 15 '48 100w

Music Lib Assn Notes 6:158 D '48 320w

"The summaries are extremely readable, the book's arrangement is excellent and the print is a joy to read." E. J.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p26 O 10 '48 120w

Springf'd Republican p9B N 28 '48 130w

HOWARD LEAGUE FOR PENAL REFORM. International committee. Lawless youth; a challenge to the new Europe; a policy for the juvenile courts prepared by the Committee, 1942-1945, by Margery Fry [and others] appendices by various authors. 252p $3 Macmillan

364.36 Juvenile delinquency 48-16754

"Lawless Youth, which sets forth 'a policy for the juvenile courts prepared by the International Committee of the Howard League for Penal Reform,' is a record of what is being done for juvenile delinquents in most of the countries of Europe. . . Its emphasis is on reformation and cure, as opposed to retributive and punitive vengeance. . . Four out of the six chapters of the book describe the constitution and work of juvenile courts and their auxiliary services in various European countries. All are written by experts. Perhaps the most important chapter is that contributed by Mme. Wanda Grabinska (Poland). In the appendices the law and practice concerning the treatment of young offenders in ten European countries are dealt with. . . A further appendix, reprinted from the Howard Journal, deals with the remarkable work for child welfare which is being done in Norway." Times [London] Lit Sup

"Its contributors have synthesized their recommendations with such transcendent clarity and, on the whole, enlightened vision as to make them not only inestimably valuable to Europe but equally so to America. . . This book deserves the respectful attention of every social-minded citizen." E. J. Lukas

+ Nation 167:107 Jl 24 '48 1150w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman

School & Society 68:309 O 30 '48 310w

"It is regrettable that this group of experts, coming together on the basis of their common interest and knowledge at a time when the lights of decency were flickering very low, did not feel impelled to strike out with a more bold approach than is here reported. . . The adolescent is here described as contributing a disproportionate share of the serious offenses committed by all offenders, yet nothing strikingly new is brought forward for the handling of the problem." B. S. Alper

Survey 84:347 N '48 700w

"It is packed with information, and full of constructive suggestions."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p123 F 28 '48 650w

HOWELLS, WILLIAM WHITE. The heathens: primitive man and his religions. 306p il $3.75 Doubleday

290 Religion, Primitive 48-5578

"An examination of the religious drive in mankind, as it is manifested, in its simplest forms, in present-day primitive societies. . . Dr. Howells discusses the creeds of several native cults and their ritualistic trappings—witchcraft, totemism, black magic, ancestor worship, and so on—in an effort to demonstrate that, crude as these theologies may seem, each fulfills a social function for people who are more like us than we think." (New Yorker) Index.

Booklist 44:275 Ap 15 '48

"The view stated by the author furnishes a sound base on which to build an exposition and interpretation of the 'primitive' religions. . . Dr. Howells must be credited with writing a book of very substantial content in a style that make it extraordinarily pleasant to read. He takes his topic seriously, but not solemnly. He shows how closely religion is related to the concrete interests of men. It may be doubted whether the reader will find, as someone says, that the book has 'deepened his religious conviction.' But it will confront him with the question as to whether his own religion really means as much to him as the primitive religions meant to 'the heathens.' " W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 65:351 Ap 21 '48 950w

"Most modern readers expect to find in the pages of every book on primitive religion weird accounts of miracles, orgies, and curious rites. Dr. Howells plays down these aspects of his story. The book is a fascinating one." W. P. Sears

+ Churchman 162:17 Ap 15 '48 190w

Cleveland Open Shelf p14 Jl '48

"The reader will be a wiser person when the book is laid aside and will not be led down the wrong track on any of its premises or references. It is a book for every public library nonfiction shelf and a source for lecture substance for every teacher of the humanities." F. G. Speck

+ Crozer Q 25:258 Jl '48 750w

Reviewed by Arthur Child

Ethics 58:318 Jl '48 700w

"The Heathens contributes nothing new to the philosophical understanding of religion, but it does offer a well-written mine of information The book should be useful in the classroom when religion is under discussion." J. R. E.

+ J Philos 45:475 Ag 12 '48 130w

Kirkus 15:689 D 15 '47 170w

Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 11 '49 300w

"The author is both an internationally known scientist and an unusually skillful popularizer. He combines wide reading and a deep respect for scientific accuracy with an informal chatty style and a positive gift for the striking phrase. However, those who are looking for miracles and orgies, a la Seabrook will not find them here. . . [The author] has played down precisely the aspects which most popularizers have played up." Ralph Linton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Mr 7 '48 800w

Reviewed by Gitel Poznanski

N Y Times p53 N 14 '48 750w

"The book shows the same scholarship and attention to style that characterized the author's brilliant 'Mankind So Far' [Book Review Digest 1944]. . . An excellent job."

+ New Yorker 24:98 Mr 6 '48 120w

Reviewed by E. M. Tainton

San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 5 '48 750w

"This book is both learned and lively. Professor Howells is one of the few anthropologists who can write. . . I suspect that this book gains much of its freshness and integrity from the circumstance that the writer was poaching on the territory of his colleagues in cultural anthropology. . . The pedant can always, of course, find a few slips." Clyde Kluckhohn

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:27 My 8 '48 700w

Wis Lib Bul 44:145 S '48

HSÜ, FRANCIS LANG-KUANG. Under the ancestor's shadow; Chinese culture and personality. 317p il $3.75 Columbia univ. press

915.1 China—Social life and customs. Ancestor worship 48-7782

"An actual community in China's Yunnan Province is the subject of anthropological study in Under The Ancestor's Shadow. The author's purpose is to show the pervasive influence of ancestor worship upon Chinese family life and social structure." (Publisher's note) Index.

Reviewed by David Cheng

Ann Am Acad 260:188 N '48 400w

Current Hist 15:228 O '48 70w

"Of chief value to the sociologist, but of some interest to the layman interested in Chinese life and customs." G. W. Wakefield

Library J 73:939 Je 15 '48 130w

School & Society 68:143 Ag 28 '48 40w

HUBBARD, MARGARET ANN. Captain Juniper. 257p $2.50 Macmillan

47-12210

The rising city of Duluth in the year of 1871 is the background for this story of Fritz, and his friend David, a crippled boy. Together the two help solve the mystery of the lake pirates. For grades five to seven.

Reviewed by Martha King

Chicago Sun Jl 24 '48 140w

"The story is a good one, giving a sense of frontier life around the Great Lakes, with plenty of credible action and well-drawn characters." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 24:122 Mr '48 120w

"Good yarning, good adventure."

+ Kirkus 15:504 S 15 '47 160w

"Good story for older boys, with fine treatment of the boy with one leg whose handicap is accepted and dealt with in a normal fashion by his friends and himself. Recommended for older boys." Elizabeth Johnson

+ Library J 72:1786 D 15 '47 70w

+ Wis Lib Bul 44:25 Ja '48

HUBBARD, MARGARET ANN. Pennyweather luck. 243p $2.50 Macmillan

48-11366

Mystery story for ages 10-14. The setting is the Mississippi levee region.

Booklist 45:161 Ja 1 '49

Kirkus 16:530 O 1 '48 90w

"Some unusual characters with exceptionally fine characterizations. The kindliness and friendliness of the levee folk, their devotion to a dangerous way of life, and the courage and good humor with which they meet the shifting moods of the river are strongly emphasized." M. F. Cox

+ Library J 73:1826 D 15 '48 100w

N Y Times p57 N 14 '48 150w

"All the Pennyweathers are lively and interesting and the other characters are equally well drawn. 'Ole Man River' dominates a book that holds its drama and its unusual background from the first page to the last."

+ Sat R of Lit 31:32 N 13 '48 40w

HUBBELL, LINDLEY WILLIAMS. Long Island triptych, and other poems. (Swallow press bk) 79p $2 Morrow

811 47-12322

"Lindley Hubbell's poems are written in a conversational tone; his clipped, precise medium is used decently to combat forces of ignorance, prejudice and hate in America." Chicago Sun

"Forthright, masculine, sensitively intelligent, this poet mixes lyricism with journalism, has produced an exciting hybrid." Leo Kennedy

+ Chicago Sun p24 Ja 5 '48 90w

"His work makes wise and witty reading."

+ Kirkus 15:530 S 15 '47 170w

"This fifth collection of work by Mr. Hubbell is without question his most significant. It is also a notable contribution to contemporary American poetry. . . To librarians unfamiliar with Mr. Hubbell's work this volume will be an important discovery and a rewarding one." Herbert Cahoon

+ Library J 73:475 Mr 15 '48 110w

HUBBELL, L. W.—Continued
Reviewed by Alfred Kay
San Francisco Chronicle p19 F 8 '48 100w

"Mr. Hubbell parades a knowledge of astronomy, chemistry, history, philosophy, psychology in the casual manner of the brilliant conversationalist, and not the pedant. Yet this brilliance of mind gets in the way of the poet's ideas. It is such simple lyrics as 'Mi Fei' and 'The Blue Spruce' and rhymed interludes of the Brooklyn sequence that reveal the genuine poetic sense lodged within the philosophic rind." A. M. Sullivan
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:26 Jl 10 '48 230w

HUBLER, RICHARD GIBSON. Quiet kingdom. 328p $3 Rinehart
48-5384

The scene is a small isolated group of coral islands in the British West Indies. This quiet kingdom is ruled over by a firm British lady, and her subjects are two pretty daughters; several hundred Negro fishermen; and the salt farmers and their families. The tranquility is badly disrupted with the arrival of an American ex-newspaper man, and a religious fanatic and his family.

Kirkus 15:680 D 15 '47 120w

"A melodramatic story with power but uneven writing, not of wide appeal." H. A. Wooster
Library J 73:123 Ja 15 '48 80w

"Such a novel needs sharp and convincing characterization or to be built around a solid core of ideas. 'The Quiet Kingdom' is weak on both counts. What interest the book has comes from the constantly erupting excitements of the narrative. There is plenty of action, but a shortage of sense." N. K. Burger
N Y Times p22 Mr 7 '48 550w

HUEY, EDWARD GREENE, ed. See Hillyer, V. M. Child's history of the world

HUGARD, JEAN, and BRAUE, FREDERICK. Royal road to card magic; introd. by Paul Fleming; with il. by Frank Rigney. 292p $4 Harper
795.43 Card tricks 48-1100

Long, fully detailed explanations on how to do a large number of card tricks. Partial contents: The overhand shuffle; The riffle shuffle; The palm; False shuffles and cuts; The pass; The Hindu shuffle and other controls; Top and bottom changes; Routines; Platform tricks. Index.

Booklist 44:265 Ap 1 '48
Kirkus 16:25 Ja 15 '48 80w

"Jean Hugard and Frederick Braue are sound theorists and practical experts who have learned through long experience the best tricks to present and how to present them. The explanations are full, clear and accurate which enables the reader, with a moderate amount of practice to become a creditable entertainer." L. M.
+ Springf'd Republican p8B F 8 '48 120w

HUGGINS, ALICE MARGARET. The red chair waits [written in collaboration with Earl Hoit Ballou and Hugh Laughlin Robinson] with decorations by Jeanyee Wong. 256p $2.75 Presbyterian bd.
48-7963

Story of a Chinese family in a transitional period when old traditional manners and customs are giving way to new ones. The chief character is the daughter Shu-lan, a teacher in a girl's school. Betrothed from babyhood Shu-lan finds the courage to break the engagement, and in time finds a "wonderful husband" for herself.

Booklist 45:160 Ja 1 '49

"This is a lively, provocative book, with a vivid plot and meaningful background."
+ Kirkus 16:311 Jl 1 '48 180w

"Not since Pearl Buck's 'East Wind: West Wind' have we had a story of China's young people today which so well summarizes the conflict between old and new, East and West, which they face. The author's twenty-five years in China give exactitude to her details of food, costume, education, and customs, while her knowledge of Chinese youth gives a feeling of kinship for her characters. Girls, especially, will enjoy this novel; if it lacks complete reality in all its characters, it certainly presents a problem of universal appeal, the choice of a husband!" M. C. Scoggin
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 O 10 '48 270w

"The narrative moves slowly at points, the mission school life is overdetailed, but there are so much humanity and sincerity and quiet humor, so many facets of interest for the thoughtful reader, that the novel is a compelling one." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p45 O 24 '48 150w

HUGH-JONES, EDWARD MAURICE. Woodrow Wilson and American liberalism. (Teach yourself history lib) 295p $2 Macmillan
973.8 Wilson, Woodrow. U.S.—Politics and government—1865- [48-1007]

A brief survey of American politics from the end of the Civil war to the death of President Wilson. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by A. S. Link
Am Hist R 54:219 O '48 250w
Reviewed by Hans Kohn
N Y Times p12 Jl 11 '48 160w
Reviewed by Asher Brynes
Sat R of Lit 31:19 Jl 3 '48 230w
School & Society 68:79 Jl 31 '48 10w
Springf'd Republican p10B N 21 '48 120w

"An admirable brief sketch of Wilson and of the liberal movement that carried him (helped by vigorous swimming) into the White House. . . Wilson's positive domestic achievements are well described and assessed, though political historians may be a little shocked by apparent indifference to political detail."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p90 F 14 '48 120w

HUGHES, MRS ADELLA (PRENTISS). Music is my life. 319p il $4 World pub.
B or 92 Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 47-12293

Autobiography of the versatile woman who was responsible for introducing much of Cleveland's good music for over fifty years. She was instrumental in the founding and management of the Cleveland Symphony orchestra, and was a sponsor of the children's concerts. Her memoirs are filled with anecdotes of famous musicians of the last fifty years. Index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p11 My '48

"A good popular book." H. E. Bush
+ Library J 73:338 F 15 '48 100w

"The book is historical, in the sense that it describes a large number of events that actually happened; yet it is devoid of generalizations or of any real evaluation of trends or movements. It is anecdotal in style, and for that reason will appeal chiefly (at least for the present) to those who have some personal attachment to the city of Cleveland. Even so, one notes in the book some extraordinary omissions. Most important of these, probably, is the complete absence of any mention whatsoever of Ernest Bloch, certainly the greatest composer ever to have lived in Cleveland. In this and other instances a personal animus of the author seems to be discernible." Arthur Loesser
+ — Music Lib Assn Notes 5:243 Mr '48 400w

"A little more vinegar would have improved the flavor. Nevertheless, it is a documented record of a fine endeavor, and Cleveland should treasure it, while other cities will be well advised to mark, consider and do some soul searching regarding their treatment of their own Mrs. Hugheses." G. W. Johnson

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 D 21 '47 500w

Reviewed by James Lyons

N Y Times p27 My 23 '48 180w

HUGHES, BABETTE (PLECHNER) (MRS GLENN HUGHES). Magic penny. 247p $2.50 Rinehart

48-606

"The magic penny" trick was a means of escape from imaginary fears, keeping Dick Chapman from his real job of writing plays. A slight heart attack made him realize that the only fear left was that of death, and the other former fears of failure and love were unimportant. With this realization Dick was able to give away the penny which he no longer needed.

"Lightly serious entertainment, which has its amusing dialogue and more provocative moments. Rental libraries—yes—but public libraries caution!"

Kirkus 15:680 D 15 '47 160w

"Babette Hughes's novel is essentially a modern fairy tale, in which the hero labors to slay his dragon. Unpredictable things happen with perfect fairy-tale logic, and time passes and people appear with little explanation. The technique has definite charm, and the author has produced an unpretentious and skillful piece of light reading." Barbara Klaw

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 F 29 '48 160w

— San Francisco Chronicle p21 F 29 '48 100w

"The major fault lies in [a] complete lack of charm. If Chapman were less self-absorbed, less egotistical, less cold, his plight would more truly enlist our sympathy. As it is, his gropings seem unwarranted, false, and bothersome." C. M. Brown

— Sat R of Lit 31:16 Mr 13 '48 450w

HUGHES, CHARLES WILLIAM. Human side of music. 341p $3.75 Philosophical lib.

780.1 Music 48-9074

"'The human side' is construed as being divisible into two parts: 'the first deals with music as an expression of certain needs of society;' the second 'deals with the way music is organized from sounds and how these sounds are so arranged as to be expressive.' Includes discussions of problems of taste, the social milieu, patronage, music as a business and all manner of pressing external matters as well as that of the structure of music itself." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by Melvin Maddocks

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 20 '49 750w

Reviewed by C. K. Miller

Library J 73:1666 N 15 '48 110w

"Despite this book's title and the headings above the fifteen chapters into which it is divided, its author's purpose never becomes clear. . . It is evident that Mr. Hughes is familiar with a great deal of music, and even more familiar with what others have said of it. He simply has not discovered a literary method by which he might communicate any of his own reactions or ideas."

— + N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 N 28 '48 140w

"A curiously mixed study, 'The Human Side of Music,' emerges as part pamphlet, part political science—and part music. Its author seems unable to resolve his scholarship on the one hand and his tortured social consciousness on the other. The 'human side of music,' to which he aspires in the title, eludes him throughout. Ideological trouble gives his book the effect of a tract, and it admits a sizable debt to questionable Marxian esthetics." James Lyons

N Y Times p13 D 19 '48 500w

HUGHES, KATHLEEN THELMA. Not quite a dream. 277p $3 Doubleday

48-5269

Novel describing the love affair of a Gentile girl and a Jewish man, fifteen years her senior.

Kirkus 15:656 D 1 '47 190w

"'Not Quite a Dream' is an honest story with an important theme: one wishes it had gone deeper." Mary Ross

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 F 29 '48 440w

"Kathleen Hughes' novel is excellent, taken in fragments; flashes of warm reality, moments of clear, quiet insight; pen sketches of human nature in three dimensions. These enrich and irradiate all that the author has to say, without in any way unifying her novel." Isabelle Mallet

N Y Times p27 F 8 '48 320w

"Competently written."

New Yorker 23:85 F 7 '48 80w

HUGHES, RUSSELL MERIWETHER (LA MERI, pseud). Spanish dancing. 188p il $5 Barnes, A.S.

793.31 Dancing—Folk and national dances 48-6696

"For those interested in the history and lore of the dance, this will supply [a] sidelight on Spanish dancing, its folklore, traditions, sources, techniques, regionalism. And the beautiful photographs, many of them action pictures, give added flavor. There is enough background of history and geography to give focus to the regional aspects, and the actual descriptive matter relating to the various national dances falls into regional categories." (Kirkus) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 44:309 My 15 '48

"The most entertaining part of La Meri's book is the chapter on her personal experiences with the Spanish Dance in Spain. In the same spirit of lighthearted scholarship are the chapters on the 'Renaissance' (inaugurated largely by Argentina), 'Flamenco' and 'Technique.' The earlier chapters are bound by the academic attitude, the text choppy with quotations and footnotes. . . The one thing La Meri has failed to do is to set each dance apart, as in a bright frame, so that the differences between the Farruca and the Fandango, the Sevillanas and the Jota, would be unmistakably stamped upon the mind."

+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 D 2 '48 270w

"The chapter on techniques will be valuable to aspiring dancers, particularly the warnings, but it is not a book of self-instruction, not a how-to-do-it book, but one that will be as valuable for the trained observer as for the aspiring dancer. Terminology, glossary, table of dances, bibliography, index combine to give this reference value as well."

+ Kirkus 16:211 Ap 15 '48 160w

"Recommended for dance collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 73:817 My 15 '48 30w

"While the chapters dealing with the technical aspects of the various dances will appeal primarily to the student, the historical section, the comment on regional dances, and the author's experiences in Spain, are of interest and pleasantly readable for the layman. The 75 excellent photographs of famous Spanish dancers, in themselves, give one a very good idea of this lively art." Victor Prahl

+ Springf'd Republican p10B Je 27 '48 480w

HUGHES, THOMAS. Journal, 1778-1789; ed. with an introd. by E. A. Benians. 188p $2.50 Macmillan (for the Cambridge univ. press)

973.38 U.S.—History—Revolution—Personal narratives, British 48-1788

This journal, here published for the first time, is the diary kept by a young British officer in the Revolution. The period covered is from 1778 to 1789. During that time he spent three years as prisoner of war in America, and the main part of the diary covers these years. After his return to England he gives some account of family affairs, and describes a trip to Boulogne. In 1784 he rejoined his regiment in Canada. He seems to have returned to England in 1789 where he died January 10, 1790, six months after the last entry in his diary.

Booklist 44:311 My 15 '48

"A plain, unadorned personal narrative precise in its facts, and marked by a soldierly reticence of emotion, though often downright in its comment. It conveys a vivid impression of social conditions in America during these war years—as seen, of course, by one who was an enemy and viewed his captors with distaste as rebels. But, despite his antagonism and the prejudices natural to his situation, he is an honest observer, who never fails to do justice to any kindness he meets with; nor is he slow to condemn negligence and inhumanity in his own people." Eric Forbes-Boyd

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 F 27 '48 600w

Manchester Guardian p3 D 8 '47 240w

"This slim volume, now first printed from a family manuscript, is a noteworthy addition to the literature of the period. The diary was devoted to personal experiences and observations, which limited attention to political and military matters. The pictures of social conditions, as seen by an unsympathetic observer, are of occasional significance to the historian, but of constant interest to the general reader." R. A. Brown

+ N Y Times p20 My 16 '48 230w

"Makes good reading. For anyone who has seen active service in the British Army, or was ever a prisoner of war, it may well find a place on a favourite bookshelf. . . The editor does not claim that this book throws any new light on this well-garnered period of history. It has, however, the great virtue, for both historian and general reader, of bringing home forcibly the impact of war on the individual. Instead of the grand panorama of the Revolutionary War, we are given that sense of being part of an infinitely slow and erratic mobilisation of force with its alternations of sharp excitement and long boredom which has been the authentic experience of our own generation. The diary has been ably edited by the Master of St. John's College, Cambridge, and furnished with a facsimile frontispiece and a useful map." Frank Thistlethwaite

+ Spec 179:688 N 28 '47 550w

"The journal, written 'for his amusement,' is a welcome addition to the few connected accounts by British military officers of the War of American Independence and of conditions in the colonies."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p677 D 27 '47 1100w

HULL, CORDELL. Memoirs. 2v 1804p $10.50 Macmillan

B or 92 Diplomatic memoirs. U.S.—Foreign policy 48-6761

"In what is at times practically a day-to-day account of his actions, Mr. Hull traces his life from boyhood to the present. Writing in an unemotional, factual style the former Secretary of State has presented an exceedingly detailed and important account of his political career and theories with special attention to his early interest in low tariffs and international cooperation. Probably the most interesting part of the two volumes is that covering his direcion of our foreign relations from 1933 to 1944." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by C. A. Berdahl
Am Pol Sci R 42:995 O '48 1500w

Reviewed by J. W. Pratt
Ann Am Acad 258:150 Jl '48 550w

"Those who enjoy high controversy will find plenty in Mr. Hull's Memoirs. Like Mr. Stimson, he has a story to tell which involved many audacious moments in the history of the recent war, many a struggle in the realm of policy-making. The very length of Mr. Hull's tenure in the Department of State makes his memoirs important to history." J. H. Powers

+ Atlantic 181:96 Je '48 1600w

Booklist 44:310 My 15 '48

"Except for a few omissions, the Memoirs are detailed and apparently well documented. . . [Mr. Hull] does not explain our vulnerability at Pearl Harbor, even though he intercepted Japanese messages and foresaw the action. He does not come up to Yalta. And he does not explain the large number of Communists and fellow travelers in his department. Otherwise, in a manner dispassionate, sincere, honest, often quite naïve, he describes America's course through what he calls isolationism, including high tariffs, into the War both in Europe and Asia, and our emergence into the United Nations." J. H. Uhler

+ — Cath World 168:89 O '48 550w

Reviewed by C. M. Utley
Chicago Sun p8X My 23 '48 1250w

"Cordell Hull has told his story much as one would have expected him to tell it. It is thorough, sincere, with flashes of Tennessee mountain candor and long, tedious pages of detail, painting a self-portrait of a man whose greatness came from personal simplicity." S. R. D.

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 My 24 '48 750w

"These memoirs are Mr. Hull's own record of stewardship. They could not, and do not attempt, to appraise the contributions, for better or worse, of other men. This probably is as it should be though one would like to know what Hull thought of Wallace, Hopkins and others who barged into his field. . . No powerful personality of that era will be soundly judged in our time: history will at length gather together all the threads, and future events will write the verdict. In any case Mr. Hull's place in history is secure. Americans will read his chronicle with pride; and will thrill to his magnificent faith that, despite the travail of the time, the great American mission is to lead in organizing a world order based on justice." A. A. Berle

+ Columbia Law R 48:658 My '48 1750w

Commonweal 48:193 Je 4 '48 70w

Reviewed by Roy Hillbrook
Current Hist 14:346 Je '48 1000w

"The long-anticipated memoirs of Cordell Hull, Secretary of State during momentous years, will prove to be not only of immediate interest, but of permanent value as an integral part of the record of our times. . . The book lacks the style that made the Byrnes' book easy reading. But it is bound to get a tremendous press, and to make for itself a permanent place in the record."

+ Kirkus 16:158 Mr 15 '48 500w

"No one interested in the development of international affairs during the prewar, war and postwar periods can afford to ignore these memoirs of an honest, courageous man." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 73:648 Ap 15 '48 200w

Reviewed by Arthur Schlesinger, jr.
Nation 166:635 Je 5 '48 800w

Reviewed by W. H. Hale
New Repub 118:21 Je 7 '48 2700w

Reviewed by R. H. S. Crossman
New Statesman & Nation 36:422 N 13 '48 600w

"If the record as a whole does not give us any startlingly new insights, it cannot be neglected by the student of any of the many facets of those tremendous years. And the reader who plows through these two volumes will lay them down, I think, with a fresh respect for the lanky, tough-fibered country politician who, equipped with convictions, horse sense and an abiding faith in the Democratic dogma of low tariffs, directed American foreign policy through the world's greatest international collapse and greatest war." Walter Millis

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 My 23 '48 1050w

"By any test, the memoirs of Cordell Hull are among the most important of our time. . . Hull succeeds, in this reviewer's opinion, in vindicating some of the policies for which he was attacked at the time, notably his treatment of Vichy France and North Africa. With respect to others, one misses the sort of reappraisal in the light of later developments to be found in the memoirs of Henry L. Stimson. One is left with the impression that Hull still thinks he was always right." E. K. Lindley
+ N Y Times p3 My 23 '48 1100w

Reviewed by Luther Nichols
San Francisco Chronicle p10 My 30 '48 1950w

Reviewed by H. F. Pringle
Sat R of Lit 31:9 My 22 '48 1100w

"Cordell Hull, who has been described as 'the good grey Secretary,' has written a good grey book. His memoirs . . . are interesting without being exciting." A. L. Goodhart
Spec 181:666 N 19 '48 1650w

Reviewed by Donald Derby
Springf'd Republican p11B Je 6 '48 1100w
Times [London] Lit Sup p633 N 13 '48 2600w

Reviewed by Estes Kefauver
Yale R n s 38:356 winter '49 1050w

HULL, THOMAS GORDON. Diseases transmitted from animals to man. 3d ed 571p il $10.50 Thomas, C.C.

616 Infection and infectious diseases Med47-2441

"The present revised edition of this work brings the subject up to date. In his Preface the author remarks: 'During the Second World War much information has been obtained concerning the spread and control of the rickettsial and virus diseases. New chapters on these subjects include tsutsugamushi disease, Q fever, jungle yellow fever, lymphatic choriomeningitis, and milker's nodules. Other new chapters have been added on listerellosis and Haverhill fever.' . . The work is addressed to physicians, veterinarians, research workers, and public health officials. The treatment of the subject is designed to provide a common meeting ground where each of these groups may understand the problems of the others." U S Quarterly Bkl

"Public health workers will find it most interesting and practitioners of human and veterinary medicine will find a common ground. . . There are many statements throughout the book that cannot go unchallenged or that have been given too much emphasis. . . A book of this kind is much needed in the respective fields of public health, human medicine, and veterinary medicine. The book points out very excellently by its omissions how little is known of many of the bacterial, rickettsial and virus diseases in animals." J. H. Steele
+ — Am J Pub Health 38:577 Ap '48 1100w
U S Quarterly Bkl 3:399 D '47 220w

HUMPHREYS, DENA. Verdi; force of destiny; il. by Hans Alexander Mueller. 341p $3.50 Holt

B or 92 Verdi, Giuseppe—Juvenile literature 48-8908

A popular life of Verdi, slightly fictionized but based on research in letters and other documents. Contains a section devoted to stories of the operas. Index.

Booklist 45:160 Ja 1 '49

"Simply written, a splendid introduction to the world of music, of Italian culture, and a glorious admonition to work with integrity, a message to youth in our commercial age." E. E.
+ Commonweal 49:214 D 3 '48 160w

"A competent job, with elaborate research into primary sources."
Kirkus 16:441 S 1 '48 70w

"Recommended for high-school students and all others wishing a readable, non-scholarly account of Verdi's life." Clara Adams
+ Library J 73:1602 N 1 '48 80w

"Continuously readable and rewarding." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ja 16 '49 430w

"A solid work, fully adult in its critical approach, yet youthfully fresh in the treatment." N. B. Baker
+ N Y Times p31 Ja 16 '49 180w
Sat R of Lit 31:34 N 13 '48 30w

HUNGERFORD, EDWARD BUELL. Fighting frigate. 261p il $2.50 Wilcox & Follett 47-5597

The story of the near capture of the Constitution by the British fleet and of her victory over the Guerrière. It is told from the viewpoints of two brothers, one an impressed seaman on the British ship and the other an enlisted man on "Old Ironsides." For grades five to eight.

Booklist 44:205 F 1 '48

"Every boy will be thrilled with this exciting story of the gallant ship Constitution during the War of 1812. . . Highly recommended for older boys and girls." C. W. Field
+ Library J 72:1620 N 15 '47 70w

"Not since Jim Kjelgaard's first entry have we had a more welcome addition to the ranks of boys' authors than Mr. Hungerford, a naval officer in the recent war and now teacher of English at Northwestern University. . . Well written, authentic in background, its realistic details often relieved by humor, it is an hour-by-hour account of a chase at sea and a minute-by-minute account of a great sea battle. 'Fighting Frigate' should find a place on the library shelf of every junior high school." Howard Pease
+ N Y Times p27 Ja 18 '48 150w

HUNSAKER, JEROME CLARKE, and RIGHTMIRE, BRANDON GARNER. Engineering applications of fluid mechanics. 494p il $5 McGraw

532 Hydraulic engineering 48-5040

"The authors have based this work on twelve years' experience in teaching fluid mechanics in undergraduate courses at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. It is frankly a college textbook and furthermore is intended primarily for use in introductory courses that will be followed by more advanced courses. The fundamental principles and basic mathematical equations are treated rather extensively in the earlier chapters. In the later chapters, the design and performance of various devices that depend upon the mechanical behavior of liquids and gases under various conditions are analyzed. These range from lubricated bearings to 'buzz bombs.' Short lists of references for the guidance of students are appended to the chapters." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:480 Mr 15 '48 40w
N Y New Tech Bks 33:10 Ja '48

HUNT, HOWARD. Maelstrom. 283p $2.75 Farrar, Straus 48-7665

Three people who are running away meet in Mexico. They are Alison, a society girl who has been ordered by her husband to get a divorce; Harry, an underworld bigshot fleeing from the FBI; and Nick, a former medical student and musician, who has turned drifter due to an injury to his hand. The novel describes the impact of these three upon each other.

"Cheap, tawdry melodrama."
— Kirkus 16:266 Je 1 '48 140w

HUNT, HOWARD—Continued

"The author writes with considerable vigor, and even occasional beauty, as in his descriptions of a Mexican boy diving for money, or of a storm. Unfortunately, however, Mr. Hunt's oversimplified people with their over-simplified passions make 'Maelstrom' little more than a standard thriller-romance."

— + N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ag 8 '48 200w

"Though written in a dead pan style, the novel has its exciting moments. The story is told in straightforward fashion, the narrative is simple, the dialogue realistic." G. F.

+ N Y Times p21 Jl 25 '48 150w

"Squeamish readers, for whom kicked-in ribs and sadistic whippings are likely to prove too much had better stay away from the story. Others, perhaps conditioned by wider reading in the Hammett-Cain-Chandler school of blood and violence, will likely be able to take this without batting an eye. . . What you have, actually, is a movie—one of the better written books aimed straight at the screen." J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 23 '48 500w

HUNT, MABEL LEIGH. Matilda's buttons; il. by Elinore Blaisdell. 132p $1.75 Lippincott 48-8043

Nine-year-old Matilda lived in Indianapolis over fifty years ago. Matilda dearly loved pretty clothes especially those with buttons. Since it was in the days when ladies and even little girls wore basques, the happiest day of her life was when she received her basque dress with some unusual buttons.

Booklist 45:73 O 15 '48

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 168:222 D '48 30w

Churchman 162:17 N 15 '48 20w

Commonweal 49:150 N 19 '48 50w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 24:458 N '48 50w

Reviewed by E. T. Dobbins
Library J 73:1198 S 1 '48 70w

+ N Y Times p57 N 14 '48 140w

"This is a pleasant story."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:28 N 13 '48 110w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p12C D 5 '48 130w

HUNT, MRS MARY FASSETT. Family affair. 280p $2.75 Harper
48-7707

Novel of modern marriage. It presents the problem of Lily Corwin, who after fifteen years of marriage had come to regard her home, her husband, and her son as permanent fixtures. When her husband fell in love with the sensuous, stupid wife of their neighbor, Lily could not understand it. Thru the blazing hot days of the Alabama summer Lily goes thru agonies of emotions until a solution is reached.

Kirkus 16:267 Je 1 '48 100w

"It is no worse than many innocuous tales calculated to wile away the empty hours for undiscriminating readers." H. S. Taylor
Library J 73:1090 Ag '48 70w

"In this first novel Mrs. Hunt has created a sensitive atmosphere which carries some of the weight of her emotional story. But the characters themselves lack the reality which would make the novel really convincing, and the author is either unable or afraid to make them face up to the truly dramatic scenes which would give her story importance." Anne Ross

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 Ag 15 '48 230w

"The novel has been woven together with skill, and has a leisurely paced background of persons much more completely drawn than is usual in such a book, with the result that what might have been a thin triangle becomes a microcosm of a small southern neighborhood involved in the actions and reactions of three persons." L. S. Munn

+ Springf'd Republican p8B Ag 8 '48 240w

HUNTER, LESLIE ERNEST. Concrete waterproofing. 128p il $2.50 Pitman

693.5 Waterproofing. Concrete construction
[48-20854]

Guide to the principles of waterproofing for plain and reinforced concrete. Discusses the composition of various types of waterproofing materials. Index.

Booklist 45:60 O 15 '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:713 My 1 '48 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:37 My '48

HUNTER, MARCUS CHARLES INMAN. Rotary valve engines. 216p il $5 Wiley

621.43 Valves and valve gearing [47-26177]

A practical treatise on the principles of rotary valves, which gives examples of application to the early gas engines, the steam engine, and modern gasoline motors. Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:950 Je 15 '48 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 32:77 O '47

HUNTRESS, ERNEST HAMLIN. Preparation, properties, chemical behavior, and identification of organic chlorine compounds; tables of data on selected compounds of order III. 1443p $27.50 Wiley

547.9 Chlorine compounds. Chemistry, Organic
48-8499

"This reference book is an encyclopedic survey of the organic compounds of 1320 organic compounds of order 3, those containing the various combinations of carbon and chlorine with oxygen and hydrogen. Each compound is fully discussed in a standardized form arranged to include all relevant data on boiling points, melting points, densities and refractive indices. Among the compounds more than 300 do not appear in Beilstein. Selection is made on commercial importance. Reference to patents as well as to scientific articles." (Library J) Indexes.

"This product of a great amount of painstaking collection of knowledge will be a great timesaver for those specializing in the field and a useful reference book when available for those whose needs are more casual." D. F. Othmer

+ Chem Eng 55:292 D '48 220w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1280 S 15 '48 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:67 S '48

HURD, CHARLES. Washington cavalcade. (Society in America ser) 320p $4.50 Dutton

975.3 Washington, D.C.—Social life and customs
47-12497

A social history of Washington, D.C., with sidelights on some of the people who have influenced it. The political growth of the city is traced, also, from its beginnings to the present. The author went to Washington nineteen years ago as a member of the New York Times bureau. Index.

Booklist 44:181 Ja 15 '48

"His portrayals of Dolly Madison and other noted hostesses of bygone days are warm and revealing. . . It is only in the final chapters, when Hurd tackles present-day Washington, that the book seems to bog down. His people are not as deftly drawn; he seems, overcautious, as if anxious not to offend. Nonetheless, this will appeal to those who like their history on the lighter side." Gerry Robichaud

+ — Chicago Sun Ja 15 '48 600w

Kirkus 15:618 N 1 '47 160w

"Later chapters particularly good. Not important, but well written, good entertainment." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 72:1777 D 15 '47 110w

"If Charles Hurd were some poor, ignorant Ph.D. not drilled in the virtue of accuracy, he might perhaps be forgiven for the chief fault in his brisk and entertaining account of Washington. But he isn't. He is a newspaper man who must have had it pounded into him that the first principle of good reporting is to verify your facts, and the second principle is to verify your figures, and the third is to verify your names. It is as plain as a pikestaff that Mr. Hurd did not read copy on this book and the result is that it is so studded with errors that the judicious reader does not know on what he can rely. This is the more regrettable because the book as a whole is brisk, entertaining and in some respects perspicacious." G. W. Johnson

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ja 11 '48 1250w

"Since Mr. Hurd has tried to cram 150 years of Washington's social life into some 300 pages, his cavalcade is necessarily a hop, skip and a John Gunther through the years. The formula is both impossible and sure-fire—impossible to give coverage as well as penetration; and sure-fire because the chronicler has such a wealth of incident and anecdote from which to choose. Yet Mr. Hurd writes entertainingly and with much charm." S. T. Williamson

+ — N Y Times p6 Ja 11 '48 600w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 My 16 '48 390w

"Those who know Washington least well probably will enjoy it all, except perhaps the brief sections, here and there, on the physical growth of the city, including the precise locations of certain buildings and houses. It is a good book to have at the side of your bed, or anywhere else you may want to find in a hurry, by starting on almost any page, agreeable reading." E. K. Lindley

+ Sat R of Lit 31:8 Ja 10 '48 1200w

Wis Lib Bul 44:39 F '48

HURD, EDITH (THACHER) (MRS CLEMENT HURD). Toughy and his trailer truck; il. by Clement Hurd. [34p] $1.25 Lothrop

48-8175

Description of the night drive made by Toughy and his truck over the mountain to the city terminal. For ages 5-8.

Booklist 45:37 S 15 '48

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun S 4 '48 90w

Kirkus 16:435 S 1 '48 110w

"Edith and Clement Hurd, in short, easy sentences and detailed pictures, wrap information into their story of Toughy the truck driver and his truck, Lucky 'Leven. There is plenty of suspense, too, from Toughy's tangle with a cop to his much more trying engagement with storm and ice on a mountain road. Children who liked the Hurds' 'Engine, Engine No. 9' and the rest of their automotive-minded tales will love 'Toughy and His Trailer Truck,' too. It is good reading for beginners as well as for those a little younger who are still read to." Margaret Ernst

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 S 5 '48 150w

Reviewed by Sara Dickson

San Francisco Chronicle p18 N 28 '48 150w

HURSTON, ZORA NEALE. Seraph on the Suwanee. 311p $3 Scribner

48-8745

Novel of western Florida, the "Cracker" region, at the beginning of the century. It describes in picturesque "Cracker" vernacular the lives of Jim Meserve and his pretty, but difficult, wife Arvay, and their children.

Reviewed by H. T. Kane

Chicago Sun p58 N 17 '48 290w

Christian Science Monitor p11 D 23 '48 200w

Kirkus 16:415 Ag 15 '48 130w

"The colorful Florida 'cracker' language holds the mood throughout, and the total effect is one of charm and readability. Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 73:1193 S 1 '48 80w

"Emotional, expository; meandering, unified; naive, sophisticated; sympathetic, caustic; comic, tragic; lewd, chaste—one could go on indefinitely reiterating this novel's contradictions and still end helplessly with the adjective unique. . . Reading this astonishing novel, you wish that Miss Hurston had used the scissors and smoothed the seams. Having read it, you would like to be able to remember every extraneous incident and every picturesque metaphor." W. T. Hedden

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 O 10 '48 1000w

"The author knows her people, the Florida cracker of the swamps and turpentine camps intimately, and she knows the locale. One gets the impression that she took a textbook on Freudian psychology and adapted it to her needs, perhaps with her tongue in her cheek while so doing. The result is a curious mixture of excellent background drawing against which move a group of half-human puppets." F. G. Slaughter

+ — N Y Times p24 O 31 '48 500w

"Simple, colorfully written, and moving novel of life among the Florida Crackers." Herschel Brickell

+ Sat R of Lit 31:19 N 6 '48 500w

HUSH, HOWARD. Eastwick, U.S.A. 255p $3 Dutton

361.8 Social work 48-10727

A series of case histories, taken from the files of a social agency, and retold in fiction. The author is a professional social worker.

Booklist 45.187 F 1 '49

"The histories are interesting and the adaptations have been skillfully made." James Brown

+ Chicago Sun D 2 '48 330w

"A series of well presented case histories, drawn up by a sensitive suburban social worker."

+ Commonweal 49:238 D 10 '48 50w

"A saddening, rather than sordid, account, which is human, humane and has the ring of authenticity."

+ Kirkus 16:469 S 1 '48 150w

"The social worker is privileged to see human beings at their best and at their worst. He is always aware of people at times of crisis in their lives, and can observe at close hand their bungling efforts to adjust themselves to life. It is with this knowledge and from this point of view that Howard Hush has written about the people of Eastwick. If this book could be read in the proper quarters it might serve as a useful antidote to complacency."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p24 N 28 '48 270w

"'Eastwick, U. S. A.,' presumes to be a portrait of a suburban community near New York. It turns out to be the jaundiced, defensive report of a social worker who felt abused when he sat down to write. . . His picture of Eastwick is cruelly distorted, and his writing is dull and repetitious." Hal Borland

— N Y Times p36 N 7 '48 150w

HUTCHESON, ERNEST. Literature of the piano; a guide for amateur and student. 374p $5 Knopf

786.4 Piano music—History and criticism

48-7920

"Considers composers' work by form, describing the most important pieces, giving examples of interesting constructions, available editions, and hints for playing, and suggesting compositions to investigate. Appendixes contain notes on prominent music publishers in Europe and America, selected works of harpsichordists, and American composers not discussed in the body of the book. Of interest to listeners as well as performers." (Booklist) Bibliography. Index.

HUTCHESON, ERNEST—Continued

Booklist 45:9 S 1 '48

Kirkus 16:297 Je 15 '48 180w

"Recommended for libraries large and small." C. K. Miller
+ Library J 73:1513 O 15 '48 130w

"The book has historical errors aplenty. It contains many judgments on music that will raise eyebrows. There is a lack of organization of material which is often disconcerting. These faults, nevertheless, are recompensed by valid remarks on pianistic writing, by communicable enthusiasm for music of widely differing idioms, and by the hope the author holds out to students for conquering problems that too often discourage and repel. It is good to hear such a pianist confess that some keyboard music is better on the harpsichord than on the piano. It is heartwarming to feel the joy of cooperating in great chamber music. . . Best of all, and perhaps rather surprising, is the open-minded attitude maintained by Mr. Hutcheson in discussing the piano writings of the moderns and revolutionaries." E. N. Waters
+ — Music Lib Assn Notes 6:160 D '48 1050w

"A book of the utmost value to anyone interested in piano music." Victor Prahl
+ Springf'd Republican p10B S 5 '48 800w

HUTCHINGS, ARTHUR J. B. Delius. 193p il $3.75 Macmillan

B or 92 Delius, Frederick [48-3209]

Combines a biography of the composer Frederick Delius, with a critical study of his works. The author, professor of music in the University of Durham, regards Delius primarily as a religious or mystic composer. The book contains a catalog of Delius' works, a brief bibliography, and a list of recordings of Delius' music, but no index.

Reviewed by W. H. Haddon-Squire
Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 12 '48 390w

"Mr. Hutchings is able at this distance of time to take a comprehensive view of Delius and to get his music as a whole into better perspective. The criticism of the large works is close and shows fine insight." G. A. H.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 12 '48 110w

"Mr. Hutchings makes a spirited attempt to evaluate the music of Delius at the very moment when his reputation is in the trough of the wave. The author is a good musician, prodigal of sensible and illuminating criticism. . . But to use the word 'giant' deliberately and repeatedly about this composer is to mistake the scale of his highly personal gift." Desmond Shawe-Taylor
New Statesman & Nation 35:238 Mr 20 '48 240w

"Lovers of Delius's music should certainly read Professor Hutchings's book, and those who, like myself, are unable to feel the music's spell will do well to ponder on the balanced and pithily expressed summing-up of Delius's gifts and weaknesses by William McNaught, quoted on p.III. Professor Hutchings's style is anything but professorial. Some of the wit forced me to read sentences two, if not three, times to be sure that I had got the sense of the passage." Martin Cooper
Spec 180:534 Ap 30 '48 800w

HUTCHINS, MRS MAUDE PHELPS (MCVEIGH). Georgiana. 202p $2.50 New directions 48-7946

An account of the emotional development of a sensitive young girl called Georgiana. The novel treats of three parts of her life: as a child in her Virginia home; as an adolescent in boarding school; and as a young woman seeking love.

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun Ag 5 '48 470w

"The most upsetting thing about this book is that we are meant to be fascinated by Georgiana. For my taste at least, the reverse is true. I found her the most repulsive character in recent novels." John Farrelley
— New Repub 119:25 Ag 23 '48 750w

"Written in runaway sentences and arranged in a determinedly unorthodox manner."
New Yorker 34:72 Ag 7 '48 90w

"Mrs. Hutchins has written two-thirds of a splendid book. . . Not only have the opening sections prepared us for something exciting, technically, the direction of the story, the accounts of Georgiana's self-training for love in childhood and heady freedom from it in adolescence, have prepared us for an exciting narrative climax. The third part has, at least, a sort of awkward consistency in that neither technique nor story are satisfying." V. B.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ag 15 '48 500w

HUTCHINS, ROBERT MAYNARD. Preliminary draft of a world constitution. See Committee to frame a world constitution

HUTCHISON, MRS RUTH SHEPHERD. Pennsylvania Dutch cook book. 213p $3 Harper

641.5 Cookery 48-6962

Collection of recipes for making Pennsylvania Dutch dishes. The author has in her possession over a thousand tested recipes, and has chosen for her book those which she feels best illustrate the Pennsylvania German tradition. Index.

Booklist 45:7 S 1 '48

"There is no attempt to instruct in methods; this is a cookbook for cooks to whom terminology is familiar. But the recipes are clearly presented, the how-to-do-it concise and to the point. And the bits of story and folk lore and legend and history interspersed make it fun to read, or dip into here and there."
+ Kirkus 16:277 Je 1 '48 200w

"The recipes in this book are mostly contributed by residents of the region. The selection is excellent, the recipes well written." H. L. Mason
+ N Y Times p39 N 28 '48 220w

"Mrs. Hutchison has included recipes that, because of their economy, unfamiliarity, and hearty goodness, should commend themselves to other sections of the country."
+ New Yorker 24:111 Je 5 '48 100w

"Newest and one of the best of recent cookbooks." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 15 '48 150w

HUTHEESING, MRS KRISHNA (NEHRU). Shadows on the wall. 116p $2 Day

365.954 Prisons—India 48-909

Twelve sketches of the women whom the sister of Jawaharlal Nehru encountered in her year's imprisonment by the British at Lucknow.

"This book will arouse the emotions and stir the most indifferent to call for reform of prison conditions that degrade rather than rebuild." M. F.
+ Canadian Forum 28:70 Je '48 210w

Kirkus 16:17 Ja 1 '48 140w

"These brief biographies point up India's dilemma far better than learned reports can do for the average reader. Recommended for small library purchase." F. A. Boyle
+ Library J 73:196 F 1 '48 70w

Reviewed by H. J. Forman
N Y Times p18 Je 13 '48 290w

New Yorker 24:99 Ap 3 '48 120w

Wis Lib Bul 44:132 Je '48

HUTTON, JOY FERRIS. Too good to be true. 242p $2 Simon & Schuster
48-3010

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Jl 23 '48 100w

"Not too weighty, a likeable item for the hot spell." Will Cuppy
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Jl 11 '48 140w

"This is Mr. Hutton's first book. It displays considerable storytelling ability and skill in plot construction, although one might wish for less withholding of vital information from the reader." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p18 Jl 11 '48 230w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ag 15 '48 140w

"Refreshingly different kind of sleuth, working against colorful background and some mighty odd people. Meandering into diverting by-ways doesn't hurt plot."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:30 Jl 17 '48 40w

"There is excitement galore in this well contrived yarn. It is one of those things you don't want to lay down once you start reading. It is highly and unqualifiedly recommended as one of the better offerings of the season in the whodunit field." D. F. M.
+ Springf'd Republican p7B Ag 29 '48 130w

HUXLEY, ALDOUS LEONARD. Ape and essence. 205p $2.50 Harper
48-7921

"Using the form of a film scenario for his latest novel, Aldous Huxley transports us, in dire and dreadful fancy, to the year 2108. The setting is Los Angeles, a century or so after the Third World War. Atomic and bacterial warfare have left it, and nearly all the world, in blighted ruins. From spared New Zealand, a 'Rediscovery Expedition to North America' has been dispatched, and it is from the experiences of Chief Botanist Alfred Poole that we learn about the 22d century way of life." Christian Science Monitor

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 182:102 S '48 1200w

Booklist 45:66 O 15 '48

Reviewed by J. C. Garrett
Canadian Forum 28:236 Ja '49 1000w

"Artist in words that he is, Mr. Huxley in his latest piece of fiction, lets his imagination run to a riotous extreme, giving us pictures grotesque and horrible, and not always decent. . . Descriptions of the official ritual reflect cleverly—and blasphemously—familiar features of Catholic liturgy; shafts of savage wit are aimed at customs not unlike trends which corrupt our present world; the motif of sex is repeatedly and obscenely stressed."
— Cath World 168:335 Ja '49 120w

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ag 18 '48 600w

"On the aesthetic level, Huxley's debits and credit remain fairly constant. On the one hand, a beautifully modulated, lucid and incisive prose style; on the other, an incapacity to create characters who transcend the functions of targets, mouthpieces, and puppets. . . If 'Ape and Essence' adds nothing to Huxley's stature as a novelist, it confirms again his sensitive, barometric relationship to his time, and to its changing 'climates of opinion.'" Theodore Kalem
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 19 '48 1050w

Reviewed by Anne Fremantle
Commonweal 48:622 O 8 '48 700w

"Perhaps the Huxley name will carry this to a certain market, but for the average normal readers, this form of satire at its most explicit may well prove distasteful."
— Kirkus 16:289 Je 15 '48 170w

"Not a full display of Huxley's talents, his terrible prophecy is lightened considerably by an ingenious and witty account of the Belial worship of the future, by a romantic episode and by the fluency of the accomplished satirist." H. W. Hart
Library J 73:1090 Ag '48 100w

"It is absurd to attempt to deny that Mr. Huxley's message is anything but pertinent, urgent, and true. . . One does begin to wonder, however, whether a statement of such obvious fact, no matter how wittily and trenchantly made, does not tend to enter the realm of platitude unless it implies a solution—a means of escape—more convincing than a blend of Eastern mysticism and Western technology." Anthony Bower
Nation 167:210 Ag 21 '48 750w

New Repub 119:21 Ag 23 '48 1350w

"A short, highly picturesque and rather sterile fantasy. . . It was inevitable that Mr. Huxley should have written this book: one could almost have foreseen it since Hiroshima is the necessary sequel to 'Brave New World;' without it, his collected works and his experience of America would not be complete. . . For all its witty details, 'Ape and Essence' is so loud and tormented a cry for a purely spiritual vision of life, so inflexible a condemnation of all our usual 'values,' that I found myself much more impressed by Mr. Huxley's grand disgust with all of us alive today than by his wrathful movie of a twenty-first century reverting back to the Stone Age and worshipping the Devil." Alfred Kazin
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ag 22 '48 1750w

"Mr. Huxley's arguments on the side of humanity (as they are voiced by the Narrator and the Arch-Vicar) are responsible, opportune and logical, the satire which carries them is arbitrary, opportunistic, and proceeds without logic. . . Form and content maintain a separate existence; the catalysis which would fuse them never takes place. . . Beyond this, the distinction of language, the ironic wit, the mots justes that gave flavor and brilliance to 'Antic Hay,' 'Point Counter Point,' and 'Eyeless in Gaza,' are sporadic and alien in 'Ape and Essence.' Only the skeletal outlines of the superb Huxley manner are distinct. However, if in 'Ape and Essence' Mr. Huxley seems to have a flawed satiric novel, he has a potentially brilliant and penetrating satiric essay. And I wish he had written it." A. S. Morris
N Y Times p5 Ag 22 '48 850w

"It's as funny as this sort of thing can be."
New Yorker 34:69 Ag 28 '48 170w

"Some unthinking readers may believe that the author is just attacking Southern California, which of course is nonsense. For although the novel is harsh, violent, bitter, even murderously acid often, its author has more than that on his mind. If you look, you will see the pity that lies behind it. The truth is that Mr. Huxley is vitally concerned for his fellow man. That he has always chosen to express that concern in his own way does not mean that it is not there." J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p10 Ag 19 '48 700w

"There are flashes of the Huxley of 'Brave New World' in 'Ape and Essence,' and the passages of cold horror and evoked terror are lighted with sharp, Huxleyan humor and epigram, but on the whole this novel seems a little thin, a little labored in comparison with his robust, stinging, richly inventive satire of sixteen years ago. One wonders why he approaches his satirical material so deviously, sidling up to the theme of 'Ape and Essence' like a hesitant storyteller not quite sure of his audience, or of himself, perhaps. I would say that his heart did not seem to be in it, if I did not suspect that his heart is in it, and very deeply, so deeply that it is difficult for him to express in satire the dark terror and foreboding which haunt the minds of all civilized and gentle people these times." John Woodburn
Sat R of Lit 31:8 Ag 21 '48 250w

"This is almost pure Huxley as far as erudition, wit and dismay for humanity are concerned, but it is by no means one of his important books. Actually it is a tour de force. . . Much as though Mr. Huxley had borrowed an idea from a science fiction magazine to see how much fun he would have with it." R. F. H.
Springf'd Republican p7B Ag 29 '48 600w

HUXLEY, A. L.—Continued

"As a satirist, Huxley has neither Swift's passion nor Céline's gusto; he simply can't stand the world any more, not even enough to pillory it. As a result, he moralizes too much, stating explicitly what his story conveys, or should convey, by itself. Written as a movie scenario, Ape and Essence is burdened with a 'narrator' who points the lesson line by line. Yet the book has a certain awesome impressiveness, its sheer, intractable bitterness cannot but affect the reader as Huxley chants his litanies over modern civilization."
Time 52:76 Ag 23 '48 1050w

HUXLEY, ALDOUS LEONARD. Mortal coils. 207p $2.50 Harper
822 48-5485

Dramatization of the author's short story The Gioconda Smile. The hero is a philanderer with an invalid wife. The wife dies suddenly of poison and the husband is accused of murder. Only the cleverness of the family physician saves him from hanging.

Booklist 44:246 Mr 15 '48

"From the dramatic angle, the play seems to offer little reward."
Kirkus 15:617 N 1 '47 80w

"Recommended for literature as well as drama collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 73:475 Mr 15 '48 20w

"There is certainly plenty of contrivance. There is so much, in fact, that the play finally degenerates into a race between the doctor and the hangman. . . Once or twice a poetic mood is attempted by the clumsy and amateurish expedient of letting the hero quote considerable chunks of Shelley. At such moments the play becomes slightly distressing." W. P. Eaton
— N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 F 29 '48 270w

HUXLEY, LEONARD GEORGE HOLDEN. Survey of the principles and practice of wave guides. 328p $4.75 Macmillan
621.38411 Wave guides 48-620

Contents: The electromagnetic fields of TEM-waves; Progressive electromagnetic waves in wave guides; Formulae for field components—evanescent modes—attenuators—attenuation due to walls; Wave-guide techniques; Wave-guide impedance and further techniques; Cavity resonators; Mathematical treatment of selected topics. Bibliography. Subject index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:713 My 1 '48 80w
N Y New Tech Bks 33:22 Ja '48

HYMAN, STANLEY EDGAR. Armed vision; a study in the methods of modern literary criticism. 417p $5 Knopf
801 Literary criticism 48-6970

Study of contemporary American and English literary criticism. The author, who has taught criticism at Bennington college, summarizes the work of twelve contemporary critics, and analyzes their methods, and follows with an "attempt at an integration." Those included are: Edmund Wilson, Yvor Winters, T. S. Eliot, Van Wyck Brooks, Constance Rourke, Maud Bodkin, Christopher Caudwell, Caroline Spurgeon, R. P. Blackmur, William Empson, I. A. Richards, Kenneth Burke. Selected bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Melvin Maddocks
Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 15 '48 750w

"A learned tract for serious students."
Kirkus 16:137 Mr 1 '48 120w

"An extremely useful survey, it shows evidence of detailed and conscientious study, and (though its incidental remarks are sometimes peremptory; Steinbeck is 'a hack,' Wolfe 'a windy bore') of sober and independent judgment." H. W. Hart
+ Library J 73:555 Ap 1 '48 130w

"Mr. Hyman is at his best when discussing critics least in current fashion. When writing about Constance Rourke's folk criticism or Caroline Spurgeon's scholarship he behaves like a boy let out of school. Freed of surveillance, real or fancied, he writes objectively, informatively, and hence usefully. But when he gets to the critics he admires most—R. P. Blackmur, I. A. Richards, Kenneth Burke—he seems like the brightest boy in the class who not only walks off with all the prizes but has even memorized the footnotes. Even as adulatory summaries the chapters on Blackmur and Burke, which I take to be crucial to his book, are not very satisfactory. . . Similarly, Mr. Hyman is not very illuminating on Burke. . . All that I have said may be wrong or myopic, but I am sure of one thing, that his chapter on Edmund Wilson is one of the least tasteful bits of venom that has appeared in a long time." Irving Howe
+ — Nation 167:22 Jl 3 '48 1500w

"Despite this questionable aim of integration (really only suggested) and despite his arbitrary evaluation of certain critics (admittedly personal), the book is valuable in its modest primary purpose of demonstrating the methods of contemporary critics and of relating them through their common intentions. In this sense, the book is informative rather than critical." John Farrelly
+ — New Repub 118:25 Je 21 '48 360w

"There is no denying the thoroughness with which Mr. Hyman has done his job. His work is centered around an exhaustive analysis of the writings of twelve contemporary critics, two thirds of them Americans, but in connection with their work he manages to bring in at least something about scores of others. Any one who wants to know that much about what contemporary critics have proposed and undertaken and said can hardly do better than to consult this book. But it is not very exhilarating reading and only those who are ready to accept at face value the pretentions of 'the new criticism' are likely to sympathize with the author's judgments." J. W. Krutch
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Je 20 '48 1000w

Reviewed by Harvey Breit
N Y Times p6 Jl 11 '48 2450w

"Mr. Hyman appears to be a serious and knowledgeable student of his subject, and many of his opinions are shrewd and provocative. His writing is uncomplicated and often witty, but unfortunately his conclusions are sometimes marked by an almost breathless irresponsibility and lack of judgment. Fairly rarefied stuff, on the whole."
+ — New Yorker 24:78 My 29 '48 120w

I

IAMS, JACK. Prematurely gay. 248p $2.75 Morrow
48-5364

"Humorous novel [which] has to do with the activities of a public-relations counsel who is hired by a hair-oil manufacturer to stimulate demand for his product. The hero achieves a certain amount of personal success with his employer's daughter, but his assault on the public consciousness ends in failure." New Yorker

Booklist 44:248 Mr 15 '48

"An extravaganza of publicity methods, a spoof on cranks and fanatics, this has urbane humor and bright pranks."
Kirkus 15:678 D 15 '47 160w

"It is broad, goodnatured, unpretentious slap-stick, done by a man who cannot resist a top hat or an exposed seat of the pants and who seldom misses either target." Thomas Sugrue
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 F 29 '48 370w

"The basic situation isn't so funny as in Mr. Iams' 'Prophet by Experience.' Still, it is a relief to read a piece of good, clean adolescent fun which leaves the psychopathology for the 'serious' writers to whom it belongs. Comedy and case history don't go well together, as some of our best-selling novelists have yet to learn." Vivian Mercier

+ N Y Times p30 F 22 '48 320w

"Unflagging in its breeziness."

New Yorker 23:82 F 14 '48 100w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p14 F 16 '48 370w

"This is good American Wodehouse, a little rougher on gentility, a little softer on love, a good deal sexier all around, than the original W. However the pattern is essentially the same, involving as it does an inextricable tangle of impossible circumstances, all about nothing, touching earth nowhere, giving off a shower of witty sparks, and involving the zaniest of characters in a mad rat-race." N. L. Rothman

+ Sat R of Lit 31:17 Mr 6 '48 490w

Springf'd Republican p8B F 15 '48 80w

IBN-SAHAV, ARI. Jessica, my daughter; tr. by Julian Meltzer. 312p $3 Crown

48-8782

A retelling of the story of Shylock, and his daughter Jessica. The scene is Venice, and much of the action takes place in the ghetto, where Shylock was the wealthiest inhabitant.

Booklist 45:178 Ja 15 '49

"Although Shakespeare told it more impressively, this author makes much of well known material, gives it a slant that keeps the story new and of current interest."

+ Kirkus 16:453 S 1 '48 170w

"As a novel, 'Jessica, My Daughter' is not altogether successful; Mr. Ibn-Zahav has no great knack for making his sixteenth-century Venetians living people. But the implications of 'Jessica, My Daughter' as a plea for a sympathetic understanding of the psychology of the persecuted are timely and clear." F. H. Bullock

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 O 31 '48 450w

"Shylock remains exaggerated. The trial is still unrelated to possibility and law, and strangest of all—since Ibn-Zahav is a notable dramatist—the drama is often vitiated by being told about rather than presented on stage. Apparently, while delving into the 'old histories' so as to tell the story 'Shakespeare might have told . . . if he had cared to find out,' Ibn-Zahav was much more concerned with refuting the Elizabethan dramatist than in creating something of his own. This is understandable, but it is not the way to write a novel." T. C. Chubb

— N Y Times p34 O 31 '48 340w

San Francisco Chronicle p6 N 28 '48 180w

IDELL, ALBERT EDWARD. Great blizzard. 282p $3 Holt

48-5873

Further chronicles of the Rogers family whom the author has followed from Philadelphia (Centennial Summer) to Brooklyn (Bridge to Brooklyn) and in this third volume to Manhattan. The period covered is the middle years of the 1880s reaching a climax in the blizzard of March, 1888.

Booklist 44:249 Mr 15 '48

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin

Horn Bk 24:213 My '48 80w

"A natural for the readers of Centennial Summer, but with individuality enough to stand on its own merits."

+ Kirkus 16:5 Ja 1 '48 160w

"Recommended not only for New York collections but for all those who like the nostalgic novel." M. H. Zipprich

+ Library J 73:197 F 1 '48 100w

"A great deal of the charm of the Rogers story lies in the vividness with which Mr. Idell recreates the period of the 1880's. His details about clothes, food, social conditions, politics, labor, sports, methods of transportation are realistically and unobtrusively welded into incident and character. Complete in itself, the book can be read with equal pleasure by those familiar with the preceding volumes and by newcomers to the chronicle." Rose Feld

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Mr 21 '48 470w

N Y Times p7 Mr 14 '48 750w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 6 '48 270w

"Against the individual adventures of birth, discovered love, and unexpected journalistic fame we get a vivid picture of New York. The great city, crippled, isolated, cold, hungry, and hopelessly idle with all wires down and all transportation dead, is a shuddering sight. . . Mr. Idell gives us an eyewitness technique that is good but cannot lessen the reliance of the Rogerses on the elements. The more unpredictable, the better." C. M. Brown

+ Sat R of Lit 31:15 Ap 10 '48 550w

IGNATOW, DAVID. Poems. 99p $2.50 Decker press

811 48-8157

"Mr. Ignatow writes of what he knows. Therefore most of the poems come from the New York City 'underworld.'" N Y Times

"These poems, the best of them, ought to be printed on pulp and offered at Woolworth's, a dime a copy. They'd sell, too. For these are poems for the millions, in the cities and out of them, those who would read, and read poems too, poems such as these, if only they could get to them: manna in the wilderness." W. C. Williams

+ N Y Times p50 N 21 '48 550w

"The poems are talky, personal, and persuasive. There is no compression, little discipline, much dialectical statement. The poetry is there, but only in total effects. The poet suffers with his people, and he asks you to share in his gift of pity. The realism of his reporting often sags in the devices of journalism, but Ignatow is original, his images memorable." A. M. Sullivan

+ Sat R of Lit 31:26 N 27 '48 90w

INDUSTRIAL RESEARCH INSTITUTE. Research in industry. See Furnas, C. C., ed.

INFELD, LEOPOLD. Whom the gods love; the story of Evariste Galois. (Whittlesey house publication) 323p $3.50 McGraw

B or 92 Galois, Evariste 48-5231

"A biography of Evariste Galois, a Frenchman who died in a duel, in 1832, at the age of twenty, but nevertheless left behind a number of algebraic equations that, according to the author, a distinguished physicist and a collaborator of Einstein's, put him among the world's great mathematicians. Galois was a revolutionary as well as a prodigy, and his hatred for his king, Louis-Phillipe, was apparently the cause of his fatal duel." (New Yorker) Bibliography.

Booklist 44:281 Ap 15 '48

"The attempt to combine fact with fiction tends to make this book, in spite of its tender and gripping moments, a somewhat uneven work. The afterword clearly distinguishes the known facts from the interpolated fiction, so that the author at all times plays fairly with the reader. This is just what one would expect Leopold Infeld to do." M. G. Cohen

+ — Canadian Forum 28:21 Ap '48 270w

Kirkus 15:663 D 1 '47 200w

"A readable account, recommended as a humanized biography of a mathematician." Walter Hausdorfer

+ Library J 73:120 Ja 15 '48 100w

"In Dr. Infeld's account, Galois' teachers and contemporaries are exhibited as stupid and ignorant to a degree approaching caricature. Neither Vernier, nor Richard, nor Cauchy, for example, was quite as contemptible as Professor Infeld portrays them. His book reads easily and smoothly, but it is chiefly a sentimental thriller, falling between real history and the school of the historical novel." Ernest Nagel

INFIELD, LEOPOLD—Continued
N Y Times p5 My 2 '48 850w

"Mr. Infeld has linked the known facts of Galois' life with bridges of fiction, and the result is a curious and exciting book."
+ New Yorker 23:67 Ja 31 '48 110w

"The trouble is not that Evariste Galois' contribution to knowledge was of a kind mysterious to most readers. The trouble is that Mr. Infeld is not a biographer. He has given us glimpses of a potentially interesting, even fascinating character: a youth in whom genius was united with intellectual arrogance and insolence. . . He has, in short, crudely sketched a human being who incarnated with remarkable fidelity the popular conception of genius. We must thank Mr. Infeld for the sketch, but we cannot help wishing that he had been able to give us something more." B. R. Redman
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:16 My 1 '48 750w

INGE, WILLIAM RALPH. Mysticism in religion. 168p $3.50 Univ. of Chicago press
149.3 Mysticism 48-8494

The former Dean of St Paul's is in his eighty-eighth year. In his preface he imagines the critics will say, "He has said all this before, and said it better." Later he explains the subject of his book as "Mysticism in Religion, not the psychology or pathology of the mystics." Partial contents: Authority and the inner light; The meaning of mysticism; Mysticism in the New Testament; Time and eternity; Symbolism and myth; Greek mysticism; Plotinus; Some medieval and English mystics; The philosophy of mysticism. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:43 O 1 '48

Reviewed by J. O. Supple
Chicago Sun S 1 '48 180w

"Dr. Inge has never put his case with greater persuasiveness than in the present volume, the fruit of his old age. . . In stating his lifelong faith, Dr. Inge does not here add much to those important volumes, such as his Philosophy of Plotinus and the Paddock lectures, Faith and its Psychology, on which his reputation was built and will remain founded. The interest of this book is the further enlargement and strengthening of his position by introducing confirmations from the 'perennial philosophy,' his appreciation of the part that is played by the Sanskrit canon in that eternal gospel which has been revealed not to one chosen people but to mankind at large." Gerald Heard
+ Christian Century 65:977 S 22 '48 900w

"From the mellower side of this book it is plain that length of years did not afflict the author. That gave it ripeness and himself the opportunity to consider again his convictions. These he confirms by making no changes in essential thought and but slight shifts of accent. Yet he doubts—unnecessarily his many admirers would say—'whether a very old man ought to write a book even if he is asked to do so. I cannot expect that the critics will be very kind. . . . "He has said all this before and said it better. He has no sympathy with the hopes and aspirations of the young. When he looks towards the future he sees only the approach of another Dark Age".' Some things he has never said better; and he has a far truer way of looking than into the fog ahead. . . All the author's remarks on incarnation, revelation, personality and immortality could with advantage have been more precise and definite. There are in this volume, however, some superb chapters such as the masterly one on 'Time and Eternity,' where Dr. Inge reaches his highest stature." J. M. L. Thomas
+ Hibbert J 46:372 Jl '48 1200w

"He has said much of this before, but there is much that is fresh, including his reflections upon the Russian theologians, Berdyaev and Frank, and upon some ancient writings from the 'wisdom of the East.' . . As for the young, they will always appreciate sincerity in the old, and admire a spirit which is unfettered by tradition. Dr. Inge's theological liberalism does not lack a following, and his emphasis upon the need of personal dedication and a disciplined life of the spirit as the way to God is one which not all younger people will reject. . . He has not lost his power of mixing wisdom with wit." Marcus Knight
+ Spec 180:84 Ja 16 '48 550w

"He has not, indeed, broken new ground. But it was well worth while to put together, as a sort of summary and swansong of his literary effort, this collection of his maturest thoughts on the subject which lies nearest to his heart."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p153 Mr 13 '48 900w

INGELLS, DOUGLAS J. They tamed the sky; the triumph of American aviation; introd. by James H. Doolittle. 268p il $3.50 Appleton
629.13 Aeronautics—History. World war, 1939-1945—Aerial operations. Aviators 47-11713

Describes the development of modern aviation in the United States, especially the work carried on at Wright field, Dayton, Ohio. It is also the story of the men who achieved some of the most daring experiments—the pilots, mechanics, and designers. Illustrated with photographs. No index.

Booklist 44:220 F 15 '48
Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '48

"Here is a book written by someone who knows aviation and knows how to write about it dramatically. . . The one weakness of the book is the author's formula for peace, showing a country bristling with armament."
+ — Kirkus 15:529 S 15 '47 250w

"Some good air yarns are respun in this volume." Herbert Mitgang
+ N Y Times p18 N 23 '47 270w

INGERSOLL, LEONARD ROSE, and others. Heat conduction; with engineering and geological applications. 278p $4 McGraw 536.2 Heat—Conduction 48-7456

"The present volume is the successor to and, in effect, a revision of the Ingersoll and Zobel text of some years ago [Introduction to the Mathematical Theory of Heat Conduction, Book Review Digest 1913]. . . The present volume carries out and extends the aims of the earlier one. Most of the old material has been retained, although revised, and almost an equal amount of new has been added. . . [Some] features of the revision are a modernized nomenclature, many new problems and illustrations, and the segregation of descriptions of methods of measuring heat-conduction constants in a special chapter." (Pref) References. Index.

"This book is an excellent piece of work and has been carefully prepared and edited. The various elements of the subject have been presented with enthusiasm and in a lively manner." W. J. Shore
+ Chem Eng 55:315 O '48 950w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:950 Je 15 '48 50w
N Y New Tech Bks 33:71 S '48

INGERSOLL, RALPH MCALLISTER. Great ones; the love story of two very important people. 308p $3 Harcourt 48-5232

"The Great Ones" are Sturges Strong, magazine publisher, and Letia Long, actress, artist, dress designer, and novelist. The novel describes their respective successful careers, their love affair, and marriage.

"'The Great Ones' is not a novel but a dossier—ream upon ream of factual reporting with just enough imaginative transposition to place it on the fiction list and elude the laws of libel. Letia and Sturges are described with accumulation of detail, but not infused with a single particle of the life which Dreiser poured into Frank Cowperwood." C. J. Rolo
— Atlantic 181:107 Mr '48 550w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun F 29 '48 600w

"Mr. Ingersoll must have intended a satire. No one could expect these characters to be taken seriously." L. A. Sloper
— Christian Science Monitor p14 F 16 '48 750w

Reviewed by Leander Danley
— Churchman 162:17 Ap 15 '48 120w

Reviewed by George Miles
Commonweal 47:569 Mr 19 '48 450w

Kirkus 16:56 F 1 '48 250w

"Ralph Ingersoll is a better crusader than novelist and his story is as banal as the characters he deals with. Book is effective, however, because he is a keen observer and shows up pretenses of all sorts. Recommended for purchase." E. H. Kennedy
+ — Library J 73:336 F 15 '48 80w

" 'The Great Ones' does an injustice to all the Very Important People who manage to be only slightly ridiculous. Sturges Strong and Letia Long are too much of a bad thing. They congeal like cold wax under the icy breath of Ingersoll's irritation. They are, in fact, unbelievable. 'The Great Ones,' nevertheless, is an interesting document of the times." Penn Kimball
— + New Repub 118:24 Mr 8 '48 900w

"Audacious is the word for Mr. Ingersoll's lingering peephole view of Sturges Strong and Letia Long, his Great Ones. This book is going to be talked about. Not because of its literary merit, for it hasn't any. There is bad writing aplenty, careless syntax, and, in the early chapters especially, passages of dialogue that might have been lifted wholesale from daytime soap operas. Many times 'The Great Ones' hovers on the perilous edge of pulp-fiction; what saves it is the author's minutely documented study of his main characters." J. D. Ross
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 F 15 '48 1200w

"Mr. Ingersoll has written a trivial and pointless novel, employing a technique that might have been worked out by a well-read child of 10 with a precocious acquaintance with the jargon of the Park Avenue psychoanalyst." Russell Maloney
— N Y Times p5 F 15 '48 600w

New Yorker 23:94 F 21 '48 130w

"Mr. Ingersoll has made quite a novel of this. There's a bit too much of the inner workings of magazine publishing, perhaps, though it's usually so placed that those who don't want it can skip over it to the story. But aside from this Ingersoll has said something that was worth saying about contemporary American life, about the power which corrupts, about the desire for power and 'success' which destroys as it grows. Though it doesn't quite make greatness, 'The Great Ones' reaches up into the general region of really significant comment on American life." J. H. Jackson
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 18 '48 900w

"Mr. Ingersoll's editorials in PM, of which he was the first editor, were never dull. 'The Great Ones' is. Mr. Ingersoll never seems to be able to make up his mind whether he loves or loathes his principal protagonists; he is always more cautious than caustic. His people are of necessity fantastic, but they never become believable. They are just not very interesting. 'The Great Ones' is the work of a reporter, not a novelist." Merle Miller
— Sat R of Lit 31:13 F 14 '48 1000w

INNES, HAMMOND, pseud. See Hammond-Innes, R.

INSTITUTE FOR RELIGIOUS AND SOCIAL STUDIES. Jewish theological seminary of America. Communication of ideas. See Bryson, L., ed.

INSTITUTE FOR RELIGIOUS AND SOCIAL STUDIES. Jewish theological seminary of America. Labor's relation to Church and community. See Pope, L., ed.

INSTITUTE FOR RELIGIOUS AND SOCIAL STUDIES. Wellsprings of the American spirit. See Johnson, F. E., ed.

INSTITUTE ON RELIGION AND PSYCHIATRY, Boston, 1947. Psychiatry and religion. See Liebman, Joshua Loth, ed.

INTERNATIONAL who's who, 1948. (V12) 1032p $16 Ziff-Davis
920

"The International Who's Who has endeavored since its beginning to gather in one volume biographical information about leading citizens of all countries and from a wide variety of professions so that searchers for material might find what facts they need without having to invest in, or search through innumerable national biographical dictionaries. Many entries are also found for people from countries which have no regular 'who's who' type of publication. Since its initial appearance, when its citations were considered almost too abbreviated, it has expanded a great deal in length and detail of individual entry. The information about each person, according to the publisher, is based on a questionnaire, a sample of which follows the foreword of the book. Names, titles, and other honors, nationality, occupation, year of birth, are followed by condensed, dated, descriptive material on careers, present position, principal publications, and addresses, complete in many cases." Subscription Bks Bul

"Excellent source of contemporary biography. . . Outstanding work of this type in this field, it is indispensable for reference collections in research libraries, and in public libraries serving an internationally-minded community." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 73:558 Ap 1 '48 200w

"The International Who's Who fulfills, as well as can be expected in a one-volume work, its aim at international, up-to-date coverage. It has kept a high standard for its inclusions and revisions, and should be useful in any libraries interested in international names in the news. Librarians, who make the practice of replacing biographical dictionaries only in five-to ten-year intervals should consider this edition, even though the customary period of time has not elapsed, because of the great number of additions and corrections resulting from the postwar opening of avenues of communication closed for the war years. It is recommended."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 19:48 Jl '48 850w

INTERNATIONAL world who's who, 1947 [ed. by G. G. Sampson]. 1175p $22.50 Am. universities medical research publications
920 (47-7065)

"A biographical dictionary, alphabetically arranged, of contemporary persons of many countries and nationalities. The preface states that 'a special effort has been made to emphasize literature and art to include . . . those who have achieved prominence in the field of Journalism as war correspondents.' Also appreciation is expressed to 'Foreign Embassies, Ministries and all Government Agencies, whose cooperation has been so helpful in gathering authentic data for biographical sketches of foreign personalities.' This book should not be confused with International Who's Who published by Europa Publications, Ltd. The entries are very brief, including name, birth year (but not month or day), associations, occupations and other customary 'who's who' information. Very few dates are cited in the biographical data. . . In checking a few sections, the emphasis seems to be on persons in business, banking, insurance and other lines of industry, with a predominance of names from the United States." Subscription Bks Bul

"As a special point had been made of including war correspondents, a list of 22 names of those outstanding in that field in the last war was checked and only one was found to be included. . . There is a generous scattering of librarians in the volume, although many whom one would expect to find are not men-

INTERNATIONAL world who's who—Cont. tioned. Most of those included fall in the same class as the other names listed, important in their own locality alone. . . Because of the minor importance of the majority of the names included and the unevenness of coverage of many fields of endeavor, the International World Who's Who is not recommended."
— Subscription Bks Bul 18:52 O '47 650w

IREMONGER, FREDERIC ATHEWOLD. William Temple, archbishop of Canterbury: his life and letters. 663p il $6.50 Oxford
B or 92 Temple, William, abp. 48-9469

A full-length biography of the English churchman who was Archbishop of Canterbury from 1942 to 1944. Includes many extracts from letters. Author is Dean of Lichfield. Index.

Current Hist 16:34 Ja '49 50w

"Twenty-five shillings is a large sum for most of us to spend on a book, but this one will repay manifold any sacrifice we make to procure it. It contains the meat of many books and yet is fascinating and easy to read. I cannot think of any other book of these dimensions which would keep me awake as this did on a late railway journey." W. G. Moore
+ Hibbert J 47:93 O '48 1000w

"As a biography, as a story of the religious developments of the past forty years in England and in the world, this is a volume which should be widely welcomed."
+ Kirkus 16:619 D 1 '48 190w

Reviewed by Keith Hutchison
Nation 167:727 D 25 '48 950w

"How Temple first came to socialism, the Dean of Lichfield has not troubled to explain. On page 64 we are told that Temple's 'avowed socialism' was not the best passport to an Oxford S.C.R. But there is nothing in the preceding pages to suggest that Temple was a socialist. This is only one of several lacunae and loose ends that mar an otherwise competent biography." Maurice Cranston
+ — New Statesman & Nation 36:265 S 25 '48 1400w

Reviewed by B. I. Bell
N Y Times p6 Ja 9 '49 900w

"This life of William Temple, long expected, is worthy, as far as any book could be, of its great subject." John Cristie
+ Spec 181:114 Jl 23 '48 1200w
Times [London] Lit Sup p477 Ag 28 '48 2450w

IREY, ELMER LINCOLN. Tax dodgers; the inside story of the T-men's war with America's political and underworld hoodlums as told to William J. Slocum. 288p $3 Greenberg
364.38 U.S. Treasury department. Intelligence unit. Crime and criminals—U.S. Tax evasion and avoidance 48-9865

"The burden of this book is that crime will pay a whole lot better if you cut your Uncle Same in on the take—or so one gathers from the late Elmer L. Irey . . . who was for twenty-six years the Chief of the Intelligence Unit of the United States Treasury. . . Al Capone; the ineffable Nucky Johnson, overlord of vice in Atlantic City, N.J.; Willie Bioff, Moe Annenberg, Tom Pendergast and some of the more odious confederates of the late Huey P. Long [are] only a few of those appearing in Mr. Irey's gallery of rogues." N Y Times

Booklist 45:172 Ja 15 '49

"Authentic annals of crime, this is a documentary of danger, patience and perseverance which qualifies as first hand, first rate entertainment."
+ Kirkus 16:392 Ag 1 '48 160w

"The whole is told smoothly, the style is marred only by a few self-conscious colloquialisms, and the moral is not overstressed. The reader may draw his own." H. W. Baehr
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Ja 23 '49 500w

"How much of the work on 'The Tax Dodgers' was completed before Mr. Irey's death last summer it is impossible for this reviewer to say. It is equally impossible to say where factual case histories end and where Mr. Slocum's admirable talent for creative fiction begins. It doesn't matter a lot; it's good bedside reading in any case." Cabell Phillips
+ — N Y Times p10 D 12 '48 700w
Springf'd Republican p18A Ja 16 '49 360w

"The Tax Dodgers should be required reading in civics and political science classes throughout the U.S. Few books provide such detailed proof of the breakdown of political morality in the face of bribery and corruption."
+ Time 52:110 D 6 '48 850w

IRISH, WILLIAM, pseud. See Woolrich, C.

IRONSIDE, ROBIN. Pre-Raphaelite painters; with a descriptive catalogue by John Gere. (British artists) 49p 96pl $7.50; also separate descriptive catalogue $3.50 Oxford 759.2 Preraphaelitism. Paintings, British

The volume celebrates the centenary of the foundation of the Pre-Raphaelite Brotherhood in the autumn of 1848. It is composed of reproductions of the drawings and paintings of some of the leading exponents of the school: Madox Brown, Hunt, Rossetti, Millais, Hughes, Burne-Jones, and others; an introduction; and a descriptive catalog of the paintings.

"The chief drawback is that the illustrations are badly reproduced. . . A secondary drawback is that Mr. Robin Ironside, who writes the introduction, unfortunately takes no pains to make himself easy to read; his sentences are trailing, parenthetical, and involved. This is a pity, for he has some interesting and useful comments to make. . . Mr. John Gere's notes on the illustrations are valuable." Stephen Bone
+ — Manchester Guardian p3 D 23 '48 180w

Reviewed by A. D. B. Sylvester
New Statesman & Nation 36:469 N 27 '48 650w

Reviewed by J. T. Soby
Sat R of Lit 31:51 D 4 '48 130w

"The Phaidon volume of Pre-Raphaelite painters coincides happily with the last of the centenary exhibitions; unhappily it is, in some respects, less than a worthy permanent memorial of the Brotherhood. Recent exhibitions and research have brought to light new and little-known works, some of them here reproduced for the first time; after the period when these painters were violently out of fashion we are ready to place them in historical perspective. Mr. Ironside, in a somewhat overwritten and precious introduction . . . can now see them not as an unheralded phenomenon but as part of the European movement away from classical convention. . . The descriptive catalogue contains a wealth of information, much of it new, the results of careful scholarly study combined with taste. Enthusiasm perhaps leads to too eclectic treatment with a tendency to dwell on certain painters and works." John Bryson
Spec 181:602 N 5 '48 1100w

"We have long needed such a comprehensive and well-edited volume. Mr. Robin Ironside and Mr. John Gere have done their work well. It is true that Mr. Ironside's style, devoted to any other subject, might have to bear the reproach of preciosity; but the almost painful degree of polish and refinement which he imparts to his writing is appropriate in an essay on Pre-Raphaelitism. . . Mr. John Gere's descriptive catalogue has much merit of a different order. His style is unpretentious and readable, and he has brought together a vast amount of relevant material about the works illustrated and their artists."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p582 O 16 '48 3300w

IRVING, ALEXANDER, pseud. See Fox, R., and Fahrenkopf, A.

IRWIN, MARGARET E. F. (MRS J. R. MONSELL). Elizabeth, captive princess. 246p $3 Harcourt

Elizabeth, queen of England—Fiction
48-9521

Sequel to the author's Young Bess (Book Review Digest 1945). It traces in fiction form the life of Elizabeth from the death of her young brother, Edward VI, thru the brief reign of Lady Jane Grey, to the marriage of Queen Mary, when Elizabeth was twenty.

Booklist 45:137 D 15 '48

"This book is couched in exquisite English with an Elizabethan tang and without redundancy. Atmosphere is achieved effortlessly." M. P. Corcoran

+ Cath World 168:413 F '49 310w

Chicago Sun p8X Ja 9 '49 70w

"The work is vigorous, and strong with the color and the excitement of the age. To one who knows something of its background, it is remarkably convincing and, to one coming freshly to the subject, it must also persuade and explain the perplexities and the peculiar brightness surrounding the last of the Tudors." Margaret Williamson

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 D 17 '48 550w

"The dreadful thought comes over one that Miss Irwin plans to write a novel about every section of Queen Elizabeth's life, and though she shows that she has read widely in her period, her point of view is the conventional one, touched up with some pretty sentimentality. . . But there are a number of scenes which are really brilliant." Theodore Maynard

— + Commonweal 49:330 Ja 7 '49 550w

"Margaret Irwin has established sound claim to well documented and scholarly historical fiction-biography. These portraits of Elizabeth lend her a glamor, a romantic quality, more usually associated with her rival, Mary of Scotland."

+ Kirkus 16:560 O 15 '48 210w

"The fear and ferment of the times at home and abroad come alive naturally in this novelized biography which can be recommended enthusiastically to school and public libraries." Katharine Shorey

+ Library J 73:1665 N 15 '48 80w

"Miss Irwin in retelling a familiar story succeeds admirably in making it seem not only fresh but exciting: her serial is crammed with suspense and the bright, fantastic figures in it take on a mysterious charm." Iris Barry

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 D 5 '48 550w

"Miss Irwin knows her history, and where history furnishes only the non-committal facts her reconstructions of motive and character seem psychologically sound and convincing. The minor characters are well done, but Elizabeth herself remains static, lacking the shock and excitement of greatness. Perhaps it's because Miss Irwin writes too effusively of what her heroine wears and how she feels and too little of what she thinks." M. S. Hurst

+ — N Y Times p47 D 5 '48 280w

"No really striking revelations about her, and no attempt at dramatization, but a sensible and concise view of a confused period."

+ New Yorker 24:178 D 4 '48 140w

"Miss Irwin writes with a steady, well-trained hand and although you know what is going to happen, you read on with breathless interest." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 D 19 '48 450w

Reviewed by Harrison Smith

Sat R of Lit 31:31 D 4 '48 1100w

"Meaning to be more or less true to history, it manages only to be undistinguished either as scholarship or fiction."

— Time 52:113 D 6 '48 190w

"A most accomplished novel."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p709 D 18 '48 180w

Wis Lib Bul 45:14 Ja '49

ISAAC, JULIUS. Economics of migration; with an introd. by Sir Alexander Carr-Saunders. (Int. lib. of sociology and social reconstruction) 285p $4.50 Oxford

325 Man—Migrations. Emigration and immigration. Economic conditions 47-6047

"An all-around discussion of the problems of emigration and immigration, the work deals with demographic and sociological, as well as economic, aspects of migration. The author's primary object is to examine the causes and effects of great migrations during the past century and a quarter. After an introductory chapter delineating the scope of the study, the significance of migratory movements to the end of the eighteenth century is analyzed in a brief historical chapter. The remaining 262 pages (including bibliography and index) are devoted to various aspects of nineteenth-and twentieth-century migration." (Am Pol Sci R) Bibliography. Index.

"The book is so good on an important but usually fruitless topic that criticism seems ungrateful. Yet the following are worth mentioning: (1) The author has set himself the task of economic analysis, but wishes at the same time to speak about the 'desirability' of certain concrete policies. (2) In the writer's opinion he accepts too readily the thesis advanced by Reddaway, Hansen, and others, that a stationary or declining population has deleterious effects on a capitalistic economic system. (3) In stating the demographic theories of persons such as Malthus and Pearl he sometimes oversimplifies. (4) He confines himself almost wholly to areas having an European culture, omitting important facts and problems connected with the migration of Asiatics. (5) His referencing is not always adequate and is sometimes inaccurate. These criticisms are not really fundamental, because the wary reader can make allowance for them. The book will repay the close attention of any student of international economics, labor, or population." Kingsley Davis

+ — Am Econ R 38:458 Je '48 850w

"Of timely interest to political scientists as well as to sociologists and economists. . . Although the work is dull—as many Ph.D. dissertations are inclined to be—it contains a wealth of up-to-date material, and has some value as supplementary reading for an introductory course in social science or sociology." A. D. Angel

+ — Am Pol Sci R 41:1047 O '47 230w

Foreign Affairs 26:397 Ja '48 10w

"The major merit of this book lies not in presentation of new ideas or data but in bringing together in one place much scattered material dealing with international migration. It suffers from an organization that involves considerable repetition. At almost every point of controversy in the literature, Mr. Isaac accepts an eclectic view. In most cases, this probably leaves him nearer the truth than either set of protagonists on each issue, but this attitude is carried so far that one has no feeling of direction after having read the book." D. G. Johnson

J Pol Econ 56:271 Je '48 700w

Reviewed by W. D. Forsyth

Pacific Affairs 21:213 Je '48 900w

ISAACS, ASHER. International trade; tariff and commercial policies. 838p maps $6 Irwin

380.9 Commerce—History. Commercial policy. Tariff 48-5688

"Largely a history of tariff policies, foreign and domestic, together with some consideration of the more up-to-date devices for restricting the free flow of goods and services. The author also takes note of certain movements in recent years which have favored freer trade: commercial treaties; the World Monetary and Economic Conference of 1933; the Pan-American Conference; Hitler's plan for Europe; the Roosevelt-Churchill Eight-Point Peace Aims; the Federal Union Proposal, and other proposals for the modification of sovereignty; the Bretton Woods Monetary Agreements; the proposed International Trade Organization; the Geneva Reciprocal Trade Agreements; and the Marshal Plan for the revival of Europe." Am Pol Sci R

ISAACS, ASHER—Continued

"Despite its general title the book selects for special study only one phase on international trade, namely the tariff policies of the major countries of the world. . . More important, however, are certain limitations which derive from the failure to carry out the original declared objective of approaching the subject of commercial policy in a comprehensive manner, i.e., with reference to the social, political, economic, geographical and legal factors which shaped it. . . Students who do not bring an unusual background of historical knowledge to the study of tariff policy are likely to find the author's references to events of political and diplomatic history insufficiently enlightening as a method of relating tariff history to politics, diplomacy, history, and international law. . . Apart from these limitations Professor Isaacs' International Trade provides a rather complete collection of data concerning the tariff history of a maximum number of countries and as such may serve as a useful reference work for students interested in this field." K. W. Kapp

+ — Am Econ R 38:691 S '48 1000w

"Dr. Isaacs has given more space to certain aspects of the subject than they rightly deserve in a work which he hopes will impress those students who have seen the world before coming into his classroom. Even historical data, in a work of this kind, should be selected with discrimination. . . The author undoubtedly meant this to be an 'exhaustive' treatment of the subject. And that it very nearly is." J. D. Larkin

Am Pol Sci R 42:602 Je '48 400w

ISAACS, HAROLD ROBERT, ed. New cycle in Asia; with notes and introd; issued under the auspices of the Int. secretariat, Inst. of Pacific relations. 212p $3 Macmillan

950 East (Far East)—History—Sources. World politics 47-12404

"Selected documents on major international developments in the Far East, 1943-1947." (Subtitle) Index.

"Mr. Isaacs has performed a real service in bringing together the official statements of policy, which were scattered through a wide variety of sources. Sometimes, though, one could wish that he had been more catholic in his selection. There is practically nothing on the economic side, such as the Philippine Rehabilitation and Trade Acts." L. A. Mills

+ — Ann Am Acad 257:223 My '48 180w

Booklist 44:266 Ap 1 '48

Christian Century 65:83 Ja 21 '48 140w

Current Hist 14:175 Mr '48 10w

Foreign Affairs 26:751 Jl '48 10w

"Book invaluable for reference; necessary for an understanding of the disturbance in the Far East since World War II ended. Highly recommended for all libraries." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 72:1583 N 1 '47 80w

"The chief weakness of this collection is that it spans too narrow a period in its cycle and covers problems still very much in process of evolution. Mr. Isaacs has provided a stimulating introduction and some good explanatory notes." F. H. Soward

+ — Pacific Affairs 21:314 S '48 440w

"On the whole, the documents have been well selected, but certain faults of arrangement, inclusion, and omission should be noted since the volume will be useful chiefly as a reference handbook. The section on Japan, for example, begins with the Potsdam Declaration of July 1945, while the Cairo Declaration and the Yalta Agreement, both basic documents connected with the defeat of Japan, are included under China. . . The section on Korea is weakened by the inclusion of the paper entitled Korea's Case, an appeal to the General Assembly by the Korean Representative Council, a body which has no official standing. Two other omissions should be noted: the military annex of the March 6, 1946 agreement between France and Viet Nam, and President Truman's statement on Trusteeship of November 6, 1946."

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:73 Mr '48 360w

IVES, BURL. Wayfaring stranger. (Whittlesey house publication) 253p $3.50 McGraw

B or 92 Musicians—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 48-11144

"Known to radio fans, Burl Ives undoubtedly has done a good deal towards popularizing folk music of America. Here he tells his own story." Kirkus

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p9X N 7 '48 400w

Kirkus 16:543 O 1 '48 160w

Nation 167:673 D 11 '48 40w

Reviewed by Thomas Sugrue
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 N 7 '48 800w

"This is the story of the making of a ballad singer, an account of the struggle of the folk spirit to speak its piece, to make its voice heard above the crash and clatter of the modern world. . . It was a good life—they say it's more fun becoming than arriving—and Burl has told it with terseness, and a wry humor." H. R.

+ N Y Times p38 N 7 '48 600w

"Ives tells his story informally; perhaps this is why it is a little difficult to straighten it out in one's mind. He chats along, too, in a homely, sometimes country-sly, philosophical vein which gives the narrative considerable charm. One thing that hurts his book is the baldly apparent fact that he still cherishes resentments." J. H. Jackson

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 D 8 '48 750w

"It is unlikely that readers who are not Burl Ives fans will enjoy his autobiography, 'Wayfaring Stranger,' but his fans will love it. This book has the proper mixture of rustic sincerity and corn for the life story of one of America's most popular singers of folk songs." Morroe Berger

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:20 Ja 8 '49 700w

J

JACKSON, CAARY PAUL. Tournament forward. 179p $2.50 Crowell

48-7998

High school basketball story for ages eleven to fifteen. It describes the progress of Neil, who could play good basketball but was inclined to be a showoff, from the time when he was a sore trial to the faculty, until he decides to be a good sportsman.

Kirkus 16:364 Ag 1 '48 100w

"Not remarkable but quite suitable for sports fans, ages 11-15." Lillian Morrison

Library J 73:1199 S 1 '48 70w

"These are all normal youngsters in a recognizable American high school. The incidents never degenerate into melodrama and slapstick. And how Mr. Jackson knows his basketball! Best of the whole book for the fans will be the exciting and clear play-by-play accounts of the games themselves. Tops, I'd say." M. C. Scoggin

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 O 24 '48 180w

JACKSON, CHARLES REGINALD. Outer edges. 240p $2.75 Rinehart

48-6917

A novel about the brutal murder of two little girls by a moronic seventeen-year-old boy, and the consequences of the murder upon other members of the Westchester community where it occurred, and on two other people outside the community. Those who are affected by the murder include a successful public relations man and his family, a bored Westchester wife, an intellectual New York city student, and a nurse in a Catskill sanitarium.

"The narrative is slickly written, but none of the characters are at all attractive or—which is more serious—particularly convincing.

The theme might have been effective if handled by a Dostoevski, but Jackson never gets far enough under the skin of his puppets to make them three-dimensional." Edith Fowke
— Canadian Forum 28:142 S '48 380w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p7X My 30 '48 490w

— Kirkus 16:154 Mr 15 '48 160w

"There are some vague thoughts on evil and individual responsibility for it, but this still remains largely a tour de force. Probably can be left to the rental libraries." R. E. Kingery
Library J 73:813 My 15 '48 140w

Reviewed by Ernest Jones
Nation 167:22 Jl 3 '48 700w

"The Outer Edges, is built like a radio program and has about as much profundity. The Outer Edges affords enough exercise to whip up an appetite, but it provides little food for thought. . . Some of this book is done expertly, to use the word without praise, and a great deal of it has the kind of immediate plausibility that does not sustain inspection. These are not new faults which Jackson exhibits here; they were in the first two books, although they were not so distinct. Maybe now that he has crowded so many of them into The Outer Edges he won't have to use them again." John Woodburn
— New Repub 118:25 Je 7 '48 750w

Reviewed by Herbert Kupferberg
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 My 30 '48 550w

"Readers of Mr. Jackson's earlier novels will know that he has that rarest of attributes among writers of English, a sense of form that can be almost magical in its effect. To say that he is a novelist's novelist would do him a disservice—the average reader, in or out of a vacation hammock, will wait many months for more sheerly readable book than this. Its author belongs among the truly creative writers of his time—among the novelists capable of dissecting our present-day jitter-and-fritter down to its benzedrine-ridden heart." William Du Bois
+ N Y Times p5 My 30 '48 850w

"As a work of spiritual exploration, Mr. Jackson's novel seems to me rather shallow. It is interesting, however, as an example of the new literary puritanism, with its insistence on the total depravity of human nature and its doctrine that grace consists in recognizing the inherent evil in oneself. We are, it seems, in full retreat from the smug and comfortable eighteenth-century notion that man is a creature of innate goodness and potential prefection." J. M. Lalley
— + New Yorker 24:101 Je 5 '48 1650w

"In the end you will admit that Mr. Jackson has once more shown how well he can explore and illuminate recesses of the mind that ordinarily only the expert in abnormal psychology has probed, and that he can and does do this with all the virtuosity of the expert storyteller. More, Mr. Jackson's novel, sensational though it may be in a sense, is written with a serious purpose. The author sees certain aspects of our modern living which appear to him to need light cast upon them, and he goes at the job with all his very considerable talent, casting that light no matter what it shows. This is a different thing from sensationalism for its own sake. And the difference is what makes all three of Charles Jackson's novels, this one especially, significant commentaries on our society." J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p12 Je 7 '48 850w

"This volume marks a significant shift in Jackson's emphasis; from the overt sickness of self which destroys the individual, he turns in his new work to the hidden sickness which does not destroy, but which colors and twists the lives of supposedly normal people. . . [The] novel is craftsmanlike, tough, exciting. It represents a considerable growth in the author's interests, and in his talent. . . This book is more diffuse than either 'Lost Weekend' or 'Fall of Valor.' . . I do not think it will make the sensation they did. But I found it tremendously absorbing—and disturbing." Lee Rogow
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:16 My 29 '48 800w
— Time 51:108 Je 21 '48 350w

JACKSON, JOHN HAMPDEN. Clemenceau and the Third republic. (Teach yourself history lib) 266p $2 Macmillan

944 Clemenceau, Georges Eugène Benjamin. France—History—Third republic, 1870-1940
[47-15481]

"When Georges Clemenceau died in [1929] in his 89th year, a career ended which was almost synonymous with the life of the Third French Republic. The old man whose first public act was to urge moderation during the bloody reprisals that followed the Paris Commune had been for 60 years a symbol of all that was vital in French Republicanism. The story of his life is therefore inseparable from the history of the French Republic whose end he foresaw. . . Jackson has illustrated the elements in French history that shaped the mind and character of Clemenceau." San Francisco Chronicle

"This is not only a fine study of the most impressive figure in the history of modern France, but, also, an enlightening handbook on French domestic politics of the last hundred years. After reading Mr. Jackson's book one may still disapprove of the French custom of changing their governments more often than Americans change their cars (or would like to, at any rate), but one will at least have grasped the historic reason for the see-sawing of French party combinations." Ernest Pisko
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 S 11 '48 600w

"Mr. Hampden Jackson's study of Clemenceau is a masterpiece. Rarely has a statesman found so brilliant an interpreter in another country." J. L. Hammond
+ Manchester Guardian p3 O 29 '46 300w

"Jackson's eminently readable biography of the Tiger of France has been written for the general public. It is a work that pedants will avoid for it is free from that spirit of carping controversy which is the hallmark of modern writers who must flaunt their scholarship by demolishing all that has been written by the so-called authorities." R. G. C.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p25 S 26 '48 180w

"A very good little book indeed. . . So vivid is the picture and so cunningly is the figure of Clemenceau fitted into the background of eighty years of restless, experimental, frustrated, bitter and ultimately catastrophic French history, that the reader may be left wondering whence comes the tolerance for historians to take many more words to convey much less stimulating impressions." Walter Taplin
+ Spec 177:518 N 15 '46 800w
Times [London] Lit Sup p29 Ja 18 '47 1800w

JACKSON, MRS KATHRYN, and JACKSON, BYRON. Big farmer Big; pictures by Feodor Rojankovsky. [57p] $1 Simon & Schuster
49-134

Two stories about farmers for children. The first is about the big farmer who fed his animals so much that they became too big and unwieldy, and he had to reverse the process to get them back to normal. In a pocket on the main book is a little book about a very small farmer who worked his handkerchief-size farm and swapped his whole crop for a match-box bed.

"There is no doubt that the nursery school contingent and their older brothers and sisters will love it." B. J. Thompson
+ Cath World 168:221 D '48 70w
Kirkus 16:571 N 1 '48 170w

"Entrancing pictures; some will be ruined when book is bound." M. A. Herr
+ Library J 73:1745 D 1 '48 120w

"Both are highly amusing in their use of proportion, which is emphasized by Rojankov-

JACKSON, KATHRYN—Continued
sky's beautifully detailed, bright pictures." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p2 N 14 '48 100w

"Though the trick format of this volume is unfortunate . . . young children are likely to laugh at the story of the huge farmer's troubles, which are caused by his oversize proportions. The Rojankovsky pictures are cheerful."
+ — New Yorker 24:124 D 11 '48 90w

JACKSON, MRS KATHRYN, and JACKSON, BYRON. Tenggren's cowboys and Indians; with pictures by Gustaf Tenggren [52 stories and rhymes]. (Giant golden books) 96p $2 Simon & Schuster
48-8531

"Covers every aspect of the romantic West at the level of a 'First-grade Cowboy.' The stories about Daddy, Jon and Susie, on their real ranch, fix a partial mood of rather cozy home reading out loud. But the best pieces are more adult, about cowboys, buffalo, tornadoes, old prospectors, the new deputy, the first 'iron horse.' " N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R

"Contains the whole vocabulary of totem poles and rodeos, but maybe with just a bit too much prettiness and not enough mystery and salty sweat of the cow country. A book, though, to woo the young from comic strips; full of bears, stampedes, totem poles, branded calves and lazy little Indians." E. E.
+ — Commonweal 49:147 N 19 '48 70w

"Has more merchandise appeal than factual value for schools and libraries."
Kirkus 16:526 O 1 '48 90w

"Unquestionably this will be taken straight to the hearts of all those third-and slow fourth-grade readers who so unceasingly demand more cowboys and Indians. Text, while much better than the Jacksons' Farm Stories, has an uneven quality which may disturb some critics, but the gaiety, life, and variety in the pictures more than compensate." Anne Izard
+ — Library J 73:1388 O 1 '48 80w
New Repub 119:32 D 6 '48 30w

"The Jacksons' unpretentious verses are better than ever: both poem and picture of the Grand Canyon are tops; so are the bits about the tumbleweed and the big funny spread about a rodeo. Cactus, mesas, little dogies, the pack donkey, all breathe of the West. Cattle rustlers, a ghost town, a stage holdup, all are here. Hours of fun for younger boys and girls." L. S. B.
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 N 14 '48 140w

Reviewed by Marjorie Burger
N Y Times p11 D 26 '48 140w

Reviewed by Florence Tapples
San Francisco Chronicle p9 N 14 '48 110w

JACKSON, SHIRLEY (MRS STANLEY EDGAR HYMAN). The road through the wall. 271p $2.75 Farrar, Straus 48-5523

A picture of life in one block of a small California town. On Pepper street some families owned their homes, others rented, but they were all respectable middle-class people. The wall of the title was torn down, and it was then that tragedy struck the little backwater. Most of the life of Pepper street is shown as it affected the children of the section.

Booklist 44:249 Mr 15 '48

"Plaindress presentation of plain people, critical by implication, innuendo. Perhaps too quiet for a popular audience."
Kirkus 15:677 D 15 '47 120w

"Good story, well written." M. P. McKay
+ Library J 73:123 Ja 15 '48 90w

"The children, in their early teens, are not overdone in the precocious slickness of much modern fiction nor are they underdone in the pale pastels of remembered yesterdays—they are simply real. It is the more disappointing, then, that Miss Jackson chooses to climax her story with a suicide. This is not to say that the act itself, by a young boy, is not possible; yet it seems the one false note in a book that otherwise has been written with an unerring sense of values." Andrea Parke
+ — N Y Times p26 F 22 '48 400w

"Her story . . . comes off very well. A climax hung on the gruesome death of two children accounts for some of the story's effectiveness, but most of its success derives from the author's style, a supple and resourceful instrument that makes her shopworn material appear much fresher than it is."
+ New Yorker 23:94 F 21 '48 110w

Reviewed by Edith James
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ap 4 '48 70w

"Miss Jackson's talent is a considerable one. She fits together her jigsaw plot adroitly, and underlines every gesture and phrase with significance. The characters themselves are highly original, each one lucidly perceived and conveyed. . . A minor flaw in the story-telling is that the cast is so populous that the reader occasionally forgets their relationships, but he can use the list of characters on the dust jacket as a guide. Aside from this quibble, the story is a good one, set down with neither hope nor despair." Robert Halsband
+ Sat R of Lit 31:14 F 28 '48 550w

JACOBS, HELEN HULL. Adventure in bluejeans. 216p $2.50 Dodd
47-11471

A story for teen-age girls. The Blake children, sixteen year old Wendy, and her younger brother and sister go to live on a farm in Virginia with their Aunt Sue while Father and Mother are away on a mining trip. Wendy at first is homesick for New York but eventually she finds farm life interesting and exciting, too.

Reviewed by E. E. Frank
Library J 73:49 Ja 1 '48 70w

"A good story that ends in romance for Aunt Sue and Wendy."
+ Sat R of Lit 30:51 N 15 '47 50w

JACOBS, HERBERT AUSTIN. We chose the country. 306p $3 Harper
630.1 Farm life Agr 48-210

The author is a Madison, Wisconsin, newspaper man, who several years ago moved his family out to a farm. His book is an account of the family's experiences tending a garden, raising pigs and cows and chickens, and learning to be real country folk.

Booklist 44:294 My 1 '48
Kirkus 16:101 F 15 '48 150w

" 'We Chose the Country' is the tale of babes in the woods, but since an increasing number of business and professional men are becoming that kind of babes, the Jacobs' story might seem usual. It is unusual because, being a good reporter, the author gives an account of their venture blow by blow. They apparently encountered—and eventually surmounted—every possible bewilderment, frustration and financial squeeze experienced by city men who take up farming. Before others leap into that uncertain life, they might well note what the Jacobs endured." Richardson Wright
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ag 15 '48 480w

Reviewed by Thomas Foster
N Y Times p12 Ag 29 '48 100w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Jl 7 '48 550w
Wis Lib Bul 44:102 My '48

JACOBSON, DAVID J. Affairs of Dame Rumor. 492p $5 Rinehart
301.15 Rumor 48-8964

"A survey of rumor as a technique to spread misinformation in religion, race relations, politics, business and war. Extensive bibliography represents a wide reading. The treatment is journalistic." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:99 N 15 '48

"An interesting project for all cognizant of the festering poison implicit in human credulity."

+ Kirkus 16:388 Ag 1 '48 120w

Reviewed by Scott Adams
Library J 73:1188 S 1 '48 90w

Nation 167:612 N 27 '48 40w

"An invaluable reference work, Jacobson has fascinating material, and he uses it so courageously that the value of what he has to say makes up for the slipshod writing and careless organization. . . Jacobson is not a slick writer; unfortunately, he is occasionally not even smooth. If he had dramatized some of his stories with more skill, the book would be even more powerful. It would be sensational." Mike Detzer

+ — New Repub 120:17 Ja 10 '49 1100w

"Mr. Jacobson's book bears to 'The Golden Bough' about the relation that the 'Health Hints' column in a country weekly bears to the Journal of the American Medical Association. Bear in mind that the 'Health Hints' are by no means altogether wrong. On the contrary, most of them are perfectly sound. But they don't get very far. So with the material Mr. Jacobson has assembled—much of it is true enough, but that he has understood its real significance is open to question." G. W. Johnson

— + N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 O 31 '48 550w

Reviewed by Rex Lardner
N Y Times p23 Ja 16 '49 200w

"The book is both entertaining and useful."
+ New Yorker 24:131 O 23 '48 100w

Reviewed by L. W. Doob
— Sat R of Lit 31:27 D 4 '48 390w

JACOBY, OSWALD. On gin rummy; an all-American roundup. 241p il $2.25 Holt

795.41 Gin rummy (game) 47-31458

"Very clear directions for playing gin are given in separate sections for the beginner, the average player, and the expert. Written with enthusiasm by Jacoby, Graham Baker, and 10 avid players in as many U.S. cities, who tell how the game is played in their towns. Twenty-six pages are devoted to the basic laws. No index." Booklist

Booklist 44:102 N 15 '47

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '48

Kirkus 15:421 Ag 1 '47 70w

Reviewed by Irving Babow
San Francisco Chronicle p15 Mr 14 '48 500w

JAEGER, ELLSWORTH. Tracks and trailcraft [il. by the author]. 381p $3.95 Macmillan

796.545 Tracking and trailing 48-7888

Descriptions of the tracks left by about 300 animals, birds, insects, reptiles, etc. Contains information on tracking, animal scent trails, snowshoeing, and even fossil tracks. Each track is illustrated with an easy-to-identify drawing. Index.

Booklist 45:9 S 1 '48

"Mr. Jaeger is a most accomplished draughtsman, and the detail and accuracy of every one of the thousands of illustrations are amazing. This is certainly the book of the year for anybody and everybody over eighteen months, or under eighty, a book to clutch and keep, and never, even for a moment, to be without." Anne Fremantle

+ Commonweal 48:386 Jl 30 '48 130w

"A comprehensive and fascinating book on outdoor life, amplified by many detailed line drawings." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 24:378 S '48 90w

"A thorough and comprehensive treatment."
+ Kirkus 16:140 Mr 1 '48 130w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 73:1196 S 1 '48 40w

"An informative, constantly amusing study of the little-known autographs of man and his fellow-creatures. . . It is difficult to say whether the grown-up or youngster will find the most adventure in 'Tracks and Trailcraft.' Mr. Jaeger has so arranged his material that the amateur can start a fascinating game, if he will, in a backyard in Greenwich Village or the home of the Dodgers or by a California swimming pool." T. S. Sweedy

+ N Y Times p36 S 12 '48 330w

JAGENDORF, MORITZ ADOLPH. New England bean-pot; American folk stories to read and to tell; il. by Donald McKay; introd. by B. A. Botkin. 272p $2.50 Vanguard

398 Folklore—New England 48-9145

Collection of New England tales of especial interest to storytellers and folk tale collectors. The first volume of a projected series of regional folk tales. For grades five to eight.

Booklist 45:108 N 15 '48

"Folk tale collectors, fairy tale readers, and those who like the folk quality with the dour, dry humor of New England, will find their unique flavor caught here."

+ Kirkus 16:436 S 1 '48 70w

"Excellent collection of 46 New England folk tales." Clara Adams

+ Library J 73:1524 O 15 '48 100w

"Since folktales are mainly passed along by word of mouth, treasured and swapped by old people in various regions, they are in danger of being lost forever in this age of radio serials and comics. We owe thanks to a scholar like Mr. Jagendorf for preserving some of them in his 'Bean-Pot.' Unfortunately, boys and girls old enough to read the stories themselves will consider them too brief, too episodic, and will lay down the spoon after a sampling of the beans." M. E.

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 N 14 '48 240w

"Some of these stories seem to have been stretched beyond their natural limits and at times a too-literary style is at odds with the pithy, poker-faced humor of the Yankee. But there are merry stories of the devil confounded, discomfited witch-hunters, sailors and pirates which have not hitherto appeared in juvenile collections and for which we are the richer. Donald McKay has illustrated them with imagination and skill." E. L. B.

+ N Y Times p3 N 14 '48 140w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 32:34 Ja 8 '49 200w

JAMES, HENRY. Art of fiction, and other essays; with an introd. by Morris Roberts. 240p $3.75 Oxford

814 Fiction—History and criticism 48-6136

"Eleven essays selected from Partial Portraits, Essays in London and Elsewhere and Notes on Novelists. Morris Roberts, Assistant Professor of English at Brooklyn College and author of Henry James Criticism, contributes a brief introduction analyzing James's critical theory. The articles reprinted here are concerned primarily with the novel; included are essays on Balzac, Maupassant, Flaubert, Zola, Trollope and Turgenieff." Library J

Booklist 45:29 S 15 '48

Reviewed by David Burnham
Commonweal 48:106 My 14 '48 2000w

"The collection, although not the complete edition of James' critical writing for which there would now seem to be a ready public, is still a valuable companion volume to the recently published Notebooks." H. W. Hart

+ — Library J 73:555 Ap 1 '48 100w

Reviewed by Willard Thorp
New Eng Q 21:415 S '48 550w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
New Repub 119:24 Jl 5 '48 90w

Reviewed by F. W. Dupee
N Y Times p33 My 23 '48 700w

JAMES, HENRY—Continued

"Another example of the unsatisfactory, piecemeal way in which Henry James is being reprinted. James's literary criticism covered a great deal of ground, and one would like to have an omnibus of it. Professor Morris Roberts, the editor of this volume, has made a good enough selection . . . but it includes only eleven essays out of the sixty contained in the volumes published by James."

New Yorker 24:113 My 8 '48 120w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles
San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 23 '48 150w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 31:29 My 15 '48 230w

Reviewed by Robin King
Spec 182:24 Ja 7 '49 900w

JAMES, HENRY. Notebooks; ed. by F. O. Matthiessen and Kenneth B. Murdock. 425p $6 Oxford

813 47-11461

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

Reviewed by Leon Edel
Atlantic 182:98 S '48 480w

"In the whole history of fiction there can be few documents more illuminating to the student of letters, or, one would suppose, more inciting to the imaginative writer than this rich collection of Henry James's Notebooks. Strictly speaking, there is surely no other document quite comparable to it; Dostoevsky's notebooks, Flaubert's letters, and Hawthorne's journals naturally occur to one's mind as parallels, and in all these there are qualities of interest which one misses in this volume. But of none of them can one say, as one can of this, that it furnishes us with something very like the whole private history of a writer's creative life during a period of more than thirty years, from a point somewhat earlier than mid-career on to very nearly the end." Newton Arvin

+ New Eng Q 21:110 Mr '48 700w

Reviewed by V. S. Pritchett
New Statesman & Nation 36:285 O 2 '48 1850w

Reviewed by H. S. Canby
Sat R of Lit 31:9 Ja 24 '48 1100w

Reviewed by Bonamy Dobrée
Spec 181:274 Ag 27 '48 800w

Times [London] Lit Sup p540 S 25 '48 1650w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:132 Je '48 320w

"To the reader who has but sampled James's works the Notebooks are not only intelligible but packed with suggestion. But their full worth is inevitably reserved for those to whom 'The Spoils of Poynton,' 'What Maisie Knew' and 'The Ambassadors' are as familiar as the shores of Windermere were to Wordsworth. For the three novels mentioned the Notebooks are particularly illuminating. . . The editors of the Notebooks are helpful without becoming obtrusive." E. K. Brown

+ Yale R n s 37:530 spring '48 950w

JAMES, HENRY. The other house; with an introd. by Leon Edel. 228p $3 New directions

48-7500

"A reprint of one of the novels of James's middle period. The story, which centers around the murder of a little girl, has something in common with 'The Turn of the Screw' and 'What Maisie Knew.' The book is a novelized version of an unproduced play, and there is an introduction by Leon Edel, the chief authority on James's dramatic work, who believes that in drawing the figure of the murderess, James was influenced by the heroines of Ibsen." New Yorker

Booklist 45:141 D 15 '48

"Leon Edel, who is writing what should be a very important book on James as a dramatist, has prepared an excellent critical and historical introduction to this reprint. . . 'The Other House' is a monument to defeated hopes, the only immediately accessible evidence of James's attempts to write for the stage. It is not successful as a novel, nor, I think, would it have been successful as a play. Reading this book, so patently a play with descriptive and reflective passages added later, one begins to understand why 'Guy Domvile' was a failure." Ernest Jones

Nation 167:643 D 4 '48 500w

"Because of its close association with James's work for the theatre, illustrating the effects of that practice in his fiction, and because its action affords an extreme example of James's fascination by brutality and violence, The Other House is particularly interesting and would repay close examination." John Farrelly

+ New Repub 119:24 Jl 5 '48 150w

Reviewed by Richard Lister
New Statesman & Nation 36:78 Jl 24 '48 1300w

New Yorker 34:78 Ag 21 '48 90w

San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ag 1 '48 150w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 31:32 S 18 '48 20w

JAMES, HENRY. Princess Casamassima; with an introd. by Lionel Trilling. 2v $6 Macmillan

48-6885

A new two-volume edition of a novel which has been out of print since 1908. There is a critical introduction by Lionel Trilling.

Booklist 45:141 D 15 '48

"In the development of his theme, James writes in a style remarkably free of the qualifying involutions of his mature manner, and 'the social texture of the novel is'—to use Trilling's words—'grainy and knotted with practicality and detail.' For these two reasons the principal characters emerge as remarkably real and persuasive symbolic types." J. C. Garrett

+ Canadian Forum 28:186 N '48 700w

"'The Princess Casamassima' is rich fare; it has the complexity of any fiction which acknowledges all the possibilities of behavior. But as Lionel Trilling points out, James's novel is fundamentally clear and simple. Its superiority over most sociological or 'realistic' fiction consists in this very simplicity." Richard Chase

+ Nation 166:695 Je 19 '48 1250w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
New Repub 119:25 Jl 5 '48 850w

"When this book was first published in 1896 it was greeted with cries of derision by the British press and was almost as savagely attacked by American reviewers. Yet, as Lionel Trilling points out in his almost impeccable introduction to this new edition, it is of all the novels by James the one most likely to appeal to the contemporary general reader, and one which even at the time of its original publication had many of the ingredients of a popular success. If the plot has certain highly melodramatic elements, the late nineteenth-century reader was more than accustomed to that; the prose is of an unusual simplicity for James and the characters are drawn in certain of their aspects with a conciseness which for James is almost vulgar. . . Both Mr. Trilling and the publisher should be very proud of this book." Anthony Bower

+ N Y Times p21 Jl 11 '48 900w

"One of James's most dramatic and most important works of fiction. It is also one of his 'easiest' books—one of the least entangled, that is, in that famous convoluted style."

+ New Yorker 34:72 Ag 7 '48 140w

"'The Princess Casamassima' is not one of the dated novels and will appeal to present day readers. . . The two volumes are of that desirable size suitable for carrying in purse or pocket and light to the hand for bed reading." Jane Voiles

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 23 '48 170w

"This novel, which has been comparatively little read, exhibits powers of which James chose to make scant use. It incorporates an amount of bone, blood, and sinew that one does not find in the author's more famous works. . . And yet, although it remains interesting . . . the novel is, I think, a partial failure. The figure of the princess becomes ever vaguer as the pages pass; Paul Muniment, so promising, shrinks in stature; the crucial struggle in the breast of the revolutionary hero lacks intensity —he seems to drift towards his end; and, to sum up, the story is most languid just when it should be most compelling. Mr. Trilling does not agree; and I recommend his intelligent, persuasive arguments for the defense." B. R. Redman

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:25 Je 12 '48 400w

"What saves this colossal structure of melodrama and coincidence from toppling is largely James's style, at once dense and gracious, his fine sense of theater whenever his characters enter a room or open a conversation. The women in this novel are as unsuccessful as Joseph Conrad's, yet as symbols they are impressive. James had the kind of imagination that gives an electric-shock quality to subtle disclosures of the clash of personality and the unfolding of character. These great talents make the Princess Casamassima a real literary experience even, or especially, for those who find him a feeble sociologist."

Time 51:118 My 17 '48 650w

JAMES, HENRY. Scenic art; notes on acting and the drama, 1872-1901; ed. with an introd. and notes by Allan Wade. 384p $4.50 Rutgers univ. press

792 Drama. Acting 48-3626

A collection of Henry James's reviews of plays, actors, and playwrights, written for the newspapers between 1872 and 1901. Altho there are twenty-nine essays only six have been previously printed. An appendix gives brief biographical sketches for the people included. Index.

Booklist 45:28 S 15 '48

"Reading any accumulation of present-day stage reviews, one finds one can learn all about the man writing, but little about the theater at all. . . James's method is different: he is hard, he is extremely witty, he is honestly experienced, but most of all, he describes. It is unquestionably his passion and respect for the art of acting which enables him so perfectly to reproduce for the reader the effect of the play: its constructed airs, its fable, its opportunities for gesture, picture, speech and movement. . . The book is so well planned, it is immediately possible to match the pieces to the major James works under way at the time." Kappo Phelan

+ Commonweal 48:378 Jl 30 '48 750w

Current Hist 15:39 Jl '48 30w

"Allan Wade's editing and collecting of James's essays on the theatre is excellent, and is a real contribution to theatre history. This volume will be wanted for all theatre and general literature collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 73:816 My 15 '48 40w

"Henry James's admirably edited notes on the acting and drama of his time . . . are a valuable, indeed a delightful, addition to the meager library of enduring theatre criticism in the English language." Harold Clurman

+ New Repub 118:26 Je 28 '48 1050w

Reviewed by Lloyd Morris

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Jl 25 '48 850w

"The present collection is a credit not only to James but to his editor, a man of long experience in the British theatre, whose industry unearthed most of these anonymous pieces from their hiding places in the periodical files of the British Museum. 'The Scenic Art' is an excellent example of critical journalism, and of course of great interest to readers of James. But it will have an even wider appeal to all students and lovers of the theatre and the drama." A. S. Downer

+ N Y Times p33 My 23 '48 650w

"An interesting and valuable volume."

+ New Yorker 24:69 Jl 10 '48 140w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles

San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 23 '48 170w

"It is a very valuable book for those interested in James's critical opinions, especially since it covers the contemporary theatre, including the Scandinavian." H. S. Canby

+ Sat R of Lit 31:15 My 29 '48 180w

Reviewed by John Gassner

+ Theatre Arts 32:98 Ag '48 800w

JAMES, HUBERT MAXWELL, and others, eds. Theory of servomechanisms [under the supervision of the] Office of scientific research and development, Nat. defense research Committee. (Mass. inst. of technology. Radiation laboratory. Radiation laboratory ser) 375p il $5 McGraw

621.8 Servomechanisms 48-483

"A presentation and extension of the standard theory of servomechanism design and an account of a new technique. Part I deals with frequency-response techniques of servomechanism design. The required mathematical background is summarized and applications are described. Part II presents a new design technique, which depends upon minimization of the rms error with which the mechanism produces the desired result, in the presence of electrical noise and other disturbances. Book closes with an account of the application of these techniques to servomechanisms operating with pulsed data." (Library J) Index.

Library J 73:655 Ap 15 '48 100w

"This volume covers the greatest breadth of subject matter in this field yet attempted in one volume and the material is almost too severely condensed for maximum usefulness. The treatment of servomechanism theory here is highly mathematical, and leans toward presenting the subject in terms more familiar to the communication engineer than to one versed in general electro-mechanical theory. . . The particular importance of this volume lies in its introduction to the statistical method of servo theory. . . Like all books that lean heavily on mathematics when explaining the behavior of servomechanisms, linearity in the main components is assumed. Non-linear devices are still in need of study."

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:231 Je '48 360w

JAMES, THOMAS HOWARD, and HIGGINS, GEORGE CLINTON. Fundamentals of photographic theory. 286p il $3.50 Wiley

770 Photography 48-5467

"This book is concerned only with the basic photographic process, that which involves the use of a silver salt as a light-sensitive material. Light-sensitive dyes, cameras, and lenses are mentioned only incidentally. It will be of value as an introductory work for college students, advanced amateurs, and persons with a professional interest in the physics and chemistry of photography. The treatment assumes that the reader will have a fair knowledge of basic physics and chemistry. The authors are on the staff of the Eastman Kodak Company's research laboratories." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by G. S. Forbes

Am Chem Soc J 70:2300 Je '48 200w

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 73:202 F 1 '48 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:20 Ja '48

JAMESON, STORM (MRS GUY CHAPMAN). Black laurel. 338p $3 Macmillan

48-6855

The place is the British Zone of Berlin in the first months of the occupation. "A German aristocrat, moving over his polished mosaic floors, thinks only of snatching back part of his wealth and power. A younger man, scarred from forehead to chin, dreams incoherently of revenge. A schemer gambles on the Russians. An innocent Jewish art expert is a pathetic victim. Only one great scholar, with a gothic face, rises above selfishness and nationalism. There is hope also in the lovely German girl who embraces the warmth of life." (Publisher's note)

JAMESON, STORM—Continued
Booklist 44:313 My 15 '48

Christian Science Monitor p16 My 22 '48 450w

"The chief value of this book lies, not in the story, which fails to gather the momentum for which the reader is prepared, but in the photographic sense it gives of civilization caught at a moment of lowest ebb in ravished Germany. . . But the story itself limps and halts, in the method of telling, so that it makes difficult reading, lacks clarity of execution."
+ — Kirkus 16:222 My 1 '48 170w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse
Manchester Guardian p3 F 27 '48 180w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
New Repub 118:32 My 17 '48 320w

"Miss Jameson tells several good and very human individual stories, nicely integrated with her main theme. And she has done a brilliant job of portraying certain facets of life in Berlin during the occupation. . . There is one odd omission in Miss Jameson's fictional study of the forces now at work to capture the future, and that is the United States. The omission may be technically justified because 'Black Laurel' is set in the British zone. . . But except for a bumbling, well wishing American civilian named Mr. Scorel, who is helpful in a small way . . . and may well stand, somewhat sardonically for America, the gigantic United States, so vitally engaged at the moment in working to realign the contemporary world in order to insure the future, simply does not exist in 'The Black Laurel.' Strange?" F. H. Bullock
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ap 25 '48 900w

"The fascination of eyewitness reportage makes up in part for the slow progress of the narrative and the occasional weakness of the character's motivations. Many of the characters who weave in and out of this narrative we seem to have met before between the covers of books. . . They are not so much human beings as the distilled essences of Miss Jameson's clear and humane reasoning." Nona Balakian
+ — N Y Times p16 My 16 '48 800w

"This is certainly one of the most readable and thoughtful of the several novels of its kind that have recently appeared, but like the rest it is confused and somewhat obscure, as if everyone, conquerors and conquered, walked in the shadow of destruction and hopelessness, only waiting for the approaching final storm to obliterate the ruined cities and blacken the earth itself." Harrison Smith
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:22 My 1 '48 950w

"Fine but confused new novel. . . Generous and impassioned as her writing never fails to be, the book is one long ache of suffering and frustration. Faces twitch, nerves scream, good intentions (and they are few) miscarry, and the conquerors are as apologetic as the conquered. . . Much of her dialogue is without sign-posts, and it is exceedingly hard to make out who is speaking. Miss Jameson is like an impatient hostess with a crowded party, shoving the newcomer without introduction into the turmoil and leaving him to fend for himself. It will be a disaster if readers allow this carelessness to put them off, for The Black Laurel is one of those rare books which add to our knowledge of humanity, and its best passages glow with understanding and compassion." L. A. G. Strong
+ — Spec 180:386 Mr 26 '48 500w

"The real trouble is that none of the large cast of English and Germans comes alive and interest remains unfocused in a field which is inevitably somewhat grey. The prevailing devitalization seems to have infected Miss Jameson's pen."
— Times [London] Lit Sup p133 Mr 6 '48 270w

JARRELL, RANDALL. Losses. 68p $2 Harcourt
811 48-1930

The third volume of verse by the author of Little Friend, Little Friend and Blood for a Stranger (Book Review Digest 1945 and 1942) contains thirty new poems and a long narrative poem from an earlier period. Most of the poems are about the war. The poet has included factual notes at the end of the book.

Reviewed by Peter Viereck
Atlantic 182:95 N '48 250w

Booklist 44:310 My 15 '48

Reviewed by Gerald McDonald
Library J 73:948 Je 15 '48 70w

Reviewed by Stephen Spender
Nation 166:475 My 1 '48 1550w

"Deserves far more extended analysis than I can give it here. I know of very little poetry that is more alive, resilient and artistically awake; Jarrell's rhetorical capacity is large, and I believe he is the only poet of his generation who has been able to assimilate, use and thoroughly emerge from the bedazzlements of Auden's verse." Robert Fitzgerald
+ New Repub 118:33 Ap 26 '48 290w

Reviewed by M. L. Rosenthal
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 N 28 '48 650w

"As war poetry it is of signal importance: one must go back to Whitman for a force comparable to the bitter, profound sense of the best of these pieces: 'Burning the Letters,' for example, and 'The Dead Wingman,' and 'Eighth Air Force.' . . The greater part of these poems deal with the war, and they are by far the best. The civilian poems, if one may call them that, are less assured. . . None of these weaknesses is apparent in the poems which make 'Losses' the memorable book it is. There is not a trace of uncertainty, of false sentiment, of queer tone in 'Burning the Letter'—a fine poem, perhaps the finest in the book." Dudley Fitts
+ — N Y Times p6 Mr 28 '48 750w

"Randall Jarrell, in his new book . . . lacks neither theme nor temperament. He is learned and intelligent, and he operates well outside the shadow of the artificiality that we might call Middle Twentieth Century Anglo-American Poetics." Louise Bogan
+ New Yorker 24:117 My 15 '48 360w

"Where Mr. Jarrell is influenced by Robert Frost, a poet to whom he has paid critical tribute, his work reveals a simple, old-fashioned nostalgia and these poems work successfully at a humble magnitude. . . But, it should be noticed, the final stanza effects an overtly moral dimension similar to that in Hardy's Satires of Circumstance. For, as a matter of fact, Mr. Jarrell is more obligated to Hardy's small dramatic framework of incident than he is to Browning's interest in character or Frost's effectively restrained sermonizing. Still, when he remembers the deceptively homely but polished verse of Frost, he can achieve a pleasant simplicity." W. S. Graham
+ — Poetry 72:302 S '48 1500w

Discussion by Hayden Carruth
Poetry 72:307 S '48 1200w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 13 '48 140w

"A few of [Jarrell's] new poems are whacking failures. But a few of them belong to that order of writing in which profound things are said, profound spells cast, with the greatest economy of means. In 'Moving' and 'Lady Bates,' as in 'Eighth Air Force' and 'Stalag Luft,' his language is like a bright and beautifully handled lancet. He uses it, with the abstract compassion of a surgeon, to communicate effects of true terror."
Time 51:105 Ap 26 '48 900w

Reviewed by L. L. Martz
Yale R n s 38:150 autumn '48 250w

JARVIS, JOSE ANTONIO, and MARTIN, RUFUS. Virgin Islands picture book. 113p il $2.50 Dorrance
917.297 Virgin Islands—Description and travel 48-5234

"Views and descriptions of Uncle Sam's tropical islands. . . The volume is a guidebook as well as a picture gallery. It gives much information that will be useful to the tourist when he gets there, as well as the kind that will move him to go—or at least to want to go. The authors make no serious effort to discuss the real economic problems of the natives and residents, and are content to depict the region as the island paradise that it doubtless is, for visitors amply supplied with the circulating medium." Christian Century

Christian Century 65:111 Ja 28 '48 140w

Reviewed by G. E. Lyon

Springf'd Republican p10B Je 27 '48 130w

JASPERS, KARL. Question of German guilt; tr. by E. B. Ashton. 123p $2 Dial press

940.5314443 Reconstruction (1939-)—Germany 48-5014

An analysis of German guilt adapted from the author's lectures as professor of philosophy at Heidelberg University. Four types of guilt are discussed: criminal, political, moral and metaphysical.

Booklist 44:266 Ap 1 '48

"Though one may cavil at Jaspers's terminology, one must respect the profundity of his approach to the problem and his freedom from all evasions. He is concerned to give the German conscience no chance of denying special responsibilities for the Nazi evil, even while being forced, as any honest student would be, to point to the farther reaches of guilt beyond Germany. If Barraclough is more severe in his judgments upon the non-German world, and Jaspers more severe upon Germany, this contrast helps to prove the moral integrity of both." Reinhold Niebuhr

+ — Nation 167:50 Jl 10 '48 650w

"The question of German guilt is written on a high plane. So high, indeed that everything that people have done, are doing, and should do seems out of sight. All that people seem to do is think—think in abstractions, lifeless categories and irresponsible classifications of responsibility." Frederic Wertham

— New Repub 118:27 Ja 19 '48 950w

"It may be possible to criticise some of Jasper's phraseology, but not his courage, his honesty and his aims." Shepard Stone

N Y Times p3 F 8 '48 1200w

New Yorker 23:86 F 7 '48 110w

Reviewed by R. G. Colodny

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Mr 14 '48 210w

JAY, JOHN CLARKSON. Skiing the Americas. 257p il $4.95 Macmillan

796.93 Skis and ski running 48-5053

An American ski expert describes the fun of skiing in North and South America, and gives an account of the experiences a skier would have in the various resorts. Illustrated with photographs taken by the author.

Booklist 44:278 Ap 15 '48

Kirkus 15:524 S 15 '47 80w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson

Library J 73:477 Mr 15 '48 70w

"Surely one of the most interesting and informative [books] to appear in ski circles the past decade. . . Throughout the book, the pace is a swift one. And there are more than 100 excellent photographs culled from the author's huge collection. . . In fact, Jay has done a wonderful job in making the reader a part of his trips. . . His use of the English language is just as sharp and focused as his kodachrome films." Frank Elkins

+ N Y Times p23 Ja 18 '48 450w

"Skiers will derive a good deal of pleasure reading this book, and I am quite sure that many a reader who never has tempted fate by attaching himself to a pair of hickory boards will fall an easy prey to John Jay's delightful and typically dry Yankee humor." Otto Lang

+ Sat R of Lit 31:30 F 7 '48 320w

JAYNE, MRS MARY (SALKELD-ROBINSON) (MARY BREARLEY, pseud). Hugo Gurgeny, prisoner of the Lisbon inquisition. 176p il $3.50 Yale univ. press

B or 92 Gurgeny, Hugo A48-8773

The story of the imprisonment of Hugo Gurgeny, British merchant, in Lisbon in 1605-1608. The methods of the Inquisition and Gurgeny's later conversion to Catholicism are stressed. Bibliography and manuscript sources. No index.

"Most readers will find the main value of the book in its display of the Inquisition in action, virtually independent of control by either church or state. The book has importance to a lesser degree as a partial measurement, from Lisbon, of some of the dominant currents of thought in early seventeenth century Europe. The personality and activities of Hugo Gurgeny have otherwise little real interest for the historian, however intriguing they may be made to appear by a painstaking author working skillfully with fragmentary sources." S. R. Packard

+ Am Hist R 54:180 O '48 320w

Current Hist 14:348 Je '48 20w

"The account itself is superlatively well written, the suspense as to Gurgeny's fate more compelling than that aroused by most novels. A university publication (and I say this with no disrespect for the publishing activities of universities), a drab jacket, a slightly forbidding appearance of the external apparatus of Ph.D. scholarship—who would expect that in such a dull-looking oyster-shell such a pearl could be encountered? This reviewer is happy to set it down as one of the rare pleasures associated with book-reviewing." B. D. Wolfe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Ag 1 '48 700w

"Praise is due to Miss Brearley for the manner in which the tale is presented. She is no modern historical scribbler to palm off the fanciful flowers of her imagination as a substitute for solid and scholarly research. When, now and again, she makes use of her imaginative powers . . . her style is at once vivid and restrained."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p4 Ja 3 '48 900w

JEANNERET-GRIS, CHARLES EDOUARD (LE CORBUSIER, pseud). Concerning town planning; tr. by Clive Entwistle from the French. 127p il $2.75 Yale univ. press

711 City planning 48-8330

Eighteen questions on town planning answered by a series of discourses on his town-planning principles by the Swiss-French architect. During the process he shows past and present practices of town planning and explains what the science could do for the modern world. Illustrated with the author's characteristic drawings.

Booklist 45:62 O 15 '48

"Thanks to the changing scene, 'Concerning Town Planning' is better attuned to reality than any of Le Corbusier's previous books. As the bulk of it was written in response to a searching, explicit, eighteen-point questionnaire, it is far more cogent, far less 'lyrical,' than most of his writings, without any loss in liveliness. Like Sir Patrick Geddes, Le Corbusier is 'Old High Explosive' yet. Pleasantly illustrated with sixty-seven spirited drawings, the book provides food for thought with the right proportion of cocktails." Albert Guerard, Sr.

+ — Nation 167:320 S 18 '48 950w

Times [London] Lit Sup p536 O 18 '47 1350w

Reviewed by C. H. Sawyer

Yale R n s 38:359 winter '49 550w

JEANNERET-GRIS, CHARLES EDOUARD (LE CORBUSIER, pseud). Le Corbusier, architect, painter, writer; ed. by Stamo Papadaki; with essays by Joseph Hudnut [and others]. 152p il $7.50 Macmillan

720.81 48-2300

"The book of essays by Hudnut, Giedion, Leger, Sert and Soby, and edited by Stamo

JEANNERET-GRIS, C. E.—Continued
Papadaki, separately considers Le Corbusier as architect, town-planner, painter and (with four excerpts from his earlier publications) as writer." (N Y Times) Bibliography.

Booklist 44:333 Je 1 '48

Reviewed by Wayne Andrews
Commonweal 48:214 Je 11 '48 260w

"Important basic volume." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 73:1195 S 1 '48 150w

"Le Corbusier's various activities are objectively and lucidly related to his time as well as to themselves. The use of half-tone engravings results in a quality of reproduction not achieved by the more economical offset process of 'New World of Space.' Useful reference lists appear in both books, but are more complete in the latter." B. H. Hayes
+ N Y Times p5 My 9 '48 200w

"We may question whether future generations will support entirely Mr. Soby's warm appraisal of Le Corbusier, the painter. It seems probable that the primary importance of this continuing experience as a painter, for him as well as for us, is as an experimental laboratory for the maintenance and enrichment of his imaginative vision." C. H. Sawyer
Yale R n s 38:358 winter '49 350w

JEANNERET-GRIS, CHARLES EDOUARD (LE CORBUSIER, pseud). New world of space. 128p il $6 Harcourt

720 Paintings. Architecture, Modern 48-6473

A record in words and pictures by the author explaining his work in painting, architecture and city planning.

Reviewed by Wayne Andrews
Commonweal 48:214 Je 11 '48 160w

Kirkus 16:212 Ap 15 '48 100w

"Earlier books difficult to obtain; recommended." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 73:1195 S 1 '48 130w

"The slim but handsome book is a convenient guide to Le Corbusier's manifold activities." Albert Guerard
Nation 166:480 My 1 '48 550w

"A chronological arrangement of illustrations allows the reader to compare the development of painting and architecture side by side, but the book lacks sufficient explanatory material. The want of an index or a table of contents coupled with the fact that more than a hundred pages are unnumbered renders it awkward for reference." B. H. Hayes
N Y Times p5 My 9 '48 450w

New Yorker 24:115 Ap 17 '48 80w

Reviewed by J. T. Soby
Sat R of Lit 31:44 O 9 '48 40w

"While 'New World of Space' purports to illustrate the underlying concept 'which Le Corbusier, now looking back, believes to be the basis of his creed,' it assumes more the nature of an anthology. Brief excerpts from his earlier writing are interspersed with comment written especially for this volume. Its chief merit, however, lies in the well-selected series of illustrations, arranged in chronological order of completed work and projects in architecture, planning, and painting." C. H. Sawyer
+ Yale R n s 38:358 winter '49 280w

JEANS, SIR JAMES HOPWOOD. Growth of physical science. 364p il $4 Macmillan (for the Cambridge univ. press)

509 Science—History
48-1167

"The last book by the late British scientist author of The Universe Around Us. . . This is a history of the development of theories and scientific discoveries from Babylonian mathematics to today's atomic structures. Wonders of science interpreted for the layman." (Library J) Index.

"The book is recommended for readers at the junior college level or better, who have had a good basic scientific training. It provides a pleasant, colorful account of the way in which the present-day astronomical and physical concepts have been brought into being by the labors and thoughts of many generations of gifted, nonprofit-seeking scientists and philosophers." R. E. Oesper
+ Chem & Eng N 26:1656 My 31 '48 400w

"A felicitous style makes it as easy to read as such a book can be."
+ Christian Century 65:294 Mr 17 '48 60w

Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 22 '48 700w

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '48

Current Hist 14:296 My '48 30w

"The use of a more open format and a greater number of illustrations would have helped the general reader but even with its tight, British layout, the book should prove interesting and useful to anyone with a background in high-school physics and mathematics. Its organization and index will make it particularly useful for quick reference in libraries."
+ Kirkus 16:98 F 15 '48 160w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
+ Library J 73:45 Ja 1 '48 50w

Manchester Guardian p3 N 29 '47 310w

"If one falls into step with Jeans this long walk will for most of its way be very rewarding. The danger in unravelling thus so complex a story is that it may be difficult to keep the vital connections clear and to throw into sufficient relief the great succession of basic theory, experiment and profound generalisation which tower along the route. It is only at the end, in his summary of the advances made in 1887-1946, that Jeans seems to get short of wind." Barrington Gates
+ — New Statesman & Nation 34:397 N 15 '47 550w

"This last book by Sir James Jeans, published eighteen months after his death, is an excellent introduction to his whole masterly series of books on the universe of stars and atoms. . . It is probably the most readable textbook of physics now published. . . The only disappointing chapter fills the last 70 pages with a too brief sketch of the era since 1887. . . One could wish that here Jeans could have portrayed and judged the personalities and ideas that he himself had known with the same skill and charm that make the earlier centuries come so vividly to life." Gerald Wendt
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Mr 7 '48 650w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:78 S '48

Reviewed by Ernest Nagel
N Y Times p4 Mr 14 '48 1000w

"Sir James was a gifted writer as well as a great physicist and had a marked talent for explaining tough propositions in simple terms, but readers lacking a pretty thorough understanding of scientific principles are going to find the sledding hard."
+ — New Yorker 24:90 Mr 27 '48 80w

Reviewed by R. J. Colodny
San Francisco Chronicle p23 My 2 '48 250w

"Jeans has, as usual, done a splendid job from my parochial standpoint. He was a scientist, and a great one. He also had the gift of being able to write in a clear and interesting way. His interests were more eclectic than those of most scientists of our day, and he was therefore better able to generalize for the non-specialist than most of the other scientists of his generation could do. . . I have been reduced to criticizing this book from a narrow, professional standpoint. I strongly recommend that anyone interested in science read it for himself. It has rich rewards, and not the least of these is that it is completely reliable." L. N. Ridenour
+ Sat R of Lit 31:25 Mr 27 '48 700w

School & Society 67:191 Mr 6 '48 20w

"Sir James's lucidity of writing and skill in devising apt illustrations of difficult ideas are well known, and these qualities are no less useful in depicting the course of development of science than in elucidating the complexities of modern physical theory in which his success has been so marked. They are indeed to be found here. . . This is finely done, but it is unpleasant to have to add that the defects of the book are at least as conspicuous as its merits. . . It would have been a pleasure to welcome a worthy conclusion to a noteworthy scientific life, but it would be improper to recommend the book to any who want more than a very broad picture of the way in which science has grown from small beginnings to its present dimensions." Herbert Dingle

— + Spec 179:746 D 12 '47 650w

"The layman of science will find here the same skill in the simple description of difficult matters that marked the author's earlier books, and the same power of carrying his readers along with him. The opening paragraphs compel an interest that is maintained to the last page."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p650 D 13 '47 1200w

JEFFERIES, RICHARD. Old house at Coate, and other hitherto unpublished essays; ed. with an introd. and notes by Samuel J. Looker; wood engravings by Agnes Miller Parker. 215p $3.75 Harvard univ. press

574.04 Nature. England—Description and travel 48-9371

A collection of hitherto unpublished essays by the English nature lover, Richard Jefferies; with a fragment of autobiography, which also appears here for the first time. The editor has been collecting Jefferies items for over forty years. He provides some biographical notes on Jefferies in an appendix. List of the chief works of Richard Jefferies. Bibliography.

Booklist 45:131 D 15 '48

"Will delight the general reader." H. I'A. F.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 27 '48 90w

"The centenary of Richard Jefferies, one of England's great writers on country matters, is fitly celebrated by [this] publication."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 Ja 16 '49 290w

Reviewed by D. A. Stauffer
N Y Times p4 D 12 '48 700w

JEFFERS, ROBINSON. The double axe and other poems. 149p $2.75 Random house

811 48-7501

This, the author's first published volume of poems since 1941, contains a long narrative poem, The Double Axe, and twenty-seven shorter poems. In his preface Jeffers says: "Burden of The Double Axe, as of some previous work of mine, is to present a certain philosophical attitude, which might be called Inhumanism, a shifting of emphasis and significance from man to not-man; the rejection of human solipsism and recognition of the trans-human magnificence. . . The shorter poems that tail the book are expressions, in their different ways, of the same attitude." (Pref.)

Kirkus 16:276 Je 1 '48 310w

Reviewed by Gerald McDonald
Library J 73:948 Je 15 '48 100w

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries
Nation 167:349 S 25 '48 450w

"The attitude is childish and childishly easy; once assumed, it will turn out a Jeffers lyric an hour for anyone who wants to try it, but it is a sorry exhibition for a responsible poet to have made." Robert Fitzgerald
— New Repub 119:22 N 22 '48 950w

Reviewed by Ruth Lechlitner
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 S 12 '48 1100w

"It is distressing to have to report that Robinson Jeffers' new book of poems is, like his recent paraphrase of 'Medea,' largely a failure. Indeed, the virtues and faults of one book are very like those of the other: 'Medea' was at its best in rare moments of tenderness, in fragmentary passages of reflection or description; it was at its almost comic worst in the vulgar ranting that made up most of it and that insured a Broadway success to an emotional tragedienne." Dudley Fitts
N Y Times p10 Ag 22 '48 600w
New Yorker 24:83 S 4 '48 120w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p11 N 7 '48 450w

"It is ironical that Jeffers, the philosophical heir of Nietzsche and Spengler and the spokesman of rabid isolationism, should be the only contemporary American poet capable of communicating with a wide audience in the grand manner, or apparently desiring to. It is sad that as the years go by he repeats himself endlessly; that he elects to close his eyes to human heroism and goodness and to man-made beauty; and that he feels compelled to add more than his quota of hatred and violence to the hatred and violence abroad in the world." Selden Rodman
Sat R of Lit 31:13 Jl 31 '48 800w
Time 52:79 Ag 2 '48 800w

JEFFERSON, BRADLEY CARTER. Fair Havens. 333p $3.50 Macmillan

48-8706

Story of eastern Texas during the last years before oil was discovered, when repeated crops on the same ground were depleting the soil, well-to-do families were growing poorer, and others were moving away. The hero is a boy who has come from Alabama in search of an uncle. When he fails to find his uncle he enters the service of the Raisinwoods, owners of the gin mill.

"Sluggish, amateurish."
— Kirkus 16:377 Ag 1 '48 130w

"Style is not brilliant but this is an important bit of Americana." L. R. Etzkorn
+ — Library J 73:1274 S 15 '48 130w

"Thad's story is common enough, and it is told with a flat restraint which doesn't heighten it. But the very simplicity of the novel and the authoritativeness of its detail save it from being pedestrian. It has a pleasant, leisurely pace which makes enjoyable reading."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p31 O 17 '48 170w

"Thad's story is told with lean conciseness. . . Its flat style piques the interest. . . Make what you can of this, the author seems to say. What it boils down to is a success story: tireless industry rewarded by wealth and prestige. But this moral is weakened because the story winds up with the oil boom in the offing, and it is oil rather than reclaimed acres which will bring big money rolling into Thad's pockets." Beatrice Sherman
+ — N Y Times p28 N 7 '48 430w

JENISON, MADGE. Roads. 394p $4 Doubleday

380.9 Commerce—History. Communication and traffic. Civilization, Ancient 48-7020

"Not a straight narrative history of roads and roadbuilding but a rambling examination of the progress of mankind from pre-history through the days of the Roman empire, developed on the theme of roads as means of transportation and communication." (Booklist) List of sources. No index.

"The slow pace and random bits of information and quotations make this a book for casual reading rather than reference."
Booklist 44:379 Jl 15 '48

"I do not always like Madge Jenison's poetic narrative of prehistory. . . But her information and anecdotes please, checkable or uncheckable." Ernestine Evans
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Je 6 '48 750w
San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ag 8 '48 150w

JENKINS, ELIZABETH. Henry Fielding. (English novelists ser) 101p $2 Swallow, A.

B or 92 Fielding, Henry [A48-6041]

A brief biographical and analytical study of the life and works of Henry Fielding, the father of the English novel. Bibliography.

JENKINS, ELIZABETH—Continued

"Miss Jenkins's portrait is a perceptive little sketch with, particularly, a spirited appreciation of Fielding's plays and novels that should certainly evoke a desire to read him." Eric Forbes-Boyd

+ Christian Science Monitor p12 F 28 '48 50w

Kirkus 16:616 N 15 '48 30w

Reviewed by K. T. Willis

Library J 73:1742 D 1 '48 20w

"Miss Jenkins's biography of Fielding is a model of compression and her picture of eighteenth-century England is, within its limits, both honest and complete." J. M. D. P.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 6 '48 60w

Reviewed by John Farrelly

New Repub 120:27 Ja 3 '49 240w

"Miss Jenkins's study is intelligent, sympathetic and well-written. Because Fielding has so commonly been considered a man's man and a man's writer—and has been condemned for this—it is pleasant to have the appreciation of a female critic who does not shudder at his animal spirits, his horseplay, his unabashed love of living. Her study is a happy return to the feminine taste of the 18th century which was stronger in nerve and more equable than the taste that has reigned for 200 years since." V. S. Pritchett

+ New Statesman & Nation 34:472 D 13 '47 900w

Reviewed by G. F. Whicher

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 D 19 '48 200w

"The ghost of Fielding will perhaps not be displeased to discover that his most understanding and appreciative biographer is a woman. Miss Jenkins . . . begins with an excellent account of Fielding's not too successful career as a playwright and then brings us to his novels." Abbott Martin

+ N Y Times p24 Ja 9 '49 250w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman

Sat R of Lit 32:16 Ja 29 '49 380w

Reviewed by H. L. Varley

Springf'd Republican p6B D 26 '48 130w

JENKINS, ELMER, ed. Guide to America [a treasury of information about its states, cities, parks, and historical points of interest; issued in cooperation with the Am. automobile assn]. 705p maps $5 Am. council on public affairs

917.3 U.S.—Description and travel

A gazeteer for the United States. Arrangement is alphabetical by state, then by towns within each state. Gives data about state histories, industries, recreational resources and public parks. For the most important cities and towns information consists of descriptive material and points of historical interest. Map of each state. Bibliography. Index.

"A very useful reference book." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 65:449 My 12 '48 130w

"This book will be as useful as a spare tire. You can get along without it, but it's mighty handy to have around." T. L.

+ N Y Times p24 Ja 4 '48 160w

Reviewed by P. J. C. Friedlander

Sat R of Lit 31:28 S 4 '48 900w

"Local population figures and areas are included. No statement is made as to the source or date of these population figures. Some are from the 1940 census, some agree with more recent Census Bureau surveys, but many are obviously estimates for which the reviewers could find no authority. Information given under an individual entry varies from four pages for New York City, to a mere sentence for many places. On the whole the descriptions seem up to date, and many outstanding places of interest to the tourist are included. . . The material in this book was compared with the 1947 editions of the American Automobile Association's Travel Guide, and the text closely follows the information given in them, though some variations were noted. The AAA guides, which are issued in several parts, and which are available to members of the association at no cost, actually contain much more travel information for they include hotel and restaurant data, and street maps of many cities. . . The maps are the least satisfactory feature of the book. Each map covers a whole state on a single page, with no indication of scale. . . Those persons and those libraries which now have the American Automobile Association Travel Guides will not need to purchase the Guide to America. However, with all its shortcomings, it contains much information of value, in a form easy to use, reasonably accurate, and practical for library and for tourist. There is at present no other single modern guide, or American Baedeker, generally available to compete with it. With these reservations, it is recommended."

+ — Subscription Bks Bul 19:26 Ap '48 1100w

JENKINS, SARA. We gather together. 243p $2.75 Crowell

48-7581

Episodes in the family history of the Gordon clan from 1910 to 1940. Tho the family is large and all are brought into the story—"Miss" Fannie Gordon and her husband Henry; their six sons, all ministers in the Methodist church; their wives and children—it is from the point of view of Jennie, the four-year-old in 1910, that most of the story is told.

Booklist 44:382 Jl 15 '48

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg

Christian Science Monitor p9 S 2 '48 240w

"The continuity of the family saga is broken by the explosion of the race question at the end, but in all it provides a lively picture of Southern life, with vital characters."

+ — Kirkus 16:268 Je 1 '48 160w

"Pleasant but undistinguished novel. . . Jennie is main character, but even she seems unreal while many of the other characters are hazy and poorly drawn. Not recommended." H. P. Bolman

— + Library J 73:1026 Jl '48 140w

"An undistinguished but pleasant and forthright first novel."

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Ag 29 '48 180w

Wis Lib Bul 44:165 O '48

JENNINGS, JOHN EDWARD. River to the west; a novel of the Astor adventure. 368p $3 Doubleday

48-8883

Historical adventure tale about the founding of John Jacob Astor's trading post in the Pacific Northwest. The hero, Rory O'Rourke, thrown out of the Scotch-Canadian Northwest company, becomes Astor's right hand man in the fur side of Astor's business.

Booklist 45:88 N 1 '48

"Overlong, the pace lagging from meticulousness of detail, but rich in historical flavor of a phase of our history of which few know, this will appeal to those who found The Big Sky a bit too rugged and racy for their tastes."

+ — Kirkus 16:488 S 15 '48 200w

"An adventure-packed novel, with slight love interest, highly entertaining, with enough historical accuracy to give the reader a fine flavor of this outstanding historical occasion. For men and boys. Well recommended." L. R. Etzkorn

+ Library J 73:1384 O 1 '48 110w

"But for a misplaced and obvious love affair 'River to the West' could be given top rating, for it is well plotted, forceful and invigorating. . . A yarn to warm the blood of all who like their fiction liberally spiced with adventure and reasonably authentic history."

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p24 O 17 '48 230w

"It should be noted that the Astoria venture was a tragic and probably unwarranted fiasco. This would have been a better book, more than a good adventure novel, had Mr. Jennings essayed to tell why. . . But the author's concern obviously was with the adventure itself. Within that frame it is successful; such scenes as the destruction of the Tonquin and the tortuous trek of five starving survivors (a fictional interpolation, since actually none survived) provide very good reading indeed." J. K. Howard

+ — N Y Times p33 N 7 '48 470w

"Successful as a straight adventure story and as a picture of life on the frontier, in the woods, and aboard ship, 'River to the West' is not quite as good when it comes to putting the Astor adventure in perspective." Murray Morgan

+ Sat R of Lit 31:19 D 18 '48 550w

Wis Lib Bul 45:14 Ja '49

JEPSON, SELWYN. Outrun the constable [Eng title: Man running]. 288p $2.75 Doubleday

47-12511

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe

Chicago Sun Ja 9 '48 100w

Kirkus 15:607 N 1 '47 150w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Ja 11 '48 180w

Reviewed by Isabelle Mallet

N Y Times p20 Ja 18 '48 410w

"English scene, excellent characterization, well written." E. D. Doyle

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 11 '48 150w

"Rather long-winded, but well-supplied with eventful situations, pleasant—and reverse—people, including shadowy sleuth Mr. Ordinary Smith."

+ Sat R of Lit 31:16 Ja 10 '48 40w

Reviewed by John Garrett

Spec 181:88 Jl 16 '48 90w

JESSUP, ALEXANDER, ed. Book of the short story. See Canby, H. S. and Bailey, R., eds.

JESSUP, PHILIP CARYL. Modern law of nations; an introduction. 236p $4 Macmillan

341 International law 48-1110

"Columbia professor, recognized authority re-examines international law advocating its broadening under two aspects: doctrine of community interest, i.e. breaches of international law should concern all members of the family of nations; and under international law direct obligations of individuals should be established (e.g. war crime trials). Under these two doctrines the most important problems of international law are treated—recognition of states, responsibility of states to individuals, law of contractual agreements and regulation of the use of force." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by Lawrence Preuss

Am Pol Sci R 42:1015 O '48 1100w

"This is a book on international law which has long been needed. . . For his forthright and stimulating approach, Professor Jessup is to be warmly congratulated." P. S. Wild

+ Ann Am Acad 258:124 Jl '48 500w

Current Hist 14:296 My '48 50w

Foreign Affairs 26:738 Jl '48 40w

"This reviewer agrees with most of the author's views. Almost every sentence of his should arouse warm discussion, which, doubtless, is just what he intended. His book is a profound and farsighted study, stimulating on every page. It should be studied and thought about at length by every person who hopes for an improved international law or is working, in any practical manner, toward world government." Clyde Eagleton

+ Harvard Law R 61:1273 Jl '48 800w

"Well documented work undoubted contribution to task of building a better world. Too scholarly for masses, but highly recommended for libraries with educated clientele interested in our still divided, someday, perhaps, one world." H. H. A. Bernt

+ Library J 72:1538 N 1 '47 140w

"This well-organized and clearly stated treatise by a pioneer (but one who respects the many sound achievements of his predecessors) may well become outstanding among such influences in reshaping the law of nations more nearly to accord with our aspiration for international justice under law." R. H. Jackson

+ N Y Times p1 Mr 14 '48 1600w

Reviewed by William Coblentz

San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 9 '48 850w

"If this were a more reasonable world 'A Modern Law of Nations' would be read as vigorously and raise even more discussion than the Smyth report on the making of the atom bomb. This is the sequel to it. . . The author is greatly to be commended for his courage in laying down such a definite bill of particulars. However, while this reviewer would like to pay due respect to Dr. Jessup's notable generosity in offering up as a sacrifice for peace the very law of nations which he has spent all his life to learn, one cannot help feeling that a more serious matter is involved here. . . This law may have been pretty well shot to pieces in the last war, but enough remains, apparently, to lead Dr. Jessup to undertake the construction of a halfway-house on the ruins. That will not do; the materials are contradictory, and far from facilitating the evolution of a world government without further bloodshed, the old international law can only hamper that development." Asher Brynes

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:11 Mr 13 '48 1850w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:188 Je '48 320w

"This extremely compact book is, as Professor Jessup himself admits, much more an introductory essay than a treatise. The law which it presents is in large part a hope rather than a reality. But it is hope backed with scholarly documentation and presented in a way not merely to cheer the idealist but to guide the practical statesman. The essay is written with an objectivity which, as much as the author's established reputation and present official position, will commend it to international attention." P. E. Corbett

+ Yale R n s 38:175 autumn '48 550w

JEWISH people: past and present. 3v v 1 430p il pl maps $10; Jewish encyclopedic handbks, Central Yiddish culture organization, 425 Lafayette st, N.Y. 3

296 Jews

"Since this volume is the first of a set which is to be completed in three volumes, only an introductory review will be attempted at this time. . . 'The aim of the publication The Jewish People: Past and Present, is to provide the utmost possible comprehensive and objective data prepared by outstanding authorities in the respective fields of scientific endeavor.' The set is to cover such topics as 'the development and evolution of social and national movements, anti-Semitism, the history of Jewish literature, art, theater, music, languages, etc.'—Preface." Subscription Bks Bul

---

"These volumes, judging by the first, should find their place not only on the library shelves but also in homes. Authors and magazine writers, both Jewish and Christian, would do well to have a copy of this volume near at hand. So much misinformation on Jewish subjects would not appear in the press if this handy, academic and scholarly series of essays were used by those who have occasion to write or speak on these phases of Western civilization to which Hebraic culture has contributed so greatly." L. L. Mann

+ N Y Times p28 N 2 '47 250w

"There are numerous illustrations, among them several excellent colored plates, all of which are well placed in relation to the text. . . The Jewish People: Past and Present undertakes to present a fresh appraisal of Jewish history in the light of new discoveries and new interpretations by modern scholarship

JEWISH people—Continued
since the publication of the Jewish Encyclopedia over forty years ago. . . A high standard of scholarship plus careful editorship to provide readable and interesting information have been maintained in volume 1 of Jewish People: Past and Present. Since this is a partial review, based on the first volume, final evaluation will have to await completion of the set."
Subscription Bks Bul 19:61 O '48 950w

JEWKES, JOHN. Ordeal by planning. 248p $3.75 Macmillan

338.91 Great Britain—Economic policy. Industry and state 48-4871

"An attempt to display the essential lack of logic in a centrally planned economy of the type which is now being experimented with in Great Britain. The author, Professor John Jewkes, who is Stanley Jevons Professor of Political Economy in the University of Manchester, contrasts in these pages a centrally planned economy with a free economy, contending that while every sensible economy is a 'mixed' system, there is a watershed in this matter where, vague as the flow may momentarily seem, the difference between east and west, north and south, liberty and slavery, is being irrevocably determined. He submits that there is no doubt in which direction the current has started to flow for Britain, and he suggests two tests by which this can be proven." (Publisher's note) Index.

Christian Century 65:977 S 22 '48 550w

"This book is another noteworthy addition to the growing list of criticisms of post-war planning in Great Britain. As such it ranks high alongside of Hayek's well known Road to Serfdom." J. B. Parrish
+ Churchman 163:16 Ja 15 '49 230w

"An admirably cogent and lucidly written defence of free economy, which would apparently take at least another brace of Webbs to refute—if they could." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 73:937 Je 15 '48 140w

"A penetrating examination and a powerful warning of what happens in a nation when central governmental planning is substituted for individual enterprise." S. T. Williamson
+ Management R 37:649 D '48 750w

Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 30 '48 650w

Reviewed by Hugh Weeks
New Statesman & Nation 35:378 My 8 '48 750w

Reviewed by Palmer Harman
Sat R of Lit 32:43 Ja 22 '49 600w

"If anything prevents this book from upsetting the present uncritical tendency towards what is called planning it will not be the cogency of the ideas which it attacks nor the vigour with which it attacks them. The ideas are fantastically muddled and their results in practice are appalling. The attack is carefully prepared and well aimed. It is not perfect, but it will serve." John Minstede
+ Spec 180:442 Ap 9 '48 900w

"The first section [of the book] is perhaps the most positive of the three. . . The second and third contain much that is valuable. They are the fruit both of clear thinking and of keen observation of the contemporary scene. But they also contain much that is more entertaining than instructive. To criticize present planning, its results and its tendencies, is indeed just and proper. But it detracts from the weight of the book when too much space is given to pillorying the more vacuous obiter dicta of the popular advocates and practitioners of planning."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p467 Ag 21 '48 1300w

JOAD, CYRIL EDWIN MITCHINSON. How our minds work. 116p $2.75 Philosophical lib.

130.16 Mind and body A48-50

"A brief introductory discourse on mind and body by Dr. Joad, interpreting the relationship between the two." Current Hist

"The five chapters are, as one would expect, lucidly written and skillfully argued, but they deal almost exclusively with the ancient and futile controversy about the existence of 'mind' as distinct from body. This has long ceased to be a psychological question, and it is not surprising that Professor Joad can throw little light on how his 'immaterial element' works. . . The book itself bears no date of publication or copyright, and one is driven to the conclusion that some early lectures have been reprinted without any indication of the fact. If so, the publishers have played a shabby trick on their readers." J. D. Ketchum
+ — Canadian Forum 27:238 Ja '48 210w

Current Hist 15:228 O '48 20w

"Joad repeats himself from previous writings, but the book is a neat little pamphlet on the main outlines of psychology. It reveals that modern psychology is weakest in its main outlines, though Joad himself offers no criticisms." H. T. C.
+ J Philos 45:109 F 12 '48 50w

"This book is written with great clarity and subtle humor, and is recommended for mature readers with some philosophical and psychological background." A. I. Bryan
+ Library J 72:1030 Jl '47 100w

Reviewed by S. B. Shear
Springf'd Republican p14B N 2 '47 20w

JOESTEN, JOACHIM. Germany: what now? 331p $3.75 Ziff-Davis

943.086 Germany—History—Allied occupation, 1945- 48-676

A study of post-war Germany which is based on all the factual material on Germany printed since the war, plus the author's own knowledge of pre-Hitler Germany. The author himself, a native of Germany, has not been back since 1933. The first part of the book deals with statistics and facts about the four zones of Germany. Part two gives background material on present day German leaders. Parts three and four deal with the new economy, and Germany on the rebound. Index.

Booklist 44:280 Ap 15 '48
Current Hist 14:295 My '48 40w
Foreign Affairs 26:744 Jl '48 30w

"Considering that his book is written from a distance of 3,000 miles and fifteen years, it is a good job, in which there are no major errors of fact." Russell Hill
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Mr 7 '48 450w

"A great deal of what Mr. Joesten has to say is valuable. His analysis of political activity in Germany to date, while not very profound, is fairly realistic, and his evaluation of the temper of German public opinion on the subject of economic reorganization is probably accurate enough. Unfortunately, however, the book is a hastily compiled hodge-podge, which skips from one topic to another for reasons more esoteric than logical." G. N. Shuster
+ — N Y Times p3 Mr 14 '48 1000w

"An excellent manual. . . Mr. Joesten's popular manual on Germany is nevertheless more than the usual collection of names, dates, and facts. It will enlarge the experience of any reader, even one well-versed in the recent history of the country." H. B. Kranz
+ Sat R of Lit 31:13 Mr 13 '48 800w

School & Society 67:302 Ap 17 '48 20w

JOHNSON, ALAN WOODWORTH. Chemistry of the acetylenic compounds; v. 1, The acetylenic alcohols. 394p $9.50 Longmans

547.23 Alcohols [47-31258]

"This book is the first of three volumes which will undertake to survey completely the field of acetylenic compounds. . . [It] treats the acetylenic alcohols. It is divided into three main parts: 'The Monohydric Acetylenic Alcohols,' 'The Acetylenic Glycols,' and 'The Polyacetylenic Alcohols.' Each part is in turn subdivided into eight sections: historical, nomenclature, formation, physical properties, reactions involving the hydrozyl groups, reactions involving the acetylenic bonds, reactions involving the free ethynyl group (if any), and reactions involving the whole molecule. Each section consists of a review and discussion of all the literature on the subject under consideration, with complete references to the original publications." (Chem & Eng N) Index.

"This is a very valuable critical résumé of the chemistry of acetylenic alcohols and will be indispensable to research workers in the field. It will also serve as interesting reading for anyone who wants to become informed on these highly useful reactions and the properties of this group of organic compounds." C. S. Marvel

+ Am Chem Soc J 70:2302 Je '48 190w

"The collection, organization, and evaluation of the voluminous material presented in this volume represents a monumental achievement, and the book will be invaluable to workers in this field, whether in research or in industry." Gustav Egloff

+ Chem & Eng N 26:954 Mr 29 '48 450w

N Y New Tech Bks 32:67 O '47

JOHNSON, ALVIN WALTER, and YOST, FRANK H. Separation of church and state in the United States. 279p $4.50 Univ. of Minn.

377.1 Church and state in the U.S. Church and education. Religious education. Bible in the schools 48-11603

"The present volume is not only a revision of the earlier publication, Legal Status of Church-State Relationships in the United States [Book Review Digest 1935], published in 1934, with much of the material completely rewritten and brought up to date, but it includes a number of chapters dealing with subjects which have gained prominence in recent years. The materials used consist primarily of state constitutions, statutes, administrative orders, and court decisions. In selecting court decisions, with few exceptions only supreme court cases, federal and state, have been used." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 45:141 D 15 '48

"The new volume is perfectly timed. . . So much has happened since the earlier publication, and the more recent encroachments and decisions are so fully taken account of in the later one, that this is virtually a new book. It is, on the whole, the most comprehensive, scholarly and objective treatment of the theme." W. E. Garrison

+ Christian Century 65:1367 D 15 '48 1300w

School & Society 68:400 D 4 '48 90w

JOHNSON, BURGES. Lost art of profanity; foreword by H. L. Mencken; drawings by Orson Lowell. 223p $2.50 Bobbs

179.5 Swearing 48-8599

"Remarks on the changing vocabulary of emphasis and vituperation. Mr. Johnson has been professor of English at Vassar and Syracuse. . . Here, he reviews history of the oath denunciatory (cursing), the oath asseverative (swearing), the oath interjectional and maledictions ('naughty words'). Illustrations are drawn from literature, anthropology and history and include personal reminiscence, anecdotes and comic verse." Library J

Booklist 45:82 N 1 '48

"This material is handled with a light, relaxed touch, the result is an entertaining informal essay, pleasantly instructive." H. W. Hart

+ Library J 73:1084 Ag '48 100w

"Much research into folklore, history, psychology and linguistics has gone into Mr. Johnson's pages, which are good for two hours of entertainment even on a blue Monday." G. F. Whicher

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 O 10 '48 550w

Reviewed by Rex Lardner

N Y Times p52 O 17 '48 400w

"Dr. Johnson's whole text is good reading. You'll be amused by his open-minded treatment of his subject, and you're likely to make a few discoveries." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle S 16 '48 550w

"Teaching English at Vassar, Syracuse, and Union for thirty-odd years has not insulated Burges Johnson from the rowdier elements of the vernacular. In this urbane treatise he discusses these with clarity, vigor, charm, and sanity. . . His is a noble mission, ably prosecuted." J. T. Winterich

+ Sat R of Lit 31:46 D 4 '48 800w

"His argument is a little too mechanically playful, but it is well illustrated and has some grains of sense."

Time 52:106 S 27 '48 700w

JOHNSON, BYRON LAMAR, and LINDSTROM, ELOISE, eds. Librarian and the teacher in general education. 69p $2 A.L.A.

027.7 Stephens college. Libraries—Instruction in use. Libraries and schools 48-10645

"A report of library-instructional activities at Stephens College." (Subtitle) In it is given a study of the procedures by which the library staff at Stephens participates in relating books to classroom instruction. This is an enlarged edition of a mimeographed report issued by the college for limited distribution. No index.

Booklist 45:114 D 1 '48

School & Society 68:326 N 6 '48 10w

JOHNSON, DAVID GALE. Forward prices for agriculture. 259p $3 Univ. of Chicago press

338.5273 Agriculture—Economic aspects. Prices 47-11824

"An analytical study of a proposed policy for attaining the desired allocation of agricultural crops by basing government-guaranteed prices for farm products on probable future need, and making the offers far enough in advance for the farmer to adjust his plans. For large libraries or special collections." (Booklist) Bibliographical notes at end of some of the chapters. Index.

"It is a pleasure to follow the carefully developed argument of the book, and there is very good sense in much that Professor Johnson says. . . It is to be regretted that the effects of forward prices did not receive as careful analysis as did the effects of price uncertainty. . . This is a good book. It is good economic analysis of a problem more often discussed with passion than reason. It by no means completes the work that must be done in the study of agricultural price guarantees, but it does carry us quite a way along the road." W. O. Jones

+ — Am Econ R 38:705 S '48 1000w

"All agricultural economists, agricultural price administrators, and general price theorists will want to get this book and read it carefully. The book is not easy reading, but it is stimulating and challenging. It appears that farmers and many others in the United States are definitely committed to public price intervention, and that the forward price idea will come in for more discussion." F. R. Yoder

+ Ann Am Acad 256:196 Mr '48 320w

Booklist 44:178 Ja 15 '48

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:162 Je '48 320w

JOHNSON, FREDERICK ERNEST, ed. Wellsprings of the American spirit; a series of addresses. (Religion and civilization ser) 241p $2.50 Harper

917.3 U.S.—Civilization 48-5826

Contents: The Puritan tradition; The dissenting tradition; The enlightenment tradition; The religion of the Founding Fathers; The ideal of religious liberty—a Protestant review; The ideal of religious liberty—a Jewish view; The spirit of the frontier; The spirit of American philosophy; The spirit of American literature; The spirit of American education; The spirit of American art; Technology and freedom; Woman's battle for status; The struggle for cultural unity; Labor's coming of age; The spiritual role of America. Index.

JOHNSON, F. E.—Continued

Reviewed by Merle Curti
Am J Soc 54:174 S '48 550w

"Taken as a whole, these addresses hang together much better than most attempts to persuade a coterie of university professors to stay under one roof. In fact there is not a chapter that does not make its special contribution to an understanding of how the American spirit has evolved." W. W. Sweet
+ Christian Century 65:783 Ag 4 '48 750w

"A valuable book for one who wants to understand the riches of our democratic heritage in America." G. W. Davis
+ Crozer Q 26:89 Ja '49 450w

J Philos 45:719 D 16 '48 300w

School & Society 67:286 Ap 10 '48 20w

JOHNSON, GERALD WHITE. Liberal's progress. 268p $3.50 Coward-McCann

B or 92 Filene, Edward Albert 48-9496

A biography of the Boston merchant and social thinker, Edward A. Filene. "Mr. Johnson has written of Mr. Filene in successive chapters as: the man, the merchant, the citizen, the patriot, the internationalist, the technician, and the prophet, all against a sharply etched background of public affairs." (Survey G) Index.

"Filene's record, skillfully told by an experienced biographer, is a stirring example of a practical man's social idealism in citizenship, industry and internationalism." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 65:1430 D 29 '48 130w

Nation 168:81 Ja 15 '49 50w

"This is the best biography of a business man that I can recall having read. By itself that statement does not mean too much. . . Gerald Johnson avoids the shortcomings of his predecessors in the field of business biography. . . He kept the book short—a tribute to his sense of historical proportion. . . A clear picture of the man emerges. . . It was a worth-while life, and Gerald Johnson has done a worth-while thing in giving us a good account of it." Marquis James
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 D 19 '48 850w

Reviewed by Duncan Aikman
N Y Times p12 Ja 2 '49 1000w

Springf'd Republican p7B Ja 2 '49 600w

"The biography is as refreshingly unconventional as was Mr. Filene himself during the seventy-seven years of his eventful life, and the pepper and salt of the author's sophisticated style derive from an informed and probing intelligence." Evans Clark
+ Survey G 37:473 N '48 750w

JOHNSON, GLEN. Some ethical implications of a naturalistic philosophy of education. 154p $2.25 Teachers College

370.1 Naturalism. Education—Philosophy 47-11382

"[An] exposition of naturalistic philosophy rooted in experimentalism is the first task of this volume. The arguments made by critics of the naturalistic point of view are first presented and summarized. . . Against each argument or criticism are then stated the premises of the naturalist. Consistent with these premises, the author denies the supernatural, and substitutes for freedom of will such individual freedom as derives from the acquisition of habits, skills, knowledge, and emotional power." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Bibliography. No Index.

"An elucidation, appraisal, and refutation of the various critiques leveled at naturalism. . . It is fortunate that Dr. Johnson approaches his subject with a minimum of bias and that his style, which is eminently readable, contains more than a trace of wit." W. W. Brickman
School & Society 66:426 N 29 '47 550w

"To say that the book presents a clear and forceful exposition of naturalistic philosophy does not mean that the author's position will be generally accepted. Many of the questions, theological, epistemological, or psychological, are left partially or completely unanswered. Severe critics of the phiosophy may, however, read the book with interest and profit. It will also be of more than passing significance to ministers and educators, and to parents and citizens responsible for understanding and evaluating new educational developments."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 4:145 Je '48 260w

JOHNSON, HEWLETT. Soviet Russia since the war [Eng title: Soviet success]. 270p $3 Boni & Gaer

947.084 Russia 47-11714

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"Serious students of the Soviet Union are likely to profit as little from the volume under review as they did from the amiable dean of Canterbury's earlier two efforts in the same field. . . The dean's apparently hopeless inability to comprehend the nature of the democratic creed is revealed in his bland judgment that the differences between the Soviet and western concepts of democracy are not substantive but merely terminological." Isaac Stone
— Am Hist R 53:883 Jl '48 320w

Booklist 44:200 F 1 '48

"It would be irrelevant to argue with the author, to point out logical flaws and factual omissions. The book should be judged in the light of what it is. It is not a work of scholarship, but a testimony of faith." S. B. Barnes
Christian Century 65:142 F 4 '48 490w

"Many people will accuse this of being simply a romantic work, and of course it is in the sense that the dean of Canterbury is in love with the Russian people and with communist ideals. Like anyone else in that state of mind he tends both to overlook defects in the character of the adored and to be on the defensive against attacks on that object. But this does not mean that the dean's findings can be dismissed lightly; he tells a fascinating tale, he helps us to understand the Russian mind, he brings out many pertinent facts." J. H. Titus
+ Churchman 162:17 F 15 '48 200w

Reviewed by M. P. Price
Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 5 '48 900w

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 25 '48 200w

"This is a superficial book, full of snap judgements and shallow generalisations, and it throws no light on the fundamental moral problems that are at stake in the Soviet experiment." G. B. Thomas
— Spec 180:138 Ja 30 '48 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p87 F 14 '48 230w

JOHNSON, MARGARET SWEET. Gay, a Shetland sheepdog; il. by [the author]. 96p $2 Morrow

Dogs—Legends and stories 48-6431

Story of a Shetland sheepdog, Gay Lady. Gay was born on a Colorado ranch and was to be trained to herd sheep, but an unfortunate meeting with a vicious ram made her too terrified of sheep to follow her calling. A visitor to the ranch took Gay to New York where she joined an obedience school. Later in Scotland Gay Lady got over her fear and went to work at herding sheep. For ages eight to twelve.

Booklist 44:320 My 15 '48

Reviewed by Martha King
Chicago Sun Ap 24 '48 50w

"A sure favorite with dog-loving children."
+ Kirkus 16:170 Ap 1 '48 100w

"Story is pleasing though lacking in dramatic value. Illustrations are attractive. Will appeal to the fourth-and fifth-graders whose appetite for dog stories cannot be satisfied." J. M. Smith
Library J 73:881 Je 1 '48 60w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 My 9 '48 230w

"Well told and well illustrated by the author of seventeen previously successful animal stories, this dog story has intrinsic merit as a character study. Large print and excellent pencil drawings make 'Gay' an invitation to read for children from 8 to 12." S. C. Gross
+ N Y Times p12 Ag 1 '48 110w

Springf'd Republican p10B My 30 '48 110w

Wis Lib Bul 44:106 My '48

JOHNSON, MARTHA, pseud. See Lansing, E. C. H.

JOHNSON, PAMELA HANSFORD (MRS NEIL STEWART). Avenue of stone. 304p $3.50 Macmillan 48-5814

Thru the eyes of her step-son, the author presents the portrait of elderly Lady Archer, once a beauty, clever, acidulous, and "grabbing at lovers as if time were too short." Now after the war, Helena, as her step-son calls her, widowed and dreading the approaching of old age, takes into her home and life a young no-account veteran who gets what he can out of her and then leaves.

Booklist 44:268 Ap 1 '48

Kirkus 16:31 Ja 15 '48 130w

"Competent, clever writing, but characters are detestable. Appeal limited." R. W. Henderson
— + Library J 73:336 F 15 '48 70w

"Guiltless of undue intensity this novel takes love seriously and the mood of a laughing philosopher might now and then have helped. But Helena is impressive." Harold Brighouse
Manchester Guardian p3 My 30 '47 180w

"Miss Johnson's skillful portrait of an old virago has vigor and wit and curiously, dignity. The title of the book, foreshadowing the road that old age walks alone, fails to do justice to the warmth and vitality of the story." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Mr 14 '48 290w

"Satisfactory lightweight novel."
New Yorker 24:125 Mr 13 '48 120w

"Miss Johnson is a superb chronicler, not following a straight narrative line and not describing psychological circles around her character either. Her route is oblique, and she discloses the secrets of Helena and her last fantastic love by indirection." M. S.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 My 9 '48 200w

"A skilful piece of contemporary reporting about our post-war lives, or the lives of a few selected personages whom Miss Johnson happens to have had, it would seem, under her observation." D. S. Savage
+ Spec 178:632 My 30 '47 320w

"Sympathy with the heroine could have been won only by an extraordinarily vivid and vital presentation of someone who was an exception to the rules. This Miss Hansford-Johnson does not achieve. Judged by her conversation and behaviour Helena is a tiresome, egocentric and devouring personality from whom it would be a duty to flee at any price. Nor does the stilted dialogue of the other characters contribute anything to the desired allusion. Miss Hansford-Johnson has been most successful with her portrait of her neurotic young man who has to be propped up by some woman in order to survive."
Times [London] Lit Sup p265 My 31 '47 360w

JOHNSON, PAMELA HANSFORD (MRS NEIL STEWART). Hungry Gulliver; an English critical appraisal of Thomas Wolfe [Eng title: Thomas Wolfe: a critical study]. 170p $2.50 Scribner
813 Wolfe, Thomas 48-5174

An analysis and interpretation of the works of Thomas Wolfe by an English novelist and critic.

Reviewed by Martin Gardner
Ethics 58:304 Jl '48 850w

Kirkus 15:641 N 15 '47 160w

"Based on the premise that Thomas Wolfe wrote only one novel in his whole life, an evolving autobiographical work, the analysis follows the conventional interpretation. Wolfe's critics, his literary style, the story and structure of the novels and his philosophy are ably covered. This arrangement of material, however, necessitates repetition and back-tracking, and loses for the analysis in force what it gains in precision." B. B. Libaire
+ — Library J 72:1777 D 15 '47 120w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse
Manchester Guardian p3 S 26 '47 110w

Reviewed by Milton Rugoff
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Ap 4 '48 800w

Reviewed by Caroline Gorden
N Y Times p12 Mr 7 '48 180w

"An extremely acute appraisal of Thomas Wolfe by an English critic."
New Yorker 23:85 Ja 24 '48 80w

"In her book on Wolfe, Miss Johnson errs on the side of uncritical appraisal. She is blinded by Wolfe's tremendous outpourings, and while she makes a reliable guide to his books for those who do not know his work, she cannot be said to put Wolfe in his proper perspective. Her approach is more emotional than critical. In such a mood she deals best with the great autobiographical novels."
+ — Spec 180:56 Ja 9 '48 220w

"The chief criticism to be levelled against Miss Hansford Johnson's study of Wolfe is that in the long run she fails to delve to the root of his aims and creative desires. . . As a preliminary clearing of the ground, and in the establishment of facts difficult to come by in this country, Miss Johnson's work will be useful, nevertheless. She is most successful in dealing with Wolfe as a man, in sketching a portrait based on the material in the novels and on the few letters published."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p508 O 4 '47 750w

JOHNSON, SIDDIE JOE. Susan's year; il. by Anne Merriman Peck. 168p $2.25 Longmans 48-3590

Susan's year was the year she was eleven. That was the year she spent with her college professor aunt in a large city in Texas. During that time she learned to keep house, and by her friendliness helped her aunt with her writing, and gained her most precious wish for herself.

Booklist 45:37 S 15 '48

"Susan's Year is a pleasant addition to little girls' stories of real life which might easily be true." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 24:372 S '48 80w

Kirkus 16:363 Ag 1 '48 100w

"This is a pleasant, gentle book, a little over tender. Little girls who aren't tomboys will love it, especially if they are enthusiastic about dogs. But there is no real pull at your emotions, the quality in a story that makes a child want to read a book again and again." Margaret Ernst
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 S 12 '48 180w

"The story is slight in plot and sometimes in incident, but there is a sensitive portrayal of the turning of the seasons and the impact of fresh experiences. Girls of 8 to 12 can learn a lot, too, from Susan's receptive attitude toward life." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p11 S 5 '48 170w

Wis Lib Bul 44:168 O '48

JOHNSON, WALTER. William Allen White's America. 621p il $5 Holt
B or 92 White, William Allen 47-4962

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

JOHNSON, WALTER—Continued

"White's roguish humor, salty phrases, and irresistible personal charm are well illustrated in his Autobiography published last year and in the Selected Letters edited by the present biographer. Mr. Johnson's latest book is more penetrating and critical, reaching analyses and appraisals absent from these previous volumes, and since the Autobiography virtually closed in the early 1920's, is particularly welcome for tracing the important activities of the editor's last twenty years. Mr. Johnson writes with vigor and skill, shrewdly commenting upon men and events interwoven with his narrative, from the point of view of a more consistent liberal than White himself ever was." Dixon Wecter

+ Am Hist R 53:359 Ja '48 950w

"Professor Johnson has done an excellent job of building his characterization of this unusual American. Excerpts from letters he wrote and from those he received, from speeches and newspaper editorials, from recorded conversations and from the reminiscences of friends and neighbors—all of these are used to build this picture of William Allen White. This biography is also noteworthy for the author's reasoned judgments and for his willingness to acknowledge his subjects' mistakes and to point out the defects in his philosophy or action. Perhaps the most apparent weakness of this book is its title—this is not a complete picture of William Allen White's America. It is, however, a very excellent portrait of America's William Allen White." R. A. Brown

+ Ann Am Acad 255:214 Ja '48 550w

Reviewed by Ryland Crary

Social Educ 12:191 Ap '48 500w

U S Quarterly Bkl 3:349 D '47 280w

JOHNSTON, ERIC ALLEN. We're all in it. 220p $2.75 Dutton

327.73 U.S.—Foreign policy 48-10228

An American businessman's approach to the problems of American leadership in the world today, with sidelights on Russia. Includes the account of his interview with Stalin in 1944. No index.

Booklist 45:99 N 15 '48

"Good reading and convincing. From Johnston it carries weight."

+ Kirkus 16:498 S 15 '48 390w

"Recommended." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 73:1592 N 1 '48 150w

"Although his new book takes up the whole range of America's and the world's current problems, Eric Johnston, the affable past president of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, makes it easy for you. His thoughts are brisk, his paragraphs are short, his words tend to be monosyllabic, and you can get through his 220 large-type pages in half an hour." W. H. Hale

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 N 21 '48 600w

Reviewed by H. J. Bresler

N Y Times p27 O 31 '48 470w

New Yorker 24:149 N 13 '48 160w

"Mr. Johnston is . . . an intelligent man, who greatly prefers intelligently managed capitalism, and his book is a worthy and highly readable effort to show how the new capitalism can meet and conquer Communism on its home grounds." C. W. W.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ja 9 '49 650w

"His view of Russia seems to me sound. . . Faults? Of course. The author is a little too glib in believing that basically all peoples are alike. Biologically, instinctively, they doubtless are. But I remember the late Samuel Harper, a great Russian expert warning me against 'ever believing' that I could come to understand what makes Russians tick! The differences between peoples are painfully real." E. A. Mowrer

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:14 D 18 '48 750w

Wis Lib Bul 45:11 Ja '49

JONATHAN, NORTON HUGHES. Guide book for the young man about town; the way to more popularity and personality for modern young men; il. by Pelagie Doane. 239p $2.50 Winston

395 Etiquet 48-5400

This book has been written for the purpose of giving a young man self confidence in any social situation. It is a revision of "Gentlemen Aren't Sissies," published in 1938.

"Although manners and conduct may not have changed much with the years' passing, such items as prices have and these have not been revised. The scarcity of this type of book makes it valuable to libraries without the earlier edition."

Booklist 44:235 Mr 1 '48

Kirkus 16:89 F 15 '48 80w

"Senior high school and older youths will like it. Recommended." G. E. Cartmell

+ Library J 73:563 Ap 1 '48 50w

"Here is Dad's and Mom's answer to a prayer. A book on good manners for the teenage boy who is in high school or about to enter college. It is sensible and witty and highly entertaining; furthermore, it's as up-to-the-minute as the latest Louis Prima live disk." Howard Pease

+ N Y Times p24 My 9 '48 170w

JONES, BURTON WADSWORTH. Elementary concepts of mathematics. 294p $4 Macmillan

510 Mathematics 47-12055

"Assuming a background of arithmetic and plane geometry the book is designed for students who wish to understand mathematical concepts of every-day life: compound interest, graphs and averages, probability and games of chance, cause versus coincidence, mirror and Lorentz geometry and topology. Puzzles are included to make the text interesting and for mathematical recreation. Prepared for a college course in Cornell University in 1940, revised with a chapter on logic." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 73:45 Ja 1 '48 80w

N Y New Tech Bks 32:77 O '47

JONES, CHARLES WILLIAMS. Saints' lives and chronicles in early England. 232p $3 Cornell univ. press

922 Saints 47-11930

"[Study of] the saints' lives and chronicles written in England before the year 750, concentrating on certain works of Bede, especially the Lives of the Abbots, the Life of St. Cuthbert and the Ecclesiastical History, on the Life of St. Wilfrid by Eddius Stephanus and the Life of St. Guthlac by Felix, and the anonymous lives of St. Cuthbert, St. Gregory, and St. Ceolfrith. . . Professor Jones has added a translation of the Whitby Life of St. Gregory and Felix's Life of St. Guthlac." (Am Hist R) Index.

"In spite of serious blemishes, which one hopes will be very carefully eliminated or corrected in a later edition, what Professor Jones has to say about seventh century chronography has to be listened to with the greatest respect; and there is much in the book that is helpful and provocative though perhaps few medieval scholars will be willing to accept all his conclusions without demur." Bertram Colgrave

+ — Am Hist R 53:528 Ap '48 1000w

"This volume, although written primarily for scholars, maintains an ease of expression and style by constant allusions to modern literature and history. The only criticisms are minor ones. References to the Douay Version of Scripture rather than to the King James Version might have been more appropriate. The times of the recitation of the Opus Dei were not divided as definitely as Mr. Jones intimates. And the millenial apprehension regarding the year 1000 is generally discredited."

+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 4:133 Je '48 260w

JONES, EDGAR DE WITT. Lincoln and the preachers; with an introd. by William H. Townsend. 203p $2.50 Harper

B or 92 Lincoln, Abraham. Clergy 48-11551

A life-long student of Lincoln, who has preached many sermons on Lincoln, here examines one phase of the question of Lincoln's religion—the influence specific preachers may have had on Lincoln's way of thinking. Partial contents: Some pioneer preachers Lincoln knew; Peter Cartwright: "Son of Thunder"; Bishop Matthew Simpson; Owen Lovejoy: fiery abolitionist preacher; Henry Ward Beecher: "The Shakespeare of the Pulpit"; The tribute of the synagogue; Lincoln's preacher stories; Lincoln in stained glass.

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
Christian Century 65:1430 D 29 '48 650w

Kirkus 16:617 D 1 '48 180w

"In spite of Dr. Jones' conscientious endeavors, his evidence in this volume fails to prove that clergymen influenced Lincoln more than did lawyers, politicians, generals or diplomats. Lincoln's remarkably high morals, concepts of justice, tolerance, truth, humility, forgiveness, still appear to have come more from his own conscience than from any person or group of persons." Lloyd Lewis
N Y Times p13 D 12 '48 650w

JONES, ELI STANLEY. Mahatma Gandhi; an interpretation. 160p $2 Abingdon-Cokesbury

B or 92 Gandhi, Mohandas Karamchand 48-8515

"Not a life, but an exposition of the principles which the Mahatma taught and by which he lived. Not a Christian, nevertheless his life closely followed Christ's example. His practise of non-violent resistance, of suffering for the sins of others and of forgiving his enemies was truly Christlike. Much concerning India's struggle for independence is incidentally included. But the purpose of this book is a eulogy of Gandhi's teachings, and upon them is based a sermon calling for the spirit of Christ as the world's only hope for peace." Library J

Booklist 45:49 O 1 '48

Reviewed by Robert Peel
Christian Science Monitor p11 O 14 '48 750w

Reviewed by C. H. Voss
Churchman 162:16 N 15 '48 180w

"Stanley Jones has a way of stating things so that they stay in the reader's mind. No minister who wishes to understand the meaning of this great leader should fail to read this book of interpretation."
+ Kirkus 16:504 O 1 '48 230w

"Highly recommended." J. L. Ross
+ Library J 73:1189 S 1 '48 140w

N Y Times p52 N 14 '48 230w

Times [London] Lit Sup p4 Ja 1 '49 180w

Wis Lib Bul 45:13 Ja '49

JONES, GEORGE E. Tumult in India. 277p $3 Dodd

954 India—Politics and government. India—Social conditions 48-6036

"Covering the transitional years 1946-47, when he was New York Times correspondent in India, the author explains them in relation to the background of British administration, Indian political aspirations, and by means of clear and penetrating portraits of India's principal religious and political figures." (Library J) Index.

"Tumult in India is a readable, levelheaded, and informative survey of the subcontinent, both of whose warring societies are wavering between tradition and the conflicting magnetism of the west." C. J. Rolo
+ Atlantic 181:118 My '48 150w

Booklist 44:297 My 1 '48

Christian Century 65:299 Mr 24 '48 20w

"As to the prospects of partitioned India, Mr. Jones points out that the partitioning was effected hastily, and with the autocratic Jinnah stubbornly refusing to negotiate in the best interests of the Moslem population. . . Mr. Jones believes that the Moslems, deprived of the autocrat, who is already showing signs of losing his grip, will awake to the sorry situation in which they are placed. . . Mr. Jones's material on these matters is new, and his comments sound. One could have wished that he had devoted several more chapters to them, at some sacrifice of historical background, which, though good, is obtainable elsewhere." H. J. S.
+ — Christian Science Monitor p18 My 13 '48 700w

"Very dull, but sound." Anne Fremantle
Commonweal 48:383 Jl 30 '48 130w

"Although Mr. Jones says in his preface that he has relied to a large extent on his own observations in writing this book, he obviously has studied his subject with care. . . Discussion of the reasons behind adherence of some states to the Hindu Union or Pakistan are excellent. Recommended for general use." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 73:470 Mr 15 '48 100w

"Mr. Jones looks for the material aspect of situations and is at a loss when confronted with non-material ones. It is strange to find such an attitude in a book which deals at length with people like Gandhi who were mainly, if not exclusively, swayed by non-material motives. This attitude is one of the two chief weaknesses of the book. The other weakness springs from the fact that the author is mainly concerned with the present and passes over the historical events and conditions which are still active in shaping the present. Mr. Jones wishes to be fair to all the parties in the Indian conflict. But the lack of historical perspective obstructs his endeavors and leads him to minimize what was and continues to be the core of the Indian problem, the clash of different and perhaps incompatible civilizations." H. M. Spitzer
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Mr 21 '48 900w

"Mr. Jones makes judgments. In these, he invariably tries to be fair. . . Likewise in his evaluation of the Indians, Mr. Jones seeks scrupulously to temper criticism with compliments. He realized the greatness of Gandhi without—I think—understanding it. . . On the other hand, Mr. Jones' analysis of Mohammed Ali Jinnah, Moslem League leader and now Governor General of the new Dominion of Pakistan, is devastating." Louis Fischer
+ — N Y Times p3 Mr 28 '48 950w

Reviewed by W. W. Unns
San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 4 '48 650w

"Mr. Jones maintains the objective tone of a seasoned reporter writing on matters assumed to have two sides as well as reasonable depth. His twelve coherent essays are clear, concise, and in some parts moving, although they provide little that sounds new to anyone who knows India or the literature in the field. But they serve as a useful guide to those who, without special background, have watched bewildered the screaming headlines blur by during the months between the birth of partition and the death of Gandhi, who lived for a free united India." Gordden Link
+ Sat R of Lit 31:24 Ap 17 '48 490w

Reviewed by Ephraim Fischoff
Springf'd Republican p10A Jl 4 '48 270w

Wis Lib Bul 44:132 Je '48

JONES, GUY PEARCE, and JONES, MRS CONSTANCE (BRIDGES). There was a little man. 245p $2.50 Random house

48-1163

In return for a favor done him in Ireland, a leprechaun follows Stephen Fitzgerald to New York to grant him his heart's desire—a successful career in the advertising business and the love of a career woman, Frances Dunham. However Stephen discovers he has no longer a taste for the sophisticated life, but wants only the Irish girl, Norah, and an opportunity to write.

JONES, G. P.—Continued

Booklist 44:249 Mr 15 '48

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 20 '48 480w

Kirkus 16:29 Ja 15 '48 70w

"This delightfully warm and humorous fantasy is recommended for all fiction collections." H. G. Kelley

+ Library J 73:396 Mr 1 '48 70w

"It's a charming, sparkling story the Joneses tell, with overtones that reach beyond its surface levity." Rose Feld

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Jl 18 '48 400w

Reviewed by Thomas Sugrue
N Y Times p12 Ap 18 '48 490w

Reviewed by Rex Lardner
Sat R of Lit 31:28 Je 12 '48 270w

JONES, KATHRINE. Miss Gifford's. 270p $3 Exposition

48-8165

"From the moment when the New England spinster, Miss Gifford, rediscovers 'The Square,' in old South End of Boston (once as aristocratic as New York's Murray Hill) and falls so in love with its charm that she decides to make a home for herself and other home-loving friends by opening a 'boarding house' in the quaint old surroundings, the interest is high. The description of the house finally chosen in the oval 'Square' is true to reality even to the usual black marble mantel in the 'parlor.' . . The choosing of the 'boarders' (Miss Gifford objects to 'paying guests') becomes all-important, for they will be molded into 'the family' as Miss Gifford's becomes established. The 'boarders' are clear-cut characters, each entirely different." Springf'd Republican

" 'Miss Gifford's' is inept—often embarrassingly so. . . Yet this novel has been praised by Marianne Moore, who surely knows what she is talking about. Perhaps she admired what I find alternately annoying and touching, the delicate gentility . . . which pervades it, and the sensitivity in the observation of surfaces. But the concern with manners and with objects is so great that the author never really penetrates her characters." Ernest Jones

— + Nation 167:353 S 25 '48 140w

Reviewed by Marianne Moore
Sat R of Lit 31:28 N 6 '48 360w

"Delightfully reminiscent of oldtime Boston. . . The narrative is whimsical, yet filled with gentle understanding." E. H. Dexter

+ Springf'd Republican p8B O 10 '48 300w

JONES, LOUIS CLARK. Spooks of the valley; ghost stories for boys and girls; il. by Erwin H. Austin. 111p $2.50 Houghton

48-2168

"Tales of ghosts of the Hudson River Valley. To give unity to the narrative, the author has introduced two boys who encounter the ghosts and are urged to help solve their problems. Some of the more famous spooks the boys meet are Captain Kidd, Aaron Burr, and Henry Hudson." Library J

Reviewed by Jane Cobb
Atlantic 182:120 N '48 50w

Booklist 44:358 Je 15 '48

"Unusual, well-sustained series of ghostly lore."

+ Kirkus 16:145 Mr 15 '48 110w

"A good piece of Americana for boys and girls 10-14. Recommended." H. M. Brogan

+ Library J 73:881 Je 1 '48 60w

"Right on time for camps—where dreadnaughts of ten or twelve like nothing better than testing each others nerves—come these ghost stories from the Upper Hudson Valley, where they have been going on so long that whether they happened or not they are practically historical. Mr. Jones, who rounds them up in the experiences of two boys, is head of New York State Historical Association and knows not only who's who in ghosts but what's what and what to do with them." M. L. Becker

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Je 6 '48 320w

"Louis Jones has written an excellent adventure story, in modern setting, around nine traditional ghost tales and a colorful assortment of other folklore and songs. The scenes are realistic and convincing, the action is swiftly paced and the illustrations are appropriate. Although sufficiently scary, 'Spooks of the Valley' will not terrify 10 to 15 year old readers. Indeed, it will undoubtedly stimulate many of them to learn more of the legends of this or their own region." W. G. Tyrrell

+ N Y Times p29 My 23 '48 180w

Reviewed by W. G. Tyrrell
+ Sat R of Lit 31:34 Je 12 '48 100w

Wis Lib Bul 44:135 Je '48

JONES, MARC EDMUND. Occult philosophy; an introduction, the major concepts and a glossary. 436p $3.50 McKay

133 Occult sciences 48-5791

An exposition of the three "mysteries:" profane, lunar, and solar; and a history of occult origins and developments, with an account of the various schools of thought and points of view. The book is a revision and expansion of the athor's Key Truths of Occult Philosophy, published in 1925. There is a glossary and an index.

Christian Century 65:710 Jl 14 '48 290w

"Mr. Jones does admirably in explaining to non-occultists just what the occultists are driving at, and may even encourage some in approaching the first veil. He is laboring under extreme difficulties, however, in being forced to include a glossary of a thousand terms or more to which the neophyte must continually turn if he is not to be hopelessly bogged down in unfamiliar expressions. Often even a trip to the glossary availeth not, which leaves the neophyte ready to decide that it is not a veil he is approaching but an iron curtain." R. F. H.

Springf'd Republican p10B Ap 18 '48 240w

JONES, MARY ALICE. Jesus and his friends; il. by Nedda Walker. 80p $1.25 Rand McNally

232.9 Jesus Christ—Juvenile literature 47-11759

Stories telling the life of Jesus from the first visit to the temple at Jerusalem to the crucifixion. The disciples Simon Peter, Andrew, James and John appear in many of the stories. For grades 4-5.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p31 D 20 '47 100w

Kirkus 15:625 N 15 '47 90w

Wis Lib Bul 44:23 Ja '48

JONES, MARY ALICE. Tell me about prayer; il. by Dorothy Grider from figures by Pelagie Doane. 72p $2 Rand McNally

248 Prayer. Children's prayers 48-8775

"Through conversations between a little boy and his parents, and in relation to the child's everyday living, the author explains the meaning of and types of prayer, and suggests how to give spontaneous expression to personal feelings of praise and worship." (Booklist) Includes prayers for all occasions.

"Some of the prayers included seem a little difficult for the children to whom the narrative of the book is addressed."

Booklist 45:108 N 15 '48

"Here is a fresh approach to prayer, meaningfully and personally related to the child's everyday living."

+ Kirkus 16:526 O 1 '48 120w

"Some explanations will not be congenial to all sects, but the book is free of dogma. Recommended for ages 5-10." M. J. Meade

Library J 73:1826 D 15 '48 60w

Wis Lib Bul 45:15 Ja '49

JONES, NARD. The island. 339p $3.50 Sloane 48-9337

Pictures the lives of two Seattle men, Jack Madcliff and Lou Benedict, during World war II, and in the years between the two wars. Lou Benedict is the narrator, and the story is told partly in flashbacks to college days, and to Jack's two marriages. It ends with Jack's suicide in Atlantic City.

Booklist 45:120 D 1 '48

Reviewed by E. A. Cooper
Commonweal 49:236 D 10 '48 420w

"A novel of more than regional appeal, this offers well defined clashes of temperament and psychology."
+ Kirkus 16:450 S 1 '48 220w

"Forcefully written, with excellent characterization and a fine restraint, it deserves wide reading." J. E. Cross
+ Library J 73:1511 O 15 '48 80w

" 'The Island' is so matter-of-factly written that it gives the impression, almost to the point of embarrassment, of being drawn directly from life. It is, on the whole, a dead level performance which contributes little that is fresh to our understanding of the war-time period and the people who made it what it was." F. H. Bullock
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p24 N 21 '48 400w

Reviewed by Richard Match
N Y Times p45 D 5 '48 340w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 N 26 '48 850w

"Mr. Jones has gotten a lot off his chest. He writes a spare, concise, hard-hitting prose, and much of his book I found admirable. But the sound of the axe grinding rings rather unpleasantly in my ears." S. H. Hay
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:14 D 25 '48 550w

JONES, PARK J. Petroleum production: 5v; v 4; Condensate production and cycling. 238p il $5 Reinhold

665.5 Petroleum (46-1915)

"Fourth in a series of highly technical volumes covering the engineering aspects of petroleum production. This volume covers Foundations—condensation in reservoirs, injection into rich gas, injection into water production by expansion, economics of condensate production —and Applications—radial and elongated and linear reservoirs, and maximum efficient rate." Library J

"The shortcomings of the book are really shortcomings of knowledge with respect to synthetic fuels and their production. The section on gasification and the preparation of synthesis gas from coal indicates that a large amount of work remains to be done in this field. Since it is under intensive research now, major steps forward should be made within the next year or two." W. C. Schroeder
Chem & Eng N 26:2918 S 27 '48 450w

Reviewed by J. F. Cosgrave
Chem Eng 55:322 O '48 200w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1032 Jl '48 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:74 S '48

JONES, PHILIP WELDON. Practical job evaluation; the applications of wage determination to wage structures. 304p il $4 Wiley

658.322 Job analysis. Wages 48-6683

"Presents the practical aspects of job evaluation and points out the actual problems and pitfalls in formulating and installing a uniform wage program, together with tested means for solving and avoiding them." (Special Libraries) Supplementary reading. Index.

Booklist 44:347 Je 15 '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:481 Mr 15 '48 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:41 My '48

Special Libraries 39:23 Ja '48

JONES, RUFUS MATTHEW. Call to what is vital. 143p $2 Macmillan

230 Religion and science. Christianity 48-8601

"This posthumous book proclaims the author's profound conviction that human life must be undergirded by spiritual vision, and that now, in this present climate of thought, a reinterpretation of religious concepts is necessary, to awaken in the soul of man a consciousness of his true inheritance and destiny. Rufus Jones touches upon many subjects and brings together diverse religious experiences and historical events in order to make clear his central thesis that without religious faith—its discipline and devotion—man cannot attain maturity and full stature." Survey G

Booklist 45:82 N 1 '48

"In writing this book, Rufus Jones has done a genuine service not only to the individual seeker but to organized religion. He has charted for the church a fresh pathway, one which this reviewer is convinced it must follow in order to fulfill its function in today's world. Both the richness of this seer's vision and the widespread hunger for such an interpretation of religion cry out for the church to accept this clear challenge." Barbara Winne
+ Christian Century 65:1303 D 1 '48 1200w

Reviewed by J. A. C. F. Auer
Christian Science Monitor p11 D 9 '48 700w

Reviewed by G. W. Davis
Crozer Q 26:81 Ja '49 500w

"It is a book especially designed for intellectuals and it will appeal especially to those who are open to the mystical approach to religion."
+ Kirkus 16:512 O 1 '48 170w

"Recommended for all libraries." O. G. Lawson
+ Library J 73:1189 S 1 '48 130w

Reviewed by K. N. Rhoades
+ Survey G 37:478 N '48 550w

JONES, RUFUS MATTHEW, ed. Church, the gospel and war [contributors: Charles E. Raven and others]. 169p $2 Harper

261 War and religion 48-2468

A collection of papers setting forth the Christian pacifist position. Contents: The renunciation of war, by C. E. Raven; The gospel basis of pacifism, by C. P. Gliddon; The philosophy of Christian pacifism, by Percy Hartill; The Christian and war, by H. H. Farmer; The early church and war, by R. H. Bainton; Christianity and the peace movement, by K. S. Latourette; Military necessity, by Laurence Housman; Just wars and the theologians, by E. I. Watkin; Modern war and the world Christian mission, by C. W. Iglehart; Atomic slaughter confronts the churches, by Kirby Page; The church must repudiate war, by Evelyn Underhill.

"This is the latest and perhaps the best handbook of Christian pacifism." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 65:513 My 26 '48 50w

"Pacifists will find here refreshment and rekindling; non-pacifists, a deeply stirring challenge which may well make of Christianity itself a more glowing and adventurous summons than they had suspected." T. D. Mygatt
+ Churchman 162:17 S 1 '48 150w

"The present book is to be welcomed as a vigorous expression of the pacifistic faith, despite the mystical and irrational tendencies in the philosophy of the latter and the illicit abstractionism in its ethics." A. C. Knudson
+ — Crozer Q 25:363 O '48 900w

"It is to be hoped that many besides those who are already convinced pacifists will read this book. They may not agree with the conclusions of the writers but they may find their own hysteria tempered or their own despair lightened."
+ Kirkus 16:285 Je 15 '48 170w

JONES, VIRGIL CARRINGTON. The Hatfields and the McCoys. 293p $4 il Univ. of N.C. press

364.256 Hatfield-McCoy feud 48-5850

"History of the most famous mountain feud of the last century from the time a Hatfield and a McCoy went to court over a razorback hog to the day, over fifty years later, when sons of the two leaders shook hands and had their pictures taken at Pikesville, Kentucky. Between these dates a clan war had been fought which involved two states in the dispute and finally reached the Supreme Court." Library J

Reviewed by E. C. Burnett
Am Hist R 53:903 Jl '48 440w

Booklist 44:276 Ap 15 '48

Current Hist 14:234 Ap '48 70w

Kirkus 16:135 Mr 1 '48 170w

Reviewed by G. D. McDonald
Library J 73:555 Ap 1 '48 100w

Reviewed by McAlister Coleman
Nation 167:163 Ag 7 '48 1000w

"More journalistic than the usual university press book, 'The Hatfields and the McCoys' is certainly more exciting; if it does not hold every reader to the very end he is hard to please. Somebody is murdered on almost every page." E. H. Smith
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Ap 11 '48 290w

"Virgil Carrington Jones has presented the first factual account of the famous quarrel. The story that emerges in this action-packed book proves even more fantastic than legend suggested it to be. . . Mr. Jones, who has conducted intense personal research in connection with this book, has drawn two magnificent characters in the patriarchs, the undisputed family dictators and generals of mountain warfare, Randolph McCoy and William ('Devil Anse') Hatfield. Numerous photographs of unsmiling mountaineers, of the feud sites and pages of old newspapers that tell the tale, augment the text." Anne Chamberlain
+ N Y Times p29 Ap 25 '48 490w

New Yorker 24:106 Ap 24 '48 120w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ap 8 '48 600w

Reviewed by Jonathan Daniels
Sat R of Lit 31:15 Je 5 '48 550w

Time 51:98 Ap 19 '48 700w

"A searing, pitiable story, told with unusual restraint and objectivity by an accomplished Virginian journalist."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p27 Ja 8 '49 420w

JORDAN, ALICE MABEL. From Rollo to Tom Sawyer, and other papers; decorations by Nora S. Unwin. 160p $3.75 Horn bk.

028.5 Children's literature—History and criticism 48-9996

"This is a survey of the books and writers of the nineteenth century who were among the first to produce books exclusively for children. The author says the book makes no claim to be more than footnotes to the complete history of American children's books, greatly needed, but as yet not written." School & Society

Booklist 45:171 Ja 15 '49

"Rich in flavor and authenticity. Indispensable in any study of literature for children." A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 24:349 S '48 30w

"Some books give us the impression of having been written overnight, others bear unmistakably upon them the marks of having been lived with a long time, becoming richer as they slowly ripen. It is without question to the latter category that this collection of papers belongs. . . We realize that Miss Jordan's book is the fruit of a long and intimate acquaintance with books and children worked upon by a fertilizing imagination, a book not only of practical use to the student of children's literature both for its factual content and its stimulus to further reading, but one which holds the promise of entertainment for any booklover. . . One can think of no higher praise for a book on children's literature than to say that it reminds one of Miss Hewins and her enchanting memories of her childhood reading." Marcia Dalphin
+ Horn Bk 24:469 N '48 1550w

"Beautifully designed . . . this book is a feast to eye and mind. Its value will increase as Americans become increasingly conscious of their inheritance in art and literature. . . All book-lovers owe a debt of gratitude to the Horn Book and to Nora Unwin for presenting this wise analysis in so lovely a format." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 Ja 8 '49 260w

School & Society 68:414 D 11 '48 60w

JORDAN, MILDRED A. (MRS J. LEE BAUSHER). Asylum for the queen. 446p $3.50 Knopf

48-1018

Romantic novel about the part played by the Pennsylvania Village of Asylum in the French revolution. The hero is a youthful French aristocrat who worships the queen and goes to Asylum to prepare for her coming to America. After her death and the hope of the lost Dauphin has failed he returns to his native land, and pledges his allegiance to the new order there.

Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '48

"The author, whose One Red Rose Forever won many admirers, shows greater maturity and sureness in this more ambitious work."
+ Kirkus 16:121 Mr 1 '48 300w

"Gives a fine picture of France during the Revolution and Colonial America. Recommended." Katharine Shorey
+ Library J 73:707 My 1 '48 70w

Reviewed by George Conrad
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 Jl 18 '48 350w

"The story . . . gives Miss Jordan full opportunity to display her fine narrative gift in its gaudiest expression to date. Her book is resplendent with period glitter. It is full of the political fury of that desparate time. In about equal parts it combines adventure, sex, actual events, violence, spectacle, gore, learning and love; it is a happy, and sometimes horrendous, blending of Hollywood and history. Though it is improbable that anyone will call it a great book, many will with complete justice describe it as an entertaining one." Charles Lee
+ — N Y Times p6 My 9 '48 850w

"Miss Jordan was four years writing this book. She brings to it that intangible sense of expectancy, that feeling of 'on the eve,' as different from the ordinary suspense motive as a rose is from a radish. Her story takes full cognizance of flesh and spirit. You are fairly immersed in life as you read, both in grossness and in the glory of the flesh, but at the same time, you are lifted out of it to get the long view. You'll find your demands answered in 'Asylum for the Queen,' a swift, colorful story, giving expression to both the active and the contemplative side of living." Jane Voiles
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 My 24 '48 950w

JORDAN, PHILIP DILLON. National road. (American trails ser) 442p il $4 Bobbs

973 National road 48-6393

History of the old National road or Cumberland road (now called U.S. 40) and the opening up of the territory thru which it passed. Altho the road was begun at Cumberland, Maryland in 1807, the book begins with George Washington's attempt to negotiate with the French and Indians in 1753. The history of the road is traced as it advanced across a small part of Pennsylvania, and what is now the West Virginia road to Wheeling. For a time it was delayed by Congress and engineering difficulties but eventually it crossed Ohio, Indiana, and into Illinois. Bibliographical note. Index.

Booklist 44:310 My 15 '48

Reviewed by E. S. Watson
Chicago Sun Je 15 '48 550w

Christian Science Monitor p12 My 22 '48 650w

"There is an excellent index and bibliography about the Cumberland Road, and to read the book is to get 'good holt' on America's continuing restless history."
+ Commonweal 48:680 Ap 30 '48 260w

"Philip Jordan has written an excellent book on an interesting subject. He has interpreted his task widely and found a wealth of new and highly entertaining material that he has somehow managed to link with the National Road." Avery Craven
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Ap 18 '48 1150w

"An excellent study. Neither the political and economic background nor the road's historical importance is slighted. But Mr. Jordan has also drawn on unpublished reminiscences and journals to show what the road meant to farmers, horse-traders, immigrants, merchants, foreign travelers, editors, express riders, entertainers, hunters, and drovers. . . The average reader will care less for the chapters dealing with legislation and financing succinctly informative as they are, than for the discussions of stage coaches, highwaymen, droving, freighting, public health, and popular legend. Yet the material is so well integrated that it is difficult to separate the economic from the social." J. T. Flanagan
+ N Y Times p22 My 9 '48 500w

Reviewed by Ruth Teiser
San Francisco Chronicle p16 My 13 '48 800w

JOSEPH, SISTER MIRIAM. See Miriam Joseph, Sister

JOSEPHS, RAY. Latin America: continent in crisis. 503p $4.50 Random house

918 South America—Description and travel
48-7987

Political, economic, and social conditions, and personalities in postwar Latin America, as seen by the author on a trip taken from June 1947 to June 1948. The tour started in Cuba, and ended in Brazil, omitting Paraguay. An epilogue describes the results of the Pan American conference at Bogotá. Index.

"A methodical, all-inclusive topical report, written in a brisk journalese which enables the reader to absorb a hundred-weight of facts and still find the going fairly easy." C. J. Rolo
+ Atlantic 182:105 S '48 800w

Booklist 45:30 S 15 '48

Reviewed by Melanie Pflaum
Chicago Sun Ag 25 '48 320w

Cleveland Open Shelf p21 D '48

"Occasional personal bits, pen portraits, anecdotes give a sense of something more than the closely reasoned, objective analysis of the greater part of the text. Not as exciting reading as Argentine Diary but essential for understanding the dangers overhanging our neighbor to the south."
Kirkus 16:298 Je 15 '48 170w

"Author of Argentine Diary [Book Review Digest 1944] has chalked up another exciting book to his credit. . . Among the highlights of this readable volume is his appreciative estimate of Haya de la Torre." Joseph Borome
+ Library J 73:1023 Jl '48 130w

"I am sorry that Josephs passed over the interesting and unhappy land of Paraguay and that his writing is not more graceful—once he seems to refer to himself, rather than to one Guzman de Rosa, as 'a small, passionate, dynamic hypochondriac.' He has none the less interesting and pertinent things to say." Richard Watts
New Repub 119:23 Ag 23 '48 1300w

"The method serves to give the down-to-earth Yankee mind things definite to hold on to, which is all to the good. But something, too, is lost when Latin-American life and thought, so characteristically soaked in the juices of their appropriate emotions, have been completely dejuiced. . . Moreover, his method of checking his judgments against the comments of the articulate tends to weight them slightly in favor of the Communists. . . Yet, I must hasten to add, Mr. Josephs has given us the best overall picture of the Communist movement in Latin America that has so far been made available. Best of all is the author's picture of Peru, where his sense of a major conflict brewing is ably communicated, and his picture of the Argentine, to which he brings the background of his previous 'Argentine Diary.' " B. D. Wolfe
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 S 5 '48 800w

"A generally well-informed, easily read, journalistic survey of contemporary conditions, more comprehensive than profound, but at least the work of a competent, hard-working reporter who has lived and labored at his profession in the territory he covers. . . Mr. Josephs' excellent Argentine chapters should be read by all those who assume that Perón has changed or has improved with responsibility. . . Although there are minor errors in the book, in comparison with some recent volumes on South America, this one is a model of sobriety, accuracy, and judgment." Herschel Brickell
+ — N Y Times p3 Ag 22 '48 1450w

Reviewed by C. W. Weinberger
San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ag 29 '48 650w

"No developing action here gives plot unity to the author's reflections and reportage. Nothing climactic happens even to Mr. Josephs. The result is a book half again as long as 'Argentine Diary.' It is distinguished here and there by sprightly writing and crammed with information, some of it already dated. But incessant 'my day' presentation makes throughout for unnecessary fragmentation, tiresomeness, and considerable repetition." Duncan Aikman
— + Sat R of Lit 31:18 Ag 21 '48 600w

Wis Lib Bul 44:184 N '48

JOUGHIN, GEORGE LOUIS, and MORGAN, EDMUND MORRIS. Legacy of Sacco and Vanzetti; with an introd. by Arthur M. Schlesinger. 598p $6 Harcourt

343.1 Sacco, Nicola. Vanzetti, Bartolomeo
48-8820

"The collaborative work of a Professor at Harvard Law, and a Professor at the N.Y. School for Social Research, this is an intensive study of the impact of the Sacco-Vanzetti case on American law, literature and society. A tripartite analysis: the legacy to the law, doubt; the legacy to the people, conflict; the legacy to literature, faith." (Kirkus) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:172 Ja 15 '49

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun N 12 '48 270w

"The book is presented as 'a study of the impact of the Sacco-Vanzetti case upon American law, society, and literature.' It succeeds in its object to a remarkable degree. Because it covers such a vast field, no mention of its details in a short review could possibly do justice to the work. One must read the book really to appreciate the fairness and thoroughness with which the authors approach their task." H. B. Ehrmann
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 O 25 '48 800w

"A book of lasting value and notable timeliness." Mason Wade
+ Commonweal 49:96 N 5 '48 1250w

"A re-assessment, on many levels, of the greatest judicial question mark since the Dreyfus affair, this is important legally, sociologically—but of limited interest for a general audience."
Kirkus 16:550 O 1 '48 130w

"It is a very useful and, at the same time, readable work." Walter Hausdorfer
+ Library J 73:1512 O 15 '48 140w

Reviewed by M. A. Musmanno
+ New Repub 119:25 D 13 '48 1150w

JOUGHIN, G. L.—Continued

"Cooperation between the two scholars appears to have been both easy and fruitful. . . The value of Professor Morgan's analysis is his careful judicious appraisal, so thoroughly done that further dissent from the views he states seems difficult indeed. . . The timeliness of this book is that once more we are in the midst of a wave of hysteria against all radicals which may easily lead to another such case as this." C. E. Clark

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 O 10 '48 1700w

"A definitive history of the case. . . Professor Morgan's careful review of the evidence, notable alike for its clarity and its fairness, acknowledges that there were against the defendants a series of coincidences which prima facie were dreadfully damning. . . Professors Joughin and Morgan conclude that Sacco and Vanzetti were the victims of a sick society, in which prejudice, chauvinism, hysteria and malice were endemic. Few who will read this moving work will doubt that they have proved their point." F. S. Adams

+ N Y Times p6 O 10 '48 800w

New Yorker 24:132 N 6 '48 160w

Springf'd Republican p12C D 12 '48 500w

JOY, CHARLES RHIND, ed. See Schweitzer, A. Albert Schweitzer; an anthology

JOY, CHARLES RHIND, and ARNOLD, MELVIN. Africa of Albert Schweitzer; with a concluding essay by Albert Schweitzer. [160p] il $3.75 Harper

B or 92 Schweitzer, Albert. Lambarene, Gabon 48-9372

In pictures and text the authors tell the story of Dr Schweitzer's life and labors in French Equatorial Africa.

Booklist 45:177 Ja 15 '49

"The authors, equipped with intelligence, sympathy and good cameras, made a visit of several weeks to Lambaréné. The result is a book with more pictures than text—very good pictures and excellent text—presenting almost every aspect of life at the hospital and in the surrounding forest." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 65:1338 D 8 '48 80w

"This is a most interesting and valuable addition to the rapidly growing body of literature dealing with the life and work and personality of Albert Schweitzer."

+ Kirkus 16:595 N 15 '48 120w

Nation 167:674 D 11 '48 40w

"The authors want the world to know of the trail-blazing medical work carried on by Schweitzer. . . Their effort deserves attention. . . Unfortunately, though, their intentions aren't matched by their skill. Too many insignificant details clutter up their report. The photographs, at their best, are average and their juxtaposition to the text is not good. . . Nevertheless, the authors manage, in a fashion, to present the problems faced by the Schweitzer hospital." Richard Plant

— + N Y Times p36 D 5 '48 650w

New Yorker 24:166 N 20 '48 100w

"The text is not overly well arranged and is occasionally repetitive. The awkward typographical method employed—page-filling picture captions, whose type doesn't differ from that of the running narrative and interrupts it at every other page—is an additional handicap to the enjoyment of what, such shortcomings notwithstanding, is still an inspiring book." Robert Pick

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:17 D 25 '48 600w

JUDSON, CLARA (INGRAM) (MRS J. M. JUDSON). Reaper man; the story of Cyrus Hall McCormick; il. by Paul Brown. 156p $2.50 Houghton

B or 92 McCormick, Cyrus Hall—Juvenile literature 48-7696

"Cyrus Hall McCormick, inventor of the revolutionizing reaper, is the subject of this fictionized biography. It describes his years of experimentation on the home farm in Virginia, his failures and successes, and his later years as manufacturer of farm machinery in Chicago." Booklist

"Very readable but quite uncritical."

Booklist 45:16 S 1 '48

Commonweal 49:155 N 19 '48 20w

"The results of a boy's ingenuity and imagination may well be a stimulating example to many young inventors." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 24:374 S '48 120w

Kirkus 16:338 Jl 15 '48 160w

"Recommended for any school library; would be useful in social studies classes as well as for general reading." Nelle McCalla

+ Library J 73:1285 S 15 '48 100w

"Miss Judson, in the first half of her book, has written a story any boy or girl will enjoy—the story of a boy growing up in Virginia in the first half of the last century, of his friend Jo, of life on a wheat farm, of his early inventions. . . But young readers may lose interest from here on, because the tale becomes that of a grown-up Cyrus. . . Paul Brown's sketches of reapers, from the primitive sickle to the great harvester that cuts fifty acres a day, are good." Margaret Ernst

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 S 12 '48 400w

New Yorker 24:146 D 11 '48 80w

Sat R of Lit 31:38 N 13 '48 260w

Wis Lib Bul 44:152 S '48

JUNGER, ERNST. On the marble cliffs; tr. from the German by Stuart Hood. 120p $2.50 New directions 48-2722

Translation of a short novel which appeared in Germany in 1939. It is an allegory describing a never-never land which is taken over by somebody called the Chief Ranger. The Chief Ranger is the leader of a people called the Mauretanians; the land they invade is peaceful and pastoral until the onslaught of the followers of the Chief Ranger. The book is definitely anti-Nazi.

"The book is very rewarding for those who are interested in the doublings and windings of the post-Nazi German conscience; unless, to be sure, you can get to a revival of Chaplin's Great Dictator. If that is possible, go and study the role of Commander Schultz in that picture, and you will learn from it all you ever need to know about the psychology of anti-Nazi Nazis." Northrop Frye

Canadian Forum 27:283 Mr '48 1200w

Reviewed by H. A. Reinhold

Commonweal 48:639 Ap 16 '48 450w

"It is an anti-Nazi document, but it is also one of the most beautiful novels of imagination of modern Germany, an allegory in the grand symbolist manner of the death of a civilization." Louis Clair

+ Nation 166:357 Mr 27 '48 1000w

"If we accept the author as an anti-Nazi, On the Marble Cliffs is mainly interesting today for its glimpses into the non-Nazi German character, with its detached concern for culture, its apparent defeatism but pride in battle, and, underneath it all, its conviction of the innate superiority of the intellectual and the 'gentleman' over the common run of men. The reader's enjoyment in the book will depend entirely on his individual capacity to find his way in a lush maze of recondite parables and musings." A. L. Goodman

New Repub 118:30 Mr 22 '48 800w

Reviewed by Hiram Haydn

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 Ag 8 '48 700w

"Juenger's prose full of chthonic symbols and allegoric allusions, is flexible and rich; the translator has succeeded in rendering it into an equally melodious English. But the volume, despite its poetical merits and its unmistakable challenge to Hitlerism, fails to uplift the reader because of its impotent hopelessness." Alfred Werner

— + N Y Times p22 Ap 4 '48 600w

"Mr. Juenger's allegory, which is full of the same sort of hobgoblinism that the Nazis themselves went in for—skulls, torches, midnight revels, and so on—is so murky that most readers are likely to miss the point. The translation doesn't help, either."

New Yorker 24:116 Mr 20 '48 140w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 My 16 '48 150w

"In 'On the Marble Cliffs,' Juenger distinctly deviated from his former work. . . As example of the 'art of polished darkness' which today, as under the Nazis, gives shelter to a lot of ambiguous opinions, and as material for the study of the camouflaged opposition to Nazi barbarism from an outraged esthete's point of view, the American edition of 'On the Marble Cliffs' has certainments. The translation does justice to Juenger's style, which is lush and yet at the same time manages to be crisp." F. C. Weiskopf

+ Sat R of Lit 31:15 Ap 10 '48 700w

Time 51:113 Mr 15 '48 1000w

JUNGER, ERNST. The peace; tr. from the German by Stuart O. Hood; introd. by Louis Clair. (Humanist lib) 77p $2 Regnery

172.4 World war, 1939-1945—Peace

"The Peace was begun in 1941 and finished, in Paris, 1943. The work of a former German nationalist, it regards nationalism as one of the necessary sacrifices of the war; written when German military power was at its peak, it foresees the inevitability of Allied victory. It is a plea for a peace based on the renunciation of nationalism and the affirmation of the essential dignity and ultimate responsibility of the individual." Publisher's note

"The Peace, which Juenger declined to alter after the German defeat, is not only a highly prophetic piece of writing in the finest literary style . . . but it is also a blueprint for the sound peace which should have followed this terrible massacre." Erik von Kuehnelt-Leddihn

+ Cath World 168:171 N '48 250w

"Recommended for larger libraries." F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 73:648 Ap 15 '48 170w

"Jünger presents a broad and rather ambiguous plan for a federation of Europe as the only postwar solution. . . Jünger's quaint belief that the Nazi conquests could have been the first step toward such a federation had Germany not 'repeated the errors of Versailles' in its treatment of the conquered peoples, his comfortable assurance that the Versailles Treaty alone caused the Second World War and his complete failure to grasp how hated Germany had become, give a touch of fantasy to all his proposals and make one wonder what his ideal federation would be like. And despite his cries for a lasting peace, he cannot conceal his affection for the military and his excitement in the heroism and sacrifices of war. The Peace repudiates nationalism quâ nationalism (for reasons open to several interpretations), but it is peculiarly 'German' in its outlook." A. L. Goodman

— New Repub 119:24 Ag 23 '48 290w

Reviewed by Asher Brynes

Sat R of Lit 31:15 Ag 7 '48 130w

School & Society 68:63 Jl 24 '48 50w

"[The essay] is sensitively written but it is certainly not original." Donald Derby

+ Springf'd Republican p8B Ag 15 '48 170w

JUSTUS, MAY. Susie; il. by Christine Chisholm. 46p $1.50 Whitman, A.

48-902

Story of a peddler's visit to Susie's home in the Tennessee mountains. For ages 7-12.

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun Ag 7 '48 110w

"Excellent supplementary reading as well as entertainment."

+ Kirkus 16:109 Mr 1 '48 110w

"Authentic regional material with fine illustrations. . . Fourth and fifth grades." Margaret Taylor

+ Library J 73:561 Ap 1 '48 90w

Springf'd Republican p10B My 30 '48 150w

Wis Lib Bul 44:106 My '48

K

KAESE, HAROLD. Boston Braves. 269p il $3 Putnam

796.357 Boston. Baseball club (National league) 48-1948

An informal history of the Boston Braves, which goes back to 1871. Illustrated with photographs. No index.

"Because the winning record of this team has not been high since 1900 and it has fewer players listed with baseball's immortals, this book may not be so popular with the fans as those about more outstanding teams. This is not without color and interest, however."

Booklist 44:309 My 15 '48

Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Jl '48

Kirkus 16:210 Ap 15 '48 50w

"Full, detailed, well written and illustrated." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 73:711 My 1 '48 20w

N Y Times p25 Je 13 '48 180w

Springf'd Republican p10B Ap 11 '48 360w

KAFKA, FRANZ. Diaries [2v; v. 1] 1910-1913; ed. by Max Brod [tr. by Joseph Kresh]. 345p $3.75 Schocken

B or 92 (48-6432)

The first of a two-volume edition of Kafka's diaries. This is the first time the complete diaries have been published in any language. The present volume covers three years of the author's life with his family in Prague. There are accounts of his dreams, notes on the Yiddish theater troupe, and original stories.

Booklist 44:351 Je 15 '48

"Even in his diaries Kafka is consciously the artist. These carefully worded entries have an impersonal flavor. They are not hasty jottings-down of the events and emotions of the day, but studied monologues on some minor impression. . . Here as in his novels he keeps his sense of frustration and bewilderment firmly in leash to serve the purpose of artistic form." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 65:734 Jl 21 '48 140w

Reviewed by Anne Fremantle

Commonweal 48:212 Je 11 '48 430w

"Important item, of interest to Kafka addicts."

+ Kirkus 16:138 Mr 1 '48 170w

"Max Brod as literary executor of the Kafka heritage has done a fine job of editing and Kresh's translation is excellent. This is an essential book for those interested in the development of the Kafka cult and it will provide much evidence pro and con Kafka's genius." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 73:555 Ap 1 '48 100w

Manchester Guardian p3 N 1 '48 210w

Reviewed by Irving Howe

Nation 166:476 My 1 '48 1200w

"What one chiefly misses is the humor of Kafka's formal work. . . The Diaries are painful almost without relief, dark, close, obsessive, full of 'sorrow and fear,' 'weakness and cowardice' and 'the nearness of insanity.'" John Farrelly

New Repub 118:23 My 10 '48 1200w

Reviewed by E. S. West

New Statesman & Nation 36:527 D 11 '48 480w

Reviewed by J. B. Martin

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Je 27 '48 1950w

KAFKA, FRANZ—Continued

"The general impression one gets from the 'Diaries' is that of an utterly tormented mind, disassociated from itself, from the body housing it and from reality as a whole. What seems to hold it together is a kind of ruthless honesty and self-awareness, to the point where Kafka can actually speak of his fear of going insane." William Phillips

N Y Times p4 Ag 8 '48 950w

New Yorker 24:62 Jl 31 '48 90w

"This book is not just for persons interested in the life and times of a writer. It is a book that will add to the Kafka legend; it will clear up a few puzzling things about Kafka; it will add many more." Alfred Kay

+ San Francisco Chronicle p11 Ag 15 '48 850w

Reviewed by Marjorie Brace

Sat R of Lit 31:15 My 29 '48 420w

Reviewed by Nigel Balchin

Spec 181:374 S 17 '48 450w

Time 51:94 My 31 '48 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p638 N 13 '48 290w

KAFKA, FRANZ. Parables, in German and English [tr. by Willa Muir, and others]. 127p $1.50 Schocken

838 47-12201

Brief fragments from the writings of Franz Kafka, some of them published for the first time in English. They were assembled from his notebooks, short pieces, and in one instance his novel, The Trial. Both German and English texts are given.

Booklist 44:186 Ja 15 '48

Christian Century 65:240 F 25 '48 100w

"Kafka Parables are almost too terrible to bear: luckily one can read a snippet, and then come up for air, and take a deep breath before diving again. Clement Greenberg's translations are particularly good." A. F.

Commonweal 47:405 Ja 30 '48 40w

Reviewed by William Phillips

N Y Times p4 Ag 8 '48 110w

"A few of the pieces are sprightly, but many are simply the dull and uncompleted jottings of a major writer, interesting only to his most devoted fans."

New Yorker 23:145 D 13 '47 120w

KAFKA, FRANZ. Penal colony; stories and short pieces; tr. by Willa and Edwin Muir. 320p $3 Schocken

48-9743

"Comprises everything that Kafka either published himself or authorized for publication during his lifetime. It closely approximates the first volume of the original German 'Gesammelte Schriften,' edited by Max Brod in 1935. Some of the better known prose pieces have been available in English before, but thanks to Kafka's faithful publishers, the American reader can now buy all his short prose (some posthumously published fragments excepted) in one handy volume." Sat R of Lit

Booklist 45:192 F 1 '49

"For anyone who has never ventured into Franz K.'s symbolic world, this book is an excellent beginning."

+ Commonweal 49:382 Ja 21 '49 80w

Kirkus 16:576 N 1 '48 130w

"For those who have yet to read Kafka's writings, the present volume is the best introduction; and for those who know his work well, 'The Penal Colony' provides one of the best translations of his stories into English. It should not be forgotten that half of his present translating-team, Edwin Muir, is a fine and sensitive poet in his own right. If Kafka has at times suffered from the zeal of his 'interpreters,' he has at last found an appropriate translator, who was, indeed, among the first to discover his merits." Horace Gregory

+ N Y Times p6 D 12 '48 650w

New Yorker 24:71 Ja 29 '49 80w

"This reviewer does not agree with those critics who consider Franz Kafka one of the truly great writers of our time. There are technical shortcomings in his work as well as deep gaps in his spiritual world. Yet there is no modern author more fascinating, more puzzling, more challenging, and—unfortunately—more characteristic for the malignant frustration of modern man." Claude Hill

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:8 D 25 '48 700w

KAGAWA, TOYOHIKO, and COLE, FRANKLIN. Willow and the bridge; poems and meditations. 84p $1.50 Assn. press

895.61 47-12006

Writings of the "Japanese St Francis" and an American minister expressing their Christian faith. There are poems by both men and meditations by Dr. Kagawa, edited with notes by Chaplain Cole. Some of the poems are about their war experiences.

Booklist 44:199 F 1 '48

"Poems and meditations touching in their very simplicity." M. L. Eglinton

+ Churchman 161:17 D 1 '47 120w

"The name of Kagawa has come to mean so much to Christians all over the world that any work of his will command attention. It cannot be hoped, however, that these poems will enhance Kagawa's reputation or establish one for Mr. Cole as a poet. There is so much of sentimentalism, such a weaving of vaguely spiritual wordings in this 'poetry' that it will take a well established hero worship of Kagawa to lead one on through the pages of this collection."

— + Kirkus 15:670 D 1 '47 120w

KAHLER, ALFRED, and HAMBURGER, ERNEST. Education for an industrial age. 334p $3.75 Cornell univ. press

371.426 Vocational education 48-2729

"This book, which attempts an evaluation of the present state of vocational education and training in the United States, with comparative notes on several European countries, grew out of a research project on 'Technological Trends and the Flexibility of Labor,' in which the Institute of World Affairs was engaged from 1943 to 1947." (Pref) Both the technical institution and the public school are studied. Index.

"In spite of its constructive and original qualities, the book's usefulness is handicapped by certain real shortcomings. One is the authors' failure systematically to apply their major premise (breaking down 'rigidities of labor' which threaten to restrain full productivity) to the existing of proposed methods of occupational preparation. . . Even more serious is the authors' failure, in analyzing restraints to the development of full production, to discover the greatest potential for increased productivity—the human individual." Edward Hachtel

Sat R of Lit 31:37 Je 5 '48 750w

School & Society 68:31 Je 10 '48 10w

KAHN, GORDON. Hollywood on trial; the story of the 10 who were indicted; foreword by Thomas Mann. 229p $2.75; pa $1 Boni & Gaer

323.4 Civil rights. U.S. Congress. House. Committee on un-American activities. Communism—U.S. 48-2154

An effort to state sympathetically the case of the ten Hollywood personalities who were cited for contempt of Congress because they refused to answer the House Un-American activities committee as to whether they were communists. The author himself very nearly was summoned to the witness stand as an "unfriendly" witness. Brief biographical sketches of the ten who were indicted.

Booklist 44:331 Je 1 '48

Reviewed by J. A. Lapp

Chicago Sun Ap 20 '48 500w

"It is a dull and tiresome story. . . A good deal of this testimony can hardly be called literate, and most of it is not intelligent. Any portrayal of a business-man, an industrial leader or a banker as anything but a ministering angel of generosity was regarded as subversive of the American way." P. S. Malone

Churchman 162:13 My 15 '48 1400w

"Suffers somewhat from emotional loading in presentation which tends to obscure the fundamental considerations." R. E. Kingery
Library J 73:653 Ap 15 '48 140w

Reviewed by A. S. Basel
New Repub 119:22 S 6 '48 800w

"The real story of 'Hollywood on Trial' is not what happened to the ten scriveners, but what happened to you and me. . . The business leaves us looking silly indeed. No matter what happens to the writers, the gentleman from New Jersey has made monkeys of all old-fashioned Americans. I, for one, don't like it." G. W. Johnson
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ap 11 '48 1250w

"Unfortunately, the author neglects what should be a major service of such a book as this—that is, a full-scale and objective analysis of the House Committee's work. Except by occasional reference, he fails to draw up an account of the shortcomings of the hearings, so far as concrete information is concerned. Also Mr. Kahn is much too sketchy in his documentation. He slurs too much. A little less flinging of rhetoric, a little less dramatic gesturing, and a good bit more solid reporting would have made this a more reliable book." Bosley Crowther
— N Y Times p24 Ap 11 '48 490w
New Yorker 24:109 Ap 24 '48 80w

Reviewed by F. P. Cohn
San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 12 '48 800w

"As far as it goes, this is a lively and provocative report of the political inquisition which was conducted last October, in the name of Americanism, by Congressman J. Parnell Thomas and sundry brethren of the House Committee on Un-American Activities. It is an able job of selective reporting but it leaves much to be desired. Also much to be reported." Emmet Lavery
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:25 Ap 17 '48 900w
Springf'd Republican p12B My 2 '48 420w

KAHNWEILER, DANIEL HENRY. Juan Gris; his life and work; tr. by Douglas Cooper. 177p il pl $15 Curt Valentin, 32 E. 57th st, N.Y. 22
B or 92 Gris, Juan A48-8452

"In 1906, at the age of 19, the Madrilene art student Juan Gris, fresh from the Academy teachings he disliked, arrived in Paris. . . From then until his death, Gris was a part of the advanced group of painters which included Picasso, Braque, and Léger, and collaborated with them in the development of cubism. . . In Daniel-Henry Kahnweiler, the life, art, and ideas of Gris have found an equally rare biographer. Kahnweiler knew Gris almost from the moment of his arrival in France, became his dealer in 1912, and remained his close friend." N Y Times

---

"The book is a model of devoted biography. It has been admirably translated by Douglas Cooper, who has added to it a set of plates chosen by himself, a chronological table, and an enlarged bibliography. The author and the translator have, in fact, combined to make a valuable contribution to the history of modern painting." E. N.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 6 '48 150w

Reviewed by Patrick Heron
New Statesman & Nation 35:239 Mr 20 '48 1200w

Reviewed by Walter Pach
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ja 4 '48 650w

"Kahnweiler was in an admirable position to write the history of Juan Gris' painting and the account of the birth and evolution of the cubist style. In this handsome volume he has done both, at length and in such documented detail that it will become a source book of the art of our time." Robert Goldwater
+ N Y Times p25 Ja 11 '48 1000w

"In this book, the first about Gris published in English, the author, who was his friend as well as his dealer, describes his life with sympathy and his work with respect and understanding. In addition, he has written an excellent memoir of the Cubist period in Paris."
+ New Yorker 23:87 Ja 24 '48 100w

"Mr. Kahnweiler is serious, devoted, discursive and unsparing. He has an endless resource of philosophic argument at his command." Lawrence Gowing
+ Spec 180:204 F 13 '48 800w
Times [London] Lit Sup p66 Ja 31 '48 800w

KAINZ, LUISE C., and RILEY, OLIVE LASETTE. Exploring art. 265p il $2.96 Harcourt
707 Art—Study and teaching 47-6641

"A high-school textbook on art appreciation that stresses basic appreciation of form, color, and texture and correlates art and everyday life by teaching appreciation not only of the fine arts of painting, sculpture, and drawing, but also of house decoration, commercial art crafts, architecture, and community planning." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 44:181 Ja 15 '48

"Many fine photographs and well-chosen problems and questions. There is much of interest to other than school people in this strongly bound book." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 24:283 Jl '48 100w

"Both chairmen of art in public schools in New York City, these authors are well qualified to describe artistic experience for young people. . . Recommended to students and teachers of secondary schools." J. F. Kennedy
+ Library J 73:659 Ap 15 '48 100w
School & Society 66:366 N 8 '47 10w
Wis Lib Bul 44:131 Je '48

KALLEN, HORACE MEYER. Liberal spirit; essays on problems of freedom in the modern world. 242p $3 Cornell univ. press
323.4 Liberty 48-7953

"The problem of freedom is tough, and likely to remain tough; complicated and likely to remain complicated. Mr. Kallen, Professor of Philosophy at the New School for Social Research, explores its many aspects in a series of papers, mostly undated and not really requiring dates." N Y Times

---

"While much of what he has to say about the rôle of religion in persecution and intolerance is indisputable, his statement would have been strengthened had he given some recognition to those religious leaders and societies—Fox, Penn, and the Friends, for example—who have played a not inconsiderable rôle in the development of the 'liberal spirit.' There is, however, depth as well as breadth in this book; and students of politics should find it rewarding." M. Q. Sibley
+ — Am Pol Sci R 42:1253 D '48 450w

"People who talk a lot about freedom had better read Mr. Kallen. He at least indicates that one can't have freedom by going out and yelling for it. One must do some painful thinking first." R. L. Duffus
+ N Y Times p6 S 19 '48 800w
School & Society 68:127 Ag 21 '48 10w

KAMAL, AHMAD. Full fathom five. 255p $2.75 Doubleday
48-8303

Dramatic tale of life among the Greek-American sponge fishers of the Gulf coast of Florida. It is the story of two brothers, Aleko and Paul Paradisis. Aleko, the older, loved his handsome young brother and watched over him and even tried to run his life. When Paul came back from World war II wounded and somehow different Aleko tried to straighten him out by strong arm methods and nearly wrecked all their lives.

KAMAL, AHMAD—Continued

Booklist 45:88 N 1 '48

"The setting and subject matter is unusual, but the story is unsavory reading."
Kirkus 16:318 Jl 1 '48 190w

"Includes many exciting and worthwhile descriptions of sponge-fishing and its hazards. A moving and sensitive story. Recommended." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 73:1090 Ag '48 80w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 S 26 '48 180w

"'Full Fathom Five' is the Gulf of Mexico come to life, its mysterious glistening quiet, its tempestuous treacherous storms, its fascinating creatures, some fierce, some friendly, who live beneath the water." Bayard Kendrick
+ N Y Times p16 S 12 '48 230w

"A novel starkly written, with great passion and suspense. The fact that Mr. Kamal has himself worked as a diver on one of these sponge boats, gives great reality to everything he writes. . . The result is a book of staccato power and vividness, although because he told it in the limited speech of the first person, I think he has failed stylistically to convey the richness and color and complexity of the Greek picture." M. S. Douglas
+ Sat R of Lit 31:19 S 11 '48 650w

KANE, HARNETT THOMAS. Bride of fortune. 301p $2.75 Doubleday

Davis, Varina (Howell)—Fiction. Davis, Jefferson—Fiction 48-8746

Pictures the life of the beautiful first lady of the Confederacy, Varina Howell Davis, from the time when she first met Jefferson Davis, to the day in 1867 when he was released from prison.

Booklist 45:66 O 15 '48

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun O 20 '48 600w

Reviewed by O. D. Hormel
Christian Science Monitor p11 O 7 '48 330w

"A warm, human and sympathetic story, inevitably glamorizing the cause of the South."
+ Kirkus 16:410 Ag 15 '48 220w

"An outstanding novel. . . Highly recommended." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 73:1384 O 1 '48 80w

"Mr. Kane's book is not marked by any subtleties of insight or of style. He gets on with his story with dispatch . . . and he rarely pauses to go beneath the surface of events or characters. He has obviously done more looking into records, however, than many an historical novelist, and he occasionally catches something of the quality which is present in the exchange of letters between Davis and his wife." Coleman Rosenberger
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 O 17 '48 1200w

"Through most of his story Mr. Kane maintains a nice balance between the personal and public life of the Davises. . . But essentially what Mr. Kane is telling, in a very readable prose, is a love story, the romance of Varina and Jefferson Davis, and how the highly strung, sensitive, somewhat frail Davis found in his efficient, brilliant wife the best possible helpmeet for his remarkable career." N. K. Burger
+ N Y Times p4 O 10 '48 700w

"You miss in this novel Mr. Kane's quick spinning of color and images that you find in his books about places as 'Plantation Parade' and 'Deep Delta Country.' But his recreation of two historic characters has much to recommend it. He has breathed life into them, given to their love story an enduring character." J. V.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p16 N 7 '48 350w

"The great fault of the book is its excessively romantic quality. . . Yet the book has merits which leave a distinct impression upon the reader: a vivid apprehension of time and place, a real grasp of the complex politics of the era, and above all an understanding of the unusual woman who always holds the center of the piece. Mr. Kane has given careful study to these years, using many libraries and consulting many authorities." Allan Nevins
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:18 O 9 '48 1050w

KANE, HENRY. Armchair in hell. 249p $2 Simon & Schuster 48-5116

Detective story.

"I regret to report that it seemed to me a bloody bore, a dizzying conglomerate of tortuous spontaneity, blinding irrelevancy, sedulous smartiness and unstinting vulgarity. A smirking, synthetic touch." James Sandoe
— Chicago Sun Ja 9 '48 80w

Kirkus 15:633 N 15 '47 50w

"The fastest, toughest job in years." E. H.
New Repub 118:30 Ja 19 '48 110w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 F 22 '48 100w

"Tough is the word for it—unless you can think of a tougher one." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p15 Je 20 '48 180w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p29 Ja 18 '48 150w

Sat R of Lit 31:26 Ja 17 '48 50w

KANE, HENRY. Report for a corpse, and divers other reports on dames, deaths, and desperadoes, with shenanigans and solutions by Peter Chambers. 245p $2 Simon & Schuster 48-7176

Six detective stories.

"Six of Chambers' cases from the pages of Esquire. The cases aren't bad but the pattern is monotonous." James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Je 11 '48 150w

Kirkus 16:180 Ap 1 '48 60w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Jl 4 '48 160w

"In describing the adventures recorded here the author makes with the language in a way that must be seen or heard to be believed. It may be that private dicks talk that way. We wouldn't know—but we can't help having our doubts." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p24 Je 13 '48 140w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 27 '48 60w

Sat R of Lit 31:32 Je 12 '48 40w

KANTOR, MACKINLAY. Midnight lace. 309p $2.75 Random house 48-5129

Story of small-town life in Iowa in the years before the first World war. Dolly Hessian, a young woman with a past, leaves Chicago to try her luck in a smaller place. There thanks to her wit and determination she does succeed in acquiring a husband and social position and though her success is threatened she saves herself in the end by an act of heroism and unselfish devotion.

Booklist 44:202 F 1 '48

"The 1911 background is done with a good deal of charm. Kantor imagines his characters as real people but too often steers them into the trumped up situations and gags of a conventional scenario. When the cinematic pattern happens to coincide with the novelist's imagination he can write admirably." George Dillon
+ — Chicago Sun Ja 26 '48 500w

"Entertaining reading."
+ Kirkus 15:610 N 1 '47 180w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 72:1685 D 1 '47 80w

"A bright, light and quite engaging if somewhat sleazy little novel." F. H. Bullock
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Ja 18 '48 550w

"Funnier than the author probably intended it to be."
New Yorker 23:85 Ja 24 '48 100w

"As a character, Dolly—like all the other major persons of the book—is rendered with sharp, clear precision. In none of the characterizations is there any great depth or power; but in all of them there is a thorough adequacy; they are sufficient for the story in which they take part, and which in interest supersedes them all." Richard Sullivan
+ — N Y Times p5 Ja 25 '48 600w
Wis Lib Bul 44:63 Mr '48

KAPLAN, ABRAHAM DAVID HANNATH. Guarantee of annual wages. 269p pa $3.50 Brookings

331.23 Wages 47-31016

"The study examines the wage stabilization plan from the points of view of both employees and employers and analyzes the possible effects of industry-wide guarantees on management-labor relationships, on business policy, and on the economic structure. The study points out many weaknesses of the guaranteed annual wage and the summary contains arguments against rather than in favor of general adoption of the annual wage." Booklist

"The volume under review is a notable contribution to the research literature on the wage-guarantee movement, especially as to economic aspects of industry-wide applications if and when they appear. Dr. Kaplan is known in part for his previous employment-stabilization research for the Committee for Economic Development. The present survey is presented in a clear and concise fashion, with an excellent balance between theoretical analysis and concrete and factual materials." Z. C. Dickinson
+ Ann Am Acad 257:250 My '48 600w
Booklist 44:127 D 1 '47

"Superficial consideration of the guaranteed annual wage policy is likely to oversimplify its operation and benefits without digging deeply enough into the consequences of requiring management to accept full-time payrolls as overhead. Those who are confronted with a decision in the matter should study carefully the results of the present inquiry." H. C. Parmelee
+ Chem Eng 54:275 D '47 550w

"Whether or not Mr. Kaplan's approach to the subject is the most reasonable in the present stage of the guaranteed annual wage, it cannot be denied that his analysis is valuable. His clarification of the implications of demands that exceed the ability of particular employers or industries to bear should be immensely useful to unions when they begin actively to press for guaranteed wages. Moreover, the treatment of the theoretical aspects of the question would be incomplete without an evaluation on the basis of the assumption that industry as a whole is forced to guarantee wages." J. Chernick
+ J Pol Econ 56:276 Je '48 1150w

Reviewed by C. A. Myers
Management R 37:48 Ja '48 550w

KAPLAN, ABRAHAM DAVID HANNATH. Small business: its place and problems. (Committee for economic development. Research study) 281p $3.25 McGraw

338.7 Business 48-10456

The purpose of this study is to analyze the role of small business in the American economy and to appraise its problems. Index.

Booklist 45:99 N 15 '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1670 N 15 '48 30w

KAPLAN, MORDECAI MENAHEM. Future of the American Jew. 571p $6 Macmillan

296 Jews in the U.S. Jews—Civilization. Jews—Religion 48-5254

"Out of solid scholarship and clear knowledge of the Jew and his heritage from the beginnings of history, author has painted a not too pessimistic picture of the Jews' chances for survival in the diaspora, particularly in this country. He propounds his reconstruction of Jewish life and thought based upon the pursuit of the following key objectives: the rebuilding of Eretz Yasrael (the land of Israel) as the creative center of Judaism; creation of an adequate social structure for democratic Jewish communal life in the diaspora; redirection of Jewish education to conform with conception of Judaism as a religious civilization; revitalizing of Jewish religion in accordance with recognition of it as the soul of Jewish civilization; stimulation of Jewish cultural creativity in literature and the arts; participation of Jewry in social movements that seek ample freedom, stricter justice and better cooperation among men and nations. These objectives are developed and analyzed fully." (Library J) Index

Reviewed by Samuel Koenig
Ann Am Acad 257:242 My '48 440w
Booklist 44:262 Ap 1 '48

"No man in Jewish life can speak with better authority on the problem of Jewish survival than the author of this book. . . Dr. Kaplan's well-reasoned plan for the reconstruction of Judaism depends on two factors; one, the willingness of Jews in the Western world to assume the burden of carrying two cultures and the discipline of living in two civilizations; the other the viability and tolerance of our democratic way of life. In a world of competing nationalism we must ask if it is possible to preserve an emotional climate congenial to plural cultures. It would be well for all of us if we could answer this question in the affirmative." J. J. Weinstein
+ Chicago Sun Mr 23 '48 650w

"Really to review this important and comprehensive work by Dr. Kaplan would require a very long article. For the present, it is sufficient to introduce it, to indicate its general scope and position, and to say that serious students of the subject should give it a careful reading." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 65:240 F 25 '48 1000w

"Dr. Kaplan, distinguished scholar and author, has written a book which is of tremendous importance to his fellow Jews and of great significance to his non-Jewish fellow-Americans. To the former it speaks with the voice of one who is thoroughly acquainted with Jewish life and lore. . . The book's value to non-Jews lies in the fact that its essential liberalism and its clearly defined affinity for all that Americans hold dear in terms of liberty and democracy are set forth in terms that unmistakably demonstrate to what extent the genius of Israel and the genius of Americanism can and must cooperate in the interest of a greater America and a better world." K. M. Chworowsky
+ Churchman 162:17 Ap 15 '48 240w

Reviewed by Arthur Child
Ethics 59:74 O '48 70w
Kirkus 15:640 N 15 '47 130w

"The book should bring hope and encouragement to Jew and Gentile who have not forgotten the full meaning of the word charity. Recommended for general purchase." R. P. Braeden
+ Library J 73:121 Ja 15 '48 250w

"In 'The Future of the American Jew,' Mordecai M. Kaplan gives us the distillation of a lifetime of experience and thought. It is a serious book which requires serious reading. But the rewards it offers are rich." P. S. Bernstein
+ Nation 167:76 Jl 17 '48 1150w

Reviewed by S. W. Baron
N Y Times p10 My 2 '48 950w
Social Studies 39:192 Ap '48 20w

"Although the author has accumulated a vast amount of knowledge, he lacks both objectivity and tolerance toward views different from his own. . . This book cannot be read

KAPLAN, M. M.—Continued
with profit by one who knows nothing about Judaism. Such a person cannot use it as a guide because the author does not distinguish for the reader between actual facts and his opinions. The latter are so permeated with emotion that sometimes they are at variance with the facts." R. T. Solis-Cohen
— + Social Studies 39:331 N '48 700w

"A thoughtful and scholarly discussion. . . It is not a book about 'the Jewish problem' but a reasoned attempt to provide a philosophy for Jewish living which will justify the Jew's retaining his identity." W. H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p10B Mr 7 '48 600w

KAPLAN, OSCAR J., ed. Encyclopedia of vocational guidance. 2v $18.50 Philosophical lib.
371.425 Vocational guidance A48-6366

"Not encyclopedic in usual sense, but like this publisher's Encyclopedia of Psychology, a compilation of fairly substantial discussions of large subjects, interspersed with short articles which achieve limited cyclopedic scope. Considerable attention is given to major occupations, particularly aptitudes and specific vocational tests, but many aspects of vocational guidance are not covered. Most articles have bibliographies and all are signed by recognized authorities." (Library J) Bibliographies. No index.

"Within limitations, useful for counselors and personnel workers. Indicated for small libraries without extensive material in this field. Unfortunate that the editor and publisher settled for this half loaf." R. E. Kingery
Library J 73:559 Ap 1 '48 100w

"How useful the volumes will prove to be only time will indicate. The reviewer will have his two volumes close at hand. He suspects that there will be frequent occasions when he will find in the publication what he is after and some other times when he will seek and find not, either because the topic was never intended by the editor to be there or because it cannot be located by a person who has accustomed himself to the use of an index." R. C. Woellner
+ — School R 56:305 My '48 800w
Social Studies 39:192 Ap '48 20w

"The articles are clearly and concisely written by well known specialists. . . The material which summarizes the guidance activities of particular organizations, the articles giving the history of guidance in various countries, and the articles devoted to descriptions of tests are particularly useful. . . From the librarians' point of view, it seems unfortunate that such useful and well selected material has been so poorly arranged and indexed. The publishers should recognize the necessity of obtaining not only subject specialists but also a good professional indexer and encyclopedist to prepare their publication. Despite the difficulty in use for quick reference, the Encyclopedia of Vocational Guidance contains much useful information on tests and guidance activities and is recommended for reading and extended reference for school, university, and public libraries."
+ — Subscription Bks Bul 19:57 O '48 950w

Reviewed by E. T. Burr
Survey 84:253 Ag '48 400w
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:246 Je '48 200w

KARIG, WALTER, and others. Battle report [v.4] The end of an empire; prepared from official sources [il. sel. and ed. by E. John Long and others, charts and maps drawn by James T. Rawls]. 532p $5 Rinehart
940.545 World war, 1939-1945—Naval operations (44-47969)

The fourth volume of the official record on the United States navy in World war II covers action in the Pacific from late 1943 thru November 1944. It is based largely on narrations of the men engaged in the actions, official documents, daily communiques, etc. The appendix lists ships involved, grouped by task force; and casualties. Index.

Reviewed by R. A. Brown
Ann Am Acad 259:157 S '48 360w
Booklist 44:350 Je 15 '48

"This holds up to the high standard of the preceding volumes. . . An important book, for future record."
+ Kirkus 16:135 Mr 1 '48 210w

Reviewed by P. J. Searles
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ag 15 '48 700w

"Battle Report's format and typography and illustrations and maps are excellent, and Capt. E. John Long, USNR, and his helpers, who selected and edited the photographs, deserve an accolade for their splendid pictorial judgment." H. W. Baldwin
+ N Y Times p6 Je 20 '48 1300w

"If the reader is looking for analysis of battles and criticism of command decisions, this is of course not his book. . . But there is a good deal to be said for a form of history in which the reader is given most of the relevant facts and is allowed to draw his own conclusions." Fletcher Pratt
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:9 My 29 '48 470w

KARIG, WALTER. Fortunate islands; a Pacific interlude; an account of the pleasant lands and people in the United States' trust territory of the Pacific. 226p il map $3.75 Rinehart
919.65 Micronesia 48-9546

"Captain Karig, U.S.N. knows Guam, Eniwetok, and most of the other Micronesian atolls almost as well as he knows the Navy building. [He] passes on to us everything he has learned about them and about the fifty thousand people who call them home. He also makes public his own unofficial notion of how we, as current proprietors of Micronesia, should conduct ourselves toward the natives." (New Yorker) Illustrated with photographs.

Booklist 45:156 Ja 1 '49
Kirkus 16:562 O 15 '48 130w

"Amusing and instructive book." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 73:1592 N 1 '48 100w

"The book is a mixture of seriousness and humor. . . Mr. Karig possesses sensitivity and understanding of an exotic people. For an entertaining, armchair, round trip of Micronesia the account is hard to equal. Almost every page has its lively or enlightening photograph." P. J. Searles
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 Ja 30 '49 850w

"Intelligent information is what his volume supplies." Thomas Lask
+ N Y Times p5 D 12 '48 900w

"Recommended, in spite of the author's unfortunate narrative style."
+ — New Yorker 24:179 D 4 '48 130w

"This is perhaps the first readable report on the condition of the islands after their most recent tussle with civilization. Capt. Karig doesn't hold too much for our way of life except for its medical powers. He ventures a facetious guess that when we obliterate our civilization the Micronesians can take over and really start living."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:29 D 18 '48 260w

KARK, LESLIE. Owl in the sun. 174p $2.75 Macmillan
48-8424

Novel in which a paralyzed Frenchman in a Turkish hospital reviews his relations with his evil German wife who now has designs on his brother.

Kirkus 16:345 Jl 15 '48 120w

"This is a sophisticated, well-written story entirely unnecessary except for an hour's diversion for one who reads much." K. T. Willis
Library J 73:1193 S 1 '48 100w

Reviewed by Harold Brighouse
Manchester Guardian p3 N 26 '48 70w

"Here is a novel that is cold, sharp and deadly as a steel trap, exhibiting the dark recesses of human relations like a flashlight in a dungeon, all the more effective because the style is suave and velvety in texture. . . 'An Owl in the Sun' is not a novel you will put aside unfinished." Lisle Bell
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 O 3 '48 500w

Reviewed by Florence Crowther
N Y Times p16 Ja 16 '49 430w

"You will not find Mr. Kark's book either memorable, or intensely moving. You will, however, find it civilized and interesting—not a trip to the moon by rocketship, but a journey by train seated next to a man who can tell, with wit and intelligence, the sort of tale that will make the trip go quickly." V. B.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 17 '48 600w

Reviewed by Robert Kee
Spec 181:786 D 10 '48 180w
Times [London] Lit Sup p677 D 4 '48 240w

KARR, JEAN. Grace Livingston Hill; her story and her writings. 134p il $2.50 Greenberg
B or 92 Hill, Mrs Grace (Livingston) 48-8884

A brief sketch of the life of this American writer and an analysis of her books. A chronological list of her books is included.

Kirkus 16:423 Ag 15 '48 160w

"Nothing is told of the real woman except that she was a paragon of virtue. Will be of interest only to those people who doted on the writings of Grace Livingston Hill." Anne Whitmore
— + Library J 73:1270 S 15 '48 100w
San Francisco Chronicle p19 N 14 '48 160w

"The biography is informative as far as the facts of Mrs. Hill's life are concerned, but it lacks depth and feeling and the reader is primarily aware of the lack of any real critical interpretation of Mrs. Hill's technique as an authoress. Miss Karr frequently summarizes a particular novel under discussion but the summary is not a thoughtful critical analysis." J. W. Bogan
— + Springf'd Republican p14A Ja 23 '49 240w
Wis Lib Bul 45:13 Ja '49

KARSAVINA, JEAN. Tree by the waters. 189p $2.25 Int. pubs.
48-2897

Story of the conflict between owners of a New England factory and the townspeople who worked for them. Abby Chapin at sixteen was troubled by the labor situation and by the class conflict, but when the strike came Abby had learned where her heart really belonged. For older boys and girls.

Booklist 44:369 Jl 1 '48

"Occasionally too talky, but on the whole an interesting romance gives the talk dramatic and human interest in its direct presentation of labor's point of view."
+ — Kirkus 16:236 My 15 '48 150w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Je 6 '48 310w

"Well-written, though rather thin in characterization, the story comes to a triumphant conclusion for Abby and the workers, but its solution is not an entirely happy one, for it tends, in its implications, to widen rather than to narrow the gap between management and labor. There is even, it seems, a trace of proletarian snobbery. Yet it is a good thing for young people to have presented to them a provocative, thoughtful treatment of some of our present-day problems, which, whether we realize it or not, affect us all." E. L. Buell
+ — N Y Times p31 Je 6 '48 230w
Wis Lib Bul 44:152 S '48

KARTMAN, BEN, and BROWN, LEONARD, eds. Disaster! 342p $2.75 Pellegrini & Cudahy
973 Disasters 48-4984

"Recording of some of America's great disasters, natural and man-made, beginning with the earthquake in the Ohio-Mississippi valleys in 1811, and ending with 'aviation's blackest hours'—the major plane disasters at LaGuardia Field and in Maryland, May 30-31, 1947. The compilers have quoted from the writings of newspaper men and others, editing and deleting, leaving only the gist of the matter. They point out that while there is no way of preventing hurricanes, typhoons and other natural catastrophes, man must and will take measures for greater safety at sea, in the air, on the railroads, in mines, and for prevention of fires, diseases and floods. Supplementary list of American disasters at the end." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 45:134 D 15 '48

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun S 22 '48 500w
Kirkus 16:420 Ag 15 '48 100w

"Important for reference." L. R. Etzkorn
+ Library J 73:1189 S 1 '48 140w

"Shocking stuff and good safety-first propaganda."
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p24 N 21 '48 130w

KATES, GEORGE NORBERT. Chinese household furniture; from examples selected and measured by Caroline F. Bieber and Beatrice M. Kates; phot. by Hedda Hammer Morrison. 125p $6 Harper
749.2951 Furniture 48-6567

This book is the result of a survey, made in 1938 by the author's sister and a friend, for the purpose of recording the best furniture in Peking's houses. "Lacquer was excluded from the collection from the outset, as another and already more familiar variety, and only pieces of hardwood were represented. Further, in this latter medium the goal was the general repertory of household furniture, of high quality, saved from the wreck of the old regime after the collapse of Ch'ing society in Peking. . . No attempt was made to include palace pieces, a range completely different in scale, technique, and intention." (Pref) Photographs were made by a third helper, Hedda Hammer Morrison. In 1947 the author wrote the text to show how the furniture was designed, how it was used in China, and how it may fit into our own home life. Bibliography.

Booklist 44:348 Je 15 '48

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 73:879 Je 1 '48 140w

"In discussing the luxurious domestic cabinetwork of the Ming and Ch'ing dynasties, Mr. Kates, a scholar who is here writing for the layman, reconstructs with remarkable clearness something of the life and appearance of cultivated households of the old Chinese tradition. The book's hundred and twelve handsome illustrations of nobly simple chairs, tables, desks, and chests are not only delightful but charged with valuable suggestions for modern Western designers."
+ New Yorker 24:114 My 8 '48 130w

KATKOV, NORMAN. Eagle at my eyes. 252p $2.75 Doubleday
48-445

A story of a Jewish-Gentile marriage written from the point of view of the young Jewish husband and stressing the anti-Gentile feeling of his family.

"Mr. Katkov employs an emotionally exaggerated style. Moreover, he shifts from recent to distant past and then back again in flashbacks so sudden as to confuse the reader. The book contains much sex and considerable indecency. There is also the chance that some readers may call it anti-Semitic, because it suggests that not only Christians but also Jews need lessons in tolerance."

KATKOV, NORMAN—Continued

Cath World 167:93 Ap '48 150w

Reviewed by J. J. Weinstein
Chicago Sun Ja 12 '48 600w

"An agonizing, painful and bitter book, but it may win over those who felt that Earth and High Heaven presented only one side fully and erred in sentimentalizing the romantic aspects, and those who felt that Gentleman's Agreement was synthetic both in its contrived situation and in the impossibility of a non-Jew knowing how a Jew felt. . . But it doesn't make pleasant reading."

Kirkus 15:605 N 1 '47 260w

"A frank, bitter, agonizing story, exceptionally well written and intensely interesting. Can't help but be a best seller, for it has all the makings—love, sex, frank clear writing, and a social problem pertinent today. Highly recommended for all libraries." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 72:1778 D 15 '47 70w

Reviewed by Herbert Kupferberg
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 F 15 '48 500w

"What you get is intensity feeding upon itself. Joe's mother and his father and his wife seem the creatures of this intensity—not the causes of it, as Mr. Katkov would have us believe. And, in order to get drama out of a stage he hasn't been able to set, the author has to rely on shock treatment—the kind that was once made into an art by Hemingway and is now a brutal convenience. This is not to say that Mr. Katkov doesn't write vividly, and even excitedly, about certain things. . . But when human movement is in play, it is simply parlayed. His failure to solve the formal problems of his novel contains Joe Goodman's failure to solve the informal problems of his life: they are of a piece." Seymour Krim

N Y Times p10 Ja 18 '48 500w

"An honest first novel by a young man who seems to have a lot to get off his chest. . . The writing occasionally is vigorous, but the author's narrative technique, which is marked by ceaseless backing and filling and the use of vulgarisms that are more distasteful than earthy, is somewhat exasperating."

+ — New Yorker 23:63 Ja 3 '48 160w

"This is the kind of novel over which people take sides. Already some have hailed it as a piece of valuable surgery, believing that the sharp Katkov knife—and it is very sharp—by opening up the source of the trouble will contribute toward curing the disease. Others have said in shocked tones that the book ought to be burned, that it can only stir up trouble, that by stating its case so clearly it will simply aggravate the soreness and heal nothing. The reader will have to make up his own mind. Meantime, there is no question of the author's serious purpose. 'Eagle at My Eyes' may not be a great novel, but it is an admirable piece of journalistic fiction throughout, and now and then—as in the sensitive portrait of Joe's father—a good deal more than that." J. H. Jackson

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 20 '48 600w

"I should say that Mr. Katkov identified himself so utterly with Mary and Joe that he cast himself, with them, upon the rushing torrent of events that carried them to tragedy. No dispassionate view, no conscious arrangement of forces, was possible—perhaps out of the very nature of the identification. His book is written hotly, personally. It has all the faults, all the virtues of complete subjectivity. It is brilliant and moving, and I know I am going to read it again." N. L. Rothman

+ Sat R of Lit 31:10 Ja 3 '48 650w

Reviewed by Stella Kobrin
Survey G 37:268 My '48 600w

"Whatever validity this theme may have is shredded by Author Katkov's smart-aleck stridency, the plague-on-both-your houses sputtering of his weak hero. Loaded as it is with irresponsible generalizations about racial animosities, Eagle at My Eyes will satisfy only those who have animosities of their own that they wish to preserve, and fortify."

— Time 51:89 Ja 12 '48 280w

KAUFFMAN, RAY FRANKLIN. Coconut wireless. 202p $2.50 Macmillan

48-2553

Bob Graydon, an American mining engineer, is the hero of this novel of spies and counterspies in Malaya during the latter part of the war.

Booklist 45:52 O 1 '48

"Atmospheric amplification and authenticity gives this credit in spite of fairly manufactured manoeuvers."

+ — Kirkus 16:93 F 15 '48 140w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Je 6 '48 170w

Reviewed by W. J. Glick
N Y Times p18 Jl 11 '48 110w

"Authentic-sounding details, but very loosely organized."

New Yorker 24:112 Je 5 '48 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Jl 25 '48 100w

KAUFFMANN, DESIRE. Graphic arts and crafts. 244p il $2.75 Van Nostrand

760 Graphic arts 48-7380

"An introductory work written on the vocational school level and intended chiefly for use in organized classes. However, beginners working by themselves should find it helpful, for the directions are detailed and are supplemented by an adequate number of illustrations. The subjects listed in the contents are treated from the amateur's viewpoint. For example, the chapter on letterpress printing deals with hand composition but makes no attempt to discuss the linotype or other typesetting machines." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 44:378 Jl 15 '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1280 S 15 '48 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:55 Jl '48

"The work outlined in this book calls for a certain degree of skill. It would not be a wise investment for the rank novice or occasional dabbler in the crafts. For those whose hand and eye have received the proper practice and discipline, here is a most gratifying book." R. S. Robbins

+ N Y Times p17 D 19 '48 150w

KAUFMAN, LENARD. Lower part of the sky; a novel of the irony of belief. 307p $3 Creative age

48-6004

"The story of the gradual decivilization of three young men who begin their errant careers as metropolitan child hoodlums and end up as bank robbers and murderers. At one point, the principals devote themselves to a strange, brutish search for God, which, along with several other quasi-religious touches in the book, seems to indicate that the author would like this narrative of grotesque depravity to illuminate in some way man's origin and destiny." New Yorker

Kirkus 16:155 Mr 15 '48 90w

"Horribly fascinating, convincingly written novel of effects of a superstitious faith held by amoral men. . . Doubt suitability for libraries." R. W. Henderson

Library J 73:336 F 15 '48 80w

"The best writing is to be found in the passage on the life of the gentle schoolboy who is beaten and driven by the gang until his family is forced to move out of the neighborhood. Here there are scenes of cruelty so intensely realized that they produce the effect of physical shock. There are other striking passages as well, and the work as a whole has an air of earnestness." Stephen Stephanchev

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 My 23 '48 500w

"When the author is concerned entirely with the passing of the Liberty Street group from hoodlumism into gangsterhood, he is capable at times of skillful and affecting writing. . . It is when the author attempts to examine areas of religious faith that he produces what seems very doubtful material." Lawrence Lee
+ — N Y Times p26 Ap 11 '48 490w

New Yorker 24:86 Mr 27 '48 130w

"To my mind the book's real weakness lies in the way it falls into two parts. Robert, the boy victim of the gang, is built into enough of a character that when he vanishes entirely in the second part of the book the reader is likely to feel cheated. How Mr. Kaufman might have done it better is another thing. . . Nevertheless 'The Lower Part of the Sky' is enough of a performance to assure his readers that in Mr. Kaufman they have met a new and lively talent. It will be interesting to see what he does next." J. H. Jackson
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 13 '48 650w

"It is gratifying to realize that [the author] hasn't shot his whole wad on one throw; he still has, apparently, a great deal more to say. I find it difficult to believe that 'The Lower Part of the Sky' really is, in fact, his first book; in any case, it is a very good one." E. M. McKitrick
+ Sat R of Lit 31:19 Ap 24 '48 650w

KAUFMANN, FRITZ. Your job; a guide to opportunity and security. 238p $2.75 Harper

371.425 Vocational guidance 48-7414

"This is a book 'about choosing a job, finding a job, holding a job, progressing on the job, and changing to a better job . . . describes a worker's rights and responsibilities under current social and labor laws . . . for people who give advice as well as for those who seek it.' (Preface) Appendix includes directories of federal and state agencies from which publications and information can be obtained and a list of publications about occupation arranged alphabetically according to the type of work." Booklist

"Good advice to veterans about their special problems."
Booklist 44:376 Jl 15 '48

"A wide coverage of helpful information in the field of employment, useful for both employer and employee."
+ Kirkus 16:226 My 1 '48 120w

"A down-to-earth, comprehensive handbook in a field where there have been many half-baked previous efforts, by a member of the staff of the New York State Department of Labor. Much more than the title promises since this will find equally great use among lay and professional advisers—from parents through personnel workers to vocational counselors—as well as job seekers." R. E. Kingery
+ Library J 73:937 Je 15 '48 170w

Management R 37:535 O '48 130w

Wis Lib Bul 44:146 S '48

KAUP, MRS ELIZABETH (DEWING). Repeat with laughter. 304p $2.75 Appleton

48-5543

Fantasy about a woman who did not grow old. Nellie Gail started out as a stage favorite of the small theaters in the nineties. When she was forty-nine, posing as her own daughter, she was a Broadway star. Twenty years later she became a Hollywood favorite. Only three people knew Nellie's secret, and they each decided to forget it.

Kirkus 16:27 Ja 15 '48 170w

"It isn't an important novel but it is an enjoyable one. It should be included in paid fiction collections by all means. Recommended." George Freedley
+ Library J 73:396 Mr 1 '48 100w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Mr 21 '48 180w

"It is a piquant situation with boundless possiblities—and the mechanical and technical aspects of the problem are worked out by the author with great attention to detail. But the character of the amazing Nellie remains flat and colorless." Beatrice Sherman
N Y Times p22 Jl 11 '48 360w

Reviewed by E. H. Dexter
Springf'd Republican p10B S 5 '48 330w

KAYE, GEORGE WILLIAM CLARKSON, and LABY, THOMAS HOWELL. Tables of physical and chemical constants; and some mathematical functions. 10th ed 194p $5.50 Longmans

540 Chemistry, Physical and theoretical—Tables, etc. Chemistry—Tables, etc.

"This edition of these well-known tables shows considerable revision. The revised or enlarged tables include those on radio-activity, isotopes and the specific charge of the electron; while other major changes are a revision of the astronomical constants, and of the absolute value of gravity, and an expansion of the section on optical glass. As in previous editions, frequent references to source literature are made throughout the text." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1670 N 15 '48 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:76 S '48

KEELER, MRS KATHERINE (SOUTHWICK). Autumn comes to Meadow Brook farm [pictures by the author]. 40p $2 Nelson

48-7216

"Autumn comes to Meadow Brook farm" and also a variety of lost and helpless creatures who find food and shelter with kindly Farmer Allen. This is the third in a series of seasonal picture books for children aged six to ten.

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 S 28 '48 120w

Kirkus 16:307 Jl 1 '48 100w

Reviewed by M. J. Meade
Library J 73:1673 N 15 '48 60w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 N 14 '48 160w

"Whether the author's drawings are of two new pets or of geese flying or a cow tucked into bed, they perfectly suit the mood and simple realistic style of this story for 6 to 10 year olds." S. C. Gross
+ N Y Times p29 S 19 '48 180w

Wis Lib Bul 44:167 O '48

KEHR, ERNEST ANTHONY. Romance of stamp collecting; notes from the world of stamps, stamp collecting and stamp collectors. 342p il $3.50 Crowell

383.22 Postages tamps 48-30

"Stamp collecting ranks first, as a hobby, internationally, and is second only to photography in the United States. This is a complete book about stamps, their origin and use, and the development of this important business. There are many interesting stories about individual collectors and collections. Author, a noted collector, is stamp news editor of the New York Herald Tribune." (Library J) Glossary. Bibliography. Index.

Christian Science Monitor p12 F 28 '48 120w

"Fascinating for anyone of any age interested in stamp collecting."
+ Kirkus 15:525 S 15 '47 140w

"Important for any library. Highly recommended." L. R. Etzkorn
+ Library J 72:1466 O 15 '47 90w

KEHR, E. A.—Continued

Reviewed by David Tilden
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 D 21 '47 180w

KEITH, ELIZABETH, and ROBERTSON-SCOTT, ELSPET KEITH. Old Korea; the land of morning calm; with notes by Bishop Cecil and others. 72p il $7.50 Philosophical lib.

915.19 Korea 47-6028

The story of Korea told in text and pictures. The text is largely personal impressions; the illustrations are partly in color and partly black and white decorations, which are "adapted from old Korean screens, woodcuts, and crude coloured folk-art house decorations."

"This book is a labor of love, portraying old Korea with the tenderness, and sometimes the inconsistency, of the enamored. Elizabeth Keith is an English artist who has used the modern Japanese color print as one of her most effective mediums for presenting Korean and other Oriental scenes." Shannon McCune
+ Geog R 38:521 Jl '48 240w

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 73:709 My 1 '48 70w

"The 10 color prints and 24 water colors in monochrome showing the land, its people, are beautifully reproduced but the text, though rich in detail, seems to have been written more for the young student than for the adult." Edith James
+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ap 11 '48 80w

KEITH, ELMER. Big game hunting; il. with drawings by Bob Kuhn and the author and with many photographs. 420p $7.50 Little

799.297 Hunting Agr48-298

"An encyclopedic review of big-game hunting in North America, including the Arctic, by a gunner, guide, and arms expert who is perhaps the country's leading authority on the subject. In addition to detailed advice on equipment and discussions of the quarry, which ranges from the walrus to the cougar, the book goes into such minutiae as how to judge, before firing, the animal's worth as a trophy; and tracking and managing wounded game. Drawings and photographs." (New Yorker) No index.

Booklist 45:132 D 15 '48

"Strongly recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 74:64 Ja 1 '49 40w

New Yorker 24:148 N 27 '48 100w

"It is an excellent job throughout, by a man who has apparently remembered and evaluated every experience in a life full of hunting." G. S. Arnold
San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 28 '48 50w

Springf'd Republican p6B D 26 '48 360w

KEITH, JOSEPH JOEL. Always the need; a story in verse. 40p $2 Dierkes

811 48-20602

Story, told in forty sonnets, of a boy's discovery of his mother's infidelity, and the effect it had upon him.

"Mr. Keith writes tenderly. The story is right for poetry, but why cast in a sonnet sequence subordinating form to pattern?" T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 13 '48 60w

"The poem is the appraisal of a Greek tragedy in retrospect, related with tenderness, poetic skill, and a consistent music. . . Mr. Keith, a better poet than dramatist, is handicapped by the framework of his story and his method of telling it. Several parts of the poem are greater than the whole, especially the group of sonnets in which the wife is seeking to break through the wall of silence built against her, but fails. . . Mr. Keith is a lyric poet of fine talents, but this sonnet sequence is not up to the level of his earlier poems." A. M. Sullivan
Sat R of Lit 31:25 Je 19 '48 260w

KELLAND, CLARENCE BUDINGTON. Merchant of valor. 243p $2.75 Harper

48-7077

A tale of romance and adventure in sixteenth century Italy. The hero is an English lad who travels to Italy and there becomes involved in the struggle between the Pope and Giovanni de' Medici.

Booklist 44:336 Je 1 '48

"This story of 16th century adventure and romance provides action and humor for entertainment."
Kirkus 16:128 Mr 1 '48 130w

Reviewed by Katharine Shorey
Library J 73:651 Ap 15 '48 70w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Ag 1 '48 120w

KELLEAM, JOSEPH E. Blackjack. 268p $3 Sloane

48-5832

Novel describing life in the fictional town of Blackjack, Oklahoma, from the time oil is discovered, through its "boom" days to the time it becomes a respectable, prosperous town.

Booklist 44:299 My 1 '48

Kirkus 16:3 Ja 1 '48 180w

"A good yarn." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 73:198 F 1 '48 70w

Reviewed by Richard Match
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Mr 28 '48 650w

"[Mr Kelleam] knows the trade of which he writes, and in telling its story he spends his words as frugally as a wildcatter putting out his last dollar for nitroglycerine to bomb a well into production. 'Blackjack' is his first novel and it is a good one." Hoffman Birney
+ N Y Times p17 Mr 21 '48 500w

"Mr. Kelleam's book is long on plot and short on people. His locale and atmosphere ring true as a bell. . . But the men themselves are mostly two-dimensional. Mr. Kelleam tells what they are, instead of showing us. Yet this is a promising first, if only for the expert way Mr. Kelleam manipulates his fast-paced plot." John Barkham
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:36 Ap 3 '48 450w

Springf'd Republican p10B Ap 4 '48 110w

Wis Lib Bul 44:133 Je '48

KELLER, FRANKLIN JEFFERSON. Principles of vocational education; the primacy of the person. 402p $3.50 Heath

371.42 Vocational education. Education—Philosophy 48-7445

Discussion of the fundamental philosophical principles underlying vocational education. Index.

Booklist 45:5 S 1 '48

"Here is vocational education that can turn out boys and girls who know how to think, how to live useful and meaningful lives. Here too, are standards whereby any vocational or guidance teacher may test his program. It is a practical study in that it should help any teacher think through to the meaning of what he is trying to do."
+ Christian Science Monitor p6 Ag 7 '48 250w

School & Society 67:464 Je 19 '48 10w

KELLER, HARRY, ed. See Official detective stories magazine. Official detective omnibus

KELLER, JAMES GREGORY. You can change the world; the Christopher approach. 387p $3 Longmans

248 The Christophers, incorporated. Sociology, Christian. Catholic action 48-9497

"The Rev. James G. Keller, a Roman Catholic priest of the Maryknoll Missioners, founded the Christophers in 1945. They are a group working to maintain Christian principles in everyday life, especially in such important fields as literature, education, labor relations, government, etc. . . Now Fr. Keller has written [this book], which is an explanation of the aims of the Christophers and a detailed handbook for putting the Christopher program in action at the grass-roots level." N Y Times

Reviewed by J. S. Kennedy
Cath World 168:215 D '48 70w

Reviewed by James McVann
Cath World 168:411 F '49 320w

"The book is a positive answer to Communists and the Godless rather than the negative with which we have been too long familiar. Recommended highly for all libraries." R. P. Breaden
+ Library J 73:1595 N 1 '48 170w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 D 12 '48 250w

"Many sincere Christians will find themselves unable to follow Fr. Keller in all the specific judgments he sets down. This is not to deny the wisdom and stimulation to be found in these pages. Anyone who follows the regimen outlined here will, in a number of ways, help himself and his society. He will also be a very busy man." N. K. Burger
+ — N Y Times p10 N 21 '48 470w

Reviewed by W. R. White
San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ja 16 '49 550w

"It is naive, insouciant, repetitious, and all the other things readers are apt to call writing which is disorganized and amateurish. But it has something which can make it epic—a simple, explosive, contagious idea. And if ideas are as important as we have been taught to believe, this one may in truth 'change the world.'" W. S. Lynch
+ Sat R of Lit 32:16 Ja 8 '49 650w

KELLEY, EARL CLARENCE. Education for what is real; foreword by John Dewey. 114p $2 Harper

370.1 Education 47-12211

"This book is a report on the significance to education of the findings in the nature of perception, of knowing, and of life itself, by the searchers after truth who have worked in the laboratories of The Hanover Institute (formerly Dartmouth Eye Institute)." (Pref) Index.

"A brief book which will be stimulating to others, besides educators; lucid style which is free of technical jargon."
Booklist 44:262 Ap 1 '48

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 68:222 S 25 '48 900w

"At a time when many of the current books on education are conspicuous for their large size and for a considerable degree of wordiness, it is refreshing to find an occasional small book which comes to grips effectively with some fundamental issue of education. A recent example of this class of small but provocative books has been written by Earl C. Kelley. . . Dr. Kelley's writing is exceptional in its clarity and explicitness. In fact, the very convincingness of his presentation of the case is the chief reason for being at all critical of the book. . . Dr. Kelley has been so effective in presenting his point of view that the main danger lies in the over-convincingness of the case. Entirely apart from the criticisms in the preceding paragraphs, the reviewer would like to acknowledge an indebtedness to Dr. Kelley for a genuine contribution, in thoughtful analysis, of a basic educational problem. Books of this type are much needed in the field of education." G. T. Buswell
+ — School R 56:303 My '48 1750w

KELLEY, TRUMAN LEE. Fundamentals of statistics. 755p $10 Harvard univ. press

311 Statistics 47-11883

"This text is addressed primarily to workers in psychology, economics, social science and allied subjects. The first few chapters present some of the more elementary aspects of statistics. . . This part of the text makes no mathematical demands upon the student. Subsequent chapters contain material of increasing complexity and presuppose considerable mathematical facility. The subjects covered refer, for the most part, to statistics of large samples. . . Three chapters are devoted to the general problem of regression. The two final chapters of the text list a number of miscellaneous topics that may be of interest to the research worker attempting to apply statistics to his particular problems." Chem Eng

"Much of the treatment is stimulating and some of the features of the book are to be commended. The importance of the test of significance is given considerable emphasis. In spite of this, some discussion of apparently non-significant effects has crept in. The attempt to cut down on the number of statistical tables is certainly praiseworthy, but one wonders whether the labor demanded of the statistician is justified by the relief to the typesetter. . . The style and handling of the mathematics will not appeal to those trained in the physical sciences. For these reasons, Professor Kelley's text can be recommended to the chemist or chemical engineer only as collateral reading, the principal value of which will be to show 'how the other half lives.'" H. M. Smallwood
+ — Chem Eng 55:285 Je '48 420w

School & Society 66:520 D 27 '47 10w

KELLINO, PAMELA. Del Palma. [Eng title: A lady possessed]. 254p $2.75 Dutton 48-5173

Novel about a flighty English woman who believes she is possessed by the deceased wife of Del Palma, a Cuban singer.

Reviewed by Wendell Johnson
— Chicago Sun p29 F 2 '48 420w

Kirkus 15:631 N 15 '47 120w

Reviewed by F. A. Boyle
Library J 72:1778 D 15 '47 100w

"Pamela Kellino, English motion picture actress and wife of James Mason, star of stage and cinema, has tackled a very difficult theme in her novel, 'Del Palma.' She tells the story of a woman possessed and dominated by the soul of a deceased person. While she is not convincing in developing her conflict in the realm of the supernatural, she succeeds in bringing to her novel the element of suspense." Rose Feld
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 F 29 '48 480w

"Miss Kellino never works out her plot in the easy, obvious fashion but handles her speculatively teasing premise with wit and a nice balance between spoof and seriousness. The writing is piquant and fresh and after a rather slow start, a mood of expectancy and rising tension is steadily maintained." Andrea Parke
+ N Y Times p18 F 15 '48 400w

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ap 4 '48 100w

Springf'd Republican p8B F 29 '48 170w

KELLY, ALFRED HINSEY, and HARBISON, WINFRED AUDIF. The American Constitution; its origins and development. 940p $7.50 Norton

342.739 U.S. Constitution. U.S.—Constitutional history 48-3386

"A chronological history of our Constitution beginning with English and colonial origins and continuing with an account of its writing and ratification, the development of government up to the Civil War, with full discussions of nationalism versus sectionalism; and the evolution of social and economic legislation from 1865 to the present time, with a chapter on civil liberties. Appendices include the Articles of Confederation, the Constitution, selected readings and a table of cases." (Library J) Index.

KELLY, A. H.—Continued

Reviewed by H. C. Hockett
Ann Am Acad 260:212 N '48 370w

Booklist 45:59 O 15 '48

"Written in clear readable style, with an index, this is a very useful book for all general collections." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 73:1085 Ag '48 130w

"This massive text, so clearly presented as to require no technical legal competence on the part of the reader and so equipped with bibliographical aids as to guide the inquisitive student through most of the vast literature of a controversial subject, includes in its sweeping view of American constitutionalism the more salient developments, from John Locke to recent Supreme Court decisions." J. P. Boyd
+ N Y Times p3 Ag 29 '48 1000w

"The book is not, and the authors admit it, a technical or a particularly deep work. It is an introductory book designed for 'the average undergraduate student or general reader' and as such, and covering the vast period that it does, it must necessarily ignore many aspects of constitutional history. However, it should succeed admirably in giving one unversed in the vast development of our Constitution a clear picture of the factors which make our government a living and dynamic organism, and while there is considerable oversimplification in the later chapters particularly, the authors appear to have based their work on a sound scholarship." C. W. Weinberger
+ San Francisco Chronicle p11 Ag 15 '48 600w

School & Society 68:191 S 18 '48 20w

KELSEY, MRS ALICE (GEER). Ricardo's white horse; il. by Joseph W. Hopkins. 179p $2.25 Longmans 48-7444

Story of how a twelve-year-old Puerto Rican boy, with the help of his horse, won an award for being the best junior road keeper. For grades 5-7.

Booklist 45:37 S 15 '48

"One gets a lasting impression of the real Puerto Rico from Alice Geer Kelsey's glowing narrative and Joseph W. Hopkins' effective sketches." H. F. Griswold
+ Christian Science Monitor p7 Ja 27 '49 240w

"Alice Geer Kelsey writes out of a long acquaintance with the beautiful island. She has an understanding and appreciative feeling for the affectionate and united family, for their humor and fun as well as their kindness and sympathy. Ricardo is a persevering and likable little boy." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 24:370 S '48 120w

"A real contribution to understanding between racial groups without caricature or sentimentality."
+ Kirkus 16:336 Jl 15 '48 170w

"Not a distinguished book and not particularly Puerto Rican in flavor, but fair in character development. As a horse story, unfortunately lukewarm." E. J. Anttonen
— + Library J 73:1520 O 15 '48 60w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p24 N 14 '48 190w

"The people, their customs and problems, the land that is Puerto Rico provide a rich background, but so deftly handled that they never intrude upon the story. New York City teachers as well as 9-to-12-year-olds anywhere should welcome this book." A. N. Fedder
+ N Y Times p25 O 10 '48 150w

Sat R of Lit 31:29 N 13 '48 50w

"The book includes many games and native songs and affords an authentic account of customs and local history, making it a valuable reference for juvenile readers." S. M. N.
+ Springf'd Republican p8B Ag 22 '48 150w

Wis Lib Bul 44:168 O '48

KELSEY, RICHMOND I. Goodenough Gismo; pictures by [the author]. 39p $2 Houghton 48-6062

Gismo, a bug on the Pacific island of Goodenough, had such an odd shape that he could not get about easily. He longed to fly, but was unsuccessful in his attempts to do so until he discovered his body was built like a helicopter. For three to five year olds.

"A delightfully funny picture-story for the beginners." M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun Mr 27 '48 100w

Kirkus 16:144 Mr 15 '48 120w

Reviewed by Irmengarde Eberle
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Jl 18 '48 270w

"Richmond Kelsey as author and artist has created a new character for both grown-ups and children to enjoy. His pictures of Gismo with his too-small wings and his too-long nose fit his name and are funnier to see each time the book is read." Lois Palmer
+ N Y Times p21 Je 20 '48 190w

Springf'd Republican p10B Ap 11 '48 110w

KEMP, CHARLES F. Pastoral triumph; the story of Richard Baxter and his ministry at Kidderminster. 120p $2.25 Macmillan

B or 92 Baxter, Richard 48-7084

An American minister here writes the story of the life and work of an English clergyman: Richard Baxter, who was minister at Kidderminster in seventeenth-century England. Baxter stressed religious education at a time when the Sunday school was unknown. Bibliographies. Index.

"With all of the emphasis today upon personal counseling this book should be widely welcomed by Protestant clergymen. An extensive bibliography on counseling and allied subjects adds to the value of the book."
+ Kirkus 16:118 Mr 1 '48 170w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 S 5 '48 260w

Reviewed by John Culver
Springf'd Republican p10B Je 20 '48 180w

KEMPNER, STANLEY, ed. Television encyclopedia. 415p il $6.50 Fairchild

621.388 Television 47-30506

"The three main parts of this book provide (1) brief chronologically arranged accounts of the main discoveries and events in the history of television; (2) brief biographical sketches, together with a few portraits, of the persons who have contributed to television's development; and (3) a glossary that includes both production and technical terms." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 44:347 Je 15 '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:951 Je 15 '48 60w

"Despite its title, the book is not an encyclopedia; nevertheless it should prove useful as a ready reference handbook of information for laymen, executives and others concerned with the production of television programs."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 33:29 Ja '48

"'Television Encyclopedia' is an excellent reference for anyone who wishes to become better acquainted with the industry." R. A. I.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 1 '48 160w

KENDRICK, BAYNARD HARDWICK. Flames of time. 374p $3 Scribner
48-7055

Historical novel of Florida in the early nineteenth century. The hero, an orphan of unknown parentage, called Artillery Armes, is reared by a renegade American but spends much of his youth with the Indians. He later becomes involved in Florida's rebellion against the Spaniards and the annexation of Florida by the United States.

Booklist 44:352 Je 15 '48

Cath World 168:175 N '48 200w

Kirkus 16:178 Ap 1 '48 150w

"This novel is tumultuous, colorful, alive and convincing. Recommended to historical novel readers." Katherine Shorey

+ Library J 73:878 Je 1 '48 80w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ag 8 '48 270w

"Mr. Kendrick's story is fast-paced, sure, exciting—a highly readable novel as well as an accurate, multi-colored canvas of the time." F. G. Slaughter

+ N Y Times p6 Je 6 '48 500w

New Yorker 24:90 Je 19 '48 140w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Je 13 '48 500w

"Mr. Kendrick's setting could hardly be improved upon for color and drama and it is surprising that it has not been more popular in the past. The story and the characters supplied him by history are first-rate, but his own creative talent continues to function along the lines to which he is accustomed, the romantic formula, in which the Perfect Hero is wanted by two women, and in this case, gets both without sin, thanks to the author's generosity." Herschel Brickell

Sat R of Lit 31:14 Jl 3 '48 650w

Springf'd Republican p10C D 19 '48 90w

"Author Kendrick, a well-known whodunit writer (Blind Man's Bluff), now apparently setting out for bigger game, has bagged it. This cliché-clogged historical novel is the July choice of the Literary Guild."

Time 51:107 Je 14 '48 160w

KENNEDY, CLIFFORD W. Quality control methods. 243p $4.75; to schools $3.55 Prentice-Hall

658.562 Sampling (statistics) 48-6944

"Covers the statistical method of quality control combining both practical and theoretical information. Includes sampling, batch control, distribution, average and range, and a guide to the administration of control methods. Appendix of tables." Booklist

Booklist 44:363 Jl 1 '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 73:951 Je 15 '48 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:40 My '48

KENNEDY, THOMAS. Effective labor arbitration; the impartial chairmanship of the full-fashioned hosiery industry. 286p $3.50 Univ. of Pa. press

331.155 Arbitration, Industrial. Hosiery 48-7457

"This book deals with the Impartial Chairmanship of the full-fashioned hosiery industry which was established in 1929 after years of frequent and disastrous labor disputes. Since that date, strikes have been practically eliminated in mills of employers belonging to the Full-Fashioned Hosiery Manufacturers of America, Inc. In no case has the American Federation of Hosiery Workers authorized a strike in plants of the association's members. Professor Kennedy, who served as a deputy and Impartial Chairman, includes [in this study] an analysis of the 1,566 grievances submitted from September 1929 to August 1945. The author shows that much of the credit for the improved labor relations in the industry is due to the establishment of the Impartial Chairmanship in the 1929 union agreement." Ann Am Acad

"The analysis of sixteen years of labor arbitration in the hosiery industry is a worthy addition to the industrial research studies of the University of Pennsylvania. It will be of value to the increasing number of scholars in the field of labor relations, and it should prove to be especially useful to labor and management groups seeking means of developing more stable industrial relations." M. J. Segal

+ Ann Am Acad 259:188 S '48 360w

Columbia Law R 48:827 Jl '48 110w

"In compiling the labor history of this industry, Mr. Kennedy and his research associates have done a highly creditable job of analyzing and tabulating the more than fifteen hundred arbitration decisions that have been made since 1929. . . Kennedy is not merely an observer; he has participated in the functioning of the agreement and its interpretation." J. M. Carmody

+ Nation 167:296 S 11 '48 1200w

KENNERLY, WILLIAM CLARK. Persimmon Hill; a narrative of old St. Louis and the far West; as told to Elizabeth Russell. 273p il $3.75 Univ. of Okla. press

977.866 St Louis—History. West—Description and travel 48-8602

Family reminiscences arranged by the daughter of the author from her father's diaries, papers, letters, and verbal accounts. It pictures the development of St Louis and the West, and recounts William Kennerly's experiences during the Mexican War, the gold rush, and the Civil war. Persimmon Hill was the name of the family estate at St Louis. Index.

Booklist 45:64 O 15 '48

"Book abounds with glimpses into the lives of famous persons and reflects accurately the rugged frontier existence of a hundred years ago. Important piece of Americana but will not have wide appeal in public libraries." L. R. Etzkorn

+ Library J 73:1382 O 1 '48 140w

"Mrs. Russell has done a remarkable thing here. Her book is a real and important contribution to Western Americana. There is no more Cote Plaquemine—what was 'way out in the country' a hundred years ago is mid-city now, but this account of the life of one man who lived there gives us a sharp and glowing picture of life in general west of the Mississippi a century ago." Edith James

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 O 10 '48 600w

KENT, MRS LOUISE (ANDREWS). Village greens of New England; phot. by Arthur Griffin. 280p $3.50 Barrows

917.4 New England—Description and travel 48-3957

Descriptions of the village greens of many of the New England cities, towns and villages; illustrated with photographs. The text supplies historical background for the towns considered. A summary chapter lists greens by states, then by town; with a brief description of each. Index.

Booklist 45:30 S 15 '48

"Though the author's approach to New England is a bit sentimental at times, she has odd and interesting pieces of information. The last chapter lists many of the greens with brief notes about each. Arthur Griffin's numerous black and white photographs add a great deal to the book." Ann Hunter

+ Commonweal 48:529 S 10 '48 190w

"You may not find your favorite New England village green in Mrs. Kent's book; she couldn't write about all of them, nor could Arthur Griffin photograph them all. But you will find many of the most charming, beautifully photographed (with the exception of the New Haven Green which appears to be all Hotel Taft) by Mr. Griffin, and discussed by Mrs. Kent with sprightliness and charm. . . In this attractive book time slips back and you listen for the sleigh bells over the snow in front of old Bennington's lovely church." W. P. Eaton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ag 1 '48 240w

KENYON, THEDA. Something gleamed. 374p $3 Messner

48-8737

Novel based on a little-known side of the American Revolution. An Englishman named Jackson contracted to deliver 3,500 prostitutes for the British forces fighting in the colonies. When the usual sources had been searched and his quota was not filled Jackson commissioned his men to shanghai decent servant girls, and any others they could catch without making trouble for themselves. The heroine is one of the shanghaied, virtuous young women, a girl from a fine family. The tragic time she spent in New York and her final rescue by a titled Hessian officer are described in this story.

"There's lots of color and action in the phases of war that swept back and forth over the beleaguered city . . . almost to the point of surfeit. But, in retrospect, it emerges as an unusual segment of historical as well as romantic interest."

+ — Kirkus 16:408 Ag 15 '48 110w

"Well-authenticated early Americana, depicting a richly colorful, shameful, fast-moving and grimly brutal period in the establishment of the liberty we accept so carelessly today." H. S. Taylor

+ Library J 73:1274 S 15 '48 100w

"The narrative is a bit lumpish with research, but generously plotted and a grim reminder that every war improvises its own barbarities."

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p27 O 24 '48 150w

Reviewed by Beatrice Sherman

N Y Times p47 N 14 '48 310w

"That Miss Kenyon has been at pains to make this a well-documented and entirely accurate historical novel no one will dispute. But, in Ellen Glasgow's words, 'a universe of ideas divides the novel bearing a sincere emotion toward life from the novel that depends upon a sterile convention.' Admiration for the colonists' desire for liberty is the only emotion we can identify in 'Something Gleamed.' " Pamela Taylor

Sat R of Lit 31:15 D 25 '48 450w

Springf'd Republican p10C D 19 '48 150w

KEPLER, THOMAS SAMUEL, comp. Fellowship of the saints. 800p $7.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury

248 Religious literature—Collections 48-8532

"An 'anthology of Christian devotional literature' ranging from the first century of our era to the twentieth. It includes prose selections from 137 writers and runs to about 750,000 words. . . Mr. Kepler takes for a kind of motto the saying of Léon Bloy that 'there is only one sorrow, not to be a saint,' and brings into his record devout men and women of many dimensions and descriptions." (N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R) A brief sketch of the author's life and writings precedes each selection. The appendix contains a list of suggested readings and a chronology of devotional writings. Index of authors.

Booklist 45:58 O 15 '48

"The editor is an expert at anthologies, and this is an excellent one both in depth and in comprehensiveness." R. C. Miller

+ Churchman 162:16 N 15 '48 130w

"This anthology of Christian devotional literature would be a valuable addition to the library of any clergyman and of others interested in the cultivation of the personal religious life."

+ Kirkus 16:504 O 1 '48 230w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p29 O 24 '48 360w

KERBY, SUSAN ALICE, pseud. See Burton, E.

KERCHOVE, RENE DE. See De Kerchove, R.

KERR, SOPHIE (MRS UNDERWOOD). Sound of petticoats, and other stories of the Eastern shore. 325p $2.75 Rinehart

48-2314

Nine short stories of Maryland's eastern shore, dating from the Civil war to the present. A postscript describes the region, its history and cookery. Most of the stories appeared in the Saturday Evening Post.

Booklist 44:368 Jl 1 '48

"A book of tales that are regional in background, plotted for human interest. The expert touch in feminine fare."

+ Kirkus 16:154 Mr 15 '48 90w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ag 8 '48 150w

"Miss Kerr is a pleasant guide to the region—observant, witty and just detached enough to add perspective to the view."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ag 8 '48 60w

KERSH, GERALD. Song of the flea. 311p $3 Doubleday

48-6607

A sordid, realistic picture of life in London's underworld. The story follows the adventures of a young writer, Mr Pym, and his encounters with pimps and prostitutes, pawnbrokers and shady lawyers, bar flies and near criminals.

"Kersh has a strange, perverted sort of genius. And how he can write. But who wants to live in his murky world?"

+ — Kirkus 16:123 Mr 1 '48 210w

Reviewed by Simon Harcourt-Smith

New Statesman & Nation 36:161 Ag 21 '48 180w

" 'The Song of the Flea' is not a satire, but a realistic novel which grins and jokes as it tells its grisly tale, pretending, for its own poor solace that misery and heartache and starvation and loneliness are very funny things. It will tie a stone around the heart of a reader and sink it in a well." Thomas Sugrue

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p22 My 9 '48 600w

"Beneath his talented lightness and fantasy Gerald Kersh is a serious man. Like Graham Greene, he has a personal philosophy, an axe to grind, however charmingly. With each one of his books, that philosophy has grown clearer, more easily perceived. Despite his English regard for fair play, his occasional priggishness, Mr. Kersh is a passionate, if half ashamed, Nietzschean, who worships strength and despises weakness. And no matter how well he writes, he cannot keep the essential contempt for ordinary people and their frailties, implicit in that philosophy, out of his books." Marc Brandel

+ — N Y Times p7 Ap 25 '48 550w

"There are some good satirical touches on the off-duty behavior of artists, petty criminals, and lawyers, but these good marks are cancelled out by the author's predilection for tasteless vulgarity."

— + New Yorker 24:103 Ap 24 '48 120w

Reviewed by Robert Kee

Spec 181:218 Ag 13 '48 220w

"Mr. Kersh is like an enormously high-spirited and sardonic Gissing—if such a thing can be imagined. He revels in squalor and failure in all shapes. His weakness is that he fails to convince us that Pym himself is a competent writer, far less a potentially brilliant novelist. But his unsentimentalized underworld has about it all the ring of truth. . . If Mr. Kersh could get a little farther away from his heroes, he might write something outstandingly good. He has a remarkable talent."

Times [London] Lit Sup p441 Ag 7 '48 600w

KERWIN, JEROME GREGORY, ed. Civil-military relationships in American life. 181p $2.75 Univ. of Chicago press

355 U.S.—Defenses. Militarism. U.S.—Politics and government 48-7342

"The purpose of the essays in this volume resulting from a series of lectures made possible by the Walgreen Foundation is twofold. It is to identify the change in conditions which has caused a much greater pervasiveness of the military in American life and at the same time to raise the question of how our cherished freedoms can be preserved by the safeguarding of the predominancy of civilian power." (Introd) Contents: Science, technology, and war, Waldemar Kaempffert; From soldier to citizen, Dixon Wecter; The recruitment and training of the new armed forces, Hanson W. Baldwin; Civilian control of a department of national defense, Paul H. Appleby; Government of conquered and dependent areas, T. W. Smith; The military and foreign policy, Quincy Wright; Civil-military relations in the United States, Adlai Stevenson; Security without militarism: preserving civilian control in American political institutons, Charles E. Merriam. Index.

"A lucid restatement of the problem of civilian control in American political institutions." T. S. Barclay
+ Am Pol Sci R 42:992 O '48 850w

Reviewed by Logan Wilson
Ann Am Acad 260:211 N '48 550w

"The book is highly readable, and extremely informative. . . Some of this volume will be challenging—Mr. Baldwin's case against the proposed new military establishment is impressive but not convincing, and Mr. Appleby's consideration of the department of national defense is firmly done. All in all, any American who is considering what must inevitably become his new rôle in an increasingly civilian military state would do well to think over these ideas." T. E. Cassidy
Commonweal 48:310 Jl 9 '48 170w
San Francisco Chronicle p12 Jl 11 '48 320w

KESSLER, HENRY HOWARD. Rehabilitation of the physically handicapped. 274p $3.50 Columbia univ. press

331.86 Disabled—Rehabilitation, etc. 47-11607

"This author emphasizes the problem of the disabled as one in which the productive usefulness of the individual must be the fundamental purpose of his rehabilitation. Rehabilitation is described as an integrated program in which physical restoration, guidance and training, and placement in a job are combined in a total plan for the individual. He stresses a complete service rather than its medical phases. Recognition by a medical expert of the importance of guidance and training and employment in this program is reassuring evidence of our modern ideas of medical care. . . Among the many points stressed by Dr. Kessler are the importance of the physically handicapped as a source of manpower; the powerful factor of social prejudice; the desirability of combining public services for the child and adult handicapped; the establishment of independent state rehabilitation agencies; and the unique and radical idea of establishing a universal health record as a means of assessing manpower resources and correcting preventable defects and disabilities." (Survey) Bibliography.

"The book is a well-written treatment of a subject upon which more people should be informed." H. B. White + Crozer Q 25:175 Ap '48 900w

"The practical approach used by Dr. Kessler makes this book a valuable guide to workers in rehabilitation agencies and a handbook of information for those concerned with related services." Tracy Copp
+ Survey 84:218 Je '48 360w

KETTRING, DONALD D. Steps toward a singing church. 342p $4.50 Presbyterian bd.

783.8 Choirs (music). Music in churches 48-7767

Handbook for the church choir director. Discusses the inauguration, organization and administration of the choir program in a Protestant church. Much of the book is based on the author's own experience. He is now minister of music in the East Liberty Presbyterian church of Pittsburgh. List of choir anthems. Index.

"A valuable book for churches interested in promoting music participation for all ages. . . The book is the result of the personal experience of the author, related in somewhat trying detail. However, through this maze of detail we catch and share the author's confidence and enthusiasm for a comprehensive multiple choir program." B. F. Wise
+ — Christian Century 66:18 Ja 5 '49 240w

Reviewed by C. K. Miller
Library J 73:1513 O 15 '48 70w

KEY, VALDIMER ORLANDO. Politics, parties, and pressure groups. 2d ed 767p $4 Crowell

320.973 Politics, Practical. Political parties—U.S. Lobbying 47-12324

"A college textbook which extends the field covered in most courses on political parties by including pressure groups and also a discussion of violence and education as political techniques. In this edition there is a chapter on recent party history, numerous maps and charts, and some rearrangement of material." (Booklist) Index.

"Professor Key has done a good job of revision. He brings up to date, expands, and improves the book. The second edition, like the first, is well balanced and eminently teachable. Not only does he give appropriate attention, in the three main sections of the book, to groups, parties, and electoral problems, but he reserves appropriate space to cover concepts, institutional influences, and politics in legislation and administration. An outstanding book has been made even better." D. E. McHenry
+ Am Pol Sci R 42:377 Ap '48 300w
Booklist 44:250 Mr 15 '48

KEYES, MRS FRANCES PARKINSON (WHEELER). Dinner at Antoine's. 422p $3 Messner

48-10997

A combination of mystery story and picture of fashionable life in New Orleans during a few weeks before Mardi Gras in 1948. It deals with a dinner given at Antoine's, the murder of one of the guests, and the solving of the mystery of the murder.

Booklist 45:120 D 1 '48

"Dinner at Antoine's is neither a romantic tale nor a wholly absorbing mystery yarn, yet within its limits it is as good as the average novel of commerce."
Cath World 168:335 Ja '49 120w
Chicago Sun D 3 '48 130w

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p11 D 23 '48 190w

"The chief palatable ingredient of this dish is the authentic New Orleans atmosphere. The story is not Mrs. Keyes at her best. A mystery story demands certain techniques which are foreign to her experience, and when the identity of the murderer is discovered, the motive is so far fetched that the fragile fabric collapses of its own weight. . . There remains a long richly flavored novel of modern New Orleans, with the impeccable attention to detail of dress and manners and food that Mrs. Keyes' audience rejoices in."
— + Kirkus 16:487 S 15 '48 250w

"The mystery is not too exciting, but Mrs Keyes makes up for this lack by her interest-

KEYES, F. P. W.—Continued

ing descriptions of New Orleans and her rich detail on food, customs and dress. Entertaining, but over long. Recommended.' Anne Whitmore
+ — Library J 73:1595 N 1 '48 80w

Reviewed by Mary Michael
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 N 28 '48 260w

"As a mystery 'Dinner at Antoine's' doesn't rank as a fast-paced or hair-raising thriller. It wasn't meant to. In spite of the lavish provision of possible motives, seasoned whodunit fans could guess the answer long before Captain Murphy does. But readers who enjoyed 'The River Road' and 'Came a Cavalier' will undoubtedly find the new novel equally entertaining and for much the same reasons." Barbara Bond
+ N Y Times p43 N 21 '48 290w

San Francisco Chronicle p25 D 12 '48 170w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown
Sat R of Lit 31:13 D 11 '48 370w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p8B Ja 9 '49 420w

Wis Lib Bul 45:14 Ja '49

KIANG, WEN-HAN. Chinese student movement. 176p $3 King's crown press

371.83 Students. Youth movement. China—History 48-7286

"This book, after a long introduction on the background and emergence of the Student Movement, deals with (1) the Chinese Renaissance, (2) the Nationalist Revolution, (3) the revolt against religion, and, finally, (4) the United Front. There is a concluding chapter on the relationship of the Student Movement to Chinese culture and religion." (Publisher's note) Bibliography.

"The limitations of the book do not lie in what it says, so much as in what it does not say, and particularly in its failure to criticize the weaknesses of the Chinese student movement. . . The reviewer looked in vain for accounts in this book of the breakdown of discipline in the schools—of schools where no student could be flunked; of schools where members of the faculty could not leave or enter without a pass from the head of the student's union; of the heads of institutions forced to resign when they endeavored to enforce discipline; of senseless strikes and false accusations; of bribery and graft. There are many fine features to the student movement in China, but these defects have been present also. There are probably good reasons why Dr. Kiang did not care to emphasize this side of the picture; and what he has given us is a splendid piece of work, which is essential to any student of modern China." J. K. Shryock
+ — Crozer Q 26:78 Ja '49 650w

Current Hist 15:225 O '48 40w

School & Society 68:223 S 25 '48 20w

KIDD, BJ. See Kidd, E.

KIDD, MRS ELIZABETH (FISHER). Women never go broke [by] Bj Kidd. 207p $2.69 Lippincott

396 Woman. Money 48-8667

"This little volume is intended to be an inquiry into the case for and against women when it comes to money. It will attempt to explore some reasons for the constant masculine-feminine controversy over the coin of the realm, and to suggest tentative answers to a few of the costly wrong guesses about feminine financial attitudes so prevalent in various branches of the present system—in government, business, banking, insurance, industry, and the domestic arena, to name a few." (Foreword) No index.

"Her observations on the female attitude toward life insurance are apt, and she is particularly excellent on the subject of women and the supermarket or chain store. It's all generalization of course, but there are some rather startling statistics to prove her point, and the whole thing is done with such good nature that it can not possibly irritate even when the reader disagrees with some of the arguments."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 O 24 '48 220w

"Very readable, light, with somber undertones." Lewis Robbins
+ N Y Times p26 D 5 '48 450w

KIEFER, SISTER MONICA. American children through their books, 1700-1835; foreword by Dorothy Canfield Fisher. 248p il $3.50 Univ. of Pa. press

028.5 Children's literature—History and criticism. Children in the U.S. 48-7054

"A picture of child life and the changing attitude of adults toward children during a hundred and thirty-five year period as revealed in books—some of them specifically written for children, many of them not." (Library J) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by E. W. Knight
+ Am Hist R 54:437 Ja '49 380w

Booklist 45:114 D 1 '48

"In rich and full anecdotal style, offering hundreds of illuminating examples and quotations, and with sensitive over-all understanding of the material gathered, the author presents to the present child-centered home, a sympathetic picture of domestic life and of the American child subject to Colonial religious gloom and even actual cruelty." B. J. Thompson
+ Cath World 168:89 O '48 350w

"This is indeed a book to purr over, both for its scholarship, its wit and intrinsic interest. . . Monica Kiefer has the right feeling towards the books of which she speaks, even if she is Freudianly disposed against their contents." Ann Fremantle
Commonweal 48:384 Jl 30 '48 550w

Current Hist 15:108 Ag '48 20w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 24:349 S '48 50w

"By the range and fascination of its subject matter, the record of early American children's books as a mirror of their times, this is a skillful, valuable and highly informing work. It furnishes hearty evidence of the direct relationship between children's books and the social forces of their day. Facsimile illustrations add suitable dignity to the appearance of this study. Wide research is indicated by its comprehensive references and long bibliography." I. S. Green
+ Horn Bk 25:49 Ja '49 1200w

"A sound reference book, but rather pedantic in style."
Kirkus 16:253 My 15 '48 240w

"In spite of the title, this book is only incidentally a description of the juvenile literature of that era. It is, however, impressive in its organization of masses of material, in its scrupulous identification of every quotation, and in its fourteen pages of bibliography. It is much more impressive, much more a real study, than Earle's Child Life in Colonial Days which covers in more popular fashion a slightly earlier period. Only the sketchy index leaves something to be desired." M. B. Snow
Library J 73:955 Je 15 '48 150w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p11 My 30 '48 550w

New Yorker 24:119 D 11 '48 700w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 11 '48 750w

"A book which is unexpectedly lively, human, readable, and full of choice quotations from contemporary books for children. . . On the whole her book is to be highly commended, not only for its readability but also for the wealth of information she has served up in such palatable form." Courtlandt Canby
+ Sat R of Lit 31:14 S 11 '48 800w

School & Society 67:487 Je 26 '48 30w

KIEFER, PAUL WALTER. Practical evaluation of railroad motive power. 65p il $2 Steam locomotive research inst, inc, 30 Church st, N.Y. 7

621.13 Locomotives 48-1629

"The chief engineer in charge of motive power and rolling stock of the New York Central System, discusses the relative merits of modern steam and Diesel locomotives. His conclusions and his examination of the characteristics, advantages, disadvantages and potentialities of each type of motive power, are based largely on studies carried out by the New York Central." N Y New Tech Bks

Booklist 44:295 My 1 '48

N Y New Tech Bks 33:15 Ja '48

KIELTY, BERNARDINE, ed. Treasury of short stories. 849p $3.95 Simon & Schuster

Short stories—Collections 48-5015

"Favorites of the past hundred years from Turgenev to Thurber, from Balzac to Hemingway; with biographical sketches of the authors." (Subtitle) Partial contents: The death of Ivan Ilyich, by L. N. Tolstoi; A day in the country, by A. P. Chekhov; A simple heart, by Gustave Flaubert; Two little soldiers, by Guy de Maupassant; Our Lady's juggler, by Anatole France; The steadfast tin soldier, by H. C. Andersen; A lodging for the night, by R. L. Stevenson; Without benefit of clergy, by Rudyard Kipling; The cask of Amontillado, by E. A. Poe; The Hiltons' holiday, by S. O. Jewett; Sorrow-acre, by Isak Dinesen; The rocking-horse winner, by D. H. Lawrence; Joining Charles, by Elizabeth Bowen; The story of a panic, by E. M. Forster; The open window, by H. H. Munro; I'm a fool, by Sherwood Anderson; Night club, by Katharine Brush; A telephone call, by Dorothy Parker; The snows of Kilimanjaro, by Ernest Hemingway; The leader of the people, by John Steinbeck.

"A Treasury of Short Stories I approached with my customary groan. However, I was obliged to retract to a considerable extent as I began reading. Even though the book does reprint many of the standard favorites, Bernardine Kielty, as editor, has demonstrated a great deal of good taste and vast knowledge of short stories in her collection." Nelson Olmsted

+ Chicago Sun D 29 '47 600w

"The most conspicuous characteristic of Bernardine Kielty's 'Treasury of Short Stories' is that the selections are interesting, and next, that they are interesting in proportion to their age. It ought not to be surprising that the stories chosen for a 'Treasury' should compel a reader's attention, for that would seem to be a sine qua non, but sometimes it has not been, and that is the reason for remarking on Miss Kielty's willingness to consider the very natural inclination on the part of most readers to have 'something happen' in a story to have their emotions stirred." W. K. R.

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 12 '48 550w

San Francisco Chronicle p15 Mr 14 '48 220w

KIELY, BENEDICT. Poor scholar; a study of the works and days of William Carleton (1794-1869). 198p $3 Sheed

B or 92 Carleton, William [A48-7455]

A study of the life and writings of an Irish novelist, William Carleton, who was born in 1794 and died in 1869. He was the son of a poor family and wrote about and for his own people. Much of his work is now almost unobtainable. Chronology. No index.

Reviewed by J. S. Kennedy

Cath World 168:214 D '48 130w

School & Society 68:15 Jl 3 '48 10w

"Mr. Kiely evokes for us the political and social background to the stories with its grim contrasts of wealth and squalor, starvation, poetry and revolution. Unfortunately he lacks literary experience and selective skill: in consequence his picturesque descriptions are blurred and sometimes tedious in their excessive detail. Moreover, he has not the critical detachment which is necessary in analysing the complicated genius of Carleton. . . But in spite of his bias and rather heavy style, Mr. Kiely has done useful work in drawing attention to a neglected writer."

Times [London] Lit Sup p236 Ap 24 '48 600w

KILLEFFER, DAVID HERBERT. Genius of industrial research. 263p $4.50 Reinhold

607 Industrial research 48-2191

"Tells how scientific research is conducted, the viewpoint being that of the individual researcher. Selected mainly from the industrial chemistry field. Among the researches noted are methods which produce high-octane gasoline; celluloid; gelled gasoline for incendiary purposes; bromine from seaweed; Geiger-Müller counter; commercial synthesis of vitamin B; recovery of potash from brine; mercerizing; and synthetic rubber. Author quotes freely from original sources." Library J

"All in all, the author has assembled an interesting and informative series of accounts dealing with achievements in the field of industrial research. In that respect it would seem that he has accomplished what he set out to do: provide guidance to young research workers." P. K. Frolich

+ Chem & Eng N 26:2837 S 20 '48 550w

"The gist of the book is the retelling of the history of a series of actual research efforts, many of them Perkin Medal addresses. . . But perhaps the most interesting thing about the book is not the examples. It is the running commentary that introduces the examples. It is in the commentary that the author makes his real points and gives the reader a real appreciation of how modern research works. . . It might appear that Killeffer's book will have its greatest value in teaching undergraduate technical men what they will face if they move into research work. It can do more than that, for it can realign the thinking of many who are in research work today. It will give such men a fresh yet experienced look at the field they are in." Roger Williams

+ Chem Eng 55:283 Jl '48 440w

"A fascinating volume and inspired reading." L. A. Eales

+ Library J 73:820 My 15 '48 90w

"Since the accounts of the discoveries are presented primarily by quotations from the original presentations of the discoverer, which were usually addressed to a technical gathering, the book is not one that can be readily understood by those not having some training in chemical research. Hence the title is misleading. It might well have read instead: 'The Genius of Industrial Chemical Research.' " H. R. Northrup

Sat R of Lit 31:23 Je 12 '48 230w

KILLINGSWORTH, CHARLES C. State labor relations acts; a study of public policy. 328p $4 Univ. of Chicago press

331 Labor laws and legislation—U.S. 48-7437

"An analysis of the policies, provisions and effects of the various state labor relations laws with a view to their restrictive and protective implications. The author also examines the experiences under many controversial state labor acts and discusses several novel types of enforcement procedures. In addition, the numerous state laws, other than labor relations acts, restricting unions and collective bargaining are summarized." (Management R) Index.

"This study of state labor relations acts and related legislation is a revision of a doctoral dissertation. As such, it shows the effects of careful attention to details and the influence of comment and criticism. It is a thorough, well-organized, and comprehensively documented analysis of state legislation on collective bargaining and the status, rights, and privileges of those who participate in this important phase of modern industrial relations . . . This reviewer cannot but question some of the author's conclusions from his much less detailed analysis of the statistics of work stoppages." Dale Yoder

KILLINGSWORTH, C. C.—Continued

+ — Ann Am Acad 260:231 N '48 600w

Management R 37:535 O '48 130w

KIMBALL, SIDNEY FISKE, and VENTURI, LIONELLO, eds. Great paintings in America; 101 masterpieces in color. 216p $20 Coward-McCann

759 Paintings 48-10923

"A hundred and one reproductions in color, with accompanying descriptive text." New Yorker

"Intelligent conception, painstaking craftsmanship, good taste and scholarship in the editing, make Great Paintings in America a thoroughly exceptional art book, one that is likely to have a wide appeal, price notwithstanding."

+ Atlantic 182:119 D '48 240w

Reviewed by Frank Holland

Chicago Sun p9X N 7 '48 500w

Reviewed by Dorothy Adlow

Christian Science Monitor p15 D 2 '48 210w

"Great Paintings In America is, certainly, a volume which would grace anyone's table, as well as an ideal Christmas gift. Likewise it is directed toward a wide public. But it never truckles." David Burnham

+ Commonweal 49:202 D 3 '48 390w

"Somehow an almost wine-like flavor has been impressed into this book of 101 color-reproductions from American collections which have been chosen and prepared by two men of competence. . . As to the color-reproductions, the majority of the plates adhere with a commendable accuracy to the colors of the original pictures, although the success is greatest, it must be confessed, in the more subdued ranges." Jerome Mellquist

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 N 7 '48 1150w

"This rich, colorful book is a one-volume pictorial history of Western painting, a major publishing effort, a treasure-house of art." W. G. Dooley

+ N Y Times p6 O 31 '48 850w

"The main value of a book of this sort rests, of course, in the selection, and in this case the editors have done their work with notable judgment and discretion, their one fault perhaps being that they have put too great an emphasis on the Italian school. The descriptive notes are concise and informative, and the presswork, though a trifle metallic in texture, is generally excellent."

+ New Yorker 24:111 O 30 '48 100w

"It is a pleasure indeed to come upon a new art volume that is 100 per cent full color. And when the color is reproduced with the fidelity of the plates in 'Great Paintings in America,' the pleasure is heightened." Edith James

+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 31 '48 900w

"The albums of great paintings which book publishers offer usually please the layman more than they do serious students and practising artists. This anthology . . . will gratify connoisseurs as well as laymen, for in their selections its editors have never underestimated the taste of the public and have furnished an informative and perceptive critical text, while the publishers have seen that the paintings were well reproduced in full color." L. R. Sander

+ Sat R of Lit 32:17 Ja 1 '49 470w

KIMBARK, EDWARD WILSON. Power system stability; 3v; v. 1, Elements of stability calculations. 355p $6 Wiley

621.31913 Electric power. Electric currents, Alternating 48-6164

"The special qualities of this work are due—at least in part—to its origin as material for lectures delivered to graduate engineers. The problems and methods of calculating stability characteristics in advance and of correcting conditions of instability in transmission systems already constructed are discussed clearly and in detail from the practical viewpoint of graduate electrical engineers. Noteworthy topics in this volume, in addition to the subjects mentioned in the Contents, are descriptions of the General Electric and Westinghouse alternating-current calculating boards, numerous examples of swing curves, and condensed analyses of the stability conditions of four-power systems. These last are based on actual studies made by operating and engineering companies." (N Y New Tech Bks) Chapter references. Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 73:481 Mr 15 '48 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:8 Ja '48

KIMBROUGH, EMILY (MRS JOHN WRENCH). It gives me great pleasure; il. by Helen Hokinson. 227p $2.50 Dodd

818 Lectures and lecturing 48-9373

Humorous account of the author's lecture tours. Half of the chapters have appeared as stories in the New Yorker.

Booklist 45:117 D 1 '48

"Through all her adventures, Miss Kimbrough maintains a kindly attitude toward the Republic. Her sense of humor, including everyone, includes herself; her tone is both whimsical and gay, sensitive to shadings of emotion, and robust in its recognition of the curious and diverse ways we all have of exhibiting our common humanity. Written with affection, her vignettes have the verve of bright water colors." John Gross

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 D 1 '48 310w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin

Horn Bk 25:65 Ja '49 20w

Reviewed by Richardson Wright

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 D 5 '48 800w

Reviewed by Rex Lardner

N Y Times p38 N 28 '48 470w

"There is, I believe, the expression 'a saving sense of humor.' It is an excellent adjective to apply to that quality of mind which has enabled Emily Kimbrough to laugh, and make others laugh, at the greater and lesser tribulations and mishaps which beset her path as a lecturer on tour. It has brought her unscathed, and with a heart still young and gay, through situations which a less buoyant and resilient personality would have found distinctly harrowing. . . The book is illustrated by Helen Hokinson. A happier combination of author and artist couldn't have been made." S. H. Hay

+ Sat R of Lit 31:16 D 18 '48 600w

Reviewed by E. H. Dexter

Springf'd Republican p8B Ja 9 '49 240w

KIMMEL, LEWIS HENRY, and MARONEY, MILDRED. Governmental costs and tax levels. 153p $2.50 Brookings

336.73 Finance—U.S. Taxation—U.S. 48-7188

"The method followed in the study is as follows: First, we seek, by a study of factors and forces affecting the level of expenditures, to indicate on a conservative basis what the level is likely to be some five years hence. Second, we make a detailed analysis of the revenues needed to cover such expenditures—assuming the continuance of a relatively high level of national income. Third, we consider the urgent demands for tax reductions in relation to the expenditure and revenue requirements that have been indicated. Fourth, we show how the situation with respect to revenues would be affected by even moderate reductions in the level of national income. In contrast with most discussions of the fiscal situation, this study covers the states and their political subdivisions, in addition to the federal government." (Pref) Index.

Reviewed by K. E. Poole
Am Econ R 38:680 S '48 600w

"The book provides a very useful look into the public-finance future. While it involves extensive statistical calculations that a reviewer cannot retrace, it appears to be done with due care. One or two passages are extremely difficult to follow. . . The author might have paid his respects to the view that a substantial drop in national income calls for a federal deficit (built-in flexibility). But the warning against overly sanguine tax-reduction programs is very timely and sound." H. M. Groves
+ — Am Pol Sci R 42:783 Ag '48 650w

"In spite of the obvious limitations of such a study, due to the rapidity with which conditions change, it serves a useful purpose. . . Two major flaws in the presentation can be pointed out here. First, the comparison of estimated 1952 with 1940 expenditures is made without adjusting the expenditures to a common price level. The result is to give a misleading impression of the growth of expenditures. Second, consideration of the basic principles of fiscal policy is neglected." P. J. Strayer
+ — Ann Am Acad 259:182 S '48 500w

KING, CLARENCE. Organizing for community action. 202p $3 Harper

361.8 Charity organization. Social work 48-9258

"This book is an attempt to assemble illustrations of organizing for community action and to derive from them, by the case method, a few principles for future guidance." (School & Society) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:151 Ja 1 '49

"Hardly a book intended for straight away reading, but a handbook for social workers sincerely desirous of bettering their techniques and achieving community action."
+ Kirkus 16:545 O 1 '48 120w

School & Society 68:326 N 6 '48 30w

"We are grateful to Clarence King for this book for several reasons, but primarily because he brings this thing called 'community organization' down to earth and makes it intelligible to both volunteers and professionals. He does this by the simple process of setting forth basic principles and relating case stories to them." Arch Mandel
+ Survey 84:380 D '48 400w

KING, ERNEST LAMARR. Main line; fifty years of railroading with the Southern Pacific; as told to Robert E. Mahaffay. 271p $3 Doubleday

656 Southern Pacific railroad 48-8786

"Mr. King, a Californian, began his career at 15 as a Western Union messenger. He became a telegrapher and went to work for the S. P., which assigned him to a succession of stations in the wild country where the main line from San Francisco to Reno crosses the Sierras. He rose to dispatcher, divisional superintendent, and so on, until when he retired in 1945 he was assistant to the vice president in charge of operations. The book deals mainly with incidents of railroading and curious characters that came under Mr. King's notice." (N Y Times) Index.

Kirkus 16:387 Ag 1 '48 120w

"The book could have done with a glossary of unfamiliar railroad terms, and occasionally Mr. Mahaffay forgets himself and has Mr. King use a 'literary' sentence like 'The wave of wild sound slammed ahead to the station.' Otherwise, however, the book is a good, sound job, entertaining for the ordinary reader and a must for railroad buffs." L. S. De Camp
+ — N Y Times p36 N 14 '48 350w

"An informal, easy-going book that will appeal alike to rail fans and many casual readers." R. T.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 N 28 '48 470w

KING, MARIAN. Young King David; drawings by Steele Savage. 169p $2.50 Lippincott

221.92 David, king of Israel—Juvenile literature 48-2913

Story of the earlier part of David's life, from sheepherding days to his accession to the throne of Israel.

Booklist 45:37 S 15 '48

"Here we have a Biblical volume which is not biography, nor history, but fiction that is loyal to the literal deathless stories of the Book of Samuel. The volume should help many to understand the meaning of David, and to enjoy his attractive character and stirring adventures." E. D. C.
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 S 2 '48 420w

"Excellent for young readers of any age, pleasing for the adult." M. L. Eglinton
+ Churchman 162:16 O 15 '48 70w

"The narrative runs smoothly and Miss King's scholarship is endorsed by Fleming James, authority on Old Testament history." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 24:374 S '48 90w

"The monotonous warfare which filled his early years has been skillfully condensed. Will not be widely read, but those who do read it will want to know more about David." J. F. Carter
+ Library J 73:1193 S 1 '48 70w

"A fine, rousing story for any boy or girl who wants a hero tale, full of battles, blood and ballads. . . Miss King has written her story well and has tuned her modern speech to the rhythm of the songs from the King James Version." Margaret Ernst
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 S 5 '48 230w

"Young readers will finish this book, not only with a better understanding of biblical history, but with a lingering awareness of principle adhered to." V. H. Mathews
+ N Y Times p25 O 10 '48 200w

"It is a clear and moving record, smooth in continuity, convincing in its picture of the most appealing of all the Old Testament heroes. Behind the simplicity of style lies a sound scholarship, endorsed through a short foreword by Fleming James. Steele Savage, in his full page drawings and chapter headings makes an admirable setting for the story." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 31:38 S 18 '48 140w

KING, MARY JACKSON. Vine of glory. 357p $3 Bobbs 48-7359

"The story is of Gaskins, Ga., and of an unmarried, young, white Southern woman who seeks personal freedom and, a larger human freedom through cooperation with an enlightened Negro man whom she had known in childhood and who has returned to his native town to try to help his people." N Y Times

---

Booklist 45:32 S 15 '48

"This is a fast-moving and readable story, and although the author ducks many important issues, it is pleasant to read of even a fictional character doing something concrete to lessen discrimination and suffering." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 73:945 Je 15 '48 100w

"The material of 'Vine of Glory' is not unfamiliar, but it is presented freshly and vigorously and ends on a note of hope."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 S 19 '48 140w

"The emotional force of this first novel by a young Southern woman is so powerful that some readers will find it painful to accept all of its disclosures. But, whatever the author may at present lack in esthetic finesse, she possesses an intimate knowledge of her material. She has homely reportorial skill in organizing and in recording facts. And she is exceptionally courageous in looking directly at the truth. . . Though the story is in itself a tragic one, the implications of the novel are affirmative, hopeful." Lawrence Lee
+ — N Y Times p4 Jl 11 '48 850w

KING, M. J.—Continued

"Interesting material, thoroughly explored."

+ New Yorker 24:67 Jl 10 '48 150w

Wis Lib Bul 44:165 O '48

KINGDON, FRANK. Architects of the Republic. (Alliance pub. co. bk) 284p $3.50 Beechhurst press

923.173 Washington, George. Jefferson, Thomas. Lincoln, Abraham. Roosevelt, Franklin Delano 47-11884

"This is a study of four political 'architects' (Washington, Jefferson, Lincoln and Franklin D. Roosevelt), of their characters and personalities, and the main ideas, they embodied or expressed. The author is a clergyman and news commentator, a friend of liberal and humane causes, who has read American history with discernment." N Y Times

"The author does not idealize Franklin Roosevelt, whose human frailties and political proclivities he seems to understand, but he finds in him also a dedication (arising out of his illness chiefly) such as he has found in the three other men. . . In the exact sense, the interpretations in this book are spiritual, for the author tries to understand the spirit of each man. Hyper-sophisticates may not like this sort of personal treatment any better than the economic determinists will, but one reader found the book interesting, fundamentally sound and distinctly inspiriting. There is a lift in it, as there ought to be in the stories of such men as these." Dumas Malone

+ N Y Times p9 Ja 4 '48 800w

Reviewed by Luther Nichols

San Francisco Chronicle p12 F 1 '48 170w

Springf'd Republican p8B Ja 25 '48 210w

KINGMAN, LEE. Rocky summer; il. by Barbara Cooney. 211p $2.50 Houghton 48-7833

The summer adventures of the American-born Ranta twins, who lived in a Finnish community on Cape Ann, Massachusetts, back in 1905. Mikko gets a summer job as water boy for the Granite company, and Helmi longs to do something besides mind the baby. There is a mystery which the twins solve with the help of their capricious horse, Polle. Grades four to seven.

"The charm of the book lies in its account of the day-to-day life of an individual but highly believable family, and in the atmosphere which is developed with care and no adulterating artiness." Jane Cobb

+ Atlantic 182:119 N '48 100w

"A pleasant but rather superficial story."

Booklist 45:37 S 15 '48

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton

Christian Science Monitor p18 D 16 '48 240w

+ Commonweal 49:151 N 19 '48 70w

"The family is a united one, its members are drawn with skill and reality in a story which shows a Finnish-American social group in a New England setting. Lee Kingman writes with knowledge and understanding." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 24:372 S '48 120w

Kirkus 16:280 Je 15 '48 120w

Reviewed by Margaret Miller

+ Library J 73:1826 D 15 '48 100w

"There is lively adventure and humor in this story. . . Natural children and family relationships and a feeling for outdoors mark this book and confirm the promise shown in the author's first book, 'Pierre Pidgeon.'" Helen Masten

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 S 19 '48 230w

"Children from 10 to 12 are often as anxious for mystery-adventures as some of the rest of us. This group will welcome a new tale by the author of that delightful Gaspe story, 'Pierre Pidgeon.'" C. E. Zagat

+ N Y Times p35 O 3 '48 180w

New Yorker 24:131 D 11 '48 90w

Sat R of Lit 31:27 N 13 '48 130w

KINKEAD, EUGENE, and MALONEY, RUSSELL. Our own Baedeker; with maps and il. by Carl Rose. 281p $3.75 Simon & Schuster

910.4 48-5035

A collection of seventy-two articles reprinted from The New Yorker. They are brief geographical profiles of countries, large or small, which appeared in the news during the war.

Booklist 44:215 F 15 '48

Reviewed by Thomas Daffron

Chicago Sun p7X Ja 18 '48 290w

"The wrapping-up of the statistical, the historical and the unusual into neatly turned, humorous pieces is consistently successful—which makes it almost impossible to single out any specific section for special comment. This is an ideal book to pick up and enjoy in off-moments, but it also stands up amazingly well to a non-stop reading from beginning to end. In fact, text and pictures alike make it difficult to put down." A. L. Goodman

+ New Repub 118:28 Ja 19 '48 290w

"The appearance of the Maloney-Kinkead essays in book form is welcome. It is a handsome volume with decorations by Carl Rose. . . If by any chance it is the only book discovered by archeologists of the future among the ruins of our civilization (sic) we will be classed with the pre-Ikhnahton Egyptians, perhaps an accurate designation. Contemporary uses to which the book may be put are reading for amusement, reading for curiosity . . . and reading to scare the wits out of yourself, this last being accomplished by perusing the Maloney-Kinkead selected facts on Russia." Thomas Sugrue

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ja 4 '48 600w

"The prospective reader of 'Our Own Baedeker' must understand at once that it will not be a trustworthy substitute for the standard, pedestrian guide book. Kinkead and Maloney seem to have taken a vow at the outset that, whatever else they did, they would never become dull or pedantic. If a heavy fact came up they ruthlessly tossed it out in favor of a light one. So you may and will learn a great many odd things about what goes on elsewhere in the world. . . It is a book that smells a little of the lamp, the encyclopedia and old newspaper files, but is mightily readable, best taken in short draughts." W. D. Ogdon

+ N Y Times p6 Ja 11 '48 750w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p12 D 29 '47 450w

KINNEMAN, JOHN ALBERTUS. Community in American society. 450p maps $3.75 Crofts

323.35 Community life 47-5625

"This book is designed to cut 'across the essential elements in both rural and urban society,' (p. vii), to explore and delineate the common elements in the two types of society. In general it is an effort to describe many aspects of contemporary American society within a broadly conceived community frame of reference. In addition to the introduction, the twenty-four chapters are organized into five sections. These are: structure, people, institutions, organization, and functions." (Ann Am Acad) Chapter references. Index.

Reviewed by O. F. Larson

Ann Am Acad 256:245 Mr '48 480w

School & Society 66:351 N 1 '47 10w

Reviewed by W. J. Hayes

Social Forces 26:477 My '48 550w

KINSEY, ALFRED CHARLES, and others. Sexual behavior in the human male. 804p $6.50 Saunders

392.6 Sex. U.S.—Moral conditions 48-5195

"This study was begun nine years ago and will continue for at least twenty years more. The information is being gathered by interviews conducted by a small group of highly trained investigators. Talks with more than twelve thousand people had been analyzed by the time this first volume went to press, and data on fifty-three hundred white males among these form the basis for the present material. Some ninety thousand additional interviews will be made. The money for the project has come from Indiana University and, chiefly, the Medical Division of the Rockefeller Foundation, through the Committee for Research on Problems in Sex of the National Research Council." (New Yorker) Bibliography. Index.

"The chapter on interviewing will command the respect of every anthropological field worker, even though he may encounter some statements that do not correspond to his own experience... In general, the reviewer can only express high admiration for the scientific integrity of this study, for its technical ingenuity, and theoretical and statistical acumen. However, a number of questions must be raised. Of the more detailed kind one may serve as illustration. The basis of differentiation between the 'professional,' 'business executive,' and 'extremely wealthy' groups does not seem altogether clear and convincing." Clyde Kluckhohn

Am Anthropol 50:322 Ap '48 1300w

Reviewed by C.-E. Winslow

Am J Pub Health 38:571 Ap '48 1700w

Reviewed by J. K. Folsom

Am Soc R 13:224 Ap '48 2150w

Reviewed by M. F. Nimkoff

Ann Am Acad 257:235 My '48 420w

Booklist 44:228 Mr 1 '48

"This is a serious, scientific and almost definitive study of male American sex behavior as it actually is, and its results are bound to be far-reaching... The meticulous accuracy and objectivity of Kinsey's work remind us constantly that he is a biologist, but he also shows himself throughout the book to be a widely-read scholar, fully aware of the decisive role played by social and psychological factors in determining sexual behavior." J. D. Ketchum

+ Canadian Forum 28:44 My '48 1550w

Reviewed by P. H. Little

Chicago Sun Ja 27 '48 450w

"Despite its many defects, 'Sexual Behavior in the Human Male' is a landmark. Professor Kinsey has answered many questions for his students and other people too. He also has raised more questions than he has answered. Some of the latter will be settled in the course of his researches and those of his associates which will profit no doubt by the constructive criticism stimulated by this first progress report... If anyone is dissatisfied with the picture, then he must at least welcome their facts as an aid to realistic and effective remedial programs." Harry McNeill

Commonweal 48:654 Ap 23 '48 2450w

"Careful protection of the anonymity of the case histories, thorough preparation and training of the interviewers and their techniques, a gift for presentation in readable form, and the inclusion of many charts, copious indices and extensive bibliography all contribute to the authoritative value of the work. Important."

+ Kirkus 15:685 D 15 '47 200w

"Thoroughly scientific study, supported by the National Research Council with Rockefeller Foundation funds, and based on adequate samples and method. Unique in breadth of scope and objectivity from all previous studies in this area... Essential in most collections in spite of handling problems it will bring." R. E. Kingery

+ Library J 73:200 F 1 '48 100w

"An important, useful, and honest book. It contains many debatable statements, and there are probably a number of statistical and technical errors. . . It is fortunately not, as it purports to be, an entirely objective report of 'what people do.'" Martin Gumpert

+ — Nation 166:471 My 1 '48 1500w

Reviewed by J. R. Newman

New Repub 118:26 F 9 '48 6450w

"Despite its completely misleading title, this study does represent an addition to our knowledge of some types of the behavior of white American males in the northeastern United States. By no stretch of the imagination can the behavior described be considered typical for any group except United States citizens; and even within the United States the sampling is so poor that the only reliable figures are those for college graduates in six of the northeastern states. But our knowledge of the sexual behavior of the mass of human beings who do not feel impelled to consult psychiatrists, marriage counselors and the like is so slight that the addition of slightly more than five thousand case histories is valuable and should be welcomed... This analysis of 5,000 reports, however, is a considerable addition to our knowledge. The book is so turgid, so repetitive, so full of nearly meaningless tables, that it will only be read through by specialists." Geoffrey Gorer

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 F 1 '48 1800w

"Just as this was a difficult study to make, and a difficult book to write, so is it also a difficult book to review. Difficult, because of the magnitude of the subject... Although it is by far the most comprehensive study yet made of sex behavior, it has been preceded by hundreds of others. The author lists 500 titles in his bibliography... The findings of Dr. Kinsey's report provide us with the material for sober thought, and a new basis for the personal understanding of our individual sex problems... After recovery from the original impact due to the explosion of many of our preconceptions, this study should be most valuable if, in the words of Dr. Gregg, 'the reader will match the authors with an equal and appropriate measure of cool attention, courageous judgment and scientific equanimity.'" H. A. Rusk

N Y Times p3 Ja 4 '48 1700w

"This book and the subsequent volumes are sure to be widely read; sex is always news. While the language is that of science, and many people will find some of the statements unendurably frank, the style is lively and simple. 'The book is intended,' say the publishers severely, 'primarily for workers in the fields of medicine, biology, psychology, sociology, anthropology, and allied sciences, and for teachers, social workers, personnel officers, law-enforcement groups, and others concerned with the direction of human behavior.' If there is anyone not concerned with the direction of human behavior, I can't think who it is." Bruce Bliven

New Yorker 23:60 Ja 3 '48 1750w

"For a very long time a thorough, well documented, objective treatise on sex behavior has been overdue. 'Sexual Behavior in the Human Male' is the most exhaustive and least biased piece of research that this interviewer has yet seen... Such a book as this will not put bad ideas into people's heads, nor will it have much effect on the behavior of its readers. But it will give them a basis of comparison between their behavior and that of their group and other groups. And it may help them to re-evaluate what they believe to be the ideal mores in the light of things as they are." J. B. Wheelright

San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ja 18 '48 900w

Reviewed by Dr Abraham Stone, Morris Ernst, Dr Bernard Woortis, and Ruth Benedict

Sat R of Lit 31:17 Mr 13 '48 4500w

"As a source of information on hush-hush matters, the Kinsey report qualifies as an adult text of sex education, although some of the content will prove to be rather rough for the sensitive. However, the spirit of scientific detachment reigns throughout." W. W. Brickman

School & Society 68:142 Ag 28 '48 650w

Reviewed by H. W. Odum

Social Forces 26:348 Mr '48 1150w

KINSEY, A. C.—Continued

Reviewed by Elmer Pogar
Social Studies 39:285 O '48 290w

Reviewed by T. A. C. Rennie, M.D.
Survey G 37:81 F '48 1350w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:197 Je '48 280w

"For the psychiatrist, as for others, it is a useful work. Professor Kinsey emerges as something of a crusader for more realism in our social responses to sex activity, in spite of his real and, on the whole, successful effort to preserve an attitude of scientific detachment. The book is full of facts, descriptions, and statistics of sexual behavior of the male. This for the psychiatrist is only part of the picture." C. C. Fry
+ Yale R n s 37:547 spring '48 1000w

KINSEY, WILLIAM, pseud. of WILLIAM K. and RITA L. EBERBACH. Dark is the mirror; being an episode in the life of John Poorjohn, Sc.D. 306p $3 Houghton
48-6237

An American chemist, feeling himself on the verge of a breakdown, goes to Sweden for a vacation. While there he meets the daughter of a Chicago architect, who is also, on her mother's side, the last of one of Sweden's oldest aristocratic families. The two fall in love, but there is a psychological stumbling block to be overcome before they can return to America and security.

Reviewed by Ruth Byrns
Commonweal 58:116 My 14 '48 190w

Kirkus 16:60 F 1 '48 210w

"Unimportant." H. G. Kelley
— Library J 73:396 Mr 1 '48 80w

"The author has failed to give his characters life. They are intellectual problems—Arne the most interesting, but one such in a book is enough; when Ruth and Poorjohn also remain enigmas, the story itself becomes cryptogrammatic. . . A strange, and on the whole, an unsatisfactory novel. Darkness in a mirror can achieve invisibility." James Hilton
— N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ap 4 '48 550w

"The saccharine conclusion thoroughly undoes the story's atmosphere of insinuated evil."
New Yorker 24:94 Ap 3 '48 160w

Reviewed by Edith James
San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 2 '48 100w

Wis Lib Bul 44:149 S '48

KIRCHER, RALF CHARLES. Wrap it as a gift; with il. by Gluyas Williams. 214p $2 Rinehart 817 47-11651

" 'Wrap It as a Gift' is a series of sketches about the harried male working his way through a lingerie department, through sodden and gameless hunting trips, through the mayhem (Kircher's word) of a square dance, through, in short, all the traps that civilization has prepared for him." San Francisco Chronicle

Kirkus 15:497 S 1 '47 100w

"Where Leacock's long suit was meiosis and Benchley's hyperbole and anticlimax, Kircher's seems to be incongruity and anticlimax. . . While Kircher isn't up to the masters, he has written a book with some sound, solid humor in it." Rex Lardner
+ N Y Times p22 Ja 25 '48 360w

"There is one serious fault with this book. It is calculated to cause you to laugh noisily." W. R. W.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p28 Ja 18 '48 220w

KIRKBRIDE, CHALMER GATLIN. Chemical engineering fundamentals. 419p il $5 McGraw 660 Chemical engineering 47-12325

"Introductory college textbook. Aims to give the student a grasp on the underlying philosophy of the subject. Describes various types of chemical engineering work, basic principles of human relationships, personal qualifications required in the profession, important concepts of mathematics, physics and chemistry and the five basic fundamentals of chemical engineering. Discusses the reporting of technical results." (Library J) Index.

"Should be of interest as a refresher course for practicing engineers or for veterans before entering chemical industries." L. A. Eales
+ Library J 73:45 Ja 1 '48 70w

"The work will be used mainly in college courses, but it should be helpful also to persons who desire a reliable vocational insight into the profession of chemical engineering."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 32:70 O '47

KIRKENDALL, LESTER ALLEN, and others. Goals for American education; written for the Commission on educational reconstruction of the American federation of teachers. 130p $2 Am. federation of teachers, 506 S. Wabash av, Chicago
370.1 Education—Aims and objectives
48-2448

"The American Federation of Teachers established a Commission on Educational Reconstruction in August, 1944. By the end of the ensuing year, the specific undertaking of the Commission had been defined by the Executive Council of the Federation as the preparation of the volume, Goals for American Education." (El School J) Contents: The world we face; Goals for American education; The American school system; Major deficiencies in American education; A program for American education; Can we afford this program?

"This volume will serve the useful purpose of directing the interests and efforts of professional organizations to the crucial problems of the present time, as well as providing authoritative guidance for group action." N. B. Henry
+ El School J 49:113 O '48 550w

"The authors, as per popular custom, disclose the major deficiencies of American education, but they are not always free from superficiality. Federal aid, quite understandably, plays a significant role in this co-operative prescription for our educational difficulties." W. W. Brickman
School & Society 68:77 Jl 31 '48 180w

KIRKLAND, EDWARD CHASE. Men, cities and transportation; a study in New England history, 1820-1900. 2v il maps $12.50 Harvard univ. press
385 Transportation—New England. Railroads—New England 48-7564

"The face of New England, the author points out, 'mirrored in a miniature and slightly distorted fashion that of the great nation of which it is a part,' with its Atlantic coastline, and a coastal plain and mountains in the interior. All types of transportation were called for, from Lake Champlain to Kennebec, and they are all discussed in this . . . survey by a Bowdoin professor of history." Library J

"Throughout this massive undertaking, Mr. Kirkland repeatedly breaks new ground and sets high standards of achievement. . . Mr. Kirkland not only captures the color and emotions of the situations he describes but also grasps clearly the elusive technical and strategic considerations that have so often tripped up even the most conscientious historians when they have turned to matters of transportation. Incidentally, special mention should be made of the chapters on the origin and development of the various state regulatory commissions; they are the most informative to be found on the subject. Excellence in so many directions deserves warmer commendation. Furthermore, the splendid illustrations, adequate maps, and pleasing format are worthy of favorable comment. As in the case of any ambitious undertaking, however, wherein the author deliberately risks sins of omission, these volumes have their weak spots. . . A bibliography even of secondary works, to say nothing of the many pamphlets would have been invaluable." R. C. Overton

+ — Am Hist R 54:372 Ja '49 1200w

"For university, state, and municipal reference libraries, and all public libraries which feel that they can afford a set." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 73:940 Ja 15 '48 130w

"The volumes are illustrated with prints and photographs of engines, depots, coastwise ships and rail disasters and have maps showing the organization of the three large New England rail systems. The work should appeal to historians of business and to the more scholarly of railroad men." Stewart Holbrook

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 S 5 '48 600w

KIRSCHBAUM, EMIL. Distillation and rectification; tr. by M. Wulfinghoff. 426p $10 Chemical pub. co.

660.284 Distillation 48-7783

"A translation of the author's Destillier und Rektifiziertechnik (Berlin: Springer, 1940; reprinted by Edwards Bros., 1943). The work, which gained an international reputation while available only in the original language, is intended for both practicing chemical engineers and advanced students. It provides a detailed, largely mathematical description of the fundamental principles and techniques of distillation, and covers also the design and construction of basic types of equipment. This translation includes a five-page bibliography and a brief review of outstanding developments which have occurred since the publication of the original work." N Y New Tech Bks

"The book should be included in libraries making a historical collection of works on distillation. It does not fill the need for a modern text or reference book on this subject, in which there have been many major advances during the past 10 or 12 years." John Griswold

Chem & Eng N 26:3442 N 15 '48 400w

"All in all, this is one of the most useful books on distillation yet published; and while it makes an American engineer stop and reread now and then because of the difference of approach (and sometimes conclusion); that by itself may be one of its most valuable contributions. It will be a handy book, indeed, for reference in academic courses in distillation; and a necessary addition to the bookshelf of every distillation engineer." D. F. Othmer

+ — Chem Eng 56:295 Ja '49 450w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 73:1597 N 1 '48 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:52 Jl '48

KIRSCHNER, JACK. Pattern grading, simplified; a manual for grading women's, misses', juniors' and children's dresses, suits and coats. 202p $6 Fairchild

687 Garment cutting 48-4708

"A practical manual prepared for the guidance of pattern designers, garment makers and tailors. It shows in great detail the steps to be followed in decreasing or increasing the size of a basic style pattern for women's and children's clothing. The pattern diagrams, which appear on each page are the essential part of the book. The textual material is brief, and serves only in an explanatory capacity." N Y New Tech Bks

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 73:1598 N 1 '48 40w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:80 S '48

KISER, MARTHA GWINN. Rainbow for me; il. by Eloise Wilkin. 126p $2 Random house 48-8137

Story of the gay times orphaned Ruey had when Gramma visited her. Even dishwashing became a game with the dish folks in dish-pan lake. When Gramma discovered Aunt Tood did not know how to raise a little girl, she took on the job—much to Ruey's delight. For ages 8-11.

Reviewed by M. B. King

Chicago Sun N 6 '48 90w

"Dolls, circuses and nine and ten year old pains and pleasures are made real and warm. A good book to read aloud to third graders, but fourth graders should be able to read it to themselves."

+ Kirkus 16:309 Jl 1 '48 130w

"Fourth- and fifth-grade girls will enjoy this story full of fun and kindliness. Recommended." K. H. McAlarney

+ Library J 73:1601 N 1 '48 70w

N Y Times p41 N 7 '48 140w

Reviewed by Bertha Luschnat

San Francisco Chronicle p21 N 28 '48 180w

Sat R of Lit 31:29 N 13 '48 50w

Wis Lib Bul 45:15 Ja '49

KISSIN, RITA. This precious dust. 353p $3.50 Ziff-Davis 48-775

The story of a beautiful red-haired rabbi's daughter living in an old German town in the days before Hitler came into power. It describes her marriage to a German, the birth of her son, and then when the Nazis came to power, her flight to the United States where a happier marriage was her lot.

"Presented with a quiet intensity which suggests that it is some degree the harvest of a true experience. Certainly it is more effective than the shrill and frenzied fiction which has been hacked out of the tragedy by some writers."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ap 4 '48 180w

"Miss Kissin's book is a sincere love-letter to this country—that's about all. As a novel, it's a failure. Writing novels is still a crafty and sullen art, no matter how sincere you are. Miss Kissin isn't crafty enough to keep things going for very long." S. K.

N Y Times p34 Je 6 '48 230w

"A first novel that reveals a talent of lustrous promise. . . Miss Kissin's writing shows an excellent understanding of psychology, particularly emotional reflexes. Her prose style is simple and facile, but while it expresses sensitivity and power, it never loses an obvious burden of triteness and sentimentality." N. H. MacLennan

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:16 Je 12 '48 700w

KITTREDGE, JOSEPH. Forest influences. 394p $4.50 McGraw

634.922 Forests and forestry. Forest influences Agr48-34

"The effects of woody vegetation on climate, water, and soil, with applications to the conservation of water and the control of floods and erosion." (Subtitle) Contains technical information, statistics, and evaluation of specific trees and shrubs. For forestry and conservation workers. The appendix contains a list of symbols used and their meanings; common and scientific names of species and seventeen pages of references. Index.

Booklist 45:7 S 1 '48

"To say that the book fills a definite gap is merely to state the obvious. Like any other pioneering work, 'Forest Influences' shows some lack of coordination here and there, some sign of haste in several places, but its value is not affected; a second edition, however, could easily make use of maps on a uniform scale and projection—to cite one instance that may interest the geographical reader. The plan of the work is logical. . . The great value of the book lies in the factual approach. Exact or tentative formulae are given whenever possible, so that various physiographic problems which used to be mentioned in a descriptive way can now be stated and solved mathemati-

KITTREDGE, JOSEPH—Continued
cally. The research worker in mountain or forest physiography is thus equipped with a new tool. The general reader will find many misbeliefs dispelled." J. Gentilli
+ Geog R 39:164 Ja '49 380w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:481 Mr 15 '48 60w

KIVER, MILTON SOL. Television simplified. 2d ed 453p il $6; text ed $4.80 Van Nostrand
621.388 Television 48-6394

New edition of a book for radio repair men and others interested in television. "The presentation in the revised edition follows exactly the pattern established in the previous edition. Little is assumed beyond an elementary knowledge of the operation of home sound receivers and upon this is built an understanding of the modern television set with its highly integrated synchronizing circuits. . . It attempts to answer those pertinent questions which always arise when any subject is first investigated and which, if left unanswered, soon begin to interfere with the smooth accumulation of subsequent information." (Pref) For first edition see Book Review Digest 1946. Glossary of television terms. Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:820 My 15 '48 20w

"The present edition—as the original one—is designed chiefly for such technicians as radio repairmen who are already acquainted with standard radio but need a practical introduction to television. There are no new chapters, but the revisions have been extensive enough to require re-setting of the type. Twelve pages of questions to facilitate use of the book in courses or in self-instruction have been added at the end, and a new appendix gives the present allocations of television channels."
N Y New Tech Bks 33:29 Ja '48

KJELGAARD, JAMES ARTHUR. Snow dog; il. by Jacob Landau. 236p $2.50 Holiday
Dogs—Legends and stories 48-8885

Story of a wild dog of the North woods. Orphaned when a savage wolf killed his mother, the puppy learns to hunt and to protect himself from his enemies. He falls into the hands of a friendly trapper; but it is not until he is free to make the choice himself that he gives up his freedom to become the man's loyal companion.

Booklist 45:109 N 15 '48

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 168:219 D '48 60w

"It is an exciting tale of the man's struggle against the elements and of his daring in time of peril. Older boys and girls will be thrilled with Snow Dog." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:45 Ja '49 90w

Kirkus 16:400 Ag 15 '48 90w

"This story, suggestive of Jack London, is absorbing, although the plot is shopworn. In descriptive quality, it is particularly fine." J. M. Smith
+ — Library J 73:1602 N 1 '48 80w

"Kjelgaard's muscular prose and his vivid descriptions of the North woods make this book a joy to read. There is no sentimentalizing of the animals; you believe in them and respect them. A book far above average for boys and girls from ten years up." M. C. Scoggin
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 O 31 '48 270w

"Satisfying tale of the snow-swept North country. Replete with details of the changing seasons and of Northern wild-life, the story will appeal to boys of 12 and upwards whose interests run to the out-of-doors." Howard Boston
+ N Y Times p4 N 14 '48 130w

Sat R of Lit 31:42 N 13 '48 50w

Wis Lib Bul 45:16 Ja '49

KLEIN, GAY T. Starting right with poultry; ed. by Ed Robinson. 177p il $2.75 Macmillan
636.5 Poultry Agr47-406

A manual covering all the phases of keeping a small flock of chickens. Includes chapters on poultry and egg cookery. Index.

Booklist 44:179 Ja 15 '48

Kirkus 15:267 My 15 '47 170w

Wis Lib Bul 44:37 F '48

KLEIN, LAWRENCE ROBERT. The Keynesian revolution. 218p $3.50 Macmillan
330.1 Keynes of Tilton, John Maynard Keynes, 1st baron. Economics 47-4534

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"Dr. Klein, a brilliant young economist from Chicago and M. I. T., has produced the latest of a crop of books on Keynes—a thorough appraisal of the development of his thought on economic policy and its theoretical justification." H. S. Bloch
+ Nation 166:254 F 28 '48 700w

Reviewed by George Soule
N Y Times p10 F 22 '48 400w

"An important contribution is made to the new economics in this study, expanded from a doctoral dissertation. . . The chapter on public policy displays a political naïveté which is most alien to Keynes' own writings. The book is clearly and simply written, but [is] nevertheless not intended [primarily] for the general reader. A mathematical appendix will satisfy the needs of readers with more than average technical training."
U S Quarterly Bkl 3:355 D '47 130w

KLEMIN, ALEXANDER. Helicopter adventure; il. by Flavia Gág. 216p $2.75 Coward-McCann 47-12231

"The author of this book is an instructor in aeronautics and an editor of the Aero Digest. He obviously knows all that there is to know about helicopters. . . This knowledge comes through the medium of a story about a young Naval lieutenant, of the Second World War, and his younger brother who is still a school boy. Between them, with help from the family, they buy a helicopter and start The Harding Brothers Helicopter Service from Eastport, Maine. This is the story of their first summer." Sat R of Lit

Kirkus 15:548 O 1 '47 80w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ja 18 '48 290w

"Boys, and girls, too, who have a spark of interest in the 'copter will probably not object to this concentrated richness of adventure nor the simplification necessary in its telling. They will accept the story gladly for its lively information about this unique and promising craft." Frances Smith
+ N Y Times p31 Ja 25 '48 180w

"It is quite a story. What will especially appeal to boys about the story is its emphasis on the many uses of the helicopter. It proves that these little planes are not only lots of fun but that they can be a very effective source of income."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:29 Ja 10 '48 150w

KLEMPNER, JOHN. Hurry, hurry home. 248p $3 Scribner
48-8381

Story of two sisters, products of New York's East Side, and their matrimonial and family problems. When Nora's wandering husband is killed, and the widowed Sue takes back her children from their forbidding grandmother, and Sue's love affair straightens out, the scene is set for future happiness for all, Nora and her four, Sue and her twins, and the band leader Caz Cassell.

Booklist 45:32 S 15 '48

"A bright, facile touch and engaging characterization give this an edge on fiction in a field that is largely feminine in its following."
Kirkus 16:320 Jl 1 '48 170w

"Slick and sentimental, it is nevertheless an absorbing and sometimes perceptive story, with a swift pace which makes it readable."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p31 O 17 '48 180w

KLING, SAMUEL G., and KLING, ESTHER B., eds. Art of being happy. 309p $3.50 Lippincott

171.4 Happiness 48-8666

Collection of extracts from writers of all times and places from Confucius, Horace and Epicurus to Harry Emerson Fosdick, William Lyon Phelps and John Burroughs, grouped under such heads as Joy in living, Rewards of life, A cheerful heart, Unselfish love, A contented spirit.

Booklist 45:98 N 15 '48

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 N 7 '48 180w

KLUCKHOHN, CLYDE, and MURRAY, HENRY ALEXANDER, eds. Personality in nature, society, and culture. 561p $6 Knopf

137 Personality 48-3750

"A pioneer anthology of essays never before published in any book revealing what anthropologists, biologists, psychiatrists, and sociologists have discovered about the formation and social development of personality." (Publisher's note) Bibliographies. Indexes.

Booklist 45:58 O 15 '48

"Probably no two professional students of personality would agree in selecting thirty-eight articles to give the best coverage of these determinants. My personal reaction was that the contributions chosen are, on the whole, excellent, but that the sampling of areas could be questioned. Anthropology seems represented unduly heavily. . . The physiological viewpoint is less adequately represented, and the editorial introductions seem less carefully oriented. . . Perhaps the least satisfactory feature of the book is the failure to give any attention to the description of personality." Ross Stagner
+ — N Y Times p26 N 21 '48 700w

"Each new article strikes the reader with a refreshing viewpoint that prevents any lagging of interest. The book is long and solid but spiced with just enough story detail to hold the reader's attention throughout. He may justly consider it a valuable addition to his own personal library." G. H. Loveland
+ Social Studies 40:42 Ja '49 750w

Reviewed by Edward Stainbrook
Survey 85:52 Ja '49 750w

KNAUTH, OSWALD WHITMAN. Managerial enterprise, its growth and methods of operation. 224p $3 Norton

338.8 Corporations. Economics 48-6692

"In this book, the author examines the large corporation, its policies, its practices, and its function. He sees a new form of economy in the process of evolution—an economy which he calls 'managerial enterprise.' He finds that the rules that are ordinarily invoked, those of the classical economist, which are summed up in the popular concept by the words 'free enterprise' and 'monopoly' do not apply to corporate enterprise as it exists today. He argues for a better understanding and a more realistic approach to this new economy." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Joseph Mayer
Ann Am Acad 259:190 S '48 480w

Reviewed by George Soule
Nation 167:21 Jl 3 '48 800w

Reviewed by Harold Wolff
New Repub 119:22 Jl 12 '48 800w

"His findings and descriptions have been duly sweetened to soothe the palates of businessmen—particularly business managers. . . Yet it must be noted that Mr. Knauth makes a considerable effort to be fair to various interests and to serve his business-manager audience . . . something besides dessert. . . One puts down this book with the hope that the busy men for whom it is intended may stop to ponder at the examples of bad or anti-social corporate management which this friend of business feels compelled to point out." H. R. Northrup
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:23 Je 12 '48 470w

KNIGHT, CLAYTON. Secret of the buried tomb; il by [the author]. 311p $3 Knopf 48-5524

"An adventure story of Okinawa during the war. A young sailor (whose father also happens to be stationed there with the Red Cross) befriends a native boy, and together they dramatically intercept a plot to poison important officials." (Library J) These two characters appeared in Mr. Knight's earlier book: Quest of the Golden Condor (Book Review Digest 1946). For older boys and girls.

Booklist 44:253 Mr 15 '48

Reviewed by Martha King
Chicago Sun Je 19 '48 230w

"This spectacular story with its amazingly well worked out plot is outstanding, in that it features dynamically characterized individuals." H. F. Griswold
+ Christian Science Monitor p4 Jl 29 '48 180w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 24:196 My '48 120w

Kirkus 16:87 F 15 '48 120w

Reviewed by M. B. Snow
Library J 73:486 Mr 15 '48 60w

"Though taking place in war time, it is not a war-time book but a regular thriller." M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Ap 4 '48 320w

Reviewed by Felix Riesenberg
N Y Times p26 Mr 14 '48 170w

New Yorker 24:135 D 11 '48 50w

"The background of Okinawa, where desperate fighting is still going on, is very convincing and the natives are well drawn." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 31:36 Mr 13 '48 220w

Wis Lib Bul 44:135 Je '48

KNIGHT, CLIFFORD. Affair of the sixth button 221p $2 McKay 47-12474

Detective story

Booklist 44:234 Mr 1 '48

New Repub 118:30 Ja 19 '48 40w

"Sober-minded jigsaw." Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 F 22 '48 120w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p21 Ja 4 '48 180w

KNIGHT, FREDA DE. See De Knight, F.

KNIGHT, KATHLEEN MOORE. Bait for murder. 191p $2 Doubleday 48-8293

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun S 10 '48 50w

Kirkus 16:323 Jl 1 '48 70w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 S 26 '48 110w

"As the story moves on to its thrilling climax, we learn a great deal about the technique of swordfishing and more about the quiet and purposeful sleuthing of Elisha Macomber. This is Kathleen Moore Knight at her best." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p30 S 19 '48 180w

KNIGHT, K. M.—Continued

"Credible atmosphere and straightforward handling."
+ New Yorker 24:111 S 11 '48 120w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p24 O 31 '48 60w

"Nice going!"
+ Sat R of Lit 31:56 O 9 '48 50w

KNIGHT, KATHLEEN MOORE. Birds of ill omen. 189p $2 Doubleday 48-6302

Mystery story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ap 16 '48 40w

"Not up to her others."
Kirkus 16:129 Mr 1 '48 70w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ap 18 '48 170w

"You are sure to enjoy the story and its beautifully pictured Mexican setting." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p20 Ap 18 '48 170w

"Pleasant and very well plotted."
+ New Yorker 24:124 Ap 10 '48 90w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p17 Ap 18 '48 80w

Sat R of Lit 31:43 Ap 24 '48 40w

KNIGHT, KATHLEEN MOORE. Borderline murder, by Alan Amos [pseud]. 188p $2 Doubleday 48-604

Detective story

"The dénouement is eminently satisfactory to Larry and to all but one of the surviving characters. How it may impress the discerning reader is another question." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p26 Ja 11 '48 150w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ja 4 '48 170w

"Odd tourist-camp denizens and Mexican fiesta keep yarn rolling, but surprise solution takes entirely too much explaining."
Sat R of Lit 30:25 D 27 '47 40w

KNIPSCHEER, JAMES M. W. (JAMES M. FOX, pseud). Death commits bigamy. 214p $2.50 Coward-McCann 48-603

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ja 30 '48 40w

Kirkus 15:612 N 1 '47 120w

New Repub 118:30 Ja 19 '48 40w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ja 4 '48 90w

"The plot is ingenious enough, although it seems slightly irrational in spots." Isaac Anderson
+ — N Y Times p26 Ja 11 '48 140w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 11 '48 70w

"Blithe and bloody."
Sat R of Lit 31:24 Ja 3 '48 50w

Springf'd Republican p10B Ja 11 '48 120w

KNIPSCHEER, JAMES M. W. (JAMES M. FOX, pseud). Inconvenient bride. 186p $2 Coward-McCann 48-8787

Detective story.

Kirkus 16:456 S 1 '48 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p22 D 5 '48 100w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p52 D 5 '48 190w

"No murders, several attempts, much shrewd sleuthing, lots of action, and satisfactory ending to yarn that chases itself quite merrily. Sprightly."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:36 O 30 '48 40w

KNOWLES, DAVID. Religious orders in England. 348p $8.50 Macmillan

271 Religious orders [48-10465]

"Historical treatment of both the monks and the friars in England in the thirteenth and fourteenth centuries by a Benedictine authority on the medieval period." (Commonweal) Bibliography. Index. This work is a continuation of the author's The Monastic Order in England (Book Review Digest 1941).

"Dom Knowles has spent years on this subject, and has brought all the relevant documents he could lay his hands on, under contribution. The book should be on the shelves of every seminary library." F. J. Moore
+ Churchman 162:16 N 15 '48 150w

Commonweal 49:102 N 5 '48 160w

"The book is very learned, but not overweighted with learning. Indeed, it is so well written as to satisfy the most exigent 'general reader,' and offers delicate and tasty fare in contrast to the stodgy meals which scholars habitually dish up for one another." C. R. Cheney
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Jl 20 '48 270w

"Dom David always writes with insight and distinction. Even when most dependent upon the work of other scholars he adds something of his own which gives a finer poise or more intimate clarity to his subject. His readers, however well informed they may be, feel that they understand the matter better than they did before. He has earned the right to choose his themes as he prefers; the result is sure to have a positive value and to be worth reading." F. M. Powicke
+ Spec 181:210 Ag 13 '48 1200w

Times [London] Lit Sup p686 D 4 '48 2650w

KNOX, DUDLEY WRIGHT. History of the United States navy; with a foreword by Chester W. Nimitz and an introd. by William L. Rodgers. rev ed 704p il maps $7.50 Putnam

359 U.S. Navy—History. U.S.—History, Naval 48-2547

"This revised edition of Commodore Knox's naval history has been created by reprinting the 1936 version [Book Review Digest 1936] and appending to it 198 pages on World War II. The one-volume survey thus formed devotes about a third of its space to the recent war." (Ann Am Acad) Indexes.

"The narrative is not enlivened by an easy style, although it does offer interesting descriptions of such things as viper-like (German) and gallant (American) submarines. More seriously, the value is substantially reduced by many errors and contradictions. . . Errors, however, are not so important as the question raised by the book's declared purpose of proving the 'national value of the Navy's work' and furnishing 'a source of inspiration to the Navy itself.' It is natural for a naval officer to defend his profession, but the special pleading required seriously weakens a historical study." R. C. Haskett
— Ann Am Acad 260:218 N '48 420w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 Je 6 '48 50w

KOBE, KENNETH ALBERT. Inorganic process industries. 371p il $6 Macmillan

661 Chemical industries 48-7719

"This new text on industrial chemistry covers fewer industries than are covered in well-known books already published in the same field. The advantage of a less-inclusive book in short courses in colleges is obvious. The emphasis placed on chemical literature and on good procedures in making literature searches is commendable. From the viewpoint of library reader, the book offers later statistical information on the industries that are covered, bibliographies that are more up to date, and somewhat more concise descriptions of processes. The author is Professor of Chemical Engineering at the University of Texas." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

"Prof. Kobe's book is primarily designed to give the student a background of information on the chief processes used in the manufacture of the major inorganic chemicals. As such, it accomplishes its purpose. An excellent feature is the topical outline of each chapter which enables one to see at a glance what the chapter covers and how it is arranged." F. J. Curtis
+ Chem & Eng N 26:3644 D 6 '48 350w

Reviewed by J. R. Callahan
Chem Eng 55:315 O '48 600w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1280 S 15 '48 100w
N Y New Tech Bks 33:50 Jl '48

KOLLER, LAWRENCE R. Shots at whitetails; drawings by Bob Kuhn. 362p $5 Little 799.27 Deer hunting Agr48-274

Comprehensive guide for the hunter of the whitetail deer, native to most of the country. Book is in two parts: Part one, The sport of deer hunting, contains chapters on the life and habits of the deer, on woodcraft and camping, on sportsmanship and safety, on hunting with bow and arrow; Part two deals with weapons and mounting the trophy.

Booklist 45:133 D 15 '48

"Exceedingly practical. . . Based on author's long experience as hunter and gunsmith. Well illustrated with photos and diagrams. . . Recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 73:1514 O 15 '48 40w
New Yorker 24:151 N 13 '48 80w
Wis Lib Bul 44:212 D '48

KOLTHOFF, IZAAK MAURITS, and STENGER, VERNON ARTHUR. Volumetric analysis; 2v; v2, Titration methods. 2d rev ed 374p il $6 Interscience
545.5 Volumetric analysis (42-14617)

"The material upon which the second revised edition of Volumetric Analysis, Volume II, Titration Methods, is based was originally published in German in 1928, and a revised edition in 1931. The first German edition was translated into English in 1929. . . The present volume contains a comprehensive, modern text of critically selected methods for the volumetric determination of various inorganic and organic substances. Instead of attemping to cover exhaustively all applications of volumetric methods to specialized subjects in technical analysis, the authors give a somewhat arbitrary selection of useful and reliable procedures for certain purposes." (U S Quarterly Bkl) For volume 1 see Book Review Digest 1943.

"A valuable feature of this book is the accuracy which may be expected from the various methods. Each procedure is presented thoroughly with a careful study of interfering substances. References to the literature are numerous. The chemist will find this volume a valuable reference book." E. W. Blase
+ Chem Eng 55:290 Ap '48 230w

Reviewed by Harvey Diehl
J Phys & Colloid Chem 52:1269 O '48 1000w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 72:1377 O 1 '47 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 32:46 Jl '47
U S Quarterly Bkl 3:409 D '47 240w

KOMROFF, MANUEL. Echo of evil. 233p $2.75 Farrar, Straus
48-8478

Novel describing the effects of a paroled murderess's visit on her sister's family in a Hudson river valley town.

"Written in almost childlike prose, and probably less compelling than some of his earlier books, this has unexpected depths, less obscurity, and its everyday, contemporary setting adds appeal."
+ — Kirkus 16:320 Jl 1 '48 170w

"Characters are shallow and book is badly written—it does not come off as a story nor as a psychological study." Anne Whitmore
— Library J 73:1274 S 15 '48 100w

Reviewed by George Conrad
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 O 31 '48 320w

"The people never come to life. The plot quivers, and dies an early, well-earned death; and Mr. Komroff has set down the predictable course of events in a dialogue straight out of a grade-B movie." Richard Plant
— N Y Times p36 O 3 '48 360w

"The whole subtle world of secret personality, the subconscious world in which this kind of problem has its roots, lies completely submerged, unexplored. Therefore Mr. Komroff's novel strikes at best the note of melodrama, and misses altogether the note of tragedy." N. L. Rothman
— Sat R of Lit 31:36 S 25 '48 270w

KOO, WELLINGTON, 1922- Voting procedures in international political organizations. 349p $4 Columbia univ. press
341.1 United nations (organization). Voting. Congresses and conventions A48-1557

"Dr. Koo's purpose is to show that, unless the voting provisions of international political organizations are drawn so as to reflect the underlying power structure, their decisions will be 'hollow formalities divorced from any association with political realities.' If the central body will be unable to enforce certain types of decision against its members, the voting system must concede a formal veto to those members whose serious opposition would in fact bar organizational action. The partial abandonment by the United Nations of the unanimity principle of the League of Nations is a recognition of the true nature of the veto as a practical necessity rather than an inherent and inescapable power of 'equal nations.' The author's analysis shows, if any proof is needed, that the responsibility for world peace is still that of the nations able to wage war." (Columbia Law R) Bibliography. Index.

"Many statements in this book could be debated at length, but there can be no doubt that it is a good job, useful and indeed very important to any student of international organization. It obviously represents a great deal of work, and it gives evidence of thorough study and competent scholarship. It may be added that Dr. Koo's participation in the work of the Chinese delegation at San Francisco adds to his understanding and to the authority with which he speaks." Clyde Eagleton
+ Am Pol Sci R 42:139 F '48 550w

Reviewed by R. J. Harris
Ann Am Acad 256:205 Mr '48 490w
Columbia Law R 47:1397 D '47 130w

"A scholarly monograph."
+ Foreign Affairs 26:395 Ja '48 20w
Harvard Law R 61:1093 Je '48 320w

KORIAKOV, MIKHAIL. I'll never go back; a Red army officer talks; tr. from the Russian by Nicholas Wreden. 248p $3 Dutton
B or 92 World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, Russian 48-2164

Autobiography of a young Russian who was a captain in the Soviet air force at one time, and a military correspondent. His religious leanings caused him to be transferred to a penal battalion. A few days before the close of the war he was taken prisoner by the Germans. After he was liberated by the Americans he made his way to Paris, where he worked ten months in the Soviet embassy. When he learned he was to be sent back to Russia, he escaped. He now lives in Brazil.

KORIAKOV, MIKHAIL—Continued

Reviewed by John Cournos
Commonweal 48:334 Jl 16 '48 650w

"Not as dramatic as the Kravchenko book; but compelling in its way. Excellent translation by Nicholas Wreden."
+ Kirkus 16:141 Mr 1 '48 170w

"Written with perhaps less punch than Kravchenko, but more thoughtful balance. . . Highly perceptive, with the ring of truth. Recommended for most collections." R. E. Kingery
+ Library J 73:705 My 1 '48 140w

"I am unable to judge to what extent the account of the Paris episode enjoys an admixture of fact. Its verisimilitude is not enhanced by Koriakov's disclosure that the aide to the top NKVD agent in Paris bore the name Lieutenant Mikhail Strange—too much even for my elastic sense of coincidence." J. R. Newman
— New Repub 119:22 Jl 26 '48 420w

" 'I'll Never Go Back' is a timely document. It is engaging because of its simple and frank air of discovery. Having escaped from behind the iron curtain, and still somewhat breathless, Koriakov tries to say too much too quickly. His next book, which he is writing at his exile home in Rio de Janeiro, is likely to be more evenly balanced and more fully rounded." Martin Ebon
N Y Times p7 My 30 '48 700w

"The book is often naïve, but it contains some strong and convincing indictments of Soviet practices. There are, for example, his eyewitness report on the behavior of Red troops in Germany after the breakthrough and a first-hand account of the activities of the N.K.V.D. in Paris after the war, when Russian agents for a while enjoyed almost extraterritorial license to hunt down and deport or kill displaced persons and 'non-repatriate' Soviet citizens."
New Yorker 24:123 My 15 '48 130w

"Naivete apart, 'I'll Never Go Back' is a sincere, readable, and at times valuable testimony of disillusionment with the Soviets by a man who, as a product of the Kremlin spiritual assembly-line, should by all counts have been developed into one of the system's ardent boosters." Hal Lehrman
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:12 Jl 3 '48 850w

KOSSAK-SZCZUCKA, ZOFJA. Meek shall inherit. 252p $3 Roy pubs.
48-10915

Novel of life in seventeenth century Poland. In the confusion of battle the lord of a great estate finds himself wearing his servant's coat. In it he finds a passionate letter from his cousin, to his own betrothed lady. His rival fights with him and leaves him for dead. The remainder of the story is of Casimir's return to his estates, unrecognized, where he lives among his own serfs until his death.

Booklist 45:137 D 15 '48
Commonweal 49:179 N 26 '48 360w
Kirkus 16:451 S 1 '48 180w

"It is unfortunate that book is not particularly well written for the story is a good one, based on factual material and gives an excellent picture of life during that period of Poland's history." Anne Whitmore
+ — Library J 73:1511 O 15 '48 100w

"Miss Kossak found, in the archives of a Polish diocese, an old historical document recording this story of Casimir, and into the long-buried account of a nobleman who forswore his heritage for a life of outward disgrace and inner grace she has poured her peculiar fervor. Devout Christian and patriot, and always a noble writer, though at times uneven in sweep, she has held to a high objectivity in this narrative of turbulence and greed, of vision and sacrifice." Virgilia Peterson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 O 31 '48 600w

"Mme. Kossak is vivid and convincing when she deals with the physical aspects of Casimir's experience in battle, in the forest and in the fields, and with his day-to-day relations with the serfs and stewards. . . But in characterization and plot her novels have a distinctly old-fashioned flavor, as if she were a contemporary of Sienkiewicz or even Sir Walter Scott." R. G. Davis
+ — N Y Times p48 N 14 '48 700w

"The story is based on fact, and the author includes good, precise accounts of the Battle of Smolensk and of feudal life during the period. Workmanlike and unpretentious."
+ New Yorker 24:128 N 6 '48 80w

"There are great improbabilities in this book and Mme. Kossak's psychological motivations are not always convincing. But the simplicity with which she recounts the old chronicler's legend, and the straightforwardness with which she uncovers gradually in the maltreated nobleman a sense of decency and social justice—and something much higher still—make the story a rewarding one." Robert Pick
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:16 N 13 '48 600w

KOTHEN, ROBERT. Priest and the proletariat; tr. from the French by Frank Maher. 64p $1.50 Sheed

261 Roman Catholic church—Clergy. Pastoral work
48-8328

"Pius XI wrote, 'The great scandal of the Church in the nineteenth century is not that she lost so many workers, but that she lost the working class.' . . That sentence, repeated so often, has become a challenge to the zeal of many of the present day clergy who are determined to see that the working class is won back in the twentieth century. High on the list are those French priests who are now going to the working community, not in a spirit of pietistic condescension, but in a spirit of humility to live and work with the factory hands, sharing with them their poverty and their problems. It is of these priests, especially those of the Mission of Paris and the Mission of France, that Abbé Kothen, a Jocist chaplain, writes in this little book." Cath World

"As there is considerable interest and debate here in America, especially among those in Catholic Action, about the applicability of the methods of the Mission of Paris to the United States, Abbé Kothen's chapters dealing with the results achieved by the Mission, with the difficulties encountered, and with the attitude of the French hierarchy toward the movement will prove most helpful and enlightening." Edward Nugent
+ Cath World 168:92 O '48 350w

"A skilful and a striking mosaic of testimony which gives a sharper picture of religion in contemporary France than many a bulkier volume." L. J. Trese
+ Commonweal 48:600 O 1 '48 600w
Kirkus 16:620 D 1 '48 130w

KOUWENHOVEN, JOHN ATLEE. Made in America; the arts in modern civilization; introd. by Mark Van Doren. 303p il $5 Doubleday

709.73 U.S.—Civilization. Art—U.S. 48-9016

Study of the differences between the development of the industrial arts in the United States and Europe, and of the conflicting influences of American technological design and European art on the culture of the United States. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:83 N 1 '48

Reviewed by Theodore Kalem
Christian Science Monitor p15 D 2 '48 1050w

Reviewed by Barry Byrne
Commonweal 49:382 Ja 21 '49 260w

"A more than literate, extremely stimulating, discussion in essay mold which should encourage interest in these fields, and spotlight interest in American creative vitality."
+ Kirkus 16:422 Ag 15 '48 120w

Reviewed by J. T. Flexner
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 D 5 '48 1350w

"Mr. Kouwenhoven says that it took him five years to document and write his book. If nothing else, this should give some idea of the range and thoroughness of his work. Still, as Mark van Doren says in the introduction, the book's point of view provokes partisan comment. With this in mind a few doubts may be recorded. It is not so easy to believe with Mr. Kouwenhoven, for instance, that his vernacular culture has popular origins, in the sense that a large part of the population had a hand in creating it." E. B. Garside
+ — N Y Times p35 N 7 '48 800w

"The book is not long enough to cover the ground thoroughly, but it is a stimulating trail blazer. Illustrated, but skimpily."
+ — New Yorker 24:147 N 13 '48 140w

"This is an important book, partly because it opens up new cultural perspectives for America, partly because it poses a challenge worth taking up, partly because it points out how that challenge has been met more often than most of us realize. Not all readers will agree with everything Mr. Kouwenhoven says. But none can fail to see that there is health and vigor and the promise of a new understanding of our indigenous, or 'vernacular' culture reflected in every page of what he writes." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 O 21 '48 750w

"While the theme of 'Made in America' is not a new one, this reader at least has never seen it stated to the layman with such crystal clarity. The book is richly documented and 'functionally' illustrated, and if bookstore visitors are not thrown off by its cluttered dust-jacket and 'arty' blurb it should have an extensive sale among honest Americana enthusiasts." Roger Burlingame
+ Sat R of Lit 31:29 D 11 '48 850w

KOWALKE, OTTO LOUIS. Fundamentals in chemical process calculations. 158p $2.80 Macmillan

660.76 Chemical engineering—Problems, exercises, etc. 48-300

"This is a beginning textbook for chemical engineers designed to indoctrinate sophomores in simple chemical process calculations. In particular, an attempt is made to bridge the gap between calculations in general chemistry and calculations on a commercial scale with impure materials. The first part of the book discusses measurements of temperature, density, and pressure. This is followed by conversion of units and the simpler properties of gases and liquids. Finally, the general procedures used in material balance and in simple heat balance are indicated." (Chem & Eng N) Index.

Booklist 44:245 Mr 15 '48

"On the whole, the book impresses the reviewer as a satisfactory beginning textbook in industrial stoichiometry, but it appears almost too elementary in its treatment of each subject. Within this limitation the book is quite readable and clearly presented." C. C. Monrad
+ — Chem & Eng N 26:1106 Ap 12 '48 150w

"This book is too brief and fragmentary to be of value to the engineer or chemist already in industry. In the reviewer's opinion it would be helpful practical material to accompany a freshman chemistry course for engineers." K. A. Kobe
Chem Eng 55:300 Ap '48 300w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:203 F 1 '48 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:5 Ja '48

KRAUS, EDWARD HENRY, and SLAWSON, CHESTER BAKER. Gems and gem materials. 5th ed 332p il $4 McGraw

553.8 Precious stones 48-379

"Revision of this outstanding book includes changes in chapters relating to crystal forms, physical and optical properties, cutting and polishing of gems, and manufactured gems. Emphasis has been placed on industrial applications of the diamond and synthetic rubies and sapphires. Use of diamonds in industry and the manufacture and industrial use of synthetic rubies and sapphires, spinels, etc. Illustrated." Library J

Booklist 44:251 Mr 15 '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 72:1377 O 1 '47 60w

KRAUSS, RUTH (MRS DAVID JOHNSON LEISK). Bears; pictures by Phyllis Rowand. [23p] $1 Harper

48-9066

Drawings of bears in all sorts of actions and antics, illustrating a short rhyme, which is also all about bears.

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun N 13 '48 50w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p9 D 21 '48 120w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:33 Ja '49 40w

"This is fun—not only because teddy bears are very dear to small hearts, and this is all bears—not another creature in it; but because the nonsense words are just the sort of repeats on sound that the child who is starting to put words into a pattern will find enchanting."
+ Kirkus 16:552 O 15 '48 70w

"A merry little book which I find delights small children. The bears are rather oddly drawn to my taste, but not to theirs." L. S. B.
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 N 14 '48 110w

"The drawings are very, very attractive indeed."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:23 N 13 '48 50w

KREIDER, CLAUDE M. Steelhead. 182p il $3.50 Putnam

799.1 Trout fishing Agr48-262

A description of a fresh-water game fish of the Pacific coast: its life history and habitat. The author tells of his experiences fishing for steelhead in both summer and winter, and adds a plea for the conservation of this species.

"The fishing fraternity will certainly enjoy this specialty book."
+ Kirkus 16:351 Jl 15 '48 130w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 73:1196 S 1 '48 40w

"Competently written."
+ New Yorker 24:139 N 6 '48 170w

Reviewed by G. S. Arnold
San Francisco Chronicle p3 N 28 '48 80w

KREPPS, ROBERT W. Field of night. 328p $3 Rinehart

48-242

"Six men and two women—and a rather strange lot they were—meet at Draakfontein, stout Allan Conrad's home in remote southern Rhodesia, to hunt, drink, flirt, and enjoy a visit to a truly primitive and unspoiled region. The dance of the Matabele warriors at a nearby village is merely a side attraction, but it is there that trouble—and the exciting action of this swiftly moving tale—starts." N Y Times

Booklist 44:282 Ap 15 '48

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ja 23 '48 100w

Kirkus 15:631 N 15 '47 170w

"Author would have done well to expand his first novel into at least three books with a less obvious attempt to shock and impress the reader simultaneously. . . Not recommended." R. P. Tubby
— Library J 72:1779 D 15 '47 70w

KREPPS, R. W.—Continued

"Robert Krepps' first novel is recommended to those who seek vicariously the thrills of savage warfare and the rumble of distant drums." Hoffman Birney

N Y Times p12 Ja 25 '48 250w

Reviewed by E. C. Hugli

Sat R of Lit 31:15 F 14 '48 550w

KRUTCH, JOSEPH WOOD. Henry David Thoreau. (American men of letters ser) 298p $3.50 Sloane

B or 92 Thoreau, Henry David 48-8483

A critical biography of Thoreau, written by the professor of dramatic literature at Columbia university. "In place of the conventional appreciation of Thoreau as an inspired naturalist, Mr. Krutch has produced a sharply intellectual appraisal of each important aspect of his work. He is aware of what has been thought of Emerson's young friend in Concord and elsewhere down to the present moment, and some of these opinions he has briefly discussed. Many others, however, he regards merely as smoke to be cleared away." (N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R) Index.

"Krutch's sagely shaded portrait points up the plain, practical side of Thoreau, which was a cutting foil to his extravagances. It brings out to the full Thoreau's pungent humor, which liked to juxtapose the homely and the ineffable and was keenly alive to the comic aspect of his eccentricities." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 182:113 D '48 1100w

Booklist 45:65 O 15 '48

"This book is an excellent corrective of the superstitions about Thoreau, and its own pace and style are a fine vehicle for its critical discriminations." T. M. Longstreth

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 O 21 '48 850w

"This is a brilliant biographical and critical study which offers a more fully rounded picture and better balanced interpretation of Thoreau and his work than any previous book." Mason Wade

+ Commonweal 49:17 O 15 '48 380w

Kirkus 16:463 S 1 '48 150w

"A brilliant, illuminating critique. . . Recommended." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 73:1189 S 1 '48 140w

"In general Mr. Krutch explains Thoreau with admirable common sense. There are, at most, three noticeable soft spots in his book. The first is this insistence on Thoreau's general happiness, his 'joy.' The second weakness is his stress on what he calls Thoreau's mysticism. . . Finally, although most students of Thoreau have felt that his life after Walden was an anti-climax, Mr. Krutch disagrees—and has trouble making his disagreement stick. . . Nevertheless, and in spite of its occasional shortcomings, his book can be said to be indispensable." Carl Bode

+ — Nation 167:433 O 16 '48 1550w

"If the picture is fresh and convincing, his book was needed. Krutch's total picture of Thoreau is more convincing than it is novel; perhaps 'sensible' would be the best word for it. The book is written without rhapsodies and almost without conjectures about Thoreau's sex life or about hidden dramas that may or may not have fixed the path to be followed by his talent." Malcolm Cowley

+ New Repub 119:21 N 8 '48 950w

"The first publication in the new American Men of Letters series sets a high standard for the volumes that are still to come. It also indicates that the special distinction of these literary studies will lie in their application to authors of critical techniques more adequate than those previously in use. Mr. Krutch has employed to good advantage both recent advances in psychological penetration and a fresh grasp of the history of ideas. His book is especially noteworthy for its clear analysis of Thoreau's unsystematic but energetic thinking. . . Where Mr. Krutch is at his very best, and where he excels all other critics of Thoreau, is in his lucid expositions of the seemingly 'hopelessly confused' elements in the writer's thought." G. F. Whicher

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 O 3 '48 1200w

"A biography that ranks with the best work in the field of Thoreau and accepts Thoreau as a prophet. . . Mr. Krutch is a temperate thinker, with a singularly penetrating mind and a lucid literary style." Brooks Atkinson

+ N Y Times p4 O 3 '48 1200w

"This life—an auspicious beginning for a series called American Men of Letters—is a nearly perfect fusing of biography and critical study and certainly one of the best books on Thoreau to have appeared so far."

+ New Yorker 24:133 O 16 '48 100w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 O 31 '48 300w

"The final chapter is a brief but admirable discussion of Thoreau's style (or styles, to follow Mr. Krutch) and offers a brilliant, unpedantic analysis of those qualities in excellent prose that most stubbornly defy analysis. In this, as everywhere in his book, Mr. Krutch writes with a wit and finish that have made his work an ornament of contemporary American criticism." Milton Crane

+ Sat R of Lit 31:12 N 13 '48 500w

School & Society 68:343 N 13 '48 30w

Reviewed by H. L. Varley

Springf'd Republican p7C N 14 '48 500w

KRYNINE, DIMITRI PAVLOVITCH. Soil mechanics; its principles and structural applications. 2d ed 511p $5.50 McGraw

620.19 Soils (engineering) 47-6928

"Much of the literature on soil mechanics is too theoretical to be of use to the average engineering student or practicing civil engineer. This work is designed to interpret the theoretical knowledge in practical terms and, also, to describe established practices some of which are not yet completely buttressed by laboratory data. Since the publication of the first edition in 1941 [Book Review Digest 1941] it has been used both as a textbook in organized courses and as a reference handbook by engineers. This edition has been rather extensively revised. Two chapters have been added: one deals with soil pressures on tunnels and culverts, the other with highway and airport runway subgrades. Throughout the text, there are many smaller revisions. The reference lists have also been revised to include recent publications." (N Y New Tech Bks) Indexes.

"New chapters on 'Pressure on Tunnels and Conduits' and 'Highway and Runway Subgrades' have been added, and some rearrangement of the other parts has been made to improve the usefulness of the book either as a text for students or by practicing engineers."

+ Eng N 141:115 O 14 '48 120w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales.

Library J 73:45 Ja 1 '48 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 32:83 O '47

KUBLER, GEORGE. Mexican architecture of the sixteenth century. 2v il maps $15 Yale univ. press

720.972 Architecture—Mexico 48-7149

A scholarly monograph. "This work stands upon the broad platforms built first by Manuel Toussaint, and later by Robert Ricard. The major difference from these predecessors appears in the effort to relate demography, urbanism, and institutional history to an analysis of the monuments. The study of the monuments, in turn, differs from other treatments in the search for exact chronology, and in the effort to generalize upon the cultural significance of such chronological sequences. Thus the first four chapters deal with social processes, human equipment, and the collective forms of architectural effort; the last four treat more closely of the individual monuments, whether civil or religious." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Joseph Borome
Library J 73:709 My 1 '48 130w

Reviewed by J. T. Soby
Sat R of Lit 31:44 O 9 '48 80w

"The basic framework of the book, its broad and embracing plan, is superbly designed to support the grandeur and heroic sweep of this intensive epoch of colonization; it is a moment in time filled with a program of town planning and construction that is staggering, even by our quantitative standards of the present day. The significance of Professor Kubler's truly monumental work lies as much in the thoroughness of method and sensitivity for handling complex strands of intermingled cultural patterns as it does in the full presentation of the architecture itself. This work will stand for a long time as a model." Gibson Danes
+ Yale R n s 38:186 autumn '48 850w

KUCHARZEWSKI, JAN. The origins of modern Russia. 503p $5 Polish inst. of arts & sciences in Am.

947.08 Russia—History. Russia—Politics and government. Russia—Intellectual life 48-1210

"The author, a Polish nationalist and historian now resident in this country, spent the years between the two world wars in the study of the genesis of Bolshevik Russia in Russia's past. Seven volumes, embracing the period 1825 to 1894, appeared between 1923 and 1935; the present volume is an abridged translation. Three more volumes, to bring the story to 1917, were almost ready when German bombers over Warsaw in 1939 destroyed Kucharzewski's note and library. [This] is an historical analysis of a problem, not a narrative; consequently its organization is topical. Kucharzewski's approach is through the study of the nineteenth-century intelligentsia and, among these, several key figures: the liberal Herzen, the novelist Turgeniev, the anarchist Bukunin, and the Marxist Plekhanov." Sat R of Lit

"The abridgment and the translation, which does not read like one, were done by the Polish Institute. There are some unusual transliterations, and too many typographical errors occur. But these are minor faults, which do not detract from the basic worth of the book." R. H. Fisher
+ — Am Hist R 54:138 O '48 850w

"In a short review, it is impossible adequately to summarize the rich materials contained in this volume. Unquestionably, Mr. Kucharzewski writes with great erudition and frequent brilliant insight into certain aspects of Russian social and intellectual history. The evolutionary connection forged, for example, between Karamzin, Herzen, and their relation to 'the other shore' of universal revolution is striking. . . Beyond inadmissibly blurring over vital distinctions within the Russian historical process, there are more specialized analyses with which this reviewer must take issue. Mr. Kucharzewski attacks Russian Slavophilism vigorously, in large part for its 'racial chauvinism' (p. 139). However, such admirable dissent cannot be squared with highly dubious observations about 'instincts which lay dormant in the Russian soul' (p.197). Examples of this, unhappily, abound. . . It is regrettable that this very original work should suffer from the entirely unsatisfactory translation it has received." David Hecht
+ — Ann Am Acad 258:126 Jl '48 450w

Reviewed by N. S. Timasheff
Cath World 167:569 S '48 500w

"This is a long, sprawling, poorly translated, repetitious, erudite, contentious, provocative, difficult, yet in many ways absorbing book. . . It is a book full of fascinating matter, but its main interest, at least for the present reviewer, lies not so much in its picture of Russia—a bitterly conceived and brilliantly executed caricature—as in the mental processes of the author who has painted the picture." Joshua Kunitz
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Ag 8 '48 750w

"The most serious objection to be raised against this book (and so many of its kind) is one of method. The author tunnels his way through the successive layers of historical development searching exclusively for the 'phenomena which proved decisive for the future of Russia.' . . The foregoing is not meant to disparage the book. A student of Russian history can profitably use the analysis of Russian writers, which is penetrating and sometimes quite brilliant. It is a valuable source book and a stimulating guide to the realities of Russian life and thought. The author is a learned scholar who deserves a hearing in this country." T. H. Von Laue
+ — Pol Sci Q 63:452 S '48 850w

"Kucharzewski has produced a serious and important work. He has done what few contemporary writers do; he has employed historical perspective for the analysis of current problems. Consequently this work, which was completed long before the war, is more timely than many a current work on the USSR still damp from the press. Kucharzewski remembers that the world did not begin yesterday, that it will not end tomorrow." Sidney Harcave
+ Sat R of Lit 31:13 Jl 10 '48 550w
School & Society 67:222 Mr 20 '48 20w

KUHN, ANNE LOUISE. The mother's role in childhood education: New England concepts, 1830-1860. 224p il $3 Yale univ. press

372.974 Education of children. Parent and child. Character education 47-11209

The purpose of this book is to portray the educational role of the mother in New England families during the years 1830-1860. The work is based upon study of many books and periodicals on parent education which came out in this country during those years. They were in the main by clergymen and doctors, social reformers, and educators. Bibliography. Index.

"No effort has been made to evaluate the effects of these writings, but their import is skillfully analyzed and summarized under classifications of religion and morals, intellect, health, and discipline. An excellent statement of conclusions and an essay on bibliography conveniently epitomizes the study as a whole." Wood Gray
+ Am Hist R 53:644 Ap '48 280w

"The book, a doctoral dissertation in religious education, is written in an interesting style, while measuring up to scholarly necessity." K. B. Cully
+ Christian Century 65:416 My 5 '48 560w

"This book is sound history and scholarly research." E. B. Waring
+ J Home Econ 40:153 Mr '48 400w

Reviewed by Ross Snyder
J Religion 28:154 Ap '48 330w

"While this book is a doctoral dissertation, its content, well-written and organized, carries the reader lightly over the research that has gone in its making. It should be of great interest to all concerned with the problems of the home and the position of women today." E. B. Schlesinger
+ New Eng Q 21:406 S '48 750w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 67:246 Mr 27 '48 500w

KUHN, RENE LEILANI. Cornelia. 245p $2.75 Random house
48-6758

"Divorcing her husband, David, Cornelia gets custody of the children, Tony and Ann, who are soon to realize what they lack by way of a mother. With the aid of her lover, Johnny, she makes her name as a dress designer. Some years later she meets opposition—in her own children; Tony enlists in the Marines; Ann, having lost the boy she loved, leaves Cornelia to live with her father. Deserted by friends, servants, children and lover, Cornelia realizes her insecurity in the face of a hollow future ahead." Kirkus

"Rather low grade feminine fare with an established theme and little to recommend it."
— Kirkus 16:127 Mr 1 '48 140w

KUHN, R. L.—Continued
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 Je 13 '48 180w

"As in her earlier work, Miss Kuhn writes with an attractive fluency that betrays a lack of depth. Having established a Xanthippe, she should have something more imposing to pit against her than a string of paper dolls vaguely resembling the models in a mail order catalogue." Nancy Ladd
— N Y Times p20 Je 20 '48 420w
San Francisco Chronicle p19 Je 27 '48 90w

KULISCHER, EUGENE MICHEL. Europe on the move; war and population changes, 1917-47. 377p maps $5 Columbia univ. press

325.4 Europe—Population. Emigration and immigration. Migration, Internal 48-7053

"A new approach to the question of the origins of World War II. It is based on the thesis that migratory movements, caused by over-population, are the major causes of warfare on this earth. It traces the demographic evolution and the population shifts in Europe and the U.S.S.R., showing their connection with the political and economic events that led up to the war. The author, a prominent demographic authority, concludes by developing his theme that regulated migration is absolutely necessary as a war preventive." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by W. S. Thompson
Am Soc R 13:776 D '48 1300w

Reviewed by Frank Lorimer
Ann Am Acad 260:182 N '48 490w
Current Hist 15:165 S '48 70w

"In examining and analyzing the migrations in various regions of Europe Professor Kulischer has made meticulous use of all available data. He is not responsible for the conveniently rounded off figures, which remind one of the familiar saying that there are three kinds of lies—white lies, black lies, and statistics. Estimates are not more convincing either. . . Even if we took the exactness of statistics for granted we might disagree with the author's thesis that frustrated migration was the major cause of both world wars but nevertheless indorse his final conclusion that a realistic national policy calls for that sharp self-restriction of national egoism which would culminate in 'a TVA of human migratory currents.' The unprejudiced and thorough analysis which Professor Kulischer offers in a most readable book unquestionably promotes the achievement of this aim." Rustem Vambery
+ — Nation 167:322 S 18 '48 600w

"Mr. Kulischer has written a book in which mastery of factual material is blended with astute judgment and deep compassion. It is recommended reading for laymen seeking insight in the history of Europe; it is must reading for statesmen everywhere—and particularly in this country." Robert Strausz-Hupe
+ N Y Times p6 Ag 8 '48 800w
Times [London] Lit Sup p675 D 4 '48 1200w

KULKIELKO, RENYA. Escape from the pit; foreword by Ludwig Lewisohn. 189p $2.50 Sharon

940.548 World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, Polish A48-6399

An account of the experiences of a young Polish Jewish girl during World war II. Her wanderings thru ghettos, concentration camps, torture chambers, finally ended in her escape to Palestine.

"The details are, of course supported only by her personal testimony, but they are consistent with generally known facts that would be incredible if not so fully proved." W. E. G.
Christian Century 65:146 F 4 '48 100w

Reviewed by Marie Syrkin
Nation 166:579 My 22 '48 600w

Reviewed by Gertrude Samuels
N Y Times p28 F 22 '48 220w

KUNHARDT, MRS DOROTHY (MESERVE). Tiny animal stories; pictures by Garth Williams. [12v in 1] $1 Simon & Schuster

"Here is a cleverly designed little bookcase decorated in color. In it are twelve tiny books, three inches long and two inches wide. Each book tells the story of a baby animal: a kangaroo, a giraffe, a hippopotamus, a camel, a bear, a lion, a whale, a gorilla, a rhinoceros, a tiger, a leopard, and an elephant." Sat R of Lit

"The stories are simple and charming." F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p9 Ja 25 '49 210w

"Parents wont be too happy about this item, for the tiny books are hard to hold, and wont stand much handling, but the type face is astonishingly clear and the color work is good. Little listeners will want a complete round of the twelve at a sitting. . . Useless for libraries—except as a display."
Kirkus 16:169 Ap 1 '48 100w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 My 9 '48 300w

"Although they offer a good value, this miniature collection is a novelty that young listeners will enjoy less for the pleasure of reading, and more for the fun of handling books two by three inches in size. The average child of nursery years will be indifferent to the flimsy stories, which dwell on the family life of various animals, paralleling the child's world but for the most part poking fun at the shortcomings of father or mother and sometimes of the offspring." Lillian Gerard
N Y Times p29 Ap 18 '48 260w

"Each book is well-bound, well-printed, and has attractive end-papers in color. The paintings that Garth Williams has made for them are remarkably well reproduced. They show the animals against their natural background with humor and fidelity. The stories are slight. Children will probably not remember them very long, but they will long remember the format and the pictures." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 31:32 My 8 '48 130w
Springf'd Republican p10B Ap 11 '48 70w

KUNITZ, JOSHUA, ed. Russian literature since the revolution. 932p $6 Boni & Gaer

891.708 Russian literature—Collections 48-8087

"A survey course in modern Russian writing, as it is exemplified in short stories, poems, news reporting, and a full-length novel—Alexander Fadeyev's 'The Nineteen.'" (New Yorker) Bibliography.

Booklist 45:133 D 15 '48

"In no one volume has there been so splendid a collection of Russian literature, nor has there ever been a volume which has provided such a penetrating insight into Soviet life and thought. It is brash to suggest more material for so full a collection, but one might question the omission of literature in the drama form." W. P. Sears
+ Churchman 163:16 Ja 15 '49 130w
New Yorker 24:145 N 27 '48 140w

"As every major and practically all minor authors of the Soviet Union are represented in this anthology, it will be of extreme value to students of Slavic literature as well as to the wider public which is seeking some light on the multiple aspects of life behind the Iron Curtain." R. G. C.
San Francisco Chronicle p16 N 28 '48 250w

Reviewed by George Fischer
Sat R of Lit 32:27 Ja 8 '49 900w

KUPER, HILDA. An African aristocracy; rank among the Swazi of Bechuanaland; pub. for the International African institute. 251p il $8 Oxford

572.96834 Kings and rulers, Primitive. Swazi (African tribe) 48-743

This monograph "is the result of two years of intensive field work among the Swazi. Although the field work was completed ten years ago, the writing and publication were delayed by the war and other factors. . . Part I of the present work contains three brief chapters in which the author describes her methods of work and sketches the historical background. . . Part II, entitled 'The Basis of Conservatism,' presents details on the following topics: the tempo of peasant life; the conservative political hierarchy; ritualization of the king; choice of the heir; blood, kinship and locality; the age-class system; wealth in the peasant society; individual variability and ritual; death as an index of rank; and the drama of kingship. Using a conception of status much like that which has been developed by Ralph Linton and Ruth Benedict in this country, the author portrays the role of aristocratic pedigree in the life of the Swazi." (Social Forces)

"While the author abstains from generalizations, the student of stratification, no less than the student of African society, should find this book useful." Ernest Manheim
Am J Soc 54:166 S '48 650w

Reviewed by Horace Miner
Am Soc R 13:783 D '48 550w

Foreign Affairs 26:581 Ap '48 10w

Manchester Guardian p3 My 20 '47 300w

"Mrs. Kuper's research into the life history of the Swazi shows painstaking effort and skill. The book is both delightful and valuable." M. L. J. Akeley
+ N Y Times p28 Ja 18 '48 500w

"Excellent monograph. . . The book is illustrated and has several valuable appendices. All in all, it is a splendid contribution to the growing science of culture." G. B. Johnson
+ Social Forces 26:351 Mr '48 550w

"The value of this careful, sympathetic and interesting study is enhanced by the fact that Swazi civilization is being increasingly undermined by the rise of a younger generation of the 'school educated' who can acquire personal wealth in European service or in industry, and whose outside contacts make them impatient of taboo and ritual and critical of hereditary privilege and prestige."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p463 S 13 '47 1100w

KURZ, OTTO. Fakes; a handbook for collectors and students. 328p il $6 Yale univ. press

708.054 Forgery of works of art 48-8329

Deals with fakes of paintings, drawings, prints, mosaics, sculpture, furniture, tapestries, ceramics, the work of the goldsmith, and bookbinding. The author has lived chiefly in Vienna, but since 1934, he has resided in England. He has been collecting materials and anecdotes about forgeries since he was a schoolboy. Illustrated. Index.

"A scholarly record, displaying the fraudulent and the credulous in a sort of symbiosis." Raymond Mortimer
+ New Statesman & Nation 35:462 Je 5 '48 1000w

"In calling this volume a 'handbook,' and in suggesting on the dust-jacket that Dr. Kurz 'explains the whole art and intricacies of making things other than they are, craftsmanship and motives that go into them, and how they may be known,' the Yale University Press itself does something slightly questionable. Reading one book on fakes will not make you an art expert, any more than reading one of Dr. Paul de Kruif's productions will make you a doctor." Alfred Frankenstein
San Francisco Chronicle p2 N 28 '48 250w

"Fascinating handbook on the art of forgery. . . The selection of the plates is the least satisfactory feature of this interesting book. It would surely have been wise throughout to juxtapose original and forgery, and this should have been possible had Dr. Kurz made up his mind to omit certain works which are not, strictly speaking, fakes at all." John Pope-Hennessy
+ — Spec 180:682 Je 4 '48 550w

KUTAK, MRS ROSEMARY. I am the cat. 249p $2.50 Farrar, Straus 48-5812

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Mr 12 '48 180w

"Entertaining, if pretty conveniently planned and not up to her first, Darkness of Slumber."
+ — Kirkus 16:34 Ja 15 '48 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Mr 21 '48 220w

"Good marks to Rosemary Kutak for this one." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p30 Mr 21 '48 150w

New Yorker 24:120 Mr 20 '48 90w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Mr 14 '48 100w

"Superior."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:35 Mr 27 '48 50w

KUZ'MINSKAIA, TAT'IANA ANDREEVNA (BERS). Tolstoy as I knew him; my life at home and at Yasnaya Polyana; tr. by Nora Sigerist [and others] introd. by Ernest J. Simmons. 439p $5 Macmillan

B or 92 Tolstaía, Sof'ia Andreevna (Bers) grafinia. Tolstoĭ, Lev Nīkolaevīch, graf 48-7697

The author was the younger sister of Tolstoy's wife. In these recollections she writes of the years 1860 to 1870, during which Tolstoy was courting her sister. The early years of the marriage are also covered, when Tatyana was often a guest at Yasnaya Polyana. The volume closes with the author's own marriage. Glossary. Index.

"Tolstoy's scholarly biographer, Ernest J. Simmons, calls the book 'a veritable treasure-trove' of new material. It is that and more: the spontaneous and vivid story of a girl growing up in a well-to-do family of czarist Russia. . . The heroine herself is gay, tender, spirited (and was, one learns elsewhere, quite lovely). Surely Tolstoy married the wrong sister!" C. J. Rolo
+ Atlantic 182:105 S '48 550w

Booklist 45:50 O 1 '48

Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 29 '48 550w

"Authentic, gossipy, but charming in spite of its length, this book is a society memoir, devoid of critical comment."
+ Kirkus 16:164 Mr 15 '48 170w

"The text is peppered with excerpts from diaries and letters, many of them Tolstoy's, which supply the ring of authenticity to these long, total-recall reminiscences." B. B. Libaire
+ Library J 73:940 Je 15 '48 130w

Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 14 '49 330w

Reviewed by Margaret Marshall
Nation 167:236 Ag 28 '48 1750w

"A generally adequate translation, an excellently annotated index of names, a glossary of the English equivalents of Russian Christian names, and a brief, informative and warmly appreciative introduction by Professor Simmons make the reading of the book easy and pleasant, as well as rewarding." Joshua Kunitz
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Jl 25 '48 1400w

"These notes on Tolstoy have a dim, gossipy charm, as if all the family portraits in the Russian parlor were struggling to speak,

KUZ'MINSKAIA, T. A. B.—Continued

Madame Kuzminskaya, like both the Tolstoys, was an indefatigable diarist, writer and keeper of letters. There is much here about her own family and herself that is banal, much that might have been sacrificed to tell us more about Tolstoy himself; the style is a little gushing and naive. But she does manage, with a strong feeling for atmosphere and detail reminiscent of the crowded family scenes in Tolstoy's novels to give us authentic views of him against the background of the Russian nobility and country gentry." Alfred Kazin
+ — N Y Times p4 Ag 15 '48 1700w

"The book is by no means all about the Tolstoys; it is an autobiography of Tatyana. As such, it is a rewarding document though a not infrequently boring book." Edmund Wilson
New Yorker 34:63 Ag 28 '48 2550w

Reviewed by William Soskin
Sat R of Lit 31:21 Ag 14 '48 900w

School & Society 68:144 Ag 28 '48 60w

"Most of the recent books about Tolstoy have emphasized his old age. . . Tolstoy As I Knew Him, published in Russia in 1926 and now fully translated into English for the first time, has the charm and importance of showing him in the full flush of youth, when he most delighted in the very things which he later renounced."
+ Time 52:78 Jl 26 '48 850w

KYD, THOMAS, pseud. Blood on the Bosom Devine. 224p $2.50 Lippincott 48-5271

Detective story.

"[The author] works pretty closely within his own pattern, to be sure, and that involves a good many of the same framework characters and perhaps a little too much of the routine patter. But the theatre and the burleycue routines are acridly caught and Sam himself is a sound detective and a likeable sentimentalist. The final admirable twist with its examination of motive in the tec is a brief if acute contribution to the criticism of the form and one that a good many writers might note with profit." James Sandoe
+ Chicago Sun F 20 '48 360w

"The author's application of the light touch is better in some places than in others. Pseudonymous Mr. Kyd is said to be a well known Elizabethan scholar and college professor, real identity very hush-hush." Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ap 18 '48 160w

"Let us call this a fair to middling tale of burlycue and murder." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p30 F 15 '48 180w

"Fair."
Sat R of Lit 31:28 F 21 '48 50w

KYLE, ELISABETH, pseud. See Dunlop, A. M. R.

L

LABOR RESEARCH ASSOCIATION. Palmer raids; ed. by Robert W. Dunn. 80p $1.25 Int. pubs.

335.4 U.S. Justice, Department of. Civil rights. Communism—U.S. Expulsion 48-6643

"This slender volume describes the persecution of thousands with dissenting opinions in the period after the First World War, beginning with the Deportation Act of October 16, 1918." Ann Am Acad

"As a political tract, aimed at influencing action toward a preconceived goal, it is first rate. No doubt those who are especially interested in civil rights will find the pamphlet to their liking, and perhaps will accept its assumptions without question. Even political scientists and historians looking for facts about the episode will find some good material. But, on the whole, the reviewer sometimes wishes that more history were written to tell what happened than to 'prove' an author's ethical views." P. P. Van Riper
— + Am Pol Sci R 42:823 Ag '48 300w

"One does not read these well-documented pages without fresh realization that the violence of war is not soon dissipated, but lives for years in civil outrages." Broadus Mitchell
+ Ann Am Acad 259:181 S '48 280w

LAGARD, GARALD. Scarlet Cockerel. 441p $3.50 Morrow
48-8680

A Civil war novel. The hero is Lane Byrn, a Confederate soldier and surgeon, fighting in John Mosby's band of Raiders. The woman he loves is the daughter of a Union general, and their mutual attraction leads them into considerable trouble.

"Prodigal of material, often repetitious about the seesaw of North and South across Virginia, painful in its hospital scenes, 'Scarlet Cockerel' nevertheless presents the southern side with an urgency of style that promises to attract attention." W. K. Rugg
— + Christian Science Monitor p11 N 24 '48 150w

"A fictional pattern for a robust researching among actual history and incidents, this offers straightforward action-adventure, not a little humor, and plenty of colorful tale-telling."
+ Kirkus 16:374 Ag 1 '48 180w

"Run of the mill."
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p24 O 10 '48 110w

Springf'd Republican p8B Ja 9 '49 90w

LA GUARDIA, FIORELLO HENRY. Making of an insurgent; an autobiography, 1882-1919; introd. by M. R. Werner. 222p $2.75 Lippincott

B or 92 48-6720

The posthumous biography of Fiorello La Guardia, written during the last year of his life when he was a very sick man, covers only the first thirty-seven years of his life, from 1882 to 1919. Beginning with his childhood spent in American army posts, where his father was bandmaster, it carries him thru his years abroad in the consular service, his early law practice, his service as an aviator in World war I, and his first two terms as a Congressman. Index.

Booklist 44:335 Je 1 '48

Reviewed by L. P. Carroll
Chicago Sun Je 2 '48 550w

"'The Making of an Insurgent' is the kind of book that illuminates many things one has often wondered about. It is a necessary textbook for anyone who would keep abreast of affairs." Nate White
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 8 '48 600w

"For all his cantankerousness and self-assurance he was an honest, a spirited and a forward-looking citizen. It is good to have at least a part of his appraisal of himself." G. N. Shuster
+ Commonweal 48:310 Jl 9 '48 330w

"The lively, frank, and uninhibited memoirs of the early career of the frankly uninhibited man who became one of New York's ablest mayors. . . Some of his charges of criminal misuse of power and influence on the part of several individuals and organizations are no less than sensational." Harold Lancour
+ Library J 73:705 My 1 '48 120w

"Fortunately the story is to be completed by M. R. Werner, an experienced writer familiar with all the La Guardia records. Meanwhile these pages reveal the molding of a man who was always on the attack and yet who could not hate people. He hated only their wickedness. He made enemies, but even these must grant that he was driven by a desire to right wrongs and discover truth." Newbold Morris
+ Nation 166:578 My 22 '48 1150w

"For all his irascibility, temperament and occasional rash judgment, Fiorello LaGuardia was one of the most attractive figures in recent American political life, and one of the finest and most progressive public servants. A great deal of the quality that made him a courageous liberal fighter has gone into The Making of an Insurgent." Richard Watts

+ New Repub 118:22 My 24 '48 1450w

"When Fiorello H. LaGuardia, who was one of the best and certainly the most exciting Mayor New York ever had, began to write his autobiography he was already a very sick man. But none of the pain and anguish of those final days crept into the pages he had completed before death overtook him. This is a book filled with a zest for living and doing, written by a man who was looking back with detachment upon a useful and happy life." Karl Schriftgiesser

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 My 23 '48 1100w

"Many good stories, but few revelations mark the little Mayor's memoirs. The book is precisely what it purports to be: an explanation of the making of an insurgent." H. F. Pringle

+ N Y Times p3 My 23 '48 1200w

New Yorker 24:109 Je 5 '48 160w

Reviewed by W. K. Coblentz

San Francisco Chronicle p10 My 22 '48 500w

"Without bombast and self-righteousness, and also, surprisingly, without the turbulence that sometimes characterized him, he unfolds in this posthumous autobiography the formative forces and experiences that fathered his indomitable liberalism. This book could well have been titled 'The Making of a Great American.' That would have been a perfect fit for the profoundly moving story it records and the truly great citizen who wrote it." R. S. Allen

+ Sat R of Lit 31:9 My 15 '48 1150w

School & Society 67:391 My 22 '48 10w

"This is an exciting story. It is a heartening story. It is the story of an uncommon man whose chief concern was for the common man, not because he loved the average or the subaverage, but because he had unquenchable faith in man's capacity and right to better himself if not too hampered by obstacles littering the road to progress, left there by the complacent inertia of privileged incompetence." Albert Spalding

+ Survey G 37:319 Je '48 900w

"Sketchy as the book is, drained of the color that made the Little Flower an endearing and irritating one-man kaleidoscope, it discloses a passion for public service. Some of his famed fractiousness comes through here, and so does his standard of political morality."

+ Time 51:93 My 31 '48 330w

LAING, DILYS (BENNETT) (MRS ALEXANDER KINNAN LAING). The great year. 285p $3 Duell

48-8769

"A heavily symbolic first novel about three generations of a farming family in Vermont, laid out in a complicated pattern that skips around among the years between 1874 and an unspecified date in the nineteen-fifties, with each of the twelve chapters representing one month of a different year." New Yorker

---

Booklist 45:159 Ja 1 '49

Christian Science Monitor p11 N 4 '48 130w

"Pretty dull stuff."

— Kirkus 16:379 Ag 1 '48 100w

"'The Great Year' is a beautifully written and occasionally penetrating story . . . rich at points with muted social evocations that invade the mind little by little like the slow-descending roots of the Banyan tree. Unfortunately, in transferring from verse to prose, Mrs. Laing has not yet made herself master of those aspects of the novel having to do with plot and suspense." Milton Lomask

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 O 10 '48 320w

"Such a novel needs no elaborations; but Mrs. Laing, in 'The Great Year,' has chosen to give it complicated form. It decreases the effectiveness of this basically unpretentious story that the author shifts from the events of 1944 in Chapter 1 to the events of 1884 in Chapter 2 and again to action occurring in 1921 in Chapter 3. The method does not increase the radius of Mrs. Laing's communication, and it interferes unnecessarily with the enjoyment of what in truth is an honest and plain tale." L. L.

+ — N Y Times p49 N 14 '48 320w

"Many of the chapters are both moving and humorous, even if it is sometimes hard to keep in mind just which of Sam's relatives is at the moment cooking the dinner or working in the fields."

+ New Yorker 24:131 O 16 '48 160w

"On the whole, Mrs. Laing's prose is of extremely high caliber, and slips only upon the occasions when she tries to become too intimate with words. The result is a distressing cuteness. The book is surely important, however. A good deal of intellectual vigor and emotional force have gone into its making. Both the philosophical basis and the technique are interesting; the experiment is worth while." P. A. S.

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p16 N 28 '48 450w

"A fine and moving book. . . Its material and style are deceptively simple; its concept is essentially poetic and profound." S. H. Hay

+ Sat R of Lit 31:40 O 9 '48 490w

LAING, FREDERICK. Six seconds a year. 307p $3 Crowell

48-6362

Novel based on the life of a clock salesman, Floyd Sheldon. The time is a few years before the depression of 1929. Floyd is a star salesman in the Ezra Cobb clock company, and in the course of the story the business and social life of the United States in pre-depression days is painted. Floyd's romance with Anita, a receptionist in the Cobb office, comes to an end when the girl realizes that Floyd has become a cold, calculating business man, in contrast to his earlier broadmindedness.

"Written in imitation (but lacking the finish and the depth) of O'Hara, and returning to the verbal vulgarities, physical license of the prohibition era. . . Crude, and in a sense competent."

Kirkus 16:62 F 1 '48 140w

"This is not an important book, but it reads easily. The descriptions of the clock industry, the factory, selling schemes, etc., will make the next clock you buy more interesting. Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 73:654 Ap 15 '48 80w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ag 8 '48 80w

"A history of the staid Ezra Cobb clock business may sound an improbable peg on which to hang an exposé of modern business methods, but in Frederick Laing's hands it works out well. . . This is an intelligent, soundly constructed, effective first novel." M. S. Hurst

+ N Y Times p19 My 2 '48 490w

"Mr. Laing's story is well enough, he has talent, his theme is up-to-the-minute, he is aware of social maladjustments, and one can have a sort of interest in his characters. But 'first-rate' importance'? Not if words have their usual meaning. 'Deep'? No. 'Impressive piece of work'? Honest and conscientious and well-carpentered." H. M. Jones

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:13 My 8 '48 500w

LAIT, JACK, and MORTIMER, LEE. New York: confidential! 316p $2.75 Ziff-Davis

917.471 New York (city)—Description. New York (city)—Social life and customs

48-7631

A commentary on New York which does not neglect its seamier aspects. There are true stories of Broadway characters and advice on what to do and what not to do when visiting the city. An appendix includes ticket stub information and a gustatory guide. No index.

LAIT, JACK—Continued

Reviewed by Frances Gray
Chicago Sun p7X S 19 '48 270w

"Admitting the good, never forgetting the bad, this is a New York for the wary rather than the innocent."
Kirkus 16:273 Je 1 '48 170w

Reviewed by Gene Fowler
N Y Times p5 Jl 25 '48 170w

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Jl 25 '48 120w

"Broadway veterans may quibble with minor faults in this story of New York. . . Readers of the book, I believe, will enjoy the spirit that Lait, aided by Mortimer, has caught and projected against a screen of skyscrapers." Ed Sullivan
Sat R of Lit 31:26 Jl 17 '48 360w

LAMB, HAROLD. City and the Tsar; Peter the Great and the move to the west, 1648-1762. 368p il maps $4.50 Doubleday

947.05 Russia—History. Peter I, the Great, emperor of Russia 48-9435

A sequel to The March of Muscovy. In it the development of Russian history is traced from 1648 to 1774. Beginning with Alexis Romanov, the father of Peter the Great, the study carries thru the reign of Peter, when Russia first began to consider western ideas, and ends with the crowning of Catherine the Great. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:156 Ja 1 '49

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p16 Ja 6 '49 650w

"Don't sell as fiction—or easy reading—but serious history by one of today's authorities."
+ Kirkus 16:563 O 15 '48 220w

"Recommended." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 73:1664 N 15 '48 110w

Nation 168:24 Ja 1 '49 80w

"There will be disputes over Mr. Lamb's analysis of Peter, his interpretation of the Tsar's unpredictable shifts, yet no one can read the study without appreciation of the unostentatious erudition upon which the book is founded and without recognition of the subtlety and understanding which goes into the portrait. Harold Lamb is not a conventional historian. . . There have been Russian histories more scholarly in an academic (and footnote) sense, but none which surpass the trilogy in grasp of trends and clarity in presenting an intricate subject." P. J. Searles
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 D 12 '48 1150w

Reviewed by Charles Lee
N Y Times p6 D 5 '48 800w

"The author writes of great events in terms of personalities and has several shortcomings as a historical philosopher, but he certainly doesn't skimp on local color."
New Yorker 24:145 N 27 '48 160w

"For color and drama and epic movement one can trust Harold Lamb. He has the storyteller's gift; he knows how to seize the vivid visual detail which calls to the imagination, how to marshal a hurrying crowd of anecdotes, heroic or romantic or absurd into a significant order, how to maintain suspense from one sentence to the next. He is always entertaining. But it would be a mistake to dismiss him as one of those writers who find in history no more than the material for entertainment. Whatever some of his earlier books may have been, the two about Russia are not just an authentic historical pageant or a true romance in costume." Garrett Mattingly
+ Sat R of Lit 32:13 Ja 8 '49 500w

LAMB, HAROLD. The march of Moscovy; Ivan the Terrible and the growth of the Russian Empire, 1400-1648. 309p il maps $3.75 Doubleday

947.03 Russia—History 48-1472

"Beginning in 1155 with building of the Kremlin, or fort, at a point on the river Moskva, or troubled waters, the author in his usual picturesque and musical style, traces the growth of Moscow to its acknowledged position as seat of the Russian Empire. He describes the restless migration of peoples over the steppes, growth of religious feeling with superstition and folklore, and in particular detail, the turbulent reign of Ivan the Terrible. Boris Godunov and the false Dmitri also figure in the narrative, so that the whole atmosphere for a time is distinctly operatic. Extracts from the accounts of English travelers are also used to good effect. Book closes rather abruptly with the sale of Alaska." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 44:266 Ap 1 '48

Reviewed by D. G. Bennett
Cath World 167:183 My '48 420w

"'The March of Muscovy' is timely history. . . The book is not likely to persuade us to agree with Russia but it does help us to understand her." Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun Mr 7 '48 380w

"Harold Lamb is a capable specialist in historical inquiry and writing, and 'Muscovy,' like his earlier works, is readable and, all unpedantically, instructional."
+ Commonweal 48:640 Ap 16 '48 250w

"Lamb somehow in this book fails to inform his story with the pace and drama and color and glamor that are usually characteristic of his work. Always, his scholarship tends to make his story bog down, but the end result is rewarding and enriching. This seemed somehow ponderous."
— Kirkus 16:15 Ja 1 '48 260w

"Recommended for general purchase." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 73:396 Mr 1 '48 130w

"A truly fine work. Expansive, superbly told, it discloses what is a historical terra incognita to most readers. Whether read as history, partial explanation of Soviet aggression, or sheer, golden story-telling, the book is a delight." P. J. Searles
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Mr 7 '48 850w

"Mr. Lamb's latest lion roars louder than ever today. . . Such an 'epic' is certainly 'colossal,' not to mention its 'pageantry' (Ivan's picturesque torture chambers)—to use the Hollywood diction always evoked by the marching books of Harold Lamb. But thanks to Mr. Lamb's intelligence and honesty, his scenarios are also genuine scholarship. . . The trouble with timely books is that they don't take enough time. Harold Lamb's vast and uncoordinated knowledge of Russia would have rewarded additional sifting and pondering." Peter Viereck
+ — N Y Times p4 Mr 21 '48 700w

'An excellent piece of work."
+ New Yorker 24:126 Mr 13 '48 60w

Reviewed by Edith James
San Francisco Chronicle p21 Mr 21 '48 800w

"Mr. Lamb's book will be welcome reading to those fascinated by strange lands and seemingly distant pasts. Yet in reading they may discover that some at least of the strangeness and of the past lives on in our own time." Hans Kohn
+ Sat R of Lit 31:10 Mr 6 '48 1250w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:178 Je '48 280w

Wis Lib Bul 44:81 Ap '48

LAMBERT, JANET. Where the heart is. 192p $2.25 Dutton

48-6721

Story of family life for teen-aged readers. The Draytons were out of luck for a home when their father got a position in Philadelphia. They had bought a house but could not get the people to move out of it. In desperation they moved into a barn owned by their father's cross older cousin, while the cousin was away. When Cousin Edwin returned unexpectedly it was fourteen-year-old Christy who finally lifted the ban of his stern disapproval.

Reviewed by Martha King
Chicago Sun Jl 17 '48 150w

Reviewed by H. F. Griswold
Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 24 '48 200w

"This is not one of her better books, though again it has the gaiety, the glamor, the lively, easy handling of sound social values, the joyful validity of a somewhat Pollyanna approach to life."
+ — Kirkus 16:215 My 1 '48 120w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 My 9 '48 230w

"The essential theme is a hardy perennial, the ending a little too radiant with sweetness and light, but the boys and girls are alive and contemporary, their barn-dances and picnics are enticing. Girls of 10 to 14 who like Candy Kane and Penny Parrish will like Christy just as much and find her story good summer reading." E. L. B.
+ — N Y Times p21 Je 20 '48 150w

"The pattern of a young girl melting the heart of an austere relative is old and overworked. But the Draytons are friendly, attractive people and their life in the barn is varied and amusing. Teen-age girls are almost sure to like this story." R. H. Viguers
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:38 S 18 '48 150w

"Wholesome and refreshing." E. A. F.
+ Springf'd Republican p10B My 9 '48 240w

LA MERI, pseud. See Hughes, R. M.

LAMPMAN, MRS EVELYN SIBLEY. Crazy creek; il. by Grace A. Paull. 213p $2.50 Doubleday 48-8275

Story of how Judy McCallum rowed down Crazy creek into the lives of her pioneering ancestors. For ages 10-12.

Booklist 45:73 O 15 '48

"The writing is crisp and the story moves as swiftly and delightfully as does the river Crazy Creek. Delicate and sensitive pen and ink drawings."
+ Commonweal 49:150 N 19 '48 80w

Kirkus 16:398 Ag 15 '48 100w

"Very well written. Good picture of pioneer life. Recommended for ages 10-14." C. W. Field
+ Library J 73:1601 N 1 '48 80w

"Mrs. Lampman writes well and sensitively, except for the comic-strip habit of making her Indians say 'Ugh.' Grace Paull's illustrations are rich with gentle humor." Margaret Ernst
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 S 12 '48 220w

"The device creaks a little, but Judy's modern viewpoint throws the details of pioneer living into a refreshing new perspective, vividly pictured." N. B. Baker
+ — N Y Times p35 O 3 '48 140w

"This is a delightfully imaginative tale in which humor and adventure go hand in hand." Dorothy Martinovich
+ San Francisco Chronicle p5 N 14 '48 170w

Sat R of Lit 31:29 N 13 '48 40w

LANCASTER, BRUCE. No bugles tonight. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 325p $3 Little 48-3623

Picture of the Civil war in the South, especially in Tennessee, during the critical period of 1862 and 1863. The hero is a dashing Northern officer, a secret agent, and the heroine is a beautiful Southern widow, who aids the Union.

Booklist 45:13 S 1 '48

"Unlike many current writers who have reduced the phrase 'historical novel' to the semi-pornographic, Bruce Lancaster writes well and convincingly on a foundation of solid fact. Without once descending to the lurid or the titillating, he succeeds in creating a novel completely absorbing. And in addition to presenting a little-known side of the War Between the States, the book offers an interesting parallel to the world of the present day—where so many groups of people, honestly dedicated to liberty and peace, have been cut off from those who share their beliefs and have no alternative to guerrilla action if they would aid the democratic cause." I. Z.
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 25 '48 500w

Cleveland Open Shelf p16 Jl '48

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 24:448 N '48 90w

+ Kirkus 16:290 Je 15 '48 180w

"Highly recommended." R. P. Tubby
+ Library J 73:1090 Ag '48 70w

"Bruce Lancaster's third novel about the Civil War is strictly in the cloak and dagger tradition. . . But the novel escapes banality and stands well above the usual run of such tales because of its characterization, atmosphere and historical fidelity. Even melodrama has a certain dignity when the author is a skilled craftsman." P. J. Searles
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Ag 22 '48 550w

Reviewed by Hoffman Birney
N Y Times p5 S 12 '48 850w

San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 5 '48 130w

"One more competent novel written for the reader who does not mind two-dimensional characterization, and whose concern is a superficially lively narrative against a background of profound and serious conflict. The end papers show a map of the Southern region and a careful charting of exactly the geographical location of the four chief sequences in the book. This is both interesting and vastly helpful in following the wandering events against a confused and complicated background which Lancaster has chosen to chronicle." J. W. Rogers
+ Sat R of Lit 31:11 Ag 21 '48 470w

Springf'd Republican p7B O 3 '48 250w

Wis Lib Bul 44:165 O '48

LANDAU, MARK ALEKSANDROVICH (M. A. ALDANOV, pseud). Tenth symphony; tr. by Gregory Golubeff. 149p $2.75 Scribner
48-8603

A novelette which presents a series of sketches depicting the activities of various important people; such as Jean Baptiste Isabey, Count Razumovsky, Beethoven, Henrietta Sontag, and Empress Eugénie, in nineteenth-century Vienna and Paris. All, like Beethoven, had a tenth symphony—an unrealized dream.

Reviewed by Melvin Maddocks
Christian Science Monitor p15 D 2 '48 500w

Kirkus 16:320 Jl 1 '48 150w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 73:1088 Ag '48 110w

"A lightly-ironic but tender re-creation of that 19th century in Europe so dear to the author's heart. . . The personages selected by the author from the fantastic dramatis personae of that time reappear a little ghastly in their grandeur, but warmly human in their foibles and their hopes. . . 'The Tenth Symphony' is a soft-spoken book. But for discerning ears, its still, small voice has things of considerable significance to say." Virgilia Peterson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 O 3 '48 700w

"If Aldanov's minutiae are sometimes maladroitly, even naively introduced, this is a small and not disfiguring blemish. With a light, staccato, serious air he conveys the pomps and circumstances of a spirited time, and an extraordinary sense of the rise and fall of names and fames and fortunes." A. S. Morris
+ N Y Times p34 O 24 '48 550w

"It's indeed refreshing to read [Aldanov's] prose, for it is skillful, clean and fully mature. What can be said of his prose applies equally to his characterizations, which like miniatures, show an exactness of detail, and in a small space give the illusion, if not the actuality of roundness. Though the book is completely enjoyable, one finds one's self wondering at Mr. Aldanov's preoccupation with the 19th century, not only in this, but in all his works. If his purpose is to make money, he might better go into the more full-blown, windy-historical novel, but if he wants to convey some of the very adult ideas in this novel, it would seem they might be put into a setting less redolent of the musty museum." Marc Rivette

LANDAU, M. A.—Continued

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p8 D 26 '48 300w

Reviewed by R. E. Roberts

+ Sat R of Lit 31:27 O 30 '48 750w

LANDRETH, HELEN. Pursuit of Robert Emmet. (Whittlesey house publication) 407p il $3.75 McGraw

B or 92 Emmet, Robert 48-5206

"A detailed account of the abortive rebellion against English rule in Ireland at the beginning of the last century, and of the dashing young man who led it. The author, who did her research in Ireland, was obviously swept off her feet by her hero, whom she makes out to be as faultless as his opponent, the younger Pitt, was black-hearted." (New Yorker) Index.

Booklist 44:216 F 15 '48

"Miss Landreth must be congratulated for her contribution to Irish history." B. M. O'Reilly

+ Cath World 166:568 Mr '48 550w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon

Chicago Sun Mr 17 '48 500w

Christian Science Monitor p16 Ap 19 '48 430w

"A deeply stirring note—to one of Gaelic blood, a thrilling note—runs through this book. You catch it on the first page, almost in the first paragraph, and to the end you never lose it. You hear the quiet ring of it in Miss Landreth's lucid, scholarly prose; you hear it loud and clamorous in Emmet's own heroic devotion to his country; and you hear it, like a blast of exultant victory, in the Irish people's devotion to Emmet. Never before has the true story of Robert Emmet been told; and never is it likely to be told so well again." David Marshall

+ Commonweal 47:522 Mr 5 '48 1000w

Kirkus 15:664 D 1 '47 190w

Reviewed by Richard Watts

New Repub 118:25 F 16 '48 1450w

"Miss Landreth presents new material on the story of Emmet's romance with Sarah Curran which makes it more poignantly sentimental than ever; she does, however, demolish the legend that Emmet's capture was due to his last, reckless, gallant attempt to visit his sweetheart. . . The bearers of some fine old Irish names will not like the manner in which Miss Landreth exposes the treachery to a noble cause of men who may have been ancestors; but every student of the period of the United Irishmen will be grateful to her for a remarkable piece of work." R. E. Sherwood

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 F 8 '48 850w

"Miss Landreth's interesting and scrupulously documented account cuts through the mythic haze to the man below. If the sardonic Pitt smiled at the irony of using a patriot as an instrument to keep his own country enslaved, time curdled the smile. . . His name became an emotional center for Irish nationality, a prayer in the litany of Irish heroes . . . and Miss Landreth has well written his epitaph." Horace Reynolds

+ N Y Times p22 F 1 '48 750w

"The atmosphere of old Dublin and the sounds and alarms of the uprising are very well set forth."

+ New Yorker 23:67 Ja 31 '48 90w

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ap 4 '48 300w

"It is a tribute to Miss Landreth's craftsmanship that the reader is able to move without confusion through the combined maze of idealism, malevolence, greed, patriotism, chicanery, and treachery that led to the frustrated rebellion and its tragic aftermath. She writes with a fine sincerity, deep feeling, and a nice understanding of the Irish spirit. Her canvas is necessarily a crowded one. . . Heavily accoutred with documentation and footnotes, armed to the teeth with formidable authorities, 'The Pursuit of Robert Emmet' will be well able to defend itself against any future historian who may lack a pair of scales." F. J. Hynes

+ Sat R of Lit 31:15 My 8 '48 800w

Reviewed by Donald Derby

Springf'd Republican p8B F 29 '48 650w

Time 51:106 F 23 '48 900w

LANE, ARTHUR BLISS. I saw Poland betrayed; an American ambassador reports to the American people. 344p il $3.50 Bobbs

943.8 Poland—Politics and government. Russia—Foreign relations—Poland. Poland—Foreign relations—Russia. World war, 1939-1945—Poland 48-5435

The author was appointed United States ambassador to Poland in July 1944 and took up his duties while the Potsdam conference was still in session, July, 1945. He retired after nearly two years of frustration to "tell the story as I had seen it" in 1947. In his book he says that what is going on in Poland is the worst kind of totalitarian politics, and he cites cases to prove it. Index.

Reviewed by S. R. Tompkins

Am Hist R 54:405 Ja '49 360w

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo

Atlantic 181:116 Ap '48 180w

Booklist 44:246 Mr 15 '48

"Among the numerous memoirs of war-time diplomats, this excellent book occupies a special place, since it is an unusually frank 'report to the American people' and more than any other contributes to a better understanding of the postwar situation." O. Halecki

+ Cath World 167:181 My '48 700w

Reviewed by Irving Pflaum

Chicago Sun p7X F 8 '48 490w

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko

Christian Science Monitor p14 F 9 '48 700w

"Mr. Lane's work is not pleasant reading. The lack of hysteria in the presentation makes the work most convincing—and the shadow that hangs over the world dark indeed." J. G. Kerwin

Commonweal 48:637 Ap 16 '48 550w

"This is an angry book, well-informed but presenting only a few of the facets of the postwar situation in Poland."

Foreign Affairs 26:748 Jl '48 70w

"It would be hard to object to Mr. Lane's indictment of the methods used by the U. B. (the Polish secret police), of the rigging of the elections, and of the government's subservience to Moscow. It is harder to go along with him on his chastisement of Roosevelt and Churchill for their war-time Polish policy, since for geographical reasons it was always doubtful whether they could have brought about any different results." Russell Hill

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 F 15 '48 1250w

"This is an absorbing, important and sad book. . . For the sake of the United States, one hopes that this book will be widely read. For the sake of the American share in the history of the post-war years, one is sorry that the analysis of Soviet plans, the pattern for ideological conquest were not presented to the public during the last days of the war. But since Lane was a career diplomat, that was impossible. He has done his best. It is very good." Drew Middleton

+ N Y Times p1 F 15 '48 1350w

"Very strong stuff."

New Yorker 23:86 F 14 '48 120w

Reviewed by C. E. Black
Pol Sci Q 63:467 S '48 600w

"The ex-Ambassador's total case is weakened by his strong bias, which operates even in so firmly established a case as the Katyn massacre. He would be easier to accept, too, if his horror at the condition of modern Poland were matched even slightly by a similar feeling for the terribly undemocratic atmosphere of prewar Poland—for which, apparently, Lane had only sentimental memories." M. S.
— San Francisco Chronicle p13 Jl 11 '48 300w

"While Mr. Lane is undoubtedly honest, he is at the same time partisan and therefore limited, in his outlook. The pattern of Poland, as that of any police state, is undoubtedly gray and at times dark. There are even some entirely black spots in the fabric. 'I saw Poland Betrayed' is focused on those spots with a morose glee of hopelessness." F. M. Hechinger
— + Sat R of Lit 31:11 Mr 6 '48 1300w

"Though a career diplomat, Lane has written a blunt and frank report. Where it falls down badly is in the writing. Lane uses that jargon habitual to diplomats, a dialect sometimes confused with English, which makes his occasional revelations seem as blandly dull as his report of an exchange of diplomatic amenities. . . The best—and bitterest—chapter in Lane's book, however, is his detailed reconstruction of the tragic 1944 Warsaw uprising against the Nazis, a story full of confusion at the time, but one that in his telling becomes pathetically plain."
Time 51:109 F 16 '48 700w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:178 Je '48 240w

Reviewed by F. C. Barghoorn
Yale R n s 38:354 winter '49 210w

LANE, MRS BESS B. Your part in your child's education; an activity program for parents; with a foreword by Ernest G. Osborne. 252p $2.50 Dutton

371.103 Parents' and teachers' associations 48-8350

"The author elaborates extensively on the following topics: the increasing interest of parents in the education of their children, the organization and characteristics of parents' groups, the functioning of parents' groups, the relation of the parent group and the school, the development of leadership within parent groups, challenges to progress in these organizations, sources of help for those persons who are responsible for educating children, and the methods and criteria for evaluating a parents' organization." (El School J) Bibliographies. Index.

Reviewed by Ruth Crowley
Chicago Sun S 13 '48 140w

"The book may well be used as a manual or a supplement to the manual of a federation of parents' associations. It will also be useful to parents, teachers, and school administrators who are interested in preparing personnel for leadership, and also to those persons who are engaged in developing proper public relations for the school." A. M. Simpson
+ El School J 49:114 O '48 800w

School & Society 68:192 S 18 '48 10w

LANE, CARL DANIEL. River dragon; drawings by Charles Banks Wilson. 106p $2.50 Little

48-1193

The river dragon was the first steamboat which came up the Missouri river in the fall of 1819. It was built to represent a dragon and young Eagle Feather and his friend White Hawk were part of a Cheyenne war party sent to destroy the steamboat. Instead the boy and the steamboat itself were instrumental in saving his tribe. For ages nine to twelve.

Booklist 44:269 Ap 1 '48

Commonweal 49:214 D 3 '48 30w

"Good material for supplementary reading both as Indian material and national expansion and the beginnings of the age of transportation by steam."
+ Kirkus 16:21 Ja 15 '48 90w

"Adventure, with good historical background. Recommended for ages 9-12." D. M. MacDonald
+ Library J 73:561 Ap 1 '48 60w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 My 9 '48 290w

Reviewed by Phyllis Fenner
+ N Y Times p22 Jl 18 '48 140w

"This is an unusually good story for younger boys and girls. . . The characters are all convincing and the action exciting. It is illustrated with black-and-white drawings and has especially attractive end-papers."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:35 Ap 10 '48 70w

Wis Lib Bul 44:85 Ap '48

LANE, FERDINAND COLE. World's great lakes. 254p maps $3.50 Doubleday

551.48 Lakes 48-5142

Description, history, scientific and geological facts, and geography about the great lakes of the world. Lists the world's big lakes in the comparative order of their size. No index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '48

"Recommended as a valuable compilation of lake information in one readable volume." H. A. Wooster
+ Library J 72:1777 D 15 '47 100w

"It would be almost impossible for any one man to visit and study all of these lakes, and so Dr. Lane has had to piece out his actual first hand observations with considerable compilation. His reading has been wisely chosen and thoroughly digested, and there is little to indicate the interdigitation of material of other authors. . . I miss illustrations, which would have so enhanced the personalities of the lakes, and even a general work of this kind deserves an index. I am grateful for the scattering of maps, however, showing continental lacustrine distribution." William Beebe
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 F 1 '48 600w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:55 Jl '48

"Mr. Lane's subject is engrossing, and he has packed his facts in tightly; regrettably, his writing is unimaginative and riddled with clichés."
+ — New Yorker 23:86 Ja 24 '48 60w

"If you read the author's earlier book you will know already how informally he can put scientific information. This book is a good sample of his pleasant talent. The earlier volume 'The Mysterious Sea,' was a better book in my opinion; this one seems to proceed more from arbitrary study and less from long-standing affection toward the subject, which showed through every line of the first book. Just the same, for anyone interested in the subject, this is all right. Mr. Lane knows how to do his job and he has filled this book full of genuinely interesting material, both historical and scientific." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ja 22 '48 650w

"Readers sensitive to the use of adjectives will feel drugged by the frequency and strength of those used. It is like California olives; there is no size smaller than large and one progresses to the super colossal. . . Mr. Lane's book, though unsubstantiated in many parts, may serve as a stimulus for the reader to learn more about the multitude of ideas he sets forth." G. F. Carter
Sat R of Lit 31:10 Ja 31 '48 600w

LANE, JANE, pseud. See Dakers, E. K.

LANG, DANIEL. Early tales of the atomic age; introd. by Carl Van Doren. 223p $2.75 Doubleday

541.2 Atomic energy. Atomic bomb 48-7666

Stories of the atomic bomb telling "how the enormous secret was kept till the first bombs

LANG, DANIEL—Continued
were ready; what life was and is like at Oak Ridge; how the physicists who turned atomic energy loose now feel about what followed, and what they are doing; the planning that went into the Atomic Energy Commission; the search for caves in which certain security forces or industries might take refuge underground; what is going on today at Los Alamos or Brookhaven; and what inquiring rockets have told us about the higher altitudes to which they have traveled." (Introd) These chapters first appeared in the New Yorker.

Booklist 45:28 S 15 '48

Reviewed by I. B. Jones
Chem & Eng N 26:3514 N 22 '48 150w

Reviewed by Nelson Olmsted
Chicago Sun Ag 4 '48 230w

"When people aren't speaking for themselves in Mr. Lang's tales, smooth narration carries the story. His straightforward style, however, does not reduce the ironies in his facts—the irony, for instance of natural scientists forced today to become politicians to lobby for controls on the power they have released. His great service is a dispassionate presentation of the facts." R. N.
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 16 '48 550w

"This book could not be more interesting, or better." Nika Standen
+ Commonweal 48:530 S 10 '48 460w

Kirkus 16:249 My 15 '48 110w

"Written in the usual New Yorker reportorial style of brusque authority, with an ever-alert eye and ear for telling details, the book makes fascinating reading even if one has already seen the material in the periodical where it first appeared. Recommended." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 73:1023 Jl '48 140w

Reviewed by Martin Scott
New Repub 119:22 Ag 23 '48 800w

"A highly entertaining as well as informative book." J. W. Krutch
+ N Y Herald Tribnue Wkly Bk R p2 Ag 29 '48 1250w

"In all his reporting Mr. Lang sticks to facts, facts, facts. But the arrangement of the facts constitutes one long, impressive and quite eloquent editorial. An ironic thanatopsis, 'Early Tales of the Atomic Age' makes one wonder whether human intelligence is up to creating the political conditions necessary to a few hopeful sequels." John Chamberlain
N Y Times p3 Ag 8 '48 750w

New Yorker 24:80 Ag 21 '48 60w

"A book full of frightened, nervous people, presented in a way that should frighten and unnerve even the most callous, Hearst-stupefied readers; it is one of the few pieces of writing on atomic energy that seems to be aware of the appalling significance of its own subject." R. B. Gehman
+ Sat R of Lit 31:15 Ag 7 '48 900w

LANG, LUCY (FOX) ROBINS. Tomorrow is beautiful. 303p $3.50 Macmillan
B or 92 48-9447

Autobiography of an American labor leader, born in Russia, who came to this country at the turn of the century. This is the story of her career: "of a first job in a cigar factory, and the beginnings of her life work as she became an anarchist; a trial marriage to Bob Robins, and the trial separation which shocked conservative sensibilities. She worked with Emma Goldman in her fight for freedom of speech; she aided strikers, fought against framed trials, campaigned for freedom of political prisoners after World War I. In her work for political prisoners she came to admire Gompers, identified herself with the A.F. of L., and later went abroad with her husband, Harry Lang, to make a study of European labor for William Green." (Kirkus) Index.

Booklist 45:157 Ja 1 '49

"Excellent autobiography, as well as important historically for those interested in the labor movement."
+ Kirkus 16:542 O 1 '48 180w

"Well-written, mature. . . Highly recommended." H. S. Taylor
+ Library J 73:1664 N 15 '48 130w

Reviewed by McAlister Coleman
— Nation 168:106 Ja 22 '49 900w

"The second half of her book lacks the fresh gusto with which leftist labor's picaresque age is recaptured. . . Lucy Robins Lang had to find a new world to live in because her old one was destroyed. Manifestly, she could not live in it without believing in it and fighting for it as she once fought for the glory of the Chicago 'martyrs.' This is the memoir of a woman far too intense in spirit for anything less." Duncan Aikman
+ — N Y Times p9 N 14 '48 1100w

"Mrs. Lang's personalized story merits perusal by the second generation of immigrants and by native sons, because she shows that, despite the horrors of early exploitation, the tomorrow of these Americans-by-choice became more beautiful, and that they developed a fierce loyalty to the democratic institutions, with the hope and determination to enrich them." Mark Starr
+ Sat R of Lit 31:18 N 27 '48 750w

LANGE, ANN. Eskimo store; il. by Gladys Rourke Blackwood. [27p] $1.50 Whitman, A.
48-7818

Story of a little American girl, living in an Alaskan trading post, who wanted a parka like her Eskimo friend's. For grades 2 and 3.

"Primer-like simplicity and repetition will make this a possibility for the very beginning reader and the type is large and easy to read."
+ Kirkus 16:336 Jl 15 '48 90w

"Illustrations are bright and pleasing. Children will like them. Recommended." S. J. Johnson
+ Library J 73:1098 Ag '48 60w

Wis Lib Bul 44:167 O '48

LANGFORD, NORMAN F. The King nobody wanted; il. by John Lear. 192p $2.50 Presbyterian bd.
232.9 Jesus Christ—Juvenile literature
48-6037

A life of Jesus, based on accounts in the four Gospels of the King James version of the Bible. There are scripture references at the back of the book. For grades 5-7.

Booklist 44:321 My 15 '48

"There's skillful selection and simplification, and the result is a straightforward story, taking even the miracles in somewhat matter-of-fact way, as if to say—'All you need is faith—thus things were.' "
+ Kirkus 16:114 Mr 1 '48 100w

"A beautifully illustrated story. . . Well written modern phraseology and words with some Biblical phrases. Good print and format." M. J. Meade
+ Library J 73:660 Ap 15 '48 70w

"This is a straightforward, connected narrative of the life of Jesus." N. B. Baker
+ N Y Times p17 Ag 22 '48 150w

LANIER, SIDNEY. Selected poems; with a pref. by Stark Young. 146p $2.50 Scribner 811 47-11957

A selection of the poems of this nineteenth century poet, based on the complete collection first published by Scribner in 1884. Stark Young's introductory essay contains both biographical material and a critical evaluation of the poetry.

"The editor's introduction . . . is both fair and enthusiastic. He brings out the importance of music in Lanier's life as well as in his work, and this is indeed the outstanding quality of Lanier's poetry, its peculiar melodiousness.

Students of the American literary scene, particularly of poetry, may welcome this since Lanier has lapsed into some obscurity. But it is doubtful if his verses will arouse much contemporary enthusiasm."

Kirkus 15:461 Ag 15 '48 120w

"Much of his verse that strikes one as sentimental, vague, over-simplified, posturing and unrealistic, has its origin in Lanier's excessively self-conscious preoccupation with the social role of the Poet. His sentimentality about the craft is reflected in the softness of his work. We are left enough documents to indicate how bravely, although wounded, he suffered adverse literary criticism. About the man and his work there is an unrelieved air of the priggish; the 'poet's wings' glitter of tinsel. But Lanier's cliches of the Poet, Science, Commerce and its Evils, History, the Beautiful Wife, and Music are redeemable coin and assure his work continued popularity." Frederick Brantley

N Y Times p6 D 7 '47 800w

Reviewed by R. E. Spiller

Sat R of Lit 31:6 Ja 10 '48 900w

LANKS, HERBERT CHARLES. Highway across the West Indies; phot. by the author. 197p $5 Appleton

917.29 West Indies—Description and travel 48-6222

Records the experiences of the author's trip thru Cuba, Jamaica, Haiti, the Dominican Republic, Puerto Rico and Trinidad, with brief stops in others of the West Indian islands. No index.

Booklist 44:267 Ap 1 '48

"Good reading for armchair travelers as well as those who plan to go and do likewise."

+ Kirkus 16:70 F 1 '48 240w

"The author is primarily a photographer and a collector of impressions. His book is beautifully illustrated. When he happens upon some feature that other travel writers have overlooked, he does it proud. . . But he strives overmuch for effect in dealing with a show place like Christophe's citadel in Haiti that scores of chroniclers before him have made famous." W. A. Roberts

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ag 15 '48 400w

Reviewed by B. D. Colen

N Y Times p33 Je 6 '48 50w

LANSBURGH, RICHARD HINES, and SPRIEGEL, WILLIAM ROBERT. Industrial management. [4th ed] 656p il $5 Wiley

658.01 Industrial management. Efficiency, Industrial 47-11439

"This comprehensive discussion, intended for the college student as well as the executive, deals with the latest practices in solving management problems as well as expounding the theories behind them. . . Compared with the previous edition (1940), much of the material has been rewritten. A new chapter, 'The Maintenance Department,' has been added; the bibliography has been brought up to date; and the index expanded. Earlier editions appeared under the name of the late Richard H. Lansburgh who wrote the first in 1923 and collaborated in the next two with the present author and reviser [W. R. Spriegel]." N Y New Tech Bks

"Although the book is a text intended primarily for the college student who has little or no industrial experience, the author's encyclopedic coverage of the subject, his critical selection of practical illustrations, and his numerous up-to-date references make his presentation interesting and profitable reading for anyone who aspires to assume added responsibility at any level of business finance, research, sales, or production. . . The type makes for easy reading; the subject matter is logically arranged and well indexed for ready reference." R. L. Dodge

+ Chem & Eng N 26:276 Ja 26 '48 420w

"The book is written around the machine tool industries rather than chemical process industries and is therefore not of primary interest to chemical engineers. Nevertheless, much of the book is basic to both types of industry. . . The book has authority and is not only theoretically sound, but reflects the extensive practical experience of the present author." Chaplin Tyler

+ Chem Eng 55:296 Ap '48 230w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 73:47 Ja 1 '48 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 32:76 O '47

LANSING, MRS ELISABETH CARLETON (HUBBARD) (MARTHA JOHNSON, pseud). Cathy Carlisle. 260p $2.25 Crowell 48-2109

The story of one eventful summer in the life of the serious, shy fourteen-year-old daughter of a lively and unconventional family.

"Lively, if occasionally confused, story."

+ — Kirkus 16:51 F 1 '48 100w

"The picture of family is well drawn and, at times, quite moving. Stock situations and the somewhat forced solutions to all the Carlisles' problems, however, prevent the book from rising above the commonplace. Dates, dances, and romances, of which there is no lack, will certainly recommend it highly to teen-age girls." Judith Stevenson

+ — Library J 73:484 Mr 15 '48 70w

"Characterization is thin, the plot confused, but the insatiable readers of girls' stories will undoubtedly snap it up." M. C. Scoggin

N Y Times p27 My 16 '48 180w

LA PIANA, ANGELINA. Dante's American pilgrimage; pub. for Wellesley college. 310p $4 Yale univ. press

851.15 Dante Alighieri 48-5772

"A historical survey of Dante studies in the United States, 1800-1944." (Subtitle) Partial contents: Dante comes to America; The essayists, Richard H. Wilde, James Russell Lowell; The first American translators of Dante, Thomas W. Parsons, Ralph W. Emerson; Henry Wadsworth Longfellow (1807-82); Charles Eliot Norton (1827-1908); The last decades of the nineteenth century; American translations of the Divine Comedy in the twentieth century; Dante's portraits and illustrations of the Divine Comedy. Index of names.

"Miss La Piana meets every demand of modern scholarship, both in material and in style of presentation." W. P. T.

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Mr 20 '48 320w

"Miss La Piana's excellent book, thoroughly documented, well-ordered, written with learning and critical intelligence, fills a gap in the history of American taste and thought." Theodore Spencer

+ New Eng Q 21:388 S '48 1600w

"Dr. Angelina la Piana, of Wellesley College, is a sister of Professor George la Piana, of Harvard University. She belongs in the tradition of Dante scholarship in America, to which this excellent book is devoted." John Erskine

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Je 27 '48 600w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:133 Je '48 280w

LARIAR, LAWRENCE, ed. Best cartoons of the year 1948; being a selection by the artists themselves of the best cartoons they drew for Collier's [etc]. [126p] $2.50 Crown

741.5 Caricatures and cartoons

A selection from the cartoons of the year. Most of them are from Collier's; The Saturday Evening Post; Liberty; and This Week.

"Having done the job so often, Lawrence Lariar could almost edit his useful annual of 'Best Cartoons' with his eyes closed—but he doesn't. His scrutiny is sharp and wide ranging, and his judgment of what folks who follow

LARIAR, LAWRENCE—Continued
the magazines will like to see a second time—and repeat with laughter—is seasoned and ripe (but not too ripe). . . The round-up includes close to fifty artists at the top of their form." Lisle Bell

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 D 5 '48 140w

Reviewed by Lewis Nichols
N Y Times p5 D 5 '48 100w

LARSEN, KAREN. History of Norway; pub. for the Am.-Scandinavian foundation. 591p $6 Princeton univ. press

948.1 Norway—History 48-9017

"Comprehensive survey of Norwegian history in a formal but not pedantic style." Booklist

Booklist 45:101 N 15 '48

"The story of the Norwegian people since the dawn of their history through World War II is sufficiently well documented and indexed to make it indispensable to the student of history—for no European country, save perhaps Finland, has been so inadequately dealt with by world historians—and, at the same time, it is lively enough to be enjoyed by the reader whose interest is no more than that of an intelligent tourist." Neil Martin

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 6 '49 950w

Current Hist 16:34 Ja '49 40w

"First satisfying picture of Norwegian history to appear in many years. . . Strongly recommended for college and larger public libraries." F. E. Hirsch

+ Library J 73:1596 N 1 '48 150w

Nation 167:674 D 11 '48 40w

"It is full, objective and thoroughly readable history, rich in content and admirably suited to stand forth as the latest addition to the lengthening list of works . . . which the American-Scandinavian Foundation has sponsored during more than thirty years of leadership in its chosen field. And it is easily the most important history of Norway in the English language since Gjerset's two well-known volumes appeared in 1915." J. H. Wuorinen

+ N Y Times p4 O 24 '48 950w

"Miss Larsen offers no direct and ready explanation of the paradoxical course of Norwegian history. Her aim seems instead to have been to set down the facts, offer the information, and allow her readers to make their own interpretations. . . Miss Larsen, herself a professor of history at Saint Olaf College, comes from a well-known Norwegian pioneer family, and the pride she takes in Norwegian achievements must reflect an attitude towards the 'old country' common among many Norwegian-Americans; it gives her style a special and likable flavor." Erik Sjögren

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:12 Ja 8 '49 750w

LARSON, MRS MAY. Kennel, show and field. 252p il $4 Scribner

636.7 Dogs. Dog shows Agr48-265

A guide to buying, raising, training and showing pure-bred dogs. Glossary.

Booklist 45:173 Ja 15 '49

Kirkus 16:299 Je 15 '48 100w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 73:1514 O 15 '48 20w

"Mrs. Larson has been raising and training dogs for show for 20 years and this volume reflects that experience." E. J.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 O 10 '48 60w

LASKI, HAROLD JOSEPH. American democracy: a commentary and an interpretation. 785p $6.50 Viking

917.3 Democracy. U.S.—Civilization. U.S.—Politics and government 48-2654

"Famous British social philosopher writes a formidable attack on capitalistic system in a monumental, all-inclusive survey of the intellectual and political life of the U.S.A. . . Each chapter would bear treatment as a separate treatise (business, labor, culture (literature) religion, etc.), all synthesized by extreme Marxist interpretation. Laski's thesis is that American tradition, based on limitless expansion, developed individualistic, enlightened self-interest, spirit of success, adventure, experiment, revolution, in interest of common man (not property); that although still vigorous, the American spirit is no longer directed to its original purpose, but deflected in interest of property. . . He believes that the hope of America and the world lies in recognition by U.S.A. that profit-system is obsolete (its continuance makes war inevitable), and re-establishment of original American democratic principle." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by C. E. Merriam
Am Pol Sci R 42:1211 D '48 1050w

Reviewed by R. F. Harvey
Ann Am Acad 259:155 S '48 360w

Booklist 44:380 Jl 15 '48

"His book displays a mastery of all the significant works that have been written on American history, economics, sociology, religion, philosophy, law and literature. It is full of penetrating observations on every aspect of American civilization, observations which are worth pondering whether you happen to be a socialist along with him or not. His exposition of the fundamental American faith in democracy is inspiring. . . But however much one may disagree on particular points, the book would undoubtedly be impressive if it were about half as long. It is not a magnum opus because it is twice as long as it needs to be. It is full of endless and wearisome repetitions, both in its arguments and in its illustrations." F. H. Underhill

+ — Canadian Forum 28:164 O '48 1350w

Reviewed by R. A. Preston
Canadian Hist R 29:412 D '48 1250w

Reviewed by Robert Lasch
Chicago Sun p8X Ag 15 '48 600w

"It is not a new Tocqueville, much less a new Bryce. It is an old Laski. The scope of the book is vast, but there is relatively little of the solid, clearly set forth information that one finds in Bryce. . . Doubtless the book is more rewarding than I have indicated. Certainly, it reflects a breadth of learning which is truly astonishing; and when I say that there is little in it that is new, I do not mean that its readers will be familiar with all the subjects discussed or with all the literature referred to. The book is not the product of one or two hasty trips via the lecture route. . . Professor Laski knows and has known many Americans intimately. He has read widely. Yet he gives the impression that he sees what fits in with his stereotype." B. F. Wright

— + Ethics 59:61 O '48 1550w

"A very important book and one of permanent value, which should take its place beside Tocqueville and Bryce as a study of the American mentality."

+ Kirkus 16:132 Mr 1 '48 500w

"Penetrating, provocative, controversial." R. W. Henderson

Library J 73:470 Mr 15 '48 270w

"His book lays serious claim to greatness; it will be cited, interpreted, contradicted, and only in time will its full stature become clear, only if it can legislate into being a public that will furnish the real critique. Meanwhile we must recollect to what tradition Laski belongs, the tradition of Locke, Bentham, Mill, the Fabians, and H. G. Wells." Perry Miller

Nation 166:689 Je 19 '48 2300w

"One does not have to assent to all Laski's propositions to believe, as I believe, that he has written a seminal introduction to a new epoch. Nor need one assent to any of them to hope that if Lord Bryce (as Laski says) exorcized the ghost of Dickens' Jefferson Brick—the Yankee jingoist and twister of the Lion's tail—Laski himself will not unwittingly summon once again that singular phantom." George Dangerfield

New Repub 118:21 Je 14 '48 3700w

" 'The American Democracy'—the very title confesses it—is closer to Tocqueville than to Bryce, both in method and in purpose... It is not only that 'The American Democracy' is analytical rather than expository, interpretative rather than descriptive; it is rather that, like Tocqueville's book, it is designed as much for the profit of the Old World as for the edification of the New, and concerned as much with the future as with the past... It is a pity that a book with so much good in it should have so much bad in it. It is regrettable that so much objectivity should be marred by so much subjectivity, so much good will by so much bad temper, so much valid criticism by so much nagging. It is discouraging that a scholar who knows this country better than any other Briton except Professor Brogan should reveal himself so wholly unable to understand it or sympathize with it." H. S. Commager

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Je 6 '48 2750w

" 'The American Democracy' can be briefly described as Tocqueville redone for 1948 from the viewpoint prevailing in British Socialist circles about 1924—the period at which Laski became a member of the Fabian Society executive committee. It is a rich, learned and weighty book, immensely readable, surveying the main problems of American politics and culture and defining what the author regards as the choices confronting this nation today. The writing exhibits in turn sharp and subtle insight, wit, superb exposition and some truly fine passages of quasi-Churchillian rhetoric. The work is twice too long and at times intolerably repetitious; but one can sympathize with the editor, who evidently could not decide which of several equally epigrammatic versions of the same thought he should cut." A. M. Schlesinger, Jr.

+ N Y Times p1 Je 6 '48 1300w

"To come right out with it, I am always put off by this sort of encyclopedic performance; it is my perhaps eccentric belief that no man can be an authority on everything. Nearly all the reviewers who have had a go at Mr. Laski's volume have compared it with Bryce's 'The American Commonwealth' and de Tocqueville's 'Democracy in America,' but, except for scope and intent, I do not see much similarity." Hamilton Basso

New Yorker 24:67 Jl 3 '48 1300w

Reviewed by E. C. Lindeman

Pol Sci Q 63:599 D '48 1000w

Reviewed by Louis Wasserman

San Francisco Chronicle p11 Je 20 '48 1100w

"Compared with de Tocqueville and Bryce, Laski devotes relatively little attention to political institutions as such. He gives sixty pages to national politics but seventy to education; thirty to local governments but 100 to the press, cinema, and radio. The analysis assumes that readers have wide information. There is little of the description which was Bryce's principal task... There can and will be controversy over much that Mr. Laski says. He is interested not only in facts but in what the French used to call 'la cuisine'—the gossip of the chamber of deputies—and pays attention to 'la cuisine' of American newspapers and magazines and the professions. . . In style de Tocqueville was lucid and brilliant; Bryce was clear but ponderous. 'The American Democracy' is sprightly, full of acid characterizations, allusive, sometimes elusive and rhetorical. Frequently the rhetoric is magnificent, but sometimes also it claims Mr. Laski as its victim." Lindsay Rogers

Sat R of Lit 31:12 Je 12 '48 1300w

"There are passages in this large volume where the author is at his best, which means that they are very good. But along with the good qualities are others less desirable. . . He frequently rambles in a way that is quite unlike what one expects of him, and on top of that he takes advantage of every possible opportunity (and far too many are afforded him) to lash out at several bogies he has discovered in America. He attacks them with all the energy, the deadly seriousness, and the success of Don Quixote tilting with the famous windmill long, long ago." Donald Derby

+ — Springf'd Republican p10A Jl 18 '48 750w

"As a history of American civilization, The American Democracy is, despite its strong bias, a highly instructive book; as a crusade against 'the curse of Midas' it is not likely to convince any but the converted that the cure is not worse than the curse."

Time 51:94 Je 28 '48 700w

Wis Lib Bul 44:164 O '48

LASKY, JESSE LENARD. Spindrift. 232p $3 Prentice-Hall

48-1543

"The main characters in this war novel are combat photographers in the Pacific area who are ordered back to the U.S. shortly before VJ Day to prepare an exhibit for propaganda purposes. Captain Dan Reed, the leading character, is completely confused about life in general and his marriage in particular. His love for his wife does not prevent his being unfaithful to her in Australia with the sweetheart of a dead fellow officer, nor in New York with a society girl who is a war widow and neurotic. Nancy the wife arrives in New York shortly after VJ Day and the novel has a happy ending." Library J

Kirkus 16:62 F 1 '48 110w

"Not an important novel. Everything it says has been said better before." H. P. Bolman

— Library J 73:396 Mr 1 '48 130w

"The writing, though some of it is skillful, bears out this interpretation. 'Spindrift' is too full of the poetry of common speech. The dialogue is so loaded down with colorful native idiom that it cannot carry any conviction. The descriptions are somewhat hectic, shot through with 'anemic stars,' 'brass-bound laughter' and the like." Donald Barr

— + N Y Times p5 S 5 '48 330w

"Anecdotal scrapings from the recent war, kneaded into an unleavened novel about the exploits of an Army photographer."

New Yorker 24:121 My 15 '48 100w

"Jesse Lasky, Jr., son of the movie magnate, gives a moving, thought-provoking account of the ravages of war on a man's mind and heart and soul." M. L. C.

+ Springf'd Republican p10B Ap 25 '48 130w

LASSER, JACOB KAY. How tax laws make giving to charity easy; a check list of federal tax aids for the solicitor and the giver. 106p $3 Funk

336.24 Taxation—U.S. Charities 48-8668

"Intended to give those seeking contributions for charitable purposes the particular facts about our Federal tax structure designed to make giving to charity easy. It is also written for people who want to learn how to make their contributions wisely as well as have them apply to reduce their income tax. The author is a senior partner in the New York firm of J. K. Lasser and Company, Certified Public Accountants." (Special Libraries) Index.

Booklist 45:59 O 15 '48

Special Libraries 39:59 F '48

LASSWELL, HAROLD DWIGHT. Analysis of political behaviour; an empirical approach. (Int. lib. of sociology and social reconstruction) 314p $4.50 Oxford

320.4 Political science [48-19807]

"This volume is a reprint of fourteen brief articles and one long one previously published in scientific journals, and one short chapter on 'Self-observation' written especially for the present publication. . . The articles were written and published over a period of a decade starting in 1932. . . The editor has grouped the articles under three headings: (1) How to Integrate Science, Morals and Politics; (2) How to Analyze Politics; (3) How to Observe and Record Politics." Ann Am Acad

"In the opinion of this reviewer, the long article [Legal Education and Public Policy] is by far the best of the lot. . . It should be read by anyone who has any responsibility for law school curricula and by everyone who believes lawyers should have a primary part in the determination of public policy. . . There is much here that is just common sense. Moreover, it is such vitally important common sense that it should be made available to the common man." E. A. Helms

LASSWELL, H. D.—Continued

+ Ann Am Acad 259:179 S '48 360w

"Through this baffling potpourri there can be detected the suggestions of a pattern. Lasswell is using science to clarify democratic morals and to find the techniques of relating them to reality. . . It is its awareness of this principle that gives this book its value and interest. That and the psychological insights it uses." W. S. Lynch

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:9 Ag 14 '48 650w

"Professor Lasswell brings convincing and constructive thought to bear on the central problems of our age. This voice from across the Atlantic is full of confidence; it does not always speak our idiom, but it has sometimes that realistic ironical tang, that Olympian humour, which made the voice of Franklin D. Roosevelt bring a widening of horizons and a flood of light into the darkness of war. It belongs, emphatically, to the second half of the twentieth century."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p185 Ap 3 '48 3600w

LASSWELL, HAROLD DWIGHT. Power and personality. 262p $3 Norton

137.3832 Leadership. Psychology, Applied 48-7325

An analysis of the characteristics of leadership. Partial contents: The meaning of power; The political personality; Varieties of character and personality; Democratic leadership and the policy sciences; The formation of democratic personality; Capitalism, Socialism and our historical period. The author is professor of law at the Yale university law school. Index.

"Power and personality is important not merely because of the conclusions set forth but also because of the viewpoint [the author] is developing. Lasswell operates at one of our intellectual frontiers. He is one of those social scientists who find the objective reporting and generalization of facts inadequate. Psychiatry and anthropology, discovering unreasoned prejudices and irrational compulsions, point to a conception of science that is something more than a process of discovery and factor-analysis. Mr Lasswell talks in this volume about the 'policy sciences.'" W. A. R. Leys

Christian Century 65:879 S 1 '48 800w

Reviewed by Morroe Berger

N Y Times p29 S 12 '48 500w

"Lasswell is magnificently objective toward facts; pragmatic and resolute regarding purposes. This seems to me to be the difficult but necessary method of any writer on politics who assumes the coadjuvant rôle of political leader. We need much more writing of this kind but it would be too much to expect of it to be as good as this." Lyman Bryson

+ Pol Sci Q 63:597 D '48 1000w

"Dr. Lasswell is a social scientist and he appears to believe that values and judgments of value have no place in science. Consequently, with its psychoanalytical sections, its little tables of values co-ordinated with power and its jargon-infected style, his book might well have been written by Dr. Goebbels who was also a social scientist of no mean ability. It is true that Dr. Lasswell has invoked the value of human dignity but how can one be sure that it is not another of the myths of the middle class? Dr. Goebbels also invoked values and was most efficient in manipulating them." E. M. T.

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ag 8 '48 500w

School & Society 68:47 Jl 17 '48 10w

"A book that comprises a learned and fascinating study of the elements of psychology, law, economics and the varying types of personality that go into the attainment of human leadership and the many forms of power this entails." E. A. F.

+ Springf'd Republican p10B Je 27 '48 270w

LASSWELL, MARY. Bread for the living. 262p $2.75 Houghton

48-7874

Novel of a woman's life in a Texas border town in the first fifteen years of the twentieth century. "It was love at first sight for Irish-Spanish Raquel O'Riordan when she met Fausto Hidalgo in Brownsville; she married him at once and found that while their passion was mutual, they shared nothing else. . . Only when she realized that her daughters were entitled to an education did she find courage to free herself and become self-supporting." Booklist

Booklist 45:13 S 1 '48

Reviewed by N. H. Rugg

Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 12 '48 240w

Kirkus 16:266 Je 1 '48 170w

"Competent movie script for a costume play, but no such loving fun as we found in Suds in your Eye. Strictly for summer consumption." F. A. Boyle

Library J 73:945 Je 15 '48 70w

Reviewed by George Conrad

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ag 1 '48 320w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ag 15 '48 160w

"Miss Lasswell's book is a curious mixture of good writing and stilted melodramatics. Sometimes the style is so stiffly formal as to sound like a translation by someone who doesn't know any colloquialisms. . . For all the inherent poignance and drama of Raquel's struggle, I found her a less memorable and moving character than Miss Lasswell's earnest and sincere efforts intended her to be." S. H. Hay

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:26 Ag 7 '48 550w

Wis Lib Bul 44:150 S '48

LATOURETTE, KENNETH SCOTT. The Christian outlook. 229p $2.50 Harper

261 Christianity. Christianity and other religions 48-7616

"Convinced that 'the future of Christianity is the future of Mankind' Dr. Latourette surveys the present status of the Christian church with the purpose of prophesying its role in the future; considers growth of the Christian Church throughout the world, its major enemies such as communism, secularism and Islam, the Catholic versus the Protestant viewpoint, the ecumenical movement and the significance of the gospel to man's hopes. Concludes that Christianity through the medium of some form of Protestantism has great possibility of conquering and hence saving civilization." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 45:43 O 1 '48

"Two things give this book great value to every person who is intelligently interested in contemporary religion: its solid factual content with reference to the actualities of our own time, and its vigorous appeal to churches and Christians to meet the challenge of the age with both faith and action. Christianity is not a passing phenomenon." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 65:1112 O 20 '48 220w

"Dr. Latourette attempts to answer, and with gratifying success, a number of the problems that deeply concern Christian people today. . . His is no pat answer, but he offers abundant material that is both timely and encouraging." J. H. Titus

+ Churchman 162:17 O 1 '48 180w

"Professor Latourette is at his best, not as a prophet, but rather in summarizing the status and trends in various communions in various areas. Particularly valuable, therefore, are his middle chapters—'Recent Losses and Gains,' 'Trends in the Setting,' 'Directions in Protestantism.' Nowhere is there available such an able, compact yet comprehensive, survey of the position of contemporary Christianity." W. S. Hudson

+ Crozer Q 25:360 O '48 420w

"Church historians, missionary leaders and pastors will be particularly interested in this volume and encouraged by it."
+ Kirkus 16:508 O 1 '48 160w

"Controversial, stimulating, written with authors customary clarity and brilliance. Recommended for all libraries purchasing any religious books at all." G. W. Wakefield
+ Library J 73:1023 Jl '48 140w

School & Society 68:144 Ag 28 '48 10w

LATOURETTE, KENNETH SCOTT, and HOGG, WILLIAM RICHEY. Tomorrow is here; the mission and work of the church as seen from the meeting of the International missionary council at Whitby, Ontario, July 5-24, 1947: pub. for the International missionary council. 145p $1.50; pa 90c Friendship press

266 International missionary council. Church. Missions 48-5214

"[This book contains] a picture of the condition of the world, a survey of the state of the church country by country, a description of the company that gathered at Whitby considered as a microcosm of a church of all peoples, a statement of the essential gospel which it is the church's business to proclaim and apply, and the outline of a plan for the next steps in carrying out the church's commission." (Christian Century) Bibliography.

"It will be a liberal education for any intelligent group in any church to take this little book as its guide for a course of study, beginning as soon as possible and continuing as long as they can. There are ample aids to discussion and suggestions for further reading. But there is also something in it which the terms 'textbook' and 'discussion handbook' do not suggest. There is vision, and the divine imperative. It makes me wish for another lifetime in which to do some of the things for which the way now seems to be open." W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 65:82 Ja 21 '48 850w

Reviewed by M. M. Deems
J Religion 28:303 O '48 100w

LATTIMORE, ELEANOR FRANCES (MRS ROBERT ARMSTRONG ANDREWS). Three little Chinese girls [il. by the author]. 128p $2 Morrow 48-7695

Story of three little sisters of old Peking; their toys, pets, and holidays. For grades 2-4.

Booklist 45:16 S 1 '48

Kirkus 16:280 Je 15 '48 90w

"A gentle, simple story in chapters which the eight- or nine-year-old can read to herself and which can be read to younger children." E. W. Turpin
+ Library J 73:1098 Ag '48 60w

"Out of her own childhood spent in China, Eleanor Lattimore has created many Chinese children who have made China real to American boys and girls. Young Tiger and five-year-old Jasmine deserve to take their place in the children's affection beside Little Pear, Lifu and Peach Blossom." Helen Masten
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 S 19 '48 150w

"As in the semi-classic 'Little Pear' by the same author, line drawings help make an attractive little book. Girls 7 to 10 will enjoy reading this to themselves, and younger children will provide a happy listening audience." C. E. Z.
+ N Y Times p59 N 14 '48 130w

New Yorker 24:132 D 11 '48 90w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 31:38 S 18 '48 70w

Reviewed by E. H. Dexter
Springf'd Republican p12C D 12 '48 90w

Wis Lib Bul 44:151 S '48

LAUBACH, FRANK CHARLES. Teaching the world to read; a handbook for literacy campaigns; pub. for the Committee on world literacy and Christian literature of the Foreign missions conference of North America. 246p $2 Friendship press

379.2 Education of adults. Illiteracy. Reading

"Half of the book gives a condensed survey of the world's language problem and an informing treatment of elementary linguistics, phonetics and improved alphabets. . . The other half deals specifically with those 'literacy campaigns' which Dr. Laubach has been conducting and directing in many parts of the world. . . Here he describes in some detail the techniques, both of organization and of instruction, by which many millions of illiterates, speaking nearly a hundred different tongues, have been taught to read, each in his own language." (Christian Century) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 44:263 Ap 1 '48

Christian Century 65:384 Ap 28 '48 170w

"On the subject of world illiteracy this book is most informative and interesting." C. S. Detweiler
+ Churchman 162:17 My 1 '48 120w

School & Society 67:271 Ap 3 '48 20w

LAUFERTY, LILIAN (MRS JAMES WOLFE). Baritone. 276p $3 Doubleday 48-7573

Chronicles the rise to fame of Anthony Carlos, a European baritone, who, when banished from Italian opera houses because of his affairs with women, came to the United States. Tony was charming, but a cad, and he used the influence of anyone and everyone to gain his ends. He made a success in concert singing, at the Metropolitan, and altho a flop in the movies, he made a comeback and became a great radio singer. But his inability to say no to women eventually cost him his wife and son.

Kirkus 16:221 My 1 '48 120w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 S 19 '48 110w

"All the popular preconceptions about singers—or about any other kind of artist, for that matter—have been meticulously restated in this novel. . . Diverting, in a rococo fashion."
New Yorker 24:72 Je 17 '48 120w

"Miss Lauferty is familiar with the world of the 'Met' as her husband was basso there for 18 years. She presents a convincing picture of that strange world where fawning upon those in power and currying favor are part of the daily round. The characters in the story are well conceived but not always well conveyed." J. V.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p20 Jl 18 '48 140w

LAUGHLIN, CLARA ELIZABETH. So you're going to England; 2d rev ed. prepared by E. Mildred Britten Austin. 680p $4 Houghton

914.2 England—Description and travel 48-6764

This second revised edition has been edited by a former associate of the original author's London office. "Throughout this book the author makes reference to specific hotels, accommodation and travel rates, private country mansions opened to the public, days for visiting same, London restaurants, and similar information, all of which was in force until the outbreak of war in 1939. . . Since the war, most of them have been slowly returning to normal and will eventually return to their former conditions, or at least become stabilized. At the present stage, however, while it would have been injudicious entirely to omit such information, there would seem little point in the reviser's supplying data which are transient and alter from day to day." (Reviser's note) Index.

LAUGHLIN, C. E.—Continued

Booklist 44:316 My 15 '48

"This is such an efficient as well as entertaining book, completely revised to take in the new developments in post-war tourism, that it can be recommended to sophisticated and first-trippers as well. It even is a sort of ersatz trip for stay-at-homes, and an admirable bit of home-reading for lazy students of English history."
+ Commonweal 48:681 Ap 30 '48 260w

Kirkus 16:230 My 1 '48 30w

"There are dozens of omissions which anyone who knew England during the war must regret. Perhaps the most startling oversight is the description of Grosvenor Square, still defined as the center of fashionable Mayfair but not as the late center of the 'American invasion' or the site of the Roosevelt memorial statue." A. L. Goodman
New Repub 118:24 Je 14 '48 360w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Jl 4 '48 80w

Reviewed by B. D. Colen
N Y Times p33 Je 6 '48 30w

"This is not a book to be read only by those contemplating a trip to England. It could well be read as a substitute for a trip to England. I defy anyone who is susceptible to the charm of interesting places to find a dull page in it. Four dollars? That makes it the greatest buy since Manhattan went for $24 plus beads." Quentin Reynolds
+ Sat R of Lit 31:55 Ap 17 '48 500w

Wis Lib Bul 44:132 Je '48

LAUGHLIN, CLARA ELIZABETH. So you're going to Paris! 8th rev. ed. prepared by John L. Brown. 518p $4 Houghton
914.436 Paris—Description 48-2777

Revised edition of this guidebook to Paris which "takes into account all the changes that have come about in French life since 1940." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 44:355 Je 15 '48

Reviewed by A. L. Goodman
New Repub 118:24 Je 14 '48 220w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Jl 4 '48 80w

"Suffers from the author's over-exuberant, conscientious handling of persons and sites. Few average sightseers can hope to visit all the places mentioned by Miss Laughlin, and so the mass of historical and literary information she provides as background material is likely to confuse and weary the reader." B. D. Colen
N Y Times p33 Je 6 '48 30w

"The museums, cathedrals, monuments, and parks are almost intact. The postwar reformers have done little to tarnish the entertainments, diversions, and vices. The workers work harder than in the past, and receive less in proportion, if that is possible. And if most of them should read Miss Laughlin's book, they would smile tolerantly at her mild anti-democratic slant and the sighs that punctuate her pages for the gallant victims of the guillotine. However, this is a painstaking job and will be useful to anyone who is going to Paris." Elliot Paul
Sat R of Lit 31:37 My 1 '48 270w

LAUGHLIN, CLARA ELIZABETH. So you're going to Scandinavia! 2d rev ed 469p $4 Houghton
914.8 Scandinavia—Description and travel 48-6736

New edition of this travel guide which was first published in 1937 (Book Review Digest 1937). Information has been brought as up-to-date as possible, and the history of the war years added. Includes Denmark, Sweden, and Norway, and outlines some possible tours in all those countries. Index.

Booklist 44:316 My 15 '48

+ Commonweal 48:681 Ap 30 '48 120w

Kirkus 16:230 My 1 '48 30w

Reviewed by A. L. Goodman
New Repub 118:24 Je 14 '48 750w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Jl 4 '48 80w

Reviewed by B. D. Colen
N Y Times p33 Je 6 '48 30w

"The Laughlin book in its more than 450 pages contains such a wealth of information, reflects such a marvelous capacity for digesting shrewd observations that it becomes invaluable to anyone leaving his home in search of traveling thrills. It adds to the value of the book that the various official Scandinavian travel agencies have assumed responsibility for all the factual information." Egil Tresselt
+ Sat R of Lit 31:35 Je 19 '48 270w

LAUGHLIN, CLARENCE JOHN. Ghosts along the Mississippi; an essay in the poetic interpretation of Louisiana's plantation architecture; 100 phot. by the author. [22p] $10 Scribner
976.3 Louisiana—Historic houses, etc. Architecture, Domestic 48-5954

One hundred photographs of plantation houses of Louisiana in various states of preservation or decay. Brief descriptive and historical text accompanies each photograph.

Christian Science Monitor p11 My 22 '48 120w

"Since Mr. Laughlin is probably the most sensitive architectural photographer of our time, and since the hundred delicately printed plates of 'Ghosts Along The Mississippi' reproduce the very greatest plantations of antebellum Louisiana, an area unusually rich in examples of the Greek Revival and not unmindful of the Gothic, it would be absurd to try to praise what is so evidently a major contribution to the literature of American architecture." Wayne Andrews
+ Commonweal 48:166 My 28 '48 160w

Kirkus 16:166 Mr 15 '48 80w

Reviewed by E. H. Smith
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Je 20 '48 550w

"The author, who took the pictures, tries to match [in type] the haunted majesty of the houses. He stubs his toe on every occasion, but most of his pictures are superb."
— + New Yorker 24:120 Mr 20 '48 60w

"The texts written in lyric prose and the composition of the pictures convey admirably that sense of 'the nostalgia felt for all dead beauty and for all lovely things forever beyond recall.'" Jane Voiles
+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Mr 21 '48 300w

"On first glancing through it I felt it a limited book in that it contains no pictures of the river, the land, the people, the life of the plantations, but merely the old houses. But then I read it, lock, stock, and barrel. Somewhat shaken, I put it away carefully and read it again the next day. Then it became clear why there was no life in the photographs: in my time I never have read such outrageous, pretentious mishmash; such a panting outpouring of lavender and old fudge." Pare Lorentz
— Sat R of Lit 31:44 Je 5 '48 450w

Reviewed by J. T. Soby
Sat R of Lit 31:44 O 9 '48 90w

LAUGHLIN, RUTH (MRS H. S. A. ALEXANDER). Wind leaves no shadow. (Whittlesey house publication) 321p $3.50 McGraw 48-10425

"New Mexico, in the period between the liberation from Spain and the American occupation (1821-1846) is the background of a novel that humanizes a segment of Southwestern history by telling it in terms of a real woman who made a vivid splash in Santa Fé a century ago. Little hampered by moral codes, Doña Tules (Maria Gertrudis Barceló) was, nevertheless, guided in her spectacular career as market girl, monte queen, and revolutionist, not only by personal ambition but by a burning sympathy for the peons." Christian Science Monitor

Booklist 45:137 D 15 '48

"Ruth Laughlin, who has lived in the Southwest since childhood, shows an urgent feeling for tumultuous action, colorful speech, and the varied humanity of a region where Spaniards and Mexicans, Indians and Yankees came together." W. K. Rugg

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 N 11 '48 150w

"While the ingredients are there for blood and thunder romance and adventure, the whole leaves a rather arid impression, lacking color and motion."

Kirkus 16:450 S 1 '48 130w

"This is a robust, interesting and entertaining novel and gives a fine insight into the life of the times. Style is not brilliant, sometimes veering toward historical reporting, but book is valuable addition to Western Americana and should have real interest for readers of books on the West." L. R. Etzkorn

+ Library J 73:1511 O 15 '48 130w

"Ruth Laughlin has made excellent use of all the available records and legends and drawn upon imagination for the rest. On the evidence presented we are ready to wager a fanega (two bushels of silver) that [Dona Tules] was quite a girl."

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p38 N 14 '48 140w

"Ruth Laughlin, whose 'discovery' Doña Tules is, has mixed just enough fiction and expert guesswork with her research to assemble a story as colorful as the land she writes about. Anyone who has seen New Mexico will know how extravagantly colorful that is." R. M.

+ N Y Times p46 D 5 '48 290w

LAURITZEN, JONREED. Song before sunrise. 314p $3 Doubleday

48-8578

Dennis Julian, adventurer and voyageur, at the time of the Spanish occupation of New Mexico, is the hero. The novel describes Dennis' long pursuit of the half-Indian girl, Nijoni, who represents the good and the beautiful. His mystical search is carried on thru the deserts of the Southwest and is hindered by much violence and brutality.

Booklist 45:66 O 15 '48

Kirkus 16:374 Ag 1 '48 180w

"Book is spattered with blood and assorted tortures. It shows conscientious work and research, but total effect is cluttered and rather tedious." E. F. Walbridge

+ — Library J 73:1274 S 15 '48 80w

"This book has a curious poetic quality. It was a pleasure to read and it's a pleasure to write about. I have the feeling that I want to urge readers not to let it slip by in the shuffle It is uncompromising in possibly too many respects to find a ready public; it yields very little indeed to the accepted formula for historical novels. But it is rewarding to a high degree and it is the kind of book that will make many readers feel they have discovered a half-secret treasure, have found a byway that opens up to a sudden breathtaking vista." Elliott Arnold

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 O 10 '48 600w

"In writing the history, the author gives us a sense of his understanding and skill. And by contrast, the contrivances customary in vibrant, full-blown romance seem almost like interpolations by a second author-personality. The countless fights . . . shooting, wounding, and dying, the haughty, impetuous lady who dashes out from the endangered caravan to get lost with the hero, the large gallery of stock figures, all furnish a nervous but shallow excitement." Hubert Creekmore

+ — N Y Times p24 O 3 '48 470w

"Altogether, Mr. Lauritzen writes as a poet might, and with a degree of thoughtfulness which transforms a story of action and violence into a novel in which the philosophical overtones are always present. His eye for the beauty of the strange desert-and-canyon country is sharp, and his sense of the oneness of things is quick and sure. My only demurrer here is that I could wish he had an editor who might persuade him to write a less involved plot-novel and, instead, stick more closely to the moods and truths he knows so well how to evoke and clarify." J. H. Jackson

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 10 '49 650w

"Vivid in action, often caressing in mood, always manifestly movie material." C. M. Brown

Sat R of Lit 31:58 D 4 '48 140w

LAUTERBACH, ALBERT T. Economic security and individual freedom; can we have both? 178p $2.50 Cornell univ. press

338.91 Economic policy 48-7135

"Discussion of the insufficiency of our present economic system, and argument for regulation and control of national planning, some form of national planning and socialization. The author seems to believe that our free enterprise system is petering out, and should bend with a regulated economy rather than wait to break against communism or fascism." (Current Hist) Selected bibliography. Index.

"The book should be read, if not for its novelty, to appreciate the full flavor of its intellectual flexibility, and for the engaging brevity with which it disposes of the sacred cows that block the application of systematic intelligence to the solution of social problems. It also provides an excellent illustration of the blind spot in much planning literature, namely, the implicit assumption that mass popular acceptance of planning awaits only the giving to the people of a chance to stand up and be counted (presumably by proportional representation) on the question of whether they wish to be governed by those who believe in the proper kind of planning." Avery Leiserson

+ Am Pol Sci R 42:984 O '48 750w

"Professor Lauterbach's book is clear, concise, and informative, and represents contemporary economic analysis at its best. Though realistic in his analysis of current political and economic conditions, his outlook is that man through collective effort can be the master of his economic and political destiny." R. J. Harris

+ Ann Am Acad 260:227 N '48 480w

Canadian Forum 28:166 O '48 140w

Reviewed by Ernest Pisko

Christian Science Monitor p16 Jl 14 '48 160w

Current Hist 15:102 Ag '48 50w

"In this little book Professor Lauterbach is writing for the intelligent but innocent layman, a reader whose needs the author's experience at Sarah Lawrence College no doubt helps him to understand. Certainly he writes very well and most economists would approve both the spirit and the substance of his exposition as far as it goes. . . Nevertheless, Security and Freedom leaves me a bit uneasy." C. E. Ayres

+ — J Pol Econ 56:544 D '48 650w

LAVAL, PIERRE. Diary; with a pref. by Josée Laval [Eng title: Unpublished diary of Pierre Laval]. 240p il $3.50 Scribner

B or 92 France—Politics and government. World war, 1939-1945—France. Statesmen, French—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 48-8604

A series of answers to the charges brought against Pierre Laval at his trial in 1945. They were written while he was in prison and smuggled out, chapter by chapter, by his daughter, the Countess de Chambrun.

Booklist 45:87 N 1 '48

Reviewed by Irving Pflaum

Chicago Sun p9X O 31 '48 160w

LAVAL, PIERRE—Continued

"This book fills a thoughtful reader with sadness: First because of what the former French Premier, Pierre Laval, did and wrote. Also, because of what others did to him and wrote about him. Most of all, because of what Mr. Laval's daughter, Josée Laval (Countess R. de Chambrun), has written in the preface." R. H. Markham

Christian Science Monitor p14 O 5 '48 600w

Reviewed by R. M. Weaver

Commonweal 49:122 N 12 '48 750w

"All very plausible, and very dull. Valuable for the record."

Kirkus 16:331 Jl 1 '48 240w

"An appealing presentation, which will ultimately be judged, as he was content to leave it to be judged, by history. Recommended." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 73:1189 S 1 '48 130w

Reviewed by Albert Guérard

Nation 167:442 O 16 '48 1500w

"That is one trouble with the man. His hypocrisy is so staggering, his brazenness so overwhelming that these passionate pages which he wrote in his own defense leave one not only utterly unconvinced but revolted. His continual shouting about his patriotism, about his spirit of self-sacrifice, about his honor, about the purity of his motives, becomes nauseating long before one has reached the end of the book." William Shirer

— N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 S 26 '48 1500w

"Laval tries too hard and proves too much. He employs so many different types of argument that they often cancel each other out. In order to prove that he could help France, he has to claim that he had some influence with the Germans. But in order to show that he was not responsible for the reign of terror, he has to plead that he was practically powerless. . . A large part of the book, therefore, tends to fall of its own weight. Yet a nugget of truth can be extracted from these calculated contradictions." Theodore Draper

— + N Y Times p3 S 26 '48 1000w

"Laval's fluency of expression and ability in argument are very evident in the book, and they at least throw doubt on the character of the proceedings against him, during which, if one is to believe his testimony, he was deprived of all the private papers and records that would have helped him prepare his defense."

New Yorker 24:101 O 2 '48 260w

"The most moving passages in this book are those written by Premier Laval's daughter in her preface in which she passionately defends her notorious father. . . But the body of the volume, which is not a diary at all, but a complete self-defense . . . is not convincing." C. W. W.

— + San Francisco Chronicle p17 O 3 '48 450w

"It is, of course, invaluable evidence for the historian of one or two generations after ours, who may be able to treat Laval objectively. For us today, it is one more appeal to emotions already played upon—at least as far as the American public is concerned—to a point where sensitiveness and discernment find hard going. . . This attempt to revive the case of Laval is made, at an unhappy moment. . . We cannot sensibly anticipate the verdict of history, but it is certain, given human fondness for the underdog, that Laval will one day find a vindicating biographer who will lean heavily on this book. And even the final balance will no doubt be somewhat bent by these few pages." Crane Brinton

Sat R of Lit 31:10 O 2 '48 450w

LAVENDER, DAVID SIEVERT. Big Divide. 321p il $4.50 Doubleday

978.7 Frontier and pioneer life—West. Rocky mountains 48-11660

A narrative account, not always in chronological order, of the men who lived and died—explorers, soldiers, trappers, traders, prospectors, and others—in the lands lying east and west of the Continental Divide south of the Yellowstone. The time covered is from the days of the Spaniards to the present. Bibliography. Index.

Kirkus 16:542 O 1 '48 100w

"Well-written, fast-moving, entertaining, instructive. Should be popular in all libraries, and especially appealing to all lovers of the West." L. R. Etzkorn

+ Library J 73:1664 N 15 '48 110w

"Four Rocky Mountain centuries—from conquistadores to 'ski bums'—are inventoried in 'The Big Divide' by Mr. Lavender, a man who has so much of the West in his own lights and liver that he is more competent than most to re-experience, through research, how others of older times must have lived it." T. H. Ferril

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 D 12 '48 1200w

"Mr. Lavender undertook a tremendous task in this history of the Main Ranges. Necessarily, there are many omissions, but the book is a worth-while contribution to the literature of the West." H. B.

+ N Y Times p5 N 28 '48 430w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril

San Francisco Chronicle p2 N 28 '48 850w

"Briskly written, reflecting a lively curiosity about all sorts of things and a vigorous interest in all kinds of people, full of down-to-the-minute information about what is going on in the Rockies, Mr. Lavender's book is a handsome addition to our regional histories." D. L. Morgan

+ Sat R of Lit 32:29 Ja 15 '49 650w

LA VERGNE, YVONNE DE. Madame Elisabeth of France; tr. by Cornelia C. Craigie. 416p $4 Herder

B or 92 Elisabeth, princess of France 47-29452

"This book is a eulogy of Princess Elizabeth, the unmarried sister of King Louis XVI, whom the French revolutionists guillotined in 1794, fifteen months after her royal brother died on the scaffold and six months after his wife's, Queen Marie Antoinette, execution. The author . . . informs the reader that she drew the picture of the French princess from the book 'Une Grande Chrétienne; Madame Elisabeth de France (1765-1794),' written by Sister Marie Aimée of the Sacred Heart." Commonweal

"Charming biography. . . Miss Craigie has done her task so well that one does not advert to the fact that this is a translation."

+ Cath World 166:477 F '48 220w

"Yvonne de la Vergne's picture being a deeply religious one, it cannot be regarded solely from the historical point of view. She tells the story of a pious princess brought up in the principles of the ancien régime, who often thought of becoming a nun, but who decided to stand by her weak, well-meaning brother during the long years of vacillation, incompetence, and suffering. The most vivid part of the book is the description of the flight of the royal family to Varennes (June, 1791). . . The translation of the French text is excellent." J. M. Gosta

+ Commonweal 47:52 O 24 '47 330w

LAVRIN, JANKO. Pushkin and Russian literature. 226p $2 Macmillan

B or 92 Pushkin, Aleksandr Sergfeevich A48-9019

A portrait of Pushkin as seen through his works and against the background of the period in which he lived. Bibliography of Pushkin's works in recent English translations. Works on Pushkin in English. Index.

Reviewed by Eric Forbes-Boyd

Christian Science Monitor p10 F 7 '48 700w

"With all due respect for the greater difficulty of Professor Lavrin's task in dealing with a poet—that is to say an almost intranslatable author—who wrote in a language that few can read, one must record the first conspicuous failure in this series. . . Really Pushkin cannot be that dull.'" Asher Brynes

— Sat R of Lit 31:19 Jl 3 '48 130w
Time 51:116 My 17 '48 600w

LAW, WILLIAM. Serious call to a devout and holy life; with an introd. by J. V. Moldenhawer. 353p $2 Presbyterian bd.
248 Christian life 48-5973

A new edition of a famous example of Christian devotional literature, written by an eighteenth century non-juror (a minister of the Church of England who refused to take the oath of allegiance to the ruling house). The introduction, by the late Dr Moldenhawer, is a highly appreciative account of William Law and his work.

Reviewed by C. D. Brodhead
Christian Century 65:1302 D 1 '48 370w

"For mystics and those interested in mysticism whether protestant or Catholic, this will be an invaluable volume."
+ Kirkus 16:507 O 1 '48 130w

"Contending that the spirit of devotion is 'an improvable talent of the mind,' Law purposed to set down in plain words just how this talent might be cultivated. But his plain words were instinct with the power of a master stylist, and in giving his instruction he held up a mirror to mankind—a mirror into which no one can look, be he Christian or not, without recognizing in the glass the darkest features of his own image. It is because of these facts that 'A Serious Call' is truly great." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 31:24 Ap 24 '48 220w

LAWLER, EDMUND GRIFFIN. Baby care from birth to birthday. 406p il $3.95 Follett
649.1 Infants—Care and hygiene Med48-641

"This book on infant care during the first year has been written for mothers by a pediatrician as a supplement to a physician's advice." (J Home Econ) The material is divided into seven sections: The baby's needs; Feeding the baby; Month-by-month development of the baby; Care of the premature baby; Diseases and disorders; Contagious and infectious diseases; Emergency treatment and first aid. Index.

Booklist 44:332 Je 1 '48

"Specific directions regarding the care of an infant are presented clearly and in detail. The text is supplemented with many excellent pictures and an index. . . A mother would need to supplement this book with others for an adequate understanding of the developmental progress of her baby, of fundamentals that should be observed in planning his regime, and of principles underlying his care." M. E. Breckenridge
J Home Econ 40:269 My '48 170w
School & Society 67:287 Ap 10 '48 20w

LAWRENCE, DAVID HERBERT. Selected poems; with an introd. by Kenneth Rexroth. (New classics ser) 148p $1.50 New directions
821 48-5258

A collection of some of Lawrence's poems from his early Georgian countryside poetry, through the 'mother,' dialect, and love poems to his free verse, epigrams, and death poems. There is a critical introduction by the editor and a chronology of some of the main events of Lawrence's life.

"This latest addition to Laughlin's worthy New Classics Series is erotically and mystically prefaced by the poet Kenneth Rexroth. . . After 20 years, Lawrence's poems wear well, express an emotionally fouled-up genius who needs no by-the-day interpreters." Leo Kennedy
+ — Chicago Sun p36 F 16 '48 150w

" 'Selected Poems' may surprise some readers who are not aware how notable the quality of Lawrence's poetry was or how much of it he wrote at his best."
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 Mr 21 '48 50w

"The selection is a good one and the editor's introduction is very challenging. One's only complaint is that it is challenging in the wrong way. Mr. Rexroth has evidently remained the complete Lawrence devotee. . . His essay is an inside job, which is the last kind of job that Lawrence requires at this time. Yet Mr. Rexroth is very good when he is satisfied to talk particulars: Lawrence's style as a poet, his workmanship, his relation to the Georgian and imagist schools." F. W. Dupee
+ — N Y Times p4 Mr 7 '48 900w

"Not enough poems from 'Pansies' appear in the present volume. Mr. Rexroth has, however, on the whole done his sampling with a sense of proportion." Louise Bogan
New Yorker 24:110 Mr 20 '48 800w

"A small and handsome edition of Lawrence's small and handsome poems." Alfred Kay
+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 F 8 '48 150w

Reviewed by J. S. Untermeyer
Sat R of Lit 31:19 Mr 20 '48 800w

LAWRENCE, ISABELLE. Theft of the golden ring; a tale of Rome and treasure; il. by Charles V. John. 309p $2.50 Bobbs
48-6472

A continuation of The Gift of the Golden Cup [Book Review Digest 1946]. Atia is now a young Roman matron, but she and her brother Gaius are still apt to be involved in any excitement. The Catiline conspiracy, the reappearance of the pirate captain from the earlier book, and a search for treasure, are among the activities in this story for older boys and girls.

"The story seems overly long and the writing is not exceptional but, as in the first book, the author has recreated a period of ancient history and given it a modern feeling; characters are lifelike and likable, and the home life, customs, and government at the time of Julius Caesar and Cicero are vividly portrayed."
Booklist 44:321 My 15 '48

" 'The Theft of the Golden Ring' makes life in ancient Rome as vivid as life in modern America." Martha King
+ Chicago Sun Jl 10 '48 160w

Reviewed by H. F. Griswold
Christian Science Monitor p13 O 14 '48 180w

"Gives an excellent picture of social and political life in Rome at the time of Julius Caesar. . . Recommended for older boys and girls." C. W. Field
+ Library J 73:825 My 15 '48 80w

"The historical background is presented with meticulous accuracy, as are all the details of everyday living. As in the former book, the characters are real human beings, the plot moves with never a halt for scholarly exposition, and yet there is more solid information than in many a textbook. . . A thoroughly worth-while book for teen-agers." N. B. Baker
+ N Y Times p29 My 23 '48 190w

"It is rather remarkable that so much excitement and adventure can be so well mixed with interesting and authentic details of the Roman civilization. Boys and girls who read this book will gain sympathy and understanding with the people of yesteryear, and a feeling that they had much in common with the people of today." R. A. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 31:36 Ag 14 '48 230w

LAWRENCE, JOSEPHINE (MRS ARTHUR PLATZ). Pleasant morning light. (Whittlesey house publication) 348p $3 McGraw 48-6165

The cousins Paulie, Hanna and Stacy were all unmarried and in their middle twenties when they decided something must be done.

LAWRENCE, JOSEPHINE—Continued
The stories of the three marriages which the girls made out of desperation are chronicled in this novel of the present day United States.

Booklist 44:268 Ap 1 '48

Reviewed by M. W. Stoer
Christian Science Monitor p14 My 1 '48 700w

"Once again, a reliable representation of the middle class and a common problem. . . The assurance, the competence, the recognizability of theme . . . guarantees a market for this if one that is largely rentals, solely feminine.."
+ Kirkus 16:59 F 1 '48 200w

"Miss Lawrence's reportorial gifts are as searching and acute in this, her thirteenth novel, as in its successful predecessors. Whether she is writing about the old or the young, she has the capacity to pick a theme that strikes home to millions and to clothe it in flesh and blood, with the lineaments and accents of people one jostles in the subway or rubs elbows with at the delicatessen. Here, as in her earliest books, she is especially concerned with the pressure that one generation lays upon another. With no pretense of profundity, her novels reflect with amazing straightforwardness and acuity the business of living with which, at a given time, Americans are concerned." Mary Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ap 4 '48 360w

"The tired cliché 'little people' takes on a new, fresh meaning when applied to a Josephine Lawrence cast. 'The Pleasant Morning Light' teems with examples of the species, by the swarming dozen. It's a little like studying life through the wrong end of a telescope, but the details are no less flawless—and, no less terrifying." James MacBride
N Y Times p19 My 16 '48 500w

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Je 20 '48 200w

"It's a little difficult to swallow the major premise of this lively novel. I, for one, have been fortunate in knowing many unmarried women who are neither neurotic nor feeble-minded, but who have attained considerable worldly success. In fact, there is a whole school of thought built on the idea that she travels fastest who travels alone. . . Maybe I'm hardhearted, but I can't break down and weep over the fates of three goodlooking, capable young women who are living lives of single blessedness, and never wash a dish or bake a potato. Yet Josephine Lawrence does make them credible and real." Kenneth Horan
— + Sat R of Lit 31:24 Ag 21 '48 470w

LAWRENCE, MRS MILDRED. Peachtree island; il. by Mary Stevens. 224p $2.25 Harcourt 48-9018

When Cissie was nine years old Aunt Margaret went to England and Cissie was sent to spend a year with Uncle Eben on Peachtree Island in Lake Erie. Uncle Eben had a peach orchard and during the year Cissie proved herself "as good as a boy" in helping with every part of the work from pruning and spraying to harvesting, so that Uncle Eben, when Aunt Margaret came back, decided to keep Cissie forever.

Booklist 45:91 N 1 '48

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 168:222 D '48 50w

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun N 6 '48 140w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p12 Ja 11 '49 280w

Churchman 162:17 N 15 '48 20w

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '48

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:39 Ja '49 80w

"A warm and friendly book, with authentic materials. The line drawings by Mary Stevens are uneven, but adequate."
+ Kirkus 16:528 O 1 '48 100w

"Heart-warming story of a little orphan who longs to belong somewhere instead of being passed from one aunt to another. Her heroic effort to convince her uncle that she is just as good as a boy makes enjoyable and, at times, humorous reading." Harriet Morrison
+ Library J 74:133 Ja 15 '49 100w

"Skilfully blending human interest with information, this story makes good reading for girls of 7 to 11 years." H. K. L.
+ N Y Times p57 N 14 '48 140w

"A story with a new background, which is written with freshness and humor."
+ New Yorker 24:134 D 11 '48 100w

"There is a warmth, a naturalness about this story that make it exceptional."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:28 N 13 '48 60w

Springf'd Republican p12C D 12 '48 100w

Wis Lib Bul 45:15 Ja '49

LAWSHE, CHARLES HUBERT. Principles of personnel testing. 227p $3.50 McGraw 658.3 Ability—Testing. Employment management 48-6757

"Based on material used in the Purdue Industrial Personnel Testing Institute. Practical treatment of the accepted procedure for selecting, validating and using personnel tests in business and industrial situations. Presents simply the various types of tests and cites examples of useful results with an appraisal of tests. Emphasis is on procedure rather than theory." (Library J) Index.

Library J 73:1095 Ag '48 70w

"This reviewer would have welcomed additional validation from other sources. . . However, Dr. Lawshe has throughout the text fulfilled his stated objective—that of providing a volume which should prove useful to personnel administrators and for training those who eventually will administer testing programs." F. E. Hewitt
+ — Management R 37:653 D '48 330w

School & Society 67:327 Ap 24 '48 20w

LAWSON, ROBERT. Robbut; a tale of tails [il. by Robert Lawson]. 94p $2.50 Viking 48-10105

Robbut, the Rabbit, was definitely dissatisfied with his tail, and with the help of the Little Old Man he tried out a variety of other tails. A cat's tail, a snake's tail, and a fox tail, each proved progressively less and less desirable from the standpoint of a rabbit, so finally Robbut gladly went back to his own tail.

Booklist 45:91 N 1 '48

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 168:221 D '48 50w

"Second string Lawson."
— Kirkus 16:397 Ag 15 '48 140w

"Recommended for all libraries." A. B. Weber
+ Library J 73:1745 D 1 '48 110w

"Delightful drawings show the rabbit in all his adventures, and not to be missed are the end papers with side elevations of tails of various kinds, pointing up the advantages of each." I. E.
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 N 14 '48 190w

"In beauty of design and illustration this book compares very favorably with the author's 'Rabbit Hill,' but the story is less interesting. In this book there are few characters and the story becomes slightly monotonous." P. F.
+ — N Y Times p60 N 14 '48 100w

New Yorker 24:129 D 11 '48 80w

Reviewed by M. M. Moses
San Francisco Chronicle p19 N 28 '48 120w

"This is a very funny story. It is as lovable and appealing as 'Rabbit Hill.' It is even funnier than 'Mr. Twigg's Mistake.' . . These drawings are endlessly fascinating. The 'personality' that Robert Lawson gives Robbut is something to marvel at—and be thankful for."

+ Sat R of Lit 31:24 N 13 '48 340w

LAWTON, JOHN STEWART. Conflict in Christology; a study of British and American Christology from 1889-1914. 331p $3.75 Macmillan

232 Jesus Christ

"The problem is approached, first, through a brief discussion of early Christology, with special reference to the Alexandrine and Antiochene types and their comprehension, at least verbally, within the Chalcedonian formula; and second, through a consideration of those factors, in particular the new science, the new biblical criticism and the new historicism, which in the third quarter of the nineteenth century led even devout Christian men to a serious questioning not merely of the Chalcedonian formula but of the actuality of the claims concerning Christ which motivated the formula. Lawton does not ignore the 'radicalism' which grew out of this situation. But his chief interest is not in the 'conflict' between this and 'traditionalism' so much as it is in that between 'liberalism' and 'conservatism.' . . Lawton begins his study with 1889 because that was the date of the publication of Lux Mundi, and he rightly regards this volume as of epochal significance." Christian Century

"There are many grave omissions in the book, perhaps inevitably. These are especially notable as respects American theologians. One would hardly mind this were it not for the inclusion of the term 'American' in the subtitle. . . A complaint is also due for the annoying confusion in the references on pages 135-39. W. N. Clarke could hardly carry all the literary weight that is here laid upon him! . . These blemishes, however, do not detract from the value of the work as a whole. Lawton has written an informing chapter in the development of modern christological thought." Edwin Lewis
+ — Christian Century 64:1554 D 17 '47 900w

"This study is the outcome of wide and intelligent reading. . . The book is not easy reading, but of course throughout the topics are difficult of apprehension. The material is not very well arranged, the sequence of the chapters not being always obvious, and there is a good deal of unnecessary repetition. The author has a disconcerting habit of beginning the discussion of a subject, and then saying that it will be taken up again in a later chapter, the result being a constant postponing of criticism of what we have got, in view of what we are about to get—a sort of unconsciously defensive postponing of judgment. There are occasional outbursts into unnecessarily severe language, sometimes slightly unfair, as when he accuses of irreverence a school of thought which had a most profound and elevating influence at the turn of the century, and suggests that the opinions of a leading Anglican divine have consequences which 'verge on the theologically obscene.' But as a rule the verdicts passed are calm and judicial." W. S. Urquhart
Hibbert J 46:91 O '47 1650w

Reviewed by D. E. Roberts
J Religion 28:57 Ja '48 750w

LAY, BEIRNE, and BARTLETT, SY. Twelve o'clock high! 274p $2.75 Harper

48-6772

Novel about an American officer who takes over a bomber group in England which has had exceptionally bad luck. Brigadier General Savage changed all that with pep talks and personal leadership.

Booklist 44:352 Je 15 '48

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun Je 8 '48 380w
Cleveland Open Shelf p12 My '48
Kirkus 16:124 Mr 1 '48 120w

"In spite of unoriginal characters, this story is tremendously exciting. Perhaps it's because the authors don't hesitate to pull out every stop and jerk every tear. Perhaps its because their details are explicit and authentic. Or maybe it's because anything about combat flying is exciting to begin with. Though you will undoubtedly wince at cliches and banal relationships, you will certainly read avidly every page of this novel." Joanna Spencer
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 My 23 '48 400w

"Fundamentally, this is the same story that was related several months ago in a novel called 'The Gesture,' by John Cobb. . . Literary honors go to Mr. Cobb, but the financial glories go to Mr. Lay and Mr. Bartlett, who have already sold their version of the tale to Twentieth Century-Fox."
New Yorker 24:107 My 8 '48 140w

Reviewed by N. L. Rothman
Sat R of Lit 31:11 Je 26 '48 600w
Time 51:96 My 3 '48 330w

LAY, MARGARET REBECCA. Thornblossoms. 248p $2.75 Rinehart

48-7552

Novel of Jon Thornblossom's struggle to decide which woman he wanted—China Linfield, his ex-sweetheart recently widowed, or Sal Dawson, his lusty renter. The scene is the red clay country of Georgia in 1904.

"Warning—Public Libraries."
Kirkus 16:244 My 15 '48 250w

"This reviewer delighted in reading such sturdy poetic prose, skilfully tuned to scene, time and people. Heartily recommended for small libraries." F. A. Boyle
+ Library J 73:945 Je 15 '48 100w
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 S 12 '48 90w
N Y Times p15 Jl 25 '48 140w

LEA, FANNY HEASLIP. Devil within. 247p $2.75 Dodd

48-5577

The story of Day Tennant's two marriages. Infidelity on the part of her husband led to the breakdown of her first marriage; Day's jealousy nearly ended her second.

Booklist 44:234 Mr 1 '48

"For people who like popular women's magazine type fiction, this will wile away the time; but for those who like something to stimulate thinking, this is not the book. Plenty of love interest, light and fast moving." Anne Whitmore
Library J 73:39 Ja 1 '48 70w

LEACH, WILLIAM HERMAN. Protestant church building; planning, financing, designing. 188p il $3 Abingdon-Cokesbury

726.5 Church architecture 48-6223

"A book for the average church which is considering a new building or remodeling an old one. Discusses the site, financing, campaigning for funds, duties of the building committee, designing with a view to function, mechanical equipment, and furnishings." (Booklist) There is a chapter on the parsonage. Glossary. Bibliography. Indexes.

Booklist 44:265 Ap 1 '48

"In the chapters on building the church, the discussion of historic styles is much too sketchy, and it closes with the mere suggestion that 'there is a definite departure from the designing of the past.' The illustrations, of which there are many, present no examples of really good architecture which does express the modern spirit. Committees will find many helpful suggestions on floor-plan arrangements as they deal with efficiency for offices and multi-purpose rooms. The paragraphs on heating and lighting are altogether helpful, and there is a worthy insistence that worship rooms be so designed and arranged as to add dignity and meaning to the services of the church. The bibliography is a mute and discouraging testimony to the fact that there are precious few substantial printed helps for those engaged in building churches today." F. D. Elmer

LEACH, W. H.—Continued

+ — Christian Century 65:546 Je 2 '48 700w

"The editor of Church Management has given us a helpful guide to those who contemplate the building of churches. It is well illustrated, and covers the entire process in less than two hundred pages, all the way from the choice of a site and the setting up of a financial campaign to the installation of an organ." W. L. Caswell

+ Churchman 162:15 My 15 '48 110w

"The chief value of this book is its practicality. It covers a multitude of technical matters, many of them often forgotten until too late to do the right thing." Von Ogden Vogt

+ Crozer Q 25:285 Jl '48 300w

LEAF, EARL. Isles of rhythm; il. by [the author]. 211p $5 Barnes, A. S.

793.3 Dancing—Folk and national dances. West Indies—Description and travel

48-2996

Study in picture and prose describing the dances of the Caribbean islands.

Christian Science Monitor p14 D 2 '48 210w

"Hampered in his research by resentment and suspicion, by regulations of police and church, [the author] still managed to collect an enormous amount of first hand material, and to photograph the dancers in action."

+ Kirkus 16:250 My 15 '48 140w

"The best illustrated volume on the dances of the Caribbean yet issued. . . Recommended for dance, theatre and West Indian collections." George Freedley

+ Library J 73:948 Je 15 '48 50w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p49 D 5 '48 190w

Reviewed by Cecil Smith
N Y Times p14 Jl 18 '48 500w

"While Mr. Leaf writes a good deal about the music and dances, he writes a good deal more about the problems besetting a photographer of those dances. His pictures are remarkable. . . Unfortunately like the fisherman who brags of the one that got away, Mr. Leaf frequently describes dances that he was for various and good reasons unable to photograph. The reader feels he is being gypped." W. R. W.

— + San Francisco Chronicle p20 Jl 18 '48 160w

Sat R of Lit 31:39 O 30 '48 100w

"Informative, fascinating, and at times shocking, it is a close-up of another world, an adventure into the esoteric, where dancing is not always a fine art but vigorously vital and full blooded in its expression." Victor Prahl
Springf'd Republican p10B Je 27 '48 180w

LEAF, MUNRO. Boo, who used to be scared of the dark; il. by Frances Tipton Hunter. [40p] $1.50 Random house

48-11365

Picture book showing how Alexander, the cat, teaches Boo to overcome his fear of the dark. For ages 4-7.

Booklist 45:144 D 15 '48

Kirkus 16:570 N 1 '48 120w

"Recommended." Elizabeth Hodges

+ Library J 73:1826 D 15 '48 70w

"Both the story and the pictures will amuse small children as well as contribute to the relief of their anxiety. Parents, too, will have reason to be grateful to Mr. Leaf for meeting this universal problem on a child's own terms. The appealing pictures in color and black-and-white are drawn with photographic realism and have been beautifully reproduced." H. A. Masten

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 N 28 '48 150w

LEAF, MUNRO. Sam and the Superdroop; story and pictures by [the author]. 122p $1.50 Viking

48-10140

A book for boys and girls poking fun at the comic books and suggesting an alternative.

Booklist 45:124 D 1 '48

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p12 D 14 '48 210w

Commonweal 49:148 N 19 '48 40w

Kirkus 16:364 Ag 1 '48 180w

Reviewed by M. B. Snow
Library J 74:66 Ja 1 '49 70w

"Up to now comics have been like the weather: everybody complains about it but nobody does anything. Now it has been done. In his funniest story Munro Leaf has enlisted the one force that can really deal with the comics—the sturdy common sense lurking somewhere in the make-up of every small boy." M. L. B.

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 N 14 '48 450w

"Any boy or girl who may be taking the comics a little seriously will certainly take them less so after reading this, even if he should miss some of the delightful satire. Both story and pictures are grand fun for the whole family." Frances Smith

+ N Y Times p4 N 14 '48 140w

Wis Lib Bul 45:16 Ja '49

LEAR HEAP, WINIFRED. Causeway. 347p $3.50 Macmillan

48-8423

Novel of life in one small corner of London in the early days of the blitz. The chief characters are an aging, mad clergyman, his daughter, the curate, and the other members of the household. The heroine is in her late thirties and in love with a man many years her junior. It takes the coming of the war to show her that the man she really loves is more nearly her own age.

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p11 N 24 '48 180w

"Not essential—just amusing." K. T. Willis
Library J 73:1274 S 15 '48 40w

"Miss Lear does not belong quite to the Margery Sharp, Angela Thirkell school in that her story is not merely a contrived framework for wit and enjoyment. She writes with real humanity and maturity about this not-so-young heroine and her problems. But wit is not lacking either. It adds grace and irony to what is an extremely pleasant novel." Anne Brooks

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 S 26 '48 450w

"Though the author has a flair for the light and barbed shaft, she shows a real understanding as well for the pathetic, tragic weaknesses that torment the Davinas and Ricks of this world." Andrea Parke

+ N Y Times p34 O 24 '48 230w

"Miss Lear's story is rich with allusions, a little extra treat for those who can enjoy them. You'll have gathered that the elements of fancy and caprice enter in, but Miss Lear never lets 'the whimsy business' get out of hand. Her characters are so real that they seem to glow and give out a radiance. If you read 'The Causeway,' you'll be on the lookout for more of Winifred Lear." J. V.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 O 17 '48 450w

"Miss Lear shows that she is capable of doing for the little Brooklyns of Britain what Betty Smith has done for the perennially poor in the city of the hardy tree. But the development of the impossible romance between Davina and Toby is not quite so successful. Unfortunately, 'The Causeway' supplies a great anticlimax in character development. . . Miss Lear was far more interested in getting her two old maids of assorted sexes ready for their happy ending than in maintaining the initial pace set by the wonderful mad rector." Gordden Link

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:27 S 18 '48 410w

"The age theme is important in the book, although the reader's impression is likely to be that all these characters are too young and bright to be true. . . Miss Lear is more successful with her minor characters, and that of the heroine's father, a mad rector, lifts the book out of mediocrity." Olivia Manning

+ — Spec 180:776 Je 25 '48 110w

Times [London] Lit Sup p385 Jl 10 '48 240w

LEAVIS, FRANK RAYMOND. Revaluation: tradition and development in English poetry. 275p $3.75 Stewart

821.09 English poetry—History and criticism 47-12094

Critical study of the main schools of English poetry and their development during the 17th, 18th, and 19th centuries. The author, who is lecturer in English at Downing college, Cambridge university, gives special attention to Milton, Pope, the poets of the Augustan tradition, Wordsworth, Shelley, and Keats. No index.

Reviewed by John Farrelly
New Repub 118:26 F 16 '48 1050w

"Excepting a few notable lapses and cavalier judgments, Mr. Leavis is sensitive enough, but he lacks a critical language. He is so afraid of laboring a point that he often neglects to make it at all. His method is to anthologize. . . A book of revaluations depends for its strength either on critical principles consistently applied, or on powerful individual impressions. Mr. Leavis is on the side of the angels, but he neither thinks consistently as a critic, nor convincingly as an individual." D. A. Stauffer

N Y Times p4 D 21 '47 1050w

Reviewed by Hayden Carruth
Poetry 72:41 Ap '48 850w

"It is the chief virtue of Mr. Leavis's criticism that he makes his points directly and with no beating around the bush. In terse, economical style he says many things about English poetry which have been said before but seldom said so cogently. His ample quotations are well chosen, so that much of his comment is happily concrete." H. W. Wells

+ Sat R of Lit 31:17 F 7 '48 400w

LECOMTE DU NOUY, PIERRE. Road to reason; tr. and ed. by Mary Lecomte du Noüy. 254p $3.50 Longmans

501 Religion and science. Physics—Philosophy 48-9498

"The author of 'Human Destiny' died, having a good reason to believe that he had changed the outlook of countless human beings. He had told them, as his distinguished predecessor Pascal had informed others in his day, that possibly 'science' would turn out to be not a variation on a theme by Montaigne but a page in the prayer-book. This new essay . . . was, as a matter of fact, written earlier. It mirrors a distinguished scientist's groping toward his final beliefs. Du Noüy thought he saw that evolution, most revealing of the doctrines proclaimed by modern science, could not possibly be accounted for as a sort of wedding between matter and the laws of chance." (Sat R of Lit) Index.

Booklist 45:152 Ja 1 '49

"While the Catholic will part company here and there with the author in some of his metaphysical and epistemological theories, he will not fail to recognize a mind profoundly honest and reverent, searching for the philosophical implications of the new findings of science in both the inanimate and the animate worlds. The reader will find in this volume many of the philosophical leanings and threads of thought which led Du Noüy back to the Church. We are indebted to his widow for a clear and readable translation of a scholarly and technical work that will prove tough going for even graduate students and professional philosophers, but will be worth the effort." J. A. O'Brien

+ Cath World 168:412 F '49 800w

Reviewed by W. E. Garrison
+ Christian Century 66:80 Ja 19 '49 1150w

Reviewed by H. W. Steiger
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ja 20 '49 900w

"This is a noble book; every intelligent man owes it to himself to read it." John Cournos

+ Commonweal 49:355 Ja 14 '49 650w

"Here is an 'idea book' which provides challenge and consolation. On du Nouy's name, its sales potential is great. But it's no tabloid panacea for lazy readers."

+ Kirkus 16:608 N 15 '48 310w

"It was written by a great man for humanity. 'The Road to Reason' was written by a man who was still a scientist." Gerald Wendt

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 N 28 '48 550w

"There is no question that du Nouy's argument will profoundly impress a world which needs to be told that it has an immortal soul, that this soul is the result of a biological evolution to which purpose and direction have been given by a divine intelligence, and that salvation lies in our hands if we would only listen to our own spiritual admonitions and those that are set down in religion." Waldemar Kaempffert

+ N Y Times p5 N 21 '48 1700w

Reviewed by G. N. Shuster
Sat R of Lit 31:26 D 4 '48 900w

School & Society 68:414 D 11 '48 80w

LE CORBUSIER, pseud. See Jeanneret-Gris, C. E.

LEE, HARRY. Sir and brother. 302p $3 Appleton

48-8669

"The main character of the novel is Mark Shearer, vice president of the (unnamed) union which is about to call a strike against the powerful Consolidated Steel. In the new contract which is being negotiated, he has inserted Section Fourteen, which provides that the workers' wages be computed from the corporation's profits and the cost of living. The result of Shearer's insistence and of the corporation's refusal is the strike. Along with this external struggle, Shearer is also engaged within his union in a fight against the Communist faction which is trying to seize control." Sat R of Lit

---

Booklist 45:192 F 1 '49

"Working of a labor union in full operation supplies a measure of interest as does also the character of the labor leader, but the story of his love affair with a married woman is frank stuff, patently dragged in for sales purposes and contributing in no way either to the depth of the story or the movement of the drama."

— + Kirkus 16:409 Ag 15 '48 140w

"Mr. Lee has tried hard to find parts for his novel that were not factory made, but in spite of his efforts he has produced a piece of literary mechanical construction. This defect is more emphasized than concealed by the narrative devices and tortured techniques the author has used to convey his characters, their thoughts and actions, to the reader." Mark Saxton

— N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p26 O 17 '48 280w

Reviewed by Herbert Mitgang
N Y Times p50 N 14 '48 410w

"This, the third of Mr. Lee's novels, is an extraordinarily good book, significant in conception, successful in execution." Robert Halsband

+ Sat R of Lit 31:19 O 16 '48 650w

LEE, REUBEN. Electronic transformers and circuits. 282p il $4.50 Wiley

621.38 Electronic transformers 47-11546

"Transformers are important components of electric circuits, yet many electronics engineers pay little attention to their design. This work has been written for engineers already engaged in the design of electronics apparatus and for advanced engineering students preparing for such work. It offers a treatment of the principles of electronic transformer design and, also, of the relationships between transformer characteristics and the behavior of the circuit of which the transformer is a part. Various types of electronic transformers, such as amplifier, higher frequency, pulse and video, are discussed. Reactors and rectifiers also are treated. The author is an Advisory Engineer for the Westinghouse Electric Corporation." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 72:1039 Jl '47 20w

N Y New Tech Bks 32:75 O '47

"The design and application of transformers and inductors incorporated in the diverse forms of modern high-frequency apparatus are comprehensively described in this volume. Although the treatment throughout is rigorous, the mathematical analysis is simple and direct. . . The book is addressed to the electronic engineer engaged in the design of special devices or the improvement of existing ones which will operate only with transformers constructed for a particular purpose."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:109 Mr '48 260w

LEE, TINA. How to make dolls and doll houses; pictures by Manning Lee. 64p $2.25 Doubleday

649.55 Dolls. Doll houses 48-9067

Suggestions for making several kinds of dolls—jersey dolls, peanut dolls, pipe-cleaner dolls, and a whole family of rag dolls. Second part of the book tells how to make doll houses and furniture. Profusely illustrated with pictures of finished products as well as diagrams and patterns. Index.

Booklist 45:109 N 15 '48

"A fine gift for a small convalescent which will continue to give pleasure long after she is well again." J. D. L.
+ Horn Bk 24:467 N '48 50w

"An excellent handicraft book."
+ Kirkus 16:481 S 15 '48 160w

"Recommended for ages 8-12." Judith Stevenson
+ Library J 73:1746 D 1 '48 80w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ja 30 '49 270w

Sat R of Lit 31:47 N 13 '48 30w

Wis Lib Bul 44:215 D '48

LEEMING, JOSEPH. Money-making hobbies. 194p il $2.69 Lippincott

680 Arts and crafts. Hobbies 48-8229

" 'Over 100 easy ways to earn extra money' in handicraft hobbies, hobbies for housewives, nature hobbies, entertainment hobbies, miscellaneous hobbies such as postage stamps, barter bureau, hobby exchange, outlined clearly and studded with anecdotes and many sensible suggestions as to markets. Subject-headed bibliography of over 250 books and periodicals covers handwork in felt, chair seat weaving, jewelry, knitting, crocheting, metalcraft, model making, pottery, taxidermy, woodworking, plastics, rugs. Indexed." Library J

Booklist 45:60 O 15 '48

"Valuable addition to small library collections. Better duplicate where you can." F. A. Boyle
+ Library J 73:1023 Jl '48 100w

Springf'd Republican p7B S 19 '48 170w

LEEMING, JOSEPH. More fun with magic. 89p il $2.50 Lippincott

793.8 Conjuring 48-3373

A collection of "easy-to-do" tricks, some new, some old with a new twist, all employing only inexpensive apparatus and paraphernalia that can be made at home.

Booklist 45:16 S 1 '48

Reviewed by H. F. Griswold
Christian Science Monitor p6 N 11 '48 240w

"Recommended for ages 8-12." Judith Stevenson
+ Library J 73:1098 Ag '48 50w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ja 30 '49 220w

Sat R of Lit 31:47 N 13 '48 20w

LEES-MILNE, JAMES. Age of Adam. 184p il $6 B. T. Batsford, ltd, 122 E. 55th st, N.Y. 22

B or 92 Adam, Robert. Adam family. Architecture, English 48-3247

An attempt to "show of what the work of Robert Adam and his three brothers really consisted, from what sources it was derived, what contemporary architects were affected by it, and what its influence was overseas. Using information from letters, diaries and records of the times, some of it hitherto unpublished, Mr. Lees-Milne traces the biographies of the Brothers Adam from their beginnings in Scotland to their eventual position as the most fashionable and influential architects and designers in Britain." (Pref) Index.

" 'The Age of Adam' is as charming as it is informative." Wayne Andrews
+ Commonweal 48:165 My 28 '48 750w

"Fascinating reading for anyone who loves eighteenth-century England. Suave writing, excellent and plentiful illustrations; recommended." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 73:1028 Jl '48 90w

Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 16 '48 190w

Reviewed by J. M. Richards
New Statesman & Nation 35:398 My 15 '48 800w

Reviewed by A. E. Richardson
Spec 180:564 My 7 '48 650w

"James Lees-Milne has succeeded very well. The excellent title exactly fits the intention and the result. . . Here is the whole canvas, with Robert Adam himself firmly and gloriously enthroned as its central figure. The scope of the book and its construction and general handling are excellent. The manner of writing is not quite so good for the author's style is rarely clear and never vivid, and, especially in the earlier chapters, metaphors knock each other about in a sad way. And the defects of style go a little deeper. . . The book is, in short, not such as to satisfy the increasingly exacting standards of art-historians, with their grimly surgical passion for the diagnosis of mind through style. There, no doubt, is a limitation which the author would not unwillingly accept; and, having defined it, one can but welcome the book as one which will be of pleasure and use to many, art-historians not excluded."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p204 Ap 10 '48 3350w

LEESON, SPENCER. Public schools question; and other essays on subjects connected with secondary education. 115p $2 Longmans

373.42 Education, Secondary. Public schools (endowed)—England

Four essays on secondary education in England. Contents: The public schools question, 1938 to 1947 [a review of the proposals of the Fleming committee]; The Education act, 1944, and the grammar schools; Classics and history in a sixth form; "Christianity and boys" [a criticism of a pamphlet written by P. T. Freeman in 1944].

"The four essays in this book are written with the authority of one who has been head master of two of our greatest schools. . . Perhaps the first of his essays, devoted to the independent boarding schools, is the most valuable, if only for the unusual clarity, accuracy, and fairness with which the position is stated." Eric James

Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 27 '48 430w

School & Society 67:464 Je 19 '48 10w

"This is a tactful little book. Its four essays deal with the most controversial questions in a way that should pain no one. Canon Leeson's most lucid exposition of the anxiety felt in grammar schools under public authorities is sufficiently forthright to win gratitude from all who care for academic education. So is his defence of the Direct Grant grammar schools. Had he gone on to enquire how much the attack on both sorts of school arises from modern-school jealousies, or from a greed for power in some local politicians and administrators, he would have spoilt the friendly and objective atmosphere of his book. . . This method has both merits and defects; hints of the less savoury side of our educational system are there for the observant, but the author's smoothly flowing reticence sometimes gives one the feeling that we are not being shown the mainspring." R. B. Graham

Spec 180:532 Ap 30 '48 650w

LEET, LEWIS DON. Causes of catastrophe; earthquake, volcanoes, tidal waves and hurricanes. (Whittlesey house publication) 232p il $3 McGraw

551 Hurricanes. Earthquakes. Volcanoes. Tidal waves. 48-792

A treatise on the causes of natural catastrophes such as hurricanes, earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and tidal waves. The author is a Harvard seismologist. The explanations are accompanied by pictures and diagrams, and the text deflates some of the myths connected with catastrophes. Index.

Booklist 44:363 Jl 1 '48

Cleveland Open Shelf p9 My '48

Kirkus 15:640 N 15 '47 160w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 73:714 My 1 '48 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:5 Ja '48

"It is a particular tribute to Dr. Leet's power of exposition that, as he unfolds to view the dynamics of mountain making and typhoon, the grandeur of the physical spectacle, as it properly should be, is enhanced by the understanding of it, rather than falsely diminished, as it so easily might be by a writer of poorer grasp." E. B. Garside

+ N Y Times p16 Ap 11 '48 500w

"A simply written and engrossing treatise."

+ New Yorker 23:86 F 14 '48 130w

"Mr. Leet writes with bounce and vigor and brings to his discussion a formidable weight of experience and knowledge. When a scientist can combine these qualities—well, his book is bound to make fine reading. This book is all of that, and the millions of humans who have asked 'Why?' when the earth trembles, or the wind blows hard, or the waves of the ocean mysteriously roll, will take pleasure in discovering the answers in terms they can understand." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 19 '48 900w

"Awarded a publisher's prize, selected by two small but presumably discriminating book clubs, this volume is definitely pushed forward as an outstanding example of what our publishers and scientists can do at the essential work of presenting science to the intelligent public. . . Actually, however, although the book has many good qualities, I find it far from attaining any very high level. First of all, the title misleadingly suggests that the book covers a great deal more than it really does. . . Moreover, the single chapter on hurricanes is so brief as to seem scarcely more than an afterthought, and nearly half of its space is devoted (the author is a resident of Massachusetts) to the two recent New England hurricanes." G. R. Stewart

Sat R of Lit 31:24 My 22 '48 550w

LEFEBVRE, GEORGES. Coming of the French revolution; tr. by R. R. Palmer. 233p $3 Princeton univ. press

944.04 France—History—Revolution 48-5128

"A history of the year 1789 in France, by one of the great authorities on the French Revolution." New Yorker

---

Reviewed by B. F. Hyslop

Am Hist R 53:808 Jl '48 1000w

Reviewed by Margaret Spahr

Am Pol Sci R 42:388 Ap '48 230w

"The French Revolution, like the American, invites constant restudy and richly rewards it. Lefebvre, successor of Aulard and Mathiez at the University of Paris and writing in a more mediating spirit than either of them, is the greatest living authority." W. E. G.

+ Christian Century 65:883 S 1 '48 280w

Current Hist 14:174 Mr '48 50w

"This is that rare thing a learned work in which a scholar of the first rank transcends scholarship and writes a book of general significance." A. J. P. Taylor

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 6 '48 420w

"M. Lefebvre's book is simply the best introduction to the study of the French Revolution available anywhere." Crane Brinton

+ Nation 166:328 Mr 20 '48 550w

Reviewed by Leonard Woolf

New Statesman & Nation 35:339 Ap 24 '48 480w

"In all respects this relatively brief study is a work of extraordinary merit and admirably presents the author to the American reading public." Leo Gershoy

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Mr 7 '48 800w

"This little book assembles the ripe judgments of the leading living authority on what is often termed the most important event in modern times. . . The smooth, clear translation into English—and it is the first of any of Lefebvre's books—is by Prof. R. R. Palmer of Princeton, one of the country's leading students of the Revolution." D. C. McKay

+ N Y Times p7 F 1 '48 650w

"[This] is a pleasure to read, since the author always knows exactly what he is doing."

+ New Yorker 23:82 Ja 17 '48 120w

Reviewed by P. H. Beik

+ Sat R of Lit 31:30 F 21 '48 850w

"There are two outstanding merits of Professor Lefebvre's interpretation. It brings to the problems of the Revolution an essentially social analysis, disentangling carefully the desires and impetus of each main social class without exaggerating the distinctions between them; and without neglecting, too, the many personal, political and ideological factors which took their places beside the economic and social forces in moulding the course of events. . . The American translation reads smoothly and forcefully, and a few minor errors in the original have been eliminated from this edition."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p259 My 8 '48 900w

LE GRAND, pseud. See Henderson, Le G.

LEHMANN, JOHN, ed. Modern French stories [Eng title: French stories from New writing]. 182p $3 New directions

Short stories—Collections A48-6395

Fourteen French stories that have appeared in English translation, in New writing between 1936 and 1946. Contents: My mother, by André Gide; The room, by Jean-Paul Sartre; The wall, by Jean-Paul Sartre; Letter to cousin Mary, by Jean Cassou; A feast in the mountains, by André Chamson; Tabusse and his dogs, by

LEHMANN, JOHN—Continued
André Chamson; Tabusse and the powers, by André Chamson; A man and a woman, by Louis Guilloux; About Theseus, by Paul Nizan; The corn dies, by Jean Giono; The breadbaking, by Jean Giono; Letter to a hostage, by Antoine de St. Exupéry; Madame Parpillon's inn, by Noel Devaulx; The midshipman, by Louis Clamorgan.

Booklist 45:13 S 1 '48

Canadian Forum 28:70 Je '48 210w

"A collection of considerable quality and variety—though largely designated towards an aesthetic audience."
+ Kirkus 16:292 Je 15 '48 50w

"If Mr. Lehmann's excellent small volume is at all indicative, the chief characteristic of the modern French short story is its unpredictableness. . . There are as many styles as there are authors represented here—a thing in itself indicative of the French spirit. . . Along with the established writers, Mr. Lehmann has uncovered some lesser-known interesting talents. There is an excellent New Yorkish story by Louis Guilloux (who will be remembered for his 'Bitter Victory'), 'A Man and a Woman'; an ingenious story in letter form by Jean Cassou, 'A Letter to Cousin Mary'; an original interpretation of the Theseus story by the late Paul Nizan, and best of all, Andre Chamson's three deft, good-humored stories of peasant life." Nona Balakian
+ N Y Times p3 Jl 18 '48 750w

" 'Modern French Short Stories' is a worthy addition to the library of anyone interested in the short story form and its most recent developments. The translations, mainly by John Rodker, are more than adequate." W. R. W.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 N 7 '48 350w

"Editor Lehmann believes that these 14 stories prove 'the dominating richness and vitality of French literature among the literatures of Europe.' But U.S. readers are likely to feel that most of the richness is stylistic sheen, and the vitality only skin-deep. . . Only Jean Cassou gives an impression of both vitality and veracity. His macabre story is an up-to-date version of Romeo & Juliet. . . This tale teems with the wit for which France was once famed, and brings a genuine touch of comic relief to a world of despair."
— + Time 52:80 Jl 5 '48 350w

Times [London] Lit Sup p49 Ja 24 '48 220w

LEHMANN, LOTTE. My many lives; tr. by Frances Holden. 262p il $3.75 Boosey, Hawkes, Belwin, inc, 668 5th av, N.Y. 19

B or 92 Singers—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 48-6320

A companion volume to the author's More Than Singing (Book Review Digest 1946). In the present volume the author interprets her various operatic roles, giving her philosophy of each. Includes many comments on other opera singers and musicians she has known. No index.

Booklist 44:311 My 15 '48

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '48

"A very personal book, written with the customary Lehmann enthusiasm and optimism. For aficionados." C. K. Miller
Library J 73:653 Ap 15 '48 70w

Reviewed by P. L. Miller
Music Lib Assn Notes 5:373 Je '48 480w

"Lotte Lehmann is not only a superb singing and acting artist but also a woman of other talents and intelligence. It is, therefore, not necessary to look for a ghost as the writer of this book, which is written almost in the way that she would talk—with the same seriousness, alternating with dashes of humor, devotion to her art and understanding of its many facets, and with her rare generosity of spirit." Moses Smith
+ N Y Times p11 Je 27 '48 600w

"As memoirs by musicians go, this is a decent and almost modest little book." Abraham Veinus
+ Sat R of Lit 31:10 Jl 24 '48 500w

LEHMANN-HARTLEBEN, KARL. Thomas Jefferson, American humanist. 273p il $4.50 Macmillan

B or 92 Jefferson, Thomas 47-6068

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"This book adds little to what has already been said in some of the recent studies on Thomas Jefferson. In portraying Jefferson as humanist, Dr. Lehmann has generally followed the beaten tracks through the published works of Jefferson and ignored unpublished material which might have provided novel shading and color. Nevertheless, the author's enthusiastic approach to his versatile subject compensates in a measure for the lack of new substance." Elizabeth Cometti
Am Hist R 53:894 Jl '48 320w

"Professor Lehmann has achieved his objective in a delightful volume, charmingly written, which should appeal to anyone interested in the philosopher of American democracy." C. G. Bowers
+ Ann Am Acad 256:192 Mr '48 340w

"It would be impossible to exaggerate the merits of Mr. Lehmann's picture of the intellectual life of Jefferson. In no other book known to this reviewer does one come into such close contact with the free and fertile mind of Jefferson in the non-political aspects of his thinking." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 65:111 Ja 28 '48 350w

J Philos 45:275 My 6 '48 330w

Reviewed by Carolyn Stull
San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 29 '48 400w

"Professor Lehmann has not merely proved the aptness of the epithet in his title; he has also, although somewhat incidentally, demonstrated the strength of the classical tradition in the early national history of the United States."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:155 Je '48 260w

LEIBER, FRITZ. Night's black agents [short stories]. 237p $3 Arkham house 48-12866

A collection of ghost stories, part of them called "Modern horrors," with two "ancient adventures," and one transition story called The man who never grew young.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ja 30 '48 40w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ja 4 '48 260w

LEIGHTON, DOROTHEA (CROSS), and KLUCKHOHN, CLYDE. Children of the people; the Navaho individual and his development. 277p il maps $4.50 Harvard univ. press

970.3 Indians of North America—Children. Navaho Indians 47-3884

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"If the authors are to be commended for any notable particular, it is perhaps for that of raising a serious question regarding a very popular contemporary notion. This notion is that the basic personality type found in a society is inexorably produced by the particular character of the 'basic disciplines' employed in dealing with the infant and young child. . . There are, on the other hand, yawning defects and inadequacies that greatly limit the value of this study. Perhaps the most significant is its extreme eclecticism. . . But perhaps just as serious a defect is the failure of the researchers, after espousing the use of quantitative methods, to apply even the minimum sampling standards. . . Another defect is of a more subtle character. The work gives evidence of a failure to realize, in part at least, the operational character of the intelligence and projective tests used. . . As it stands, this study is considerably less of a contribution than we had a right to expect from these authors." M. H. Kuhn

— + Am Soc R 13:117 F '48 1000w

"Like its companion volume The Navaho, Children of the People sets a high standard in the utilization of several disciplines, chiefly anthropology and psychology, for the discovery and interpretation of facts about a culture and the relations of individuals to the culture. The book maintains also the high standard of its predecessor in the difficult art of interpreting one people (the Navaho Indians) to another (Americans in general and Indian Office personnel in particular)." E. H. Spicer

+ Ann Am Acad 255:212 Ja '48 480w

Reviewed by C. C. Qualey
Social Educ 12:143 Mr '48 450w

U S Quarterly Bkl 3:388 D '47 320w

LEIGHTON, MRS MARGARET (CARVER). Judith of France; il. by Henry C. Pitz. 281p $2.50 Houghton

Judith, princess of France—Fiction 48-5436

Historical novel for older girls. It is based on the life of Judith, granddaughter of Charlemagne, who made two royal marriages before she found true love.

Booklist 44:235 Mr 1 '48

Reviewed by Martha King
Chicago Sun Jl 24 '48 200w

Reviewed by H. F. Griswold
Christian Science Monitor p7 F 26 '48 350w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 24:174 My '48 30w

"This romantic young novel moves swiftly, giving vivid life to the ninth century in France and England." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 24:198 My '48 120w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 24:212 My '48 120w

Kirkus 16:24 Ja 15 '48 170w

"Recommended." C. W. Field

+ Library J 73:486 Mr 15 '48 80w

"It is vividly written, and its sense that people were then looking ahead to the year 1000 as we do now to the possibilities of the atomic bomb gives it a contemporary note." M. L. Becker

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Mr 21 '48 300w

"More tastefully written than many a contemporary adult historical novel, this book gives a brilliantly colored, many-sided view of a turbulent, romantic era. It is a distinguished piece of fiction for the transitional reading period of older girls." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p34 F 29 '48 230w

Reviewed by Grace Stevens
San Francisco Chronicle p20 N 28 '48 250w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 31:32 My 8 '48 80w

Wis Lib Bul 44:65 Mr '48

LEMELIN, ROGER. The town below; tr. by Samuel Putnam. 302p $3 Reynal

48-6656

Story of adolescence and poverty set in the socially submerged section of Quebec called "the town below." It is a tale of ignorance, superstition and poverty, focussing in the love affair of a beautiful young convent graduate and the son of a poor laborer.

"This first novel by a young French-Canadian shows vigor, honesty, and feeling; its most serious lack is precision, both in perception and in style. Some of the obscurity is the fault of the translation, which is of 'the pen of my gardener's aunt' calibre. . . The Town Below is, in intention, a serious novel; it deserves to be read because it mirrors one of our important social phenomena: a group of young twentieth century Canadians whose attitudes are curiously nineteenth century; and because Lemelin, himself, writing as honestly as he knows how, has avoided the commoner clichés of current magazine fiction." D. H. M.

+ — Canadian Forum 28:143 S '48 280w

"The plot isn't too appealing to the gentle reader; the author's principal characters seem overdrawn and too youthfully romantic, but the picture of life in the poverty-stricken and narrow-minded little parish is well worth examining. . . The French-Canadian novel of today has not yet reached full maturity. Mr. Lemelin shows indications of making a genuine contribution to its growth and development." L. E. Cannon

+ — Christian Century 65:881 S 1 '48 260w

"This novel of life in the Lower Town of Quebec has an importance which may escape the American reader unfamiliar with French Canada. It is the first French Canadian novel to deal realistically with the urban life of a region which has only recently become more urban than rural, and which has persisted in confining its literature to idealistic pictures of an outmoded agricultural way of life. . . Any American who has passed rapidly through Quebec on a hectic vacation tour should read it as a sound corrective for the romantic and pseudo-historical vaporings of the tourist bureaus about 'quaint, picturesque Quebec. . .' Unfortunately, the translation leaves much to be desired." Mason Wade

+ — Commonweal 48:527 S 10 '48 260w

"A strange story, which loses much of its effectiveness in translation no doubt."
Kirkus 16:94 F 15 '48 190w

"A strange and different novel of adolescence. The writing is awkwardly choppy. . . Though peculiar, it has considerable appeal. Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ Library J 73:558 Ap 1 '48 70w

"No doubt the style has inevitably lost something in translation for, as Mr. Putnam explains, the original was written with an 'abundance of local argot' and presented a difficult task because of 'the frequent psychological subtleties of the narrative.' Notwithstanding, 'The Town Below' draws richly and arrestingly upon real-life material observed with rare compassion and tinctured with youthful bitterness, and its author's name is emphatically one to note for the future." Iris Barry

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 My 16 '48 650w

"Put this engaging French-Canadian novel on the same shelf with 'A Tree Grows in Brooklyn' and 'The Tin Flute.' Like them it is a story of humor, hurt and humanity. . Mr. Lemelin's knowledge of youth is sure and subtle, and every man will find echoes of his own past in 'The Town Below.' There may be minor dissents lodged against the crowded sub-plotting of the book and certain aspects of the author's ecclesiastical satire, but few will deny his gift of characterization, his vigor of style, and his power to give sight and sound to a boisterously live world. Samuel Putnam deserves a special word of commendation for a fluent translation. But one wonders if he could not have bettered an occasional word, such as 'energumen' and 'dolichocephalous.' " Charles Lee

+ — N Y Times p7 Ap 18 '48 700w

"Interesting in a mildly exotic way."
New Yorker 24:104 Ap 24 '48 120w

Reviewed by R. A. Cordell
Sat R of Lit 31:19 My 22 '48 600w

Time 51:114 My 10 '48 280w

LEMMON, ROBERT STELL. How to attract the birds; planting, feeding, housing; with line drawings by Roger T. Peterson, Tabea Hofmann and Henry B. Aul. 126p $1.50 Doubleday

598.2 Birds 47-11454

Directions for methods of attracting birds, adaptable for most localities in the United

LEMMON, R. S.—Continued
States and lower Canada. Contains simple directions for making different types of bird houses and shelters. Index.

Booklist 44:101 N 15 '47

Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '48

"Good addition to garden library."
+ Kirkus 15:492 S 1 '47 200w

"The author was obviously thinking of the birds found in the northeastern United States, but there is little difference in problems of attraction elsewhere, and he has taken other areas into account. This book should be useful to almost any one who has a home with a scrap of land in any state of the Union." L. J. Halle
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p25 My 9 '48 80w

Wis Lib Bul 43:170 D '47

LENGYEL, EMIL. Americans from Hungary. (Peoples of America ser) 319p $4 Lippincott
325.24391 Hungarians in the U.S. 48-5802

"Hungarians in America from earliest times: why they came, their struggles to get ahead, specific contributions individuals have made to their adopted country." (Booklist) Partial contents: Early Hungarians in America—fact and fable; Kossuth's people; Hungarians in the Civil war; The high tide of immigration; Religion in Little Hungary; Print in the native tongue; Literati and illuminati; Melodies and colors; About leaders of men and other pioneers. Index.

Reviewed by H. P. Fairchild
Ann Am Acad 259:156 S '48 400w

Booklist 44:263 Ap 1 '48

Reviewed by Frances Witherspoon
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Jl 4 '48 360w

"Because of the inevitable amalgamation of persons of all kinds of European racial stocks into a distinct American race it is all the more valuable that now, while the history of the contribution of the different racial stocks is still available, it be written into the record as part of the history of the making of the United States. This is what Mr. Lengyel has sought to do for the Hungarian elements that came to America." Nicholas Roosevelt
+ N Y Times p13 Jl 11 '48 500w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 My 23 '48 320w

"Nearly all of us like to see our names in print. Perhaps Mr. Lengyel calculated that the more names, the more readers. Another reason may have been the author's desire to bolster his argument that Hungarians have made their significant gift to American life and culture. Of course they have, and handsomely, but so have the other nationalities. . . Nevertheless the tapestry of Hungarian America is threaded with rich detail, even in this inadequate study." Hal Lehrman
Sat R of Lit 31:15 My 22 '48 800w

School & Society 67:206 Mr 13 '48 30w

Wis Lib Bul 44:162 O '48

LENSKI, LOIS (MRS ARTHUR COVEY). Boom town boy; il. by [the author]. 177p $2.50 Lippincott
48-2379

Story of oil drilling on an Oklahoma farm. When the well "blew-in" oil workers came to live on the farm, and ten-year-old Orvie and his family moved to the city. They soon became tired of their new riches and were glad to move back to the country. For children of the "middle years."

Booklist 45:74 O 15 '48

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 168:220 D '48 70w

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun S 25 '48 330w

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '48

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 24:350 S '48 10w

"A vigorous, breathless story which gives a sharp impression of the rapid change in the lives of poor farmers who became rich over night." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 24:373 S '48 120w

"A good study in values and a stark picture of boom-town life." S. J. Johnson
+ Library J 73:1098 Ag '48 70w

"Another excellent regional story. . . For those of a technical mind, Miss Lenski has packed in a lot of information about the oil-drilling business, with fine little diagrams. Her illustrations are plentiful and funny, except for the end-papers which show the devastating change of farm to oil-field—and that's not funny at all. There is also a map of Oklahoma, and fine big type and margins." Margaret Ernst
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 Ag 29 '48 150w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Hodges
N Y Times p20 S 26 '48 150w

"The illustrations are as good as the substantial, well-written text."
+ New Yorker 24:131 D 11 '48 120w

Sat R of Lit 31:29 N 13 '48 50w

School & Society 68:128 Ag 21 '48 30w

LENSKI, LOIS (MRS ARTHUR COVEY) Mr. and Mrs. Noah [il. by the author] [48p] $1 Crowell 48-5989

The Bible story of Noah and his ark told in picture-book form.

Booklist 44:288 Ap 15 '48

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p12 Ap 13 '48 200w

Commonweal 49:146 N 19 '48 30w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 24:190 My '48 80w

Kirkus 16:234 My 15 '48 90w

Reviewed by K. H. McAlarney
Library J 73:657 Ap 15 '48 60w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Mr 28 '48 120w

"Reverence is implicit in the rhythmic prose in which Miss Lenski retells the story and at the same time there is a delightful sense of intimacy with Mr. and Mrs. Noah, their family and their animal charges. This latter feeling is strengthened by the illustrations. Resplendent with color, appealingly small in scale but clear in detail, these are patterned after the traditional wooden figures of old Noah's Arks. They have the endearing quality of those toys, yet manage to seem very much alive. This little book will undoubtedly be a favorite bedtime companion to many children." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p26 Mr 14 '48 140w

New Yorker 24:124 D 11 '48 40w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 31:31 My 8 '48 40w

Wis Lib Bul 44:151 S '48

LENSKI, LOIS (MRS ARTHUR COVEY). Now it's fall. [48p] $1 Oxford
48-8047

Short rhymes and colored pictures describing the coming of autumn, with falling leaves and the beginning of school. For kindergarten age and first grade.

Booklist 45:37 S 15 '48

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p11 O 12 '48 210w

Commonweal 49:146 N 19 '48 20w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 24:453 N '48 70w

Kirkus 16:394 Ag 15 '48 70w

"Recommended." Elizabeth Hodges
+ Library J 73:1198 S 1 '48 60w

Reviewed by Helen Masten
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 S 19 '48 90w

"Printed in autumn's colors, told in short-line verses that the new reader will learn in half a minute, this book matches Lenski's earlier and equally beguiling 'Spring Is Here.'" S. C. Gross
+ N Y Times p29 S 19 '48 80w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 31:36 O 16 '48 50w
Wis Lib Bul 44:167 O '48

LENT, HENRY BOLLES. I work on a newspaper; phot. by James B. Walsh. 152p $2.50 Macmillan

070 Journalism 48-2400

"A complete day on an afternoon newspaper from the start of the reporters on their beats to the routes covered by the newsboys, including all the departments, editorial, pictorial and mechanical." Springf'd Republican

Booklist 44:339 Je 1 '48

"A fairly complete story of a day on a newspaper, by an experienced hand in this matter of putting facts in readable form for young people."
+ Kirkus 16:53 F 1 '48 80w

"Excellent bleed illustrations accompany the text. Use of the personal man-to-boy manner of writing gives unfortunate air of condescension. Attractive format, cryptic table of contents, no index. Grades 8-10." E. A. Groves
— + Library J 73:882 Je 1 '48 70w

"It won't teach a boy how to get on a newspaper, but it may show him why so many men stay in the business." M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 My 23 '48 240w

"The sense of active participation which this book gives is strengthened by James Walsh's excellent photographs." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p29 My 23 '48 190w

"It is very interestingly done and quite factual." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p12B My 2 '48 140w

LENTFOEHR, FLORENCE MAE. See Thérèse, Sister.

LEONARD, CHARLES L., pseud. See Heberden, M. V.

LERNER, LEO ALFRED. Continental journey; with an introd. by Walter Johnson. 214p $2.50 Citadel

914 Europe—Description and travel 47-12397

Reports on Europe in the midst of reconstruction. The countries visited by this Chicago editor in 1947 were: England, France, Luxembourg, Belgium, the Netherlands, Czechoslovakia, Poland, Switzerland and Italy. The articles appeared originally in Chicago neighborhood newspapers.

"These eyewitness reports may be naive, artless and unimportantly inaccurate but they also are natural, simple and honest. The picture they give of the Europe I saw in the same months of 1947 is only slightly out of focus. . . His tourist's account of Italy is by far the most inaccurate. He already has lived to regret a few of the generalizations he made about Poland and Czechoslovakia. A more serious error is Lerner's apparent acceptance of an 'Eastern' concept of political freedom, whatever that means." Irving Pflaum
+ — Chicago Sun p18X D 7 '47 380w

"Other travelers would perhaps receive other impressions, but the transparent honesty and intelligence of Mr. Lerner's record makes it very interesting reading for a reviewer who expects to be in some of the same places before this paragraph can get into print." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 65:883 S 1 '48 140w

— San Francisco Chronicle p20 Je 6 '48 150w

"The reader should not think that 'Continental Journey' is all about politics. It is principally the story of a jovial, warm-hearted, and witty 'average' Middlewestern newspaperman and the people he met on a vacation-cum-fact-finding trip. And it is amusing and refreshing." H. B. Kranz
Sat R of Lit 31:10 Ja 31 '48 500w

"The pieces are a cut above much of the stuff that comes from Europe, are easy to read and quite entertaining." R. F. H.
Springf'd Republican p10B Ap 4 '48 180w

LESLIE, JEAN. Hair of the dog. 187p $2 Doubleday

47-12398

Detective story.

Kirkus 15:588 O 15 '47 80w

"Fairly engrossing item for those who like their murders with a smile."
+ New Repub 117:29 D 22 '47 20w

"Innocent merriment, prize canines and competent sleuthing by several hands." Will Cuppy
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 D 21 '47 80w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p21 Ja 4 '48 140w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p29 Ja 18 '48 20w

"Slightly giddy."
— Sat R of Lit 30:28 D 20 '47 40w

LESLIE, JEAN. Shoes for my love. 189p $2 Doubleday

48-9002

Detective story.

"A light touch keeps this pleasant and quite satisfactory."
+ Kirkus 16:456 S 1 '48 90w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p54 N 14 '48 180w

"Lively, in an illogical fashion."
New Yorker 24:112 O 30 '48 90w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p23 D 5 '48 50w

"Good number."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:36 N 20 '48 50w

LESTER, KATHERINE MORRIS. Creative ceramics; a primitive craft becomes a fine art. 213p il $3.75 Manual arts

738.3 Pottery 48-6719

"A new book on ceramics giving simple but complete and well-illustrated instructions that will help the beginner to make attractive pieces of pottery has recently been completed by Katherine Morris Lester. Methods for tiles, figurines, pottery, and ornaments are demonstrated, and suggestions for modeling of fragile flowers and other forms are explained. There is a chapter on molding, a discussion of various types of clays, and a section on the use of historic design as source material." (School Arts) Glossary. Index.

Booklist 44:348 Je 15 '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1280 S 15 '48 70w
N Y New Tech Bks 33:66 S '48
School Arts p12a O '48 70w

LESTER, RICHARD ALLEN, and SHISTER, JOSEPH, eds. Insights into labor issues. 368p $4 Macmillan

331.1 Labor and laboring classes—U.S. Industrial relations. Trade unions 48-1454

Collection of essays on various aspects of the labor problem. Partial contents: Multiple-employer bargaining: The San Francisco experience, by Clark Kerr and L. H. Fisher;

LESTER, R. A.—Continued

Union-Management cooperation: an analysis, by Joseph Shister; New patterns of collective bargaining, by E. M. Kassalow; Collective bargaining by professional societies, by H. R. Northrup; Results and implications of some recent wage studies, by R. A. Lester; The meaning of recent wage changes, by D. R. Roberts; Trade union policy under full employment, by Eugene Forsey. About the authors. Index.

"This is one of the most provocative and useful books that the reviewer has yet encountered in the labor field." W. E. Moore
+ Am Soc R 13:494 Ag '48 550w

Eng N 140:95 Ap 1 '48 310w

"The authors are seventeen of the younger 'labor economists' of the United States and Canada. None received their Ph.D. degrees earlier than 1936 and most of them since 1940. Presently most of them are connected with the industrial relations centers of leading universities. To the reviewer, who belongs to an older generation, these essays are of interest not merely for their 'insights into labor issues' but also for the insight they afford into the methods and thought of the younger labor economists who are rapidly coming to dominate the academic research and teaching in this field." E. E. Witte
J Pol Econ 56:370 Ag '48 800w

"There is a common spirit that permeates most of the essays. The contributors appear to give the feeling of pioneering into new areas of research and study. . . Several chapters contain what appear to the reviewer to be unwarranted conclusions. . . [However] students of labor economics will do well to examine the volume carefully." S. A. Levitan
+ — Pol Sci Q 63:462 S '48 1000w

"The contributions as a whole reflect a high level of competence. Yet the volume, while offering something to almost every taste, suffers from the structural weakness inherent in a series of unconnected essays." Joel Seidman
+ — Survey G 37:480 N '48 450w

LEUBA, CLARENCE. Ethics in sex conduct; a manual on youth, sex, and marriage. 164p $2.50 Assn. press

176 Marriage. Sexual ethics 48-10563

"Designed to help young people reconcile their emotional needs to moral standards and the demands of society, and to help older generations to understand youth and current customs. Includes a list of books on preparation for marriage." School & Society

Booklist 45:98 N 15 '48

"Recommended for parents, those concerned in youth guidance, some young adults."
+ Kirkus 16:501 S 15 '48 160w

School & Society 68:286 O 23 '48 40w

LEVENS, ALEXANDER SANDER. Nomography. 176p $3 Wiley

510.84 Nomography (mathematics) 48-5305

"Levens (mechanical engineering University of California) has prepared his textbook for a one-semester course. He starts with cartesian coordinate representation and functional scales. He discusses seven equation types. His usual method is to cover theory, give directions, work out a few examples, then present several exercises. A chapter on miscellaneous forms shows how nomographs may be combined to solve equations with as many as six variables. The book ends with a discussion of determinants and their use in chart design. There is evidence that this book was not planned for self instruction." (Chem Eng) Bibliography. Index.

"This book treats of the methods of making nomographs from a practical, rather than from a theoretical, point of view. There is nothing especially novel in the material presented nor in the method of presentation, but it is a clear, concise, and logical exposition of the 'geometrical' approach to nomography." Melvin Nord
+ Chem & Eng N 26:1551 My 24 '48 250w

Reviewed by L. B. Pope
Chem Eng 55:285 Ap '48 150w

"An excellent introduction. . . The fundamentals of the subject are stressed, but the practical applications are clearly indicated."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 33:15 Ja '48

LEVER, EMIL JOHN, and GOODELL, FRANCIS. Labor-management cooperation and how to achieve it. 143p $2.50 Harper

331.152 Factory management. Employees' representation in management 48-5453

A handbook to be used by both management and labor leaders who wish to set up and operate what is called a Joint Production Committee. The authors are a former union officer and a management consultant. The purpose of JPC's is "to use every man's faculties—to stimulate, develop, and implement everyone's participation—for the good of the enterprise and all those engaged in it. It is composed of an equal number of management and workers' representatives. In smaller plants it is usually made up of but one committee. In larger plants, supplementary groups are also needed." (p. 7) Index.

"What impact this book may have on management is difficult to judge. Management has often opposed JPC's because it has feared they might usurp managerial functions. Unfortunately the authors never seem to come to grips with this matter or with the exact relation of JPC's to regular union functions. Nevertheless, the book does deal with JPC's on a detailed and practical level that may well arouse progressive management's interest in experimentation with such committees." A. Morgner
+ — Ann Am Acad 257:251 My '48 380w

Kirkus 16:36 Ja 15 '48 160w

Reviewed by D. M. Mason
Management R 37:334 Je '48 320w

Reviewed by A. T. Jacobs
N Y Times p25 Je 6 '48 380w

Reviewed by Louis Burgess
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Mr 14 '48 170w

LEVI, ALBERT WILLIAM. General education in the social studies. (Cooperative study in general education. Publication) 336p $3.50 Am. council on educ.

307.1173 Social sciences—Study and teaching 48-3598

"Describes the construction of a two-year (college freshman and sophomore) interpretative course in social studies which leads to social values as distinct from the social sciences. Purposes of the course are to make the student know (or believe) what he ought to about his own society, to 'sensitize' him to desirable social changes, and to prepare and encourage him toward social action. To this end two inventories of 150 statements each are employed. One deals with social understanding, the other with postwar problems, and the extent of the student's agreement with presumably qualified specialists determines what he needs to learn." (Am Soc R) No index.

"A fifty-page outline of the course's organization, content, reading assignments, and supplementary readings will interest teachers concerned with general or integrative courses."
+ Am Soc R 13:649 O '48 190w

Booklist 45:59 O 15 '48

LEVIN, PETER R. Seven by chance: the accidental presidents. 374p $4 Farrar, Straus

923.173 Presidents (United States) 48-7458

Reviews the presidental careers of seven men who became president "by accident," owing to the death in office of the president. They are Tyler, Fillmore, Johnson, Arthur, Theodore Roosevelt, Coolidge, and Truman. The author reviews the situations which brought each man into power, and discusses the use each made of it. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 44:381 Jl 15 '48

Reviewed by John Dreiske
Chicago Sun p38 Ag 2 '48 550w

Reviewed by Mary Hornaday
Christian Science Monitor p14 Je 30 '48 420w

"Worthwhile in its deliberation of the importance of the position, interesting in its material, useful in its collection."
+ Kirkus 16:191 Ap 1 '48 170w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 73:940 Je 15 '48 130w

"The book suffers at times from the use of such terms as 'a tobacco-wealthy agraria.' But Mr. Levin has surveyed a wide range of sources with an independent mind and presented his conclusion forthrightly." J. C. Long
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Jl 4 '48 900w

"Though Mr. Levin stakes out no claims to a professional interest in politics, he is shrewd in appraising and skillful in describing the ways of the practical politician, even the devious maneuverings in the days of John Tyler or Millard Fillmore. From his study of history and economics at the University of Chicago and his experiences during four years' service in the United States Army, he brings to these episodes in American political history a judicious temper which often finds expression in arresting epigram or witty phrase. His sensitive response to the men of whom he writes gives genuine distinction to his account of Andrew Johnson's tragic years." J. A. Krout
+ N Y Times p3 Je 20 '48 800w

"For most of his book Mr. Levin, who was trained as an historian, writes judiciously and with an erudition founded on wide reading. When he reaches the Truman Administration, the immediacy of his subject seems to have rattled him a bit. In a section that takes up fully a quarter of his book he often writes loosely, as when he implies that virtually all Republicans are isolationists. While he carefully details the weaknesses of our policy toward Russia, he is vague in his concession that the Russian attitude has not been entirely enlightened." Raymond Walters
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:15 Jl 10 '48 750w

LEVINSON, SAMUEL AZOR, ed. Symposium on medicolegal problems; under the co-sponsorship of the Inst. of medicine of Chicago and the Chicago bar association. 255p il $5 Lippincott

340.6 Medical jurisprudence Med48-53

"On those rare occasions when doctors and lawyers get together to discuss mutual problems both groups invariably learn something. At six notable meetings of this sort the members of these two professions in Chicago gathered to listen to papers and to ask questions about: (1) the medical witness; (2) artificial human insemination; (3) the practice of pathology; (4) operations for sterility; (5) trauma and cancer; and (6) blood tests for paternity and chemical tests for intoxication." Am J Pub Health

---

"Although based mainly on Illinois experience, the material is of general interest and value, and might well set a pattern for similar assemblies in other states or in the larger cities. This well printed book will appeal to those who are concerned with the six special medicolegal problems which are so ably discussed in it." J. A. Tobey
+ Am J Pub Health 38:885 Je '48 190w

"All in all, this was a very commendable and successful effort. The informality of the discussions would suggest that these papers might well have been presented in a journal rather than in a bound volume, as all of these subjects may undergo clarification and crystallization in the near future. However, the book's very informality makes it far more stimulating than a stereotyped and laboriously constructed tome. Professional men like to talk shop and they also like to read shop; there are few books which will be of more interest and value to both doctors and lawyers than this one." H. L. Kozol
+ Columbia Law R 48:979 S '48 1000w
Harvard Law R 61:1480 S '48 450w
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:212 Je '48 360w

LEVY, WILLIAM AUERBACH. See Auerbach-Levy, W.

LEWIN, KURT. Resolving social conflicts; sel. papers on group dynamics [1935-1946] ed. by Gertrud Weiss Lewin; foreword by Gordon W. Allport. 230p $3.50 Harper

301.15 Social psychology 48-3764

"This is the first of two volumes of collected writings of Kurt Lewin which are intended to bring together for convenient reading a number of papers he published during the fifteen years he lived in the United States. During this period his scientific interests centered more and more upon problems of social psychology and group dynamics. These two volumes are intended to give a balanced survey of his work, interests, and aims in the study of society, rather than to provide a complete collection of his writings. While the second volume will present the more theoretical papers, this first collection contains a discussion of a number of practical issues such as those involved in cultural differences and the possibility of re-education, in conflicts in small face-to-face groups such as the family or workers in a factory, or in the special problems of minority groups. The analysis of the nature and causes of social conflicts and the search for techniques capable of preventing or resolving them recur through these papers." (Pref) Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Jessie Bernard
Ann Am Acad 260:203 N '48 440w

"It is not often that a textbook on some specialized field of study can be recommended to the general public. But in the case of [this book] it appears highly desirable to do just that. For not only is the book's topic literally everybody's concern, but the searching and lucid manner in which it is treated by the author will stimulate and clarify individual thinking on social problems." Ernest Pisko
+ Christian Science Monitor p15 S 23 '48 320w

"Often technical in its formulae reasoning, sporadic in coverage; rather confined in appeal."
Kirkus 16:208 Ap 15 '48 120w

"Generally heavy handed but full of wisdom. The expression of it is such, however, as to make this for special collections only." R. E. Kingery
Library J 73:940 Je 15 '48 80w
School & Society 68:47 Jl 17 '48 20w

Reviewed by R. A. Schermerhorn
Social Forces 27:167 D '48 2250w

"It is an excellent introduction to Lewin's contributions to experimental social psychology. . . Mrs Lewin promises a second one to include her husband's more theoretical articles. Since Lewin wrote few long, coordinated treatises, well-edited volumes like this one will serve to widen his influence among the general public as well as among social scientists." Morroe Berger
+ Survey G 37:479 N '48 600w

LEWIS, HYWEL DAVID. Morals and the new theology. 160p $2 Harper

170 Moral theology. Ethics 48-8636

"The aim of [this] essay is to give some examples of the main ways in which the dominant trend in Protestant theology to-day is altogether at variance with elementary ethical principles which we take for granted from day to day, and which the moral philosopher seeks to describe and correlate." (Pref) "[The author's] chief contentions are that the main ethical truths do not depend directly upon

LEWIS, H. D.—Continued
religion; that there are distinctive ethical principles which do not depend in any ultimate way on our own reactions and attitudes; and that we do not enquire into the religious antecedents of a person's actions nor seek to ascertain what his religious beliefs are before we credit him with an understanding of the concepts of Right and Wrong, and with an awareness of elementary duties." (Hibbert J) Index of proper names.

Ethics 57:308 Jl '47 130w

Reviewed by G. S. Spinks
Hibbert J 45:383 Jl '47 1100w

"While the author expresses the hope that his book may be of help to laymen, it is probable that it will be mostly those at home in the fields of philosophy, ethics and religion who will wish to read it. But their interest will be great, on whichever side of the controversy they stand."
Kirkus 16:508 O 1 '48 180w

"This is a powerful and closely reasoned attack on the ethical views of some of the best known theologians of the day, particularly Barth, Brunner, and Niebuhr. . . [Mr Lewis] presents his case in clear and uncompromising terms and compels the reader to rethink many positions previously taken for granted." T. W. M.
+ — Manchester Guardian p3 N 17 '47 240w

LEWIS, JAMES E. Doorway to good living; selected places; where to eat, where to stay, where to fish, where to play along the western wonderland. 1948 ed 334p il pa $2 Lewis publicity service, box 1060, Beverly Hills, Calif.

647.94 West—Description and travel. Hotels, taverns, etc.—West. Restaurants, lunch rooms, etc.—West 48-4886

A revised edition of a list of hotels, restaurants, historic monuments and recreational centers of Arizona, California, Nevada, Oregon, Washington and Utah.

Booklist 45:70 O 15 '48

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 25 '48 90w

LEWIS, MRS MARY CHRISTIANNA (MILNE) (CHRISTIANNA BRAND, pseud). Death of Jezebel. 214p $2.50 Dodd 48-8221

Detective story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun S 10 '48 50w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 S 5 '48 140w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p32 S 12 '48 200w

"A bit too much like a chess problem at times, but businesslike and smoothly done, and the Inspector is a relief from more infallible sleuths."
New Yorker 24:84 S 4 '48 120w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p17 S 5 '48 80w

"Entertaining."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:39 S 18 '48 40w

LEWIS, MICHAEL ARTHUR. The navy of Britain. 660p il $7.50 Macmillan

359 Great Britain. Navy—History [48-11154]

"A historical portrait" of the British navy. The author has aimed at "portraying in careful detail the instrument itself, at painting an accurate portrait rather than composing a battle-scene." (Times [London] Lit Sup) Copiously illustrated. Brief bibliography. Index.

"This navy is a venerable institution with roots tapping the inception of sea power. And as it has been the prototype for every successful navy subsequently launched as a national establishment, the lucid account of how and why it came into existence, and how it was readied to exercise its power advantageously, should be of widespread interest. . . There is a profusion of carefully selected illustrations which bring out many salient features of the text." F. L. Oliver
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 O 2 '48 550w

"The ground to be covered is vast, but Mr. Lewis has boldly seized its main features and marshalled them into a reasoned and satisfactory account within the limits of a single stout and well-illustrated volume."
+ Spec 181:348 S 10 '48 260w

"Perhaps the most valuable section of the book is that devoted to naval tactics, an abstruse subject to most laymen. . . But even laymen can read Professor Lewis's demonstration of the slow evolution of the tactics of the sailing era with understanding and interest; and with profit, too. . . No notice of this book could do it full justice without mention of its illustrations, drawn chiefly from 'that apparently inexhaustible goldmine of nautical material, the National Maritime Museum,' but supplemented, for the present day, by a few official photographs."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p508 S 11 '48 1650w

LEWIS, MORRIS MICHAEL. Language in society; the linguistic revolution and social change. 248p il $3.85 Social sciences

401 Language and languages 48-3320

"In the past philological learning has been almost entirely devoted, as Mr. Lewis points out, to the 'accurate establishment of classical texts,' and only now when the world is more occupied with words than at any other time in history, is language being studied in relation to its function in society. In his book he examines the results of what he calls the linguistic revolution—the effect on modern life and thought of the development of language, the advent of writing, printing and the 'instantaneous transmission of speech and writing'—and he begins with an account of the individual becoming initiated into society as he is initiated into its language. In passing, Mr. Lewis discusses the probability of a world-language, and optimistically suggests that the immediate future may see a common bilingualism as the solution to this problem which has baffled experimenters for three centuries." (Spec) References. Index.

"There are occasional statements in the book which, lacking empiric verification, seem unfortunate. . . One might also question the logic of such phrasing as 'the progress of man's command over language' (italics ours). . . The above criticisms, however, and others of a similar sort which we do not mention specifically, are relatively minor. While in no sense brilliant or outstandingly novel, this book represents a competent piece of work which at least moderately well integrates a wide variety of materials from differing sources into a well-written and essentially accurate work. The layman to social psychology will find it more useful than will the specialist." J. F. Cuber
+ — Ann Am Acad 260:222 N '48 380w

San Francisco Chronicle p11 Jl 25 '48 220w

School & Society 67:464 Je 19 '48 20w

Reviewed by D. J. Welsh
Spec 180:686 Je 4 '48 280w

LEWIS, NORMAN. How to speak better English. 306p $3 Crowell

425 English language 48-6186

"Author of How to Read Better and Faster does it again—this time a grammar for adults. Not a parts-of-speech grammar, but a clear guide to how to put words together in meaningful ways. Divided into three sections: problems in the grammar of meaning (e.g. affect-effect); the grammar of allowable errors (e.g. mad for angry); grammar of correct usage." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 44:294 My 1 '48

"I found it a fascinating book—one to own, if you like word studies."
+ Kirkus 16:71 F 1 '48 180w

"In spite of his intention, Lewis doesn't completely escape the jargon of the grammarians. Maybe it can't be done. A bang-up job though, even if a little on the long side. Essential for most collections." R. E. Kingery
+ — Library J 73:470 Mr 15 '48 110w

Reviewed by Thomas Lask
N Y Times p21 Je 13 '48 430w

Springf'd Republican p12B Mr 21 '48 300w

Wis Lib Bul 44:101 My '48

LEWIS, PEARL. Eating for health. 121p il $2.25 Macmillan

641.1 Nutrition. Diet 48-3728

Information on food values and the nutritional needs of the body. The author is a consultant dietitian. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:46 O 1 '48

"A book that seems, to this reader, to say what has been said in numerous books before, with little added to justify still another book on the subject. There is, to be sure, some useful information on care of foods, some tables of weights and measures—but after all these too can be found elsewhere."
— + Kirkus 16:141 Mr 1 '48 70w

"Highly recommended."
+ Wis Lib Bul 44:183 N '48

LEWISOHN, LUDWIG, ed. Among the nations; three tales and a play about Jews; with an introduction. 270p $3 Farrar, Straus

808.8 Jews in literature. Short stories—Collections 48-1939

Three long stories and a play about Jews, by non-Jewish writers. The play is Loyalties, by John Galsworthy. The stories are: The alien corn, by Somerset Maugham; Silbermann, by Jacques de Lacretelle; and Tamar, from the Joseph tetralogy by Thomas Mann.

Kirkus 16:40 Ja 15 '48 170w

"Recommended primarily for Jewish collections." George Freedley
+ Library J 73:652 Ap 15 '48 40w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
New Repub 118:19 Ap 5 '48 340w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 Mr 21 '48 450w

"The editor contends that these are the best examples from the exceedingly small body of this sort of literature, in which Christian writers have shown any understanding or knowledge of the people they are writing about."
+ New Yorker 24:91 Mr 27 '48 120w

LEWISOHN, LUDWIG. Anniversary. 304p $3 Farrar, Straus

48-5114

A stream-of-consciousness novel which outlines the story of a rich young woman, who has been spoiled by her father. Joy makes two unsuccessful marriages, each ending in divorce, and then meets the right man. The scene is a small New England city, with interludes in Charleston, Chicago, and Boston.

Booklist 44:184 Ja 15 '48

Reviewed by Ralph Habas
Chicago Sun p7X Ja 18 '48 550w

Kirkus 15:629 N 15 '47 130w

"The tenuous story is given strength by effective characterization through the thoughts of various personalities. Well done and revealing though probably limited in appeal." M. C. Manley
+ — Library J 72:1685 D 1 '47 90w

"Mr. Lewisohn creates in 'Anniversary' a dozen or so very ordinary, earth-bound, second-rate folk whose daily petty malices toward each other and especially toward their spiritual betters are but the gnarled, acid fruit of their emotional poverty and niggardliness and of their consequent unhappiness. . . 'Anniversary' is a brilliant jeremiad against our increasingly cheerful acceptance as a people of the second-rate." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Ja 25 '48 600w

"If 'Anniversary' were signed with an unknown name, it would seem an imaginatively undistinguished but sincere and enlightened lending-library novel. Signed by the author of 'Expression in America,' it makes one wonder why Mr. Lewisohn wishes to keep his franchise on novel-writing and the discussion of divorce by running lightly through a performance of this kind. There are, obviously, many more exciting and ambitious works a man of his experience and critical powers could achieve." R. G. Davis
N Y Times p5 Ja 18 '48 900w

"Mr. Lewisohn's conception of middle-class morality as a drag on the free-ranging human spirit may seem irrelevant these days."
New Yorker 23:82 Ja 17 '48 100w

San Francisco Chronicle p17 Ap 18 '48 300w

LEWISOHN, SAM ADOLPH. Painters and personality; a collector's view of modern art. rev ed 323p pl $5 Harper

750 Painters. Personality 48-7431

"An enlarged and revised edition of the 1937 publication. The author, one of the greatest American collectors of art, states in his foreword that 'the painters discussed have been chosen not because of their importance but to drive home a point—that in the creation of significant art the personality of the artist is the decisive factor.' This edition has new chapters and new discussions particularly of young American artists. The book has three parts: Individuality in art, Vignettes, and Selected essays. There are 140 illustrations in black and white." (Wis Lib Bul) For earlier edition see Book Review Digest 1937.

Booklist 45:70 O 15 '48

San Francisco Chronicle p11 Jl 11 '48 160w

"A good addition to the art collection."
+ Wis Lib Bul 44:147 S '48

LEWITON, MINA. Cup of courage. 244p $2.50 McKay

48-9662

A problem novel for teen-agers. The Falters, lacking courage, often turned to drink. On the death of her mother, seventeen-year-old Brook Falter was left alone to cope with this problem of her father's. Altho tempted to live with wealthy relatives, she remained loyal to her father and eventually effected his cure with the help of her many good friends.

Booklist 45:143 D 15 '48

"Bridging the neglected gap between the outright juvenile and the adult novel, Mina Lewiton has written maturely and honestly about a subject hitherto taboo in the field of young people's books. That she has been able to produce a novel so sensitively penetrating, so restrained, yet deeply moving, while treading constantly on dangerous ground, marks her as an outstanding writer for young people." P. A. Whitney
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 D 26 '48 340w

"There is nothing either shocking or repulsive in the handling of this problem and much of the book is convincing. . . But Brook as a person is pale and shadowy and the wholly roseate ending robs the book of a force which a more austere treatment might have given it. Important as it is to bring to youth a serious treatment of important problems, one feels that Miss Lewiton has been only partially successful in fitting the complexities of her theme into a teen-age framework." E. L. Buell
— + N Y Times p49 N 21 '48 270w

LEY, WILLY. The lungfish, the dodo, and the unicorn; an excursion into romantic zoology. new ed rev & enl 361p il $3.75 Viking

591.5 Animal lore. Zoology 48-8709

"Completely rewritten text of The Lungfish and the Unicorn [Book Review Digest 1941]. Author explains work of Pliny, Gesner, Linnaeus, etc.; attempting to list and group animal world, he found animals which would not fit classifications. . . Ley traces Pliny's Polypus and Olaus' Krakan to mythological Gorgon's head; gives us sea serpents (real and imaginary) dragons, dodos, giants and peacocks in the Congo where peacocks should not grow." Library J

Reviewed by H. B. Nichols
Christian Science Monitor p11 O 21 '48 650w

"Compendious in its research, and of extra-curricular appeal, this for the natural (and unnatural) history audience."
+ Kirkus 16:356 Jl 15 '48 150w

"Fascinating account emphasizing importance of appending 'as far as now known' for who can tell what other biblical or mythological beast is living in unexplored forests or ocean depths? Recommended." D. F. Lucas
+ Library J 73:1085 Ag '48 150w

"Mr. Ley writes very clear, direct exposition. He also digs into history with what is traditionally called German thoroughness. All in all, his is quite a remarkable book." J. W. Krutch
+ Nation 167:553 N 13 '48 140w

"Mr. Ley has a facile pen, backed by German thoroughness for details of research, and each chapter is a model of popular documentation of the subject." William Beebe
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p34 N 28 '48 600w

"Fascinating is not an adjective to be applied lightly to any book . . . but it is an adjective which I apply with firm confidence to the revised, expanded edition of 'The Lungfish, The Dodo, and The Unicorn.'" B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 31:32 O 23 '48 370w

LEYSON, BURR WATKINS. Fighting crime; the New York city police department in action; il. with phot. by the author. 193p $2.50 Dutton

352.1 New York (city). Police department 48-8192

Describes the activities of the New York city police department, especially the harbor patrol, the aviation bureau, and the traffic division. Partial contents: The detective division; The police crime laboratory; Tracking down the 'hot' cars; The police emergency squads; The Police academy; Police work as a career. Index.

"A more factual treatment than Behind the Silver Shield [Floherty]. Many libraries will want both."
+ Booklist 45:122 D 1 '48
Kirkus 16:282 Je 15 '48 90w

"A useful book for the citizen—and for the man who strays from the right path. It proves once more that crime doesn't pay." W. B. Hayward
+ N Y Times p33 S 12 '48 450p

L'HOMMEDIEU, MRS DOROTHY (KEASBEY). Leo, the little St Bernard; il. by Marguerite Kirmse. 64p $2 Lippincott

Dogs—Legends and stories 48-2896

Story for 4 to 8 year olds telling how Leo wins his chance to become a rescue dog at the Hospice of St Bernard.

Booklist 45:53 O 1 '48

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p5 Ag 31 '48 180w
Commonweal 49:146 N 19 '48 40w

"Authentic and appealing pictures make the region vivid, and an interesting story captures the imagination while giving information." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 24:370 S '48 80w

"Neither the text nor illustrations are in today's manner, but there are enough requests for stories about this breed of dog for it to be useful with eight to ten-year-olds in large collections and where the author's other books are read." E. W. Turpin
+ — Library J 73:1198 S 1 '48 80w

Reviewed by S. C. Gross
N Y Times p11 S 5 '48 150w

"Almost any child who sees Marguerite Kirmse's drawings of a St. Bernard puppy sitting in a field near the St. Bernard Pass, gazing solemnly before him will want this book. He is irresistible." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 31:38 S 18 '48 80w

LICHTY, LESTER CLYDE. Thermodynamics. 2d ed 341p $4.50 McGraw

621.101 Thermodynamics 48-5383

"Much of the text has been rewritten for clarification; new material and methods are added. Textbook format. Appendix of formulae and tables. Charts mounted in back of book." (Booklist) Index.

Booklist 44:316 My 15 '48

"Use of this text would provide the student with ample practice in analysis of certain standard types of processes. However, the reviewer feels that, because of the rather loose presentation, the student would not gain sufficient insight into the principles to enable him to handle intelligently processes differing appreciably from those described." D. B. Broughton Chem & Eng N 26:2456 Ag 16 '48 320w
N Y New Tech Bks 33:29 Ja '48

LIDDELL, VIOLA GOODE. With a southern accent. 261p map $3 Univ. of Okla. press

917.61 Alabama—Social life and customs 48-6090

"This is a day-by-day account of life as it was lived by an average reasonably prosperous white family in the Black Belt of Alabama from the eighteen-eighties to the nineteen-twenties." Sat R of Lit

"The South of Mrs. Liddell's book was content to live only to itself, accepting the status quo, and enjoying all the advantages—of which there were many—to the full. She is most interesting when she is writing of her personal experiences. Her stories, told secondhand, fail somewhat to put across a spontaneity apparent in the firsthand accounts. . . Mrs. Liddell does not try to solve any problems. For that reason, she has written a unique book." B. E.
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 My 19 '48 360w

"The book is thoughtful in conception and sprightly in execution." J. V.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 Ap 4 '48 100w

"There are many humorous stories in the book, and some of them may very well be enjoyed by any reader, although the majority belong to the familiar variety, and, like a good many of Mrs. Liddell's smaller details, prove of not very much interest or entertainment. Nevertheless as a complete and detailed picture of a way of life essentially American and at the same time very Deep Southern the book has undeniable historical and social importance and interest." Herschel Brickell
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:17 My 1 '48 500w

LIDDELL HART, BASIL HENRY. German generals talk [Eng title: Other side of the hill]. 308p $4 Morrow

940.5343 World war, 1939-1945—Germany. Germany. Army. Generals 48-4499

"After the end of the war in 1945, Captain Liddell Hart had the good fortune to have a long series of conversations with most of the German generals detained as prisoners of war in [England], and in this book he sets out and arranges much of the mass of evidence which he has so painstakingly collected. The greater part of the book consists of statements made by German generals, but no less valuable are the author's comments and annotations." (Spec) Index.

Booklist 45:86 N 1 '48

Reviewed by De Witt John
Christian Science Monitor p11 S 30 '48 700w

Current Hist 15:294 N '48 70w

"This should fascinate professional and armchair militarist alike."
+ Kirkus 16:358 Jl 15 '48 110w

"Recommended for public and college libraries." F. E. Hirsch
+ Library J 73:1189 S 1 '48 200w

Reviewed by R. H. S. Crossman
New Statesman & Nation 36:56 Jl 17 '48 700w

Reviewed by W. H. Hale
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 S 26 '48 1300w

"This book must not be taken as history, whole and complete and truthful; it is rather complementary to, and commentary upon, other interrogations and the official Nazi military documents now under thorough study in Washington and London. Viewed within the framework of these qualifications, Liddell Hart's book is a study of great importance and interest, indispensable to anyone who wants to know what really went on during World War II. A 'must' for the historian, it is also a stimulating excursion for the casual rambler through the highways and byways of history." H. W. Baldwin
+ N Y Times p5 O 17 '48 1450w

"The book contains significant reflections on the strength and weakness of the Red Army and on the disastrous schism in the German High Command, in addition to much interesting material that could be expanded into a longer, more profound history—a project that it is to be hoped Captain Liddell Hart is working on right now."
+ New Yorker 24:102 O 2 '48 200w

San Francisco Chronicle p26 O 31 '48 550w

Reviewed by David Baumgardt
Sat R of Lit 31:16 O 16 '48 1150w

"The reader who comes to this book hoping to find in it sensational revelations will be disappointed. The 'other side of the hill' is pretty much as we would have expected it to be during the war years. The most sensational part of the book is that relating to Dunkirk and the invasion of Britain, and much of what is said on these topics requires very careful critical examination. The real value of the book, however, lies in its portrait of a class of professional soldiers reacting to defeat and in the materials it provides for a study of the fascinating problem of the relationship between the civil and military power in time of war." S. H. F. Johnston
+ Spec 180:744 Je 18 '48 600w

Time 52:116 O 25 '48 500w

"On the whole, the generals do not seem to have been consciously trying to make a case and Captain Liddell Hart pays tribute to their objectivity, which is in any case a common quality among professional men talking shop, though it is clear from their own account that they were completely in the dark on matters not strictly military and were often inadequately or tardily informed about higher strategy. . . On the whole, the most interesting thing about the other side of the hill is that we find there so little that was not either known or reasonably assumed while the war was still going on."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p283 My 22 '48 1450w

LIEB, FREDERICK GEORGE. Pittsburgh Pirates. 299p il $3 Putnam

796.357 Pittsburgh. Baseball club (National league) 48-6739

"Mr. Lieb gives a detailed if uncolored recital of baseball's past and present in Pittsburgh. He begins with the very start of the game there in the post-Civil War days and traces it right up to the beginning of the present season when Ralph Kiner, the home-run king, shares the affections of the fans with Bing Crosby, one of the owners of the club. In the pages appear such fabulous figures as Connie Mack . . . Honus Wagner, regarded by many as the greatest player of all time . . . Babe Adams . . . Fred Clarke . . . and many others." N Y Times

Booklist 44:333 Je 1 '48

Cleveland Open Shelf p13 Jl '48

Kirkus 16:210 Ap 15 '48 80w

Library J 73:1030 Jl '48 20w

Reviewed by Harry Keck
N Y Times p19 Ag 1 '48 550w

LIEBER, MRS LILLIAN (ROSANOFF). Mits, Wits and logic; drawings by Hugh Gray Lieber. 240p $3 Norton

164 Logic, Symbolic and mathematical. Science—Philosophy 47-11623

"In an earlier work Lillian Lieber used the initials of the Man In The Street to name her hero, 'Mits' and his wife, (the woman in the street) 'Wits.' In her new book we are introduced to SAM—derived from Science, Arts and Mathematics. He embodies what is best in these three immense categories of learning, and we are invited to follow his teachings if we wish to live happily and successfully. In fact . . . we are advised that we had better follow SAM if we want to live at all, since the nuclear physicists are well-nigh unanimous that in a new atomic war our present civilization will effectively be destroyed." N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R

"The author's concepts are sound, the reasoning simple, but the technique of placing one phrase on a line as in free verse antagonizes some readers."
+ — Booklist 44:177 Ja 15 '48

"Entertaining mental exercise, worthwhile brain teaser, for the somewhat 'advanced' reader."
+ Kirkus 15:563 O 1 '47 160w

Reviewed by D. D. Miller
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 Mr 7 '48 500w

School & Society 66:367 N 8 '47 30w

LIEBERSON, GODDARD, ed. Columbia book of musical masterworks; introd. by Edward Wallerstein. 559p $5 Allen, Towne & Heath

780.072 Music—Analysis, interpretation, appreciation. Musicians. Phonograph records 47-11238

"Here in one volume are collected the program annotations issued for the Columbia Masterworks series of record albums over a period of twenty years, together with notes for additional recordings presently to be released. Approximately one thousand compositions are listed alphabetically under eighty-five composers ranging from Bach to Hugo Wolf and including several European and American contemporaries." Music Lib Assn Notes

"Almost any of it can readily be found in the standard reference tools, and probably in more acceptable form." C. K. Miller
Library J 72:1612 N 15 '47 80w

"This diversity of authorship may be, as the editor claims, 'refreshing,' but it leads to a certain confusion of approach. Some of the notes are pedestrian or overly technical for the general reader; others are charmingly written and will arouse the interest and curiosity of the novice. The biographies which introduce the works of each composer are, on the whole, popular and readable. . . As a reference tool, The Columbia Book of Masterworks will not supplant any works already in the field, but it will prove a useful addition to library shelves. As a companion volume to Columbia recordings, it will be a convenient handbook for the individual owner, and will be less subject to loss than single leaflets and more compact and more easily consulted than the inside cover notes of the later albums." Gretta Smith

LIEBERSON, GODDARD—Continued

+ — Music Lib Assn Notes 5:102 D '47 430w

"Superficial and prevailingly dilettantish in attitude but factually accurate, the notes are neither better nor worse than most others."

Theatre Arts 32:83 F '48 80w

LIEBMAN, JOSHUA LOTH, ed. Psychiatry and religion [addresses at the Temple Israel institute on religion and psychiatry held in Boston in Oct, 1947] introd. by Albert A. Goldman. 202p $3 Beacon press

258 Psychology, Pastoral. Psychotherapy 48-10344

"Toward the end of October, 1947, the late Joshua Loth Liebman . . . gathered together at the Temple Israel in Boston certain religious and psychiatrical authorities of New England for a two-day conference on the subject of Religion and Psychiatry. The present volume, with the addition of a felicitous In Memoriam to Dr. Liebman by Rabbi Goldman, presents the papers delivered on that occasion, as well as a transcript of ensuing question periods." N Y Times

Booklist 45:187 F 1 '49

"This volume measures the greatness of our loss in the passing of Rabbi Liebman. It is evidence that what he could create within himself he could reproduce in its social form. . . This volume is evidence that he could inspire and fruitfully organize a conference of religionists and psychiatrists." W. B. Blakemore

+ Christian Century 65:1176 N 3 '48 850w

"While the conference was no doubt not only interesting but meaningful to those who attended it, the written record of it falls flat. However, the publication of the volume and its discussion of mental health, the emotional needs of childhood, adolescence, marriage and grief may underscore the necessity of close collaboration between psychiatrists and religionists. It may lead to further conferences and to other books which will deal with the subject in a more thorough-going way."

Kirkus 16:594 N 15 '48 130w

"It cannot be said that this symposium is altogether successful or, in fact, that it even keeps very close to its title. . . No one can doubt the laudable, almost evangelical fervor that inspired Rabbi Liebman in this enterprise. 'I had the hope,' he says in his Preface, 'that the sanctuary and the laboratory might be mutually helpful. . . The enthusiasm both of the religionists and the scientists who participated in the discussions is indeed a happy augury for future cooperation between religions and psychiatry.' But, with all the good will in the world, it is difficult for the reader to discover in these pages this 'happy augury.' . . 'Psychiatry and Religion,' however, will probably be best remembered as an endorsement of that enormous hope and confidence in modern man and modern psychiatry so strikingly shown in Dr. Liebman's 'Peace of Mind.' " J. W. Chase

+ — N Y Times p12 N 14 '48 700w

LIEU, DAKUIN KEETAU (LIU TA-CHUN). China's economic stabilization and reconstruction; pub. under the auspices of the Sino-international economic research center, New York and the China inst. of Pacific relations, Shanghai. 159p $3 Rutgers univ. press

338.951 Reconstruction (1939)—China. China—Economic conditions. China—Economic policy 48-6207

"A study of China's economic problems, with detailed information by the Commercial Counselor of the Chinese Embassy in Washington." (Current Hist) Index.

"In his approaches to the problems of planning, Mr. Lieu displays a sophistication which is all too rare among economists and government officials in the relatively undeveloped countries. Nevertheless, so intricate are the problems of China that, as with many other planners, his prescriptions for China sometimes fall into the very pitfalls which his diagnosis was careful to avoid." E. P. Reubens

+ — Am Econ R 38:936 D '48 1350w

Current Hist 14:296 My '48 20w

"The book as a whole has a balanced and objective quality. It sets forth, without dodging issues, the seriousness of the Chinese position, and is of value to Western readers because it gives the Chinese point of view, enriched by historical perspective and comprehension of the present scene. It presents a sequence of factual materials that are essential to an understanding of China's problem and in so doing it provides the basis for intelligent judgment concerning aid to China and the possibilities of economic reconstruction." J. E. Orchard

+ Pacific Affairs 21:299 S '48 800w

LILGE, FREDERIC. Abuse of learning; the failure of the German university. 184p $2.75 Macmillan

378.43 Colleges and universities—Germany. Education—Germany 48-5204

The author left Germany as a young student and is now assistant professor of education at the University of California. In this book he has made an historical inquiry into the German universities in an effort to answer the question: why did so many German scholars lack courage to oppose Hitler. Index.

"The book is confined to the domain of ideology. Not even an allusion is made to the economic foundations and sources of power of the Nazis. It is a learned book; all authors are carefully quoted; all translations are correct; nothing is said that is decidedly wrong. And yet the book gives no answer to the question it poses." E. J. Gumbel

Ann Am Acad 257:217 My '48 550w

Booklist 44:244 Mr 15 '48

Foreign Affairs 26:745 Jl '48 30w

"Book contains many fine observations on the German academic spirit. Period of Nazi rise however, is treated too briefly, and more might have been said also about the attempted revival of German universities since 1945. Nevertheless Lilge's book is valuable addition to growing literature on modern Germany and is recommended for larger and college libraries." F. E. Hirsch

+ — Library J 72:1538 N 1 '47 140w

"Lilge's book is an excellent and disturbing summary of the currents of thought that have dominated the German mind in recent generations. My only criticism of it is that it is limited in scope and inclined to be somewhat academic." S. K. Padover

+ — Nation 166:381 Ap 3 '48 850w

"Dr. Lilge has a special gift for unraveling the cultural and moral implications of ideas. And he has the biographical advantage of combining inside knowledge with outside experience. . . The history of ideas, does not suffice to explain what has happened in Germany. In fact, Dr. Lilge fails to make it clear that the ideological developments which he so lucidly recounts took effect in a peculiar social climate. . . I need scarcely add that Dr. Lilge's book is an important contribution despite its inherent deficiency." Siegfried Kracauer

New Repub 118:23 F 23 '48 1000w

Reviewed by A. J. P. Taylor

New Statesman & Nation 35:198 Mr 6 '48 1000w

Reviewed by Peter Viereck

N Y Times p6 F 29 '48 750w

New Yorker 23:86 F 7 '48 100w

San Francisco Chronicle p12 Mr 28 '48 250w

Reviewed by Felix Gilbert

Sat R of Lit 31:23 My 22 '48 1150w

School & Society 67:47 Ja 17 '48 30w

Social Studies 39:144 Mr '48 10w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:170 Je '48 320w

LILLARD, RICHARD GORDON. Great forest. 399p il $5 Knopf

634.9 Forests and forestry—U.S. U.S.—History Agr47-28

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"The absence of full documentation will be noted by professional historians, who also may question the complete objectivity of his account of the relationship of the great lumber companies and the lumber workers in the past eighty years. Nevertheless, the volume is well worth the time of any student of American history and is especially pertinent now when the remnants of our timber in the national forests and parks are under determined attack from alert pressure groups." R. F. Lee
+ — Am Hist R 53:562 Ap '48 480w

Cleveland Open Shelf p3 Ja '48

"Mr. Lillard's industry in consulting sources has been prodigious, but the touch of authenticity comes from the fact that he knows ecology and has lived and worked in the forest. Essential to the conservationist, the book can stand on its merits as a true story for the general reader."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:89 Mr '48 220w

LILLIE, AMY MORRIS. Book of three festivals; stories for Christmas, Easter and Thanksgiving; il. by James MacDonald. 189p $2.50 Dutton

48-5874

Three stories for each of three holidays; Christmas, Easter and Thanksgiving.

Booklist 44:339 Je 1 '48

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 24:200 My '48 80w

Kirkus 16:109 Mr 1 '48 90w

"Recommended." N. L. Rathbun
+ Library J 73:658 Ap 15 '48 70w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 F 29 '48 150w

"With the clarity and grace characteristic of her 'Nathan, Boy of Capernaum' [Book Review Digest 1946] and 'Stephen, Boy of the Mountain' [Book Review Digest 1947], the author here writes of such widely different subjects as the Children's Crusade, an Indian boy's part in the first Thanksgiving, and a modern child's Christmas tree, weaving around each a vivid story peopled with believable and appealing characters. Quiet pleas for racial tolerance, devotion to duty, and unselfish service are inherent in stories whose backgrounds bring other times and places into sharp focus. Children from 10 up will enjoy reading the book for themselves; even younger ones will like hearing the stories read or told." Elizabeth Hodges
+ N Y Times p26 Mr 14 '48 180w

LIM, SIAN-TEK. More folk tales from China: with il. by William Arthur Smith. 160p $2.50 Day

398.2 Tales, Chinese 48-6517

A companion volume to the author's Folk Tales from China (Book Review Digest 1944). The stories are grouped in the following sections: Stories of the beginnings of things; Fairy tales of long ago; Magic tales of long ago; Stories of heroes and sages.

Booklist 44:321 My 15 '48

"Printed in short paragraphs and illustrated with distinctive decorations in gray, the pages are easy to read and very attractive." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 24:192 My '48 120w

Kirkus 16:214 My 1 '48 110w

"Because of brevity and subject-matter, most of the tales will not appeal to the story-teller but will be of immense value to children studying the culture of China and character of its people. . . Format excellent. Recommended." Clara Adams
Library J 73:716 My 1 '48 80w

"Whether sad or amusing, the stories are told in a gentle and quiet way and the illustrations by William Arthur Smith are carried out in the same tone." Irmengarde Eberle
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Jl 25 '48 230w

Reviewed by Phyllis Fenner
N Y Times p12 Jl 4 '48 50w

New Yorker 24:139 D 11 '48 100w

"It is good to have the traditional literature of China so well represented." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 31:34 Je 12 '48 80w

LIN, YU-T'ANG. Chinatown family. 307p $3 Day

48-8761

"[Novel showing] how a Chinese laundryman's family, transplanted from its native village, gets assimilated by New York, by dint of industry, the Bill of Rights, and a dash of Taoism." New Yorker

Booklist 45:66 O 15 '48

Reviewed by Pearl Strachan
Christian Science Monitor p16 N 5 '48 300w

"There's none of the cheap jocosity of the pigeon-English humorist approach. . . But as a novel, it lacks focus."
Kirkus 16:448 S 1 '48 170w

Reviewed by F. H. Bullock
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 N 28 '48 600w

"There is a bright and moving reality in these people; in their Chinatown background and in their ways and attitudes there is often an attractive strangeness. Yet the reality makes the strangeness only a shine on the surface. For underneath, these Fongs are not so much Chinese or Sino-American as they are—stalwartly and memorably—human beings. And it is their humanity, so warm and common and compelling, which gives to the novel its fascination and its strength." Richard Sullivan
+ N Y Times p5 O 10 '48 800w

"An exceedingly placid chronicle. . . Despite some apt gibes at the more absurd facets of Western culture, Mr. Lin proves that he is much handier at dealing with life and learning in the Orient than with similar matters over here. His spotty attempts to reproduce his countrymen's broken English are embarrassing."
+ — New Yorker 24:132 O 16 '48 170w

San Francisco Chronicle p10 Ja 23 '49 250w

"The tale itself, is meandering and quite unexciting, as it traces the careers of the Fongs along their separate ways, to individual forms of happiness. The tone is the thing here. There is no need to explain at this time the warm and amiable penetration of Lin Yutang's writing. He has not extended himself. He has been content to make his point, quite openly, within the confines of a simple experience told without any fireworks at all. There is some Lao Tse here too, slipped into the narrative as an extra fillip for the intellectually curious." N. L. Rothman
+ Sat R of Lit 31:38 O 9 '48 550w

LINCOLN, ABRAHAM. Autobiography; with an account of its origin and history and additional biographical material by Robert Dale Richardson. 45p il $1.50 Beacon press

B or 92 48-5314

"The so-called 'autobiography' is a sketch prepared by Lincoln early in 1860 at the request of his friend Jesse W. Fell, who wanted the material for use in launching a Lincoln-for-President movement in Fell's native state, Pennsylvania. The document contains about 600 words. . . This large-paged volume is built around a facsimile reprint of the original letter in Lincoln's handwriting. To this Mr. Richardson adds ample background material and an interesting section reporting Jesse Fell's understanding of Lincoln's religious views

LINCOLN, ABRAHAM—Continued
which, on the basis of long and intimate acquaintance, he describes as similar to those of Theodore Parker. Parker's prior use of the phrase, 'government of all the people, by all the people, and for all the people,' gives added force to this parallel." Christian Century

Christian Century 65:49 Ja 14 '48 250w

Reviewed by F. L. Bullard
Christian Science Monitor p16 F 12 '48 480w

"Mr. Richardson has had the grace and discretion to let these documents speak for themselves except for brief transitional continuities. His little book, therefore, exemplifies Lincoln's own combination of charm and modesty." J. L. B.
+ J Philos 45:224 Ap 8 '48 100w
N Y Times p16 F 15 '48 130w

LINCOLN, ABRAHAM. Papers; the story of the collection with selections to July 4, 1861 by David C. Mearns; introd. by Carl Sandburg. 2v 332;333-681p il $10 Doubleday

973.7 U.S.—Politics and government. Lincoln, Abraham. U.S.—History—Civil war—Sources 48-9019

"Shortly after Lincoln's death all the papers which had accumulated in his office files during the presidency, plus many more which he had brought with him from Springfield, were removed from the White House by his son. From that time until July 26, 1947, when the collection was first opened to the public, these papers were shrouded in secrecy. In the introductory chapters of The Lincoln Papers David C. Mearns presents the dramatic history of the collection. . . Following this introductory section is the main body of these two volumes—a selection of more than 500 vital documents from the monumental collection now in the Library of Congress, with notes when they are necessary to make the papers completely intelligible to the reader." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 45:118 D 1 '48

Reviewed by Jay Monaghan
Chicago Sun O 21 '48 550w
Kirkus 16:417 Ag 15 '48 220w

Reviewed by J. G. Tobin
Library J 73:1508 O 15 '48 130w

"The total effect is, somehow, that of an intensely real man, set forth to the life in his precise words, but exhibited in the hall of mirrors which was his time. The mirrors are his correspondents. Some of them were clear, and represent him as he was. Some of the mirrors were rough or irregular or tarnished, and they exhibit him not as he was but as his correspondents imagined or wished or suspected him to be. Here is Lincoln as he was, so far as he could say it. Here is his time in confusion and misunderstanding, in shrewd perception or in honest guesses about him by plain men and women." Carl Van Doren
+ Nation 167:468 O 23 '48 1000w

Reviewed by J. G. Randall
New Repub 119:23 N 29 '48 1300w

"Mr. David C. Mearns has edited two hefty volumes of selections from the Robert Todd Lincoln papers which prove not only that the Lincoln manuscripts are indeed in the Library of Congress but also that they are a veritable treasury of source materials for the Civil War era. . . But the President himself appears rarely in these papers. He is the principal character who constantly remains just offstage. . . For after all 'the outstanding contribution of the Lincoln papers comes from the materials which were addressed to him.' If these documents give only occasional glimpses of Lincoln, they afford a veritable panorama of the American people." David Donald
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 O 31 '48 1600w

"The publication of these letters in the present book reveals that Lincoln or his clerical staff saved not only letters from bigwigs but from cranks, smart alecks, village job-hunters, emotional well-wishers, humble and unselfish patriots, fools—a flood of lowly saints and sinners. It does seem characteristic of Lincoln to have saved many of these for the comic relief he always craved. . . Mearns wisely refrains from printing those letters which Nicolay and Hay have already published, and limits himself to selections which seem to him representative of the collection as a whole. The most interesting revelation contained in these selections is the new insight they give into the mind of the American people." Lloyd Lewis
+ N Y Times p1 O 31 '48 1400w
New Yorker 24:144 N 27 '48 170w

"This is a book for everybody; it is our country and our people; and it is wonderful reading." Alfred Kay
+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 O 31 '48 1700w

"Admirable addition to our Lincolniana." G. F. Milton
+ Sat R of Lit 31:16 O 30 '48 1050w

"Our debt to Mr. Mearns is great, for nothing written about the martyred President can ever replace this deeply moving record, now so happily edited, of what his contemporaries actually said to him." J. A. Krout
+ Yale R n s 38:346 winter '49 1250w

LINDBERGH, CHARLES AUGUSTUS. Of flight and life. 56p $1.50 Scribner

501 Science—Philosophy 48-8089

"Mr. Lindbergh here attempts to present his personal views of our present dilemma, thus joining an ever increasing number of persons who have felt a similar compulsion to speak aloud—for 'time is short.' The chief item of news is the author's often savage attack on scientific materialism, a doctrine to which he once subscribed. . . The second half of this book presents what might be called the author's philosophic appeal to his fellow countrymen." N Y Times

Booklist 45:29 S 15 '48
Cath World 168:255 D '48 190w

"Whether you are an ardent admirer or bitter critic of Charles Lindbergh, it will be good for your soul to read 'Of Flight and Life.' This little book of less than sixty pages reflects some pretty bold thinking on an issue that is likely to become increasingly important." S. D. Kirkpatrick
+ Chem Eng 55:291 D '48 460w

"Slender but, in many respects, remarkable book. . . The potential effectiveness of Lindbergh's fervent plea is vitiated by the fact that careful reading of the book leaves one doubting whether the author has really freed himself from the kind of thinking that made him a valued ally of profascist groups in prewar days. . . No less remarkable are Mr. Lindbergh's misrepresentations of historic facts, and the number of contradictory statements he makes." E. S. P.
— Christian Science Monitor p16 Ag 28 '48 850w

"It is highly significant that the two Americans of our day who are preeminent for encompassing both action and thought, Charles Lindbergh and Douglas MacArthur, have declared that there is no answer to our problem short of a theological orientation. This is a wise book, for which one can confidently predict a frigid reception. . . That his message is sober, thoughtful, and well directed no one can deny; and it seems to me that a man who has worked in close relation with the terrific pressures generated by our technology has something special to say to this age." R. M. Weaver
+ Commonweal 48:573 S 24 '48 450w

"If perhaps not new in its moral, international implications, this is briefly, sincerely argued."
Kirkus 16:352 Jl 15 '48 140w

"Few people living today are better able to write of scientific progress in the air; that fact coupled with good writing, his consistent attitude and that of his father before him in regard to the folly of war lends authority to this book. Recommended." H. P. Bolman
+ Library J 73:1085 Ag '48 130w

"When he talks about the need for quality in our civilization, it sounds fine enough at the start, but soon rambles off into something strangely like the American Century, with all its implied national arrogance. In the end, the mysticism with all its eloquent appeal for an agreement between science and spiritual values, seems shallow, a little pompous and essentially devoted to a defense of practical American power domination. It is the same Charles A. Lindbergh." Richard Watts
New Repub 119:24 Ag 30 '48 1200w

"Mr. Lindbergh has written a book that may be savored for its style and is worth study for the problems it raises; the answers, as Mr. Lindbergh himself suggests, must be sought elsewhere." H. W. Baehr
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 O 24 '48 500w

"'Of Flight and Life' is an unusual book. In less than 12,000 words it touches upon the principal problems of our day. It is the honest expression of one man's evolving responsibility and his new faith in a time of crisis. It carries emotional currents of high tension. For this reason, it should, perhaps, be approached not only with respect but with caution." J. W. Chase
N Y Times p6 Ag 22 '48 1150w
New Yorker 34:71 Ag 28 '48 180w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 S 2 '48 850w

"One of this book's fascinations lies in the fact that its worn news is fresh here, that the author records his long voyage toward conviction as well as giving us his findings. For here is important testimony, from a new perspective: sentient man is bearing witness against scientific man. Here is the case history of discovery through involvment." Riley Hughes
Sat R of Lit 31:12 Ag 21 '48 1100w

"Mr. Lindbergh is a serious and sincere man. It must be said to his credit that he has given a great deal of thought to the ills of the world, and he has had the courage to state his conclusions in a straightforward manner. But no matter how serious the thought, correct conclusions cannot be drawn on the basis of distorted and over-simplified premises." Harrison Brown
Sat R of Lit 31:13 Ag 21 '48 1450w
Wis Lib Bul 44:161 O '48

LINDGREN, ERNEST. Art of the film; an introd. to film appreciation. 242p $4.50 Macmillan

778.5 Moving pictures [48-23227]

An introduction to film criticism, adapted from the author's 1944-46 lectures given at the City literary institute, London. "The book falls into two parts. The first is an introductory section, giving essential practical information on the organisation of film production and on the apparatus used. . . The second part deals with problems of technique and criticism." (Pref) Select bibliography. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 45:9 S 1 '48

"Perhaps the most important critical work on the film to emerge from England where he is the curator of the National Film Library under the auspices of the British Film Institute. . . Highly recommended."
+ Library J 73:1093 Ag '48 70w

"An up-to-date anatomical handbook for students of the cinema." G. F.
Manchester Guardian p3 My 28 '48 160w

"A short, but comprehensive and well-documented work." Luther Nichols
+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 S 5 '48 850w

"Mr. Lindgren falls short in too many places. The paragraph, for instance, in his first chapter that deals with the cost of film-making needs amplification. . .Readable and intelligent though Mr. Lindgren's book is, it contains nothing that is not to be found in the work of his various predecessors. The contents of his first couple of chapters, indeed, are known to the dullest filmgoer from his reading of the fan magazines. Its usefulness lies in its bringing within two covers a little about almost every aspect of the film; its weakness is that it is so very little." Cyril Ray
— + Spec 181:58 Jl 9 '48 450w

"The book is, both in style and in content, a great deal more than a manual but it has something of the manual's ambition to make the layman who comes to it innocent of knowledge curious to find out more, and it encourages him to think for himself."
Times [London] Lit Sup p300 My 29 '48 850w

LINDMAN, MAJ JAN (MRS MAJ LINDMAN-HULTEN). Fire Eye, the story of a boy and his horse; il. by the author. 32p $1.50 Whitman, A.

Horses—Legends and stories 48-2380

When the Benson farm is sold, Bob is parted from his colt, Fire Eye. Two years later he finds him pulling a heavy wagon, but all ends well when Bob grooms Fire Eye for the horse show and wins first prize. For grades 3-4.

Kirkus 16:110 Mr 1 '48 110w

"The clear, bright, uncomplicated illustrations on each alternate page make Fire Eye a natural choice for the child just graduating from the picture-book age." Elizabeth Sussdorff
Library J 73:561 Ap 1 '48 70w
Springf'd Republican p10B My 9 '48 110w
Wis Lib Bul 44:85 Ap '48

LINDOP, AUDREY (MRS DUDLEY LESLIE). Soldiers' daughters never cry. 310p $2.95 Simon & Schuster

48-3949

"Jik Lewis, 18-year old art student, is daughter of a Captain Miller who was thrown out of the Indian army for dishonesty. . . Jik meets two Austrian army officers, Kurt, cruel and arrogant, whom she hates, and Xandi, with whom she falls in love. She uses Kurt in order to get to Austria to be near Xandi. Once there she ditches Kurt, and goes to work in Xandi's sister's hat shop, living with Xandi. . . Then Xandi sends Jik back to England and escapes to join her there. Kurt's death at Jik's hands is ruled as self-defense." Kirkus

"Good light reading with sustained interest, deftly handled, in a fantastic yet fascinating story."
+ Kirkus 16:321 Jl 1 '48 180w

"Jik's Viennese exploits . . . are gay and entertaining. Unfortunately, the melodramatic finish . . . has little of the same charm. . . There is something unpalatable in the frivolous personal use of a world tragedy."
— + N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 S 5 '48 250w

"The story of Jessica's progress is long on melodrama, at the expense of plausibility. Some of the Austrian episodes share the dramatic interest of the tense time in which they are laid, but on the whole the novel reads like one Jessica herself might have written." Beatrice Sherman
— + N Y Times p31 S 19 '48 180w

"The first thirty-odd pages of this novel are pretty good. . . The reader feels entitled to look forward to a better-than-average success-in-adversity story about a bright English girl. What he gets instead, I'm sorry to report, is a third-rate melodrama. . . Soldiers' daughters may never cry. Reviewers sometimes do." Robert Pick
— + Sat R of Lit 31:20 S 11 '48 380w

LINEBARGER, PAUL MYRON ANTHONY. (FELIX C. FORREST, pseud). Carola. 307p $3 Duell

48-5102

Safely back in New York, in a well-paid respectable position as a private secretary to a busy American, Carola Lainger, in a series of flashbacks, reviews the story of her life—childhood, girlhood, student days, and the years of her marriage to a Chinese which ended in ignominy, desperation and flight.

LINEBARGER, P. M. A.—Continued

Reviewed by Bonaventure Schwinn
Commonweal 48:661 Ap 23 '48 320w

"Pedestrian, colorless fictional memoirs which might have turned into melodrama."
— Kirkus 15:676 D 15 '47 170w

"Highly subjective, well-developed portrait with keen insight into personality, and an interesting story. It calls for broader understanding of human foibles and expounds a hopeless, materialistic philosophy. Recommended." E. H. Kennedy
+ Library J 72:1778 D 15 '47 100w

"As a psychological novel 'Carola' falls far short of its obvious intent but as a horror story warranted to make warm blood run cold it could hardly be more successful. . . Psychologically, the author does not adequately explain why Carola endured for fourteen years the misery and degradation of living with her despicable Chinese husband and his cruel mother, much less her motives for murder and treason. Nor does he give a convincing portrayal of the transformation of a woman who from early adolescence was mentally, morally and physically sloppy into a neat, sure, well dressed business woman. Mr. Forrest's use of the English language is masterly, however, and enables him to produce gooseflesh very effectively." Eleanor Lattimore
— + N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 F 1 '48 450w

"If Mr. Forrest had been content to take Carola through a more closely pruned set of circumstances—say, her closeness to China itself, and never mind the spy-and-war-and-murder melodrama—this might have been a better book. Forrest is all right though; he writes in a tone of voice that is all his own, and he's going to do genuinely fine novels before he is through." J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 F 4 '48 450w

"Somewhere, Mr. Forrest ran off the track and what started out to be the interesting story of Carola Lainger . . . became so utterly confusing through a complex style of constantly shifting flash-backs, that a good point was lost and the book itself failed." A. C. Fields
— + Sat R of Lit 31:15 Ja 24 '48 750w

LINEBARGER, PAUL MYRON ANTHONY (FELIX C. FORREST, pseud). Psychological warfare. 259p il $3.50 Infantry journal

355.43 Psychological warfare 48-1799

"Professor Linebarger, who during the war served in the Special Study Group of Intelligence, the first full-fledged psychological warfare organization in our history, has done what he calls a 'patchwork of enthusiastic recollection' on United States and enemy psychological warfare. His survey is at once a quick history of the warfare technique, a study of its levels, functions and aims, the media employed and an assessment of the effectiveness of different phases and brands in the recent war." N Y Times

---

"Major Linebarger's book is a profusely illustrated and well-written account of all data available to Americans at the present time regarding how populations in wartime react to the propaganda of their own and enemy governments. . . The book is fascinating to the general reader. It is highly suggestive to the social psychologist and sociologist. Its unusual political frankness can be appreciated by a student of government. . . It would be dangerous to let his advice about current foreign relations go unheeded." A. M. Rose
+ Am J Soc 54:246 N '48 800w

"Concerning an otherwise excellent study, two criticisms stand out. First, the author fails to define his subject carefully. . . Secondly, the author occasionally permits value judgments to color his presentation of facts." Martin Kriesberg
+ — Am Pol Sci R 42:812 Ag '48 750w

"This is the most scholarly book that has been published on psychological warfare. . . The one basic criticism is not of the author, but of the publisher. It is too bad that a better job was not done of reproducing the leaflets and other propaganda examples so that they would have been both more legible and more dramatic." S. H. Britt
Ann Am Acad 258:142 Jl '48 350w

Reviewed by W. H. Hale
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ap 4 '48 800w

"It is by no means a comprehensive study, but it is an extraordinary sampling of material and is, to boot, a fascinating presentation in both text and illustrative examples. . . Professor Linebarger's book can be read a half dozen ways—as a critique on a part of modern warfare, as history, as applied psychology, as a study of national characteristics and how they were exploited or even as a post mortem on our confusion in directing the several independent and sometimes cross-purpose branches that operated in the psychological warfare field." Austin Stevens
+ N Y Times p22 Je 6 '48 600w

"This book is important because it is the first published attempt to describe definitely and comprehensively how psychological warfare was organized and how it functioned during the last war. . . The shortcomings of the treatise are numerous but not overwhelmingly significant." L. W. Doob
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:24 Je 26 '48 700w

School & Society 68:80 Jl 31 '48 20w

LINK, MRS NELLE WEYMOUTH. Precision draping; a simple method for developing designing talent [504 line cuts and drawings by May Warner Marshall]. 166p $4 Funk

646.4 Costume design 48-5306

Simple directions for making patterns for basic garments to fit the individual. Instructions are included for making blouses, sleeves, yokes, skirts, and the basic princess pattern. Each step is illustrated with line drawings. No index.

Booklist 44:229 Mr 1 '48

"Treatment of the subject is too brief and on too elementary a level for use in college clothing classes where good teaching requires an analytical approach if students are to master basic principles of pattern designing. Successful pattern making requires far greater precision than is indicated by this book's simplified directions." E. A. Mansfield
J Home Econ 40:270 My '48 90w

"This book, the very first on this subject, lays down the basic rules for using these same methods in order to turn out garments individually styled to suit the personality and body lines of the person for whom it was designed. . .Because the author is an experienced designer of many years' practice in dealing with problems, she has laid out her instructions with clarity and simplicity."
+ N Y Times p19 Ag 15 '48 210w

LINKLATER, ERIC. Art of adventure. 293p $3 Macmillan

920 Great Britain—Biography [A48-5323]

Sixteen essays by a Scottish writer. Contents: General Alexander; James Bridie; Evelyn Waugh; Trevie Napier; Richard Hillary; Mr. Berenson; Robert Burns; The married poet; Jean Armour; Dr. McGrigor; The first attack; The Atlantic garrisons; The rock; H. M. S. Flint Castle; Primavera.

Reviewed by Eric Forbes-Boyd
Christian Science Monitor p20 D 6 '47 440w

Reviewed by E. F. Walbridge
Library J 73:1023 Jl '48 90w

"Here Mr. Linklater reveals himself as a wise, tolerant, humorous man with an immense capacity for enjoying life." Delancey Ferguson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Jl 18 '48 750w

"These occasional essays by Eric Linklater show the witty, slightly reckless author of such previous books as 'Juan in America' in a sober, almost pedantic, light that may come as something of a surprise to his popular following on this side of the Atlantic. There has often been an air of self-consciousness in Mr. Linklater's work and, though the material in these chapters is of quite diverse nature and mainly objective in approach, we are always aware of the author's presence. . . 'The Art of Adventure' is not a book of profound wisdom or of wide appeal. But in it one continuously hears the subdued voice of British pride and courage, the determination to carry on to [the best of] one's ability in a new and shrunken world." J. W. Chase
N Y Times p20 Jl 18 '48 400w

New Yorker 24:72 Je 17 '48 120w

"Through these selected pieces you have the chance to meet and enjoy a cultivated, sharply contemporary mind as it goes about its writer's business of reporting, its critic's business of assaying—and weighing, even (however the author may depreciate it), its editorialist's business of giving advice. And the experience is a good one, an enjoyable one, a worth-while one." J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Jl 9 '48 850w

"Mr. Linklater is as graceful and adept an essayist as he is a novelist, but even he is not always successful in substituting charm for substance. His essay on his friend Evelyn Waugh, for instance, seems to this reader decidedly thin, while his eulogy on the playwright James Bridie belongs quite definitely to the raised eyebrows department." Edwin Seaver
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:14 Ag 14 '48 600w

"Mr. Linklater does not obtrude his personal experience. . . And from his war-time journeys he has brought back some pictures, as clear in outline and as telling in detail as the war pictures of Eric Ravilious and Edward Bawden, of the garrisons in Iceland and the Faroes, of a corvette hunting U-boats in the Bay of Biscay, of the swarming Rock of Gibraltar. . . The three papers on Burns are admirably illuminating, based on a solid knowledge of eighteenth-century Scotland and Ayrshire, on a feeling for the stresses of a poet's life, and on an excellent common sense about the vagaries of human behaviour."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p663 D 20 '47 900w

LINKLATER, J. LANE, pseud. See Watkins, A.

LINSCOTT, ROBERT NEWTON, ed. State of mind; a Boston reader. (City and country readers ser) 428p $4.50 Farrar, Straus

917.4461 Boston—Social life and customs. American literature—Collections 48-7771

A collection of fact and fiction about Boston, beginning with Cotton Mather and ending with J. P. Marquand. . . The volume's "intent is to bring together selections that best give the special flavor of Boston life over three hundred years, most engagingly reveal the atmosphere of the city, and most sharply illuminate the character of its inhabitants and the events which have marked its history." (Introd)

Booklist 45:64 O 15 '48

Reviewed by Rod Nordell
Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 29 '48 750w

"Good reading."
+ Kirkus 16:250 My 15 '48 170w

"Recommended to New Englanders wherever they may dwell, and to libraries they frequent." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 73:1023 Jl '48 140w

"Mr. Linscott has made a book of substantial proportions, singularly free of dull pages, replete with passages of an interest and intrinsic merit which should set a high standard for the series which this volume inaugurates." M. A. DeWolfe Howe
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ag 8 '48 850w

Reviewed by Brooks Atkinson
N Y Times p3 Jl 25 '48 1400w

"A delightful collection. . . The selections, particularly those of seventeenth- and eighteenth-century writers, are unusual and to the point."
+ New Yorker 24:62 Jl 31 '48 160w

"A good job. . . No book, of course, can compress all of a city's background between covers. Mr. Linscott is well aware of this, and has contented himself with choosing, as he puts it, 'to give pleasure,' and allowing the matter of pure information to be a by-product. You'll find enough information here, too, however." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Jl 28 '48 1100w

"The City and Country Reader Series . . . is off to a fine start, thanks to a city whose abundant literature and highly individual, but far from monotonous, character is to be the subject of lively anthologizing; thanks also to an editor who knows that city and its New England matrix thoroughly, affectionately, and with amusement." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 31:25 O 23 '48 1100w

Time 52:84 Jl 26 '48 700w

LINWOOD, J. (LIN CUTLER, pseud). Peg-a-leg, the cobbler of Dunsoon; il. by Henry Stahlhut. [48p] $1.75 Knopf 48-1896

Nonsense story about a cobbler who forgets how to make a right shoe. When the king orders a pair of shoes poor Peg-a-leg makes seventy-two left shoes before he finally, under most distressing circumstances, remembers how to make the right shoe.

Booklist 44:321 My 15 '48

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '48

"Good fun."
+ Kirkus 16:168 Ap 1 '48 90w

"This is a delightfully humorous story in folk-tale style. . . Recommended." D. M. MacDonald
+ Library J 73:716 My 1 '48 50w

Reviewed by Irmengarde Eberle
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Jl 11 '48 140w

"This is a lively little story, and Henry Stahlhut's pictures are serious and funny at the same time. For children 6 to 10." Marjorie Fischer
+ N Y Times p29 Ap 18 '48 140w

Wis Lib Bul 44:106 My '48

LIPMAN, MRS JEAN (HERZBERG). American folk art in wood, metal and stone. 193p 183il 4 col pl $7.50 Pantheon bks.

745 Art industries and trade. Folk art. Sculpture, American 48-11569

"A book on American folk art in wood, metal and stone. . . The ornamented scrollwork on the Franklin stove in the living room, the squirrel cooky cutter in the top drawer of the pantry, the horse-head hitching post up the street, the huge copper cock on the church at the edge of the Common—these are familiar examples of the art of which Miss Lipman's book is the first general survey. . . 183 well-produced illustrations." N Y Times

Booklist 45:154 Ja 1 '49

"Miss Lipman's research has made these men come alive. . . But the imagination is not strained. Miss Lipman's excellent text, in which she uses the minimum of art critic's jargon, is enriched with 183 illustrations, four of them in color. Her 'American Folk Art' is something to keep, and turn to again and again." Richardson Wright

LIPMAN, J. H.—Continued

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 D 26 '48 550w

"Simplified in form, strong and original in execution, this happy, instinctive art of forge, shop and cottage often resembles the sophisticated art of the modern studio. It was a happy idea to record it in book form, and all who care for art and the American experience will be grateful to Miss Lipman for so doing."

+ N Y Times p49 D 5 '48 500w

"Mrs. Lipman, the author of 'American Primitive Painting' [Book Review Digest 1942] can be counted on to enrich any book of hers with perceptive and colorful background material."

+ New Yorker 24:118 D 18 '48 80w

"Miss Lipman has done a notable service to our cultural history in preparing her book about it." R. S. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p7B Ja 2 '49 330w

LIPPINCOTT, JOSEPH WHARTON. Black wings, the unbeatable crow; with il. by Lynn Bogue Hunt. 144p $2.50 Lippincott

Crows—Legends and stories 47-11788

Life story of a crow captured and tamed by a farmer. He grew to maturity without seeing other crows. Among his tricks was his ability to imitate human speech, which was a means of identification in his later years.

Booklist 44:205 F 1 '48

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 24:126 Mr '48 100w

"A refreshing nature book."

+ Kirkus 15:431 Ag 15 '47 100w

"Will appeal to all bird-lovers but especially to those between the ages of ten and fifteen." E. T. Dobbins

+ Library J 73:125 Ja 15 '48 70w

"The stiff and almost unreadable story of a baby crow captured and adopted by a farmer and his family. . . And the tale's ending is reminiscent of Albert Payson Terhune's abject surrender to sentimentality." Stanleigh Arnold

— San Francisco Chronicle p16 D 14 '47 110w

Wis Lib Bul 44:42 F '48

LIPSKY, ELEAZAR. Murder one. 187p $2 Doubleday

48-6932

Detective story.

"Lipsky's book is closer to a scenario than a novel but its economy is efficient and its stage directions as sound as its motives and conflicts." James Sandoe

Chicago Sun My 21 '48 140w

Kirkus 16:157 Mr 15 '48 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Ag 15 '48 70w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p32 My 23 '48 160w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p21 Je 13 '48 120w

"Accuracy of tale makes it valuable handbook on homicide-case procedure. Characters adequate, action sufficient, and 'solution' neat reverse-English twist. Rewarding."

+ Sat R of Lit 31:28 My 29 '48 50w

LIPSON, LESLIE. Politics of equality; New Zealand's adventures in democracy. 520p $6 Univ. of Chicago press

342.931 New Zealand—Politics and government 48-6780

"A study of New Zealand's experiments with such social problems as socialized medicine, minimum wages, old age pensions, government insurance etc., by Professor Lipson (Swarthmore). The history of the country is sketched in briefly, with full attention to the evolution of government and its several departments." (Current Hist) Chronological table. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan
Ann Am Acad 260:228 N '48 600w

"A formal study, readable, but for large public or college libraries."

Booklist 45:6 S 1 '48

Current Hist 15:101 Ag '48 50w

Reviewed by R. S. Lynd
New Repub 119:25 Ag 23 '48 850w

"Students of New Zealand affairs are obligated to read it of course, but scholars and publicists interested in the possibilities of combining democracy and socialism, as in the United Kingdom and on the Continent, will be missing a prize if they pass it by. It is a first-class book, soundly conceived, cleverly executed." C. H. Grattan

+ N Y Times p24 Ag 29 '48 550w

LISTON, EDWARD. The bowl of light. 246p $2.75 Coward-McCann

48-7029

"Dr. Liston, by birth an Englishman and more recently a Californian, parachutes his protagonist, a flight surgeon in a disabled aircraft, into the midst of an Indian tribe living in the mountains of Latin America. The Indians welcome him effusively, indoctrinate him in their ways, and choose a wife for him, all of which so delights the doctor that he considers settling down among them for good. Only his unwitting violation of an important tribal law, which turns his hosts against him, finally compels him to start looking for a trail leading back to town." New Yorker

Kirkus 16:200 Ap 15 '48 170w

"This is a generally entertaining fantasy, with occasional satiric bite."

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ag 22 '48 250w

"Brisk writing in an engaging vein presents the entertaining explanation." W. J. Glick

+ N Y Times p15 Jl 25 '48 140w

"One of the more felicitous examples of that worn literary exercise . . . in which a thoroughly civilized white man set down among savages concludes, after comparing his own involuted cultural habits with the savages' uncomplicated sociology, that Western civilization is a casuistic fake."

+ New Yorker 24:97 Je 12 '48 160w

LITTLE, CONSTANCE, and LITTLE, GWENYTH. Black coat. 189p $2 Doubleday

48-9093

Mystery story.

"By no means the best these two have done—this, which couldn't be lighter, could also be brighter."

Kirkus 16:492 S 15 '48 70w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p28 N 21 '48 140w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p48 N 21 '48 170w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p23 D 5 '48 40w

"Opening gambit has possibilities, and author's imaginings are as antic as ever, but this one lacks speed and gaiety of pre-decessors. Trivial."

— + Sat R of Lit 31:34 N 6 '48 40w

LITTLE, CONSTANCE, and LITTLE, GWENYTH. Black piano. 192p $2 Doubleday

48-5564

Mystery story.

"Lacking some of the funnier, but not fancier, touches of earlier titles by these authors, this is definitely unorthodox."

Kirkus 16:7 Ja 1 '48 80w

"The authors aim to amuse and entertain instead of scaring you silly, which seems a step in the right direction." Will Cuppy

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 Ap 25 '48 150w

"Cockeyed . . . but in a most delightful way." Isaac Anderson

+ N Y Times p27 F 22 '48 150w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle

San Francisco Chronicle p15 F 22 '48 70w

"Plot leaks like a sieve but outrageous didoes of people, including marvelous Aunt Mamie, make tale easy and painless reading."

Sat R of Lit 31:30 Mr 6 '48 40w

LITTLE, ROBERT WEAVER, ed. Flameproofing textile fabrics. (Am. chem. soc. Monograph ser) 410p il $6.75 Reinhold

677 Textile fabrics A48-6367

"The text combines the results of recent research with previously established information to provide a comprehensive survey of the present status of textile flameproofing. It includes reports of the extensive wartime investigations carried out at Columbia University under a National Research Council project, and many data compiled at various service camps and laboratories." U S Quarterly Bkl

"The problem of flameproofing of textiles is important not only for military purposes but also for use in public buildings, hotels, and places of entertainment. This excellent book, describing the wartime developments and studies of the various flameproofing treatments, is therefore very welcome. . . The problem of civilian protection is treated in the last chapter. Unfortunately, a specific course of action designed to prevent future calamities could not be recommended. This book will therefore not be of much use to city licensing boards and fire departments." H. M. Spurlin

+ — Chem & Eng N 26:1801 Je 14 '48 420w

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '48

"The basic researches on the fundamental mechanisms of flame and glow prevention are particularly valuable contributions to the knowledge of textile flameproofing. The book will also be valuable as a single comprehensive source of information on its subject for textile technologists."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:110 Mr '48 220w

LITTLEHALES, LILLIAN. Pablo Casals. 2d ed rev & enl 232p il $3.75 Norton

B or 92 Casals, Pablo 48-9125

New edition of a biography of this Spanish cellist first published in 1929 (Book Review Digest 1930). The author, herself a cellist, writes of Casals' youth near Barcelona, his early successes and achievements, and of his life during the recent troubled years in Spain. This new edition is the result of a visit by the author to the home of Casals in Prades in the French Pyrenees. A list of Casals' recordings. Index.

Booklist 45:141 D 15 '48

Reviewed by C. K. Miller

Library J 73:1666 N 15 '48 80w

"The valuable part of Lillian Littlehale's 'Pablo Casals' is what she has now added to the mere fulsomely adoring sketch published in 1929. One is deeply moved by this additional material which describes Casals's life and work in Spain during the years of the republic, and for the martyred people of Spain in the years of exile after the republic's destruction." B. H. H.

+ Nation 167:585 N 20 '48 190w

"Lillian Littlehales has told the story of Pablo Casals' life out of unstinted and uninterrupted admiration, and has made the central figure of her book not only human but many-sided, lively and recognizable." Herbert Weinstock

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 N 21 '48 550w

"[This biography] is a warmly sympathetic study of a supreme artist who is also a well-balanced human being, and if not faultless from the purely literary point of view, it has the considerable merit of presenting its subject full-length as man and musician. . . Miss Littlehales has a good, if not complete, chapter on the Catalan background of Casals, but apparently remains somewhat confused as to the distinction between the Catalan and Spanish languages and the characteristics of the two peoples." Herschel Brickell

+ — Sat R of Lit 32:26 Ja 29 '49 900w

LIU, TA-CHUN. See Lieu, D. K.

LIVERMORE, H. V. History of Portugal. 502p il maps $10 Macmillan (for the Cambridge univ. press)

946.9 Portugal—History [48-2845]

Covers the whole history of Portugal in outline from pre-Roman times to 1940. Bibliography. Indexes.

"If ever there was a need for a straightforward manual of history, that is so in the case of Portugal, Europe's 'forgotten country.' The last work of this kind, in English, appeared in 1891. English-speaking readers are, therefore, deeply indebted to H. V. Livermore for his . . . serious, lucidly presented study, well documented from Portuguese sources." H. C.

+ Manchester Guardian p3 Ja 27 '48 360w

" 'A History of Portugal' is well organized, with an analytical table of contents, several maps, useful bibliography, reference index, and fairly adequate conventional index; only a good genealogical chart of the Portuguese royal family is missing." F. M. Rogers

+ N Y Times p19 Ap 18 '48 460w

"The story of Portugal is of deep historical interest, presenting many problems. How is it that such a country, by no means patterned by nature, ever came into being? Why is the Iberian Peninsula not one nation? . . How is it that the Portuguese have escaped the extremer forms of Roman Catholic domination and the streaks of cruelty that punctuate Spanish history? To some of these questions Mr Livermore's book supplies the answers. Yet in several ways the book is disappointing, mainly perhaps because the author concentrates so largely upon political history in the narrowest sense. One emerges from its 460 pages with the feeling that Portuguese history consisted of rather sordid squabbles." Maurice Ashley

Spec 180:206 F 13 '48 550w

"Though much is omitted which we should like to have seen included in a history of Portugal, Mr. Livermore's book is a valuable contribution to Portuguese studies."

+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p119 F 28 '48 900w

LIVINGSTONE, SIR RICHARD WINN. Some thoughts on university education. 28p $1 Macmillan (for the Cambridge univ. press)

378 College education, Value of 48-11906

"This, the fifth of the Annual Lectures delivered under the auspices of the National Book League, is an analysis of the purpose of higher education by the Vice-Chancellor of Oxford University. . . The lecture is both critical and constructive. It touches on many of the practical issues of educational administration, but its chief purpose is to elucidate the basic purpose of a university, which, in Sir Richard Livingstone's view, is the formation of a positive philosophy of life." Publisher's note

Christian Science Monitor p12 Jl 27 '48 270w

Reviewed by C. E. M. Joad

New Statesman & Nation 35:482 Je 12 '48 1150w

"Sir Richard Livingstone is already favorably known to American educators as a liberal classicist whose educational judgments merit respectful and thoughtful attention. I find him, in the English tradition, one of the most per-

LIVINGSTONE, R. W.—Continued
ceptive and articulate of those trying to reconcile the best of older university education with the insistent claims for change, although he has neither the sweep nor the concreteness of Alfred North Whitehead's educational papers. In this lecture, we might well be reading an indictment of our own American difficulties in higher education, so similar are the underlying criticisms." Ordway Tead
+ Sat R of Lit 31:13 S 11 '48 380w
School & Society 68:15 Jl 3 '48 20w

LOCKRIDGE, FRANCES LOUISE (DAVIS), and LOCKRIDGE, RICHARD. Murder is served. 240p $2.50 Lippincott 48-8046

Detective story.

Booklist 45:52 O 1 '48

"The Lockridges have made their murderer obvious by the very limitation of their cast, for all that they have to push him out of shape to catch him. The final chapters explore and exhaust a rather attenuated suspense. The solution (in spite of Weigand's compelling reconstruction) is as thin as a whisper. The rest of the course is well run though and the Norths, like the people they meet by bloody chance, are livelier than a good many pages of print." James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p44 O 22 '48 180w

"The Lockridges adorn their pleasing jigsaw with harmless prattle, Manhattan interiors and interesting critters." Will Cuppy
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p22 O 24 '48 200w

"The plot is fully as ingenious as anything that the Lockridge team has previously served up." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p31 O 31 '48 130w
New Yorker 24:119 D 18 '48 110w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p15 N 7 '48 70w

"Something special."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:36 N 20 '48 50w

LOCKRIDGE, MRS FRANCES LOUISE (DAVIS), and LOCKRIDGE, RICHARD. Untidy murder. 254p $2.50 Lippincott 47-12327

Detective story.

Booklist 44:185 Ja 15 '48

"Pam and Jerry North are as agreeable as usual and so, for that matter, is the book." James Sandoe
+ Chicago Sun D 12 '47 290w

"North addicts will find their idols as per usual, Jerry still in need of a tonic and Pam crazy about her cat Martini, at mention of whose name one of the characters mutters, 'Whimsy, for God's sake.' Pam just says, 'One man's whimsy,' and lets it go at that." Will Cuppy
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 D 28 '47 190w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p21 Ja 4 '48 230w

"Mr. and Mrs. North add just the right amount of incoherency to the case. Very satisfactory."
+ New Yorker 23:148 D 13 '47 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p19 D 21 '47 150w

"Good as usual."
+ Sat R of Lit 30:28 D 20 '47 50w

LOCKRIDGE, RICHARD, and LOCKRIDGE, MRS FRANCES LOUISE (DAVIS). I want to go home. 249p $2.50 Lippincott 48-1419

Detective story.

Booklist 44:300 My 1 '48

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Je 4 '48 170w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 My 23 '48 120w

"For the second time the Lockridges have demonstrated that they can get along without Mr. and Mrs. North and Lieut. Weigand. There is no harm in that so long as they turn out novels as good as this one." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p26 My 16 '48 230w

"An uneven mystery, since the tension drops sharply long before matters are satisfactorily cleared up."
New Yorker 24:119 My 22 '48 120w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p13 My 30 '48 90w

"It's a honey!"
+ Sat R of Lit 31:32 My 15 '48 50w
Wis Lib Bul 44:150 S '48

LOCKRIDGE, ROSS FRANKLIN. Raintree county. 1066p $3.95 Houghton
48-245

An epic novel describing a day, the Fourth of July of 1892, in the life of Johnny Shawnessy in which he participates in the holiday ceremonies of his small Indiana town and meets two old boyhood friends. These events set off a series of flashbacks in his mind and he relives his schooldays, his Civil war experiences, his brief political life, his two marriages, and a love affair that ended badly.

Booklist 44:184 Ja 15 '48

"At times, Ross Lockridge is a master of narration and style and, had he not decided to include within 1,066 pages, many of them steeped in eroticism and obscenity, every possible major and minor episode, emotion and meditation of forty-eight years, he might have achieved at least two or three fine novels, instead of this one amorphous production." M. P. Corcoran
+ — Cath World 166:567 Mr '48 350w

Reviewed by Emmet Dedmon
Chicago Sun p5X Ja 4 '48 700w

"Mr. Lockridge has wit and humor, a good memory, and a feeling for the shape and sound of words. He makes good use of such emotional centers as the river and the railroad... Mr. Lockridge also makes effective use of such social events as the revival meeting, the Fourth of July speech, the school picnic, the gatherings at the post office for the mail... The faults of the book are pretty obvious. The thoughts, parodies, dream-dramas in the manner of Joyce are a liability. They suspend the flow of narrative without really deepening our knowledge of the characters. While the flashbacks yield some interesting narrative counterpoint, they kill suspense. The characters are flat. The writer doesn't tell the little things which make people clear, never quite gets his characters into clear focus... The Senator and the Professor are types rather than individuals. The women are little more than mannerisms... The book has many faults, but there is also much good writing in it. Because of this and other values the book might well have had, the reader wishes Mr. Lockridge had possessed the confidence and courage to be completely himself in this novel. There is, incidentally, a functional lustiness of action and word in Mr. Lockridge which to some readers might be offensive." H. M. R.
Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 5 '48 600w
Cleveland Open Shelf p4 Ja 1 '48

"Mr. Lockridge has done handsomely by Johnny Shawnessy; the Raintree County boy holds one's interest and sympathy in a three dimensional fashion. The author has done well with most of his other characters, too. His mob scenes, bloody and pastoral, are lively. That Ross Lockridge writes with pulsing, if misdirected sincerity cannot be greatly questioned. The only trouble, and considering the 1,066 pages, it is quite a piece of trouble, is that Mr. Lockridge in his fervor to put across his encyclopaedia Americana, has bludgeoned and blasted the reader with everything that happened to his Raintree inhabitants and to the nation for fifty-three years!" Elizabeth Johnson

Commonweal 47:450 F 13 '48 700w

Kirkus 15:653 D 1 '47 260w

"This first novel puts Lockridge among America's top-rank writers." R. W. Henderson

+ Library J 73:39 Ja 1 '48 110w

"Mr. Lockridge's bid for the literary accolade of 1948 will probably need no strengthening, though his work will be hard to get into a category. Despite its wealth of practical allusion and realist detail, it must be diagnosed predominantly as romantic, if that adjective can still have any but a derogatory meaning, and one hopes it can. Which indicates that Mr. Lockridge has written just what he wanted, and the way he wanted it, without regard for labels, fashions and style. Perhaps this is not a bad way to write at the end of a world war if you have youth, ardor and a vision to convey. 'Raintree County' has so much of all these that it grips the heart and stirs the mind. By any standard it is a novel of rare stature for these days." James Hilton

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Ja 4 '48 1250w

"An achievement of art and purpose, a cosmically brooding book full of significance and beauty." Charles Lee

+ N Y Times p5 Ja 4 '48 1900w

"This is Mr. Lockridge's first novel, so there is still time for him to learn that bulk is not accomplishment, that fanciness is not literature, and that Thomas Wolfe, while an excellent man in his way, had defects that look absolutely terrible second-hand." Hamilton Basso

— New Yorker 23:79 Ja 10 '48 850w

"There is this to be said for Mr. Lockridge's novel. It is steeped in life. He might have taken for his text the words of Blake, 'the road of excess leads to the palace of wisdom.' The nucleus of the book's design is the hunt for the tree of life, the mythical raintree. Assembling the lost pages of the myth of John Shawnessy, who is Everyman, Mr. Lockridge puts them together in a meaningful pattern." Jane Voiles

San Francisco Chronicle p25 Ja 18 '48 750w

"The writing is everywhere competent and often distinguished; and for those who are bored by subjective lyricism or who do not care for Platonic dialogues among Shawnessy, Garwood Jones, and their friends, other particular episodes have high imaginative power. The book is full-blooded, it has gusto, ribaldry, vision, beauty, and narrative skill. It is also repetitious, overly 'organized,' reminiscent of a variety of predecessors, 'literary' in the wrong sense, and too dependent upon source material. But the breath of life sweeps through its voluminous pages; and it may be that 'Raintree County' marks at last the end of a long slump in American fiction." H. M. Jones

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:9 Ja 3 '48 1350w

Springf'd Republican p10B F 1 '48 600w

"With all due allowance for Author Lockridge's deliberate use of 19th Century melodrama as a convention, the plot of the novel at some points is strained and arbitrary. The unvarying use of some techniques becomes faintly annoying, and the work as a whole has the quality of an assignment brilliantly completed rather than a vision that demanded this and no other form. As an original, spacious and significant work of the second order, however, Raintree County is a success. It is elaborately ingenious and it is fun. It is clearly superior to any of the recent 'giant' novels of U.S. history."

+ — Time 51:85 Ja 12 '48 1000w

Wis Lib Bul 44:41 F '48

"Mr. Lockridge's robust vitality and wild exuberance are delightful; his refusal to condense, select, or simplify and his inordinate prolixity are exasperating. His symbolism is generally murky and ineffectual." Orville Prescott

+ — Yale R n s 37:574 spring '48 220w

LOEB, LEONARD BENEDICT. Fundamentals of electricity and magnetism. 3d ed 669p $6 Wiley

537 Electricity. Magnetism. Electromagnetism 47-11162

"College text requiring knowledge of analytic geometry and differential calculus and a concurrent course in integral calculus. Presents phenomena of magnetism followed by the electromagnetic definition of current and potential. The gaussian system of units is used consistently. Earlier editions have a good historical introduction deleted from this edition." (Library J) Indexes. For second edition see Book Review Digest 1939.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 72:1378 O 1 '47 60w

"This text was designed specifically for courses offered to college students who are studying to become engineers, chemists or physicists."

N Y New Tech Bks 32:74 O '47

LOESCHER, FRANK SAMUEL. Protestant church and the Negro; a pattern of segregation; with a foreword by William Scarlett. 159p $3 Assn. press

261 Church and social problems. Negroes 48-7076

A study and statistical analysis of the interracial problems and practices of the Protestant denominations in the United States. The author is a member of the Society of Friends, and is a secretary for race relations of the American Friends service committee. Index.

Reviewed by Jitsuichi Masuoka
Am J Soc 54:386 Ja '49 480w

Booklist 44:331 Je 1 '48

"The Protestant Church and the Negro is a competent study of the discriminatory policies and practices of the Protestant church itself. It is, as Bishop William Scarlett says in the introduction, 'unpleasant reading for those who love the church.' Many ecclesiastics will deny Frank Loescher's figures and then try to rationalize them, but in their hearts they know that his statements are both true and overdue." H. A. Jack

Christian Century 65:944 S 15 '48 700w

"This book should be read by every churchman who claims to be a Christian. It should make our guilty consciences uneasy." B. E. Mays

+ Crozer Q 25:367 O '48 600w

Reviewed by B. E. Mays
J Religion 28:299 O '48 500w

School & Society 67:391 My 22 '48 20w

Reviewed by W. A. Banner
Survey 84:348 N '48 600w

LOFTING, HUGH. Doctor Dolittle and the secret lake; il. by the author. 366p $3 Lippincott

48-8401

Accompanied by his friend Tommy Stubbins and his animal family, good Doctor Dolittle journeys to Africa to help his old friend, Mudface the turtle. Mudface retaliates by describing to the doctor his own very original version of the flood and what came afterwards.

Reviewed by Jane Cobb
Atlantic 182:119 N '48 180w

Booklist 45:91 N 1 '48

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 168:220 D '48 70w

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun p21 O 2 '48 330w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p9 D 21 '48 270w

Commonweal 49:148 N 19 '48 70w

"Full of liveliness, kindness and fun, it will receive in America much the same sort of welcome that the good doctor himself received upon his return to Africa after a long absence." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 24:376 S '48 90w

LOFTING, HUGH—Continued

Reviewed by D. M. Blasco
Library J 73:1521 O 15 '48 70w

Reviewed by Myriam Wilson
New Repub 119:34 D 6 '48 140w

"Complete in itself, this book will be enjoyed most of all by those who have read the others. For they thought there would be no more Dr. Dolittle—and there is." M. L. B.
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 N 14 '48 340w

"Occasionally we agree with Cheapside that Mudface is a bit long-winded, but his story of the start of a new civilization is highly exciting and holds overtones of significance in this post-war world. The doctor is as capable and gracious as ever, the animals as amusing, and the author's inventiveness as fascinating. Age did not wither Hugh Lofting's infinite variety." E. L. Buell
+ N Y Times p35 O 3 '48 230w

New Yorker 24:147 D 11 '48 40w

Reviewed by Grace Stevens
San Francisco Chronicle p6 N 14 '48 220w

"The last, and one of the best, of the Dr. Dolittle stories."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:25 N 13 '48 50w

LOGAN, DWIGHT. Pete the great magician [il. by the author]. 58p $1.75 Scribner 48-6239

Pete, the rabbit, put on a magic show, but the barnyard animals were unimpressed. They too could make milk and eggs appear. Pete was disappointed but cheered up when Grandpa showed him how wonderful rabbits are.

Kirkus 16:168 Ap 1 '48 130w

"Story is good fun and the illustrations are comical. . . Recommended for children 5-7." E. F. Clift
+ Library J 73:1101 Ag '48 70w

"Not recommended." E. W. Turpin
— Library J 73:1101 Ag '48 70w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 My 16 '48 180w

"The adult reader may wonder how Pete managed to take the magician's hat without its being missed, but listeners aged 5 to 7 will undoubtedly accept Dwight Logan's caricature rabbit uncritically and those with a steady grip can derive a special amusement from flipping the pages rapidly to make Pete (in a marginal illustration) leap out of a tall black hat." S. C. G.
N Y Times p12 Ag 1 '48 140w

LOISY, ALFRED FIRMIN. Birth of the Christian religion (La naissance du Christianisme) authorized tr. from the French by L. P. Jacks; with a pref. by Gilbert Murray. 413p $5 Macmillan

270.1 Church history—Primitive and early church [A49-32]

A history of the first two centuries of Christianity. The book was first published in French in 1933. Index.

Booklist 45:43 O 1 '48

"This is the climax of the school of destructive criticism which flourished about the beginning of the century. Its whole basis is destroyed by the appearance of the Ryland's papyrus of St. John, which involves throwing back the Synoptic Gospels well into the first century. A saner criticism, always maintained in this country by Lightfoot and such successors as Salmon, Sanday, Gore and many others, has come into its rights again; and it is a little difficult to understand why the extravagances of an earlier generation should be revived." F. G. Kenyon
— Spec 180:500 Ap 23 '48 900w

"Readers of this book would be well advised to treat most of its author's conclusions with the utmost reserve. Those who are actively engaged in the study of the subject will find many points of interest and many suggestions well worth following up. . . It has only to be added that readers who still adhere to the religion, the birth of which is here described, are likely to be more than a little repelled by the kindly, rather cynical patronage extended to the Founder of their Faith and his early followers."
Times [London] Lit Sup p716 D 18 '48 1000w

LOMAX, JOHN AVERY, and LOMAX, ALAN, eds. 111 best American ballads: Folk song, U.S.A; Alan Lomax, editor; Charles Seeger and Ruth Crawford Seeger, music editors. 407p $6 Duell

784.4 Folk songs, American. Ballads
48-6547

A collection of American folk songs, with words and music and background material for each song. "Choice of songs was limited to those in the English tongue, and even then three types were excluded: 'Child Ballads,' imported from Britain—the aristocrats of our folksong, children's games and songs, and what is described as urban folk-music. The Lomaxes then did what the folk have always done; they made their own versions, combining the best stanzas that they knew and occasionally making portmanteau melodies. Then eight members of the clan debated the results. A few songs were borrowed from such other leading collectors as Barry, Jackson, Niles and Warner, but the book chiefly represents what one family of ballad-loving Americans likes to sing." (N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R) There are selected lists of books and records, and indexes to the explanatory material and the songs.

Booklist 44:333 Je 1 '48

Christian Science Monitor p12 Je 5 '48 700w

"This is a particularly happy book to take on a journey abroad and leave with old friends or chance-met. For it embodies much that goes to make up the real America."
+ Commonweal 48:681 Ap 30 '48 210w

"The book is both informative for the student interested in this phase of Americana, and practical for those who want to use it for group singing, square dancing and various of the newly popular entertainments. A fine piece of book-making with spot drawings, decorative drawings, good typography. The appendices supply excellent and exhaustive lists of books, records, and a unique sort of double indexing."
+ Kirkus 16:229 My 1 '48 120w

"This book is a must for every well-rounded library, private or public, and for all music lovers." H. E. Bush
+ Library J 73:815 My 15 '48 140w

Reviewed by G. P. Jackson
Music Lib Assn Notes 5:377 Je '48 480w

"The best anthology of singable American folksongs that has appeared since 1927, when Sandburg himself published his 'American Songbag' [Book Review Digest 1927]." H. W. Thompson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 My 2 '48 1150w

Reviewed by W. G. Tyrrell
N Y Times p10 My 16 '48 650w

"This is no hastily patched together affair, but a seriously conceived and excellently done addition to the increasing list of books on American song. . . This is most certainly going to take its place as one of the classics in its field, and there's little doubt, I think, that it will take its place on many an American piano rack as well." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ap 15 '48 750w

"This collection is one of the best of its kind. The Lomaxian habit of combining variants, rearranging stanzas, although painful to some folklorists, frequently gives the singer a more coherent story to sing than he could find in any one variant. The settings for piano by Charles and Ruth Seeger are appropriately simple and easy to play. The editors have drawn on their previous collections, but they also have ranged widely among other folklorists and folksingers." Horace Reynolds

+ Sat R of Lit 31:15 Je 26 '48 550w

LONDON, JACK. Jack London, American rebel; ed. by Philip S. Foner. 533p $3.50 Citadel

818 48-12379

"A collection of London's fictional, autobiographical, and polemic writings on social themes, with a long introduction in which the editor reviews London's career, emphasizing his noisy and athletic politics. Dr. Foner attempts to explain the motives behind London's celebrated desertion of the Socialist Party and deals sympathetically with his eventual spiritual collapse and presumed suicide." New Yorker

Booklist 44:199 F 1 '48

"Jack London, American Rebel, is recommended to those readers who would like to learn more about Jack London's works of social protest." Irving Stone

+ Chicago Sun D 11 '47 550w

Reviewed by Thomas Lask

N Y Times p24 Ja 18 '48 1050w

"The selections from London's work are still surprisingly vigorous, but it is always a shock to rediscover how wretchedly he wrote."

New Yorker 23:145 D 13 '47 120w

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ap 11 '48 370w

LONG, MRS GABRIELLE MARGARET VERE (CAMPBELL). Mignonette, a novel, by Joseph Shearing [pseud]. 246p $2.50 Harper

48-7537

Novel of good and evil. Barbara Lawne, a wealthy English woman of twenty-seven, invites her illegitimate half sister to come to the stately Lawne home in England. Mignonette arrives with her continental ideas, so strange to quiet Barbara, and almost at once things of an evil nature begin to manifest themselves. She marries Sir Timothy Boys, a wealthy man many years older, and death strikes his home. Barbara herself is drawn into the atmosphere of terror, and almost loses her life.

Booklist 45:14 S 1 '48

Reviewed by James Sandoe

Chicago Sun Jl 16 '48 180w

Kirkus 16:241 My 15 '48 170w

"Plush romance at a high peak of excitement, done to a turn." Will Cuppy

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 Jl 18 '48 250w

"Once again, as ladies gowned in pastel-tinted muslin swish through vaulted taper-lit corridors and are waited upon by family retainers in soundproof boots, Joseph Shearing displays her mastery of background detail as a perfect companion-piece to mounting suspense." Florence Crowther

+ N Y Times p3 Jl 18 '48 460w

"A below-par addition to this author's authentic-sounding, mildly shivery period pieces."

New Yorker 24:64 Jl 31 '48 100w

"For my money, 'Mignonette' is the best Shearing since, say, the author's 'Moss Rose.'" J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Jl 15 '48 400w

"Very good—of its kind."

+ Sat R of Lit 31:36 Ag 7 '48 40w

Springf'd Republican p7B Ag 29 '48 150w

Wis Lib Bul 44:166 O '48

LONG, JOHN CUTHBERT. Liberal presidents; a study of the liberal tradition in the American presidency. 226p $3.75 Crowell

973 Presidents (U.S.) U.S.—Politics and government. Liberalism 48-9286

"The purpose of this study is to show how the liberal tradition has persisted and grown and how this tradition has been molded by the lives and temperaments of various presidents, as fully as by the conditions of their times. Mr. Long defines liberalism in broad terms and reviews the contributions of Washington, Jefferson, Jackson, Van Buren, Lincoln, Johnson, Hayes, Wilson, and the two Roosevelts. . . A forty-two page appendix contains selections from documents pertinent to the text." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 45:175 Ja 15 '49

"A timely book. . . The appendix is meaty, well organized and a mine of information to the market for this book—students, speakers, teachers."

+ Kirkus 16:467 S 1 '48 150w

Reviewed by J. H. Berthel

Library J 73:1508 O 15 '48 140w

"The word 'liberalism' is hardly one of the clearest in our language. Before Long began to manhandle it, it had several historically acquired meanings, and he has added to them. The result is that the word has here taken on an encompassing degree of generality without gaining any real new meaning. The author never gets beyond his self-created problem of definition. . . Long's text, which runs to only 172 pages, is buttressed by eighteen documentary appendices which include some of the papers of Washington, Jefferson, Monroe, Jackson, Van Buren, Lincoln, Johnson, Cleveland and the two Roosevelts. There is not an illiberal document among them." Richard Hofstadter

New Repub 119:25 D 6 '48 1100w

Reviewed by H. S. Commager

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 N 21 '48 1050w

"A challenging book." F. S. Adams

+ N Y Times p12 Ja 2 '49 800w

Springf'd Republican p12C D 12 '48 550w

LONG, MANNING. Savage breast. 254p $2.50 Duell

48-3622

Detective story.

Kirkus 16:293 Je 15 '48 60w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Je 20 '48 140w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson

N Y Times p15 Je 20 '48 140w

New Yorker 24:92 Je 19 '48 90w

"Lots of fun." E. D. Doyle

+ San Francisco Chronicle p21 Je 13 '48 70w

"Opening cantos diverting and story progresses with much gusto to unexpected climax and lengthy explanation which demands slide-rule, calipers, etc. Pretty good."

Sat R of Lit 31:30 Je 26 '48 40w

LONGSTREET, STEPHEN. Crystal girl. 270p $3 Messner

48-8735

A novel about Americans in post-war France. The chief character is Crystal Whitman who loses love, and in an attempt to find something to take its place, meets defeat and despair.

Booklist 45:66 O 15 '48

Kirkus 16:346 Jl 15 '48 130w

"A feverish novel, and apertif of sophistication with a cynical base. It is smoothly written, about people who lack heart. It lacks warmth."

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p38 N 14 '48 140w

San Francisco Chronicle p15 N 28 '48 150w

LONGSTRETH, THOMAS MORRIS. Great venture. 185p $2.50 Macmillan

French, Daniel Chester—Juvenile literature 48-9137

This novel (or fictionized biography) written for young readers, tells the story of eight years, between the ages of seventeen and twenty-five, in the life of the American sculptor, Daniel Chester French. The book is based on a diary and family letters, supplemented by talks with the sculptor's daughter, Margaret French Cresson, the author of a full-length biography, Journey Into Fame (Book Review Digest 1947).

LONGSTRETH, T. M.—Continued

Booklist 45:181 Ja 15 '49

Reviewed by Margaret Williamson
Christian Science Monitor p6 N 11 '48 300w

"Solid, sound book; well-organized."
+ Kirkus 16:442 S 1 '48 100w

"Excellent biography that not only brings to life the great American sculptor Daniel Chester French but portrays vividly such great Americans as Emerson, Alcott, and Brewster. A very real picture of Concord, Mass., in the late nineteenth century. Good picture of family life and customs of that time. Recommended for older boys and girls." C. W. Field
+ Library J 73:1675 N 15 '48 70w

"It is an unusually interesting biography, convincing and full of life."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:40 N 13 '48 60w

LOOK (periodical). Look at America: New York city [prepared] in collaboration with Frederick Lewis Allen; a handbook in pictures, maps and text for the vacationist, the traveler and the stay-at-home; one of the Look at America regional volumes. (Look picture bk) 393p $5 Houghton

917.471 New York (city)—Description

Picture-guide to New York city and surroundings. Includes sectional maps and brief text. Lists picture credits. Index.

Booklist 44:366 Jl 1 '48

Reviewed by W. J. Marx
Commonweal 48:408 Ag 6 '48 70w

Reviewed by G. E. Cartmell
Library J 73:955 Je 15 '48 70w

"As a whole the book is simply and clearly assembled, and the uninspired text is subordinate to page after page of fascinating pictures."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Ag 15 '48 270w

"[The book] has the advantage of an essay by a professional and articulate New Yorker, Frederick Lewis Allen, the editor of Harpers (itself a New York institution). His contribution is urbane and comprehensive. . . All of [the photographs] are incisive, some of them in color are breathtaking. . . The photographs are supplemented by a terse but informative text." Ed McNamara
+ N Y Times p5 Jl 25 '48 230w

"This should be the most popular New York City guide book this season, something the visitor would like to take back to Aunt Nannie." Meyer Berger
+ Sat R of Lit 31:26 Jl 17 '48 270w

Wis Lib Bul 44:164 O '48

LOOK (periodical). Look at America: the central northeast [prepared] in collaboration with Gerald W. Johnson. 392p $5 Houghton

917.4 U.S.—Description and travel

Photographic survey with brief descriptions of the main attractions of the states of New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania, Maryland, and West Virginia. Index.

Booklist 44:350 Je 15 '48

Commonweal 48:681 Ap 30 '48 90w

Kirkus 16:230 My 1 '48 30w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 11 '48 350w

Wis Lib Bul 44:164 O '48

LOOK (periodical). Look at America; the far West; with an introd. by Joseph Henry Jackson; a handbook in pictures, maps and text for the vacationist, the traveler and the stay-at-home; one of the Look at America regional volumes. (Look picture bk) 402p $5 Houghton

917.8 West—Description and travel

A profusely illustrated travel guide to the three Pacific coast states: Washington, Oregon, and California. For sake of convenience the three are divided into seven sections, with a map for each, and with brief descriptions of cities and points of interest in each. Appendixes include a list of cities and towns, recreational directory, annual events, and a table of highway distances. Index.

Booklist 44:280 Ap 15 '48

Chicago Sun p7X My 30 '48 40w

Commonweal 48:681 Ap 30 '48 90w

Kirkus 16:230 My 1 '48 30w

"Special interest for Western high schools and young people's collections. Worth having in any large collection if budget permits." Eleanor Kidder
+ Library J 73:826 My 15 '48 100w

"Like the others in the series it suggests tours and side trips for the region it covers, provides trip maps in profusion, offers an unusually fine lot of photographs, many in full color, of scenic portions of the region." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Mr 24 '48 370w

Wis Lib Bul 44:164 O '48

LO PINTO, MARIA. Art of Italian cooking. 222p $2.75 Doubleday

641.5 Cookery, Italian 48-6132

More than 200 recipes for soups, pasta, meat, vegetables and desserts. Includes some menu plans and incidental pictures of Italian home life.

Booklist 44:277 Ap 15 '48

"A book for the specialist with lots of other books."

Kirkus 16:41 Ja 15 '48 110w

New Yorker 24:109 Ap 24 '48 80w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ap 2 '48 450w

LORAC, E. C. R., pseud. See Rivett, E. C.

LORCA, FEDERICO GARCIA. See Garcia Lorca, F.

LORIG, CLARENCE HERMAN, and ADAMS, ROBERT R. Copper as an alloying element in steel and cast iron. 213p il $3 McGraw

669.1 Copper alloys. Iron alloys. Steel alloys 48-7443

"The literature on iron copper alloys published to about the end of the first quarter of the year 1934 was cited and critically summarized in J. L. Gregg and B. N. Daniloff, The Alloys of Iron and Copper, 1934. In much the same way, this new work digests and cites the literature that has appeared since 1934. Both works were prepared at the Battelle Memorial Institute." (N Y New Tech Bks) Bibliography. Indexes.

Booklist 45:60 O 15 '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:714 My 1 '48 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:51 Jl '48

LORING, MRS EMILIE (BAKER). Beckoning trails. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 264p $2.50 Little 47-11507

Mystery story.

Booklist 44:185 Ja 15 '48
Kirkus 15:554 O 1 '47 90w
Springf'd Republican p9B N 9 '47 120w
Wis Lib Bul 43:176 D '47

LORING, EMILIE (BAKER). I hear adventure calling. 328p $2.75 Little

48-9218

The action takes place in Maine. Fran Phillips takes a position in a small art gallery, and becomes involved in a mystery in which art smugglers operating from Europe play a part.

Booklist 45:194 F 1 '49
Kirkus 16:454 S 1 '48 80w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p10C D 19 '48 120w
Wis Lib Bul 144:214 D '48

LOTHROP, ELEANOR (BACHMAN). (MRS SAMUEL KIRKLAND LOTHROP). Throw me a bone; what happens when you marry an archaeologist. (Whittlesey house publication) 234p il $3 McGraw

918 Latin America—Description and travel. Archaeology 48-5994

An archaeologist's wife describes her experiences on expeditions in Chile, Guatemala and Panama.

Booklist 44:247 Mr 15 '48

"The whole adds up to a thoroughly informative and hugely entertaining reading experience."
+ Kirkus 16:134 Mr 1 '48 170w

"Lively description of Holy Week celebrations in Atitlan and all night party given natives in Panama before breaking camp, more interesting than author's overplayed ignorance of archaeological science. Entertaining." D. F. Lucas
Library J 73:555 Ap 1 '48 140w

"The illustrations by John O'Hara Cosgrave are delightful, vivid, story-telling, beautifully drawn. He has captured the country and people among whom the Lothrops did their digging and put it down in black and white with humor and exquisite detail which adds to Mrs. Lothrop's picture of the countries touched." M. C. Hubbard
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Ap 4 '48 500w
San Francisco Chronicle p19 My 16 '48 450w

"A thoroughly amusing and informative book." Beach Conger
+ Sat R of Lit 31:39 O 2 '48 190w

Reviewed by G. E. Lyon
Springf'd Republican p7B Ag 29 '48 550w
Wis Lib Bul 44:104 My '48

LOVAT, LAURA (LISTER) FRASER, lady. Maurice Baring; a postscript, with some letters and verse. 116p il $2 Sheed

B or 92 Baring, Maurice 48-7615

A memorial tribute to Maurice Baring; assembled by Laura Lady Lovat, in whose home in Scotland Baring spent the last five years of his life. The little volume consists of a brief memoir by Lady Lovat; some letters from Maurice Baring; poems by Baring; an essay on the effect of the classics on Maurice Baring's mind, by Ronald A. Knox; and a letter in French to Lady Lovat from Princess Marthe Bibesco.

Reviewed by J. S. Kennedy
Cath World 168:216 D '48 50w

"A delightful and moving book." R. G. J.
+ Manchester Guardian p3 F 6 '48 180w

"Her labour of love and piety should not be judged by too astringent a critical standard, for Lady Lovat is the last person to make any claims for this little memoir, which includes an admirable essay by Monsignor Ronald Knox on The Effect of the Classics on Maurice Baring's Mind and a letter about him from Princess Marthe Bibesco. . . Fifty years ago, indeed, it would have been printed on expensive paper and distributed to none but Maurice Baring's intimates. Those intimate friends, however, will probably be grateful to Lady Lovat for her scrupulous little piece of work."
+ Spec 180:116 Ja 23 '48 280w
Times [London] Lit Sup p134 Mr 6 '48 3350w

LOVE, KATHERINE ISABEL, comp. April showers; il. by Garry MacKenzie. [46p] $1 Crowell

808.81 Children's poetry 48-5984

"This tiny book, printed in blue and green and a daffodil yellow, brings short poems of spring from Sara Teasdale, Elizabeth Coatsworth, Hilda Conkling, and Joyce Kilmer with some of the traditional short verses about rain and weather and a short quotation from the Song of Solomon. There is a picture for every page." Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p12 My 25 '48 120w

"Limited appeal, delightful in field."
+ Kirkus 16:234 My 15 '48 80w

"Highly recommended." Lillian Morrison
+ Library J 73:658 Ap 15 '48 40w

"It will make a choice gift for spring birthdays."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:35 Ap 10 '48 90w

LOVEJOY, CLARENCE EARLE. Complete guide to American colleges and universities. 158p pa $1.50 Simon & Schuster

378 Colleges and universities—U.S. 48-3988

"In 1940 Clarence Lovejoy, for many years associated with Columbia University, wrote 'So You're Going to College' [Book Review Digest 1940] which provided essential details for the prospective student. He has now enlarged and revised the earlier edition, placing greater emphasis on the importance of selecting the right college for the individual student. . . Specific information concerning 1,031 degree-granting institutions is outlined, such as the nature of the college, tuition costs, scholarships offered, the type of educational program and the degrees awarded on every level. The colleges and universities are listed in three broad categories, based on approval by accrediting agencies." N Y Times

"A useful book, which doesn't meet the whole need."
+ — Kirkus 16:138 Mr 1 '48 90w

"Lovejoy's guide is a useful, compact volume. It provides considerable information for those who are planning to go to college. It should help prospective students select the college or university in which they will be happiest and do their best work. Parents and high school guidance counselors should be able to make liberal use of this book." Benjamin Fine
+ N Y Times p34 S 12 '48 400w

"Perhaps as important as the 'Educational Baedeker' section of this book is the series of nine essays in guidance that constitute a thoroughgoing preface. These include special advice to young students, parents, veterans; scholarships and loans; slants on picking and choosing; and 'The Mysterious Business of Admissions.' " Gordden Link
+ Sat R of Lit 31:41 S 11 '48 500w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 68:460 D 25 '48 90w
Springf'd Republican p10A Jl 4 '48 360w

LOVELACE, MAUD (HART) (MRS D. W. LOVELACE). Betsy and Joe; a Betsy-Tacy high school story; il. by Vera Neville. 256p $2.50 Crowell
48-8096

This volume in the Betsy-Tacy series carries the boys and girls thru their senior year in high school. The time is the early 1900's.

"Added to warmth, reality, excellent characterization and dialogue, and very nice writing, the book has a delightful aura of other days which charms its readers. We recommend the series." Jane Cobb
+ Atlantic 182:120 N '48 60w

"The repetition of the usual parties with the crowd and family traditions has become somewhat irksome. This is the last of the series. Purchase only if patrons demand it. Junior and senior high schools."
Booklist 45:38 S 15 '48

Kirkus 16:365 Ag 1 '48 100w

"An intensely heart-warming and entertaining story for the older girl. Recommended for ages 12-16." S. J. Robinson
+ Library J 73:1285 S 15 '48 60w

"There is a tang about these Betsy-Tacy stories as sweet and sharp as a fall apple. Set in a little town about 1910, they tell of clothes and customs and parties which are a bit dated, but there is a timelessness about them and a universality of appeal in the doings of these very real young people. There is no doubt that the girls of today recognize this appeal." M. C. Scoggin
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 N 7 '48 360w

LOVELL, ROBERT G. Taking the cure; the patient's approach to tuberculosis; il. by Donald Gooch. 93p $2 Macmillan
616.246 Tuberculosis 48-2393

"All there is to be known about the care of the patient—while he is being cured and afterwards in resuming a normal life and keeping well. Written by a physician for the information of the patient and to secure his cooperation. Three appendices on the use of leisure time reading activities." Wis Lib Bul

---

"At times the phraseology is a bit advanced for many patients in our hospitals and it would have been improved with more illustrations. . . This is a worth while book that will help many patients in the hospital to understand more clearly their personal responsibility in the cure of their disease." H. R. Edwards
+ Am J Pub Health 38:1464 O '48 290w

Kirkus 16:77 F 1 '48 90w

+ Wis Lib Bul 44:146 S '48

LOVETT, ROBERT MORSS. All our years [autobiography]. 373p $3.75 Viking
B or 92 Teachers—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 48-6986

Chronicles the life of an American educator and editor, who at one time held the post of government secretary of the Virgin Islands. "Among Lovett's former students, or those who brought him early manuscripts to read, are James T. Farrell, Vardis Fisher, Janet Flanner, John Gunther, Harry Hansen, Helen Hull, Howard Mumford Jones, Meyer Levin, Janet Lewis, Donald Culross Peattie, Elizabeth Madox Roberts, Vincent Sheean, Odell Shepard, Glenway Wescott, Yvor Winters and Morton Dauwen Zabel, besides a host of other successful writers, including Pulitzer Prize novelists." (N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R) Index.

Booklist 44:367 Jl 1 '48

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun Je 3 '48 550w

"An urbane, brilliant and delightful book."
+ Kirkus 16:186 Ap 1 '48 210w

"Dr. Lovett's autobiography is a calmly related chronicle . . . touched with humor and enlivened with anecdote. It should please everybody with the possible exception of J. Parnell Thomas (Dr. Lovett mildly confesses 'a certain distaste for elected persons.')" E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 73:811 My 15 '48 140w

"Aside from the fact that Lovett was one of the great men and fundamentally important political figures of his time, he has written a book that may become a minor classic. Its author's modesty and urbanity may prevent it from having the broad value of the Steffens and Adams autobiographies. But no historian of Harvard, of Chicago, of Hull House, of the whole history of the American Left in this century, can ignore the information and analysis in this book. It should be read, too, for its style and its rich fund of anecdote." George Mayberry
+ New Repub 118:25 Je 28 '48 1200w

"'All Our Years' suffers a little as a story from the goodness of its author. It is consistently interesting and full of amusing anecdotes, but it is not so vivid as it might have been if Lovett had let himself be spiteful. The episodes that he selects from his experience of more than half a century as professor and editor and chairman of liberal groups are those that cast no discredit on others. Wide as is his acquaintanceship among distinguished persons, he cannot bring himself to repeat the intimate details that would make them stand out from his pages." Malcolm Cowley
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 My 30 '48 1350w

"This is a highly significant book. What Congress calls 'un-American activity' has in this book an exponent as American as Bunker Hill. . . Yet being in no manner a self-seeker, having no rancor in his nature, his generous and robust career is not only fascinating but arresting at a juncture where a deadlock with communism may mean war." Francis Hackett
+ N Y Times p6 My 30 '48 1500w

Reviewed by Audrey Doughty
San Francisco Chronicle p11 Jl 11 '48 850w

"This book, at any time a readable one, seems to have appeared at a very appropriate moment." George Dangerfield
+ Sat R of Lit 31:17 Je 26 '48 850w

School & Society 67:487 Je 26 '48 20w

"Whatever its failures as literature this autobiography is the delineation of a real fighting liberal, for whom 'the rights of man' are something more than words mouthed in election campaigns." W. H. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p10B Je 13 '48 330w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
Survey G 37:318 Je '48 1400w

"All Our Years might have been a critical, informal history of modern U.S. liberalism—a faith more often characterized by editorial fervor than by practical solutions. As Lovett has written it, his autobiography is little more than a pleasant wave to old friends and causes, a sorrowful stare at the enemies of a lifetime."
Time 51:110 Je 21 '48 500w

LOW, MRS ELIZABETH. High harvest; il. by Douglas W. Gorsline. 288p $2.50 Harcourt 48-8370

A Vermont mountain community is the scene of this story of a brave fifteen-year-old girl who played an important part in saving her beloved valley, when the government rated it as worthless for farming.

Booklist 45:92 N 1 '48

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 168:212 D '48 50w

Reviewed by H. F. Griswold
Christian Science Monitor p14 D 9 '48 250w

Churchman 162:29 N 15 '48 20w

Commonweal 49:151 N 19 '48 20w

"It is a beautifully written book, and the line drawings portray well the spirit of the story." J. D. L.
+ Horn Bk 24:463 N '48 80w

"There are chances lost here for a really constructive job, the central idea is a good one. Old fashioned line drawings by Douglas Gorsline, add nothing to the value of the book."
— + Kirkus 16:439 S 1 '48 130w

"Wholesome and well written for girls 10-14." E. E. Frank
+ Library J 73:1521 O 15 '48 70w

"There are a nice appreciation of Vermont beauty and appealing accounts of square dances, sugaring-off, country fairs; the characters are substantial and homey. But as a story, it is slow-moving and that may make it less popular than its thoughtfulness deserves." M. C. Scoggin
+ — N Y Times p20 S 26 '48 180w

"The tempo of the book is slow, for it is concerned with its characters and their dreams, but there are exciting incidents and the love story is sincere and beautiful. This is a regional novel that deserves a long life. The drawings have strength and atmosphere." R. H. V.
+ Sat R of Lit 31:32 N 13 '48 230w
Springf'd Republican p7B S 12 '48 150w
Wis Lib Bul 44:168 O '48

LOWE, CORINNE. Gentle warrior. 253p il $2.75 Harcourt

B or 92 Dix, Dorothea Lynde—Juvenile literature 48-8670

Story of the nineteenth century philanthropist, Dorothea Lynde Dix, told for young readers.

"Slow going at first, this becomes an engrossing story of a woman of indomitable courage and a picture of some of the famous personages and events of her day. Because of the morbidity of the subject and the stilted manners of the times the book will be read more as supplementary material than for individual pleasure. Junior and senior high school."
+ Booklist 45:92 N 1 '48
Churchman 162:29 N 15 '48 20w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:46 Ja '49 120w

"The best book Corinne Lowe has done, and one that has a quality of inspiration."
+ Kirkus 16:531 O 1 '48 160w

"Not a cheerful story, for this great humanitarian was often unhappy, ill, and lonely. Pen and ink sketches by William Sharp. Recommended for ages 12 and up." Sonja Wennerblad
+ Library J 73:1676 N 15 '48 100w

Reviewed by E. L. Buell
N Y Times p35 O 31 '48 230w
New Yorker 24:146 D 11 '48 100w

"Her story is moving in parts and inspiring all through. It is probably in harmony with the character of the 'gentle warrior' that, from the middle of the book on, the 'crusader' seems somewhat overshadowed by the crusade. The illustrations are especially dramatic when depicting the cruel fate of the demented. Readers will not easily forget the picture of 'the old pauper tethered to the floor by an ox-chain.' This book should mean a great deal to girls who seek their model not from the film world but from the world of modern saints." B. W. S.
+ Sat R of Lit 31:38 N 13 '48 380w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p12C D 5 '48 240w
Wis Lib Bul 44:187 N '48

LOWE, FLORENCE. Somebody else's shoes; pictures by Dorothy Bayley. 153p $2.25 Rinehart 48-1513

While visiting Mr. Schultz's cobbler shop, Evalina Robertson tries on several people's shoes and thus becomes these people: grandmother; the school-teacher; Manuela, a Portugese girl, accused of stealing a gold pencil; and Mary Pendergast, the richest girl in school. This experience enables Evalina to solve the mystery of the missing pencil.

Kirkus 16:49 F 1 '48 110w

"Sprightly entertainment for girls 8-11." Margaret Miller
+ Library J 73:561 Ap 1 '48 80w

"In this one-room village school things happen that don't happen in real life, but if they should, this is the way they would. It is a feat to manage this as expertly as Miss Lowe has done, but no one since E. Nesbit has done it better." M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 My 9 '48 360w
N Y Times p22 Jl 18 '48 90w
Sat R of Lit 31:34 Je 12 '48 180w

LOWRIE, WALTER. Art in the early church. 439p il $6.50 Pantheon bks

709 Christian antiquities. Christian art and symbolism. Church architecture 47-11579

"Rewritten, expanded, fully illustrated version of Monuments of the Early Church published in 1901 in this country and in England as Christian Art and Archaeology: being a Handbook to the Monuments of The Early Church. Interesting account by Dr. Lowrie, 'not a professor . . . only a clergyman,' on rearranging, re-illustrating, reshaping concepts to new thoughts of the last forty-five years. Foreword, prefatory chapter, introduction lead to sections of book on catacombs, sepulchral art, the house of the church, monumental art, Bible illustrations, industrial arts, civil and ecclesiastical dress. Bibliography, index, chronological table precede illustrations." Library J

Booklist 44:219 F 15 '48

"The book is a little loose in its makeup, but it has the great charm of having been written by a man who was not only a scholar in his day, but also a Christian and a minister with many conceptions that moved him close to Catholics. The book is dedicated to the great master of Christian archeology, Joseph Wilpert—something very significant. While some of the sayings of the author may jar some feelings, the objectionable parts and even some basic latitudinarian tendencies are so unimportant when held against the true scholarship, the warm and live Christian faith, the priest-like attitude and the great love of the Church and Rome, that I would like to see this book under the Christmas tree of all seminarians, their professors, all teaching sisters and all those priests who still take the time to read a book." H. A. Reinhold
+ — Commonweal 47:332 Ja 9 '48 800w

"Recommended as reference tool." A. S. Plaut
+ Library J 73:40 Ja 1 '48 100w

"The 500 illustrations are varied and informative but they are much too small for any detailed study. Altogether the book is filled with a wealth of factual information for the earnest student of art history of archaeology." Hubert Buel
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ja 25 '48 100w

LOWRY, ROBERT JAMES. Find me in fire. 280p $3 Doubleday 48-7932

"Robert Lowry's new novel is a story about a returned soldier who finds himself at odds with the world out of which he had come (a small Ohio town) and about his brief abortive attempt to live in it again. . . But Lowry's book is also something else. It is an allegory upon a theme that has no special roots in any time or place. . . The theme itself is anything but easy or familiar; it is something out of the deep and naked center of existence: violence, as a cleansing and re-formative agency." Sat R of Lit

Reviewed by Robert Halsband
Chicago Sun p23 Ag 10 '48 360w

"It is unfortunate that Mr. Lowry, with so much ability and passion for his subject, has resorted to incidents and language calculated to alienate the great proportion of readers." W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p11 Ag 12 '48 130w

LOWRY, R. J.—Continued

"Mr. Lowry cannot be accused of writing badly. One must say that he writes very well indeed. In addition to his technical excellence he has more than a modicum of that tenderness and sympathy which only a great writer, not a piddler with human emotions, possesses. Mr. Lowry is extremely convincing when it is a question of agreeing with him that life is a harsh taskmaster, but he is a representative of that school of young talent which trusts in a salvation through a maudlin humanitarianism and therefore has nothing of that strength of individuality which is not necessarily Nietzschean but is certainly a compulsion to the inner clarity which Paul of Tarsus would have required." R. H. Arvin

+ — Commonweal 48:528 S 10 '48 800w

"Not for libraries with conservative requirements."

Kirkus 16:288 Je 15 '48 160w

"Author handles material well enough, but he has a weakness for portraying frustration with four-letter words instead of good writing." C. W. Roth

Library J 73:1090 Ag '48 100w

"Mr. Robert Lowry will have to be reckoned with as one of the important writers to emerge from the war." Bennell Braunstein

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ag 15 '48 450w

Reviewed by Isabelle Mallet

N Y Times p23 S 26 '48 470w

"Here in this novel contrivance is all too plain. Everybody is healed—but couldn't they just as likely have been maimed? . . There is the book's possible fallacy. . . In its favor, Lowry speaks passionately and often with great poetic penetration. Certainly it is out of his own hatred of evil and death that he writes. This violence he invokes is predicated to be in the service of life. Can it be? Upon this the whole argument hinges, in Lowry's modern, apocalyptic allegory." N. L. Rothman

Sat R of Lit 31:18 Ag 7 '48 700w

LUBAC, HENRI DE. Un-Marxian socialist; a study of Proudhon; tr. by R. E. Scantlebury. 304p $3.50 Sheed

B or 92 Socialism. Proudhon, Pierre Joseph 48-7614

"Proudhon is remembered, if at all, by two statements: 'God is Evil' and 'Property is theft.' It may seem odd that a Jesuit should find it necessary to make this careful study of the man and his writings. Proudhon was a moralist rather than a philosopher. He evolved no precise system to which he stuck. His mind was in a constant state of flux in the Heraclitean tradition. Author regards Proudhon as the revolutionary of depth with an insight into the mystery of reality. Hence Proudhon, although seldom read and poorly understood, does have a message." (Library J) Index.

"Book is excellent, albeit heavy in parts, and does presume a liberal education on the part of the reader. Recommended for libraries on the university level." R. P. Breaden

+ Library J 73:1192 S 1 '48 130w

"The Abbé's whole inquiry is conducted with sympathy, objectivity and a real sense of scholarship. All that made his book a valuable addition to the literature of Proudhon. But the English translation is another matter. To begin with, it is a bad translation. . . There is, however, a more serious reason for advising the English reader not to regard this book as a reliable guide to Proudhon. The original is entitled Proudhon et le Christianisme, and it keeps to the very limited field indicated by its title. . . Serious students of Proudhon will already have read M. de Lubac's book in French —at half the price. Those who can't will have to fall back on Professor Brogan's excellent but too brief study, or wait for a longer and more definitive work." W. Pickles

— + New Statesman & Nation 35:317 Ap 17 '48 950w

"It is a pity that such books as this should be written. It belongs to the class of works that are written to prove that Henry James was a great revolutionary writer or that Milton was a protagonist of Satanism. . . Perhaps the most curious thing about this curious book is that Father de Lubac believes Proudhon to be exactly what Marx thought him to be; only they express themselves rather differently. Perhaps the reason is that both have an axe to grind. Marx wished to win the masses for Marx and away from Proudhon; Father de Lubac, one suspects, wishes to win them for God. Neither attitude is a strictly impartial one." Goronwy Rees

— Spec 180:440 Ap 9 '48 750w

LUDWIG, EMIL. Doctor Freud; an analysis and a warning. Am ed 317p $3 Hellman, Williams & co, 5 Beekman st, N.Y. 7

131.34 Psychoanalysis. Freud, Sigmund 47-12023

An attack on psychoanalysis rather than on Freud himself. The author considers psychoanalysis a product of madness (Freud's) and he quotes him in order to make him condemn himself. Index.

Booklist 44:232 Mr 1 '48

"A naturalistic thinker himself, the author, of course is blind to the basic fallacies of Freud's philosophy which is pure naturalism and presents a one-sided view of human nature 'from below.' Therefore this book is hardly the work needed to combat the still powerful impact of Freudism on modern civilization. The mere fact, however, that here is manifested a strong hostility against Freud in the camp of non-Christian or even of materialistic thought should be given attention. It shows that all is not as sound in the structure of Freudian psychoanalysis as its disciples want the public to believe." Rudolf Allers

Cath World 167:87 Ap '48 550w

"There is ample material here for irony and satire. Ludwig would make his case more effectively if he did not pour them on so lavishly. One gets the feeling that he has gone through the works of Freud not to find what values they contain but to pick out the items that could be held up to scorn." W. E. Garrison

— Christian Century 65:48 Ja 14 '48 480w

"Millions of people who believe in psychoanalysis—and who usually confuse it with psychiatry!—will not like this book. That is one reason they should read it." Leander Danley

Churchman 162:17 Ja 1 '48 180w

Reviewed by Seward Hiltner

Crozer Q 25:262 Jl '48 1700w

"If the story is true that Freud refused to authorize Ludwig to write his biography, his foresight was remarkable. 'Doctor Freud,' which is supposed to be a biography and an evaluation of psychoanalysis, is a mixture of malice and ignorance, adorned with inaccuracies, distortions and misleading quotations. In the 'unabridged and unexpurgated' American edition, Ludwig's hateful shafts against Freud and his megalomania in comparing his own work favorably with Freud's are mitigated." Frederic Wertham

— New Repub 118:22 Mr 29 '48 300w

"Emil Ludwig's book is written out of an insensate hostility which leads it to break, and with the utmost vulgarity, every intellectual canon. . . He suppresses most of Freud's ideas, misrepresents those he tries to expound, and, without the wit to understand that Freud deals with the absurdity of the human mind, tries to raise a horselaugh by pointing out how absurd is the human mind as Freud represents it. We are not an age notable for fineness and precision of thought, but it is seldom indeed that we get a book as intellectually discreditable, as disingenuous and as vulgar as this." Lionel Trilling

— N Y Times p4 D 14 '47 400w

"An attack, entered upon with more bravura than care and logic. . . Some of Mr. Ludwig's conclusions are sound; in fact, only his shrill sneers and personal animosities keep the book from being a reasonable preliminary examination of the science."

— + New Yorker 23:142 D 13 '47 100w

"His methods of attacking Freud are typically flamboyant (see his biographies) and something less than ethical, or even intelligent. He leans heavily on the old crutch of selective quoting, by which any author may be ridiculed. He misrepresents. To read him, you would think Freud had invented sex." Luther Nichols

— San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ja 4 '48 550w

LUHAN, MRS MABLE (GANSON) DODGE. Taos and its artists. 168p il $3.75 Duell

759.1 Painters, American. Taos, New Mexico 48-1635

An introduction to forty-nine artists, who lived or worked in Taos, with photographs of some of the artists themselves, and reproductions of some of their works. Includes an alphabetical list of 41 of the artists, with brief biographical data, and a list of their exhibitions.

Reviewed by A. S. Plaut
Library J 73:559 Ap 1 '48 100w

"Such faith in the virtues of a place is either refreshing or silly, depending on the reader. As an admirer of Taos, I hope Mrs. Luhan is right, but I fear that she has fallen victim to the curiously Western mystique that man can be cured of his traditional evils and by his eyes alone. Since she has chosen to accompany her argument with an over-catholic selection of work that frequently seems indifferent, artistic sterility appears no less possible in this part of God's country than anywhere else." Gerald Sykes
N Y Times p6 F 15 '48 500w

Reviewed by Hubert Buel
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ja 25 '48 130w

Reviewed by Polly Noyes
Sat R of Lit 31:27 Ja 3 '48 250w

Wis Lib Bul 44:79 Ap '48

LUM, PETER. Stars in our heaven; myths and fables; drawings by Anne Marie Jauss. 245p $3.75 Pantheon bks.

291 Mythology. Stars (in religion, folklore, etc.) 48-10648

A collection of the myths and fables that have gathered around the stars and constellations in the lore of both East and West. The author, an American woman, is the daughter of Bertha Lum, an artist who traveled extensively in the Far East and was the first Westerner to use the old Japanese method of woodblock printing. Miss Lum married a British diplomat and has lived in Shanghai, Washington and England.

Booklist 45:162 Ja 1 '49

Commonweal 49:213 D 3 '48 230w

"A facinating book." A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 24:436 N '48 40w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:45 Ja '49 50w

Kirkus 16:557 O 15 '48 170w

"The book is recommended for the larger rather than the smaller library." M. B. Snow
Library J 73:1747 D 1 '48 80w

"Some of the myths and fables are familiar but most are strange to the Western ear. Familiar or unfamiliar, they are all interesting and strangely compelling—none more so than the tales from the Mayas and the Aztecs. The twenty-four full-page illustrations and diagrams are not only beautiful in themselves but together form a key to the heavens. In this outstanding book for all the family, the lack of an index to the wealth of information and folklore is regrettable." A. N. F.
+ N Y Times p5 N 14 '48 140w

"Though not an astronomy, the book contains many astronomical facts, clearly presented. In general, it is too solid and scholarly for young children, but it should open a whole new field to readers of high-school age."
+ New Yorker 24:141 D 11 '48 160w

"From an obviously rich and scholarly background the stories are told simply and informally, as though the storyteller wanted not to instruct but to reveal. The myths and legends are the keys to the position of a star or a group of stars in the great vault that stretches above the earth. We think of stars today in scientific terms. In the old days they were a part of man's faith, and affected his destiny. This book gives them a meaning that is both old and new. It is a treasure for any library."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:45 N 13 '48 230w

LUNAU, HEINZ. Germans on trial. 180p $2.50 Storm

943.086 Germany—Nazi movement 48-9632

"A plea for the German people, who are now, the author claims, being terribly punished for a crime they didn't commit. Mr. Lunau, a lawyer who fled from the Reich in 1936 and has become a naturalized American, puts forward all the usual arguments: that Nazi Fascism is not a peculiarly German disease; that even highly respected governments were taken in by Hitler and collaborated with him before the war; that there is no evidence in history that Germans have been more aggressive, warlike, and greedy than some other people he could, and does, name; that Gestapo terror had to be invented in order to make the Germans acquiescent; and so forth." New Yorker

"Book contains some good observations, but is far too superficial to fulfill its mission. Needed only in very large collections on international affairs." F. E. Hirsch
Library J 73:1818 D 15 '48 130w

"The main argument of the book is that the German people were not responsible for the Nazis, not having specifically consented to their barbarities or possessed knowledge of their worst degeneracies. Certainly a persuasive case could be made out to the effect that the average German was misled at the start and at the end terrorized into submission. But Mr. Lunau spoils both the tone and substance of his argument by what appears a curious moral negativism. . . Ultimately, to understand our world and to be at peace with ourselves, we must untangle the moral puzzle of Germany's gigantic apostasy. For that we need a more perceptive guide than Mr. Lunau, and one better grounded in the kind of moral standards by which we would light our way." August Heckscher
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 D 26 '48 800w

"There is no doubt about [the author's] anti-Nazi sentiments or his sincere pacifism. His belief that the German people was not given a fair trial by world opinion is honest, too, and in part substantiated. But the way in which he takes the correctness of his own, often very extravagant, opinions for granted will hardly attract readers who are, at the same time, being asked to revise their own." Konrad Heiden
— + N Y Times p19 Ja 9 '49 470w

"The author presents his case well, even eloquently."
New Yorker 24:59 D 25 '48 130w

LUSTGARTEN, EDGAR MARCUS. Blondie Iscariot. 214p $2.50 Scribner

48-3715

Story of a gangster's moll who switched allegiance from one racketeer to another in London's underworld.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun S 3 '48 110w

"Incisive in its inside view of London's half-world, this is also distinguished by two brilliant performances, that of a defense attorney and of a pursuing policeman."
+ Kirkus 16:244 My 15 '48 70w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Ag 15 '48 200w

"It is a sordid tale, unworthy of the man who wrote 'One More Unfortunate.'" Isaac Anderson
— N Y Times p15 Ag 22 '48 140w

"Interesting material, rather casually handled."
New Yorker 34:80 Ag 21 '48 90w

LUSTGARTEN, E. M.—Continued

"We'd call 'Blondie' the major disappointment of the year." E. D. Doyle

— San Francisco Chronicle p17 S 5 '48 110w

— Sat R of Lit 31:30 S 4 '48 40w

LUTHER, MARTIN. Christmas book; with celebrated woodcuts by his contemporaries; tr. and arranged by Roland H. Bainton. 74p $2.50 Presbyterian bd.

232.921 Jesus Christ—Birth 48-8558

Extracts from Luther's sermons on the Nativity and two new translations of his carols: "Our little Lord we give thee praise" and "From heaven high."

"These sermons on the Nativity give an appealing interpretation compounded of religious reverence and description of the biblical events in terms and details of the homely life of Luther's day. Attractive format, although not all of the 10 woodcuts are reproduced effectively."

+ — Booklist 45:58 O 15 '48

+ Christian Century 65:1369 D 15 '48 150w

LYELL, THOMAS REGINALD GUISE (FRANCIS J. HORNER, pseud). Case history of Japan. 260p $3 Sheed

915.2 Japan—Civilization. National characteristics, Japanese 48-7100

"[The author is] an Englishman who spent fourteen years in Japan before the war, much of that time as a teacher at Tokyo Imperial University. He went to Shanghai after Pearl Harbor, was attached to the British Embassy there and spent months in a Japanese prison camp until he was repatriated in 1942. . . What he has attempted is a psychoanalytical study of 79,000,000 people." (N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R) "Mr. Horner's book sets out to explain by reference to national history, national culture and national environment the apparent contradictions in the Japanese character which are so puzzling to Western observers." (Times [London] Lit Sup)

Chicago Sun p8X Jl 11 '48 50w

Reviewed by Nika Standen

Commonweal 48:433 Ag 13 '48 800w

Current Hist 15:103 Ag '48 50w

"Despite his experiences with the Japanese in war time, [the author] has managed to maintain almost complete objectivity in his book. . . This reviewer was delighted with Mr. Horner's characterization of the Japanese as 'committee-minded.' One must wonder, however, whether a description of General Douglas MacArthur as 'the greatest authority on present-day Japan' is not overenthusiastic. General MacArthur has not been outside the city limits of Tokyo since the occupation began." Ralph Chapman

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Jl 4 '48 650w

" 'Case History of Japan' is not the lightest of summer reading but neither is it as forbidding as the title implies. Francis J. Horner, who spent 15 years in Japan, analyzes the Nipponese in the light of their history and tradition. But he does it simply, without scientific terms and explanations and with a minimum of historical reference. . . He suggests establishing a 'new order' providing the Japanese with an ideal that will offer 'that sense of completeness through which alone they can achieve self-realisation and happiness.' That ideal can only be Christian faith, he says. This solution is open to question, but does not invalidate the author's careful analysis of Japanese character and its weaknesses." Frederick Reinstein

Springf'd Republican p15A Jl 25 '48 240w

"[The book's] attempt to apply to a whole nation the methods of psychoanalysis commonly employed for particular individuals is extremely interesting, based as it is upon deep study and long residence in Japan."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p137 Mr 6 '48 180w

LYON, ALLAN. Toward an unknown station. 286p $3 Macmillan

48-8710

"Novel which reads like a diary of the human debasement which infantrymen, in this case in the E. T. O., endured. Subordinating philosophical and idealogical implications of the war, author concentrates upon etching indelibly upon the mind of the reader, the wretched companions of the infantryman—monotony, cold, hunger, fatigue—and fear." Library J

Booklist 45:118 D 1 '48

Reviewed by Leslie Waller

Chicago Sun N 25 '48 230w

"There is nothing omitted, nothing skimped. Primarily for men."

Kirkus 16:347 Jl 15 '48 80w

"Less ambitious in scope than the Mailer book, but close to the Pyle tradition, this novel is recommended for all collections." A. J. Gaines

+ Library J 73:1193 S 1 '48 130w

"A grim, horrible and monotonous picture of the infantryman's war. Undeniably, it is also accurate. It is unfortunate that Mr. Lyons has not selected, dramatized or given meaning to his purposely dreary chronicle."

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p21 O 10 '48 230w

"On the face of it, this isn't a particularly startling story. But Mr. Lyon has done two things that make his book valuable. He has had the interesting (and rather unusual) idea of reporting only what he saw, heard, felt and experienced himself. And he has been honest; he has not tried to say anything more than his material says for itself." MacLennan Farrell

+ N Y Times p32 O 24 '48 400w

"The volume has the merits of simplicity. Embedded in the narrative are occasional naive, fresh paragraphs in which the discerning will discover a child's truthful, if inadvertent, parables for our time. And anyone who wants to know how GI's felt, talked, suffered, will find the record here. It is a minor section in what is already a majority report." Alexander Klein

+ Sat R of Lit 31:14 D 11 '48 550w

LYON, MRS DANA. Frightened child. 186p $2.50 Harper

48-6377

Anya, a Polish refugee, comes to America to find her son, who had been sent to this country during the war years. In her son's interest she is persuaded to marry the man who serves as the boy's guardian. When it becomes evident that her husband intends to kill her in order to gain control of the boy's money Anya decides to kill him instead. At Anya's trial the defense attorney frees her for a happier future.

Reviewed by James Sandoe

Chicago Sun Ap 16 '48 180w

"A sustained, sympathetic story of the intent to kill and its aftermath, of an opportunist, the woman he victimized and the child who stood between them. . . A first novel of considerable competence and mounting momentum, this should find a plus sale among mystery readers."

+ Kirkus 16:122 Mr 1 '48 150w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ap 18 '48 170w

"Skillful, well-written, suspenseful enough to hold your interest until the last chapter; and yet [it] is [not] completely successful." M. B.

+ — N Y Times p20 My 9 '48 200w

"Tense but not particularly convincing."

New Yorker 24:116 Ap 17 '48 90w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p17 Ap 25 '48 60w

"Excellent."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:43 Ap 24 '48 40w

LYON, LILIAN HELEN BOWES-. See Bowes-Lyon, L. H.

LYON, SYLVIA. Life and times of Prosper Mérimée. 320p $3.75 Dial press

B or 92 Mérimée, Prosper 48-7945

A biography and critical study of this nineteenth century French writer, known today principally as the author of two or three minor works, Colomba and the original version of Carmen. The story of Mérimée's life is set against a detailed picture of French fashionable circles from the 1820s to 1870.

Atlantic 182:116 N '48 180w

"If Miss Lyon gives us but a partial view of this man of letters, whose search for perfection in brevity made him the father of the short story and the precursor of the art of Guy de Maupassant, she contrives a vivid portrayal of social life at this artificial and in many ways brilliant period of French history." Henry Sowerby
+ — Christian Science Monitor p9 S 2 '48 800w

"This is a study of the times of Mérimée: but any resemblance with history is purely coincidental. The plain lesson is that writing publicity for Chanel and staying with cosmopolitan aristocratic acquaintances are no substitute for good hard research work. Smartness goes a long way; but it also stops a long way short of scholarship. Yet it would be foolish to throw away the book as worthless. On that boundless sea of inaccuracy, there floats a trim little craft which is sturdy and attractive. Sylvia Lyon . . . knows her Mérimée, and she can convey her genuine, keen-sighted, and unobtrusive sympathy." Albert Guérard, Sr.
— + Nation 167:241 Ag 28 '48 500w

"Although the present biography is not a critical one and Mérimée is nowhere fully evaluated as a writer or a public figure, it does convey a real sense of his complicated and fascinating personality. But in spite of the biographer's sympathy for her subject, she commits the unpardonable sin of giving a digest of each of his stories complete with denouement, partly in his words, partly in hers. The result is bound to be painful to those who already know the stories." C. G. Stillman
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 S 5 '48 1200w

Reviewed by D. C. McKay
N Y Times p53 N 14 '48 650w

New Yorker 24:81 S 4 '48 200w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ag 29 '48 150w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 31:27 O 9 '48 1500w

LYONS, DOROTHY. Red Embers; il. by Wesley Dennis. 262p $2.50 Harcourt

48-8369

Story of a girl who trains polo ponies, and plays an excellent game as well. Phil Blake, who lives on a California ranch had raised and trained her favorite pony, Red Embers, from the time it was a tiny colt. Informal polo games at the ranch with Jon and Dave, the Randall twins, under the expert supervision of Phil's father and Mr Randall, lead to Phil's acceptance by a Western women's team after stiff competition.

Booklist 45:74 O 15 '48

Churchman 162:29 N 15 '48 10w

"Good details of ponies and play, in a field little touched in recent years."
+ Kirkus 16:439 S 1 '48 100w

"Good girls' story and an exciting sports story combined. . . The author knows her horses and her polo, and her young people are likeable. Recommended for older girls." Lillian Morrison
+ Library J 73:1391 O 1 '48 70w

"An unusually good sports story."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:33 N 13 '48 50w

Wis Lib Bul 45:16 Ja '49

LYONS, EUGENE. Our unknown ex-president; a portrait of Herbert Hoover. 340p $2.95 Doubleday

B or 92 Hoover, Herbert Clark 48-7234

A biography of Herbert Hoover in which the author attempts to refute the derogatory legends which have at various times become attached to his name. Bibliography. No index.

Booklist 44:367 Jl 1 '48

"The construction of Mr Lyons' portrait is decidedly at fault, in proportion as well as chronology. It is a fault that he admits on the ground that he is not writing a biography. In any event, it can be overlooked in view of the idiom, as well as the occasional poetry, of his style and his endeavor to right the many wrongs that have been done to Mr. Hoover's character." J. E. Uhler
+ Cath World 167:570 S '48 650w

"The book, of course, is more than a discussion of the depression. It is particularly interesting in telling of Mr. Hoover's humble boyhood, his hard-earned schooling, his experience in the siege of Tientsin, his spectacular rise as a mining engineer and executive, and his work during and after World War 1 as relief administrator in Belgium and in Europe at large. As a biographer, however, Mr Lyons does not assume more than a very limited objectivity." T. N.
Christian Science Monitor p14 Ag 10 '48 480w

"Mr. Hoover is destined to go down in history as one of our greatest Americans. That this is not more fully realized by many Americans is due in large part to his very virtues themselves, his refusal to capture the headlines, hire press agents, advertise his accomplishments. He has always assumed the blame for the mistakes of his subordinates and unlike many men in public life he has never shifted the buck to someone under him. He has been even more loyal to those who worked for him than they have been to him. Lyons's book should make some American columnists crawl back into their holes." W. J. Marx
+ Commonweal 49:97 N 5 '48 1300w

"Exceedingly interesting and revealing book about a man generally considered as rather colorless and uninspiring."
+ Kirkus 16:191 Ap 1 '48 240w

"Recommended." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 73:946 Je 15 '48 110w

"He has caught the drama inherent in the ups and downs of a long career. But the various aspects of that career are given a curiously uneven treatment. . . The general tone of the author's approach to his subject is most strikingly illustrated by one passage: 'I don't like to sound dramatic, but his personal experience holds some of the elements of the classic prophet, for it contains a time of crucifixion and a day of resurrection.' Without questioning the taste of this sentence, it does indicate that so emotional an appraisal can hardly add to Mr. Hoover's stature nor satisfy the reader seeking a balanced account of the man and the President." Harry Baehr
NY Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 Je 20 '48 600w

"Aside from a different approach, Mr. Lyons does not contribute much that is new; but so many things about Mr. Hoover have been forgotten or distorted that discussion of them now has the effect of newness." S. T. Williamson
N Y Times p4 Je 13 '48 850w

"If what [the author] sets forth in praise of Mr. Hoover's wisdom, wit, charm, integrity, ability, disinterestedness, humanitarianism, and strength of character is true, it is hard to imagine why the electorate ever permitted such a man to quit the White House. There is much to be said in favor of Mr. Lyons' cause, but a less emotional book would have served it better."

LYONS, EUGENE—Continued
New Yorker 24:99 Je 12 '48 160w

Reviewed by Louis Burgess
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Je 27 '48 370w

"Mr. Lyons really pours it on too thick. About the only adverse things he says about the ex-President are that he was 'without much talent as a politician' and that 'his failure has been in the area of public relations.' All else is pro-Hoover. And near the end Mr. Lyons says: 'It is possible, and even likely, that here and there in these pages I have been betrayed by ardor into overstatemnt.' This is the masterpiece of understatement of the publishing year." Bert Andrews
Sat R of Lit 31:11 Jl 3 '48 650w

Springf'd Republican p10B Je 27 '48 160w

"A good part of Lyons' story is convincing. . . But Lyons fails to make the only living ex-President of the U.S. 'warm, whimsical' or very human. He has even desperately collected specimens of Hoover's 'humor.' Readers will gain new respect for Hoover's intelligence, stubborn integrity and devotion to public welfare, but in Lyons' pages he remains an unbending, inaccessible man in a stiff collar, a man peculiarly unfitted for the cutthroat rough and tumble of political life."
Time 51:106 Je 14 '48 250w

LYONS, WILLIAM NELSON, and PARVIS, MERRILL M., eds. New Testament literature; an annot. bibliography. v 1 392p pa $4 Univ. of Chicago press

016.225 Bible. New Testament—Bibliography

"Annual bibliographies for the years 1940-42 have already been published. The present volume gives an exhaustive listing of books, articles and book reviews which have appeared 1943-45, and those of the three preceding years which escaped notice in the earlier annual bibliographies. Publications in English and half a dozen other languages are included. The work covers the strictly New Testament field and also the related areas of early church history and theology." Christian Century

"Analytical arrangement and good indexing make the materials easily accessible. This was projected as the first of a continuing series of volumes to be published at intervals of two or three years. Serious students can scarcely afford to be without this first volume and the others as they appear."
+ Christian Century 65:547 Je 2 '48 170w

"This is a very valuable tool for all who have occasion to work in the field of the New Testament and early Christian literature."
+ Crozer Q 25:192 Ap '48 110w

"The editors deserve our thanks and New Testament students should use their work and co-operate in any possible way to further the preparation of future volumes which will keep this bibliography up to date." F. V. Filson
+ J Religion 28:291 O '48 500w

LYS, CLAUDIA DE. A treasury of American superstitions. 494p $5 Philosophical lib

398.3 Superstition. Folklore—U.S. 48-6722

"Miss de Lys discusses several hundred superstitions and examples of misinformation under 24 general department headings, ranging from birds and bees to bugs and dreams. Each has been traced back as far as it goes, with differing explanations tested to see which is the stronger. There is a complete index . . . and bibliography." Springf'd Republican

"The compiler does not contend that her collection is exhaustive. It is certainly rich and if it sometimes lacks a little in humor and at others becomes too insistent, it is a lively antisoporific." James Sandoe
+ — Chicago Sun My 14 '48 180w

Christian Century 65:806 Ag 11 '48 150w

"Curiosa, which provide often fascinating incidental information."
+ Kirkus 16:204 Ap 15 '48 120w

"Arranged by subject and well indexed, it is sufficiently comprehensive to be used profitably in library reference. While some superstitions may tend toward the universal and America may be heir to those of many nations, this is not precisely a book on American superstitions and sources of recent investigations in American anthropology and regional folklore have not been exhausted by the compiler. Considered as a more general work on the subject, with each page crowded with interesting fact and commentary, it may rightly be called a treasury." G. D. McDonald
+ Library J 73:555 Ap 1 '48 120w

"Miss de Lys unfortunately is given to 'cute' section titles; for example, the opening chapter on bird-lore is called 'Our Feathered Friends,' and most of the other titles are equally emetic. Once you start reading, however, there is little else to annoy." H. W. Thompson
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 Jl 4 '48 650w

"An extremely readable book. . . Miss de Lys' book suffers from a misleading title. The superstitions that she records are not confined to those of American origin or observance. Anyone who has delved into the subject has noted that many of the superstitions of central China are current in the hinterlands of New England. The treasury, in fact, draws on the superstitious lore of all the continents; it likewise draws on accumulated encyclopedic knowledge to pad out what otherwise might be thin pickings. It should be noted, too, that some of the statements are open to debate." E. F. Allen
+ — N Y Times p19 Jl 18 '48 410w

"Here is one book you shouldn't be without when you set up atomic age housekeeping in a cave, it has all the comforting old errors the children might otherwise miss." R. F. H.
Springf'd Republican p10B My 23 '48 310w

M

M. THERESE, SISTER. See Thérèse, Sister.

MAASS, EDGAR. Queen's physician. 405p $3 Scribner

Struensee, Johann Friedrich, greve—Fiction 48-5262

Historical novel which chronicles the lives of the weak King Christian VII of Denmark, his beautiful English queen, and Dr Struensee the court physician. The time is the eighteenth century.

Kirkus 15:659 D 1 '47 230w

"Book has all the qualities of many a best seller—historical flavor, if not accuracy, innumerable bedroom scenes and literary mediocrity—providing the public zest for this type of fiction has not cooled." C. W. Roth
Library J 73:198 F 1 '48 70w

"As historical romance it has the requisite surface glitter and orchestral flourish, but it is considerably above the average performance. Mr. Maass writes with perception, and with acidulous relish." Lisle Bell
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 F 22 '48 310w

"It is unfortunate that the author's intent is not matched by the impact of his story: too many pages in the book are static, too much is stated rather than dramatized. Mr. Maass is still to be commended for his attempt to refine Amber into something purer." Richard Match
— + N Y Times p23 Mr 7 '48 330w

Reviewed by Marvin Sargent
San Francisco Chronicle p10 Mr 28 '48 320w

MCADAM, ROGER WILLIAMS. Priscilla of Fall River. 224p il $3.75 Ungar

623.824 Fall River line. Priscilla (steamboat) 48-302

The history of the career of the most famous steamboat on the Fall River line, the Priscilla. The boat and train service from New York to Boston lasted nearly a century, from 1847 to 1937, and the Priscilla, a marvel of naval architecture ran forty-three of those years.

"Proponents of the Fall River Line still find it difficult to speak of its regrettable demise without the display of strong emotion. Mr. McAdam is no exception, his book being flavored with a sentimentality unquestionably popular with the majority of those of his readers who have travelled via Fall River. Others, however, may find his lovable old mariners and their encyclopedic dialogues pertaining to all matters connected with the line (from the number of rivets in the Priscilla's bottom to the number of steaks served in her dining hall) a little hard to take. . . A lot of sound scholarship and a thorough knowledge of his worthy topic is thus hidden. But the facts are there underneath and Mr. McAdam could not have chosen a more deserving subject for a biography." A. C. Brown

+ — New Eng Q 21:131 Mr '48 500w

"Mr. McAdam makes steamboating on the Sound fascinating reading." Walter Hamshar

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 D 28 '47 180w

"Unfortunately, much of the book is in the form of awkward imaginary dialogues, couched in a most unnatural and irritating jargon, which the author passes off as New Englandese. There is compensation for this painful shortcoming in the numerous graphic illustrations scattered through the book—some of them reproductions of Currier & Ives prints." T. R. Ybarra

+ — N Y Times p4 D 28 '47 370w

"Mr. McAdam's book is crammed with facts, yarns and pictures, and would win the affection of anyone interested in Americana even if he had heard of the legendary trips on Long Island Sound. He writes interestingly, has reams of fascinating material, and possesses the ability to share enthusiasm. Almost every true Yankee will feel the urge to read about Priscilla and her loyal crew, and it would be an eye-opener for a good many gentlemen in the transportation industry." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p11C D 7 '47 330w

MCBRIDE, MARY MARGARET, ed. How to be a successful advertising woman; a career guide for women in advertising, public relations, and related fields. (Whittlesey house publication) 259p il $3 McGraw

659.1 Advertising as a profession. Woman—Employment 48-6447

A collection of articles on advertising as a career, by fifteen women who have been successful in this field. Contents: The advertising agency's part in planning an advertising campaign—an over-all picture, by Leslie Munro; So you want to write advertising, by J. W. Rindlaub; Advertising art careers, by Kay Hardy; A background in production and typography, by Winifred Holmes; Find the answer in research, by C. H. Vorce; Media means in the middle, by E. C. Stamler; How to influence people by mail, by G. E. Beneke; Futures in public relations, by Caroline Hood; Publicity is work, by Henrietta Amos; This business of merchandising, by Helen Berg; A place for you in radio, by G. M. Johnsen; Publishers must advertise, too, by Eleanor Kask; And why not sell advertising? by Mary McClung and Sally Martin; Women's place in advertising, by Dorothy Dignam; Capsule careers. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 44:287 Ap 15 '48

"Good in its field, but definitely a book for High School and College libraries, vocational sections, etc. Rather superficial for the person already in the field."

Kirkus 16:71 F 1 '48 140w

"Recommended." H. S. Taylor

+ Library J 73:470 Mr 15 '48 130w

MCCABE, LEE, and FAGAN, NORBERT. I'll take Cappy; il. by Wesley Dennis. (Whittlesey house publication) 160p $2 McGraw

48-8408

Sam Martin did not tell his father about the cash offer made him for his pony, Cappy. As his conscience bothered him, he and Cappy went into the junk business in order to buy a new tractor for the farm. All ends well with a lucky piece supplying the extra funds needed, and Cappy proving himself a smart pony in the Thanksgiving day hunt. For ages 8-12.

Booklist 45:92 N 1 '48

Commonweal 49:158 N 19 '48 40w

Kirkus 16:438 S 1 '48 120w

"Story seems fabricated in spots. Wesley Dennis's illustrations are just right." M. J. Meade

Library J 73:1388 O 1 '48 90w

"A natural boy, a good horse, the authors' feeling for the country and their unsentimental liking for horses make a good story which will appeal to boys and girls from eight to twelve, whether they ride or not." Helen Masten

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 S 26 '48 230w

+ N Y Times p35 S 12 '48 150w

Sat R of Lit 31:42 N 13 '48 40w

MCCALEB, WALTER FLAVIUS. Conquest of the West. 336p $3.75 Prentice-Hall

978 West—History. U.S.—Territorial expansion 47-11952

The history of the westward expansion of the United States during the period 1800 to 1848: the period of "manifest destiny." The discussion includes the Louisiana purchase; the acquisition of Florida; the annexation of Texas and the War with Mexico; and the "50-40 or fight" episode. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by C. C. Rister

Am Hist R 53:907 Jl '48 140w

"Mr. McCaleb's contribution to the literature of his field, though interesting and valuable as a type, and even instructive in spots through shrewd observations, is not definitive or, except for national or racial bigots, satisfying. The style, likewise, which is frequently marred by the circumlocutions, vagueness, and inaccuracy of the frontier litterateur, is of more value as a specimen than as a vehicle." J. P. Pritchett

Ann Am Acad 256:183 Mr '48 360w

Current Hist 14:174 Mr '48 50w

"The book contributes greatly to a better understanding of some of the forces that took us from Atlantic to Pacific. Documented by authentic source material."

+ Kirkus 15:527 S 15 '47 230w

"A thrilling period in our history, but marked with many mistakes and much blundering. More important for special or college libraries than for public." L. R. Etzkorn

Library J 72:1609 N 15 '47 130w

"Oregon, California, Florida and the Louisiana Territory receive only the briefest adequate outline. It is with Texas that the bulk of the book deals, here so neatly focused that the author seems to be wading up to his knees in the Rio Grande looking in both directions simultaneously. It is to this main section that he has brought much fresh material, particularly from Mexican newspapers of the day." Max Baird

+ N Y Times p12 Ja 18 '48 430w

"This is a temperate study of the frontier west of the Sabine. Most of the standard sources have been explored by the author, although he does not include mention of the recent research by J. W. Schmitz on Texas Statecraft, 1836-1845. Among the valuable sources that were used are a large number of accounts from the press on both sides of the Rio Grande. These add color and authenticity to the volume." W. G. Tyrrell

+ Social Educ 12:184 Ap '48 500w

MCCALEB, W. F.—Continued
Reviewed by W. R. Manchester
Springf'd Republican p8B Ja 25 '48 150w

MCCARTHY, MARGERY SYBIL (MARGERY COLMAN, pseud). Bramble; written and il. by Margery Colman. 32p $1.85 Coward-McCann

48-5965

"A picture book in color that tells of a hedgehog who goes into his winter sleep with an alarm clock that tells the months instead of the hours. It stops at November and, when Bramble finally wakens, has to be set again. No one can tell him the proper time, although Nature makes it quite obvious. Finally the sun obliges and Bramble is straightened out." Sat R of Lit

"Gay pictures by the author along with the text make a nice mixture of nonsense and logic. Useful in elementary science classes. Also, probably has some value in training a child to remember things." Nelle McCalla
+ Library J 73:716 My 1 '48 70w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 My 23 '48 110w

"A quietly amusing book." R. A. Gordon
+ N Y Times p29 Ap 18 '48 90w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis
Sat R of Lit 31:31 My 8 '48 50w

MCCLINTOCK, LORENE. Teach yourself to play the piano; based on the interval method. 117p $5; pa $3.50 Crowell

786.3 Piano—Instruction and study

"Knowing one man who began piano from a book, I concede it possible. In this case, provided with two devices, 'key blocks' which measure intervals at a table and a 'keyboard concealer,' the pupil starts with intervals and sidewards movement, not notation, melodies or 5-finger exercises. Good tactics lead as far as simple waltzes and furnish some background for other music the student may encounter." Library J

Kirkus 15:522 S 15 '47 140w

"Instruction is clear in practice methods, notation, and contains more than usual harmony and form, omitting almost all cuteness and dilution. Interested adults should be able to learn basic piano from this book." George Hanson
+ Library J 72:1612 N 15 '47 100w

"A unique method, not another 'easy way to learn to play the piano,' this course severely challenges the adult student's motivation and intelligence, but probably would be successful if completely and thoroughly carried out. . . Conservative piano teachers will stand aghast at this method, but from it they can learn quite a few persuasive devices. If no outside instruction is available and an adult must teach himself to play the piano, this volume should do the trick, and certainly it would lay a solid foundation for later instruction. Tough going, though!!!"
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 5:246 Mr '48 160w

MCCLINTOCK, MARSHALL. Leaf, fruit and flower; a nature primer. 29p 24 col il $1 Chanticleer

580 Botany—Juvenile literature

Colored photographs of some fruits and flowers with anecdotal text for each selection.

Kirkus 16:621 D 1 '48 40w

"Useful as an 'extra' book for nature study." J. F. Kennedy
+ Library J 74:66 Ja 1 '49 30w

MCCLINTOCK, MARSHALL. Let's learn the flowers. 28p 21 col il $1 Chanticleer

580 Flowers—Juvenile literature

Large sized photographs of 21 flowers in color, with short descriptions for each. Includes garden and wild flowers, some not well-known.

Kirkus 16:621 D 1 '48 40w

"Not ideal for library purposes. Nevertheless, it is a beautiful book for the money. Will appeal to any age interested in flowers." E. T. Dobbins
+ — Library J 74:66 Ja 1 '49 70w

MCCLINTOCK, MARSHALL, ed. Nobel prize treasury. 612p $4 Doubleday

808.8 Literature—Collections 48-7018

Best known representative writings of each Nobel prize winner. Contains also biographical and bibliographical notes.

"From the 1947 award to the first, in 1901, this is a valuable anthology in making available prize-winning literary works (or their equivalents) even in part, which have been displaced or forgotten, out of print or hard to find; in displaying the qualities for which the authors were famous, and in giving an overall feeling of the Nobel award choices. Interesting because of its scope, useful for reference and study, naturally controversial because of inclusions and/or omissions (though the editor's introduction makes clear the reasons behind these) this Treasury combines poetry, plays, fiction, non-fiction, (but nothing of the 1925 prize to Shaw) and is a good investment."
+ Kirkus 16:165 Mr 15 '48 160w
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Je 20 '48 50w

"Two points are to be made, I think. One, that this collection isn't even. One could gather together a far more consistent group of writers who write on a higher level. And, two, that what has been chosen isn't always right. Yeats, for example, hasn't his best foot forward, by which I mean his last poems aren't to be seen. Mann is represented by an excerpt from 'Buddenbrooks,' a good book—but why an excerpt at all, when there are so many complete and short enough pieces like 'Mario and the Magician'! Perhaps Bunin's 'Gentleman From San Francisco' is an inevitable selection. Nevertheless, I should have liked something else less frequently anthologized. The collection is interesting, though, and particularly from the point of view of looking into the Nobel Prize committee's standards." Harvey Breit
N Y Times p21 Je 27 '48 230w

"Many will quarrel with McClintock's choice of selections, but it must be remembered that he had a limited amount of space available for this undertaking. . . On the whole, with the space at his disposal, the editor has made an interesting selection and in some cases a valuable one as some of the pieces will not easily be found elsewhere." A. K. D.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 Je 20 '48 350w

"Examples of the work of writers unknown in the U.S. (e.g., Chilean Poetess Gabriela Mistral and Finnish Novelist Frans Eemil Sillanpää) are alone enough to make it a valuable book. Nevertheless, the most accomplished novelists are sometimes guilty of amateurish passages, exaggerated humor, forced sprightliness, pompous philosophizing, misty sentimentality. Conventional poetry can be glaringly revealed in translation. Much of the writing is dated. The gloomy opening scenes of Desire Under the Elms read like a Ring Lardner parody of Russian drama. Sinclair Lewis' The Man Who Knew Coolidge seems a more imaginative creation 20 years after publication; but he also seems as unreal as the specters who haunted the castles of Gothic novelists. The biggest surprise of the book is the durable quality of the writing of John Galsworthy. Placed alongside the other prizewinners, the story of Swithin Forsyte, from Caravan (1925), is fast, matter-of-fact and honestly funny."
Time 51:102 Je 14 '48 460w

MCCLOSKEY, ROBERT. Blueberries for Sal. 55p il $2 Viking 48-4955

Story of two blueberrying parties that become mixed up. Sal follows Mother Bear; and Little Bear follows Sal's mother. The day ends happily with the bears full of blueberries and Sal and her mother on their way home with four pails of berries for canning. For ages 3-6.

"This is a picture book in the purest sense; so completely does the story unfold in the charming double-spread illustrations that the text is merely an additional but pleasurable feature. . . [The] story is both amusing and suspenseful and entirely childlike in appeal."
+ Booklist 45:74 O 15 '48

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun O 23 '48 140w

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p4 N 9 '48 240w

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '48

Commonweal 49:145 N 19 '48 20w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
+ Horn Bk 24:434 N '48 340w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 24:453 N '48 70w

"Thin span of 56 pages of text and entertaining pictures. Not up to his best—but still better than most."
Kirkus 16:436 S 1 '48 90w

"A must for schools, libraries, and homes." H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 73:1826 D 15 '48 80w

"The pleasant, simple story is told with humor and has just enough hint of danger to be exciting but maintain good feelings. The clear, uncluttered drawings have a lovely sweep."
+ New Repub 119:32 D 6 '48 90w

"The delightful little story is touched with humor and has something of the quality of a folk tale." Helen Masten
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 O 3 '48 180w

Reviewed by G. C. Castor
N Y Times p45 O 24 '48 150w

New Yorker 24:125 D 11 '48 60w

"These are strong, fresh, highly original drawings printed in blue ink in honor of the blueberries. The 'pointed firs,' the sloping, rocky meadows, and the sturdy blueberry bushes make a stunning background for little Sal and her mother in Maine."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:22 N 13 '48 200w

Wis Lib Bul 44:214 D '48

MCCLOY, HELEN (MRS DAVIS DRESSER). She walks alone. 280p $2.50 Random house 48-2086

Detective story.

Booklist 44:383 Jl 15 '48

"Helen McCloy's real strength appears to be the pure, dry tale of detection. But in 'She Walks Alone' as on other occasions she attempts the tale of terror instead and writes it conscientiously but without apparent conviction. The result is a good deal of laborious agitato." James Sandoe
— + Chicago Sun Jl 2 '48 100w

"The expert excellence as before."
+ Kirkus 16:156 Mr 15 '48 80w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p9 My 2 '48 140w

"Helen McCloy has written many good mysteries, but this one tops them all in first-rate spine-tingling." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p32 My 2 '48 170w

"Not a very sensible story, on the whole."
New Yorker 24:116 My 8 '48 120w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 16 '48 100w

"Top-brackets."
Sat R of Lit 31:32 My 8 '48 40w

MCCLUNG, ROBERT M. Wings in the woods; il. by the author. 251p $2.50 Morrow 48-7694

Story of a ten-year-old boy's year spent on a farm. Dan loved all living things, and a good part of the book is about his adventures with animals, and his butterfly and moth "menagerie," which last was an outdoor screened enclosure. Grades four to seven.

Booklist 45:38 S 15 '48

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p18 D 16 '48 240w

"It had to be good to ride over the Gene Stratton Porter Association with luna moths and their ilk, but that it does."
+ Kirkus 16:310 Jl 1 '48 90w

Reviewed by S. J. Johnson
Library J 73:1098 Ag '48 80w

Sat R of Lit 31:44 N 13 '48 50w

"This is an unusually interesting story for younger readers, full of country atmosphere and with a satisfactory amount of wildlife and bug information."
+ Springf'd Republican p7B O 3 '48 120w

Wis Lib Bul 44:187 N '48

MCCORD, DAVID THOMPSON WATSON. About Boston; sight, sound, flavor and inflection; with drawings by the author. 192p $2.50 Doubleday
917.4461 Boston—Description 48-8942

Thirty brief chapters presenting various aspects and characteristics of Boston and the Bostonians. The basis of the book was a series of broadcasts.

"His essays fall pleasantly on the ear as they did when they came to us on the air. They are full of telling and unsuspected little details of which the author is a famous collector. They have the glint of laughter and the gay and poking lilt of a writer who turns to verse when prose would be too slow. . . His concluding essay, 'Early and Late,' is as poetic an appraisal as I have ever read of this red-brick town. Delightful vignettes by a skilled and sensitive hand." Edward Weeks
+ Atlantic 182:102 O '48 420w

"As the conductor of this tour, Mr. McCord is witty, leisurely, and, within limits, appreciative. But the tour itself is so selective that it leaves a false total impression of Boston—by its omissions implicitly substituting a part for the whole." Melvin Maddocks
+ — Christian Science Monitor p18 N 11 '48 650w

Kirkus 16:385 Ag 1 '48 110w

Nation 167:612 N 27 '48 50w

"Endowed with a painter's perceptiveness and a poet's sensitivity he gives us a new appreciation of the old, overwritten town, even the 'curvaceous,' carp infested Charles. . . Perhaps the freshest and most memorable things in the book have to do with rus in urbe, Boston as just a part of the country, or at least everywhere interpenetrated by it—not only in the parks, the gardens of Beacon Hill and dooryards of the Back Bay, the Arboretum, but somehow in the very air." Ferris Greenslet
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 O 24 '48 1600w

"The chapters on the general topography and the literary atmosphere are gems, but the one of painters and art completely overlooks the fact that Boston now houses the most advanced and unusual school of young artists in the country. The whole subject calls for a larger canvas and a broader vision." W. G. Dooley
N Y Times p42 N 14 '48 600w

"While the book is brief enough, there are nonetheless moments . . . when the reader becomes a little cross. . . What makes the book unusual, however, is the fact that Mr. McCord is a vignettist of great skill. He makes everything about Boston seem charming whether it is or not." Cleveland Amory
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:18 O 30 '48 550w

MACCORKLE, STUART ALEXANDER. American municipal government and administration. 630p $4.25 Heath

352 Municipal government 48-1341

"[This volume] comprises the fruit of ten years of study by the director of the Bureau of Municipal Research at the University of Texas. . . It offers a general survey of problems in municipal government and administration as they arise throughout the country. Evidently written on the valid theory that a single semester course in both city politics and administration is all that it is feasible for most colleges or universities to offer, MacCorkle's treatise will have deservedly wide appeal as a text for such courses regardless of where they are given." (Am Pol Sci R) Index.

"Filled with hard sense, judiciously-chosen quotations, and sound technical analysis and information." J. A. Vieg
+ Am Pol Sci R 42:593 Je '48 400w
Booklist 44:294 My 1 '48

MCCORMICK, JAY. Nightshade. 280p $3 Doubleday

48-5919

An old woman, selfish, ruthless and obsessed, sets about to destroy her grandson whom she unconsciously identifies with her long-dead husband. In spite of Hugh's own awareness of her plans and in spite of the help given Hugh by his friend, the old woman is finally successful—and her triumph brings her own tragic ending.

"There are combustible components here, and for public libraries, a fair amount of basic English, but the whole provides strongly sustained reading."
Kirkus 16:29 Ja 15 '48 170w

"An adult intelligence story, blunt about sex, beautifully written with exceptionally effective characterizations. Highly recommended." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 73:397 Mr 1 '48 70w

"It is obvious from the thoughtful and quiet way in which the book is written, from the meticulous—often striking—details, and from the carefully built structure of the story, that Mr. McCormick is an intelligent, craftsman. But the handling of Hugh is somehow unconvincing. . . Mr. McCormick's work, however, is worth watching. Although this book is not entirely successful, there is nothing thin, and nothing false, about it."
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ap 4 '48 230w

MCCORMICK, MARY JOSEPHINE. Thomistic philosophy in social casework. 148p $2 Columbia univ. press

361.8 Thomas Aquinas, Saint. Social work 48-5404

The author, who is an associate professor of casework and research at Loyola University, Chicago, "interprets the basic principles of casework as they are related to the basic principles of the philosophy of St Thomas Aquinas." This is followed by two detailed case histories. Bibliography. Index.

"Dr. McCormick gives a good analysis of Thomistic teaching regarding the dynamics of human behavior (intellect, will and emotions) and in this respect the book should prove useful as collateral reading for students in schools of social work. However, in establishing a synthesis between Thomistic principles and social casework, the author would appear merely to be laboring the obvious. Such principles flow from the very nature of the human personality; they underlie every human relationship." M. J. Doyle
+ — Cath World 167:567 S '48 550w

"The book has a clearness and neatness about it, characteristic of the beautiful thought structure of which it is a slight echo. And from the cases cited I have no doubt of the writer's clinical skills within the setting in which she works or has worked." A. P. Guiles
+ Crozer Q 25:286 Jl '48 350w

MCCORMICK, WILFRED. Legion tourney; a Bronc Burnett story. 180p $2 Putnam

48-4066

Baseball story about an American junior tourney. The scene is New Mexico.

Booklist 45:54 O 1 '48
Kirkus 16:310 Jl 1 '48 70w

"Good baseball, but not much else. If you are frantic for another baseball book, buy this. Otherwise, don't, for this is labored and artificial and has no plot and very little characterization." M. D. Read
— + Library J 73:1199 S 1 '48 60w

"The theme, that good sportsmanship and aggressive play are more important than rabbit's feet in winning games, is well but not overly drawn. This is, in every way, an excellent story." R. A. Brown
+ N Y Times p35 S 12 '48 160w

MCCORMICK, WILFRED. Three-two pitch; a Bronc Burnett story. 186p $2 Putnam

48-6166

Baseball story for older boys. It is the first of a series about Bronc Burnett, sixteen-year-old pitcher on the high school team in a small New Mexico town.

Booklist 44:318 My 15 '48
Reviewed by Martha King
Chicago Sun Je 12 '48 160w
Kirkus 16:52 F 1 '48 80w

"One or two unconvincing minor characters are counterbalanced by a lot of good baseball. The author includes many fine points of baseball strategy, more than one is likely to find in most baseball fiction. Not up to the level of the Tunis books but worth a try." Lillian Morrison
+ — Library J 73:660 Ap 15 '48 80w
Reviewed by M. L. Becker
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 My 9 '48 270w
Reviewed by R. A. Brown
N Y Times p20 Je 27 '48 160w

MCCORRY, VINCENT P. Those terrible teens. 184p $2.25 McMullen

248 Girls 47-11684

"A modern, sparkling book of observations on and advice to the modern Catholic girl. Author ends with a recommendation of a model for the teen-ager. 'She models modesty. And truth. And kindness. And purity. And humility. And courage.' " Library J

"Intelligent girls will not ignore these timely lessons; and additional value attaches to them because they reveal so clearly to adults just what the Church expects—and trains—the Catholic girl to be. This is the kind of book, therefore, that deserves to be widely circulated outside, as well as inside, the fold."
+ Cath World 166:478 F '48 170w
Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '48

"There is immediate appeal and a spiritual quality in this book for older girls. Recommended especially for Catholic high school libraries, but useful also for large public high schools and libraries." H. M. Brogan
+ Library J 72:1786 D 15 '47 60w

MCCOY, HORACE. Kiss tomorrow good-bye. 372p $3 Random house

48-6632

A cold-blooded, highly educated criminal escapes from a chain gang in an unnamed state, and goes to a big city where he joins the local criminal gang. A millionaire's daughter falls in love with him and he seems on the way to success when suddenly his past overtakes him.

"This will probably be quarantined from libraries, but in action-adventure of the late '20's, this has a literate, nerve-lacerating, whip-lashing effectiveness. Doublecheck it."
Kirkus 16:125 Mr 1 '48 120w

"More hardboiled than Cain's shockers." H. G. Kelley
Library J 73:558 Ap 1 '48 80w

Reviewed by Herbert Kupferberg
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Jl 11 '48 230w

Reviewed by Wilson Follett
N Y Times p26 Je 13 '48 360w

"The problem that troubles the author, and over which he puzzles until the last page of the book is how an honor student could let himself sink so low. A much more interesting question is what the French critics who found elements of greatness in Mr. McCoy's previous novel, 'They Shoot Horses, Don't They?,' will have to say when they finish this one."
New Yorker 24:107 My 8 '48 150w

"There is nothing edifying in the picture painted by Mr. McCoy. All of the characters are crawling with either viciousness, stupidity, greed, lust, or some physical abnormality of a less than attractive nature. Mr. McCoy, we think, would be the first to deplore the discovery of a pleasant trait in any of his boys and girls. . . However, if you, as a reader, want to climb down into that murky ditch of hyperpituitary desire and unalloyed profanity, and wallow for a while, just 'Kiss Tomorrow Good-bye' and read the book of the same name." Paul Speegle
— San Francisco Chronicle p16 My 6 '48 500w

"Obviously, the novel was concocted to give the reader a succession of gruesome shocks, and to that extent it succeeds. As the story of a man of sensibility, refinement, and education who can kill without heart, conscience, or gratification, it fails to carry any conviction of artistic integrity or value as a work of literature." Harrison Smith
— Sat R of Lit 31:26 My 29 '48 500w

"If one of the dead-end kids were to write a novel, with the aid of an unabridged dictionary, the result might be something like Kiss Tomorrow Good-bye. It is one of the nastiest novels ever published in this country."
— Time 51:116 My 10 '48 280w

MCCRACKEN, DAVID R. Four months on a Jap whaler. 228p il $3 McBride
639.2 Whaling 48-5918

An account "by an American Army lieutenant, of a postwar trip to the Antarctic with a Japanese whaling fleet. The author accompanied the first whalers permitted by General MacArthur to leave Japanese waters, with the mission of seeing that the crews respected the international whaling code. As one of only two Occidentals among three hundred Japanese, he made the most of his opportunity to study the behavior of his former enemies and to learn the intricacies of modern whaling." (New Yorker)

"An amateurishly written account. . . [The] section on whales and the methods of catching, butchering, and processing them is fascinating stuff if you can overlook the rather arch style. Good photographs."
— + New Yorker 24:127 Mr 13 '48 130w

"Mr. McCracken is often overly delighted by his accounting of some trivial, personal calamity or triumph and occasionally reveals a tendency to become prissy, but his subject, as unlikely as this may sound, is a fascinating one and by and large his book makes good, light, informative reading." J. P. C.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 6 '48 300w
Springf'd Republican p10B Mr 14 '48 480w

MCCRACKEN, HAROLD. Toughy: bulldog in the Arctic; il. by Carl Burger. 202p $2.50 Lippincott
919.8 Dogs—Legends and stories. Arctic regions—Juvenile literature. Scientific expeditions—Juvenile literature 48-7864

Toughy was the mascot of the Stoll-McCracken Siberian Arctic expedition. This story for grades seven to nine gives an account of the adventures of the lovable English bulldog, as well as a narrative of the expedition.

Booklist 45:74 O 15 '48

"Here is a book for exploration enthusiasts of all ages." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 24:464 N '48 120w

"Bob Bartlett's interesting reminiscences may tire the casual reader, but Toughy's life in the Arctic gives a lighter touch. Recommended for ages 11 and up." Sonja Wennerblad
+ Library J 73:1524 O 15 '48 100w

"Every one, from dog lovers to thrill hunters, will like this account of men who challenged danger for science's sake and of the English bulldog who seemed to enjoy it with them." M. C. Scoggin
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 O 24 '48 240w

"Harold McCracken knows the Arctic well, has set it down in vivid and powerful prose and has drawn a fine and warm portrait of Bob Bartlett who commanded the ship. This is a splendid book of true adventure." M. P. Allen
+ N Y Times p35 S 12 '48 140w
Sat R of Lit 31:42 N 13 '48 40w

MCCRACKEN, HAROLD, and VAN CLEVE, HARRY. Trapping; the craft and science of catching fur-bearing animals; il. by Howard L. Hastings. 196p $2.75 Barnes, A.S.
639.1 Trapping Agr48-15

"A naturalist and a trapper have collaborated on a practical handbook for the beginner. Seventeen animals found in Canada, U.S., and Alaska are described, location of varieties noted, and trapping methods explained." Booklist

Booklist 44:197 F 1 '48

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 73:477 Mr 15 '48 30w
Wis Lib Bul 44:37 F '48

MCCULLOUGH, JOHN G. Good work! what will you be when you grow up? with pictures by Dahlov Ipcar. [39p] $1.50 Scott, W.R.
371.425 Occupations—Juvenile literature 48-8484

Beginners vocational guide. Describes many different kinds of jobs in language and pictures for five to eight year olds.

"This offers lots of possibilities but doesn't go beyond a very superficial scratching of the surface."
— + Kirkus 16:436 S 1 '48 130w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ja 2 '49 100w

"A practical as well as fascinating account. . . Children know a little about some of these jobs, but this book gives them more information and a clearer picture. . . This is a book rich in information." Lois Palmer
+ N Y Times p2 N 14 '48 100w

MCCULLOUGH, WILLIAM WALLACE. Electric motor maintenance. 126p il $2 Wiley
621.313 Electric motors 47-11449

"This manual deals practically with the care and maintenance of electric motors from the viewpoint of mechanics, factory inspectors and electricians. Only brief reference is made to basic electrical principles. The first ten chapters discuss the maintenance of bearing, current-collecting devices and insulation. The remaining six deal more specifically with the care of types of motors such as induction, direct current, synchronous, and geared. One chapter discusses motor-generator sets." (N Y Tech Bks) Index.

Booklist 44:212 F 15 '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 72:1113 Ag '47 20w
N Y New Tech Bks 32:74 O '47

MACDONALD, MRS BETTY (BARD) HESKETT. The plague and I. 254p $2.75 Lippincott

616.246 Tuberculosis 48-8430

Humorous account of the author's tuberculosis cure at a sanatorium in Washington state.

Reviewed by Edward Weeks
Atlantic 183:82 Ja '49 550w

Booklist 45:28 S 15 '48

"She never remains serious for long. For the most part, 'The Plague and I' is racy, flippant, irreverent, and uproariously funny." Ben Kartman
+ Chicago Sun O 19 '48 750w

"There is interesting and certainly helpful information about the disease, its treatment, cure and the patient's eventual adjustment to normal living. The story is marred somewhat by witticisms that reflect non-understanding of reticence, which is to be deplored in an otherwise warm and genuine personality." H. S. Taylor
+ — Library J 73:1270 S 15 '48 100w

"Since people who are ill have all the normal quirks, emotions and appetites, often in exaggerated form, they can be very funny, and in this book they are. If some of the dialogue is so penetrating and so thoroughly dipped in feminine venom that one recognizes its accent and origin, so much the better. In addition to her other gifts, Mrs. MacDonald may well be a ventriloquist on paper." Lisle Bell
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p19 O 17 '48 460w

Reviewed by Florence Crowther
N Y Times p6 O 17 '48 700w

"Like 'The Egg,' you'll find this easy, unliterary reading, the humor rollicksome rather than subtle. Betty, writes for 'folks,' for the happy, confident majority who respond readily to a gallant facing of trouble. The best summing up of 'The Plague and I' one can make is that it is the book every author hopes to write—the book no reader can put down until it is finished." Jane Voiles
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 31 '48 600w

"If you read 'The Plague and I,' I can promise you, you will enjoy yourself. Read it any time in any place. Perhaps that should be modified slightly. Reading this book in a public place such as the subway means having people stare at you curiously as you laugh out loud. Yes, indeed, Betty MacDonald has done it again." Stephenie Benét
+ Sat R of Lit 31:17 N 20 '48 800w

Springf'd Republican p12C D 5 '48 180w

Time 52:118 O 25 '48 140w

Wis Lib Bul 44:183 N '48

MACDONALD, DWIGHT. Henry Wallace, the man and the myth. 187p $2.50 Vanguard

B or 92 Wallace, Henry Agard. Campaign literature, 1948 48-5526

An examination of Mr Wallace as secretary of agriculture, vice-president, and editor of the New Republic. The book is based on articles published in "Politics," the magazine which the author publishes. References.

Reviewed by J. C. Garrett
Canadian Forum 28:68 Je '48 1000w

Reviewed by R. G. Tugwell
Chicago Sun F 23 '48 500w

"Not a pleasant portrait of a man considered by many as an idealist, a truly religious man, but one that exposes his weaknesses."
Kirkus 16:68 F 1 '48 170w

"Book presents highly controversial view of public affairs." R. W. Henderson
Library J 73:332 F 15 '48 210w

"While Macdonald's book is more than a cut above the usual campaign document, it misses being a definitive study by a good deal. It is hasty, padded, and sometimes remarkably careless for a journalist of his caliber. But in spite of forced flights of fancy and a pretty clear stacking of the case, there is enough explosive matter in the book to blow many a dreamy 'progressive' out of the ranks of the third party." Robert Bendiner
+ — Nation 166:279 Mr 6 '48 1300w

Reviewed by Russell Lord
New Repub 118:20 Mr 1 '48 2000w

"Mr. Macdonald's viewpoint is important, because his book is a highly personalized study, in which the reader who is unsophisticated in the various dialectics of the Left may have as much difficulty in cataloguing the author as in pinning down the subject. The core of a very serious indictment against Henry Wallace as a political leader is there, but it is obscured, rather than illuminated, by Mr. Macdonald's verbal pyrotechnics, and his complex organization of a brief work." Harry Baehr
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Mr 7 '48 1350w

"A good deal of 'Wallace: The Man and the Myth' is based on the personal recollections of unidentified participants: this is historical material of uncertain reliability. . . At times, in his enthusiasm, Macdonald lets some of the material get out of control, giving the book a rather discursive quality. But if the 1948 campaign produces a brighter or wittier book than this, its literary quality will be higher than that of any campaign for many years." Arthur Schlesinger, Jr.
+ — N Y Times p3 F 22 '48 1250w

New Yorker 23:98 F 21 '48 100w

Reviewed by Norman Jackman
San Francisco Chronicle p15 Ap 25 '48 450w

"Wallace-haters will undoubtedly enjoy this book. But the informed reader will come away with a sour taste. There is a strong case to be made against Wallace. His record is splotched and muddy. Some of it is downright tawdry. Time and again Wallace has said one thing and done exactly the opposite. If Mr. Macdonald had confined himself to that record he really could have 'burned up' Wallace." R. S. Allen
Sat R of Lit 31:20 Mr 6 '48 800w

Time 51:116 Mr 15 '48 650w

MACDONALD, PHILIP, and CORRELL, A. BOYD. Dark wheel. 256p $2.75 Morrow 48-5307

Detective story.

"Glossy, even a little glib."
— Kirkus 15:657 D 1 '47 160w

"Here's an item that's sure to entertain whether you take it as a 'novel of overpowering intensity,' which you can hardly do if you're in your right mind, or as a suspense tale with a goofy plot managed skillfully." Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 F 15 '48 250w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p30 Mr 7 '48 180w

"Overwrought, but expertly plotted."
New Yorker 23:88 F 14 '48 80w

"Colorful people move swiftly through sequence of sleek and suspenseful scenes to a split-second 'solution.' "
Sat R of Lit 31:28 F 21 '48 50w

Springf'd Republican p15A F 22 '48 120w

MCDONELL, GORDON. My sister, goodnight. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 247p $2.50 Little 48-5055

Detective story.

Booklist 44:300 My 1 '48

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ja 23 '48 100w

"Good."
+ Kirkus 15:660 D 1 '47 70w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 Ja 25 '48 180w

"The plot is relatively simple, and the story proceeds at a lively pace." W. J. G.
N Y Times p30 Mr 7 '48 110w

"Unassuming suspense stuff, expertly plotted."
+ New Yorker 23:88 Ja 24 '48 80w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p14 F 15 '48 120w

"Murderer's identity not unguessable, but pursuit has many exciting moments. Good grade."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:34 F 14 '48 40w

Wis Lib Bul 44:41 F '48

MCDOUGALD, ROMAN. Lady without mercy. 246p $2 Simon & Schuster
48-5729

Mystery story.

Booklist 44:300 My 1 '48

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ap 9 '48 90w

Kirkus 16:179 Ap 1 '48 70w

"One can't say as much for the outcome of the love affair which provides the motive for the attempted murders." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p20 Ap 18 '48 140w

"Excellent plot idea obscured by emotional characters 'reeling, writhing, and fainting in coils.' So incessantly intense it falls rather flat."
— + Sat R of Lit 31:52 Ap 17 '48 50w

MACDOUGALL, ARTHUR RAYMOND. Where flows the Kennebec; more tales about Dud Dean; il. by Milton C. Weiler. 181p $3 Coward-McCann
47-12252

More tales about the humorous adventures of Dud Dean, Maine guide.

Booklist 44:202 F 1 '48

"Kindly, homely humor, these informal yarns provide outdoor experiences for indoor entertainment."
+ Kirkus 15:587 O 15 '47 120w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 73:42 Ja 1 '48 30w

"If the author tips his hand occasionally, and he does, this slight dereliction is more than balanced by his firm conviction that God's earth (especially the part of it lying within the borders of Maine) is a good place to live. And the people aren't so bad either. Dud Dean, in literature and life, is a perfect companion." Stanleigh Arnold
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 D 14 '47 150w

MACDOUGALL, MICHAEL. On pinochle. 90p $1.50 Coward-McCann
795.41 Pinocle (game) 47-12045

"Tells all you need to know about pinochle in its varieties. Auction pinochle, two-handed, partnership pinochle, check pinochle, these are the main branches. Each game has individual rules and conventions." Kirkus

Booklist 44:198 F 1 '48

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '48

"Every step . . . discussed clearly, expertly."
+ Kirkus 15:570 O 1 '47 70w

MCDOUGALL, WILLIAM H. Six bells off Java; a narrative of one man's private miracle. 222p $2.75 Scribner
940.548 World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, American 48-6477

The author was an American newspaper correspondent stationed in Shanghai in the fall of 1941. This book contains the record of his experiences during the first year of the war, including his escape from Shanghai, the sinking of the ship he was traveling on to Australia, his return to Sumatra and imprisonment by the Japanese.

Kirkus 16:212 Ap 15 '48 140w

"No paraphrase of the story of the end of Poelau Bras, and of the episodes that filled the little eternity that followed it, can do justice to Mr McDougall's account of it. I cannot remember that I have ever read a detailed recital of harrowing experiences, whether true or fanciful, that kept me so tense throughout. Mostly it is just straight reporting; but as reporting it is far above the average; and the reader who does not feel that he is with this gifted reporter at every step must be a good deal less impressionable than this reviewer." Rodney Gilbert
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ap 25 '48 700w

Reviewed by Foster Hailey
N Y Times p11 Ag 22 '48 450w

Springf'd Republican p10B Ap 25 '48 420w

MACDOWELL, SYL (TOM GUNN, pseud). Western trout; introd. by Paul R. Needham. 261p il $4 Knopf
799.1755 Trout fishing Agr48-211

A guide to the different kinds of trout found in the western states of California, Idaho, Oregon, Nevada, Utah, Colorado, Wyoming, Montana, and Washington, and the various methods of catching them. Index.

Booklist 44:309 My 15 '48

"An excellent addition to the Borzoi Books for Sportsmen, in a study of our own western waters that does for them, in a chattier, more appealing way, what Haig-Brown did for his waters of British Colombia in The Western Angler."
+ Kirkus 16:102 F 15 '48 170w

"Comprehensive, authoritative work. . . Recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 73:711 My 1 '48 50w

Reviewed by J. R. de la Torre Bueno
N Y Times p25 Je 13 '48 40w

"Syl MacDowell is a fly fisherman by profession, and a writer to finance his expeditions into the boondocks. He is also a humorist whose touch is light and sure. And, as such a humorist is likely to be, he is a philosopher. Finally, he is a profound student of trout and trout fishing." Stanleigh Arnold
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 9 '48 750w

MCFARLANE, JOHN W. It's easy to fix your bike. 32p il pa $1 Wilcox & Follett
629.2272 Bicycles A48-6484

"Shows in detailed sequence shots how to care for and repair the main things that go wrong on the average American bicycle—saddle and handlebars, tires, wheels, pedals, chain, coaster brake. Includes a lubrication chart and lists, with pictures, the tools needed. A useful book for any collection. Grade 5 and up." Booklist

Booklist 44:221 F 15 '48

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '48

MCGERR, PATRICIA. Catch me if you can. 192p $2 Doubleday 48-9217

Mystery story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun N 19 '48 130w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p22 D 5 '48 130w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p41 N 28 '48 180w

"Moderately exciting."
New Yorker 24:168 N 20 '48 80w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p24 D 12 '48 40w

"Read this for its exceptionally clever idea—and not much more. People are stencils and dialogue turgid. But what a plot! Good—with reservations."
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:36 N 20 '48 50w

MCGINLEY, PHYLLIS (MRS C. L. HAYDEN). All around the town; il. by Helen Stone. [63p] $2 Lippincott 48-7865

New York city sights in verse, from A to Z.

Booklist 45:109 N 15 '48

"This is a witty and delightful book." F. C. Darling
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 S 28 '48 180w

"Anyone, big and small, who loves New York will love this book too." C. H. B.
+ Commonweal 49:145 N 19 '48 40w

Reviewed by A. C. Moore
Horn Bk 24:434 N '48 240w

"The much overworked device of alphabetical presentation automatically precludes a maximum of originality in choice of subject matter. Several of the concepts are beyond the interest range of the picture-book age. Paper-covered boards and weak stitching foreshadow a short life for the book. Definitely a luxury item." Claire Nolte
Library J 73:1199 S 1 '48 80w

"In each picture of the alphabet Helen Stone has caught the mood and the fun of Phyllis McGinley's delightful verse." H. A. M.
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 N 14 '48 260w

"For the 4 to 10 crowd, this book is fun; for alphabet-book lovers, it's a collector's item." S. C. G.
+ N Y Times p5 N 14 '48 120w

New Yorker 24:126 D 11 '48 100w

"It is a book that the entire family will enjoy. It is a perfect book to place under the Christmas tree." M. G. Davis
+ Sat R of Lit 31:36 O 16 '48 230w

MCGIVERN, WILLIAM P. But death runs faster. 231p $2.50 Dodd 48-6368

Detective story.

Booklist 44:383 Jl 15 '48

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ap 9 '48 100w

"Likable item." Will Cuppy
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Ap 4 '48 180w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p17 Ap 18 '48 150w

"Worth while."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:52 Ap 17 '48 40w

Springf'd Republican p10A Jl 4 '48 120w

MCGLASHAN, CHARLES FAYETTE. History of the Donner party; a tragedy of the Sierra; with foreword, notes and bibl. by George H. Hinkle and Bliss McGlashan Hinkle. rev ed 261p il $3.50 Stanford univ. press

917.8 Donner party. Overland journeys to the Pacific
48-1005

A photolithographic reproduction of the second (1881) edition of a book first published nearly seventy years ago. It is an account of the experiences of the famous Donner party which the author got first hand from the survivors. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p10 D 25 '47 550w

"This is a great item of Americana, and I quarrel less than do the editors with the author's sentimental style; it suits subject and period." B. R. Redman
+ Sat R of Lit 31:30 F 7 '48 140w

MCGLYNN, THOMAS MATTHEW. Vision of Fatima. 215p il $2.50 Little

231.73 Fatima, Nossa Senhora da. Santos, Lucy dos, in religion Sister Mary of the Immaculate Heart
48-8963

An account of Father McGlynn's visit to Sister Dores, (now Sister Mary of the Immaculate Heart) the only surviving witness of the apparitions at Fatima (Portugal) in 1917.

"To be fully appreciated the book should be read after a preliminary acquaintance with the story of the apparitions, for the author does not present a complete history. The book will undoubtedly strike the popular fancy because of its sheer human interest, lucidity, good sense, and humor. It is, really, a serious and critical analysis of the Fatima revelations made with theological acumen." John Rubba
+ Cath World 168:415 F '49 150w

Kirkus 16:423 Ag 15 '48 160w

"Recommended for public and reference libraries." R. P. Breaden
+ Library J 73:1508 O 15 '48 140w

Reviewed by P. W. Wilson
N Y Times p30 N 14 '48 100w

"Father McGlynn is perhaps a better sculptor than he is a writer, yet it is his very lack of literary polish, plus his deep sensitivity, humility and good humor, that makes 'Vision of Fatima' compelling, persuasive and worthwhile." W. R. W.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 N 14 '48 280w

MCGRATH, THOMAS. To walk a crooked mile. (Swallow Press bk) 89p $2 Morrow 811
48-391

A collection of forty poems on poverty, injustice and war.

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Chicago Sun Ap 5 '48 250w

"One of the most interesting of the new books of poetry by a versatile young poet." Gerald McDonald
+ Library J 73:948 Je 15 '48 60w

"Thomas McGrath, in this collection of forty poems, has continued the tradition of the English poets of the Thirties. . . But he does not suffer from some of their weaknesses. . . In the first place, when contemplating a harsh and chaotic world, he never allows his genuine pity for the oppressed to degenerate into self-pity; and secondly, he is never forced to retreat into a world of private fantasy and introspection. In consequence he has been able not only to sustain the tradition which would otherwise appear to be almost extinct, but has brought to it a new and vigorous honesty. Most of this collection are poems of 'occasion' in which McGrath uses a very great variety of vivid images. . . But the often surrealistic imagery is never allowed to distract the imagination by making it fly off at wild tangents and nearly always succeeds in reinforcing the main meaning of the poem. Moreover, by the subtle use of recurrent symbols which run like threads through all the poems, he contrives to bind them together as a whole." Hugh Gibb
+ N Y Times p4 Mr 7 '48 450w

"McGrath has a 'line' of his own, based on genuine Western folk-speech (he hails from North Dakota); he hardly needs to lean on such worn props as Dali's crutches. When he wants to, he can find the right words for love, or command anger and revulsion, irony and wit. . . In so far as he directs his poetry toward political action, McGrath simplifies too much and loses his grip as an artist, permitting banalities of diction ('comradeship,' 'brotherhood,' 'bourgeois,' 'upper class,' and the like). . . But there is a great deal of life in this poetry, for which one can forgive the lapses into crutches or class-war." G. P. Meyer
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:51 Ap 17 '48 450w

MCGUIRE, PAUL. Experiment in world order. 412p $4 Morrow

354.42 Great Britain—Colonies, dominions, etc. Great Britain—History 48-6541

"Written with a view to pointing up America's responsibilities in the postwar world. Major portion of the book is a social history of the British Empire: its origins, development and present position as a Commonwealth. This history shows that the British system was not primarily a political, but rather a social and economic force, and because of that was a dominant factor in maintaining world order. . . Author is Australian." (Library J) Index.

"The book is written by a man who, not primarily a scholar, has derived from reading and travel various conclusions which he seeks to share with an audience that is not primarily one of scholars. The style, while fluent and readable, is full of familiar journalistic techniques; and the plan of organization, though mainly historical, justifies Mr. McGuire's own statement that 'it is a discursive book and it much returns on its arguments' (p.16). The treatment in general borrows little from the apparatus of scholarship, is lacking in citation of sources, and tends to omit those qualifications and exceptions which distinguish the dogmatic assertion from the probable generalization." Leslie Lipson

— + Am Pol Sci R 42:1231 D '48 700w

Booklist 44:307 My 15 '48

Canadian Forum 28:94 Jl '48 170w

"Mr. McGuire has turned out a stimulating piece of work. Even if one does not wholly follow him through his main thesis, he at least freshens and clarifies one's background." Henry Sowerby

Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 13 '48 650w

"The work [is not] free from certain inaccuracies in its generalizations, such as the rather free and easy statement that the Irish and English are essentially lazy and that only their miserable climate makes them energetic. Such statements are interesting and even amusing, but they are hardly capable of scientific justification. The book on the whole is excellent in style, treatment of subject matter, and convincing presentation of its thesis." J. G. Kerwin

+ — Commonweal 48:406 Ag 6 '48 550w

Current Hist 15:40 Jl '48 50w

"A competent job, interesting, intelligent."

+ Kirkus 16:137 Mr 1 '48 170w

"Recommended." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 73:555 Ap 1 '48 130w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan

Nation 167:165 Ag 7 '48 450w

Reviewed by Gerald Johnson

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 My 2 '48 1250w

"As a brief and popular account of the development of the Commonwealth and Empire and a very general survey of its status at present, this book should do more to persuade Americans out of their eighteenth-century notions on the subject than more formal and scholarly treatises like Lord Elton's recent 'Imperial Commonwealth.' . . The book is, however, no straightforward analysis of the British System. It has a good, clear core. . . It is difficult to sort out and arrange Mr. McGuire's answers to what after all appears to be the central theme of this book: that is, the nature of the ties that hold together the many peoples under the British Crown, and the ways in which this British experiment in world order can be of use to us in achieving a much wider world order." Crane Brinton

+ — N Y Times p3 My 2 '48 1150w

Reviewed by Caspar Weinberger

San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 23 '48 450w

"Mr. McGuire is discursive and entertaining, rambling along many by-paths and then doubling back onto the main road at points which he has already passed. The reader often wishes that he had a map, so that he could determine just how the land lies and how far he has really progressed. . . Though Mr. McGuire discusses more than four centuries of British history with much wit and good sense, he offers few clues in that story which point the way toward the future." J. A. Krout

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:14 My 15 '48 700w

MCGURRIN, JAMES. Bourke Cockran, a free lance in American politics. 361p il $3.50 Scribner

B or 92 Cockran, William Bourke 48-5661

A biography of the Irish-born American lawyer and orator who was a leading democratic politician and a standard bearer for the Irish and Catholic causes from the 1870's until his death in 1923. He was a Tammany man, who nevertheless opposed Cleveland and supported McKinley and Theodore Roosevelt. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by Robert McElroy

Am Hist R 54:217 O '48 450w

"To the political scientist, the greatest weakness of the work is the lack of explanation of Cockran's failure to reach greater heights. Although none of the scores of quotations are footnoted, a useful bibliography has been appended." H. A. Bone

Am Pol Sci R 42:595 Je '48 380w

"Dramatic, tender and inspiring, this narrative of Cockran's life opens up a vivid panorama of vital moments of our recent history and reveals a uniquely versatile genius as well as a vivacious, winning personality." J. B. Sheerin

+ Cath World 167:279 Je '48 400w

Christian Science Monitor p18 Mr 17 '48 360w

"Mr. McGurrin has given us a solid and delightful book. He has allowed the facts to tell their story and a wonderful and well told story it is." J. N. Vaughan

+ Commonweal 47:524 Mr 5 '48 850w

"A faithful, possibly a definitive treatment, in sober terms, of a little known (to today's readers) figure in American social history."

Kirkus 16:18 Ja 1 '48 170w

"Cockran didn't always advocate his own ideas, nor did he always act on principle. Read the book by all means, but read it with the knowledge that Mr. McGurrin has taken all the colors of the prism and painted his hero a pure shining white. Cockran really was dapple gray, like most men." J. G. Wallace

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Ap 4 '48 1250w

"James McGurrin—to whom Cockran is a great hero—is well equipped by his knowledge of political, Irish and Catholic affairs to write this adulatory biography. The book convinces the reader that the adulation was deserved, for Bourke Cockran managed to blend expedience with love of justice and independence in his battle for a number of important principles." M. R. Werner

+ N Y Times p7 F 22 '48 750w

"Mr. McGurrin makes an interesting story of Cockran's life but it is not very convincing in his effort to establish him as one of the great orators of the era, despite the opinion of Bryan and the young Winston Churchill. The author notes admiringly that Cockran's speeches were remarkable for their 'lavish richness of style,' and they certainly were."

+ — New Yorker 24:87 F 28 '48 160w

MACHEN, ARTHUR. Tales of horror and the supernatural; ed. and with an introd. by Philip Van Doren Stern; with a note on Machen by Robert Hillyer. 427p $3.95 Knopf 48-7589

Short stories and a short novel, The Terror, written by a Welsh author forty or fifty years ago.

Reviewed by James Sandoe

Chicago Sun O 1 '48 190w

Kirkus 16:243 My 15 '48 170w

"Machen, abominating nineteenth-century science and twentieth-century psycho-analysis, believed in the Celtic occult, which in its very nature is not capable of rational explanation; so his dénouements are vague just where they should be clear. One wants to know about the evil which lies under the surface, and the atmosphere does not compensate for his failure to explain the inexplicable." Ernest Jones

MACHEN, ARTHUR—Continued
— Nation 167:190 Ag 14 '48 330w

Reviewed by J. D. Carr
N Y Times p10 Ag 1 '48 380w
New Yorker 34:77 Ag 21 '48 180w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Jl 25 '48 130w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 31:32 O 2 '48 180w

"Though the stories are still unsurpassed as prose nightmares, they are written in the leisurely style of the nineties and are now too slowly paced for admirers of space ships and time machines. . . It is wonderful to have all of Machen in one volume, but even his most devoted admirers are advised to sup lightly and not devour the book at one sitting. The book has been edited and has a fine introduction by Philip Van Doren Stern, and there is a graceful note on Machen by a friend, the poet Robert Hillyer." R. F. H.
Springf'd Republican p15A Ag 1 '48 460w

MCILROY, ROBERT JOSEPH. Chemistry of the polysaccharides. 118p $2.50 Longmans

547 Polysaccharides 49-1324

Outline of modern developments in carbohydrate chemistry, especially the polysaccharides. It is designed for teachers, honors students, research workers, and biochemists. Chapter references. Index.

"The book does have limitations but should serve excellently as a concise introduction to the polysaccharide field." C. D. Hurd
+ Chem & Eng N 26:3220 O 25 '48 220w

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1281 S 15 '48 20w

"The especial virtue of the book lies in the unified presentation, with interrelationship among groups and sub-groups clearly indicated."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 33:50 Jl '48

MCILWAINE, SHIELDS. Memphis down in Dixie. (Society in America ser) 400p $4.50 Dutton

976.8191 Memphis, Tennessee 48-6414

A history of Memphis and its people, from De Soto's exploration of the Mississippi to the administration of Boss Crump. Index.

Booklist 44:310 My 15 '48

"A vivid, appealing portrait which captures the reality and charm of the city and its people."
+ Kirkus 16:77 F 1 '48 120w

"Author's breezy and entertaining style stimulates interest throughout. A worthwhile informal cultural history. Recommended." Scott Adams
+ Library J 73:471 Mr 15 '48 120w

"As history, 'Memphis Down In Dixie' would strike you as fore-shortened. But it is not designed as history in the formal sense. It is a social portrait, a characterization of attitude, manner, way of life. Here again difficulty intrudes. The author inclines to the happy and indulgent side, as if he sees it all through the eyes of a home-towner, a booster who, however intelligent, is yet quite fond, insisting that there is 'something about Memphis' and that certain foibles including toleration of Crump, are understandable because of the way this social entity grew. There is a captivation with Characters rather than with character." Tarleton Collier
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 My 9 '48 1100w

Reviewed by Turner Catledge
N Y Times p5 Je 6 '48 1000w
San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ag 8 '48 400w

" 'Memphis Down in Dixie' may not be one of the important books of the year, but it will be a readable one in the Society of America series. It is packed with tales, anecdotes, and folk history of some hitherto unheralded people." Paul Flowers
+ Sat R of Lit 31:13 My 22 '48 850w
Springf'd Republican p10B Ap 25 '48 350w

MACINTYRE, MRS CLARA (BISHOP). Introducing Washington, D.C. 84p il $3 Anderson house

917.53 Washington, D.C.—Description

A pictorial guide book to Washington, D.C. "The author has divided the city into twelve geographic areas and has described the attractions of each area in separate sections of the book. . . There are two chapters devoted to nearby historical points of interest, which are within easy driving distance of Washington, D.C., and to suggestions about places to eat while on these trips." (Social Studies) Index.

"Mrs. MacIntyre's brief, information-packed text, spaced with excellent photographs, suggests the Washington tours she herself enjoyed, afoot and by car, the restaurants and recreations she preferred, the by-ways she found most colorful, the out-of-town visits that were most rewarding." G. P. Harrington
+ N Y Times p49 O 17 '48 320w
Sat R of Lit 32:29 Ja 1 '49 100w

"The author is to be commended upon the preparation of this book as all details seem to have been investigated with the greatest amount of care. The places selected for eating and recreation are well chosen. It is indeed a pleasure to recommend a book of this type for classroom use and to the sponsors of classes taking annual trips to Washington, D.C."
+ Social Studies 39:380 D '48 200w

MACIVER, ROBERT MORRISON. More perfect union; a program for the control of inter-group discrimination in the United States. 311p $4 Macmillan

325.73 U.S.—Race question. Antipathies and prejudices 48-7108

A study of the amount and kind of racial discrimination in the United States and a program for its control. The author is Lieber professor of political philosophy and sociology at Columbia university and the author of many books in the fields of sociology and government. Bibliography. Indexes.

"The book is illuminating and richly suggestive for those who wish not only to know about the subject but also to do something about it. The book is also significant of a trend in the social sciences away from the exclusively scientific and in the direction of the planning and support of action programs." C. B. Swisher
+ Am Pol Sci R 42:998 O '48 750w

"As usual, Dr. MacIver has written a wise and incisive book. Though not so comprehensive as Gunnar Myrdal's An American Dilemma, it has greater merit as a guide to the formulation of programs of action." E. McN. Burns
+ Christian Century 65:1009 S 29 '48 700w

"The time had come when a synthesis was needed, a drawing together of that vast complex of studies, pronouncements, aspirations and experiments dealing with inter-group discrimination in the United States. The time had come and happily the person suited to the task was at hand and prepared by training and inclination to embark upon this audacious enterprise. Those of us who have for long labored in this perplexing realm will be forever grateful to Robert MacIver for having focused his sharp and subtle mind upon this fateful problem, this source of national disunity which threatens our survival as a democratic people." E. C. Lindeman
+ Columbia Law R 48:1115 N '48 850w
Current Hist 15:103 Ag '48 30w

"Those who hope to achieve the millenium in one brisk charge will not find Professor MacIver's book to their taste. They will indict his Fabian tactics as too little and too late. Those who would prefer to let sleeping dogs lie will find his recommended course equally unpalatable. It threatens too much too soon. But granted the validity of the end to which this volume is dedicated, and the stubborn realities which impede realization of that end, it is difficult to conceive of a program of action which strikes a more successful balance between what is ultimately desirable and what is immediately feasible. Professor MacIver has succeeded in demonstrating that democratic idealism and practical political action must and can march hand in hand." Merle Fainsod
Harvard Law R 62:164 N '48 1500w

Kirkus 16:100 F 15 '48 150w

"Constructive contribution to important subject." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 73:471 Mr 15 '48 150w

Reviewed by Carey McWilliams
Nation 167:166 Ag 7 '48 290w

Reviewed by Morroe Berger
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Jl 18 '48 600w

"'The More Perfect Union' appears at a time when group relations, both domestic and foreign, are so disturbed that attention is focused on preventing violence rather than on removing the causes of prejudice. To the latter cause Dr. MacIver addresses his bold plans for action. His sound scholarship will assure him an eventual hearing from the growing ranks of those who likewise hold group tensions the central danger to mankind." Malcolm Ross
+ N Y Times p3 Je 13 '48 1400w

"The great merit of 'The More Perfect Union' is that for the first time it analyzes, like a textbook on military strategy, the problems of winning the war against discrimination in America. Professor MacIver has made a significant contribution and pointed the way for many more detailed studies." Will Moslow
+ Sat R of Lit 31:15 Jl 10 '48 170w

School & Society 67:415 My 29 '48 20w

Reviewed by J. M. Gottschalk
Social Studies 40:44 Ja '49 1200w

"When an academic figure of this caliber turns to a job of this kind it is a promising sign in the intellectual life of the country. He speaks mainly to, and for, specialists who have made as yet but little positive contribution to the needs of public policy. . . It will be the abiding merit of his work that by showing the existing gaps in pertinent knowledge, he will stimulate the effort which alone can make a manual of democratic strategy measure up to the formidable tasks of democratic statecraft." H. D. Lasswell
+ Survey G 37:477 N '48 600w

MACKALL, LAWTON. Knife and fork in New York; where to eat, what to order. 249p $2.75 McBride

647.95 Restaurants, lunch rooms, etc.—New York (city) 48-7105

"The author's choice of New York restaurants for American and foreign food for a person who is looking for either an inexpensive snack or an extravagant meal. Lists places with entertainment, dance orchestra, cocktail bars, and those catering to the unescorted woman. Annotated, symbols indicate price range." (Booklist) The last chapter lists forty "roadside eateries within easy motoring range of Manhattan." Index.

Booklist 44:366 Jl 1 '48

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ag 18 '48 850w

MACKAY, MRS MARGARET (MACKPRANG). Sharon. 269p $3 Day

48-5527

A novel of life in Honolulu in the 1880's. The heroine, after years away at school in New York and Europe, returns to her family to find them under a social cloud. Falling in love with one man, she marries another and, in the end, finds she has done wisely.

"Good story telling; though there are inconsistencies in period decor, the general feel of life in the islands before American annexation is vividly conveyed. Upper grade popular romance."
+ Kirkus 15:682 D 15 '47 160w

Reviewed by M. P. McKay
Library J 73:123 Ja 15 '48 80w

"For the sake of tropical romance and intricate plot, Mrs. Mackay has fallen short of one's expectations on an artistic level. Her period background is like a lantern slide."
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 Ap 18 '48 160w

Reviewed by Edith James
San Francisco Chronicle p10 Mr 28 '48 90w

Reviewed by Ethel Dexter
Springf'd Republican p10B S 5 '48 300w

MACKAY, RONALD WILLIAM GORDON. You can't turn the clock back [Eng title: Britain in wonderland]. 367p $3.50 Ziff-Davis

338.942 Great Britain—Foreign policy. World politics. International cooperation 48-8479

The author is a Labor member of the British Hous of Commons. His thesis is "that Western Europe should become a federal state; that this state should be democratic, socialist and subservient to neither Russia nor the United States. He holds also that the widened markets provided by such a state offer the one opportunity for mass production, an efficient industry and a stable and independent economy; and that the path toward world government lies not by way of the United Nations but through surrender of national sovereignty to such larger units as a Western European Federation." (N Y Times) Bibliography. No index.

Reviewed by Irving Pflaum
Chicago Sun O 7 '48 80w

"Here is an honest statement from the man who headed the British delegation to the Brussels Conference, and, at The Hague, in May, headed the British delegation to the Congress of Europe, sponsored by Winston Churchill to consider the whole question of western European unity. Though he is a socialist his statement is not without value at this moment, since its major thesis is supported by innumerable provocative observations about man's misconceptions of democracy, 20th century economics and social progress." Roland Sawyer
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 S 30 '48 700w

Current Hist 15:293 N '48 110w

Kirkus 16:432 Ag 15 '48 110w

"An honest, worthwhile book." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 73:1270 S 15 '48 140w

Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 13 '48 250w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan
Nation 167:352 S 25 '48 1450w

"All this is plainly a tall order. If it could be done, and could be worked effectively, with the colonies of the European States and with the Dominions tacked on as suppliers of foodstuffs and materials and as markets, most of the excellent results Mr. Mackay promises would certainly follow. The economic case for European unity (aided by the adhesion of sufficient extra-European primary producing areas) is very strong. But Mr. Mackay, with the eloquence of the advocate, leaps pretty lightly over the difficulties." G. D. H. Cole
New Statesman & Nation 35:318 Ap 17 '48 1050w

"What gives to the book much of its value and interest is the author's willingness to follow to the end the implications of his arguments, however unorthodox they may be. . . The book is provocative and lucid at its best, and it provides the American reader with an interesting specimen of European political

MACKAY, R. W. G.—Continued
thinking which, though still characteristic of a minority, may become increasingly significant." August Heckscher
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 S 19 '48 700w

"Unfortunately Mr. Mackay's development of [his] important and sensible, though admittedly debatable, ideas covers more ground than any book I have recently encountered. . . Also Mr. Mackay does not hesitate to take up the same subject three or four times, which, proves not to be a recipe for thoroughness. . . As a matter of fact, Mr Mackay is often terribly casual in his interpretation of events. This defect, coupled with the equally casual organization of his material, will keep much of his audience from discovering that on his main theme he deserves attention." J. K. Galbraith
— + N Y Times p3 Ag 22 '48 900w

Reviewed by M. S. Watson
Sat R of Lit 31:19 O 30 '48 1000w

MACKAYE, DAVID LORING, and MACKAYE, JULIA JOSEPHINE (GUNTHER) (JULIAN DAVID, LORING MACKAYE, pseuds). Far distant bugle; decorations by Avery Johnson. 264p $2.50 Longmans
48-4002

Story for older boys and girls about a western outpost of the United States army in the time of the Civil war, and of a brave youth who grew up fighting in its defense.

Kirkus 16:336 Jl 15 '48 140w

"Action is swift, situations perilous, villains black, and the boys brave and resourceful. These features, plus authentic background, make this a good stepping-stone up from westerns." Margaret Ward
+ Library J 73:1392 O 1 '48 80w

"The action is swift, the plot mature and realistic, the characterization strong. The story presents to older boys a vigorous picture of frontier life at a critical time in our nation's history." R. A. B.
+ N Y Times p5 N 14 '48 180w

"The book is melodramatic in spots and coincidence is not idle, but even the improbable scenes are well done. The adult characters are carefully drawn and, except for Joe's mother, are convincing. Dick's family life, so cruelly broken up by the war, is splendidly presented. It is a good book, jam-packed with action, soundly based on history, and rich in character development." M. P. Allen
+ Sat R of Lit 31:25 N 13 '48 250w
School & Society 68:160 S 4 '48 30w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p7B O 3 '48 190w

MACKAYE, LORING, pseud. See MacKaye, D. L. and J. J. G.

MCKEAN, ELSE. Up hill; with il. by the author; introd. by Anne Coolidge Moore and Edward W. Moore. 63p $2 Shady hill press, 17 E. 96th st, N.Y. 28
920 Negroes—Juvenile literature

Biographical sketches of six Negroes of unusual ability. They are Ernest Everett Just, Paul Robeson, Richard Wright, Charles Richard Drew, Mordecai W. Johnson, and Emma Clarissa Clement. For ages 8-14.

Booklist 44:205 F 1 '48

"A small book that should find space on both school and public library bookshelves." S. J. Johnson
+ Library J 73:340 F 15 '48 70w

MCKEE, IRVING. Ben-Hur Wallace; the life of Lew Wallace. 301p il $4 Univ. of Calif.
B or 92 Wallace, Lew (Lewis) 47-12476

A sympathetic, full-length biography of the author of Ben-Hur, General Lew Wallace, soldier, diplomat and romanticist. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 44:182 Ja 15 '48

Reviewed by K. B. Taft
Chicago Sun D 10 '47 550w
Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 19 '48 500w

"It is clear that 'Ben-Hur' was less a novel than it was a spiritual justification. Here, transferred to the time of Christ and the body of a Jew, was the Wallace of Lew Wallace's heart. . . That is the reason, of course, that Irving McKee has titled his biography 'Ben-Hur Wallace'; and his book is an artistic as well as a scholarly success." E. B. Davis
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 D 28 '47 1100w

"To a certain degree the present biography shares the flatness of its central figure, either because Mr. McKee's hero never gives him a chance for any sort of emotional depth or because Mr. McKee, like his hero, hardly stops to think about the events he can describe so vividly. In other respects—and particularly in the picture of our Western Frontier during the latter part of the nineteenth century—'Ben-Hur Wallace' is a useful and informative book." Maxwell Geismar
+ — N Y Times p5 D 21 '47 700w
Time 50:85 D 22 '47 1250w

"This judicious biography of him, crammed with facts, gives new perspective to the major events of Wallace's life and adds much fresh and enlightening detail."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:36 Mr '48 280w

MCKEEHAN, LOUIS WILLIAMS. Yale science, the first hundred years, 1701-1801. (Yale univ. School of medicine. Hist. lib. publications) 82p $2.50 Schuman
378 Yale university. Science—History
47-6989

The first century of science at Yale as seen in the accomplishments and limitations of its first science teachers. Contents: Pierson—Eliot—Johnson, 1701-1738; Clap—Stiles—Strong, 1739-1769; Strong—Stiles—Meigs, 1770-1801. Index.

"Biographical items and the author's style make a reading of the book easy and pleasant." H. E. Starr
+ Am Hist R 53:633 Ap '48 400w

Reviewed by C. K. Deischer
Chem & Eng N 26:1035 Ap 5 '48 150w

MACKEN, WALTER. Quench the moon. 377p $3 Viking 48-5852

The hero of this novel of Ireland is a sensitive young man who leaves his home in Connemara after the death of his beloved mother. He goes to Galway where he works and dreams of a literary career. There the news of his father's serious illness reaches him and he returns home. His father is still alive but his sweetheart has been drowned, and he suspects one of her brothers. He avenges her, but loses his own life in the process.

"A novel of emotional extremes, but with the simplicity and directness of a natural vitality which is softened by the beauty and the sensitivity of the prose."
+ Kirkus 16:30 Ja 15 '48 140w

"When Stephen O'Riordan grows up he falls in love with the sister of an implacable enemy and darkness closes in. Yet the geniality of the story far outweighs the grimness, particularly while Stephen is still a boy larking with his friends and being initiated into poaching by the exuberantly Irish character Michilin Fagan." H. I'A. Fausset
+ — Manchester Guardian p3 Ap 9 '48 180w

"It is a mood piece which Walter Macken has written, a portrait of Connemara, the mistress whose lovers are ill-fed, seldom embraced and who die young. 'Quench the Moon' is not for romantics." Thomas Sugrue
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 My 2 '48 600w

"From that point on, while the hero settles accounts with his fiancée's brothers . . . Mr. Macken's novel loses its distinction as a credible and interesting cross-cut of the seething emotional atmosphere of modern Ireland and becomes a melodramatic document that merely identifies the men of Connemara as their country's most tenacious catch-as-catch-can wrestlers."
+ — New Yorker 24:115 Mr 20 '48 170w
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 18 '48 300w

"Mr. Macken has quite a story to tell and his readers will probably forgive him for the undistinguished and discursive manner in which he tells it. Power, not grace is his strong point." Vivian Mercier
Sat R of Lit 31:30 Jl 31 '48 450w

Reviewed by L. A. G. Strong
Spec 180:656 My 28 '48 140w
Springf'd Republican p10B My 23 '48 120w

"Although Mr. Macken's approach is mature, his style, which aims at simplicity, is frequently careless and rather burdened with over-worked phrases."
+ Times [London] Lit Sup p217 Ap 17 '48 390w

MACKENZIE, JEANNE DAISY, ed. Murder of Maria Marten. See Curtis, J., ed.

MCKEOWN, MARTHA FERGUSON. Trail led north; Mont Hawthorne's story. 222p $3.50 Macmillan

917.98 Frontier and pioneer life—Northwest. Hawthorne, Mont 48-9441

A record of the experiences of the author's uncle, Mont Hawthorne, who pioneered in the western United States and Alaska during the last quarter of the nineteenth century. There are many stories connected with the salmon canneries and mining for gold.

Booklist 45:119 D 1 '48

Reviewed by Ben Kartman
Chicago Sun D 14 '48 270w
Christian Century 66:147 F 2 '49 210w

"It is told with terse realism and grammatical license thrown in. He saw a lot, took nothing from anybody, and has a flair for remembrance of detail in keeping with his methodical mind. Fun to read. Don't miss it."
+ Kirkus 16:460 S 1 '48 190w

"These memories ring authentic, stay in your mind and give you the sense of sharing in the rough primitive experience where death was never far away. This is an item of Northwest history. Americana and Alaskana, a well told tale of adventure and an interesting autobiography. Recommended." H. A. Wooster
+ Library J 73:1592 N 1 '48 100w
Nation 167:673 D 11 '48 40w

"It is virtually documentary material, valuable in its own right, and twice as good because of the manner in which it is told, with scant moralizing, no windy passages such as so often mar the tales of oldtimers, and a high regard for the exact word and expression to cover any situation." Stewart Holbrook
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 N 28 '48 600w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p22 D 16 '48 700w

MACKINDER, DOROTHY. Wandering osprey. 232p $2.50 Bruce pub. 48-2895

"A tale of French country-town life, of family jealousies, of the pettiness which so often lurks behind accepted conventions and of the genuine qualities which, on the other hand, can make a family, like the Chapelliers, so charming and so understanding. . . . The hero, Pierre Hirondelle, is a Christian idealist, with no time for the small hypocrisies of ordinary social life. His love for Justine Pastoral is reciprocated with equal sincerity and intensity. The story describes the difficulties, imposed by the pride, malice, gossip and greed of the families involved, which separate the lovers for so long." Times [London] Lit Sup

Booklist 45:66 O 15 '48

"The style is simple and unpretentious, the characters well described and the story ably told. This is a pleasant and sincere work, even if the good and bad qualities of the characters are at times over-emphasized, giving the novel a slightly unreal atmosphere."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p601 N 22 '47 190w

MACKINNON, ALLAN. Map of mistrust. 191p $2 Doubleday 48-7150

Mystery story.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Je 11 '48 150w

"The agility here, both verbal and physical, gives this pattern a very fresh feel."
+ Kirkus 16:180 Ap 1 '48 90w

"Good spy stuff in the classic vein by the author of last season's impressive 'House of Darkness.' " Will Cuppy
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Je 20 '48 200w

"Rather routine story of international intrigue." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p24 Je 13 '48 170w

"Lively, if not convincing, and full of fine Highland scenery."
New Yorker 24:100 Je 12 '48 80w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p21 Je 13 '48 100w

"Adequate thriller"
+ Sat R of Lit 31:36 Ag 7 '48 40w

MACKINTOSH, ELIZABETH (GORDON DAVIOT, JOSEPHINE TEY, pseuds). Miss Pym disposes. 213p $2.50 Macmillan 48-6852

An English woman psychologist goes to deliver a lecture at a physical training college. The year's term is about ended, so Miss Pym decides to stay a little longer. She becomes very friendly with some of the seniors, and eventually finds herself involved in an "accident" which turns out to be a murder.

Booklist 44:313 My 15 '48

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun My 28 '48 310w

"Good characterization of both students and their eccentric faculty makes this a fairly competent job but it is disappointing that the whole does not maintain the same quality as the first half of the book."
+ — Kirkus 16:223 My 1 '48 130w

"This is a background item you can believe, with civilized characters, matching prose and a most surprising turn at the end." Will Cuppy
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 My 16 '48 160w
San Francisco Chronicle p19 Je 27 '48 160w

"Very English, very feminine, elegantly written, leisurely, amusing, penetrating, and adequately suspenseful—with thumping terminal surprise. Good."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:32 Je 12 '48 40w

MCLAUGHLIN, HENRY. Where the moment was; a book of poetry [with an introd. by Alfred Kreymborg]. 73p $2.75 Farrar, Straus

811 48-11804

A book of lyric poetry by an American who died in 1947 at the age of thirty. "These poems, which comprise most of the poetry that Henry McLaughlin wrote, are just as he left them, unrevised and unedited. Because the manuscripts were undated, it has not been

MCLAUGHLIN, HENRY—Continued
possible to arrange them in any kind of chronological order." (p.xiv)

Kirkus 16:590 N 1 '48 70w

"Keats, we think, would have commended here the rich colors of the imagination and the audacity of poetry written for its own sake. The maker of Goblin Market would have liked it too. Its cosmos is large enough to include stained-glass pageantry and subway scenes, too small for one unnecessary word." Shirley Barker
+ Library J 73:1818 D 15 '48 80w

"Lacking a finished reworking, his verses have the edginess of a fresh-cut gem, the roughness of an assonance that could have been a consonance, the bite of a cryptic metaphor. His humor is of the Celtic kind, insinuant and pervasive; his seriousness impingent and startling; his mystical awareness of the border between the real and the immaterial a wavering line. His phrases have pith, and he seldom hovers over a word." R. C. B. Brown
+ Sat R of Lit 32:19 Ja 1 '49 250w

MCLAVERTY, MICHAEL. The three brothers. 213p $3 Macmillan 48-8111

A story of a middle class Irish family headed by three brothers, Bob, a miser; D. J., a gambler and thief; John an honest upright merchant whose ambitions are centered in his four children.

Booklist 45:159 Ja 1 '49

"Michael McLaverty in his beautiful prose with its Irish lilt, recounts to us with insight the fortunes, both good and ill, of this dissimilar trio, but he gives us, too, charming descriptions of the Irish landscape, and a tender romance of the younger generation to lighten the dour recital."
+ Cath World 168:174 N '48 220w

"An entertaining and edifying narrative." J. S. Kennedy
+ Cath World 168:212 D '48 150w

Reviewed by Vivian Mercier
Commonweal 48:553 S 17 '48 240w

Kirkus 16:315 Jl 1 '48 140w

"Solid and pleasant novel." E. L. Lewis
+ Library J 73:1091 Ag '48 80w

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset
Manchester Guardian p3 O 8 '48 90w

Reviewed by Thomas Sugrue
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ag 29 '48 500w

"The quiet work of a sensitive and perceptive artist. . . His great gift is the freshness of his eye, the marvelous innocence of his retina." Horace Reynolds
+ N Y Times p6 S 5 '48 800w

New Yorker 24:79 S 4 '48 120w

"This honest, unspectacular little novel, if it does not necessarily stir the blood, commands respect and steadily enlists the sympathies. Mr. McLaverty writes always well and at times beautifully." John Woodburn
Sat R of Lit 31:15 Ag 28 '48 800w

Reviewed by Robert Kee
Spec 181:786 D 10 '48 180w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p9B O 17 '48 210w

Times [London] Lit Sup p593 O 23 '48 110w

MCLEAN, JOSEPH ERIGINA. William Rufus Day, Supreme court justice from Ohio. 172p pa $2 Johns Hopkins press
B or 92 Day, William Rufus 47-11230

"This study constitutes a useful addition to the growing list of monographs on the careers of members of the Supreme Court. In demonstrating that William R. Day, a 'capable, middle-of-the-road' associate justice from 1903 to 1922, was considerably more than average in the influence he exerted upon the Court, Dr. McLean presents an evaluation of Day's relationship to the outstanding issues and decisions of two important decades in Supreme Court history." Am Hist R

"The monograph is chiefly important for the picture it gives of the work of the Supreme Court during the first two decades of the twentieth century; one may agree with Professor C. B. Swisher's foreword appraisal, that it 'stands not merely as biography, but also as an account of an important stage of American constitutional history.' " L. G. Vander Velde
+ Am Hist R 53:636 Ap '48 370w

"This is a timely, informative, and competently put together volume." E. S. Corwin
+ Am Pol Sci R 42:118 F '48 450w

MACLEAN, ROBINSON. Baited blonde. 242p $2.50 Mill
48-8349

Story of an Intelligence operative's efforts to obtain three missing parts of a diagram of a new instrument for pin-point bombing. The search extends from Djibouti to Port Said and ends in Beirut.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun p48 N 5 '48 60w

+ Kirkus 16:348 Jl 15 '48 60w

"Puzzle winds up well enough but emphasis seems to be on love's young dream and hit-or-miss adventure, enlivened at all points by the narrators' tendency to fun and frolic. Plenty of violence and numerous bodies." Will Cuppy
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p22 D 5 '48 160w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p30 S 19 '48 180w

New Yorker 24:140 N 6 '48 120w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p24 O 31 '48 170w

"Something new, fresh, and exciting in intrigue-espionage yarns—due mainly to choicest horde of unprincipled people recently gathered between bindings."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:56 O 9 '48 40w

MACLEISH, ARCHIBALD. Actfive, and other poems. 63p $2.50 Random house
811 48-3528

Actfive, the longest poem, is to the effect that God and king are gone, and the general run of Man is not up to par, but the "human perishable heart" remains the hope of the future. The remainder of the book is composed of short lyrics.

Booklist 45:85 N 1 '48

Kirkus 16:333 Jl 1 '48 230w

Reviewed by Gerald McDonald
Library J 73:1277 S 15 '48 80w

"Actfive is not a good poem but . . . work has gone into it; it has a measure of shape and texture, and it moves. In form it is the description of a vaguely symbolic masque, oddly harking back to the poet's early Hamlet of A. MacLeish. In almost everything the poem says I find at best a forlorn fuzziness and at worst a fustian and portentous nonsense, the burden being in brief that all is lost save honor—the honor not of the whole man but of the 'flesh and bone,' the 'heart' and suchlike entities from which mind and spirit are pointedly excluded." Robert Fitzgerald
New Repub 119:23 N 22 '48 950w

" 'Actfive,' [MacLeish's] first poetry collection in over ten years, reasserts his literary mastery." Peter Viereck
+ N Y Times p35 N 21 '48 370w

New Yorker 24:151 N 13 '48 80w

"The poem is thoughtful, beautifully worded and stylistically, to me at least, off balance, in that long poster-like subjects hang suspended as apostrophes or, if there is resolution, taper off into verb-shy predicates. There are other poems, lyric, elegaic, patriotic—and that magnificent statement: 'What is required of us is the recognition of the frontiers between the centuries. And to take heart: to cross over.' " T. H. Ferril

San Francisco Chronicle p11 N 7 '48 170w

"It is a curious spectacle, this frantic wringing of hands, this gall of disillusionment, this almost Jeffers-like despair, coming from the once-sanguine MacLeish. But it is my guess that Tom Jefferson whose shade is invoked to witness the hopelessness of the present would be much less shocked by our postwar world than by the emotional instability of its prophets." Selden Rodman

Sat R of Lit 31:29 Ag 14 '48 800w

"Actfive is mainly a befuddled piece of pseudo-Stoic claptrap, to be read in sorrow by all who admire the author. . . But among the shorter lyrics that follow it are several which may give the reader an extraordinary sense of pleasure. For, slight though they are, they announce the survival of one of the finest of American lyric talents."

— + Time 52:104 S 20 '48 800w

MCLELLAND, ISABEL COUPER. Ten Beaver road; il. by Mary Stevens. 152p $2.50 Holt

48-5585

"Ten Beaver road" was the new address of the McTavish family just arrived from Scotland to Bayside, Oregon. After a year's stay in the United States they realized they had come to a good country and decided to buy the house for their permanent home.

Booklist 44:253 Mr 15 '48

Reviewed by Martha King

Chicago Sun My 29 '48 170w

"Ten Beaver Road and its occupants are pictured with more humor than is found in some other books about transplanted families. Mary Stevens has captured successfully this quality in her illustrations." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 24:193 My '48 120w

Kirkus 16:236 My 15 '48 100w

"The book has a fresh sincerity. One feels the clear saltiness of the sea, the soft caress of the fog, and the breadth and bigness of our western country. Recommended heartily." Gertrude Andrus

+ Library J 73:484 Mr 15 '48 70w

"By the time you have assisted at trying to find, in two crowded suitcases, the tickets Father has placed inside his hat, the turn of their speech, their humor and sturdy, spicy character have exerted their charm. You are glad to meet the McTavishes." M. L. Becker

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 My 9 '48 350w

"A good many of the incidents are slight in themselves, but told with a sense of intimacy which 8 to 11 year olds will enjoy, and this story of newcomers in a friendly land is warm with a sense of family cooperation and family fun. Mary Stevens' illustrations are vivacious and amusing." E. L. Buell

+ N Y Times p31 F 22 '48 150w

Reviewed by M. G. Davis

Sat R of Lit 31:33 My 8 '48 120w

Wis Lib Bul 44:65 Mr '48

MACLENNAN, HUGH. The precipice. 372p $3 Duell

48-8292

A story of an international marriage, this time between a shy, Puritanically reared Canadian girl and an agressive, sophisticated American efficiency engineer. The scene shifts from a quiet little Ontario town to New York and back again to Canada, thru the years from 1938 to the end of the war, as Lucy's marriage faces defeat but finally wins through.

Booklist 45:32 S 15 '48

"The many who enjoyed Mr. MacLennan's powers of imaginative insight and firm handling of his materials in his earlier novels on the Canadian scene, and look for confirming evidence of his genius in his new novel, The Precipice, will be seriously disappointed. Mr. MacLennan lays his scene well, gives us three, perhaps four, very promising characters, and then is unable to do anything for them. The opening part of the book is awfully good: one reads rapidly with growing interest and a vivid sense of the possibilities that one feels are there to be developed. They are not, and the reader feels pretty flat. Dramatic scenes give way to episodic case-histories." Patricia Owen

Canadian Forum 28:190 N '48 550w

"The story has vitality, for Mr. MacLennan has a keen sense of character and develops a highly interesting plot. When he contrasts the quiet stability of his native Canada with the swiftly paced life of New York, his comments are forceful and arresting. As the leading figure, Lucy Cameron is one of the most delightful women in recent fiction."

+ Cath World 168:254 D '48 230w

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy

Chicago Sun S 14 '48 550w

Reviewed by Denham Sutcliffe

Christian Science Monitor p15 S 23 '48 600w

"The style is the well-balanced, muscular kind which sets up a fairly magnetic field between reader and printed page. The author has an unsentimental, warm and penetrating touch. The women are especially well portrayed. The reader will not escape from the world in this novel. He will find interesting and revealing data about many people he knows. He will find, too, that some of the ever-recurring sadness of our modern life is rather well accounted for; and lastly he will find that, like life, this book is too real to be brilliant." Virginia Bennett

+ Commonweal 48:601 O 1 '48 750w

"The characters, particularly the American ones, seem types rather than fully realized people. But the story holds the interest."

+ — Kirkus 16:406 Ag 15 '48 250w

"Though plot is routine, there are good descriptions of Canadian rural life and effect of the war on the two countries. The picture of America seems over-simplified and a bit too jolly, but book moves quickly and smoothly. Recommended." Anne Whitmore

+ — Library J 73:1091 Ag '48 80w

"Hugh MacLennan is a writer whose present maturity carries with it a promise of continuing development. 'The Precipice,' his third book, is disciplined as well as dramatic, balanced and forceful without any of the superficial devices that distort truth to create an effect. You feel that Mr. MacLennan has lived with his characters a long time before he pictured them in words and action, that he knows them better than they know themselves. Certainly 'The Precipice' is a novel to live with while you read and to think about afterward." George Conrad

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 S 12 '48 550w

"Mr. MacLennan has written an absorbing novel on the hands-across-the-border theme—a novel with a tantalizing flavor all its own." William Du Bois

+ N Y Times p5 S 12 '48 900w

"Sentimental in places, but generally all right."

+ — New Yorker 24:107 S 18 '48 240w

" 'The Precipice' is absorbing rather than exciting. It builds slowly and takes its time to establish its effects. There is not a false note in it and, like all worth while novels, it helps to illumine life and casts a shadow somewhat larger than itself." Merrill Denison

+ Sat R of Lit 31:26 S 18 '48 700w

Reviewed by E. H. Dexter

Springf'd Republican p9B N 28 '48 250w

MACLEOD, NORMAN. A man in midpassage; collected poems, 1930-1947. 79p $2.50 Cronos eds, box 3103, Univ. station, Columbus 10, Ohio

811

"Norman MacLeod is an American who has published three books of poems. This, his fourth, is a very incomplete selection of seventeen years of his work. Marxism, regionalism, and a deep sense of unease were the major and

MACLEOD, NORMAN—Continued
rather disjunctive elements of his earlier poetry; remnants of the first two are still mistily evident, but his uneasiness has developed into a state of panicky ferment." N Y Times

"These days he writes little, and with a kind of willed intricacy. He has always seemed, on the basis of his tensions, to be at rock bottom a poet of the ingrown ego, although his early work was usually straining toward a place in the crowd, or even to be the crowd—toward Mr. MacLeish's public poetry or at a point beyond it. . . Imprecisions and crude ambiguities pervade the book. Frequently they are joined by alliterative embarrassments." Weldon Kees
N Y Times p14 Ap 4 '48 480w

"Though wounds and disaster and death haunt his pages, there is a kind of Celtic ebullience or defiance throughout. While the poet's syntax is sometimes hard to unravel, his lines are bold and direct as a rule and his completely successful poems memorable." Alfred Kreymborg
Sat R of Lit 31:27 Je 19 '48 470w

MCMEEKIN, CLARK, pseud. of MRS DOROTHY (PARK) CLARK and MRS ISABEL (MCLENNAN) MCMEEKIN. Gaudy's ladies. 297p $3 Appleton
48-6756

A story of Louisville in the early nineteenth century. The tale begins with the attempted murder of Drake Robertson (known as Gaudy Robertson) and then goes back thirty years and tells the story of Gaudy's rise to fame and fortune and of the ladies he loved, or who loved him.

Booklist 44:336 Je 1 '48

"A good story, authentic in background."
+ Kirkus 16:174 Ap 1 '48 180w

MACMILLAN, MRS MIRIAM (LOOK). Green seas and white ice. 287p $4 Dodd

919.8 Arctic regions. MacMillan, Donald Baxter. Bowdoin (ship) 48-10489

An account of the author's voyages with her husband to Labrador, Baffin Land, and Greenland. The book begins with the author's first meeting with Captain Donald MacMillan when she was a child of eight, and ends with their return from their 1947 expedition.

Booklist 45:87 N 1 '48

"The layman will learn much about the little known Far North—but it is, throughout, learning that is seasoned with all the saltiness of a seagoing tale." Helen Henley
+ Christian Science Monitor p14 O 12 '48 480w

"Very readable. Recommended." H. S. Taylor
+ Library J 73:1190 S 1 '48 140w

Reviewed by Felix Riesenberg
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 O 24 '48 550w

"It is an interesting book, although MacMillan's exploits appear to her sometimes as a bit Paul Bunyanish." Russell Owen
+ — N Y Times p37 N 7 '48 200w

MCMURRY, RUTH EMILY, and LEE, MUNA. Cultural approach; another way in international relations. 280p $3.50 Univ. of N.C. press

327 International relations. Propaganda
47-30532

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"The authors, with long experience in the field of cultural relations both in the government and in private capacities, know more about the subject than anyone else in this country and can be trusted as careful, thorough guides. Since to the reviewer's knowledge no comparable survey has been written in any of the Western countries, the volume should prove to be basic for more countries than our own and should exert an international influence at a crucial point in history." E. N. Anderson
+ Am Hist R 53:371 Ja '48 400w

"While some of the descriptions are rather sketchy and incomplete and some of the characterizations might have been more penetrating, the authors give us here valuable information on a field which has generally been neglected and has, at best, been treated as a side line of international activities of temporary—or, in any case, of secondary—importance." H. J. Morgenthau
+ — Am J Soc 53:397 Mr '48 490w

Reviewed by B. C. Randolph
Am Pol Sci R 42:141 F '48 550w

Reviewed by M. T. Price
Am Soc R 13:235 Ap '48 600w

Foreign Affairs 26:398 Ja '48 40w

Reviewed by F. B. Ludington
Library Q 18:126 Ap '48 850w

Reviewed by Victor Weybright
Survey G 37:374 Ag '48 500w

"Both authors have had experience in cultural relation programs, and provide for this study careful documentation, using much source material not easily available. Although particularly valuable for those who direct foreign relations, this book should be useful to all persons who believe that knowledge, coupled with understanding and wisdom to bear with differences, is a means to peace."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 3:376 D '47 280w

MCNAMARA, DANIEL IGNATIUS, ed. See American society of composers, authors and publishers. ASCAP biographical dictionary

MCNAUGHTON, FRANK, and HEHMEYER, WALTER. Harry Truman, president. (Whittlesey house publication) 294p $3 McGraw

B or 92 Truman, Harry S. Campaign literature, 1948 48-6994

A brief appraisal of the Truman administration, dealing especially with the President's foreign policy, and his efforts to put our domestic economy into running order. Index.

Booklist 44:367 Jl 1 '48

"The book is easy reading. It is tightly packed with information, yet so well organized that it does not become difficult. It is a useful review for anyone in the history of the last three eventful years." T. N.
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Je 3 '48 500w

"For a campaign document, the praise seems faint."
Kirkus 16:188 Ap 1 '48 170w

Reviewed by G. W. Johnson
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Je 13 '48 1350w

"If this is a campaign biography, it could serve as model for all future ones; it is sympathetic to the President but it subjects his official acts to pretty close scrutiny and does not gloss over what Mr. McNaughton and Mr. Hehmeyer consider his blunders."
+ New Yorker 24:110 Je 5 '48 160w

Reviewed by Richard Hofstadter
Pol Sci Q 63:479 S '48 260w

Reviewed by Gilman Ostrander
San Francisco Chronicle p20 My 28 '48 900w

Springf'd Republican p11B Je 6 '48 120w

MCNEER, MAY YONGE (MRS LYND KENDALL WARD). Story of Florida; lithographs by C. H. De Witt. (Regions of America ser) [32p] $1.50 Harper

917.59 Florida—Juvenile literature 48-5056

Brief history of Florida illustrated with colored lithographs. Map on endpapers. For ages ten to twelve.

Booklist 44:221 F 15 '48

Chicago Sun Ja 24 '48 90w

Reviewed by F. C. Darling
Christian Science Monitor p5 Ja 13 '48 150w

"This is one of the most striking books of this series." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 24:124 Mr '48 100w

Reviewed by E. W. Turpin
Library J 73:126 Ja 15 '48 50w

"Florida gives Mr. DeWitt his greatest opportunity in what has been—and continues to be—a series combining exceptionally handsome pictures with a condensation of history and general information. . . These are beautifully colored, and every page of accompanying text—the best text of the series—has a broad margin on which action in black and white goes on." M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ja 25 '48 180w

"The history is sketchy, hitting only the high spots in the story of a state which has known five flags, which has seen conquistadors and pirates come and go, which now shelters cowboys, farmers, Seminoles, backwoodsmen and tourists. But in text and in pictures which have the movement of a Breughel painting one sees the many fascinating contrasts of the state today." E. L. B.
+ — N Y Times p31 Ja 25 '48 130w

Wis Lib Bul 44:23 Ja '48

MCNEER, MAY YONGE (MRS LYND KENDALL WARD). Story of the Southwest; lithographs by C. H. DeWitt. (Regions of America ser) [32p] $1.75 Harper

917.9 Southwest—Juvenile literature 48-10959

"In the familiar format of their other American picture books, this artist and author tell the story of the Indians of the Southwest, of the cowboys, and the cattle range. Full-page lithographs in color and marginal drawings in black and white." Sat R of Lit

Booklist 45:124 D 1 '48

"Absorbing graphic maps and real feeling for the whole of Indian life. . . The text tries to give a social survey, but digested facts aren't as appetizing as snatches of narrative." E. E.
+ — Commonweal 49:147 N 19 '48 70w

"The publishers indicate that this is for a 5 year old starting level, but it has a definitely older appeal. It is a lovely looking volume."
+ Kirkus 16:572 N 1 '48 110w

"Recommended." J. E. Lynch
+ Library J 74:66 Ja 1 '49 80w

Reviewed by Siri Andrews
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 D 12 '48 180w

"The text is a bit sketchy and episodic, but the book is worth owning for its pictures."
+ — New Yorker 24:142 D 11 '48 90w

Sat R of Lit 31:53 N 13 '48 50w

Wis Lib Bul 45:16 Ja '49

MACNEIL, NEIL. Highland heart in Nova Scotia. 199p $2.75 Scribner

917.1691 Cape Breton island. Scotch in Nova Scotia 48-6478

Stories of the author's relatives and their friends living in the Washabuckt community on Cape Breton island, Nova Scotia, some forty years ago. The MacNeils first came from Scotland in 1818 when the patriarch Lachlan MacLean arrived from Barra. Many legends of the Clan MacNeil are included.

Booklist 44:297 My 1 '48

Commonweal 48:290 Jl 2 '48 70w

"Of localized interest to those who know the district, these notes from Nova Scotia have particular appeal to those of Scottish descent. Sentiment without sentimentality, humor, good regional portraiture."
+ Kirkus 16:103 F 15 '48 140w

"Recommended because it is a story of a unique North American settlement. It misses being a literary gem." K. T. Willis
+ — Library J 73:705 My 1 '48 140w

"Unvarnished, but affectionate. He strikes the right saga note on the first page—and sustains it." C. A. Brady
+ N Y Times p10 Ap 25 '48 500w

"This book is reminiscent reporting in gently humorous vein." G. E. Lyon
+ Springf'd Republican p9B O 17 '48 600w

MCNEILL, JOHN THOMAS. Books of faith and power. 183p $2 Harper

261 Religious literature 48-5057

The professor of church history at Union Theological seminary presents interpretations of six basic books of the Protestant tradition. They are: Martin Luther: On Christian liberty; John Calvin: Institutes of the Christian Religion; Richard Hooker: The Laws of Ecclesiastical Polity; John Bunyan: The Pilgrim's Progress; William Law: A Serious Call to a Devout and Holy Life; John Wesley's Journal.

Booklist 44:210 F 15 '48

"The lectures are clearly arranged and well written. The scheme suggests the desirability of the 'sincerest form of flattery' for the heroes of the faith and its literature. The book is an admirable introduction to a field in which it is far from easy to induce younger students to stray from the more formal textbooks, from which 'all things bright and beautiful' have been excluded in favor of an arid system of public utility." F. W. Buckler
+ Crozer Q 25:352 O '48 800w

"Professor McNeill admits that some readers will be content with such acquaintance with the content and purpose of these books as may be gained by reading this study. However, he is hopeful that many will be persuaded by a perusal of this book to pursue the study of the originals. . . Students of Church history, clergymen and others interested in their Protestant heritage will welcome this thoughtful and scholarly book."
+ Kirkus 16:81 F 1 '48 240w

"Excellent introduction to these works, of interest to all concerned with the development of Christian thought, both the scholar and the layman." G. W. Wakefield
+ Library J 73:121 Ja 15 '48 90w

Wis Lib Bul 44:61 Mr '48

MCPHEE, COLIN. Club of small men; photographs and drawings by the author. 61p $2 Day

Children in Bali 48-5811

"The boys in a little village of Bali want an orchestra of their own. With the help of the author (who has done an adult book on Balinese music) whom they call Big Brother, they acquire a miniature set of instruments and a rarely gifted teacher. With amazing patience they learn to master their instruments and play well, and ultimately are invited to the Rajah's wedding. Happy little details of great charm introduce other games and customs, some of which have universal appeal, such as kite flying, fishing, etc." Kirkus

Reviewed by H. F. Griswold
+ Christian Science Monitor p12 Ag 26 '48 210w

Commonweal 49:156 N 19 '48 60w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 24:275 Jl '48 90w

"For young people (say ten and up) interested in children of other lands, this book is different, and has an unusual angle. . . But the special appeal is for those interested in music."
+ Kirkus 16:21 Ja 15 '48 130w

"A true story simply told, with little plot—descriptive and quiet in tone, yet with life and a real feeling for the country and people. Photographs and drawings by the author add interest. Ages 9-12. Recommended; appeal may be limited." J. E. Lynch
+ Library J 73:561 Ap 1 '48 70w

Reviewed by Phyllis Fenner
N Y Times p31 Je 6 '48 170w

MCPHEE, COLIN—Continued

"The author writes agreeably, and his photographs of the earnest little boys are delightful."
+ New Yorker 24:133 D 11 '48 110w

"Some children will never have heard of Bali but the way the book is written it won't matter. . . The beginning is not half as good as the middle and the end, but nobody should get discouraged when they read the introduction. . . The plot is most interesting." Cathy Bateson
+ Sat R of Lit 31:34 Ap 10 '48 230w

MACQUARRIE, HECTOR. Vouza and the Solomon islands. 261p $4 Macmillan

919.35 Solomon islands 48-7693

"Picture of pre-war life in the Solomon Islands, and of the people for whom the author—a British colonial administrator—has a warm-hearted love. Vouza is the native Lance Corporal in the constabulary of the Santa Cruz district, and his friendship and poise proved of inestimable help to the author, and is the focal point of this story of the incidents of native life and governmental guidance." Kirkus

Booklist 44:380 Jl 15 '48
+ Christian Century 66:147 F 2 '49 210w

"Despite his interest in his surroundings Mr. MacQuarrie clearly indicated that for him the Solomons in all their glory were not arrayed like one of their humblest, naked inhabitants. His sympathy for the natives, without condescension, his admiration without apologies, his understanding without 'tolerantness'—these qualities give Mr. MacQuarrie's book a significance overshadowing the solid information in his descriptions and the unforced entertainment in his sly understatements, his almost televised slapstick, and his well-timed anticlimaxes." Rod Nordell
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 Jl 22 '48 1350w

"Vouza won signal honors fighting for us in the last war. This book, written in tribute to him, is a South Pacific classic." E. V. R. Wyatt
+ Commonweal 48:504 S 3 '48 850w

"Often amusing, sometimes amazing, always entertaining picture. . . It will have very definite interest for men who served in the Pacific area. Might be defined as a masculine counterpart of Land Below the Wind."
+ Kirkus 16:190 Ap 1 '48 190w

"A delightful description of these islands. . . White justice, officialdom and its red tape, various commercial undertakings, and native customs are all described in a subtly humorous manner." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 73:940 Je 15 '48 130w

"To clarify the position of a district officer in the Solomons, Mr. MacQuarrie offers an amusing, if barbed description of the chain of command, from the Colonial Office in Downing Street, over the thousands of miles to his small island of Vanikoro in the Santa Cruz group. . . With considerable pungency he makes his point that the opportunities are unlimited for a D. O. to become an arbitrary dictator, human nature being what it is and power intoxicating. . . This should be the book to end all books about the dangers of the Solomon Islands, except for malaria. Here are people, friendly, hospitable, gay, where even the warriors of the pagan villages seem no more formidable than tight-lipped matrons defending their hold on the conventions of a small town. It is not how different they are, but how like all people, everywhere, that strikes Mr. MacQuarrie and brings his islanders to life." Margaret Hubbard
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Jl 25 '48 900w

"The book amounts to a pretty thorough picture of folkways in the Solomons; it is unevenly, sometimes amateurishly, written, but for its good humor, its sincerity, and its hoard of diverting out-of-the-way facts, it can be strongly recommended."
+ — New Yorker 34:79 Ag 21 '48 90w
Wis Lib Bul 44:164 O '48

MACQUEEN, JAMES WILLIAM (JAMES G. EDWARDS, pseud). But the patient died. 189p $2 Doubleday

48-8416

Detective story.

"Below par plot, dead level interest."
— Kirkus 16:349 Jl 15 '48 50w

"Something a bit stronger than the peppermint candies which Bondurant consumes so avidly is needed to make this story palatable." Isaac Anderson
— N Y Times p33 O 10 '48 150w

"Convincing clinical detail, but the hospital intrigue is starchily familiar. Neither the suspects nor the author's prose makes for sustained concentration."
— + New Yorker 24:108 O 2 '48 70w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p15 N 7 '48 70w
Sat R of Lit 31:38 O 23 '48 40w

MCWILLIAMS, CAREY. Mask for privilege: anti-Semitism in America. 299p $2.75 Little

296 Jews—Political and social conditions. Jews in the U.S. 48-6011

"Mr. McWilliams' main thesis is that discrimination against the Jews was given its impetus in this country by members of the top ranks of our society during the early years of the Industrial Age, shortly after the Civil War, and that anti-Semitism today still draws its strength from the same kind of people. He says that racial prejudice has been consciously or unconsciously aggravated by some of our most respected writers and thinkers, such as Henry Adams, Burton J. Hendrick, and Dr. Lothrop Stoddard, and contends that in our society it is a commonly accepted method of working off aggressive impulses. He concludes with an acute dissection of the typical anti-Semite." (New Yorker) Index.

Reviewed by Harry Alpert
Am J Soc 54:177 S '48 600w

"This book has historical and analytical value for professional sociologists and laymen alike." A. K. Davis
+ Am Soc R 13:644 O '48 500w

"On the whole, the book is interesting despite its inept handling; but it is hardly up to the mark that this author set for himself in his earlier works." J. S. Roucek
Ann Am Acad 257:243 My '48 320w

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 181:120 My '48 450w
Booklist 44:244 Mr 15 '48

Reviewed by L. M. Birkhead
Chicago Sun Mr 22 '48 460w

"Superficiality mars this book. . . The book's dogmatic attitude is, also, a defect. Mr. McWilliams likes sweeping, scathing broadsides. . . When a serious editor makes a statement which Mr. McWilliams dislikes, and Mr. McWilliams brushes it off as 'perfectly obvious nonsense' the reader, unless a McWilliams fan, feels like closing the book. . . However the book is useful in pointing out the dangerous spread of anti-Semitism in America. It also does well in urging efforts at a cure in suggesting some moral aids, which can be tried before the advent of the economic utopia." R. H. M.
— + Christian Science Monitor p12 Mr 30 '48 550w

"The title of the book is a good one, and the overall framework can be said to have great possibilities if adequately developed. But this book is not weighty, historical writing. To place the start of anti-Semitism in America with the Saratoga Springs, N.Y., incident in 1871 is like starting American literature with Longfellow. . . The book is certainly written for the type of resolute public which usually finds within the confines of the lecture hall, an outlet for all its passion for social justice." George Streator
— + Commonweal 47:619 Ap 9 '48 600w

Reviewed by Arthur Child
Ethics 59:74 O '48 80w

"This is a fully documented, thoughtful and challenging book. It should be read by more than the student of the subject. Unfortunately he has handled the subject on the intellectual level, carefully avoiding the emotional, the human, the dramatic, which might have made the book more readable for the average man. As it stands, its market will probably be limited."

+ — Kirkus 16:166 Mr 15 '48 200w

Reviewed by Daniel James

Nation 167:379 O 2 '48 1700w

Reviewed by Bessie Jones

New Eng Q 21:395 S '48 1150w

Reviewed by Bucklin Moon

New Repub 118:18 Ap 12 '48 600w

"The book is not narrowly conceived or doctrinaire. Rather, it is a brilliant and comprehensive analysis of most of the facets of this grave threat to American democracy and security. . . This reviewer, were he in an argumentative mood, would quarrel with some of the author's economics; but he subscribes wholeheartedly to nearly everything else in this absorbing, uncompromisingly honest and almost frightening book." J. G. McDonald

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Mr 21 '48 1950w

"Mr. McWilliams is too sensible not to recognize that most of those who will read, and be moved by his excellent book, are those already convinced that he is right. With rare exceptions, it is only the saved who come to church. Yet a volume like this one provides valuable ammunition to those—now a respectable number—who are out on the firing line." Bruce Bliven

+ N Y Times p3 Mr 21 '48 1600w

"A penetrating, cool-headed study of anti-Semitism in America, and certainly a most valuable addition to the literature on this subject."

+ New Yorker 24:118 Mr 20 '48 210w

"In some of his earlier books McWilliams was all reporter. Here he is reporter and scholar and thinker all in one. The result is a book to make Americans think and think hard. It could be, and perhaps will be in many cases, a light on the road to Damascus —something to effect a sudden conversion in the minds of many who have accepted an attitude without thinking." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Mr 15 '48 700w

"Despite the extensive literature on anti-Semitism, an addition to it by Carey McWilliams is bound to present a fresh and challenging view with a program of action. . . This surely is the long and wishful view of American democracy, as is his view of capitalist transformation. But long and wishful views are tonic to the discussion of so stubborn and ancient a social problem." R. N. Baldwin

+ Sat R of Lit 31:26 Ap 17 '48 600w

School & Society 67:254 Mr 27 '48 20w

Reviewed by B. N. Bass

Survey G 37:355 Jl '48 650w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:198 Je '48 240w

Wis Lib Bul 44:102 My '48

MADARIAGA, SALVADOR DE. Fall of the Spanish American empire. 443p il $5 Macmillan

980 Latin America—History. Spain—Colonies 48-10527

A complementary volume to the author's Rise of the Spanish American Empire. In this volume the author examines the philosophical and sociological reasons for the disintegration of the Spanish power in America, the character of the people and the influences of the philosophers and revolutions in other lands. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:118 D 1 '48

"Recommended." Joseph Borome

+ Library J 73:1595 N 1 '48 140w

Reviewed by E. A. Peers

Manchester Guardian p3 D 28 '47 450w

Nation 168:23 Ja 1 '49 180w

"Sr. Madariaga's avowed object is to vindicate the achievement of Spain in the Americas. I feel that he is too sensitive in this respect, and it is rather when he is analysing the shortcomings of his own race (as he does with all fairness) that he reveals its greatness. . . Therefore, whereas the author's previous book (which dealt with the rise of the Empire) protested too much, the Fall, offering all the evidence concerning the dissolution, is a magnificent and convincing human document." George Pendle

+ New Statesman & Nation 35:100 Ja 31 '48 800w

"The pre-conquest cultures are to Madariaga a dark and bloodstained edifice, into the doors of which he peers but briefly and with obvious distaste. . . It is the style of Spanish rebellions, reproducing themselves in the New World, that absorbs him. . . But there is a danger in too much stress on the continuity of this pattern: its unhistoricity. . . The increasingly petulant irony of the closing sections of the book, dealing with the 'Precursors,' suggests that our author is once more in danger of succumbing to his passionately held intellectual prejudices." B. D. Wolfe

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Ja 30 '49 1200w

Reviewed by Hubert Herring

N Y Times p9 N 14 '48 900w

"It is an interesting type of historical study, and, though De Madariaga's style is rather labored and hard reading, a good book." L. L.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p11 Ja 9 '49 300w

Reviewed by Garrett Mattingly

Sat R of Lit 31:12 D 18 '48 600w

School & Society 68:286 O 23 '48 40w

"Like its predecessor, this book is less a history than a series of essays on the historical background. But the essay is a form in which it has always been pleasant to read Mr. Madariaga, and the account of 'the four philosophers' takes one back, in its lightness of touch and its urbane, eighteenth-century manner, to his most memorable book, Englishmen, Frenchmen, Spaniards." J. B. Trend

+ Spec 180:294 Mr 5 '48 550w

Springf'd Republican p12C D 5 '48 330w

"As always, Sr. Madariaga sets the highest standards of scholarship, which the publishers have again emulated in production. His wide reading in a vast field finds him ready with an apt and picturesque illustration for every point he seeks to make, so much so that the reader who may wish to refute any of his conclusions will seldom have to look beyond the book for the necessary documentation. Together The Rise and The Fall constitute, if not a chronological history of the Spanish-American Empire, a penetrating study of virtually every factor involved in its growth and decay. The author's comments are always stimulating and often provocative."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p45 Ja 24 '48 3900w

MADARIAGA, SALVADOR DE. Rise of the Spanish American empire. 408p il $5 Macmillan

980 Latin America—History. Spain—Colonies 47-12400

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"Madariaga indulges in digressions which sometimes deal critically with the colonial policies of other nations than Spain, but which add color and piquancy to the story. His book abounds in brilliant generalizations which are not always sound." W. S. Robertson

Am Hist R 53:857 Jl '48 650w

Booklist 44:200 F 1 '48

"This is a critical study, not superficial, not apologetic, and written with the honesty and literary skill for which the author has a well merited reputation. It is not strange that, in the words of a brilliant English critic, the book has been 'deservedly acclaimed by reviewers of every variety of opinion.'" Joseph McSorley

+ Cath World 167:374 Jl '48 400w

MADARIAGA, SALVADORE DE—Continued

"Two things may be readily admitted. One is that many historical works on Latin America, by non-Spanish authors, carry a heavy ballast of prejudices. The other is that Señor de Madariaga's book contains a great amount of extremely interesting material that will be new to all but specialists in this field. Yet it seems doubtful that the manner in which he interprets his material will help disperse 'the fog of controversy and recrimination,' which, as he says, 'had actually turned upside down the image of reality.'" Ernest Pisko

— + Christian Science Monitor p16 Ja 24 '48 650w

"There will be much learned and angry rebuttal of the evidence which Madariaga marshalls to prove his thesis. There will be considerable and justifiable citation of the excesses of the Spanish—perpetrated by secular leaders and by the Inquisition. Despite this, the boundless courage and imagination of a great nation which singlehanded opened two continents and created a new civilization will be mute testimony in Madariaga's behalf. For to condemn Spain's grandeur by reason of her lesser misdeeds is as narrow and vicious as to reject the dream of Anglo-Saxon democracy because of the British Foreign office or our own Southern bigots." Ralph De Toledano

+ Commonweal 48:216 Je 11 '48 750w

Reviewed by Larry Laughlin

San Francisco Chronicle p21 F 29 '48 400w

Reviewed by Mildred Adams

Survey G 37:323 Je '48 550w

"The volume is a series of essays on various aspects of Spanish achievement in the New World—artistic, educational, missionary, economic, administrative, inter-racial, and so on. It is based on a prodigious amount of delving into original sources and buttressed by frequent reference to contemporary documents and recent scholarly monographs. Its excellent literary quality should not obscure the fact that it is a work of first-rate scholarship." C. J. H. Hayes

+ Yale R n s 37:561 spring '48 900w

MADDEN, JOHN THOMAS, and others. Money market primer. 212p $3 Ronald

332 Banks and banking. Finance—New York (city). Money—U.S. 48-6415

"A study of the institutions and operations of the New York money market." (Subtitle) This analysis of the New York money market and the forces that operate it has been simply written so it can be used by the layman. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 44:363 Jl 1 '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 73:820 My 15 '48 70w

MADELIN, LOUIS. Talleyrand; a vivid biography of the amoral, unscrupulous, and fascinating French statesman; tr. by Rosalie Feltenstein. 320p $3.50 Roy pubs.

B or 92 Talleyrand-Périgord, Charles Maurice de, prince de Bénévent 48-2919

Biography of the French statesman, written in 1942 by a Frenchman who has "devoted a lifetime to the history of the Revolution and the empire." List of "persons, families, and historical events figuring in the life of Talleyrand." Index.

Booklist 44:381 Jl 15 '48

"A scholarly and colorful biography." M. F. Lindsley

+ Cath World 167:571 S '48 400w

"M. Madelin, the French historian, has produced a distinguished work on Talleyrand, without, however, deviating greatly from the accepted view of that dominating figure of revolutionary France. A re-estimate of the statesman in the light of present-day political events is valuable, partly because Europe's chaotic state after the Napoleonic wars resembled somewhat its present condition, and partly because the cynical type of statesmanship evolved by modern totalitarian leaders derives to some extent from the more Machiavelian phases of Talleyrand's policy." H. J. S.

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 Jl 1 '48 700w

Reviewed by F. D. Cohalan

Commonweal 48:358 Jl 23 '48 450w

Current Hist 15:102 Ag '48 50w

"Combines scholarship with a flair for writing which should make it interesting reading. . . Not for quick sale, but of lasting value."

+ Kirkus 16:225 My 1 '48 210w

Manchester Guardian p3 O 1 '48 210w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge

New Statesman & Nation 36:423 N 13 '48 1100w

"He writes lucidly, pleasantly, with the smooth French technique which after all is a form of courtesy. He is successful, and he deserves to be. Whether we can trust him as a historian is a different matter. He is a conservative, and also a Napoleon-worshiper." Albert Guerard

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 Je 13 '48 1400w

"The book is now made available in a smooth English translation. It is timely, for the historical analogies between our present task of establishing a 'lasting' peace and the era of the Congress of Vienna are striking enough. Talleyrand, if he was not a good man, was a good European. And the tale of his varied fortunes entertainingly throws light upon the eighteenth century which trained him, the great upheaval which opened a career to his gifts and the problem of reconstructing a broken world. . . Well written as it is, M. Madelin's book does not, in its biographical part, equal Mr. Duff Cooper's excellent and vivid life of Talleyrand." Henri Peyre

+ N Y Times p3 Je 6 '48 1000w

"Like all his books, this is good leisurely reading. M. Madelin's straight-forward academician's French comes through the translation a bit stepped up here and there by English colloquialisms, and occasionally is misrepresented more seriously. . . M. Madelin's book is a most readable introduction to the man, and generally reliable as to facts. But if this is your first meeting with Talleyrand, do not stop there. Go on at least to Duff Cooper or to St. Aulaire." Crane Brinton

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:10 Je 19 '48 700w

"A clear, pleasantly readable, unpretentious book. It makes no claim to originality or the discovery of new material." Alan Bullock

+ Spec 181:498 O 15 '48 1200w

Times [London] Lit Sup p557 O 2 '48 1550w

MAGINLEY, C. J. Toymaker's book; diagrams by Elisabeth D. McKee. 152p $2.50 Harcourt

680 Handicraft. Toys 48-9020

A practical book of instructions for making toys and games from materials easily available. Some of the toys are steam locomotive, boxcar, tank car, electric engine, trailer truck, moving van, dump truck, farm tractor and wagon, city bus, ferry boat, ferris wheel, merry-go-round, saltbox doll house, doll's table and chair set, bed for the doll, telephone. For grades five to nine.

Booklist 45:92 N 1 '48

"The hammer-and-saw-happy young man and his father will be on the way to more capable, useful hands with this inspiration." E. R. J.

+ Churchman 162:17 N 15 '48 20w

Commonweal 49:154 N 19 '48 70w

"Clear, precise instructions and lucid diagrams."

+ Kirkus 16:557 O 15 '48 100w

"The directions are clear, simple to follow, and generously illustrated with diagrams. . . For all ages." Judith Stevenson

+ Library J 73:1603 N 1 '48 80w

Sat R of Lit 31:47 N 13 '48 40w

Springfield Republican p7B N 7 '48 70w

MAGNER, JAMES ALOYSIUS. Art of happy marriage. 273p $2.75 Bruce pub.

392.5 Marriage 47-31411

"The author of Personality and Successful Living [Book Review Digest 1945] which was a helpful book to many people, has now written a book which he hopes will be a guide to those who are preparing for marriage as well as those already married. Father James A. Magner is procurator of the Catholic University of America. He has written frankly." Wis Lib Bul

"This book displays the too rare faculty of uniting fine ideals with everyday considerations and then formulating the combination in simple, intelligible language."
+ Cath World 166:478 F '48 150w
Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '48

"The wonder of this book is that it seems so well worth reading to a fellow with twenty-one years of married life to look back upon and test it by. It's addressed, of course, to young people. . . Though it isn't a heavy book, Father Magner has done a good job here in building up, quite unobtrusively, a concept of love involving many emotions." David Marshall
+ Commonweal 47:310 Ja 2 '48 160w
Wis Lib Bul 44:17 Ja '48

MAGNUS, EDWARD R., and MARLOTT, GRACE DELORIS. Refrigeration serviceman's manual; tech. advisor, Franklin P. Mason; illustrators, John Bayer [and] John J. Rhoades [eds. Frank Dinello and others]. 688p $5 Wilcox & Follett

621.56 Refrigeration and refrigerating machinery 48-3724

Practical manual containing information on maintenance, service and repair of electrical and absorption system refrigerators. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 45:8 S 1 '48
Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:203 F 1 '48 30w
N Y New Tech Bks 33:59 Jl '48

MAGOON, MRS MARIAN AUSTIN (WAITE). Little Dusty Foot; il. by Christine Price. 239p $2.50 Longmans

48-8348

Story of adventure in the days of Charlemagne. The hero is the young son of a charcoal burner, who longs to become a merchant—a "dusty foot." The story ends when Little Dusty Foot, after traveling with a caravan, arrives at the court of Charlemagne.

Booklist 45:74 O 15 '48

"A well-illustrated book, rich in contrasts and mediaeval customs of trade." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:40 Ja '49 90w

"Worthwhile exploration of fresh material."
+ Kirkus 16:337 Jl 15 '48 120w

"The details of medieval life are fascinating; action is fast; characterization good." Marian Herr
+ Library J 73:1521 O 15 '48 80w

"Three-dimensional characters and authentic details of medieval wayfaring life make this story for 10 to 14 year old readers credible in spite of its fantastic plot." Elizabeth Hodges
+ N Y Times p28 Ja 23 '49 200w

"With Rauf as its appealing hero and its rich medieval background this story should be welcomed everywhere. There is a map of Europe in the time of Charlemagne, and illustrations that express something of the strength, simplicity, and humor of the old chronicles." B. W. S.
+ Sat R of Lit 31:27 N 13 '48 230w
School & Society 68:160 S 4 '48 10w
Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p7B S 12 '48 120w
Wis Lib Bul 44:168 O '48

MAGOUN, F. ALEXANDER, and MAGOUN, RICHARD MANN. Love and marriage. 369p $3.50; text ed $3 Harper

392.5 Love. Marriage 48-9249

"A professor in the field of human relations at MIT, with a similarity of approach and audience appeal to the Groves' books, has written a modern interpretation of modern marriage. With a stress on mutuality throughout, this considers the emotions shared, the coordination of decisions made, and traces the steps for proper preparation for marriage from childhood on, gives information and advice on pre-marital sex experience, sex education, the criteria for marriage (more analysis, less romance), the periods of courtship, engagement, honeymoon, and later adjustments and adaptations. Other factors considered are children, divorce, religion, proper sex relationship, and so on." (Kirkus) Index.

"There have been several recent good books in this field. This is one of the most complete and competent. Its approach is scientific rather than moralistic, but the author, for all his frankness, and all the more because of it, shows that the subject is not one for science alone." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 65:1207 N 10 '48 110w

"A liberal, unevasive and understanding presentation which perhaps states nothing new but is based on latest finding and figures."
+ Kirkus 16:471 S 1 '48 150w

"Dr. Magoun's book is a valuable one for the layman. It will make an admirable text also for a college course in marital relations; not only because it includes all the necessary background material, but because it is so well written. The author handles footnotes and references in a painless way and isn't afraid to put in a touch of inspiration now and then." J. F. Bender
+ N Y Times p23 Ja 16 '49 360w

"A refreshingly wholesome departure from standard treatment of marital relations."
+ School & Society 68:312 O 30 '48 40w

MAGRIEL, PAUL DAVID, ed. Chronicles of the American dance. 268p il $5 Holt

793.32 Dancing. Dancers 48-9068

"Essays on American groups and individuals, from the Shakers to Martha Graham, who have been outstanding or unique in the annals of the American dance, particularly theatrical dance. . . All the material has been previously published, most of it in Dance Index." Booklist

Booklist 45:100 N 15 '48

"Some of the monographs are monotones in dull, scholastic style; others are enlivened with humor and imagination. None is exactly streamlined. But, by careful selection and orderly sequence, all help to tell the partial story. The book is amply and pleasingly illustrated."
+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 D 2 '48 480w

"If primarily for the devotees of this art, the material here has much of unusual, unorthodox interest."
Kirkus 16:389 Ag 1 '48 160w

"Highly recommended." George Freedley
+ Library J 74:129 Ja 15 '49 70w

"The book only touches the outlines of the subject at selected spots, with none of that continuity which is inherent in an outline, and its contribution to scholarship would seem to consist less in any real organization of materials than in a stimulation of interest. Actually it is a fascinating collection of miscellaneous historical chitchat of varying weight and substance, written in the main with vivacity and indicating a prodigious amount of digging in the records. The results of the excavation can be guaranteed to surprise most readers who are not already specialists in the field or subscribers to 'Dance Index.' . . It is too bad that Mr. Magriel has seen fit to represent Isadora by the brilliant but altogether inappropriate Bolitho piece. . . There are scores of fine pictures and so much delightful and informative reading in the book that anybody with even a half-way interest in the dance is only cheating himself by not becoming an owner of it straightway." John Martin

MAGRIEL, P. D.—Continued
+ — N Y Times p43 D 5 '48 1100w

"This is the fourth and by far the best in a series of books on the dance edited by Paul Magriel. . . The volume is jam-packed with woodcuts, lithographs and engravings from early magazines and theater programs." E. J.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 N 7 '48 90w

"This collection is a must for students of the dance and Americana."
+ Theatre Arts 33:78 Ja '49 80w

MAHABHARATA. Five brothers; the story of the Mahābhārata; adapted from the English tr. of Kisari Mohan Ganguli, by Elizabeth Seeger; il. by Cyrus LeRoy Baldridge. 300p $3.75 Day 891.21 48-9046

"Legend of the life and death of the five sons of Pandu and their mother Kunti adapted from the English translation of Kisari Mohan Ganguli. . .Characters are listed in order of their appearance; there is also a short and simple guide to the pronunciation of names." Library J

Booklist 45:117 D 1 '48

"This book is essential for those who wish to understand the East. . . The first adaptation gauged to the Western markets."
+ Kirkus 16:319 Jl 1 '48 240w

Reviewed by H. S. Taylor
Library J 73:1275 S 15 '48 80w

"Elizabeth Seeger has done a magnificent job in adapting this one book from a thirteen-volume translation of the great Sanskrit epic, The Mahabharata. Throughout the tale the pages shine with beauty and excitement." M. C. Ernst
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 N 21 '48 380w

"Miss Seeger has done for Ganguli's translation what D. C. Somervell accomplished for Toynbee's 'A Study of History,' except that her work is a kind of Platonic second remove from reality. . . Nevertheless, Miss Seeger's was a necessary literary labor, for it is about time that American students were given easy access to one of the great books of all time. Not the least of her virtues as hand-maiden by indirection to Vsaya is the fact that she has dispelled for the contemporary reader of the 'Mahabharata' what Professor Oman used to call 'the clouds of mythological dust which obscure the view.' She has made a valuable contribution to the study of Indian literature and mythology." Gordden Link
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:25 O 30 '48 1200w

MAHONY, PATRICK. Out of the silence; a book of factual fantasies; with a foreword by Maurice Maeterlinck. 180p $2.50 Storm
133 Spiritualism 48-11996

A series of short sketches or stories of apparitions, clairvoyance, telepathy, banshees, miracles, and other manifestations of the supernatural. The stories, many of them, are supposedly based on fact.

"An interpretation of the facts related would have been very helpful. But for all that, it must be said that Patrick Mahony has written a truly interesting book."
+ — Cath World 168:417 F '49 150w

"Rather badly written. . . Recommended." E. F. Walbridge
+ — Library J 73:1592 N 1 '48 130w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p17 N 14 '48 210w

MAILER, NORMAN. The naked and the dead. 721p $4 Rinehart
48-6633

A long novel based on the reactions of the members of an American platoon to their part of the invasion and occupation of a Japanese-held island—presumably in 1944. The action is divided into three dramatic stories: the landing on the island; a Japanese counter-attack by night; and a daring patrol of the platoon behind enemy lines.

"Strikes me as being by far the most impressive piece of fiction to date about Americans in the Second World War." C. J. Rolo
+ Atlantic 188:114 Je '48 900w

Reviewed by G. J. Wood
Canadian Forum 28:93 Jl '48 210w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p8X My 9 '48 500w

Reviewed by Theodore Kalem
Christian Science Monitor p11 S 16 '48 850w

"A brilliant book—but one that makes such harrowing reading, and which is written with such intensity, such bald realism, such unrestrained accuracy of detail in speech and thought, that all but the tough-skinned will turn from it, feeling reluctant to look again on the baring of men's inner beings under stress of jungle warfare. . . An unpleasant experience, but one that makes an unforgettable impression."
Kirkus 16:126 Mr 1 '48 250w

"This is an exceptionally fine book. . . The language employed is very strong and so accurately reported that it probably will offend many and may create problems in handling. Recommended." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 73:707 My 1 '48 100w

"As a war novelist, Mr. Mailer does one thing better than any American has ever done it. He reports on officer's country and enlisted men's country with equal accuracy. His people are Mexicans and Jews, Southerners, Westerners, and Easterners, urban and rural, liberals and Christian Fronters. He has poetry in him and ideas, as well as a remarkable gift for story-telling. We are lucky, I think, that we have a writer of such quality to satisfy our hunger for more knowledge about the war." Ira Wolfert
+ Nation 166:722 Je 26 '48 1050w

"For the most part, the novel is a transcription of [the soldiers'] talk, lusterless griping and ironed-out obscenities, too detailed and monotonous to have been imaginatively conceived for any larger purpose, but too exact and literal to have been merely guessed at. It is like a sheaf of posthumous letters home, which we read as intruders of privacy. This naturally lays a constraint on our response, unless we're in the habit of being flippant at a memorial service. . . This doesn't mean to deny Mailer his achievement. If he has a taste for transcribing banalities, he also has a talent for it." John Farrelly
+ — New Repub 118:32 My 17 '48 320w

"With this one astonishing book, his first full-length work of fiction, he joins the ranks of major American novelists. This reviewer has no hesitation in calling 'The Naked and the Dead' a great war novel. . . Do you want to know how American combat soldiers of the second World War ate, slept, swore? Read 'The Naked and the Dead.' Norman Mailer has an uncanny phonographic ear for the argot of efficient obscenity that served as a medium of communication in the Army of the United States." Richard Match
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 My 9 '48 1000w

"Undoubtedly the most ambitious novel to be written about the recent conflict, it is also the most ruthlessly honest and in scope and in integrity compares favorably with the best that followed World War I. Even in its repetitiousness, wordiness, and overanalysis of motive, it is a commanding performance by a young man of 25 whose gifts are impressive and whose failures are a matter of reach rather than grasp. . . It is virtually a Kinsey Report on the sexual behavior of the GI. Its style is an almost pure Army billingsgate that will offend many readers, although in no sense is it exaggerated. . . 'The Naked and the Dead' is not a great book, but indisputably it bears witness to a new and significant talent among American novelists." David Dempsey

+ — N Y Times p6 My 9 '48 800w

"An impressive and in many ways a highly satisfactory novel about combat in the second World War, but it shares the tendency of most current novels toward undersimplification. It is too long and it is too complicated. . . Its dialogue is true and straightforward. At times, in spite of the unwieldy size of the cast, its types become real characters. . . It is a matter of record . . . that the author is twenty-five years old. . . His age has no bearing that I can see on the fact that he is a man of wisdom and perception, who tells a good story powerfully and well." John Lardner
+ — New Yorker 24:115 My 15 '48 1250w

Reviewed by Russell Squires
San Francisco Chronicle p21 My 23 '48 750w

"The ordinary soldiers in 'The Naked and the Dead' lack the vitality and originality of, say, the Britishers in 'The Edge of the Night.' Mr. Mailer leans rather heavily on the sexual experiences of his lower-class figures, too; these may be a solace for the common man, and even a source of strength, but they don't constitute his only achievement. I think this is the main weakness of the novel, for there is no real balance of the dramatic forces in it, just as there is a final lack of emotional impact. The story ought to be more impressive than it is. Within these limits, however, 'The Naked and the Dead' is a substantial work, and Mr. Mailer is a new novelist of consequence." Maxwell Geismar
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:10 My 8 '48 800w

Reviewed by Martha Foley
Survey G 37:499 D '48 800w

"A 25-year-old Harvard graduate who fought at Leyte has written perhaps the best novel yet about World War II. It is distinguished primarily for simple realism, a forthright, almost childlike honesty, a command of ordinary speech, a cool and effortless narrative style, quickened here & there with a mild, understated humor. The battle scenes are so vivid as to suggest Tolstoy's War and Peace, the common soldiers as clearly visualized as Tolstoy's peasants."
+ Time 51:106 My 10 '48 850w

"This is a truly impressive performance. It is much too long and repetitious and is marred by one fault so serious that it would ruin most books. But it surmounts all these obstacles and by its technical skill, narrative pace, and emotional power rises to unexpected heights." Orville Prescott
+ — Yale R n s 37:765 summer '48 550w

MAIMON, SOLOMON. Autobiography; ed. and with an epilogue by Moses Hadas [tr. by J. Clark Murray]. 116p $1.50 Schocken

B or 92 48-5096

Autobiography of an eighteenth century Polish Jew, a scholar and rebel who attempted to reconcile Judaism with secular rationalistic Aristotelianism.

Booklist 44:186 Ja 15 '48

Reviewed by H. A. Reinhold
Commonweal 47:177 N 28 '47 320w

"The book does give a vivid portrayal of what life was like among the Jews of Europe a century ago and should be of interest both to Jews and Gentiles for the light it throws upon contemporary problems."
+ Kirkus 15:539 S 15 '47 130w

Reviewed by Marie Syrkin
Nation 166:330 Mr 20 '48 300w

"Apart from being a first-hand picture of eighteenth-century eastern Europe, it is also an account of a spiritual quest." H. E. Wedeck
+ N Y Times p19 Ja 18 '48 50w

MAIN, MRS MARY (FOSTER). Enchanted life. 248p $3 Harcourt

48-8514

"The first half of Mary Main's novel is devoted to [an] account of the growing up in the Argentine of three little girls of English descent. The time is ten years back. Bonita, Christine and Caroline Munroe lived in a rambling, white plastered, morning glory covered, dust shrouded house, ten miles out on the road from Buenos Aires, whose iron-barred, shuttered windows gave directly on the street and whose patio, deep within, was fragrant with many flowers. . . Part II is dedicated to The Life Within. It recounts Caroline's trial-and-error effort to launch her small, highly individual craft and get it moving smoothly in the current and flow of the kind of life that is properly hers." N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R

"Like Caroline, Mrs. Main is the child of English parents domiciled in the Argentine, and as the wife of an engineer lived for a time in construction camps. Descriptions of the way an Argentine household is run . . . as well as the physical aspects of the vast, dusty, yet richly productive land, unescapably reveal—under Mrs. Main's sure hand—intrinsic qualities of the great country far south of the Equator." W. K. Rugg
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 O 7 '48 220w

"A sensitive suggestive novel which indulges in little fictional distortion and which should attract more fastidious, if largely feminine, readers."
+ Kirkus 16:487 S 15 '48 130w

"Mrs. Main tells her intimate story of one woman's heart with delicacy and grace, limning it always against a changing outer environment which, sketched lightly, yet with an illumined clarity, gives a fascinating picture of certain phases of life in the Argentine." F. H. Bullock
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 O 10 '48 500w

"The writing is excellent, and the author knows what she is about every word of the way. Motives are traced to their source, and each act, each word, is fully credible. Characterizations are exquisitely sharp, with even the minor ones unforgettable. This is a novel of character rather than of plot, and Mary Main has proved her perceptiveness on almost every page." V. L. Warren
+ N Y Times p43 N 21 '48 450w

MAKRIS, JOHN N., ed. Boston murders, by Marjorie Carleton [and others]. (Regional murder ser) 223p $3 Duell

364 Murder 48-8177

Seven factual accounts of murders committed in or near Boston. Contents: Maria met a gentleman: The Bickford case, 1845, by Marjorie Carleton; Twelve parts of a lady: the Chester S. Jordan case, 1908, by Paul Whelton; He fought to kill: the Kid Carter case, 1913, by W. G. Schofield; A man of too much distinction: the Harry Manster case, 1918, by Timothy Fuller; The haunted man: the Kearney case, 1924, by Lawrence Dame; The Brown Derby murder: the Corey-Price case, 1925, by J. A. Kelley; Who killed Fantasia? the Joseph Fantasia case, 1927, by J. N. Makris. Bibliography.

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun S 24 '48 360w

Kirkus 16:461 S 1 '48 100w

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p34 N 28 '48 250w

"Most of the criminals seem to have shown a lack of imagination unworthy of their city's traditions, and the cases, which are chronicled with varying degrees of skill by the seven authors, aren't likely to jolt even the most staid resident of Louisburg Square."
New Yorker 24:119 S 25 '48 140w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p23 S 26 '48 220w

MAKRIS, J. N.—Continued

"'Boston Murders' actually is one of the most enjoyable of the nine murder volumes. This is due in great part to the excellence of Mr. Makris' team of writers, including Marjorie Carleton, Lawrence Dame, Timothy Fuller, James A. Kelley, William Schofield and Paul Whelton, whose skill makes even run-of-the-mill homicides read like first-run features." R. F. H.

+ Springf'd Republican p10B S 26 '48 300w

MALAQUAIS, JEAN. World without visa; tr. by Peter Grant. 499p $3.75 Doubleday

48-6934

"France, during its days of prostration under Nazi power, was a trap in which human beings were caught. It was a microcosm of our planet, with the difference that some men and women did manage to escape from it by way of life rather than death. In 'World Without Visa' Jean Malaquais has sought to put into fiction a likeness of that historical situation, peopled by a representative number of its involved creatures." Sat R of Lit

---

Booklist 44:352 Je 15 '48

Kirkus 16:126 Mr 1 '48 170w

"Jean Malaquais is Polish born, has lived in France since early childhood, has been a sincere Marxist, yet has no faith in Stalin. His confusion seems to be carried into this book which is somber, melancholy, bitter and brutal at times, yet has flashes of wit and beauty. . . Definitely not for the squeamish reader. I don't want to recommend it, but one feels that the author had to write it, and as one of the best books covering the Vichy period, it must take its place among World War II books." E. H. Crowell

Library J 73:708 My 1 '48 160w

"One of the few significant novels to have reached us from Europe in recent years, and one which should be read by all those who are concerned with the facts of the wasteland that was once Europe. . . But this is not a 'proletarian novel'; the characters are not simple 'types'; every one is a fully realized human being. . . It is an exciting, brutal, and powerful book. . . The subject matter is intentionally reflected in a style which, to the distress of some conservative reviewers, is remote from the orderly organization of the French roman traditionnel; the exuberant richness bursts habitual frameworks, for a disjointed world cannot be captured by artistic means corresponding to a hierarchically ordered universe. Attention constantly shifts from one episode to another." Louis Clair

+ Nation 167:79 Jl 17 '48 950w

"It is as a novelist that one presumes Malaquais would wish to be judged by World without Visa, and once the swarm of characters in the first part of the book has been mastered one comes upon a broadly conceived, brilliantly executed novel in a great tradition." George Mayberry

+ — New Repub 118:28 My 31 '48 950w

"Malaquais, who spent five years on 'World Without Visa,' writes from personal experience. . . To the telling of this story of Europe's rejected, Malaquais has brought immense gifts of sheer writing ability, portraiture, narrative power and psychological insight. There are not many writing men today who can match him in these qualities. But the world is overcrowded with main characters, so packed with disordered details, that a day after you have finished reading it, it has blurred into a resplendent fog like those kaleidoscopic murals of Diego Rivera. . . The translation, done by Peter Grant, is a superb job." David Davidson

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 My 23 '48 1300w

"It is disappointing that a novel of such possibilities should be unsuccessful. It seems forever to be beginning; new persons are continually introduced, even in the last few pages, and the implication that there is significance in their appearances is never established. These men and women are not only a world without visa; they are also a world without conviction. The novel, like much contemporary art, showing no conviction, has no esthetic form or moral direction. It is not sufficient for an artist contemplating chaos to depict nothing but confusion; in the disturbances of our time an artist equal to our time will discover the shapes of our future." L. L.

N Y Times p5 My 23 '48 800w

Reviewed by J. M. Lalley

New Yorker 24:106 Je 5 '48 650w

"His book, one of the most ambitious of recent novels, is the product of experience, intelligence, passion, faith, artistic skill, and a remarkably versatile eloquence that, thanks to Peter Grant, has passed with unusual success from one language into another. It may be argued that this work is better in its parts than as a whole, that the novel is sprawling as well as large, that the author has dissipated his considerable power by lavishing it on so many lives. . . But it is equally true that M. Malaquais could have said what he wished to say—as much as he wished to say—by means of no other method than the one he chose." B. R. Redman

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:16 My 22 '48 1250w

"Huge and exciting novel about 'shamed and sunken France.' . . Sometimes World Without Visa trembles on the edge of ten-twent'-thirt' melodrama, sometimes it seems incongruously romantic in its motivations. But all such objections are ultimately swept aside by the power with which Malaquais has raised a verbal monument to the martyrdom of Europe."

+ — Time 51:110 My 24 '48 550w

Reviewed by Orville Prescott

Yale R n s 38:190 autumn '48 270w

MALCOLM-SMITH, GEORGE. The grass is always greener; il. by Frank Cowles. 217p $2.50 Doubleday

47-11416

A fantasy in which a California newspaperman covering a convention in Philadelphia wakes up one morning to find that he has changed bodies with a very different man: a banker from Hartford, Connecticut. The attempts of the California democrat to live the life of the Connecticut republican makes up the story.

Kirkus 15:479 S 1 '47 180w

"This fantasy's resemblance to the work of a better writer is close enough to recognize but not close enough to be very funny." Lisle Bell

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p24 N 23 '47 110w

Reviewed by Isabelle Mallet

N Y Times p28 N 9 '47 490w

San Francisco Chronicle p27 Ja 18 '48 200w

MALIM, FREDERIC BLAGDEN. Almae matres; recollections of some schools at home and abroad. 198p $2.50 Macmillan (for the Cambridge univ. press)

373.42 Public schools (endowed)—Great Britain [48-3987]

Studies of the traditions of the public schools of England, their part in the British tradition, and the continuity of the tradition between the schools in England and their sister schools in the Dominions. The first four chapters describe Marlborough, Sedbergh, Haileybury, and Wellington, the English schools in which the author spent his own teaching career. The remaining four chapters deal with other schools in the four dominions. Index.

"Whether he is writing of the independent schools in the Dominions, or of schools at home, there is always one common deduction to be made—that the achievement of a school proceeds in great measure from the personality of the man who is privileged to serve it. 'There were giants in those days.' Reading Mr. Malim's attractively written book, 'we petty men' who follow can well believe it." John Garrett

+ Spec 180:384 Mr 26 '48 190w

"Here are gathered appreciations of the history and character of more than thirty schools, and though Mr. Malim cannot speak from intimate knowledge of their working he writes of them with insight and enthusiasm. . . The opening chapters, which are masterpieces of selection and allusive compression and rich in human sketches, may distract from the book's prevailing theme . . . but, rightly taken, the book offers with the richness of mature expression a quietly effective vindication of the value of the 'public schools' in the British Commonwealth of Nations."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p179 Mr 27 '48 420w

MALINOWSKI, BRONISLAW. Magic, science and religion, and other essays; sel. and with an introd. by Robert Redfield. 327p $3.50 Beacon press

572 Anthropology. Religion, Primitive 48-6987

Collection of essays chosen for their interest to the general reader from the work of the Polish anthropologist. All have been previously printed, but some have been long out of print Included are: Magic, science and religion; Myth in primitive psychology; Baloma: the spirits of the dead in the Trobriand islands; The problem of meaning in primitive language; An anthropological analysis of war. Indexes.

Am Soc R 13:647 O '48 70w

"The two-thirds of the volume dealing with the subjects named in the title are of special interest to students of religion both in themselves and as commentary on Frazer. The 50-odd pages on meaning in primitive language are an important contribution to the problem of semantics. And the 20-page 'Anthropological Analysis of War' is as timely today as when it was first printed in 1941." W. E. G.
+ Christian Century 65:884 S 1 '48 210w

"A valuable contribution." Roger Shaw
+ Churchman 162:17 O 1 '48 230w

"This volume reprints five of the most admired writings of Malinowski, all of which appeared in learned journals or in volumes that are now somewhat difficult to obtain. There is a felicitous introduction by Professor Robert Redfield. . . The Free Press and the Beacon Press deserve the thanks of students of religion and of students of man in general for making these stimulating papers generally available again." Clyde Kluckholm
+ Crozer Q 25:353 O '48 650w

Reviewed by J. Wach
J Religion 28:288 O '48 550w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Ag 1 '48 160w

MALLERY, RICHARD DAVIS, ed. Masterworks of travel and exploration; digests of 13 great classics. (Masterworks ser) 690p $6 Doubleday

910.8 Voyages and travels. Discoveries (in geography) 48-11652

Collection of digests of thirteen great classics of travel and exploration. Contents: The book of Marco Polo; The journal of the first voyage to America, by Christopher Columbus; The principal navigations, voyages, traffiques, and discoveries of the English nation, by Richard Hakluyt; Voyages of discovery, by James Cook; Travels in Tartary, Tibet, and China, by E. R. Huc; Commerce of the prairies, by Josiah Gregg; The Oregon trail, by Francis Parkman; Travels on the Amazon and Rio Negro, by A. R. Wallace; Journeys and researches in South Africa, by David Livingstone; Through the dark continent, by H. M. Stanley; Travels in Arabia Deserta, by C. M. Doughty; The North pole, by R. E. Peary; Little America, by R. E. Byrd.

Booklist 45:139 D 15 '48

"Some historical significance, some significance in subsequent effects on travel, on opening up new areas—but primarily the selections are made for that wide market to which travel books are endlessly appealing. . . The mood changes from the romantic to the scientific approach. But always there is the fascination of the unknown. Public library item, particularly."
+ Kirkus 16:497 S 15 '48 110w

"It is an interesting selection and the digests are better done than most abridgments of masterpieces."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 D 19 '48 90w

MALLERY, RICHARD DAVIS. Our American language. (Halcyon house publication) 276p $2 Garden City pub. co.

427.9 Americanisms 47-11747

"It is the purpose of this book to show how we in the United States use, pronounce, and spell words, and why we prefer the words, phrases, names, and expressions which distinguish the American language from other forms of English. . . We bring together here the characteristic words and phrases, spellings, and pronunciations that make up the American language. Much of this material has hitherto been available only in learned articles and dictionaries. In this book, widely scattered items have been brought together and so arranged as to show how the language has developed from colonial times to the present day. The early chapters are devoted to examining the differences that exist between American and British speech." (Pref) Index.

Booklist 44:211 F 15 '48

"In general, according to Professor Mallery, of New York University, [this manual] is characterized by directness, informality, tendency to coin new words and the practice of borrowing from other sources. . . A useful handbook."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p50 D 7 '47 200w

"As an introduction to the subject, as a first book for those who may go on to Krapp and Mencken and 'The Dictionary of American English,' Mr. Mallery's book may well serve a useful purpose. One wishes it were less of a jerry job of merely catalogue-size bookbuilding." Horace Reynolds
Sat R of Lit 31:10 Ja 17 '48 650w

MALLESON, LUCY BEATRICE (ANTHONY GILBERT, pseud). Missing widow [Eng title: Die in the dark]. 216p $2 Barnes, A.S. 48-6358

Detective story.

Booklist 44:383 Jl 15 '48

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ap 23 '48 70w

"The suspense here is jeopardized by recurrent asides to the reader, but Crooks operates with sufficient competence to sustain slow but steady interest."
+ — Kirkus 16:179 Ap 1 '48 100w

"Expert sleuthing by a man who is not nearly so mercenary as he pretends to be." Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p24 Ap 25 '48 150w

"Familiar ingredients, skillfully handled."
+ New Yorker 24:111 Ap 24 '48 70w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p18 My 16 '48 100w

Springf'd Republican p14A Je 11 '48 120w

MALMBERG, CARL. 140 million patients. 242p $2.75 Reynal

614.2 Medicine—U.S. Insurance, Health Med47-2497

Popularly presented arguments for the need and desirability of a national health insurance plan. The author has been a public relations advisor, information specialist for the United States Public Health Service and chief investigator for the United States Senate Subcommittee on Health and Education. Index.

"The author has been able to assemble a mass of factual data which demonstrate clearly

MALMBERG, CARL—Continued
that there is much room for improvement in the health of the nation. The monograph is readable, interesting, and for the most part thoroughly convincing." George Baehr
+ Am J Pub Health 38:573 Ap '48 1350w
Booklist 44:168 Ja 1 '48
Cleveland Open Shelf p3 Ja '48
Kirkus 15:524 S 15 '47 150w

"Mr. Malmberg's compact, meaty, attractive volume mixes scholarship and journalism. . . Writers, debaters, and discussion groups will find his volume tailored to their needs." M. M. Davis
+ Nation 166:483 My 1 '48 220w

"Had Mr. Malmberg chosen to use [his] facts as a stepping-stone for an unbiased study of socio-economic problems in medicine, as well as purely professional questions, he would have done a considerable service to the reading public. . . Nevertheless, such a book as this should be widely read. The intelligent reader will realize quite soon that he is hearing only one side of an important question, presented very ably indeed." F. G. Slaughter
+ — N Y Times p22 Ja 4 '48 900w

"Unfortunately, much of Malmberg's constructive material is buried in a mass of information apparently included only to infuriate doctors and make them seem like a group of vicious incompetents. In fact, the book tends to be an anthology of practically all the accurate but unfavorable things that could possibly be said about doctors in general and their official organization, The American Medical Association, in particular. As such its over-all tone is destructive, and it will not hasten the establishment of national health insurance or any other sort of progress in social medicine." John Pfeiffer
— Sat R of Lit 31:28 Ap 10 '48 650w

"The book gives a vivid picture of the country's need of improved medical care. It is an excellent vade-mecum for advocates of national compulsory health insurance." L. A. Eldridge
+ Survey G 37:271 My '48 360w

MALONE, DOROTHY. Cookbook for brides. 311p $2.75 Wyn
641.5 Cookery 47-11073

Describes how to cook for two, how to make party food for guests, how to use leftovers, gives rules for carving, a glossary of cooking terms, and other instructions on how to choose meats, equip a kitchen, etc. Useful to a bride or other beginner in housekeeping. Index.

"There are too many fuddy duddy, fancy dishes, and not enough practical down to earth recipes."
— Kirkus 15:488 S 1 '47 220w

Reviewed by H. L. Mason
+ N Y Times p56 N 9 '47 90w

"One of her chief features is the start-from-scratch pages of straightforward education—on how to choose meats, how to equip a kitchen, what to keep on hand on the shelves for staples and spices and so on. The Sunday 'brunch' (a word that always rubs me the wrong way) is featured which I suppose is logical under the circumstances and there is good advice on buying and using the less expensive cuts and such matters." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Ja 12 '48 110w

MALONE, DUMAS. Jefferson and his time; v 1, Jefferson the Virginian. 484p maps il $6 Little
B or 92 Jefferson, Thomas (48-5972)

The first of a projected four-volume work. This volume covers the first forty-one years of Jefferson's life—his ancestry, youth and education, legal career, marriage, his legislative career, the writing of the Declaration of Independence, and his wartime governorship of Virginia. Bibliography. Index.

"If the amount of material on [Dr. Malone's] subject is vast, he has nevertheless worked through a very large proportion of it and has put it together and interpreted it in such a way that it is easily understandable and definitely readable. There is no pedantry or obscure involvement in petty detail. The work represents American historical scholarship at its very best." Christopher Crittenden
+ Am Hist R 54:150 O '48 750w

Reviewed by B. F. Wright
Am Pol Sci R 42:1213 D '48 700w
Booklist 44:312 My 15 '48

Reviewed by R. A. Preston
Canadian Hist R 29:415 D '48 410w

Reviewed by R. B. Nye
+ Chicago Sun Ap 12 '48 440w

"Author and publisher have combined to produce a volume that is as usable as it is attractive. The index is unusually complete and useful. The bibliography is excellent. And the footnotes—ring out the bells—are at the bottom of each page rather than hidden away at the back. Professor Malone is modest; his accomplishments are commendable. His deep scholarship, genuine understanding, and good common sense are apparent throughout. His style is clear, forceful, and interesting. He has successfully mastered the temptation, faced by every scholar, to clutter his pages with the evidence of his diligence." R. A. Brown
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 My 3 '48 900w
Current Hist 14:348 Je '48 70w

Reviewed by T. V. Smith
Ethics 59:49 O '48 3500w

"Unfortunately this biography, while always interesting and sometimes instructive, is seldom exciting. The fault may be Jefferson's rather than Malone's. . . After reading this carefully documented, well-rounded, but somewhat uninspired account, most people will agree with Mr. Malone that 'Jefferson was a hard man to know intimately, and still is.' " R. W. Leopold
+ — Nation 166:481 My 1 '48 1200w

"This first volume of Professor Malone's projected biography of Jefferson leaves us at the moment when the great Virginian was about to embark on his journey to France. I can only say, and with eager enthusiasm, that if the next three volumes are of the same quality, we shall have, at last, a biography that not only takes account of the greatness of material so admirably organized in recent years, but one that is worthy of its exciting subject." H. J. Laski
+ New Repub 118:29 My 31 '48 1100w

"It is characteristic of Mr. Malone's scholarly integrity that he does not call his life of Jefferson 'definitive,' but rather 'Comprehensive' and hopes 'it will seem reasonably commensurate with the achievements and stature of the man.' Many readers will think Mr. Malone over modest, certainly his study of this period in Jefferson's life renders every earlier account (except Marie Kimball's) markedly obsolete. Mr. Malone's book can be strongly recommended both to the reader who wishes to meet the great Mr. Jefferson for the first time and to the Jeffersonian of long standing who may think he already knows all there is to know about Mr. Malone's hero." Douglass Adair
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Ap 11 '48 1450w

"In almost every case the author supports his independent judgments solidly, bringing a wealth of detail culled from contemporary newspapers and letters. In this sense, indeed, the present volume is a profoundly rich biography, permitting subsidiary actors and opponents to acquire reality that rather adds to than detracts from the massive reality of the hero of the piece. Honest and exact though this study is, it is suffused with the large spirit which is appropriately recognized as Jeffersonian. Mr. Malone is the felicitous biographer for Jefferson because he, like his subject, places his trust 'not in temporal powers, but in liberated intelligence.' " Adrienne Koch
+ N Y Times p1 Ap 11 '48 1450w
New Yorker 24:108 My 1 '48 120w

Reviewed by Carolyn Stull
San Francisco Chronicle p15 My 16 '48 410w

"Now that the long expected first volume of Professor Malone's 'Jefferson and His Time' has appeared the public will not be disappointed. 'Jefferson the Virginian' is interesting, scholarly, moderate in its judgments, the product of long delving into both secondary and primary sources, sound in its interpretations." T. J. Wertenbaker
+ Sat R of Lit 31:9 Ap 10 '48 1050w

Reviewed by J. D. Hicks
Social Educ 12:377 D '48 600w

"Mr. Malone has not found a 'new' Jefferson, but shows quite conclusively in the first volume of his biography that he has found sources that will help to clarify the often enigmatic character of an amazing man. . . He writes superbly, aided immeasurably by the fact that he knows Jefferson's Virginia almost as well as Jefferson knew it, and so far has managed to present his subject as an integral part of a landscape rather than as a gigantic figure superimposed on a background." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p12B My 2 '48 330w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
Survey G 37:264 My '48 330w

Time 51:112 Ap 26 '48 180w

Wis Lib Bul 44:149 S '48

"Dr. Malone's undertaking has no suggestion of the type of hero worship to be found in Douglas Freeman's great life of Lee. Malone narrates in detail and without gloss the unhappy episode of Jefferson's governorship of Virginia. He lets the events speak for themselves, and in the light of these events Jefferson does not come off too badly. The author gives us a full and rounded portrait, surpassing anything yet done on the squire of Monticello. The book is a solid and distinguished achievement." R. H. Gabriel
+ Yale R n s 37:735 summer '48 900w

MALRAUX, ANDRE, and BURNHAM, JAMES. Case for De Gaulle; a dialogue; section by André Malraux tr. by Spencer Byard. 87p $1.50 Random house

944.082 Gaulle, Charles André Joseph Marie de. World politics 48-2077

"This dialogue is a result of conversations that took place between Malraux and Burnham in Paris during the winter of 1947-1948. In it is set forth the reflections of two eminent political analysts on the French crisis in relation to the world crisis." Publisher's note

Reviewed by Henry Sowerby
Christian Science Monitor p14 My 18 '48 650w

"Malraux and Burnham write not only extremely well but have a special gift of simplifying complicated problems in such a way that the principal trends and basic factors become clearly visible." William Solzbacher
+ Commonweal 48:308 Jl 9 '48 1400w

"Burnham, who leads the dialogue throughout, does not reveal any startlingly different point of view from that expressed in his previous writings. In Malraux's words, however, there is a clue to the challenging enigma of why he has allied himself with de Gaulle. In a general passage on the cultural meaning of Gaullism he defines 'a new human type: the liberal hero,' which he feels is slowly emerging—a man of action with a profound belief in human destiny." A. L. Goodman
New Repub 118:32 My 17 '48 850w

Reviewed by D. C. McKay
N Y Times p4 My 2 '48 750w

"M. Malraux does say that the de Gaulle movement is in no way Fascist. . . On the matter of the practical politics of the de Gaulle movement, however, he is vague, and Mr. Burnham's long, often rhetorical questions do not help much, either."
New Yorker 24:108 My 8 '48 200w

San Francisco Chronicle p15 Je 20 '48 250w

Reviewed by Leo Gershoy
Yale R n s 37:738 summer '48 280w

MALVERN, GLADYS. Your kind indulgence; a romance of the theatre in old New York; il. by Corinne Malvern. 213p $2.50 Messner 48-6281

A historical novel for older girls. The heroine is a sixteen-year-old English actress who comes to play in New York's John Street theater in 1787. She is "an ingenue leading lady, up in current plays, with wardrobe." Susanna has her troubles during the "doctors' riots," but she saves the doctor she loves, and marries him.

Booklist 44:340 Je 1 '48

Kirkus 16:111 Mr 1 '48 120w

"Good reading." R. M. McEvoy
+ Library J 73:563 Ap 1 '48 70w

"The fascination of the stage is seldom found in a historical novel for girls, but in this one it is real and the history sound." M. L. Becker
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 My 9 '48 300w

"The book gives a good picture of eighteenth-century theatre life and an excellent view of a dramatic period in American history without sacrificing plot or character interest. Girls of 14 and up will find Susanna's story fascinating and will applaud her decision when she is forced to choose between love and ambition." Elizabeth Hodges
+ N Y Times p21 Je 13 '48 170w

Wis Lib Bul 44:135 Je '48

MANGIONE, JERRE. The ship and the flame. 311p $3 Current bks. 48-6858

Fictionized account of a shipload of refugees making for American shores during the war. The ship is bound for Mexico out of Lisbon, but is turned back from Mexico. When it reaches the United States some of the passengers are allowed to land to their intense joy. Then, with the rest of its passengers, the ship makes ready for the return voyage.

Chicago Sun p6X Je 6 '48 30w

"A competent handling of character and plot, of atmosphere and dialogue."
+ Kirkus 16:95 F 15 '48 170w

"Readable tale which presents frightening picture of greed, heroics and a great deal of lust. Recommended, but only for adults." Anne Whitmore
Library J 73:708 My 1 '48 80w

Reviewed by Ernest Jones
Nation 167:22 Jl 3 '48 600w

"Although [it] is the work of an American writer, it is permeated with a strong European flavor, not only in the writing, which sometimes gives the pleasant effect of a good translation, but in the author's understanding of the people so that it seems that they too have been sensitively translated. If it appears already a little dated, it is because we, not time, have made it so, through not wanting to remember the tragic truths of only a few years ago." John Woodburn
— + New Repub 119:25 O 4 '48 700w

"The heartache [the characters] experience when their Mexican transit visas are found to be invalid and the threats they face of being returned to Nazi concentration camps make for a tense and exciting narrative, while their various backgrounds, beliefs, and changes of character en route provide the basis for a first-rate political allegory as well." J. D. Ross
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 My 16 '48 700w

"Though Mr. Mangione does not carry the emotional impact of a Valtin or a Remarque (he lacks their penetrating sense of terror and torment), he writes with an ethical militancy equal to their own and with a high degree of artistic skill. His book is at all times readable. Particularly effective are his use of dialogue; his sardonic gift of humor, especially with regard to the legalistic ironies of civilization; and his knowledge of the comedy and misery of people in love." Charles Lee
+ N Y Times p5 My 16 '48 800w

MANGIONE, JERRE—Continued

"However you choose to interpret it, Mr. Mangione's performance is spirited, respectably written, and, considering its high phallic content, miraculously free from vulgarity."
+ New Yorker 24:97 Je 12 '48 180w

"Mr. Mangione gets the most out of the tragedy, the comedy, the complete humanness of his theme." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 Je 29 '48 500w

"On the whole Mr. Mangione has used his materials well and honestly. A bit too much time is devoted to the somewhat messy relationship between young Paul Kalinka and the highly susceptible Simone Brasson. Still, the author has fashioned a number of absorbing characters and a human drama generally well integrated with the drama of ideas upon which I have dwelt. The dialogue is incisive and penetrating. It is a good work." Edmund Fuller.
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:17 My 29 '48 600w

MANGURIAN, G. N., and JOHNSTON, NORMAN MCGILL, eds. Aircraft structural analysis; prepared by the engineering staff of the Glenn L. Martin company. 418p $8; to schools $6 Prentice-Hall

629.134 Airplanes—Design and construction

"Material in this text was used for an intensive course for the Glenn L. Martin draftsmen and engineers to provide them with knowledge of structural analysis of aircraft details so as to enable them to design parts for airplanes and to acquaint them with principles of stress analysis as an aid in solving practical structural problems. Problems, diagrams." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 44:295 My 1 '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:203 F 1 '48 60w

MANN, KLAUS. Pathetic symphony; a novel about Tchaikovsky. 346p $3 Allen, Towne & Heath

Tchaikovski, Peter Ilyitch—Fiction
48-2181

"A fictional biography of Tschaikowsky. In addition to presenting all the verifiable facts of the composer's life, the author attempts to give some idea, by means of frequent interior monologues, of what the hero was thinking about when he sat down at the piano." New Yorker

"Not a very desirable acquisition." Leonard Burkat
Library J 73:815 My 15 '48 70w

Reviewed by H. E. Johnson
Music Lib Assn Notes 5:370 Je '48 500w

"This book makes no particularly outstanding contribution to the ample literature on Tschaikowsky, but those who like to read about him will find 'Pathetic Symphony' a leisurely and skillful retelling of a familiar story." Herbert Kupferberg
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Je 27 '48 380w

Reviewed by R. G. Davis
N Y Times p5 Jl 4 '48 750w

"An interesting, if somewhat hackneyed, version of the emotional rearing and bucking that seems to accompany—or result in—major artistic output."
New Yorker 24:94 Ap 3 '48 80w

"Mr. Mann calls his book a novel about Tchaikowsky. In his novel the emphasis is laid on the abnormality of Tchaikowsky. . . Mr. Mann highlights the episodes that lend credence to his thesis about Tchaikowsky and minimizes the relationships that would seem to illustrate other facets in his character. . . Now were this book truly a fiction, this would be legitimate as the analysis of a character which Mr. Mann had himself created. . . But when he superimposes his, Klaus Mann's thoughts and conversations as belonging to Tchaikowsky, he achieves a book which has neither the reality of a creation of character nor the reality of an honest biography." Gretchen Finletter
— Sat R of Lit 31:38 Ap 17 '48 650w

MANN, THOMAS. Doctor Faustus; the life of the German composer, Adrian Leverkühn, as told by a friend; tr. from the German by H. T. Lowe-Porter. 510p $3.50 Knopf 48-8940

A modern version of the Faust legend. It is told as the life story of Adrian Leverkühn, and the narrator is his old friend, Serenus Zeitblom. Leverkühn, a scholar and musician, pays a high price for his years of success, and finally goes insane and dies in 1940. His progress thru life is paralleled by the course of modern Germany, thru success to destruction.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 182:92 N '48 3050w

Booklist 45:89 N 1 '48

Cath World 168:416 F '49 150w

Reviewed by Jex Martin
Chicago Sun N 10 '48 490w

"One wonders whether one should criticize a Nobel prize winner, or whether one should simply say ipse scripsit and bow the head. And yet some doubt enters into one's mind regarding the number of people who will read this book, or, having read it once will read it again. What manner of book is it, anyhow? . . Thomas Mann is a master in setting up the stage scenery. . . But what about the figures that move on the stage? They don't move, they gaze at you in pairs and talk. About what? About art, music, and theology, and, allowing for a few minor inaccuracies, they talk intelligently, too." J. A. C. F. Auer
+ — Christian Science Monitor p18 D 11 '48 420w

"The most valid criticism is that the book is too devilish clever. For Adrian is the inanimate maypole around which the theme revolves and most of the other characters are comparatively stationary, though rendered lively by their apposite conversation. . . And I feel that though a reader is entitled to notice the inherent liabilities of a well-planned allegory, he is not really entitled to quibble over them. They are inevitable, even historical." Virginia Bennett
Commonweal 49:331 Ja 7 '49 650w

"This is a book to read as a novel of ideas—not as a story memorable for plot and pace. It is . . . a brilliant tour de force."
+ — Kirkus 16:486 S 15 '48 340w

Reviewed by C. K. Miller
Library J 73:1666 N 15 '48 110w

Reviewed by Stephen Spender
Nation 167:634 D 4 '48 850w

"Since the book is written as recollection ('This is no novel' is a recurring hint), it proceeds by puzzled inquiry, description and discursive scholarship; determining action and supporting character are at a minimum. The effect is to overweight the interest of the first part of the book. After the background is worked in and the various themes introduced and intellectually balanced, the narrative fails to use them and seems merely to argue them." John Farrelly
New Repub 119:26 N 1 '48 800w

"It is a most German book, bounded on every side by thought of Germany, a great cry of love and despair over the country he fled, by a German artist. . . Reading it in English one feels like an outsider and does not know whether to rejoice over the rich play of intelligence, of a kind German readers have not known for some time, or to be embarrassed at finding himself such an eavesdropper on Mr. Mann's long dialogue with himself over his own people. The book is saturated in German thought, German music, the indefinable German gift for equating the eloquence of language with the ambiguity of existence; intellectually it is a feast." Alfred Kazin
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 O 31 '48 2150w

"Those who like to read program notes about imaginary compositions will find many passages to their liking here. The dialogue, which is better than the characterization, permits Mann to develop a wide range of ideas with his usual essayistic skill. However, to compare 'Doctor Faustus' with 'Jean-Christophe' is to note that Rolland's novel, however dated, is somewhat more convincing in its presentation of musical life. Chatty references to Massine and Virgil Thomson do not guarantee the solidity of Mann's own creations: Leverkühn remains a symbolic, shadowy figure, whose reserve is accentuated by long tirades in the manner of Luther's table-talk. The only vivid character is the narrator, Dr. Serenus Zeitblom." Harry Levin

+ — N Y Times p5 O 31 '48 1400w

"As a philosopher, Mr. Mann is rather more ponderous than profound; as a competitor of Goethe in the handling of the Faust story, he is hopelessly outclassed; as a novelist, he has failed in this particular book. He has failed not because he was unable to bring off his own version of Faust, or because his philosophical digressions slow down the movement of his book to a pace less lively than a crawl, but simply because his central character, upon whose credibility everything else depends, never really comes to life. . . There are a lot of admirable things in this book—glimpses of German life that are as good as anything in 'Buddenbrooks,' but all these accomplishments merely emphasize Mr. Mann's failure to bring off Adrian Leverkühn." Hamilton Basso

— + New Yorker 24:106 O 30 '48 1050w

"'Doctor Faustus' is too long, too fullsome, too filled with erudite but unlikely conversations. But perhaps the most justifiable complaint the average reader may make is its lengthy discussion of Leverkühn's music. For the layman musical terms are a bit mysterious to begin with. To be sure he can read and understand program notes when he has heard the music, or is hearing the music which they interpret. But too much of 'Doctor Faustus' reads like program notes for music which, since it was never written, he will never hear. That forms a very major difficulty in what is otherwise a very challenging and stimulating book." W. R. White

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p17 O 24 '48 1050w

"'Doctor Faustus,' like most really great works of literature, can be interpreted on different levels. Loaded with a spiritual cargo that ever seems to outweigh the penetrating mental struggles of 'The Magic Mountain,' the book floats like a gigantic intellect-laden vessel in the shallow waters of current world literature; its readers can be compared to watchmen on guard who, according to their position on the shore or the strength of their telescopes, may get varying glimpses of the slowly drifting craft. A full view, however, will be afforded only to the faithful who have forgone impatience and have learned to focus accurately." Claude Hill

Sat R of Lit 31:11 O 30 '48 2800w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn

Springf'd Republican p9B N 28 '48 650w

"Faustus will be considered a masterpiece by some, a bore by many. A good deal of it reads like Mann's heaviest formal essays. To those who look for it, however, the book offers a masterful explanation of those sides of the German character that welcomed Hitler."

+ — Time 52:96 N 1 '48 950w

Reviewed by Orville Prescott

Yale R n s 38:381 winter '49 1500w

MANN, WILLIAM M. Ant hill odyssey; with illustrations and maps. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 338p $3.50 Little

B or 92 Naturalists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 48-9280

"An account of the formative years in the life of a renowned entomologist. Beginning with a description of his state of mind at the age of four, when he first realized that insects were to mean more to him than they do to most people, the author recounts how he followed his star, more or less on his hands and knees, across American deserts and through Caribbean, South American, and Melanesian jungles, eventually arriving at the Department of Agriculture, where, while still a young man, he was given a free hand with the Department's ants." (New Yorker) No index.

Booklist 45:135 D 15 '48

"Slow on the uptake, the autobiography gathers momentum, the style is humorous, clear, fascinating."

+ Kirkus 16:544 O 1 '48 160w

"Written informally, without literary flourish, 'Ant Hill Odyssey' is crammed with odd and interesting bits of information. It is one of those comfortable books that make the reader feel, almost from the start, that he has known the author for a long time and that they are the best of friends." E. W. Teale

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 D 12 '48 1050w

"To this reviewer who has followed the author's trail in Brazil and the South Pacific, the portion of the book dealing with the South Seas is the most satisfying. Descriptions of animal life are joined to an interesting personal account of the human population. . . One might have wished for the introduction of more first-hand material on the social behavior of insects and some comment on the eternally fascinating problem of instinct and intelligence. It is rather surprising that a student of Wheeler and a great admirer of Forel should show so little interest in these matters. And the book would have gained immeasurably from the inclusion of more illustrative material. I have failed to find a picture of an ant anywhere in the book." Bernard Mishkin

+ — N Y Times p38 D 5 '48 600w

"Dr. Mann, who is now the director of the National Zoo, makes it all sound as though the rest of us had wasted our youth."

+ New Yorker 24:165 N 20 '48 120w

MANNES, MARYA (MRS RICHARD BLOW). Message from a stranger. 246p $2.75 Viking 48-5308

Story told by a dead poetess who finds herself conjured up from the void by those who remembered, needed or wanted her. The people who summoned her included her delivery boy, her grocery clerk, a lending library proprietor, her editor, her first husband and many strangers who knew her only thru her writings but saw her true image better than some members of her own family who had not understood her. Finally in the words and thoughts of the living she comes to know her true self.

Reviewed by C. G. Paulding

Commonweal 47:427 F 6 '48 700w

Kirkus 15:610 N 1 '47 170w

"'Message From a Stranger' is, to date, the best compendium I know of the most approved social, political, sexual, and domestic attitudes of modern educated woman—and very pleasant attitudes they are too, if a bit overappreciated by modern woman herself. If one must choose between a fiction of self-hatred and a fiction of self-admiration, there is much to be said for the latter. At least every female reader of Miss Mannes's novel can live for a few hours in a glow of identification with just about as much glamour, talent, and virtue as is possible to our sex this side of heaven." Diana Trilling

Nation 166:219 F 21 '48 220w

"Most of the lesser characters come alive and provide entertaining reading. It is Olivia herself who remains shadowy. . . A great deal of elementary, oversimplified political talk and a somewhat naive metaphysic further weaken 'Message From a Stranger.' The message is even less solid than the stranger. And despite the competence of much of the writing, and some sensitively handled scenes, a clever device goes begging for want of the substance to give it full effectiveness." Hiram Haydn

— + N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 F 22 '48 500w

MANNES, MARYA—Continued

"This is not a big book in length, but it is enormous in implication. It has faults, but once you permit yourself to enter Miss Mannes' Beyond and accept her hereafter's laws and architecture, you will discover that the virtues of a well-furnished mind and an understanding sensibility are of far more importance than any minor flaws in structure and diction." Leo Lerman

+ — N Y Times p22 F 15 '48 470w

"Pedestrian, in spite of the uncommon technique."

— New Yorker 23:85 F 7 '48 120w

Reviewed by Harrison Smith

Sat R of Lit 31:15 F 14 '48 800w

"Miss Mannes has written a very interesting book. It is so well done that we have no right to be disappointed. Yet the theme promised more than we have been given; and Olivia, contriving that continual compliments are paid to her memory, or that the few people who speak ill of her come to no good, weakens the effect of her undoubted wisdom and compassion. The book is a long way ahead of the average intelligent novel, but it might have been in another class altogether." L. A. G. Strong

+ — Spec 181:610 N 5 '48 450w

Times [London] Lit Sup p649 N 20 '48 300w

Wis Lib Bul 44:63 Mr '48

MANNIN, ETHEL EDITH (MRS REGINALD REYNOLDS). Late have I loved thee. 350p $3 Putnam

48-8671

"The story of a clever and witty young novelist of the twenties who, as the result of the death of his sister, for which he feels responsible, is converted to Roman Catholicism and ultimately becomes a Jesuit father. A modern St. Augustine, he passes in a moment from the extremes of worldliness and scepticism to the state of extreme penitence and sanctity in which he passes the rest of his life. The scene changes from the literary and artistic Paris of the twenties and thirties . . . to a monastery in the West of Ireland where, having passed his novitiate and become a teaching father, he gradually discovers the power of healing through prayer. At the time of his death, he is famous throughout the district for his miracles." Times [London] Lit Sup

"In these days, when a good measure of creative skill goes to the portrayal of spiritual degeneration and moral collapse, it is refreshing to turn to a novel where the main character emerges from the shadows and grows in grace and in wisdom. It would be well, however, if Ethel Mannin had been as successful in the execution of her theme as she was in the choice of it. But the book is uneven. The opening chapters in particular are weak." M. R. Grennan

+ — Cath World 168:169 N '48 500w

"This book, invested with a highly romantic atmosphere, reads easily, despite its prolixity." J. S. Kennedy

+ — Cath World 168:211 D '48 100w

"Miss Mannin's twenty-sixth novel is easily her best. . . What is unnecessarily involved seems to be Cathryn's relation to Francis. . . But Cathryn's fall and death are admirably told, to the last detail. . . And the preoccupation with the working of miracles gives a naïve quality to the sanctity we are supposed to find in Francis. . . Miss Mannin has written a one-third excellent novel." Anne Fremantle

+ — Commonweal 49:122 N 12 '48 850w

Kirkus 16:410 Ag 15 '48 180w

"By purely literary standards Miss Mannin may not be a very good writer . . . but she can tell a story, and in this novel she has an interesting story to tell." Charles Marriott

+ Manchester Guardian p3 F 13 '48 120w

"The story which Miss Mannin unfolds, in all its ramifications, is told with quiet passion. While the last part of the book, in which are telescoped the final years when Francis consumes himself in his late-found, dearly loved vocation, is somewhat detached from the rest of the carefully knit narrative and too rigidly identified with both St. Augustine and a certain Father Sullivan who is actually the model for Francis Sable, it does not destroy the sweep of this tale of a modern Augustine. Miss Mannin has breathed into 'Late Have I Loved Thee' a moving and memorable life of its own." Virgilia Peterson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 O 17 '48 700w

N Y Times p22 O 10 '48 950w

"Miss Mannin, a non-Catholic writer, who has sought from the outside to make a study of religious conversion, loses hold of her characters without giving a convincing account of the spiritual climate in which they live. . . It was through the reading of St. Augustine that Sable first realized his destiny, and the reader feels that it was rather her enthusiasm for the Confessions than an analytical interest in the psychology of conversion that prompted Miss Mannin to write this tale. Naive as it often is, one feels respect for the author's sincere absorption in her model."

— + Times [London] Lit Sup p105 F 21 '48 360w

MANSFIELD, JAMES CARROLL. Dawn of creation; il. by the author. 238p $2.50 Lothrop

573.2 Man, Prehistoric—Juvenile literature. Paleontology—Juvenile literature 47-12056

A description of the epochs of prehistory. For ages 10-14. Index.

Booklist 44:189 Ja 15 '48

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan

Horn Bk 24:47 Ja '48 80w

Kirkus 15:626 N 15 '47 120w

"Important because it will answer scientifically children's questions concerning the origin of the earth and of man. . . An absorbing and lucid account of prehistoric man's development and progress. Textbook format; profusely illustrated. Recommended for most libraries." E. F. Clift

+ Library J 73:127 Ja 15 '48 80w

MANTLE, BURNS. Burns Mantle best plays. See Chapman, J. A., ed.

MARCH, HAROLD. Two worlds of Marcel Proust. 276p $3.50 Univ. of Pa. press

B or 92 Proust, Marcel 48-6746

Study of Marcel Proust's life and his literary method based on his writings and correspondence. It includes also an examination of the characters, themes, and structure of his Remembrance of Things Past. The last chapter summarizes Proust's meaning. List of important works on Proust. Index.

"Written with sound scholarship, it is in general an intelligent, compact, logically organized study addressed to the general reader." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 182:106 Jl '48 800w

"The judicious reader will find this a good—and in places excellent—study of Proust and his work. . . All quotations are in English, which makes the book particularly useful to 'the common reader.'" Vivian Mercier

+ Commonweal 48:238 Je 18 '48 160w

Current Hist 15:227 O '48 40w

Kirkus 16:184 Ap 1 '48 210w

"Essential in all collections already containing the Remembrance." R. E. Kingery

+ Library J 73:649 Ap 15 '48 130w

Reviewed by John Farrelly

New Repub 119:26 Jl 12 '48 420w

Reviewed by Lloyd Morris

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Jl 4 '48 1600w

"Despite the soundness of Harold March's statements about Proust's themes and intentions and style, all of which are admirably treated, specialists may take exception to some of his minor judgments. He was right not to rely upon the famous translation by Scott-Moncrieff, but it is unfortunate that often his own translations are too stiffly literal. I wonder also why he consistently drops the final plural in the title 'A l'Ombre des Jeunes Filles en Fleurs,' which is intended to suggest not only the condition of blossoming youth but also the metaphorical transposition of the girls into flowers. But such matters are mere details." Justin O'Brien

+ — N Y Times p4 My 9 '48 850w

"This book is not very profound from either the literary or the psychological point of view, but it deals sensibly with all the main aspects of Proust's personality and work, and it contains the most complete account of his life so far published in English."

+ — New Yorker 24:113 My 8 '48 60w

"Most critical treatment has been sketchy, or singled out one aspect of Proust for comment. Mr. March's intelligent study attempts a complete portrait. It includes many of Proust's letters, and the only well-documented life of Proust available in England. This alone makes the book immensely valuable." Marjorie Brace

+ Sat R of Lit 31:18 My 8 '48 700w

MARCUS, ABRAHAM, and MARCUS, WILLIAM. Elements of radio; prepared under the editorship of Ralph E. Horton. 2d ed 751p $4.25; to schools $3 Prentice-Hall

621.384 Radio 48-5636

"Some revisions in text and changes in methods of presentation. Chapter on radio receivers has replaced chapter on direction finding. Changes in symbols and terminology which have become more standardized in the past few years. Ten pages added on radar." (Booklist) Index. For first edition see Book Review Digest 1943.

Booklist 44:317 My 15 '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:714 My 1 '48 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:77 S '48

MARCUS, ALAN. Straw to make brick. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 435p $3 Little

48-5186

Novel about the AMG in Germany, written by a young American corporal who spent almost a year with an American government detachment in rural Bavaria. The central character is a Jewish GI who hates all Germans until he falls in love with a beautiful German girl. When she fails to report a scheme of mutiny in which her brother is engaged, Mark breaks with her.

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 181:106 Mr '48 450w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p71 F 11 '48 450w

"The reader who likes a well-rounded tale, with all the situations resolved, is not going to find it here, to which Mr. Marcus could truthfully reply that many situations in life are unsolved. He writes vigorously and with a good sense of co-ordination. He has chosen a topic of interest to the American public and given it a good airing. It certainly does nothing to inflate the American ego." W. K. R.

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 F 13 '48 480w

"The tender skinned may dislike it. But the story makes its mark, and deserves to be read."

+ Kirkus 15:677 D 15 '47 250w

"A bitter novel exposing the inefficiency, brutality, and often down-right stupidity of occupation authorities, and a useful one. Recommended." Donald Wasson

+ Library J 73:198 F 1 '48 100w

"In picturing the operations of a 'landkreis,' or county detachment, the point at which conquerors and defeated have their closest contact, the author shows considerable knowledge, without, however, arriving at any new or profound conclusions. In his pro-Germans one wishes he had gone somewhat farther below the surface and balanced Mark's reactions against the varied reactions of other Jewish GIs. Mr. Marcus writes with passion and drive, but he still has something to learn about dialogue, selection and the general shaping of a story." David Davidson

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 F 8 '48 500w

Reviewed by David Dempsey
N Y Times p28 F 15 '48 500w

"A satisfactory effort, on the whole, because of its uncluttered style and its clear-cut portrayal of a few soldiers."

+ New Yorker 23:82 F 14 '48 160w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p16 F 23 '48 850w

MARCUS, ARTHUR A. The widow Gay. 215p $2 McKay

48-20695

Detective story.

Reviewed by Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribnue Wkly Bk R p10 Ag 15 '48 50w

Reviewed by Isaac Anderson
N Y Times p18 Jl 11 '48 140w

San Francisco Chronicle p25 S 12 '48 30w

"One of the toughest and most hard-boiled whodunits in a long time." D. F. M.

Springf'd Republican p15A Ag 1 '48 70w

MARCUS, WILLIAM, and LEVY, ALEX. Elements of radio servicing. 475p il $4.50; text ed $3.60 McGraw

621.384 Radio receivers 47-11697

"Elementary text on principles and practice of radio servicing for high schools covers the modern superheterodyne A-M receiver, phonograph combination service problems, and auto-radio. Although assuming an elementary knowledge of radio, authors present applicable theory where it clarifies a service procedure. Schematic diagrams of modern receivers. 375 illustrations." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 44:308 My 15 '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 72:1378 O 1 '47 60w

N Y New Tech Bks 32:81 O '47

MAREK, GEORGE RICHARD. Front seat at the opera. 307p $4 Allen, Towne & Heath

782 Opera 48-9376

"[The author] has been writing cheerful little essays on various aspects of opera—music, composers, librettists, singers, theatres, conductors, audiences—since 1942. The objective of these articles, as in the case of most program notes, is to be either revealing about the work in hand or stimulating about the subject in general. . . His new book is largely a collection of these essays. The connecting tissue is the opera." N Y Times

Booklist 45:154 Ja 1 '49

"Literate and amusing for both musician and layman." George Hanson

+ Library J 74:128 Ja 15 '49 100w

"Write down 'A Front Seat at the Opera' as the conversation of an intelligent and well informed man who, being human, is not always at his best, but who really loves what he is discussing. Much of the time he is content with chitchat. Occasionally, however, he says something that has the unmistakable ring of first-rate criticism." Herbert Weinstock

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p24 D 5 '48 270w

"Mr. Marek is fond of opera and values its virtues highly enough to take its failing in stride. He has a capacity for transmitting his enthusiasm to the reader. One can imagine that some customers of the Metropolitan, who may be there because they were trapped into going, may be stirred by Mr. Marek's essays

MAREK, G. R.—Continued
to paying some attention to what occurs in the pit and on the stage. One is certain that Mr. Marek's articles amuse and interest a good many of the patrons who like opera. In short, his program notes are useful." Howard Taubman
+ N Y Times p22 N 21 '48 700w

Reviewed by Roland Gelatt
+ Sat R of Lit 32:62 Ja 29 '49 110w

"A variety of opera-lore retold entertainingly. . . As a book to be read at random it provides pleasant informative reading." V. P.
+ Springf'd Republican p9B N 28 '48 180w

MARESCA, JAMES V. My flag is down: the diary of a New York taxi driver. 188p $2.50 Dutton

818 New York (city)—Social life and customs 48-6187

In his own vernacular, a New York taxi driver tells about his passengers.

Kirkus 16:43 Ja 15 '48 150w

Reviewed by H. W. Hart
Library J 73:332 F 15 '48 70w

"For those who like their anecdotes strong, straight and without chasers, Mr. Maresca's book should be entertaining. If, however, the reader wants meat on his characters and artistry in the narration, 'My Flag Is Down,' does not get past that first quarter mile. It is the sort of book a clever newspaper feature writer would assemble if confronted with a mass of anecdotes and an early deadline." Murray Schumach
— + N Y Times p13 My 9 '48 400w

" 'My Flag Is Down' is written in the words of an articulate if uneducated man. It will displease the purists. It will shock the squeamish; it is not intended for your children nor your Aunt Fannetta. It is, in large measure, a slice of the seamy side of life; but it will answer your question of what a cab driver thinks of the other guy." W. R. White
San Francisco Chronicle p12 Ap 4 '48 500w

"Toward the end of the book, Maresca's preoccupation with trollops, pro, semi-pro, and amateur, gets a little stultifying, but, in general, his cool and healthy matter-of-factness saves him from anything like pruriency. . . He comes one beautiful cropper. At the end, the 'wacky waitress' who provides such tenuous continuity as there is, gets into the taxi and remarks that it's her first cab ride. . . Trouble is that way back on page forty-two the waitress enters his life when she hails his cab and is driven to her place of business on 23rd Street. Never mind, it's a darned good book." Jack Iams
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:11 My 22 '48 750w

Springf'd Republican p10B Ap 11 '48 240w

MARGOLIUS, SIDNEY. How to buy more for your money: il. by Harry Kane. 128p pa $1.50 Doubleday

647.1 Buying 47-31083

"How to take advantage of sales, in all fields, is worked out to a science, with a calendar charting the type, frequency and percentage of savings. The advantages of chain stores (and their disadvantages), how to gauge quality in all types of purchases (this includes insurance, installment buying, and borrowing money). Other kinds of thrift—the proper care of clothes, appliances, etc. are explicitly described. Store and brand names are used throughout the book and the principles of wise buying are general enough to be used anywhere in the country, for only about half the specific information concerns New York City stores. This boon to the buying public has also a bibliography of specialized pamphlets ($.10 each) and where to get them." (Kirkus) The author is shopping news editor of PM.

"A handbook of infinite value, mainly to housewives. . . In these days of income and merchandising readjustment, this certainly ought to have quite a market."
+ Kirkus 15:384 Jl 15 '47 160w

"Although Margolius' knowledge of merchandising was gained over a number of years, the examples in his book are drawn from sales phenomena occurring as late as the summer of 1947. This immediacy, together with the specific name-telling presentation, makes the book a valuable shopping aid." James Nelson
+ N Y Times p12 O 26 '47 850w

MARIE-JEANNE. See Pelus, M. J.

MARIN, JOSEPH. Strength of materials. 464p il $4.75 Macmillan

620.11 Strength of materials 48-6192

"This elementary text on stress analysis for engineering students deals with the behavior of structural members under varying conditions of strain and stress. It describes the methods used to ascertain the extent of stress imposed, and to determine the dimensions of the member required to meet a given load. Although the theory of the subject is emphasized, it is closely integrated with discussions of practical problems in design. Illustrative problems and review exercises are included in each chapter." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:820 My 15 '48 40w

"The drawings and diagrams, in fact the whole format of the book, are exceptionally good."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 33:27 Ja '48

MARION, FRANCES. Westward the dream. 312p $3 Doubleday

48-7151

Novel of life in southern California during the years 1875 to 1914. The central character is John Markham, who took his gently bred young wife from Iowa to California, against his mother's advice. After his wife's death John stayed on in his new land, and made a new life for himself.

"For all its historical superabundance, its evident craftsmanship, it still offers a plausible, attentive panorama of dramatic family-cum-California tale-telling."
+ Kirkus 16:177 Ap 1 '48 150w

"Interesting, but not too important. Will be enjoyed by lovers of the old west." L. R. Etzkorn
Library J 73:878 Je 1 '48 110w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p15 Je 13 '48 180w

"On the whole, 'Westward the Dream' reminds me very much of those bicycles a certain German industrialist was reported to be manufacturing in Argentina during the war. The strangest thing about those bicycles, more than one commentator remarked, was that no matter which way you put them together they always turned out to be machine guns. No matter which way you put Miss Marion's novel together it turns out to be a prefabricated movie script." Edwin Seaver
— Sat R of Lit 31:25 Je 26 '48 380w

MARION, GEORGE. Bases and empire; a chart of American expansion. 199p $3; pa $2 Fairplay pubs, 25 W. 44th st, N.Y. 18

327.73 U.S.—Territorial expansion. U.S.—Foreign policy 48-2053

"An American Marxist attacks as imperialism the U.S. policy of extending its economic and political influence and control and ascribes it to the behind-the-scenes power of self-interested financial and industrial leaders. He deplores the double standard by which Russia's expansion is denounced by the U.S. while U.S. expansion is rationalized as protection of other peoples. . . No index." Booklist

"This book is an unabashed Marxist description and interpretation of the growth of an alleged American Empire, with special stress on the acquisition of military, naval, and air bases since 1941 as the foundation for building, consolidating and protecting American global power. . . If, as alleged, leading American dailies have refused advertising space to this book, it is further evidence of the recognition that it packs considerable dynamite. In case the book is misleading, then the desirable procedure is not to attempt to suppress or obscure its allegations, but to bring them out in the open and answer them." H. E. Barnes

Ann Am Acad 260:217 N '48 440w

Booklist 44:376 Jl 15 '48

"Like all Communists, as long as they are not in power, Mr. Marion believes that he is being persecuted, that speech is not really free in this country and that this book could find no commercial publisher because of its subject. But he himself states that his central argument has been put forward by Mr. Wallace and many others, whose books are brought out by commercial publishers, and he ends on a note of optimism." Hans Kohn
N Y Times p18 Je 13 '48 270w

MARITAIN, JACQUES. The person and the common good; tr. by John J. Fitzgerald. 98p $2 Scribner

126 Man. Ethics 47-12213

"The purpose of this book, stated in the introduction, is 'to make clear the personalism rooted in the doctrine of St. Thomas and to separate . . . a social philosophy centered in the dignity of the human person from every social philosophy centered in the primacy of the individual and the private good.' One wants to know what rights the citizen has against the state, and what rights the state has over the citizen." (N Y Times) Index.

Reviewed by J. I. Daniel
Churchman 162:18 F 1 '48 270w

"One might argue the emphasis here and there in the final chapter, but one is grateful for a precise and careful re-consideration of those perennial truths of which, as the author insists, contemporary thought stands in particular need." Edward Littlejohn
+ Commonweal 47:330 Ja 9 '48 330w

"M. Maritain reaches good conclusions from unsatisfactory premises, while insisting that only from these premises can the conclusions be reached. Whereupon he levels his attacks on liberal Protestantism and converts an apologetic into a polemic argument. Herein lies the subtlety of his Roman Catholic propaganda, which explains why a writer of such apparently irenic temper could have written the virulently sarcastic Three Reformers." E. E. Aubrey
+ — Crozer Q 25:167 Ap '48 950w

J Philos 45:583 O 7 '48 650w

"Supplementing much else that the great French philosopher has written, this meaty little book is a primer of principle which ought to be read and read again in this hour of momentous decision. We must know what it is we are defending when we strive to uphold democracy." G. N. Shuster
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p13 D 14 '47 850w

"The philosophic analysis or argument in this book is in itself hard reading. It must be studied and re-read, and even then an education in Thomistic philosophy would be needed to prevent some paragraphs from seeming to approach jargon." Philip Burnham
N Y Times p23 Ja 4 '48 850w

Reviewed by Asher Brynes
Sat R of Lit 30:13 D 13 '47 230w

MARITAIN, JACQUES, and COCTEAU, JEAN. Art and faith; letters [tr. by John Coleman]. 138p $2.75 Philosophical lib.

B or 92 Roman Catholic church—Converts 48-6423

This exchange of letters between the well-known French philosopher, and the poet Jean Cocteau, reconstructs the process of the latter's conversion to Roman Catholicism, and includes Maritain's discussion of that conversion and a study of the relationship between art (especially poetry) and the Roman Catholic faith. Index.

Reviewed by Paul Dinkins
Cath World 168:91 O '48 500w

Reviewed by J. F. Powers
Commonweal 48:102 My 14 '48 2750w

"This book is limited in its appeal to the followers of Jacques Maritain and other modern Theorists." H. R. Forbes
Library J 73:649 Ap 15 '48 90w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
New Repub 119:26 Jl 12 '48 850w

"Art (painted, written, scored) and Faith (discovered, rediscovered) are joined in these charming letters. Here the talk is pleasant, witty, knowing; the book, an open-house of ideas, enhanced by the visits of such personalities as Bloy, Stravinsky, Picasso and Claudel, popping up from time to time with something bright and fresh of their own to add to the conversation." E. G. Gallagher
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ag 8 '48 310w

Reviewed by W. H. Auden
N Y Times p6 My 2 '48 950w

"At one point the translator throws up his hands and confesses his inability to make English sense out of Cocteau's French puns and 'smart-aleck' constructions. The last half of the book, by philosopher Maritain, is more decipherable, and after reading his mature comments one can return to the poet's section and understand it better. . . There is little structure to this book, being, in the nature of the case, rambling observations on the fine arts—including the fine art of living—by two exceedingly keen minds, one very clever, the other very wise." H. H. Wagner
Springf'd Republican p15A Jl 25 '48 240w

MARKS, ROBERT W. Story of hypnotism. 248p $3 Prentice-Hall

134 Hypnotism 47-11798

"This book proposes to survey some forms of human behavior in the light of what is known of hypnotism and trance states, and to attempt to apply to them a degree of measurement and predictability. Toward this end, part of the approach is historical, considering some of the major types of mental epidemics of the last two thousand years and the spread of systematized hypnotism. Other sections have been devoted to an investigation of the physical nature of hypnotism and to the notion that many aspects of faith healing, visions, hallucinations, and other seemingly supernatural occurrences can be explained in terms of ordinary hypnotic states." (Foreword) Selected bibliography. Index.

"Marks writes with considerable breeziness and gusto. His brief synthetic case histories probably convey more about hypnosis than some of the ponderous, actual ones in other books. He has the knack of summing up scientific theories briefly and understandably. . . However, the jump from the often-repeated story of the classical hypnotists to the equally often-repeated story of Freud's experience with hypnosis is too abrupt." Frederic Wertham
+ — N Y Times p20 Ag 1 '48 330w

" 'The Story of Hypnotism' is instructive and entertaining while at the same time giving a timely warning for an age of propaganda campaigns and mass exposure to the powers of suggestion. . . Some of the conclusions drawn regarding the dangers of 'social hypnosis,' however, seem overdrawn." E. A. F.
+ — Springf'd Republican p10B Ja 11 '48 420w

MARRIOTT, ALICE LEE. Indians on horseback; drawings by Margaret Lefranc. 136p $2.50 Crowell

970.4 Indians of North America—Juvenile literature 48-8606

The story of the Plains Indians: their history; customs; beliefs; and a chapter on their cook-

MARRIOTT, A. L.—Continued
ing, and one on the lives of these people today. For grades four to eight. Bibliography for illustrations. Index.

Booklist 45:92 N 1 '48

"The chapters on how to make things are fascinating; the Indian cookbook almost tempts you into trying to cook buffalo." M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun O 23 '48 90w

"Alice Marriott is a trained ethnologist, and this factual book is as authentic as it is interesting for the middle age group." A. M. Jordan
+ Horn Bk 25:42 Ja '49 80w

"Indian material appeals to lower age level, perhaps more than the early teens, but this is more scholarly in background, and should bracket this junior high school level for classroom libraries and supplementary reading lists."
+ Kirkus 16:402 Ag 15 '48 60w

"Recommended for grades 4-8" Elizabeth Burr
+ Library J 74:66 Ja 1 '49 70w

"The excellent pictures show details of usages so clearly that boys at home as well as in school projects could start making all sorts of Indian things. . . Most important is the last brief chapter with its fine attitude toward these Indians today, with the proud record of what they did in the war." L. S. Bechtel
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ja 30 '49 150w

New Yorker 24:142 D 11 '48 100w

"An admirable, authentic account. . . The author, an experienced ethnologist who has lived with descendants of the original inhabitants of this area writes about her subject with sympathetic understanding. . . Readers of this book cannot help but obtain new insight into the character and history of these 'first Americans' as well as a vivid impression of the life of the Plains Indians." W. G. Tyrrell
+ Sat R of Lit 31:34 N 13 '48 140w

MARRIOTT, ALICE LEE. María: the potter of San Ildefonso; with drawings by Margaret Lefranc. (Civilization of the American Indian) 249p $3.75 Univ. of Okla. press

970.2 Martínez, Maria Montoya. Indians of North America—Pottery

The life story of Maria Martinez, the Pueblo Indian woman whose black pottery, painted by her husband, had made her famous thruout the United States and abroad. Bibliography.

"Miss Marriott has adhered rigidly to the conditions which assured her welcome in the pueblo. All the more remarkable is it that such a clear but subtly shaded picture has emerged. Interested readers can get María's background from other works, from government records and from the public ceremonies in church and plaza. Here they will find in unrelieved simplicity the story of a loved and peaceful childhood and of the steadfast and industrious maturity for which it was the preparation." Ruth Underhill
+ Am Anthropol 50:669 O '48 1000w

Booklist 44:334 Je 1 '48

"Curiously arresting, simply told story. . . Added features: Margaret Lefranc's accurate drawings of bowls and designs, and appealing sketches of pottery-making and of life at the pueblo. . . Hard to classify but highly recommended." A. C. Plaut
+ Library J 73:1029 Jl '48 80w

"In this book Maria lives as a woman, a noble woman, calm and finely tempered in herself and firmly integrated as one of an integrated society. Her book is refreshing and healing for us to read, especially now when we see our own society so sadly shattered by the results of our own cleverness. It is healing to see how people can live unquestioningly, knowing that each individual must make his contribution to the goodness of the whole." Erna Fergusson
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Jl 4 '48 950w

"Perhaps the most interesting portion of the book is that in which it becomes clearer and clearer that in finding an economic way out for herself and her family, Marie found such a way for her whole village as well. . . This, however, is a student's reason for reading the book, and what I want to make plain is that there is every reason as well for the general reader's enjoying it enormously. . . It should be noted that Margaret Lefranc's drawings of pottery and her other decorations embellish marvelously well a book which is beautifully designed and executed from start to finish, as books from this particular press have always been." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 Jl 5 '48 1000w

"This authentic and sensitive story of a Pueblo Indian woman, conspicuous and superior in personality, outstanding in native talent and capacity, is sure to attract many white readers, some of whom will supply further background and biographical and historical detail from their own knowledge. . . The book adds much that is human and subjective to the history of the black pottery discoveries. It is beautifully illustrated with pottery types and designs though the matte black disappoints one by appearing in a white disguise." E. S. Sergeant
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:10 Jl 24 '48 650w

Wis Lib Bul 44:148 S '48

MARSH, IRVING T., and EHRE, EDWARD, eds. Best sports stories, 1948. (V4) 336p $3 Dutton

796 Sports (45-35124)

"A panorama of the 1947 sports year; a sports record book including the year's headlines day by day, the review of the sports year, including the 1947 champions in all sports; with twenty of the year's best sports pictures." Subtitle

"A splendid selection of sports stories many of which will read well next year or the years after."
+ Kirkus 16:165 Mr 15 '48 110w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 73:711 My 1 '48 20w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Jl 25 '48 230w

"'The quicker they start, the quicker they quit' is an old saying around race tracks, and it is with sorrow that I must report that this anthology runs true to that saw. The fine beginning is followed by a long series of fair-to-good pot-boilers, round-up pieces." D. M. Mankiewicz
+ — N Y Times p25 Je 13 '48 550w

MARSHAK, SAMUIL IAKOLEVICH. Postman; il. by Lloyd McKean [tr. by Margaret Wetlin]. [23p] $1.25 Shady Hill press

48-9352

Adaptation of a Russian story, told in verse, of the special delivery letter that followed McCall from Chicago to Paris to London to Rio de Janeiro and finally back to Chicago. For ages 4-7.

Booklist 45:109 N 15 '48

"The format, picture book shape, and sprawly bright pictures seem younger than the details of the text and the rhymed form."
Kirkus 16:525 O 1 '48 80w

"Recommended." M. M. Smith
+ Library J 73:1673 N 15 '48 80w

"'The Postman' falls into the instructive category, and the eager-to-learn 5's to 8's will find the subject fascinating. Although the author's rhythmic style is sometimes distracting, the story is fast moving and the illustrations aptly convey the action. The names of far-off strange places are logically introduced and will arouse the imagination of the curious-minded." L. G.
+ — N Y Times p60 N 14 '48 150w

Springf'd Republican p12C D 12 '48 60w

MARSHALL, DEAN. Invisible island; il. by Christine Price. 191p $2.50 Dutton 48-4788

The three younger Guthrie children were playing shipwreck on a rainy afternoon in a New York apartment. Two particularly heavy objects dropped on the floor brought the man from downstairs to their door. He was a very understanding man, and in a few days he had found the Guthries a home in Connecticut. That was the beginning of a wonderful summer for the children.

Booklist 45:92 N 1 '48

"The author seems to know the things which are important to children." M. B. King
+ Chicago Sun O 23 '48 110w

Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '48

"A good story with lively pictures and will be read and enjoyed by many children from nine to eleven." J. D. L.
+ Horn Bk 24:464 N '48 60w

"Some of the things they accomplish with a bit too much facility, such as building a stone house with ease and speed, but they have plenty of credible adventures, and make new friends. Christine Price's line drawings don't live up to the text, which is definitely superior."
+ — Kirkus 16:528 O 1 '48 90w

"The attempt to create a touch of mystery at the end, and the introduction, also at the end, of two rather incredible neighbor children weaken the story a little. On the whole, however, it is a satisfactory picture of out-of-door summer fun, and boys and girls will undoubtedly enjoy reading it." V. H. M.
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 N 14 '48 230w

"A delightful story." Phyllis Fenner
+ N Y Times p3 N 14 '48 80w

"The story emphasizes the theme of family solidarity, and the book has all the right ingredients for imaginative children."
+ New Yorker 24:134 D 11 '48 110w

Sat R of Lit 31:29 N 13 '48 70w

Springf'd Republican p7B O 3 '48 150w

Wis Lib Bul 44:215 D '48

MARSHALL, EDISON. Castle in the swamp; a tale of old Carolina. 378p $3 Farrar, Straus 48-8887

Tale of horror, of fratricide, hatred, lust, and brutality. The scene is a South Carolina plantation; the time, the 1840's.

Reviewed by H. T. Kane
Chicago Sun p58 N 17 '48 250w

"A swift and often fascinating horror tale."
+ Kirkus 16:413 Ag 15 '48 180w

"Relationships are so confused that the story is not easy to follow. It is not Edison Marshall at the top of his form."
— N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p38 N 14 '48 180w

"Mr. Marshall knows his business, but there are times when he seems to know too much, when the stage becomes positively jammed with giant blacks, lame violinists, sadistic half-brothers, and enough Spanish moss to smother the whole lot of them. Yet read as a detective story, it's a genuinely sinister yarn, and the central figure is nicely handled." H. B. Parker
+ — N Y Times p12 O 24 '48 100w

MARSHALL, SAMUEL LYMAN ATWOOD. Men against fire; the problem of battle command in future war. 215p $2.75 Infantry journal

355.331 Military art and science 47-30724

"Making use of the case histories of junior officers and enlisted men fresh from combat, this book is concerned primarily with minor tactics of the ground force. Colonel Marshall refuses to believe that the atomic bomb negates all previously held maxims. On the contrary, he asserts that a local superiority of front line rifle power is essential if the advantages of push-button and mechanized warfare are to be exploited." (U S Quarterly Bkl) Index.

Foreign Affairs 26:738 Jl '48 10w

Kirkus 15:355 Jl 1 '47 190w

"'Men Against Fire' is a startling book for it is the first to attempt an understanding not of generals who talk glibly of throwing a division or corps into battle but of the anonymous private who actually does the fighting—and only too often doesn't do it." P. J. Searles
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p23 O 19 '47 550w

"This compact volume is well indexed and makes a substantial contribution to military thinking, but it requires close and careful reading."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:110 Mr '48 260w

MARTIN, BURTON EDWARDS. Unpromised land. 400p $3.50 Washburn
48-5714

Novel based on life in a displaced persons' camp in southern Italy. Unable to return to their homelands, unwanted, and often in despair, the refugees nevertheless strive for a bit of hope. The American Kommandant is on the side of the gentle inmates of the camp, but he finds his very life threatened by the group of black marketeers. How the enemies of reconstruction are defeated makes the story.

Booklist 44:382 Jl 15 '48

"While there are moments of drama, bits of vigorous writing, emotional currents, the book as a whole seems more like a play, with characters seen only against a backdrop, not realized in the entirety of their inner conflicts. Perhaps it is for this reason that the appeal seems more to the head than to the heart."
Kirkus 16:4 Ja 1 '48 270w

"Recommended." A. J. Gaines
+ Library J 73:337 F 15 '48 110w

"It should have made an exciting and moving book. But Mr. Martin sees things with too great a naivete and presents them too simply to be convincing. Most important, he has not given his story the color which should be a warm part of any book about so many nationalities rich in tradition."
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ap 4 '48 380w

"The book is a genuinely effective panorama of mass despair, but it succeeds only moderately as an integrated story, mainly because the author fulfills his dramatic obligations, which involve the delineation of a struggle between a sympathetic American U.N.R.R.A. officer and a particularly restive group of his polyglot charges, in a rather desultory manner."
New Yorker 24:86 Mr 27 '48 120w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ag 15 '48 150w

MARTIN, CHARLES M. Once a cowboy; il. by Wesley Dennis. 191p $2 Viking 48-8352

Story for boys about a spoiled rich man's son whose whole character is changed by a stay on a California dude ranch.

"Rattling good Western story." H. F. Griswold
+ Christian Science Monitor p13 O 14 '48 200w

Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 24:459 N '48 120w

"Martin knows his background, for the material in this book is based on an actual California ranch for boys. But he falls down on fundamentals in making credible plot or central character."
— + Kirkus 16:401 Ag 15 '48 120w

"Based on fact. Will be enjoyed by boys up to twelve or thirteen." E. E. Frank
+ Library J 73:1521 O 15 '48 60w

Reviewed by Marjorie Burger
N Y Times p28 Ja 30 '49 170w

MARTIN, C. M.—Continued

"The conversation—there is a lot of it—is racy and natural, most of the episodes are convincing, and the development of Randy's character proceeds without a hitch from the very first chapter. The picture of cattle raising is misleading, inasmuch as it is shown to be a sort of carefree holiday guaranteed to pay fifteen per cent on the investment. Optimism is desirable, but too much of it gives a feeling of unreality." M. P. A.

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:27 N 13 '48 230w

MARTIN, DAVID, ed. Catholic library practice. 244p $2.25 Univ. of Portland press, Portland 3, Ore.

020 Library science

"Discussions primarily for Catholic libraries in elementary schools, colleges, and seminaries on phases of librarianship susceptible to either Catholic or non-Catholic emphasis or interpretation, such as book selection, administration, subject headings, education for librarianship, and censorship. Some chapters, such as that on adult education, may be useful to public libraries serving large Catholic communities." Booklist

Booklist 44:45 O 1 '47

"Each chapter has a well-selected bibliographical appendix. While the symposium has three outstanding sections (on the secondary school and seminary libraries, and on subject headings), there are also noticeable gaps, e.g., the paucity of material on colleges, universities and special libraries, such as the Daprato Library of Ecclesiastical Art, the Central Verein, and the Catholic Unity League Library, and on classification. Thus, while Catholic Library Practice is informative, the coverage is by no means definitive." E. P. Willging

+ — Library J 73:117 Ja 15 '48 650w

"An accolade is due Brother David for this splendid accomplishment. Every Catholic librarian should read the articles with care and heart-searching, and others who are interested in American librarianship will find many rewarding articles." R. J. Hurley

+ Library Q 18:153 Ap '48 1000w

MARTIN, DOROTHY LOUISA. Munya, the lion; decorations by Joan Kiddell-Monroe. 48p $2 Oxford

Lions—Legends and stories 47-29264

The life of a lion from his birth until the time when he found a mate and became the father of three little cubs.

Commonweal 49:147 N 19 '48 70w

Kirkus 16:86 F 15 '48 120w

"Recommended for fourth and fifth grades." M. A. Webb

+ Library J 73:485 Mr 15 '48 70w

"This story of a lion cub from the hour he opens his eyes on the world to that in which he brings home food for his own cubling has the excellent quality of making him friendly and familiar without making him human." M. L. Becker

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 My 9 '48 270w

"An intelligent, understanding story of wild life on the Game Preserve in South Africa." Lois Palmer

+ N Y Times p31 Mr 7 '48 170w

MARTIN, HERBERT. Inquiring mind; introductory philosophic studies. 280p $2.75 Barnes & Noble

100 Philosophy 47-6595

"Introductory philosophic studies in which the main themes of philosophy are presented as they appear in the actual experience of the student." School & Society

"The author writes in a simple, straightforward style, ignoring the professional jargon that has heretofore discouraged many a willing beginner. His treatment is on the familiar topical basis, thought not wholly orthodox. He wastes no more time than necessary on metaphysics, then proceeds to deal with man as a physical, intellectual and ethical personality; rather than with the problem of human values on the planes of morality. . . The result is not only a book of sound scholarship, but an eminently readable one." Louis Wasserman

+ San Francisco Chronicle p15 Mr 14 '48 400w

School & Society 66:351 N 1 '47 30w

MARTIN, RALPH G. Best is none too good. 297p $3.50 Farrar, Straus

973.918 Veterans. U.S.—Social life and customs 48-5563

Records the findings of a young American newspaperman who went about trying to discover what happened to veterans who returned from World war II. In a note he says: "This book isn't the final word. There are no statistics, no conclusions. I wondered what had happened to the men and women who had come home, and this is what I found. These are my impressions, these are the people I talked to. If there's a message in the book, you find it."

Booklist 44:263 Ap 1 '48

"Some of his essays, most of which appeared originally in the New Republic, on which he is a staff member, have the quiet power of a deep stream. His short piece on the home-coming of Ben Kuroki . . . could profitably be read by some of our flag-waving super-Americans. Or would it make any difference, I wonder?" Frank Smith

+ Chicago Sun Mr 24 '48 450w

"This book will not be widely read, nor, in all probability, greeted with huzzahs. It is one man's point of view, not, one would hope, the average veteran's belief. But the awful failures, here recorded, must not be denied even if they are exaggerated. One is sure that this book is good for the soul, but not one that is pleasant to the apathetic spirit." R. B.

+ — Christian Science Monitor p14 Mr 3 '48 480w

"Let the squeamish beware of this one for no detail of battle horror is spared. But for those who can face facts, and are in sympathy with a desire to make order out of post-war chaos, Martin has written a series of hard-hitting sketches about the current life scene that will prove most appealing, until constant repetition of effect becomes monotonous. . . There's too much sameness, and even though forceful, the book tends to lose its punch. But many veterans will read it with recognition of its authenticity and perhaps it will make some dent on the public."

— + Kirkus 15:668 D 1 '47 210w

Reviewed by A. B. Lindsay

Library J 73:332 F 15 '48 100w

Reviewed by Herbert Kupferberg

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Je 13 '48 260w

"This is a book that Ernie Pyle might have written if he had lived. It lacks Ernie's elder brother sort of wisdom, but it contains a lot of groping beneath the surface of things that Ernie missed. Mr Martin has a gift for catching the mood of a situation in the simplest, idiomatic manner." David Dempsey

+ N Y Times p3 F 22 '48 550w

MARTIN, SYLVIA (MRS LAWRENCE MARTIN). You meet them in Mexico; phot. by Samuel Epstein. 204p $3.75 Rutgers univ. press

917.2 Mexico—Social life and customs. National characteristics, Mexican 48-6480

Studies of Mexican people of today, together with photographs. The sketches are of the housemaid, gardener, tortilla maker, public scribe, nurse, musicians, teachers, and others whom the author knew while living in Cuernavaca, or traveling about Mexico.

Booklist 44:311 My 15 '48

Reviewed by Barbara Eddy
Chicago Sun p9X My 23 '48 330w

"While Miss Martin is very simpatico, she is a good reporter. Her character studies are as honest and objective as the fine photographs by Samuel Epstein that illustrate her sketches. 'You Meet Them in Mexico' is excellent reading for stay-at-homes, required reading for complacent southbound tourists." P. J. C. Friedlander
+ N Y Times p18 Ag 1 '48 320w

"If you want the kind of book that is deliberately 'picturesque' perhaps this isn't what you are looking for. Mr. Epstein isn't that kind of photographer. . . What Epstein and Mrs. Martin were after was simple, natural pictures of people. And that is what they got and what they give you here." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle Ap 19 '48 550w

MARTYNOV, IVAN I. Shostakovich, the man and his work; tr. from the Russian by T. Guralsky. 197p $3.75 Philosophical lib.
780.92 Shostakovich, Dmitri Dmitrievich A48-6373

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"If one leaves Shostakovich and tries to judge the book as criticism, further difficulties appear. Whatever it may have been like in Russian I do not know, but it can never have been well written. Absurd generalizations and windy abstractions clutter up every page. One reads of 'the sacred truths of art,' 'the great pattern of human suffering,' 'the organic unity of form,' 'the vital comprehension of realities,' and innumerable inherent principles, fundamental laws, and basic elements. Mr. Martynov makes it quite clear that he dislikes soulless abstractions in music; one wishes that his dislike had extended into literature as well." Milton Wilson
— Canadian Forum 27:261 F '48 700w

"This recent volume on Shostakovich can be classified as the most inclusive and up-to-date description of the composer's important works and stylistic characteristics available in English. The author, a frequent and versatile contributor to the foremost Soviet music periodical, Sovetskaya Muzyka, interweaves incidents of Shostakovich's personal history with an analysis of his creative development. . . The book suffers from an excess of descriptive eloquence sometimes used to the point of adjectival saturation. No musical examples are given to illustrate the copious narration. One becomes impatient, also, with the writer's insistence upon explaining creative motivation. A comparison with the original Russian edition shows extensive stylistic revisions by the translator, who, on the whole, performed a miracle by rendering into easily-read English the involved literary style of the original." V. A. Ussachevsky
+ — Music Lib Assn Notes 5:108 D '47 400w
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p33 N 21 '48 140w
— Theatre Arts 32:83 F '48 20w

MARVEL, TOM. The new Congo. 395p il maps $5 Duell
916.75 Kongo, Belgian 48-7659

Survey of the Belgian Congo. Beginning with two chapters on its history, the author goes on to discuss the important present-day aspects of the country: the rubber plantations; the coffee industry; the silkworm developments; the model towns around the copper and diamond mines; the railroads; river-boat trips, etc. Bibliography. Maps on end papers. Index.

Booklist 44:380 Jl 15 '48

Reviewed by Ned Munger
Chicago Sun p9X Ag 15 '48 240w
Current Hist 15:226 O '48 50w
Kirkus 16:226 My 1 '48 160w

"A highly readable and informative book; the best we have in English on the subject." G. W. Wakefield
+ Library J 73:877 Je 1 '48 140w

"It is time that the Congo story should be told in this country, as Tom Marvel has done it. 'The New Congo' is a brief history of the Congo, a digest of its industrial progress, a statement of its native policy. That the book smacks slightly of the inspired guidebook and lacks perspective on the evolution of race relations in other parts of Africa may be forgiven for the sake of the wealth of information brought together." M. C. Hubbard
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ag 8 '48 550w

"To the best of my knowledge, it is the first and only book that really does justice to that fabulous colony of quaking jungles and smoking furnaces." John Barkham
+ N Y Times p5 Ag 8 '48 500w

"A well-rounded but indifferently written study."
+ — New Yorker 24:70 Jl 10 '48 120w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Jl 22 '48 650w

MASEFIELD, JOHN. Play of St George. 53p $2 Macmillan
822 George, Saint—Drama 48-8828

A play in blank verse about the martyrdom of St George, England's patron saint. The setting is Lydda in Palestine; the time about the year 300.

"Though a certain amount of the poetry and dramatic excellence of Masefield still shine forth, this is mostly a disappointing play. It is recommended to drama and poetry collections which seek completeness." George Freedley
+ — Library J 73:1821 D 15 '48 40w

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries
— Nation 167:731 D 25 '48 50w

"[Masefield's] new verse play, written largely in end-stopped lines with a certain pallid emphasis, has little distinction in either style or subject-matter. . . The performance is not unskillful, but on the other hand there is no sign here of anything more than routine competence." David Daiches
— + N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 Ja 30 '49 110w

"This is a short play and could have a measure of successful reading in its limited sphere. There is an absorbing simplicity in the lines even if they fall short of magnificence. Mr. Masefield has written with sincerity; and the despair of Lydda, the cruelty of the amoral conqueror, the cynicism of the worldly and the high resolve of the faithful are clearly felt." Lewis Funke
+ N Y Times p9 D 19 '48 370w

MASON, CLYDE WALTER. Introductory physical metallurgy; a series of lectures presented to members of the ASM during the Twenty-ninth national metal congress and exposition, Chicago, October 18 to 24, 1947. 134p il $3 Am. soc. for metals
669 Metallography. Alloys 48-5463

Eight lectures forming an introduction to physical metallurgy. "Beginning with the reduction of ores, the text of the lectures discusses the crystalline nature of metals; solid solution, eutectic and precipitation-hardening alloys, intermetallic compounds; working annealing, and heat treatment; nonferrous and ferrous metals; and the corrosion of metals." (U S Quarterly Bkl)

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:203 F 1 '48 40w

"These lectures are unusually successful in presenting an introduction to physical metallurgy in readily understandable form."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:111 Mr '48 70w

MASON, DANIEL GREGORY. Quartets of Beethoven. 294p $4.75 Oxford
785.74 Beethoven, Ludwig van—Quartets 47-31177

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"Mr. Mason, a scholarly musician and a skillful analyst, here provides a textual commentary, less free and flowing than Marliave's standard book on the same music but more detailed and probably more accurate in its analysis. . . The commentator expresses a good many subjective judgments which do not check with this amateur's response to the music. . . But in general the author's appreciation is as keen as his analysis, and his commentary is helpful at every point." W. E. G.

MASON, D. G.—Continued
+ — Christian Century 65:111 Ja 28 '48 420w

"What will immediately impress the sensitive reader is the seasoned and digested character of Mason's new book. Unlike so many, it is not a compendium of notes copied from 3-by-5 cards; rather, it reflects constantly the author's lifetime experience with the quartets. . . The book makes no contributions to factual knowledge of Beethoven's life or music nor can it be called 'definitive' in any sense. It is, however, a book that should be welcomed; it is certainly the best general treatment of the quartets now available, and it is very well printed and edited." C. W. Fox
+ Music Lib Assn Notes 5:226 Mr '48 550w

"The author of the present study is a practised writer and critic, who, if he has no great or original profundities of thought to express, knows his Beethoven, has read what previous commentators have said and can make even analysis, surely the most intractable of all the materials of musical criticism, tolerably readable. . . The book is very useful to amateurs but not so stimulating to more advanced students of Beethoven."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p612 O 30 '48 390w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:8 Mr '48 240w

MASON, FRANCIS VAN WYCK. See Mason, V.

MASON, GEORGE FREDERICK. Animal sounds [il. by the author]. 96p $2 Morrow
591.59 Sound production by animals 48-7835

The third book of nature study, following the author-naturalist's Animal Tracks (Book Review Digest 1943) and Animal Homes (Book Review Digest 1947). This book explains, with diagrams and pictures, the sounds that some animals, birds, and insects make. Index.

"The slim appearance of this book and its large type face would imply a very young grouping, whereas the material is of interest, and that doubtful, only to older brackets. The author has attempted to do with words a job that really requires phonograph records."
— Kirkus 16:367 Ag 1 '48 130w

Reviewed by L. S. Bechtel
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Ja 30 '49 110w

"Dr. Mason writes of birds and animals and insects without sentimentality or whimsey, sticking to observed facts. His facts are more fascinating than fiction. . . Nature lovers of any age will read it with pleasure and profit." N. B. Baker
+ N Y Times p45 O 24 '48 160w

"Excellent nature book."
+ New Yorker 24:140 D 11 '48 100w

Reviewed by E. H. Dexter
Springf'd Republican p12C D 5 '48 120w

MASON, MIRIAM EVANGELINE. Pony called Lightning; il. by C. W. Anderson. 143p $1.75 Macmillan 48-9570

Story of a western pony whose ambition was to race with the lightning in the sky, and win. He could easily outrun most things on two feet or four. And then one day he realized his ambition and outran the lightning for which he had been named. For ages eight to twelve.

Booklist 45:162 Ja 1 '49

"Recommended for third and fourth grades." Elizabeth Johnson
+ Library J 74:66 Ja 1 '49 60w

"How Lightning surprisingly, but quite believably, wins his race with the lightning in the sky makes an exciting climax to the story. C. W. Anderson can draw horses so real that you want to pet them; he is the perfect artist for the book." P. A. Whitney
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 D 26 '48 140w

"Miriam Mason's story of a Western pony has a full measure of those qualities so desirable in books for beginning readers: more than the average amount of substance, a brisk tempo and a simple but expressive vocabulary." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p11 D 26 '48 130w

MASON, SARA ELIZABETH. The whip. 247p $2.50 Morrow 47-12530

Detective story.

"Romantic, and by all means readable."
+ Kirkus 15:612 N 1 '47 140w

"Complete in three parts, the middle one composed by Charlotte, whose adventures in the murder mansion are pretty sure to hold your attention." Will Cuppy
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 F 29 '48 70w

"A moving narrative. . . The strategem by which Dr. Sargent and the police learn the truth is the one weak spot in an otherwise excellent novel." Isaac Anderson
+ — N Y Times p26 Ja 11 '48 170w

"Some nice, grim atmosphere touches lift the book a bit above the average."
New Yorker 23:64 Ja 3 '48 80w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ja 25 '48 70w

"One case where flash-back method of narration doesn't retard action. Nasty relatives balanced by beleaguered heroine and believable brain-prober. Interesting."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:16 Ja 10 '48 50w

Springf'd Republican p8B F 29 '48 120w

MASON, VAN WYCK. Eagle in the sky, [by] F. Van Wyck Mason. 500p $3 Lippincott 48-5212

The fourth in the author's tetralogy of American Revolutionary novels, the others being Three Harbors, Stars on the Sea, and Rivers of Glory (Book Review Digest 1938, 1940, and 1942). The time covered is 1780 to 1781. It follows the adventures of three doctors: Asa Peabody, Peter Burnham, and Lucius Devoe, and ends with Peter Burnham's winning of Sabra Stanton.

Atlantic 181:111 Mr '48 120w
Booklist 44:217 F 15 '48

"There is a bounty of good reading in this book. And with it is a description of early American medical practice which should convince anyone that modern medicine, like plumbing, is an element of civilization for which we should be enthusiastically grateful." Emmett Dedmon
+ Chicago Sun p7X F 1 '48 400w

Christian Science Monitor p14 F 6 '48 550w

"Mr. Mason leaves no historical cliché unturned, and most of his characters speak a jargon probably never heard on land or harbours, seas or rivers, but his energy and real narrative ability carry the reader along. Libraries may as well get this and the other three." E. F. Walbridge
+ — Library J 73:39 Ja 1 '48 100w

Reviewed by P. J. Searles
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 F 8 '48 500w

"An old hand at the tiller in a following wind, the author is at his best when he takes his story to sea. Fortunately, there's more than enough salt air around the corner of every chapter to blow away the museum aura that sometimes threatens to freeze the author's doctors and doxies into a diorama in the American Wing." C. V. Terry

+ N Y Times p12 Ja 25 '48 500w

New Yorker 23:67 Ja 31 '48 80w

"Exciting and rewarding reading. The Mason fans will find no reason lessening their adulation; people who read Mason for the first time in this book are certain to go back to his earlier books." W. R. White

+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 F 8 '48 500w

"Mr. Mason has used the appropriate nautical source books with some care, although the armchair mariner will be disturbed by such matters as a seeming uncertainty about the location of a sailing vessel's 'tops,' and a master's worry that a brig 'headed dead into the wind's eye' might 'be taken aback.'. . The author uses his medical researches to better effect. . . It is apparent that Mr. Mason has stirred together two books which, for him, will not mix." Alexander Laing

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:20 Ap 3 '48 850w

Wis Lib Bul 44:83 Ap '48

MASSON, LOUIS TALWIN. Chemistry made easy; ed. by Carl H. Rasch and Irma L. Hayes. 416p $1.98 Garden City pub. co.

540 Chemistry 47-11746

An introductory textbook for secondary school pupils. It presents the basic facts briefly in terms of everyday life and illustrates them with cartoon-like illustrations. An appendix includes a list of famous chemists and their contributions, a glossary, and a list of important chemicals, etc. Index.

Reviewed by Van Allen Bradley

Chicago Sun p7 N 30 '47 50w

"The book should be useful for self-instruction."

+ N Y New Tech Bks 33:5 Ja '48

MASTERSON, JAMES RAYMOND, and PHILLIPS, WENDELL BROOKS. Federal prose; how to write in and/or for Washington; drawings by Jo Thoms. 45p pa $1.25 Univ. of N.C. press

808 English language—Style 48-9415

"Tongue in cheek how-to book which soberly lampoons bureaucratic 'Gobbledegook'—or the art of bastardizing our language and/or scattering coherent English in all directions. Foundation principles to test whether the aspirant is qualified in courage, aptitude, understanding of both spirit and rules, apprehension of the essence and obedience of the issuance of Federal Prose. The above data is implemented with a substantial glossary designed to speed facility of all personnel in this field." Kirkus

Kirkus 16:615 N 15 '48 100w

Reviewed by Herschel Brickell

N Y Times p6 D 26 '48 700w

"A highly amusing little booklet. . . This is good entertainment, and the authors get the most out of it." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 N 13 '48 850w

Springf'd Republican p18A Ja 30 '49 330w

MATHEWS, BASIL JOSEPH. Booker T. Washington, educator and interracial interpreter. 350p pl $4.75 Harvard univ. press

B or 92 Washington, Booker Taliaferro 48-8652

A full length biography of the great Negro educator, based on extensive research and on personal interviews. In addition to careful evaluation of Booker Washington's achievements, the author considers the reasons why some members of his own race opposed his policies.

Booklist 45:87 N 1 '48

"Apart from Dr. Washington's autobiographical writings, this is the most illuminating biography of the great Negro educator ever published." P. H.

+ Christian Century 65:1011 S 29 '48 180w

Reviewed by M. K. Gilstrap

Christian Science Monitor p11 O 7 '48 500w

"Basil Mathews has sought out much new material, and has reconstructed a life of a great man well worth claiming the attention of the lover of biography, whether he be interested in the Negro problem or not." John Cournos

+ Commonweal 49:100 N 5 '48 230w

"A modern biography revaluating Washington's contribution has long been needed; this work admirably fills the need. Recommended for all adult libraries." G. W. Wakefield

+ Library J 73:1085 Ag '48 110w

Reviewed by Arna Bontemps

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p19 N 7 '48 850w

"Basil Mathews has written a calm, definitive biography of Washington against the background of conditions during his era. Considerable time was spent in research among documents at Tuskegee, and in talks with former students, associates, and Washington's family." B. M. Murphy

+ N Y Times p43 N 14 '48 600w

"It is high time that this book should have been written; and it is particularly fortunate that it should have been written so superbly." H. A. Overstreet

+ Sat R of Lit 31:18 N 20 '48 750w

School & Society 68:223 S 25 '48 10w

MATHEWS, WINIFRED. Dauntless women; stories of pioneer wives; decorations by Ursula H. Bostick. 170p $1.50; pa $1 Friendship press

922 Missionaries. Woman—Biography 48-1449

Seven brief biographies of women who followed their husbands as missionaries. They are: Ann Judson; Mary Moffat; Mary Livingstone; Christina Coillard; Mary Williams; Agnes Watt; Lillias Underwood.

"Winifred Mathews' thrilling little book should be required reading to all who think the missionary stodgy." T. D. Mygatt

+ Churchman 162:15 Ag '48 180w

"Written in a simple, straightforward manner. One of the sketches was tried out on a Sunday School class of thirteen-year-old girls who responded enthusiastically and wanted to hear more. I think this collection would appeal more to older teen-agers, especially those belonging to church youth organizations. It would also be useful program material for church missionary societies." E. E. Frank

+ Library J 73:400 Mr 1 '48 80w

MATHIESON, ELIZABETH LAIRD. Baby book of knitting and crochet. 287p il $2.95 World pub.

746.43 Knitting. Crocheting 48-7324

Instructions on how to knit or crochet many types of clothing, toys, rugs, and covers for infants to the age of three. Index.

Booklist 45:9 S 1 '48

"The chapter headings are somewhat coy, but they do not lessen the utility or beauty of the garments discussed." R. S. Robbins

+ N Y Times p51 D 5 '48 140w

Springf'd Republican p10B My 23 '48 30w

MATTHEW, ROBERT JOHN. Language and area studies in the armed services, their future significance; for the Comm. on implications of armed service educ. programs. 211p $2.50 Am. council on educ.

355.07 Soldiers—Education. Languages, Modern—Study and teaching

"A study of the techniques of foreign area and language instruction in the wartime college training programs. The armed services'

MATTHEW, R. J.—Continued
experience with the teaching of language and area studies stimulated widespread interest and suggested the possibility that American students in civilian schools could attain a speedier and more thorough grasp of foreign languages and, at the same time, acquire a more practical understanding of foreign peoples and their cultures. . . This report describes in detail foreign area and language instruction in the Army Specialized Training Program, the Navy Schools of Military Goverment and Administration, the Japanese Language Schools of the Army, and the Civil Affairs Training Schools." (Publisher's note) Bibliography. No index.

Reviewed by Howard White
Am Pol Sci R 41:1239 D '47 400w

Reviewed by R. H. Heindel
Ann Am Acad 255:218 Ja '48 370w

Booklist 44:196 F 1 '48

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 68:396 D 4 '48 350w

"This important study gives the most comprehensive account thus far produced of the methods of instruction in the languages and cultures of foreign peoples used by the Army Specialized Training Program, the Navy School of Military Government, and other units of the armed services."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 3:359 D '47 320w

MATTHEWS, ISAAC GEORGE. Religious pilgrimage of Israel. 304p $4 Harper

296 Jews—Religion. Bible. Old Testament—History of biblical events 47-5817

"From the mature vantage point of a distinguished professor emeritus who has taught Old Testament for more than a quarter of a century, Professor Matthews has viewed the progress of Hebrew religion from its primitive stages to the time of the Council at Lydda (135 A.D.). Bible students, both professionals and laymen, stand to profit by his labor. Full scriptural documentation indicates that he intends his book to be not merely read but studied along with the Bible." (Christian Century) Selected bibliography. Indexes.

"The approach is frankly evolutionary and historical, distinctly in the Wellhausen tradition. There is no elaborate argument but simply a careful and orderly presentation of the consensus of the best informed liberal scholarship. No extreme radicalism or eccentricity is in evidence. The reader is continually conscious that the author is familiar with the latest results of sound biblical scholarship and is presenting them with unusual clarity. . . Widespread and continuing popularity may be predicted for this valuable, concise and scholarly publication." R. H. Bowman
+ Christian Century 65:270 Mr 3 '48 450w

"Readable, reliable, informing, and as sound as a hickory nut. . . Of course any other scholar would have written the history of Israel's religion differently, but to my knowledge no other scholar has written it better." R. H. Pfeiffer
+ Crozer Q 25:59 Ja '48 1800w

MATTHIESSEN, FRANCIS OTTO. From the heart of Europe. 194p $3 Oxford

914 Europe—Description and travel 48-7879

The author, an American literary scholar "spent the summer and autumn of 1947 in central Europe. During July and August he taught at the Salzberg Seminar, which was organized by three of his students at Harvard and which assembled other students from almost all the European countries except Russia. During most of the autumn he served as visiting lecturer on American literature at Charles University in Prague; but he also paid short visits to other cities on both sides of the iron curtain, including Frankfurt, Paris, Bratislava, Budapest and Copenhagen. 'From the Heart of Europe' is the journal he kept during his travels." (N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R)

Reviewed by F. J. Lewand
Ann Am Acad 260:183 N '48 650w

Reviewed by C. J. Rolo
Atlantic 182:102 O '48 300w

Booklist 45:64 O 15 '48

"The exact pattern of Mr Matthiessen's thoughts is not all important. It is clear that he has not meant them to be either glib or systematic. And the political opinions, the political interpretations, even the political observations—these are personal, and, inevitably, controversial. What is important is the fact that, in the most uncertain, the most marginal of periods, an American scholar has had the responsibility to think out a position and the courage to take it." Melvin Maddocks
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 S 9 '48 1200w

Kirkus 16:383 Ag 1 '48 160w

"Recommended." H. W. Hart
+ Library J 73:1190 S 1 '48 130w

"In discussing a wide range of issues from this theoretical position, Professor Matthiessen has many pertinent things to say. . . But he himself falls victim to an embarrassing positivism when he assures himself that the Russians, 'whatever their failures in practice so far, however short they may have fallen of some of Lenin's aims through the grim pressures of dictatorship, have not been deflected from the right of all to share in the common wealth.' " Franz Hoellering
+ — Nation 167:293 S 11 '48 1550w

"The tremendous vitality of Professor Matthiessen's book inheres in its revelation of a thoroughly civilized and courageous man in direct and important human communication with the people over yonder, and of the eagerness of those men of all kinds. . .to reach out to their kind and begin again to live." R. S. Lynd
+ New Repub 119:24 O 4 '48 900w

"Mr. Matthiessen writes informally. He has a warm candor that carries us from page to page, and he succeeds in teaching his readers because he shows himself to be so modestly eager to learn. His picture of student life is pathetic and even, in part, dispiriting." Malcolm Cowley
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 S 12 '48 1000w

"Back in Boston, Mr. Matthiessen found that in his absence many of his anti-Fascist activities had become 'subversive.' He also discovered that his absence had made him all the more a believer in democratic socialism. As such, he concludes: 'Many of the positions you take will be the same as those taken by Communists and you will, of course, be villified for that.' Today these are courageous words. That they are written by a responsible intellectual more experienced as a literary critic than political prophet, more useful as cultural ambassador than journalist, does not make his book any the less worth reading." James Stern
N Y Times p6 S 12 '48 1100w

New Yorker 24:105 S 11 '48 170w

San Francisco Chronicle p25 S 19 '48 350w

Reviewed by Hal Lehrman
Sat R of Lit 31:18 O 16 '48 1000w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Bowen
Spec 181:766 D 10 '48 1200w

Time 52:112 S 20 '48 600w

MATTHIESSEN, FRANCIS OTTO. The James family; including selections from the writings of Henry James, senior, William, Henry, and Alice James. 706p $6.75 Knopf

920 James family 47-11259

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

Reviewed by Leon Edel
Atlantic 182:97 S '48 390w

Reviewed by H. S. Canby
Sat R of Lit 31:9 Ja 24 '48 1100w

"This form of literary biography makes use of the best of modern methods. It is the case history in its most unobtrusive form, presented by the man who has looked deeply into the interrelations of these remarkable Bostonians." Harry Hansen
+ Survey G 37:265 My '48 200w

"Rather a book to be studied and kept at hand for reference than a book to be read for easy pleasure, it is nevertheless a cornerstone of any James library."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:37 Mr '48 280w

"The record of their minds and spirits is an admirable and detailed introduction to a period which, more and more as it recedes from us, we understand as one of the enviable times in human history. One reason for wishing success to the book is the hope that a publisher might project a series which would include the Huxley family, the Arnold family, the Daudets, and the Tolstoys. Not even a group biography of the Coleridges, although it would be more dramatic by far, would render for us a more fascinating and admirable group of human beings, a group so free to be individual and yet so happily stamped with a collective genius." E. K. Brown
+ Yale R n s 37:532 spring '48 350w

MAUCK, FRANCES FELICE. Modern tailoring for women. 178p il $4; college ed $3 Macmillan 687.12 Tailoring 47-12420

Handbook of the fundamental processes in making tailored garments. Bibliography. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 44:179 Ja 15 '48

"This text will be valuable for technical school and college students and for homemakers. Because only classic styles are illustrated and because the author's experience has led her to select methods preferred by tailors and teachers, it should become a standard reference for tailoring women's garments. . .Not too serious are such omissions as the dressmaker's method of setting sleeves in an unlined jacket or a child's coat, finishing details for tailored skirts, and materials for raincoats. Excellent features include aids in following directions, qualities of a well-made garment, and the illustrated glossary." M. D. Erwin
+ — J Home Econ 40:211 Ap '48 170w

MAUGERI, FRANCO. From the ashes of disgrace; ed. by Victor Rosen. 376p $4 Reynal
940.5345 World war, 1939-1945—Italy. World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, Italian 48-6957

"Admiral Maugeri, present Chief of the General Staff of the Italian Navy has written an account of Italy's part in the war. Describing the Italian Navy at the beginning of the war, he goes on to reveal counterespionage; conversations with Mussolini while escorting him to temporary confinement; the political situation within Italy; the story of the Italian Underground after 1943, and finally the postwar years in Italy." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 45:11 S 1 '48

Reviewed by J. D. Squires
Christian Century 65:882 S 1 '48 650w

Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 7 '48 600w

"Americans who would like to understand Italians better should place this book on their summer list. Its that informative and exciting." J. M. Calderon
+ Commonweal 48:266 Je 25 '48 130w

Kirkus 16:252 My 15 '48 170w

"No Fascist, completely frank, Admiral Maugeri presents a valuable account of this period of Italian history, and in doing so explains many of the mysteries of the war in the Mediterranean. His style is clear and readable. Recommended." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 73:811 My 15 '48 130w

"Admiral Franco Maugeri contributes a valuable addition to the testimony of the former enemies. He is an honorable officer, proud of his country and of its navy, with little political interest and no political ambition. His objections to fascism, which were undoubtedly real long before the disaster, are based upon its boastfulness, false pride, incompetence and corruption, but most of all upon the fact that it dishonored Italy and disgraced the past of a great and noble people. He finds evidences in the liberated energies of that people in the last three years—as many of us, even non-Italians, do—of the hope of rebirth in a new spring, another Risorgimento." Vincent Sheean
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 My 23 '48 1600w

"It is the personality of Admiral Maugeri which gives the book its validity. Many of the things he writes about have been written of before; there is the oft-repeated explanation of why Italy accepted fascism and the familiar statement that the Italian people never really wanted to go to war against Britain and the United States. But the author's simplicity and forthrightness—when he wants to criticize the Allies he resoundingly does so—gently illuminate every page and give even such outworn and now generally accepted themes a faint new vitality." V. L. Warren
+ N Y Times p7 My 30 '48 950w

New Yorker 24:118 My 22 '48 140w

"Admiral Maugeri participated in the battles of Cape Spada and Cape Matapan and his accounts of these engagements are much the best part of a discursive, anecdotal book." C. W. W.
San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 13 '48 400w

"Stripped of all nonsense, this book contains interesting chapters, particularly the one dealing with assault weapons, the one describing Admiral Maugeri's mission in taking care of the exiled Mussolini, and finally and best of all, the dramatic account of the activities of the Rome underground, part of which was the group of Italian Naval personnel led by Admiral Maugeri himself." Alfred Segre
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:11 Je 12 '48 700w

Springf'd Republican p10B My 23 '48 120w

MAUGHAM, ROBERT CECIL ROMER. Nomad. 183p $2.75 Viking
940.548142 World war, 1939-1945—Personal narratives, English 48-6240

The author, who is a nephew of Somerset Maugham, was a tank captain during the war in Egypt until he was wounded. This is his account of his experiences in hospital; with the British Intelligence in the Middle East where he studied the possibilities of Arab guerrilla warfare in the event of German occupation; and later as a returned traveller after the war.

Booklist 44:334 Je 1 '48

Kirkus 16:42 Ja 15 '48 210w

"Mr. Robin Maugham revealed great gifts as a writer in his first book. In his second book he shows a growing mastery which will one day produce an even better book than this. It is a vivid account of his experiences in the Near East."
+ Manchester Guardian p3 N 29 '47 210w

"Maugham believes that 'the art of reportage is to make real people as vivid as characters in fiction.' At his best, Maugham does this very well. His book is a gallery of personalities. . . Halfway through the book, however, one senses a strange war between Maugham's sensibility and his political judgments. The early pages lead the reader to believe that Maugham will conclude with an appeal for the end of domination of one people over another. But such is not the case." John Bicknell
N Y Times p20 Jl 11 '48 700w

"His dispassionate treatment of the Arab-Jewish question will please neither side, because, in spite of his intelligent sympathy for the peoples of the Near and Middle East, it is clear that he looks upon them with the eye of a kindly young colonial administrator."
New Yorker 24:123 Ap 10 '48 140w

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Je 20 '48 450w

"A useful contribution to a sound philosophy of relations between East and West. It helps, of course, to have it made with good temper, wit, and candor." G. G. Stevens
+ Sat R of Lit 31:14 My 1 '48 600w

MAUGHAM, WILLIAM SOMERSET. Catalina; a romance. 275p $3 Doubleday
48-8818

"Lovely and talented Catalina, trampled by a bull at age of sixteen is left a seemingly hopeless cripple. On the steps of the cathedral a vision of the Blessed Virgin appears to her and predicts that she will be cured by a miracle. As story unfolds this miracle is ultimately accomplished and Catalina, after further vicissitudes, marries the man of her choice and becomes a famous actress. Scene is laid in Spain during the period of the Inquisition." Library J

"In so far as setting and theme are concerned, Catalina has its pleasing aspects. But it is a disappointing novel. There is little evidence here of that famed Maugham craftsmanship. The writing is outrageous in its use of the cliché. Time and again Maugham has violated his oft-repeated canon about the clear-cut beginning, middle, and end. The middle is both an end and a new beginning." Edward Weeks

— + Atlantic 182:111 N '48 850w

Booklist 45:89 N 1 '48

"It is clear that the book can only be enjoyed on its own terms: as an entertainment, mock-serious in tone and worldly in intention, treating always cavalierly, sometimes mistakenly, but never ignorantly, the more garish facts of history. Catalina is a clever story. But it pays the price frequently exacted of cleverness. Maugham has enjoyed his joke, and according to our taste we may or may not laugh with him. But in spite of all its brightness, there is little in the book to tempt us to turn to its pages again." M. R. Grennan

+ — Cath World 168:331 Ja '49 400w

Chicago Sun p9X N 28 '48 220w

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p11 N 24 '48 170w

Cleveland Open Shelf p24 D '48

"Mr. Maugham is about as comfortable describing religious scenes and using religious terms as—well, as Mrs. Roosevelt would be playing polo. Perhaps the most interesting part of the book is the photograph of Mr. Maugham on the back cover. It's possible that the picture reveals more of a personality and a point of view than any of the poorly written trivialities which precede it throughout 275 pages." George Miles

— Commonweal 49:77 O 29 '48 420w

"Somehow, Somerset Maugham has lost his old magic, and the story emerges as a dry and colorless tale. . . Lots of ingredients for a romantic picaresque novel, motivated by miraculous intervention of Heaven at the psychological moments, but somehow it never coheres, and the parts are better than the whole."

— Kirkus 16:290 Je 15 '48 190w

"Maugham, with tongue in cheek, writes beautifully, with whimsy, humor and satire. Will have wide appeal." L. R. Etzkorn

+ Library J 73:1091 Ag '48 120w

"Though the ease of Mr. Maugham's style is perfect—and what a delight!—all the way through, the admirable structure a little goes to pieces after the Virgin's second intervention in Catalina's life. But in spite of the faster tempo at the end readers will lay the book down with no sense of fatigue; on the contrary they will heave a sigh of regret that these Anglo-Voltairean larks do not run to a second volume. A trifle, to be sure, but brilliantly clever, and amusing." Paul Bloomfield

+ — Manchester Guardian p3 Ag 20 '48 210w

"This cynical exploitation, which amounts to parody, of Catholic traditions will no doubt receive approbation from, and even edify, a large public. By the crude censorship code which judges such performances, Maugham has written a devotional work. . . On the other hand, anyone who might be embarrassed by Maugham's investigation of the doctrine of damnation is advised to renounce Catalina's blandishments." John Farrelly

New Repub 119:25 O 25 '48 700w

Reviewed by Simon Harcourt-Smith
New Statesman & Nation 36:224 S 11 '48 210w

"Not many Maugham readers will rate this his best novel or his most important but few will put it down without renewed respect for a teller of tales who knows his craft inside and out. . . Anyway you do read it, it is good reading. 'Catalina' is a small gem of the storyteller's art. A semi-precious gem, if you will, but the work of a master lapidary." Richard Match

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 O 31 '48 850w

"As a linkage of expert storytelling, expert cynicism and the sheerest potboiling, Mr. Maugham's new novel probably stands alone. The first 154 pages of 'Catalina' . . . are up to his old narrative magic. His story swings along at a skillful clip; his characters, although conventionally stock, are always interesting and often convey an impression that at any moment they may draw a breath of life. . . But from page 155, 'Catalina' takes a turn in which only diminishing vestiges remain of the earlier virtues." A. S. Morris

— + N Y Times p6 N 7 '48 550w

New Yorker 24:111 O 30 '48 80w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 N 8 '48 650w

Reviewed by Thomas Sugrue
Sat R of Lit 31:13 O 30 '48 900w

Reviewed by L. A. G. Strong
Spec 181:250 Ag 20 '48 550w

"His last novel is as simple and unpretentious as anything he has ever written. Catalina is no masterpiece; it is merely a disarming little story laid in Spain during the Inquisition and written in a grave and effortless style modeled on the old chronicles, and sometimes edging over into a bland and amusing parody of them."

+ Time 52:101 N 1 '48 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p470 Ag 21 '48 3300w

Reviewed by Orville Prescott
Yale R n s 38:384 winter '49 210w

MAUGHAM, WILLIAM SOMERSET. Great novelists and their novels. 245p il $3 Winston

928 Novelists. Fiction—History and criticism
48-8827

Collection of introductions to a forthcoming series of novels, which were chosen as the ten greatest novels of the world by Maugham, and abridged by him. Each of the ten essays presents a brief biography, sketches the relation of the single book to the author's total work, and gives Mr Maugham's reasons for choosing the book. The ten books are: War and Peace, by Leo Tolstoy; Old Man Goriot, by Honoré de Balzac; Tom Jones, by Henry Fielding; Pride and Prejudice, by Jane Austen; The Red and the Black, by Stendhal; Wuthering Heights, by Emily Brontë; Madame Bovary, by Gustave Flaubert; David Copperfield, by Charles Dickens; The Brothers Karamazov, by Fyodor Dostoevsky; Moby Dick, by Herman Melville. A postscript attempts to show "what must be combined with the creative instinct to produce work of value."

Booklist 45:70 O 15 '48

Reviewed by M. R. Grennan
Cath World 168:331 Ja '49 150w

"This is a readable book making clear that the author's intention in editing this series of novels is not to improve on the classics, nor to attract such readers as already know and enjoy them, but to help thousands of new readers to make their acquaintance. For such, this book will serve as 'a guide to reading the old classics in a new light.' " O. D. Hormel

+ Christian Science Monitor p16 O 9 '48 750w

Kirkus 16:420 Ag 15 '48 140w

"Somewhat uneven in quality, interesting as exposing a seasoned writer's own philosophy of novel writing." J. E. Cross

+ — Library J 73:1270 S 15 '48 130w

"The readers for whom Mr Maugham has specifically written 'Great Novelists and Their Novels' will find it useful, informative and easily intelligible. Readers already familiar with Mr. Maugham's listed classics, and the biographies of their authors, are likely to find little to detain them in [the book]. Its interest, for them, will be restricted to his general and incidental observations on the art of fiction, and these—perhaps inevitably—repeat ideas which he has expounded before." Lloyd Morris
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 S 26 '48 700w

Reviewed by Caspar Weinberger
San Francisco Chronicle p19 D 5 '48 800w

"Mr. Maugham makes the great novelists and their novels his business with as little pain to himself and to his readers and with as much good sense as he has made the ways and foibles of the world his business for the last three or four decades. Actually his approach is not, in the pure sense, critical at all. He views the novels he has selected with the practised eye of the professional writer and the keen sense for appreciating the best in them of the professional reader." J. W. Aldridge
+ Sat R of Lit 31:23 O 2 '48 750w

Springf'd Republican p8B O 10 '48 240w

MAURER, HERRYMON. Great soul; the growth of Gandhi. 128p $2 Doubleday

B or 92 Gandhi, Mohandas Karamchand 48-9178

A brief study of Gandhi, which attempts no evaluation of the man. It is largely a selection of Gandhi's statements bound together by some background data. No index.

Booklist 45:177 Ja 15 '49

Kirkus 16:468 S 1 '48 80w

Nation 168:24 Ja 1 '49 40w

N Y Times p52 N 14 '48 230w

"This is an excellent little book. . . The total is clear, unassuming, and worth while, but it lacks the drama and richness of the Mahatma's life." Louis Fischer
+ Sat R of Lit 31:17 D 18 '48 250w

MAURIAC, FRANCOIS. Saint Margaret of Cortona; tr. from the French by Bernard Frechtman. 231p $3 Philosophical lib.

B or 92 Margaret of Cortona, Saint 48-6424

Biography of a little-known thirteenth century saint. In her youth a great beauty, Margaret had been the mistress of a nobleman and mother of his son, but when he was killed she turned to a life of penitence, noble works and martyrdom. This work is based on the Legend of her sayings made by her confessor Brother Giunta Bevegnati.

Reviewed by Anne Fremantle
Commonweal 48:480 Ag 27 '48 260w

"Mystical flavor will appeal to truly religious of all creeds." R. J. Hurley
+ Library J 73:473 Mr 15 '48 100w

"This old and necessarily sketchy material Mauriac has reworked into a deeply keyed portrait of a soul seeking the Infinite. Historical settings, chronology—these mattered little to him, and the biography he has written is instead 'a kind of meditation on mystical states,' unrestricted by thematic continuity, and happily successful." E. G. Gallagher
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ag 8 '48 360w

Reviewed by J. W. Bogan
Springf'd Republican p14A Je 11 '48 150w

MAURIAC, FRANCOIS. Unknown sea; tr. by Gerard Hopkins. 236p $3 Holt

48-8557

Novel describing the effect a French financier's ruin and suicide had on his family, friends, and retainers. The scene is Bordeaux before the first World war.

Booklist 45:89 N 1 '48

Reviewed by Moira Walsh
Cath World 168:250 D '48 400w

"When François Mauriac sets out to relate the decline and fall of a Bordeaux bourgeois family, and finds time, in between the economics of the thing, to examine the middle-class soul, adolescent passion, and man's search for an interior quiet, then the reader might well settle back and expect the best. Only this time he will get something closer to the worst." E. F. Meagher
— Commonweal 49:16 O 15 '48 550w

Kirkus 16:348 Jl 15 '48 160w

"For larger libraries, and libraries of colleges offering courses in modern French literature." E. E. Walbridge
Library J 73:1274 S 15 '48 100w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield
Manchester Guardian p3 D 20 '48 300w

Reviewed by Simon Harcourt-Smith
New Statesman & Nation 37:37 Ja 8 '49 550w

"François Mauriac's third novel to be published in this country should subsequently confirm the reputation he established with 'A Woman of the Pharisees' and 'Thérèse' as one of the finest modern French novelists. But the quiet intensity and cumulative power of his narrative and the lucid perfection of his prose (aptly translated by Gerard Hopkins) are closer to Flaubert than to such distinguished contemporaries as Gide, Malraux, Sartre or Camus. Also because its provincial setting and its vivid picture of a middle-class family's disintegration 'The Unknown Sea' invites comparison with 'Madame Bovary.'" Ray Pierre
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 O 10 '48 600w

"With Balzac and Dostoevsky as his literary masters, Mauriac is a direct, objective, knowing analyst of society and souls. He has none of the slickness of Greene and Waugh which sometimes makes spiritual mystery and subtlety of dogma seem a fashionable means of literary effect." R. G. D.
+ N Y Times p43 O 17 '48 650w

"In the past, M. Mauriac has frequently converted a comparable amount of wretchedness into finely wrought fiction. He has not, however, done it on this occasion."
— New Yorker 24:101 O 2 '48 160w

"Mauriac's view of life is not a pleasant one, for it is the Jansenist view which sees man as a naturally sinful and perverse creature; but it is an honest view, beautifully presented in the lifelike symbols of the novelist's art. And there is no righteous cruelty in this particular Jansenist. He observes and records, but he does not condemn; he pities, but he does not excuse." B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 31:17 N 6 '48 1220w

Reviewed by Olivia Manning
Spec 181:852 D 24 '48 900w

Times [London] Lit Sup p693 D 11 '48 300w

MAUROIS, ANDRE. From my journal; tr. from the French by Joan Charles. 250p $2.75 Harper

B or 92 Authors—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 48-5438

Andre Maurois's journal of the year 1946 which marked the end of his six-year exile from his native land and his return to France from the United States. Includes one short story: Departure, and two articles written for magazines: Return from America and Alain.

Kirkus 15:665 D 1 '47 130w

"Expertly translated extracts. . . Recommended especially to readers who enjoyed the Journals of Arnold Bennett." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 73:37 Ja 1 '48 100w

"The first part of the journal is the more absorbing of the two. . . Between the two parts of the journal comes a sort of short story, not written with M. Maurois's usual urbanity. . .

MAUROIS, ANDRE—Continued
From here on, the entries in the journal, while covering the obvious facts of bomb-scars, food and fuel shortage, severed families, and political upheaval, seem too carefully dispassionate, and the only emotion which Maurois allows himself to reveal is what he feels when surrounded again by his own familiar possessions, or what is left of them." Virgilia Peterson
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 F 8 '48 900w

Reviewed by Albert Guerard, jr.
N Y Times p6 F 15 '48 950w

"The author's observations on life in the United States are unusually benign but, unfortunately, too often flat and superficial. . . The latter part of the journal, which deals with postwar France, has more sting and point, but not much."
— New Yorker 23:87 F 7 '48 110w

San Francisco Chronicle p13 Mr 14 '48 350w

Reviewed by H. L. Varley
Springf'd Republican p10B Je 27 '48 180w

MAUROIS, ANDRE. Miracle of France; tr. from the French by Henry L. Binsse. 477p il $5 Harper
944 France—History 48-9094

A summation of France's contributions to civilization, presented thru a narrative account of her history from Roman times to the close of the Second world war. By the author of The Miracle of England (Book Review Digest 1937). Index.

Booklist 45:118 D 1 '48

Reviewed by Neil Martin
Christian Science Monitor p14 D 2 '48 600w

"With a survey of this sort written by a man of letters not a professional historian, critics will inevitably find points of disagreement, especially in the latter part of the book where the material is so highly condensed as to make adequate qualification difficult. . . While the translation is felicitous the commonly used term Estates General conveys the meaning of États-Généraux better than does the term States General used here. Would too that Harpers could be persuaded that a picture book in the middle of a volume is a poor substitute for illustrations in appropriate places. Yet much of this criticism is minor, and there can be little dispute about the pleasing character and basic distinction of Mr. Maurois' synthesis." F. S. Childs
+ — Commonweal 49:308 D 31 '48 420w

"An extremely professional presentation and popularization which has both color and momentum."
+ Kirkus 16:390 Ag 1 '48 150w

Reviewed by Crane Brinton
Nation 167:702 D 18 '48 850w

"The book moves with ease and skill through the long story of the evolution of France. It has color, movement, drama. It will appeal to many who would be repelled by the more formal and fact-encrusted books of academic historians. And it clearly bears the stamp of the biographer. . . There is a serious objection to Maurois' book. For all its attempted drama, it misses the larger significance of French history in the past three centuries." D. C. McKay
+ — N Y Times p10 O 31 '48 1200w

"M. Maurois says that the influence of France through the ages has been mostly of the heart and mind, but he writes pretty much in terms of political regimes and military successes and failures."
New Yorker 24:134 N 6 '48 80w

+ San Francisco Chronicle p22 Ja 16 '49 550w

"A useful, well-organized reference work, valuable for the home library; and that is the best that can be said for it. If the reader wishes a quick, condensed report on Charlemagne, Henry IX, the Bourbons, any one of the long procession of French rulers, they are all here, but more mundane than miraculous." J. C. Long
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:10 D 18 '48 470w

Reviewed by Donald Derby
Springf'd Republican p8B Ja 9 '49 300w

MAXWELL, JAMES A. I never saw an Arab like him. 207p $2.50 Houghton 48-6250

Thirteen stories set in Tripoli in late 1944 and 1945 told by Mark Dickson of the U.S. Counter Intelligence Corps, a character created by the author to represent himself. Six of the stories have appeared in the New Yorker.

Booklist 44:299 My 1 '48

Christian Science Monitor p10 Je 19 '48 310w

"It may be that no definite stand is offered —the presentation is perhaps on the ambidextrous side, but the effect is no less telling insofar as bases of current problems are observed. In the New Yorker casual to calamitous style."
Kirkus 16:92 F 15 '48 210w

"Mr. Maxwell's style is spare and clean, his sensibilities subtle and cultivated, his perceptions sharp. These thirteen stories combine first-rate professional reporting with sensitive interpretation. One criticism may be made. Mr. Maxwell, in the person of Mark Dickson, takes himself too seriously; he displays a slightly adolescent reverence toward his own personality." M. S. Hurst
+ — N Y Times p5 Ap 4 '48 600w

"Some very interesting information about the Zionist problem and the British, Arabs and Jews concerned with it. There isn't a poor or even a just fair story in the lot and most of them are excellent." Edith James
+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ap 4 '48 100w

"Mr. Maxwell writes with a miraculous economy of detail, achieving amazing effects in brief compass. . . One of the book's subtle excellences is that the reader does some of the work. He will find his toil rewarding." J. H. Burns
+ Sat R of Lit 31:27 Ap 17 '48 550w

Times [London] Lit Sup p621 N 6 '48 210w

Wis Lib Bul 44:133 Je '48

MAXWELL, WILLIAM. Time will darken it. 302p $3 Harper
48-8331

A small Illinois town in 1912 is the scene of this novel of character. Austin King, member of the town's leading law firm, feels obligated to invite some foster relatives from Mississippi to visit. Martha, his beautiful, petulant wife, resents the invitation and the relatives themselves when they arrive, especially the young daughter of the family, Nora. When the family finally depart, after causing much trouble, Nora, who has fallen in love with Austin, moves in with neighbors. The tragic results of her visit complete the story.

"His people and their period are wonderfully alive. A distinguished novel."
+ Atlantic 182:120 D '48 210w

Booklist 45:66 O 15 '48

Cath World 168:254 D '48 230w

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun S 8 '48 470w

"Mr. Maxwell's skill creates place and time equally well: that surrey ride through the heat to the farm outside the town is true to both; reading it one smells the dust and sees about him the great circle of the Midwest horizon. It's a bit odd that the characters themselves never come into clear focus out of this superbly re-created background." Horace Reynolds
+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 S 9 '48 500w

"This is a story of remarkable realism as well as charm, of commonplace circumstance and modulated mood. . . Faultless in understanding, fastidious in treatment, this is assured of both critical approval and an appreciative audience."

+ Kirkus 16:316 Jl 1 '48 210w

"Ably written and rather startling for all its nostalgic background—read before circulating to the susceptible." E. L. Lewis

Library J 73:1193 S 1 '48 70w

"This could have been a very good novel about that painful adolescent phenomenon, the crush. Instead, it is tender, reminiscent, sensitive." Ernest Jones

+ Nation 167:353 S 25 '48 320w

Reviewed by John Farrelly

New Repub 119:26 O 11 '48 330w

"In telling his story, Mr. Maxwell has achieved the effect of irony by consistent understatement. But, for the present reviewer, he has blemished this effect by indulging his desire to share with the reader—in passages of interruptive commentary—his reflections on its simplifications. However, those who admired 'The Folded Leaf' will find in 'Time Will Darken It' the same qualities of insight and sensibility, the same power of evocation and the same compassion that distinguished the earlier book. They will find, too, that of this slender comedy of manners Mr. Maxwell has managed to make a social portrait of an American community." Lloyd Morris

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 S 5 '48 800w

"There is a sense of responsibility in Mr. Maxwell's writing. This is a quiet, thoughtful, knowing book. Its design is both simple and rich; its movement is grave. Reading it one feels that its elements—its people and place and time—have been permanently, faithfully rendered. And one cannot help feeling that an effect of this kind was part of the author's primary intention. For all the way through this seems an attempt—beautifully accomplished—at fixing in words a section of the very substance of the near American past, so that a good and important and meaningful thing will not be lost in the darkening progression of our days." Richard Sullivan

+ N Y Times p4 S 5 '48 600w

" 'Time Will Darken It' marks an advance over the two other novels by Mr. Maxwell that I have read, 'They Came Like Swallows' and 'The Folded Leaf.' It is looser, less highly polished, with an offhand grace that seems to hint that, under different circumstances, the reader himself might have presented just such a picture of life to Mr. Maxwell. It is an advance, too, in that its field of action is almost exclusively adult. It is no mean thing to write well of children and adolescents, as Mr. Maxwell has done before, but novels written as if seen through the eyes of children or adolescents cannot be, in any large sense, serious. 'Time Will Darken It' is, in this sense, serious, and with it Mr. Maxwell enters his major phase." Brendan Gill

+ New Yorker 24:78 S 4 '48 950w

"Mildly-paced, finely-written novel. Before you're through, you have come to understand a town, a period, half a dozen people, and, most significant, a universal and timeless man-woman situation. And you come to the book's end freshly and vividly aware of the ancient truth that there is a difference in the way men and women approach practically anything." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 S 3 '48 750w

"William Maxwell is an entertaining and sympathetic chronicler who seeks to record the accurate, if not always the happiest, side of family history in his novels. Once again he reveals a strong flair for poetic imagery, for a well-turned, thoughtful phrase, which raises his writing from the pedestrian level of many of our novelists today." Richard McLaughlin

+ Sat R of Lit 31:9 S 4 '48 800w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal

Springf'd Republican p7B S 19 '48 210w

"Maxwell can make a room, a house, a whole town come to life without raising his voice. Nothing happens in Time Will Darken It that small-town readers won't immediately recognize as next-door truth, but what does happen (gossip, housework, dinner parties, childbearing) is conveyed sensitively, in clean and restrained prose. Time Will Darken It is often too loosely constructed, frequently lingers with characters who don't help the story along, but it weighs with considerable accuracy and tenderness the half-articulated impulses of disenchanted people."

+ Time 52:110 S 20 '48 400w

Wis Lib Bul 44:185 N '48

MAY, ARTHUR JAMES. Europe and two world wars. 711p $4.90 Scribner

940.51 Europe—History 47-6366

"A mature presentation of the trends and developments of twentieth century Europe. It provides an authoritative interpretation of the background of the period from 1914 to the present, an epoch that has sired the era we face. The viewpoint is global, not narrowly European, with emphasis on the political, diplomatic, and economic phases. Woven into the text is an analysis of the social, scientific, religious, and cultural aspects needed to understand the period. The organization is essentially chronological." Social Studies

"This noteworthy addition to the contemporary history list does a particularly useful job in bringing the story down to the postwar peacemaking. . . If one were to look for any weakness, it might be found in the author's decision to handle cultural history as he has. These three chapters, inserted midway, might better have been incorporated in the sections on domestic history, where they would not have interrupted the flow so markedly. . . But this weakness does not impair the over-all excellence of this well-done volume, which will certainly win for it a deservedly wide reception." Oliver Benson

+ — Ann Am Acad 254:192 N '47 410w

"Secondary schools, with their current emphasis on world affairs, need copies of a book like this for up-to-date factual information and sound interpretations. Objective material tested by the standards of scholarship is made easily available." Ira Kreider

+ Social Studies 39:89 F '48 270w

MAYNARD, SIR JOHN. Russia in flux; ed. and abr. by S. Haden Guest. 564p $6.50 Macmillan

947.08 Russia—History. Peasantry—Russia 48-5810

A combination of two books on Russia first printed in England: Russia in Flux, published in London in 1941, and The Russian Peasant and other Studies, published a year later. "Asserting that Russia today stems from and can only be understood in terms of Russia yesterday and the day before that, Sir John reviews the part played by the peasant in Russian history, traces the metamorphosis of the Mir (village community) into the collective farms of today, follows the relations between the Church and state, interprets the revolutions of 1905 and 1917, illuminates the operation of the Tsarist state." (Library J) Index.

"I have no doubt that this is one of the most outstanding books on Russia that have been published in the course of the last thirty years. Brilliantly written, it is the work of a man whose personal contact with Russia went back to the late nineteenth century and who had a wide and thorough knowledge of Russian literature and history. The chapters on the various intellectual trends in pre-Revolutionary Russia are among the best writings on the subject available in any language, and a marvel of condensation. Equally good are many pages dealing with the Russian peasant, a subject that apparently was particularly close to the author's heart. In his treatment of the other subjects as well, Sir John has succeeded in assembling an amazing amount of useful information accompanied by a highly interesting and very often original comment." Michael Karpovich

MAYNARD, JOHN—Continued
+ Am Hist R 54:140 O '48 600w

"Amid the deluge of superficial, and often emotionally biased, books produced on Soviet Russia, Sir John Maynard's study stands apart as a monument of honesty, scholarship, and erudition." George Lenczowski
+ Am Pol Sci R 42:792 Ag '48 850w

"On the whole, Russia in Flux in its present form is a very uneven and misleading book. Its best parts are those which were taken from the original book of that name, particularly the chapters dealing with the movement of ideas in nineteenth-century Russia. In the growing annals of works on Russia it should be put down as an unfortunately inadequate and erroneous attempt at interpretation of Russia's development in the past and in the present." L. I. Strakhovsky
— Ann Am Acad 258:130 Jl '48 800w
Booklist 44:385 Jl 15 '48

Reviewed by Julian Towster
Chicago Sun Ap 15 '48 480w

"The most valuable portions of the book are the historical chapters. The author presents a brilliant defense of the thesis that the roots of communism lie deeply buried in Russia's past. Russia is in flux, he admits, but it is the same Russia. . . Russia in Flux suffers from several inaccuracies and doubtful conclusions." E. McN. Burns
+ — Christian Century 65:542 Je 2 '48 1000w
Christian Science Monitor p14 Ap 12 '48 700w

"If this superb analysis and history of the evolution of the Soviet revolution was must reading for every commentator in this period of red hysteria, there would be less hysteria. . . The author draws pictures of the mistakes and injustices wrought in the process of communization with the same candor as he explains the Russian background." A. W. Taylor
+ Churchman 162:15 Ag '48 240w

"A fascinating study of the Russian people as well as of their state."
+ Current Hist 14:295 My '48 60w
Foreign Affairs 26:747 Jl '48 40w
Kirkus 15:619 N 1 '47 170w

"Scholarly, balanced studies of frequent brilliance. Essential source in research collections but circuitous approach and muddy style suggest no popular use." R. E. Kingery
+ Library J 72:1372 O 1 '47 100w

Reviewed by Bernard Pares
Nation 166:506 My 8 '48 1500w

Reviewed by Richard Lauterbach
New Repub 118:22 Mr 8 '48 1200w

"It is a symptom of our troubled times that more than six years should have passed before an American edition is available of what is almost certainly the most important work on Soviet Russia written in English. . . This is not an easy book to read quickly. . . It is so rich that it is hard to single out its chief structural ideas. One of them is surely, as Pares points out in his foreword, Maynard's emphasis on 'the release of energy' as the main result of the 1917 revolution." Joseph Barnes
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Mr 14 '48 1750w

"S. Haden Guest has done a good technical piece of work in combining the two English publications of Sir John Maynard for the American edition. Very little of importance has been omitted. Dog-eared copies of the English editions on American university library reference shelves are tribute to the place the works have already attained as standard texts in courses on Russian civilization. Teachers will welcome the combined American edition. There are few such moderate texts to select for their students." J. N. Hazard
+ N Y Times p4 Mr 21 '48 950w

"For an understanding of Russia in the last hundred years, this is the best book—in scope, understanding, breadth of treatment, and scholarly objectivity—that this reviewer has yet encountered. Furthermore, the style is easy though dignified, and although not intended for beginners, the book is sufficiently free from Russian terms to make it valuable to those who are not specialists in the field." J. S. Curtiss
+ Pol Sci Q 63:454 S '48 750w

Reviewed by D. F. White
Sat R of Lit 31:13 My 1 '48 950w

MAYNARD, THEODORE. A fire was lighted, the life of Rose Hawthorne Lathrop. 443p $3.50 Bruce pub.

B or 92 Lathrop, Mrs Rose (Hawthorne) (Mother Alphonsa) 48-5382

"Much attention is given in this biography to Rose Hawthorne Lathrop's family background and life in her famous father's home. Her own story has double interest; as that of a convert to the Roman Catholic church and as that of a devoted, self-sacrificing woman who establishes a home for indigent, incurable victims of cancer." Booklist

---

"The strong Catholic emphasis and seemingly unnecessary disparagement of Protestantism will limit the book's appeal in some places."
Booklist 44:267 Ap 1 '48

Reviewed by E. V. R. Wyatt
Commonweal 48:625 O 8 '48 900w

"This is the life story of an interesting person, interestingly told. . . This life story is well told and will be of interest to the general reader of biography as well as the Roman Catholics for whom her life is naturally of especial significance."
+ Kirkus 16:117 Mr 1 '48 250w

"This biography may well be an inspiration, but it just misses being a work of art. Recommended for general purchase." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 73:332 F 15 '48 130w

MAYNARD, THEODORE. Humanist as hero. 261p $3 Macmillan

B or 92 More, Sir Thomas, Saint 47-11946

Biography of Sir Thomas More, written from the Catholic viewpoint. Index.

Booklist 44:183 Ja 15 '48

"Dr. Maynard has done nothing finer than this life of More. It is sympathetic, authoritative, and in the fullest sense satisfying." J. J. Reilly
+ Cath World 166:473 F '48 550w

"While a little more than full justice is done Sir Thomas More by Maynard, less than justice is done many of his contemporaries. There is not much point in rising to the defense of Henry VIII, but the aspersions cast upon Thomas Cranmer, More's fellow martyr, are of greater concern. To accuse Cranmer of duplicity at the time of trial of Frith by asserting that he had long secretly denied the doctrine of transubstantiation is patently ridiculous." W. S. Hudson
+ — Christian Century 65:17 Ja 7 '48 600w

"This is a very readable 'Life'; but it is also a subjective one. Mr. Maynard is so convinced that Sir Thomas was a saint that he is disposed to reject anything from the records which suggests that the saint had any human failings. And the records do hint, to say the least, now and again, that he was in some ways 'of the earth, earthy.'" F. J. Moore
+ — Churchman 162:17 Mr 1 '48 220w

"While there is nothing particularly new to scholars, the layman will feel he has learned to know Sir Thomas More as an affable, brilliant man, a faithful patient father and husband, a scholar, philosopher, theologian, a devout Christian, a martyr. Neither stuffy nor overdrawn."
+ Kirkus 15:496 S 1 '47 130w

"In spite of the many lives of Sir Thomas More, this one by a well-known Catholic author will be widely read for it is, indeed, a human biography. . . For all but the smallest book collections." K. T. Willis
+ Library J 72:1267 S 15 '47 70w

Reviewed by Russell Ames
Nation 166:509 My 8 '48 140w

"Theodore Maynard in these pages presents another of his sensitive and accomplished portraits of the great figures of Catholicism. In these portraits his choice of subject, as well as his execution, has been unfailingly happy. Sir Thomas More (canonized by the Roman Catholic Church in 1935) possesses inexhaustible attractiveness both in his own person and as the protagonist in an important phase of the historical tragedy of western Christendom." Robert Caponigri
+ N Y Times p27 Ja 25 '48 370w

MAYNARD, THEODORE. Richest of the poor; the life of Saint Francis of Assisi. 255p $3 Doubleday

B or 92 Francis of Assisi, Saint 48-6640

"A life of St. Francis of Assisi. . . It is distinctive in that the author, a well-known Catholic publicist, endeavors to present a balanced picture of St. Francis. On the one hand, he avoids the highly romanticized popularization of many Catholic writers in which only the pretty features of the Franciscan story are included and there is no attempt to distinguish between legend and established historical fact. On the other hand, the author is at pains to combat the point of view advanced by Sabatier in his great life of St. Francis and by Protestant authors following him, namely, that the Franciscan idea and the life of the church were irreconcilable, and that this was evident from the beginning in the conflicts between St. Francis and his followers and members of the ecclesiastical hierarchy." Kirkus

Booklist 44:381 Jl 15 '48

Reviewed by J. S. Kennedy
Cath World 168:214 D '48 60w

Reviewed by John Cournos
Commonweal 48:238 Je 18 '48 900w

"The author is rendering a distinct service to Catholic readers in opening up to them the riches of their spiritual heritage, and this new book should be welcomed by Catholic readers and read with interest by others concerned with the history of the Christian faith."
+ Kirkus 16:117 Mr 1 '48 230w

"One of the best of the writer's many excursions in hagiology. Free of the unctuousness characterizing the innumerable lives of St. Francis, based on works of Thomas Celano and St. Bonaventure, we have a clear picture of man and saint. . . Popular style should appeal to non-Catholics as well as to Catholics." R. J. Hurley
+ Library J 73:556 Ap 1 '48 70w

San Francisco Chronicle p19 Je 27 '48 250w

MAYNE, JONATHAN. Barnett Freedman. (English masters of black-and-white ser) 95p $2.50 Pellegrini & Cudahy

741.91 Freedman, Barnett. Drawings 49-692

Barnett Freedman is a present-day English painter, lithographer, and book illustrator. This volume, in addition to some biographical information and brief comment on his work as painter and lithographer, treats more extensively his work in black and white especially in book illustration. The plates included are reproductions of drawings for Dickens' Oliver Twist, Tolstoy's War and Peace, De la Mare's Love, etc.

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 D 26 '48 110w

"It is no criticism of Mr. Freedman as an artist to wonder at his inclusion in the present series. He has, as the illustrations amply testify, produced a great deal of black and white work, but it is as a painter, and particularly as a colour lithographer, that he is justly famous." Osbert Lancaster
Spec 181:216 Ag 13 '48 140w

MAYO, ELTON. Some notes on the psychology of Pierre Janet. 132p $2.50 Harvard univ. press

616.8 Psychology, Pathological 48-5323

"The man mainly responsible for applying experimental methods to the study of human relations in industry recommends the ideas of one of the pioneers of mental therapy, Janet's concepts of hysteria and obsession, to explain certain aspects of individual adjustment to industrial situations, without more than passing reference to Freud or to any later developments in the field. A 15-page appendix on 'frightened people.' " Am Soc R

"A curious book by any standards of social psychologists, psychiatrists, or industrial sociologists. . . Mayo's own analysis of three levels of social insecurity, is the most suggestive part of the book."
Am Soc R 13:247 Ap '48 100w

"In the process of attempting to fit his social ideas to Janet and vice versa, Professor Mayo departs from the strictly scientific character of Janet's work. For example, he states that 'the great majority of those who commit suicide belong unquestionably to the obsessive group,' whereas the opposite is true. I have never seen a case of obsessive-compulsive neurosis who committed suicide, nor has Freud, nor has Janet (who especially stated so)." Frederic Wertham
— N Y Times p13 Ag 15 '48 650w

"The author's warning in his title that this small volume contains only 'some notes' must be taken literally. His comments on Janet's theories and findings, though felicitous, are neither systematic nor complete. This reviewer liked best the opening chapter that somehow manages in a very short space to summarize Mr. Mayo's seasoned outlook upon the human side of industrial problems." G. W. Allport
+ — Survey G 37:267 My '48 470w

MAYOR, DOROTHY. Last call for Lissa. 250p $2.50 Mill

48-2378

Detective story.

"The gambit is good but the balance suffers from too many corpses and a corresponding want of vitality." James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Je 25 '48 40w

Kirkus 16:180 Ap 1 '48 110w

"Soft-boiled, sentiment-laden offering about dwellers in Puzzle Land." Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 Jl 18 '48 150w

"This is a better than average story of crime and detection." Isaac Anderson
+ N Y Times p24 Je 13 '48 100w

"Lively yarn." E. D. Doyle
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 4 '48 20w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p15A Ag 1 '48 120w

MAYORGA, MRS MARGARET (GARDNER), ed. Best one-act plays, 1947-48. 278p $3 Dodd

812.08 Dramas—Collections (38-8006)

Ten plays, most of them by young writers, and on serious subjects. Contents: On this green bank; The sunny side of the atom; Suffer the little children; Who are the Weavers; A woman's privilege; Frankie and Albert (a play with music); Easter eve; Through a glass, darkly; The meadow; Before the bullfight.

Booklist 44:349 Je 15 '48

"One of the most experimental [plays] in this volume ('The Sunny Side of the Atom'), is one of the best. Several others are excellent. Some are only interesting, and one or two are less than that. To this reader, it seems a collection of very uneven merit, but a serious idea is at the core of almost every play." W. E. G.
+ — Christian Century 65:687 Jl 7 '48 210w

MAYORGA, M. G.—Continued
Reviewed by W. L. Caswell
Churchman 162:16 O 15 '48 60w
Reviewed by Lewis Funke
N Y Times p20 Jl 18 '48 550w

MAZE, COLEMAN LLOYD, ed. Office management; a handbook; under the auspices of the National office management association. 870p il $6 Ronald

651 Office management 47-6289

"A comprehensive compilation of principles, standards, and practices in offices. Covers personnel, equipment, physical plant, and organization of work." Booklist

Booklist 44:212 F 15 '48

"Important book. . . Accurate inclusive information on best current practice in office management, organization and techniques of operation, emphasizing principles and illustrated with practical cases. Includes standard sizes for office forms." L. A. Eales
+ Library J 72:1616 N 15 '47 70w

"All in all, the volume constitutes a thoroughly useful reference work." J. J. Corson
+ Management R 37:336 Je '48 240w

MEADE, JAMES EDWARD. Planning and the price mechanism; the liberal-socialist solution. 130p $2.50 Macmillan (for Allen, G.)

338.91 Economic policy. Industry and state. Great Britain—Economic conditions [48-25381]

"This book outlines a solution of present [British] economic problems which makes the fullest use of the price mechanism and of free initiative and competition, but which involves the socialisation of certain monopolistic concerns and the State control of the price mechanism in such a way as to maintain full employment, to achieve an equitable distribution of income and property and to restore equilibrium to international balance of payments. . . The author is at present Professor of Commerce dealing with international economic problems at the University of London." (Publisher's note) Index.

Reviewed by T. Balogh
— New Statesman & Nation 36:377 O 30 '48 1100w

"This is a valuable little book which should make not only the rationale of enlightened Socialism and the mechanics of planning but the nature of Britain's present economic dilemma a good deal clearer to its readers." Honor Croome
+ Spec 181:244 Ag 20 '48 800w

MEADER, STEPHEN WARREN. River of the Wolves; il. by Edward Shenton. 249p $2.50 Harcourt

48-8672

Dave Foster, while working on his uncle's farm in Maine, is captured by Indians and carried away into Canada. After a winter spent with the tribe, the boy and another captive, a girl, make their escape and find their way home. The time is during the French and Indian war.

Booklist 45:92 N 1 '48

"Perhaps it is because Stephen W. Meader is writing down old tales of Indian attacks handed down through generations of his family, rather than presenting a startling original plot that this tale does not seem to measure up to the high standard of such earlier books of his, as 'Behind the Ranges.' Edward Shenton's pictures of the Indians and their captives and canoes are the most graphic part of this book." H. F. Griswold
Christian Science Monitor p7 Ja 27 '49 210w
Churchman 162:29 N 15 '48 20w
Cleveland Open Shelf p19 O '48
Commonweal 49:214 D 3 '48 40w
Reviewed by A. M. Jordan
Horn Bk 25:41 Ja '49 90w

"Well-sustained story; good supplementary reading."
+ Kirkus 16:530 O 1 '48 120w
Reviewed by Elizabeth Burr
+ Library J 73:1747 D 1 '48 100w

"Mr. Meader has conveyed convincingly the dread of Indian war parties and the incredible strength young captives often showed under the most terrifying conditions. Such a book cannot fail to make the period of the French and Indian Wars both vivid and absorbing." M. C. Scoggin
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 O 31 '48 320w

"The action is swift, the characterization and plot development realistic, and the historical background as colorful as it is accurate." R. A. Brown
+ N Y Times p28 Ja 30 '49 180w
New Yorker 24:132 D 11 '48 120w

"A skilful and exciting story with a vivid sense of the period." R. H. V.
+ Sat R of Lit 31:32 N 13 '48 50w
Wis Lib Bul 44:187 N '48

MEADOWCROFT, MRS ENID (LA MONTE). By secret railway; il. by Henry C. Pitz. 275p $3 Crowell

48-8747

Illinois and Missouri in 1860 is the setting of this story for ages 9-12. It tells of the friendship of two twelve-year-old boys: David and Jim, a freed slave. The excitement begins when Jim is kidnapped by slave-catchers and David goes out looking for him. Bibliography.

Booklist 45:92 N 1 '48
Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun N 20 '48 150w

"'By Secret Railway,' Enid La Monte Meadowcroft's latest book, is written with that author's usual care for historical accuracy and with a feeling for the time of which she writes." A. T. Eaton
+ Christian Science Monitor p11 O 28 '48 180w
Churchman 162:17 N 15 '48 30w

"Excellent supplementary reading for schools and libraries. Henry Pitz illustrations will add to its merits."
+ Kirkus 16:400 Ag 15 '48 100w

"This book is rich in colorful history and its lively pace and vivid descriptions will hold the interest of 10 to 14 year olds." W. G. Tyrrell
+ N Y Times p58 N 14 '48 160w
New Yorker 24:131 D 11 '48 110w
Sat R of Lit 31:28 N 13 '48 140w

"Enid LaMonte Meadowcroft describes Lincoln not only as a national hero but as a human and lovable man as seen through the eyes of an American boy."
+ Springf'd Republican p10B S 26 '48 60w
Wis Lib Bul 44:215 D '48

MEANY, TOM. Babe Ruth; the big moments of the big fellow [foreword by Christy Walsh]. 180p il $2.75 Barnes, A.S.

B or 92 Ruth, George Herman (Babe Ruth) 47-12228

An anecdotal life story of Babe Ruth from the day when he was spotted as a good player while still in his teens, until his illness in 1947. The book contains a list of Babe Ruth's records. No index.

Booklist 44:171 Ja 1 '48

"You can pick this book up anywhere, and turn over a page or two, quite sure of finding something that will interest any friend of the national sport."
+ Cath World 166:382 Ja '48 150w

"Will be popular with fans, young and old." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 72:1787 D 15 '47 50w

"Mr. Meany [records] his triumphs with a fine gift for anecdote and a distinct skill in re-creating the high moments—and sparing the great man not at all in recounting the foolish foibles in the career of one who did nothing by halves." T. K. H.

+ N Y Times p22 D 14 '47 140w

"A first-rate biography, including all the stock anecdotes about the Babe's on- and off-duty behavior, plus a great deal of fascinating information that isn't so well known."

+ New Yorker 23:97 D 20 '47 120w

"The details are here, the exploits, the laughs and the baseball scene of those times. Also the Babe's deep disappointment that the professional game has had no place for him after all he did for it. Scores of pictures show him at all stages of his majestic course, along with statistics of his complete record." D. B. B.

+ Springf'd Republican p8B D 21 '47 300w

Wis Lib Bul 44:38 F '48

MEARNS, DAVID CHAMBERS. Lincoln papers. See Lincoln, A.

MEARS, HELEN. Mirror for Americans: Japan. 329p $3.50 Houghton

940.5352 Japan—History—Allied occupation 1945-. U.S.—Foreign relations—Japan. Japan—Foreign relations—U.S. 48-8353

In 1946 Miss Mears went to Japan as an advisor to the Occupation command. Her book is an attempt to evaluate the occupation, what it means and what it could mean to the United States and the rest of the world. It is her contention that the aggressive tendencies of the Japanese are of recent origin and are a reflection of Western ideas, copied but not entirely understood.

Booklist 45:49 O 1 '48

Reviewed by F. S. Marquardt
Chicago Sun S 21 '48 490w

Reviewed by Robert Peel
Christian Science Monitor p11 S 16 '48 1000w

" 'Mirror for Americans' is not precisely easy reading. Miss Mears at times allows her convictions to get the better of her technical abilities. As a result her arguments are often a little fuzzy, with a multitude of loose ends left lying. The general impression one gets is not of a well-finished and logically presented piece of argumentative writing. Rather the impression is of a mountain of miscellaneous information, with occasional notes inserted by way of directions. The result is a little overwhelming, but nonetheless convincing." J. O. Frederick

+ — Commonweal 48:600 O 1 '48 550w

Current Hist 15:294 N '48 150w

"This is a very important book, but its evident truths are unpalatable and many of its arguments are sure to rouse controversy and disagreement. All of which may make the book sell. Let's hope so—it ought to be read, even if the mirror held up to Americans of ourselves in the role we have assigned to Japan is not a pleasant picture. . . The overall effect is of an arraignment of our policy—from the pre-war to the post-war times, amply documented and convincingly argued. Whether it can be accepted or not, it should provide a salutary warning."

+ Kirkus 16:327 Jl 1 '48 430w

"Near-fanaticism and want of realism lessen the value of the book." H. P. Linton

— Library J 73:1085 Ag '48 130w

Reviewed by Nathaniel Peffer
Nation 167:499 O 30 '48 600w

Reviewed by Richard Watts
New Repub 119:34 S 27 '48 1250w

"Despite all the faults that might be found with her book, there is much to be said for her basic contention. . . Miss Mears provides an antidote for much of the propaganda on Japan that was circulated during the war. As a result her book is worth the attention of any one who has an interest in the Japanese problem—but it should be read with a realization that most American authorities on Japan would disagree with large sections of it and that much of it is controversial. 'Mirror for Americans' could be misleading to any one who has read little else on Japan, but it will provide ideas worth consideration, of which a good many are irritating, to those who are familiar with other points of view." Floyd Taylor

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 S 19 '48 1050w

"The lady doth protest too much. She makes the Japanese too lily white. She overlooks the brutality with which they waged their campaigns in China. She passes by as of little consequence Japan's joining with Germany and Italy in the anti-Communist pact. . . With a great number of references and footnotes (the bane of all so-called scholarly books), Miss Mears gives evidence that she has read a great deal of current history. She still hasn't read enough. . . Miss Mears is on sound ground in questioning the wisdom of a long military occupation and of some of our attempts to change the thinking and the ways of the Japanese. Her criticisms of our policy in China also are valid." Foster Hailey

— + N Y Times p32 S 19 '48 600w

Discussion by author and Foster Hailey
N Y Times p51 O 17 '48 1250w

"Thought-provoking stuff, presented in a combative manner that is practically certain to alienate a goodly proportion of those who are exposed to it."

New Yorker 24:111 S 18 '48 140w

"A badly needed minority report on the occupation of Japan. [It] is a book that all Americans would do well to read, regardless of their opinion of General MacArthur and despite an inevitable rage at many of Miss Mears's interpretations of recent history." Stuart Lillico

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:18 S 18 '48 650w

Reviewed by L. K. Rosinger
Survey G 37:475 N '48 700w

Times [London] Lit Sup p723 D 25 '48 1000w

MEEHAN, FRANCIS JOSEPH GALLAGHER. Temple of the spirit. 183p $2.50 Dutton

170 Spirituality 48-1011

A study of the spiritual values of life: art, literature, philosophy, and religion. The author is a retired teacher, who was also a writer and lecturer. Index.

"The author reveals a thoroughly cultured mind, a mind stored with immense treasures of knowledge in literature and the arts, a felt knowledge and not mere information clogging the brain. Such a mind is keenly aware how badly mangled is human personality from which philosophy and the arts have been cut off, how shallow the mind without humility, silence and meditation. Francis Meehan's book should be a great help toward interior peace. It might have been a greater help had he given us more of Christ. The book could have been written by a good pagan."

+ — Cath World 167:478 Ag '48 190w

"This is a rare book in that it would be acceptable to Catholic, Protestant or Jew. . . This is a book which can be safely recommended to any wistful seeking soul of whatever faith and to those who have no faith and wish they did."

+ Kirkus 16:80 F 1 '48 140w

"To many of you this book will bring back memories of the time when Francis Meehan was Brother Leo. . . You'll hear the ring of familiar phrases for the book is written in prose that is for the ear. You'll smile and chuckle. The writer is as good a showman as the speaker was. And you'll close the book with the feeling that you have shared in a valid and vital experience. . . This is not a pretty uplift talk on the part of the writer. He faces the fact that this is the age of the atom, that the peril is grave and the prospect terrifying. Yet we need not be cast down because we have something definite to fall back upon namely the temple of the spirit." Violet James

+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 F 29 '48 370w

MEEK, STERNER ST PAUL. Boots; the story of a working sheep dog. 234p $2.50 Knopf

Dogs—Legends and stories 48-8238

Story of a working sheep dog on a Wyoming ranch. In a foreword the author explains that his story is based on accounts of actual deeds done by border collies in the sheep country.

Booklist 45:93 N 1 '48

Kirkus 16:440 S 1 '48 70w

"Well-written and very interesting story. . . Recommended for junior and senior high school boys." Margaret Taylor
+ Library J 73:1603 N 1 '48 80w

Reviewed by Dorothy Bridgwood
San Francisco Chronicle p19 N 28 '48 200w

Sat R of Lit 31:42 N 13 '48 50w

MEERSCH, MAXENCE VAN DER. Bodies and souls; tr. from the French by Eithne Wilkins. 654p $3.75 Pellegrini & Cudahy 48-5900

"Nearly all M. van der Meersch's large collection of characters are involved, directly or indirectly, with the practice of medicine or surgery in the twilight years of the Third Republic. The story carries us through a practically continuous succession of hospital wards and operating rooms, madhouses, tuberculosis sanatoriums . . . and it constantly reminds us of the universality of suffering and of the almost infinite corruptibility of the flesh. . . Yet all this is merely a counterpoint to his theme, which is the pandemic spiritual disorder of bourgeois society." New Yorker

"The characterizations are solid and the intricate narrative has intensity and sweep."
+ Atlantic 181:121 My '48 130w

Booklist 44:313 My 15 '48

"This is not an easy book to review, as it presents a highly idealistic theme worked out through repulsively realistic incidents. It is an attack upon the corruptions and temptations of the medical profession and it carries to the nth degree the unfairness, the exaggeration of half-truths and forced truths inherent in all such wholesale attacks. In fact, there seems to the present reviewer a strain of sadism in the nauseating details of physical and mental disease, of needless and immoral surgery, of scientific fads, political venality and the charnelhouse atmosphere of the post-mortem piled up so unmercifully by the author." Katherine Brégy
Cath World 167:277 Je '48 300w

Reviewed by J. S. Kennedy
Cath World 168:212 D '48 100w

"The continuity is somewhat confused. Van der Meersch is a keen student of Tolstoy (whom he closely resembles in his intense religiosity, his compassion, and his interest in naturism) and works on a large-scale canvas, with little concern for the niceties of plot. He is most successful in the interludes and episodes of medical life which compose the background of the novel." Jex Martin
+ — Chicago Sun Ap 6 '48 600w

"'Bodies and Souls' is one of the most important and least superficially adroit novels to have come out of France recently. There is, undoubtedly, something over-eager and overgrown about this big book and its plunge across the field of French medicine. But anyone willing to meet a serious work seriously will recognize that 'Bodies and Souls' fulfills, in the very prodigality of its characters, incidents, observations, the first and last condition of the novel form." Warren Ramsey
+ Commonweal 48:683 Ap 30 '48 1350w

Kirkus 16:223 My 1 '48 150w

"A crowded novel that is topical in a good sense of the word and appears to have been very well translated." Charles Marriott
+ Manchester Guardian p3 Mr 12 '48 330w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
New Repub 118:24 Mr 15 '48 650w

"This is a painful book, with its scores of sufferers, its grim scenes on operating-tables, in wards, and in stricken homes. But it is a book in which, rising above the interminable sound of man's woe, there speaks the voice of affirmation, saying: beyond self-love lies the love of man for his brother, and by this love alone shall he be saved." Virgilia Peterson
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Mr 14 '48 650w

"The tract may, for all I know, save a few lay souls and even a few doctors; it is a serious, vastly well-meaning tract, honorable in intention. But a richly endowed realist lies buried in these pages, buried by the moral attitudes he feels compelled to dramatize. The novel is another massively over-simplified chronicle of 'French degeneration.' Will this conception finally force its way into the history books: that Frenchmen did nothing between 1918 and 1938 but disintegrate." Albert Guerard, jr.
N Y Times p20 Mr 28 '48 600w

"'Bodies and Souls' is an impressive work. The latter half of the novel, which in the French edition appeared in two volumes, seems to me to suffer from the too frequent intrusions of the author's moralizing, but despite its longueurs and the evangelical purposes thus frankly disclosed, it remains a work of passionate intensity, pathos, and dramatic power." J. M. Lalley
+ — New Yorker 24:121 Mr 13 '48 1050w

"A French lawyer has performed the miracle of writing this long, readable, anguish-filled book about the daily life of a hospital—an astonishing performance for a man not of the medical profession." E. C. Hugli
+ Sat R of Lit 31:11 Jl 10 '48 450w

"The intrigue and corruption apparently inseparable from the French medical world are courageously exposed. But this is a clumsy book. The characters are wooden and the emotions mostly unconvincing. The human element is overwhelmed by a mass of technical medical detail, and there are accounts of more than fifteen operations." Robert Lee
— + Spec 180:296 Mr 5 '48 180w

Reviewed by L. S. Munn
Springf'd Republican p12B My 16 '48 240w

Times [London] Lit Sup p173 Mr 27 '48 240w

MEIGS, ELIZABETH BLEECKER. White winter; a story of Scarlet Hill; il. by Frederick T. Chapman. 209p $2.50 Bobbs 48-8490

A sequel to Scarlet Hill (Book Review Digest 1947). This is the story of a winter on Scarlet Hill, the farm near Albany, where Miss Pooh lived with her family, the French war orphan the family had adopted, and their beloved horses.

"Author writes of real American home life of the very best sort. Recommended for ages 9-12." D. M. Blasco
+ Library J 74:69 Ja 1 '49 80w

"Good values in the horse and riding parts mixed with too much whimsy and sentimentality in the musical and family relationship parts. Writing is amateurish. Not recommended." E. W. Turpin
— + Library J 74:69 Ja 1 '49 110w

Sat R of Lit 31:29 N 13 '48 50w

MEIKLEJOHN, ALEXANDER. Free speech and its relation to self-government. 107p $2 Harper

323.443 Liberty of speech 48-4901

Three lectures given at the University of Chicago and later at other universities, with an added chapter called Reflections. "The book discusses a principle of law. It is written, however, not by a lawyer, but by a teacher. It springs from a strong conviction that a primary task of American education is to arouse and to cultivate, in all the members of the body politic, a desire to understand what our national plan of government is. The book, therefore, is a challenge to all of us, as citizens, to study the Constitution. That constitution derives whatever validity, whatever meaning, it has, not from its acceptance by our forefathers one hundred and sixty years ago, but from its acceptance by us, now." (Foreword)

"This book is an unsuccessful attempt to perform a noble service. The author is a man of distinction and high purpose, a writer, teacher, former college president. He has long been known for his defense of civil liberty, or intellectual freedom, or the unrestricted dissemination of truth; and for his indefatigable efforts in this field he deserves full commendation and gratitude. . . The book seems to me, in fact, a juggling with words, at a critical time when we yearn for something more than words." R. H. Markham

— Christian Science Monitor p14 S 22 '48 550w

Kirkus 16:274 Je 1 '48 140w

"Don't be deceived by the quiet and gentle manner of Meiklejohn's Free Speech and Its Relation to Self-Government. . . Meiklejohn's brief book manages to give a new edge to some of the old issues. He writes not as a liberal attacking the Tory witch-hunters or making a plea for tolerance, but as an unrelenting radical attacking the liberal dogmas as ineffective."

+ — New Repub 119:21 S 13 '48 1450w

"Professor Meiklejohn's book has striking importance. It discusses a clear and present problem. It is needed in these days of reappraisal of assaults by Communists and Fascists on the matrix of our society—our concept of free speech. The trial of Foster and his Communist underground operating fellows will become more meaningful to readers of this volume." M. L. Ernst

+ Sat R of Lit 31:15 S 18 '48 650w

School & Society 68:256 O 9 '48 10w

Wis Lib Bul 44:162 O '48

MELLICK, ANDREW D., jr. Lesser crossroads; ed. by Hubert G. Schmidt from The story of an old farm. 402p $5 Rutgers univ. press

974.944 New Jersey—Social life and customs 48-8149

First published in 1889 and called The Story of an Old Farm, this book has been cut from 743 pages to less than 400. It is the account of a middle-class German family, the Moelichs, who came to this country in 1735, and in 1751 settled in Somerset county, New Jersey. Besides being a story of one family, the book contains much historical material about the life of the country people in that section of New Jersey, up to and including the time of the Revolution. Index.

Chicago Sun p9X N 21 '48 170w

"For those who relish tales and descriptions of life in the colonies this is a pleasant volume."

+ Current Hist 15:293 N '48 70w

"Such a lovely looking book—I enjoyed holding it, examining it, but I frankly didn't expect to do more than skim its pages. I found myself reading it, chapter by chapter, for the charm of its recapturing of days long past."

+ Kirkus 16:473 S 1 '48 190w

"Highly recommended for all New Jersey libraries and for all others with a growing collection of Americana." H. S. Taylor

+ Library J 73:1270 S 15 '48 100w

"For many readers the chapters dealing with slavery in the colonies, with transportation, with religion or drinking may be the most interesting in the book. But 'Lesser Crossroads' will not be called exciting by any of its readers. It will keep no one on the edge of his chair or in that state of hypnosis which makes it impossible, as the advertisements say, 'to put it down.' If you read 'Lesser Crossroads' you will undoubtedly put it down many times. But I think you will pick it up again." Jessamyn West

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p18 O 17 '48 950w

N Y Times p44 N 28 '48 360w

MELLQUIST, JEROME, and WIESE, LUCIE, eds. Paul Rosenfeld; voyager in the arts. 284p $3.50 Creative age

B or 92 Rosenfeld, Paul 48-6800

A composite portrait of the critic, Paul Rosenfeld, who died two years ago. It is composed of fifty-odd essays, most of them by people who knew him personally or professionally. Partial contents: Paul Rosenfeld: three phases, by Edmund Wilson; Dial days, by Alyse Gregory; The Caravan venture, by Alfred Kreymborg; Lyric wisdom, by Lewis Mumford; Prompter of fiction, by R. P. Warren; Parallel in art critics, by Francis Steegmuller; St. Martin's cloak, by Malcolm Cowley; An anomaly in literary New York, by Allen Tate; A verdict, by Aaron Copland; A neighbor's face, by Mark Van Doren; Anticipating a concert, by Roy Harris; Critical patron, by Angna Enters. Bibliography.

"This collection of letters, essays, and poems, and paragraphs would have made [Rosenfeld] feel richer than he knew, for plainly he was part of many people's lives, prompter to their integrity, kind to their youth, and delicate censor when they stooped to mere commercialism. The respect and racy appreciation with which Edmund Wilson leads off, the affection with which his editors have traced his friends and protegees, the way in which each has contributed some chapter of a story, all bring back the eager chubby presence, the solitary but social fellow, whose North Star was Art." Ernestine Evans

+ Commonweal 48:169 My 28 '48 650w

"A competent and comprehensive symposium."

+ Kirkus 16:160 Mr 15 '48 210w

"Enthusiastically recommended." A. S. Plaut

+ Library J 73:709 My 1 '48 110w

Reviewed by Lawrence Morton

Music Lib Assn Notes 5:566 S '48 800w

"To the best of my knowledge, I never set eyes on Paul Rosenfeld in my life; reading this book I have a sense of loss." Rolfe Humphries

+ Nation 167:24 Jl 3 '48 550w

Reviewed by John Farrelly

New Repub 119:36 S 27 '48 800w

"Reading these essays on Paul Rosenfeld, whose sudden death in 1946 cut off so astonishing a history of singleminded devotion to the arts in America, has been a curious and often moving experience for me. . . So many writers usually hostile to each other have found a common ground in their feeling for him that one has almost the sense of their forming a protective ring around his name and work, as if to make up for the bleakness of his last years. And perhaps involuntarily, they have joined to write a deeper history of our literary life than any critic has done." Alfred Kazin

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 My 30 '48 1500w

"This unusual book came into being because Jerome Mellquist possesses the same kind of selfless devotion to the arts that Paul Rosenfeld possessed. At the time of Rosenfeld's death . . . Mellquist was shocked by the hasty unawareness of what had been lost. . . So he and Lucie Wiese conceived that the best way to remind us of Rosenfeld's value as a critic was to ask as many of the subjects of his criticism as possible, musicians and artists and writers, to say what his work had meant to them. . . In the best essay in the volume Edmund Wilson has provided a portrait of Rosenfeld's mind and temperament in the disciplined and deft tradition of Sainte-Beuve." F. O. Matthiessen

+ N Y Times p6 My 2 '48 1100w

New Yorker 24:122 My 15 '48 120w

"This book is well-named, for Rosenfeld was a perpetual voyager among the arts—and no other critic of our times was more at home among all the arts. . . To read this book is not only to share an act of homage: it is to relive a period in American culture that is already closed, though it seems so near to us in time." Gilbert Chase

+ Sat R of Lit 31:18 My 8 '48 500w

MELTON, ELSTON JOSEPH. Towboat pilot; pen sketches by the author. 279p il $4 Caxton printers 48-5545

Story of Tom Briggs whose sole ambition was to become a towboat pilot. His life is followed from his thirteenth year in 1907, until he is established as a Missouri river pilot in his young manhood.

Booklist 44:282 Ap 15 '48

"A very long, frequently tedious account with much good material which might have been exceptional if the blue pencil had been judiciously employed. . . Reference value for high school libraries—but a steep price for general distribution."

Kirkus 16:24 Ja 15 '48 160w

"Boyhood half of the book is rich in the Tom Sawyer, Huck Finn flavor, and that flavor here is as palatable as ever. Author keeps an adept balance in offering river humor, character development and details of river pilot 'science.' Recommended for light refreshing reading." Clarence Gorchels

+ Library J 73:205 F 1 '48 80w

School & Society 67:127 F 14 '48 20w

MELVILLE, HERMAN. Billy Budd; ed. by F. Barron Freeman; the complete text of the novel and of the unpublished short story. 381p $5 Harvard univ. press
48-9543

'An attempt to present the first accurate transcription, with all variant readings, of the manuscripts of Billy Budd; the first publication of Melville's previously undiscovered short story, 'Baby Budd, Sailor,' out of which he wrote his last novel; the first extended analysis of the novel and short story, together with a biographical account of the neglected last years of his life—the years in which he wrote these works." (Pref) The editor, a member of the Harvard faculty, is an authority on Melville. Bibliography.

"Recommended for college libraries, special collections and large libraries." H. A. Wooster

+ Library J 73:1507 O 15 '48 130w

Nation 168:81 Ja 15 '49 100w

"Critically and textually, this volume is a sound contribution to exact knowledge about Melville." J. H. Birss

+ N Y Times p4 D 26 '48 950w

"What enabled Mr. Freeman to do the job was the discovery some years ago of a hitherto unknown batch of Melville manuscript and notes. From this mass of annotated, crossed-out, reworked and several times rearranged and renumbered pages now in the Harvard Library, Mr. Freeman has dug out both versions of 'Billy Budd' and submits them together, the short story printed for the first time anywhere. This alone is an important contribution to Melville scholarship. But Mr. Freeman's expository and critical essay, which forms almost one-third of the volume, is a further contribution, and a significant one." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 D 3 '48 850w

MELVILLE, HERMAN. Journal of a visit to London and the Continent, 1849-1850; ed. by Eleanor Melville Metcalf. 189p il $3.75 Harvard univ. press
B or 92 48-8939

"For seventeen weeks and two days of 1849-50, Herman Melville, then a young man of thirty with an already established reputation in the literate English-speaking world, kept a journal of a trip to Europe. The immediate purpose of his trip was to find a publisher for White Jacket." (Introd) This volume contains notes by the editor, Melville's granddaughter.

"A very human document which affords some interesting insights on the man and his books. . . The book, very handsomely printed and bound, should interest a wider audience than the growing group of Melville scholars." Mason Wade

+ Commonweal 49:234 D 10 '48 250w

Kirkus 16:568 O 15 '48 100w

"Destitute as it is of any literary quality of its own—you would hardly gather from it that Melville was a writer at all, and this is highly characteristic—his London journal has too much of himself in it not to be a document of great value. Mrs. Metcalf, whose skill as an editor is wholly admirable, has also included an early portrait, hitherto unused in print, which without being a really good portrait hints just fully enough at what the youthful Melville was like to be decidedly worth having." Newton Arvin

+ Nation 167:524 N 6 '48 850w

"The text itself is a model of accurate editing. Because the 'Journal' was not written for the printer, decisions had to be made as to how Melville's loose punctuation, his misspellings of place names, his abbreviations should be rendered. Mrs. Metcalf has met problems of this sort with good sense. Furthermore Melville's handwriting is difficult to decipher, but Mrs. Metcalf is so familiar with it and with the characteristic turns of his mind that she has produced a text which can be completely trusted." Willard Thorp

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p26 N 28 '48 900w

Reviewed by Granville Hicks

N Y Times p4 D 26 '48 900w

MELVILLE, HERMAN. Piazza tales; ed. by Egbert S. Oliver. (Hendricks House bk) 256p $3.50 Farrar, Straus
48-9243

Six magazine stories written by Melville between 1853 and 1856, and first published (with one exception) in Putnam's Monthly magazine. The collection was first published in book form in 1856. This new edition forms the second volume of the Hendricks House, Farrar Straus "Complete Works." The stories included are: The Piazza; Bartleby; Benito Cereno; The Lightning-rod man; The Encantadas; or, Enchanted islands; The Bell-tower.

Nation 168:24 Ja 1 '49 50w

"This volume of collected stories, neglected at the time, 1856, is still chiefly valued because it contains 'Benito Cereno' and 'The Encantadas'; and the remaining stories, while savored and admired by lovers of Melville, will probably still not interest many readers outside the Melville circle."

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p32 N 21 '48 270w

"Done with notes and preface strictly separated from the text, this volume, which was edited by Egbert S. Oliver of Willamette University, is interchangeably useful for library, study, or home users, and should find takers in all three groups. The tales themselves still read well, and while criticism is not yet finished with them, their high place in the annals of the American short story is not likely to shift with the years." V. B.

+ San Francisco Chronicle p6 N 28 '48 140w

MENCKEN, HENRY LOUIS. American language; an inquiry into the development of English in the United States; suppl. 2. 890p $7.50 Knopf

420.9 English language. Americanisms

"The second volume of new material to supplement the fourth edition of Mr. Mencken's 'Inquiry into the Development of English in the United States.' This installment covers the chapters on 'The Pronunciation of American,' 'American Spelling,' 'The Common Speech,' 'Proper Names in America,' and 'American Slang.' . . Among its features are a discussion of the special vocabularies and pronunciations of the various states of the Union, an inquiry into the origins of the names and nicknames of the states, and glossaries of the slang of a number of trades and professions." (New Yorker) Index. For Supplement I see Book Review Digest 1945.

Booklist 44:276 Ap 15 '48

Reviewed by Feike Feikema
Chicago Sun Ap 7 '48 500w

"It is a rich and personal book about what is today probably the world's most interesting language." R. M. H.
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 My 15 '48 550w

Reviewed by T. A. Kirby
Commonweal 48:115 My 14 '48 800w

Kirkus 16:72 F 1 '48 210w

"Few libraries of more than modest size will wish to get along without this book and its predecessors." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 73:556 Ap 1 '48 140w

"Not, I believe, since the days when Max Müller, Archbishop Trench, and William Dwight Whitney were popularizing the result of the first century of scientific work in Indo-European linguistics has a book on language, written in English, found so large a public. Its influence, difficult to trace in detail, has been wide and wholesome. American writing has been the better for it, and so has American linguistic scholarship." George Genzmer
+ Nation 166:472 My 1 '48 1050w

Reviewed by George Mayberry
New Repub 118:16 Ap 12 '48 1750w

"Nobody, doctor of many languages or simpler user of one, can fail to be fascinated by the all-embracing, serried, multifarious curiosity with which Mr. Mencken surveys the abundant tongue we speak in the United States." Carl Van Doren
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Ap 4 '48 1150w

"Mr. Mencken's work is scientifically accurate without being—and the fact adds greatly to its interest—scientifically impartial. I have no doubt that he was drawn into the study of language because it provided him with so splendid an opportunity to shock the respectable and that his monumental work is a part of his war on gentility. Far from complaining of this fact, I am, however, only sorry that he does not more often permit himself in this volume to indulge in his vigorous prejudices and to exhibit his mastery of a unique style. . . He will be remembered as a brilliant writer. This is true, even though it should happen that his opinions as a journalist and his erudition as a scholar should cease to interest readers." J. W. Krutch
+ — N Y Times p3 Ap 4 '48 1900w

"Like its predecessors, very good reading, whether or not you have a particular interest in language."
+ New Yorker 24:124 Ap 10 '48 150w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 14 '48 900w

"It is ironic that a writer who has often deliberately chosen the role of clown and zany should produce, in the three volumes here completed, one of the lasting monuments of American scholarship. But this Mencken has done. Its liveliness and readability should not prevent us from recognizing what solid work has gone into it." A. W. Read
+ Sat R of Lit 31:14 Ap 3 '48 800w

Time 51:114 Ap 12 '48 750w

Times [London] Lit Sup p337 Je 19 '48 5450w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:128 Je '48 240w

"Occasional lapses in the realm of phonetics do not lessen one's admiration for the courage and skill with which Mencken presents in palatable form the results of scholarly research on all aspects of American speech. He has been the great educator of the American people in the significance of their own language. He continues to prod the professors to undertake new labors." R. J. Menner
+ — Yale R n s 38:151 autumn '48 900w

MENEN, AUBREY. Prevalence of witches. 271p $2.75 Scribner
48-5361

A witty satire on modern civilization. The scene is a remote part of India, called Limbo, where civilization has hardly penetrated. A Limbodian chieftain is accused of murder under British civil law, altho according to his own law the deed was no crime. Three educated Englishmen, an American missionary, and a questionable Swami attempt to see justice done.

Booklist 44:249 Mr 15 '48

Reviewed by Alice Eedy
Canadian Forum 28:46 My '48 170w

"When [Mr. Menen] expounds his views on morals and ethics and inquires into the nature of miracles, he is definitely unsound."
Cath World 167:476 Ag '48 210w

"For all who want not only to escape from, but somewhere to escape to, Limbo is highly recommended. . . This is one of the best tales told in a long time, a book to be put into absolutely every hand, as better than the best of spring tonics." Anne Fremantle
+ Commonweal 48:659 Ap 23 '48 500w

"Conversational, controversial, this both stimulates and entertains on an intellectual level."
+ Kirkus 16:57 F 1 '48 170w

"Recommended only for large libraries specializing in material on India." R. P. Tubby
Library J 73:337 F 15 '48 70w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield
Manchester Guardian p3 N 25 '47 150w

"Offers some of the most adroit and exhilarating, not to say adrenaline, satirical writing since Shaw, and I know that is high praise." John Woodburn
+ New Repub 118:24 Ap 19 '48 380w

"The reader of Mr. Menen's first novel will be delighted. It has a unique humor, a sharpness which strikes softly, a depth of perception implied by quick surface strokes. Perhaps the fact that Mr. Menen is half Indian, half Irish, explains this. If so, the combination should be encouraged." Thomas Sugrue
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 F 15 '48 600w

Reviewed by John Bicknell
N Y Times p12 F 29 '48 500w

"It appears that [the] author is of mixed Irish and East Indian ancestry, which may explain the unusual quality of his genius, at once impudent, ironic, and profound. In any event, Mr. Menen has given us a novel of remarkable wit and originality and full of philosophic implications, which are all but concealed beneath his farcically contrived situations and his prodigality of epigram." J. M. Lalley
+ New Yorker 24:92 Mr 6 '48 1250w

" 'The Prevalence of Witches' is a beautifully written satire which pokes fun at modern civilization, its mores, its customs and its pretensions. And it's wonderfully funny too." Edith James
+ San Francisco Chronicle p19 F 29 '48 200w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 7 '48 150w

"This reviewer . . . was dusting off the phrase 'minor classic' when it slowly and sadly dawned upon him that Mr. Menen's conversation-piece was disintegrating in his hands. . . What Mr. Menen is interested in is his dialogue, and a good deal of it is rich, thoughtful, and witty. Quite a lot of it, on the other hand, has a decidedly undergraduate smack to it, although the two principal talkers are described as being fifty and thirty-five respectively—a fact which the author evidently forgets since he later describes them as having been fellow students at Oxford. For that matter, the reader, too, is apt to lose track of the characters, as it eventually becomes plain that it is Mr. Menen himself who is doing the bulk of the talking, all too much of which is pitched in the same key." Jack Iams
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:16 Mr 27 '48 700w

MENEN, AUBREY—Continued

"Brilliant first novel. . . Is witty, amusing and thoroughly entertaining." Robin King

+ Spec 179:784 D 19 '47 80w

"A lively and original first novel, a novel of ideas subscribing to the neo-Peacockian school of amusing, intelligent conversation and fantastic incident, of South Wind and Crome Yellow. It is a school which loses pupils in wartime and fills up quickly during the frivolous aftermath."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p625 D 6 '47 500w

Reviewed by Orville Prescott

Yale R n s 37:765 summer '48 280w

MENJOU, ADOLPHE. It took nine tailors [an autobiography written in collaboration with] M. M. Musselman. (Whittlesey house publication) 238p il $3.50 McGraw

B or 92 Actors and actresses—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. 48-5637

The story of Adolphe Menjou's career from restaurant cashier to movie actor. Contains a chapter on Hollywood golf.

Chicago Sun p8 F 22 '48 80w

"Many cuts in style and arrangement above the usual Hollywood story."

+ Kirkus 16:13 Ja 1 '48 250w

"One of the most entertaining and best written accounts of the movies yet. . . Any follower of the old films will revel in this volume. Recommended for theatre and cinema collections of all large public libraries and for those college libraries where motion pictures are included in the curriculum." George Freedley

+ Library J 73:332 F 15 '48 130w

"This autobiography, though full of clumsily written gags and unbecoming vanity, is loaded with interesting detail on the growth of the movies."

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 F 29 '48 180w

"Every bit of 'It Took Nine Tailors' is in episodic form and is, therefore, susceptible to being filmed without substantial changes. It would, I am sure, be underestimating Mr. Menjou to imagine that this state of affairs is anything but deliberate." D. M. Mankiewicz

N Y Times p20 Mr 14 '48 550w

"The chapters about the early years of film making—notably one about Charlie Chaplin's production of 'A Woman of Paris,' in which the author made his first success—are entertaining as history, but the book as a whole has a glib, feature-story tone that robs it of almost all personality."

— + New Yorker 24:88 F 28 '48 110w

"There are mildly amusing stories of those early days of movie-producing, and the anecdotes about the stars are not the dog-eared ones which periodically pop up in the movie magazines and studio press releases." Paul Speegle

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Mr 7 '48 370w

+ Springf'd Republican p10B Mr 7 '48 330w

MENNINGER, WILLIAM CLAIRE. Psychiatry in a troubled world; yesterday's war and today's challenge. 636p $6 Macmillan

616.8 Psychology, Pathological. World war, 1939-1945—Psychological aspects 48-3000

"Encyclopaedic treatment, with copious references to the literature and substantial statistical back-up, of psychiatric experiences in World War II, coupled with a consideration of the implications of that experience for peacetime civil life. Reviews the failure to make use of the lessons of World War I, the initial and further handicaps which psychiatry faced in the army. Considers the emotional stresses and strains as well as the supports of army life and combat; then moves on to a consideration of the psychoses, maladjustments and behaviour disorders which existed, the special problems of the educationally deficient, and the organization and operation of army psychiatric services of induction, selection, restraining and prevention. On the civil side, covers adjustment after discharge, the handicapped veteran, mental health in the home, and the problem of supplying medical care for the entire population." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by J. M. Cunningham

Am J Pub Health 38:1703 D '48 400w

"It is written with such clarity, such humanity, and from such carefully documented experience as to dispel much of the public misunderstanding and doubt about the wisdom of looking into mental and emotional states as an essential approach to the healing of disease, both organic and functional. Few among us will find any real objection to the theory of the psychiatrists, so far as it goes, however much we may differ with the methods used." Neil Martin

+ Christian Science Monitor p11 D 30 '48 1050w

Kirkus 16:207 Ap 15 '48 190w

"Useful in general collections of some size and special collections in fields indicated." R. E. Kingery

Library J 73:706 My 1 '48 210w

Reviewed by Lionel Ovesey

New Repub 119:24 O 11 '48 800w

"Dr. Menninger has carefully blended enthusiasm with honesty and detail with warmth. . . In his attitude toward psychiatry both in war and in peace, Dr. Menninger is a realist. . . There will be agreement with the detailed analysis of the needs that must be met if psychiatry is to be fully utilized—the need for more well-trained psychiatrists, clinical psychologists, nurses and other associated personnel, the need for research, and the need for public and professional understanding. To the latter need, Dr. Menninger has made a real contribution in this blueprint of what psychiatry can do in a troubled world, for no one knows better than he does that psychiatry was on trial in the Army and now is on trial in civilian life." H. A. Rusk

+ N Y Times p30 S 12 '48 800w

Reviewed by I. W. Voorhees

Sat R of Lit 31:19 O 2 '48 700w

MENNINGER, WILLIAM CLAIRE. Psychiatry: its evolution and present status. 138p $2 Cornell univ. press

616.8 Psychology, Pathological 48-6958

The three Messinger lectures on the evolution of civilization, given by the author at Cornell university in the fall of 1947. "Dr. William C. Menninger draws upon his vast experience and that of others in discussing the mechanisms involved in man's struggle with emotional conflicts. He portrays the background of psychiatry's growth and development in a brief history. He discusses the factors of resistance with which man is endowed to combat stress, and he tells what happens when resistance either collapses or is overwhelmed—a catastrophe not unlike that which occurs when bacteria overwhelm the body with infection. Dr. Menninger also calls attention to society's ills and suggests corrective measures based on observations and analyses of individuals." (Pref) Index.

Current Hist 15:102 Ag '48 50w

Reviewed by M. R. Brown

N Y Times p17 Ag 1 '48 360w

School & Society 68:32 Je 10 '48 20w

MENNINGER, WILLIAM CLAIRE, and LEAF, MUNRO. You and psychiatry. 175p $2.50 Scribner

616.8 Psychology, Pathological. Personality 48-7159

An introduction to psychiatry, written for the layman. "Dr. Menninger and Mr. Leaf examine the growth of the personality from the earliest formative experiences of childhood to psychological maturity. . . The structure of the personality—the interplay of the Id, the Ego, and the Super-Ego—is explained and the function of such mental mechanisms as rationalization, compensation, and projection.

In a chapter entitled 'If You Go to the Psychiatrist' [there is an] account of the techniques of the science, the uses of psychoanalysis, hypnosis, and shock therapy. Finally, the authors explain the application of psychiatry to you." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 44:363 Jl 1 '48

Kirkus 16:246 My 15 '48 140w

Reviewed by M. R. Brown
N Y Times p17 Ag 1 '48 330w

"A readable study of the mind's growth from infancy, with deviations from normal explained clearly in terms of everyday experiences." S. M.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p20 Ag 29 '48 200w

"This little volume is not subtle, not profound, and obviously does not pretend to be. Meant as a primer for newcomers to the field of popular psychiatric literature, it is ostensibly paced for that section of the public which never quite finished high school, and some of it might even be navigated by advanced mouth-readers. Nevertheless, sophisticates who happen upon the book may find themselves sneaking it from their youngsters and reading it on the sly for the sheer pleasure of getting an interesting story about themselves and their personalities in a simple and effortless way." Julie Eisenbud
+ Sat R of Lit 31:18 O 2 '48 500w

Springf'd Republican p10A Jl 18 '48 70w

MERCER, CECIL WILLIAM (DORNFORD YATES, pseud). Berry scene. 313p $2.75 Putnam 48-1586

Tale of upper class English life from about 1909 when the Pleydell family bought their first car, thru two world wars, to their retirement to Portugal. Fills in the history of the author's other books about Berry and Jonah and their families.

Kirkus 16:6 Ja 1 '48 90w

"Mr. Yates tries desperately to be humorous and occasionally achieves it in his comic situations but his 'witty' dialogue is on the elementary school level. You can safely recommend this book to the less intellectual Anglophiles. The smart ones will want Waugh or Huxley." M. H. McElfresh
Library J 73:397 Mr 1 '48 70w

"These stories have a bouquet and sparkle not easy to analyze, but unmistakable. Mr. Yates writes with an ease that must be the fruit of much effort. His characters accept life as a lark, and on them it looks good."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p23 My 9 '48 110w

Springf'd Republican p10B Ap 25 '48 110w

MEREDITH, WILLIAM MORRIS. Ships and other figures. (Princeton univ. Library. J. Frank Rushton memorial fund publications) 40p $2 Princeton univ. press 811 48-1440

"Meredith's work first appeared in the Yale series of Younger Poets. His new book, a Poetry Club Selection, represents some of his writing done while serving as a naval officer in the Pacific and later while teaching creative writing at Princeton." Library J

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Chicago Sun Ap 5 '48 250w

"One of the best of the new poets." Gerald MacDonald
+ Library J 73:948 Je 15 '48 60w

"Mr. Meredith's poetry is cool, intellectual, and self-contained. . . His detachment bespeaks no incapacity for more overt emotional expression, but a deliberate decision to set down his observations and conclusions as clearly and succinctly as possible, in the reasonable expectation that the reader who admires this poetry for its intelligence and elegance will have the wit to see through to its emotional strength." Milton Crane
+ N Y Times p10 Ag 22 '48 360w

"It is a matter for regret that in his second book of verse Mr. William Meredith does not come closer to realizing the great promise that was evident in Love Letter from an Impossible Land. True, there are passages here of surer power than any that occur in the earlier book; but the total impression of Ships and Other Figures is one of tentative preludizing, of étude rather than authentic composition." Dudley Fitts
Poetry 73:111 N '48 1350w

"That a poet today can still write with affection of people and things and communicate that feeling to others, is something to celebrate: especially since Mr. Meredith obviously maintains lines of communication unimpaired with both the outer world and the inner world of the imagination. And, like the metaphysicals, he can feel and think at the same time." G. P. Meyer
+ Sat R of Lit 31:24 My 15 '48 380w

MERGENDAHL, CHARLES HENRY. This spring of love. 253p $2.75 Doubleday
48-7019

Story of a love affair between an American officer (on furlough in New Zealand) and a girl whose soldier husband has been missing for two years.

Kirkus 16:153 Mr 15 '48 130w

"If all the words about drinks and love were deleted, the book would be at least two thirds shorter, leaving hardly a final third to cover the plot and the war. For those who never tire of sexy love stories." Anne Whitmore
Library J 73:813 My 15 '48 80w

'The only unusual aspect of this novel might have been its New Zealand background, but the author apparently believes that the love interest is sufficient to carry the story, and has excluded almost everything else."
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ag 8 '48 70w

"That the moral débâcle, with which at the ultimate moment readers are presented, had no preparation in revealed weaknesses in the nature of Steve Ahlers seems to argue that the author intended a lighter thesis than that which he at last adopted. Yet Mr. Mergendahl's story . . . discloses comprehensions and affections of which it is pleasant and profitable to read. They make 'This Spring of Love' superior, within the limitations already defined, to many current novels." Lawrence Lee
+ — N Y Times p6 Je 13 '48 500w

"All the elements of a moving story are here. Undoubtedly it is a capable performance yet the interest would have been better sustained if Mr. Mergendahl had used the novella or long short story form." J. V.
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p21 Jl 18 '48 100w

MERRIAM, ROBERT EDWARD. Dark December; the full account of the Battle of the Bulge. 234p maps $3 Ziff-Davis
940.542 World war, 1939-1945—Campaigns and battles. Ardennes, Battle of the, 1944-1945 47-4797

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"Dark December provides satisfactory answers to questions about the battle. Although the book lacks citations, this reviewer is convinced of its sincerity and authenticity. The author was chief of the Ardennes section of the Historical Division, European Theater of Operations. The book is based on the official volumes of the battle, personal notes and papers, and interviews with both German and American commanders. The author has no apparent axe to grind, and he himself points out the weaknesses of the book: insufficient attention to the supply and air phases of the battle." R. C. Loehr
+ Am Hist R 53:310 Ja '48 550w

Foreign Affairs 26:571 Ap '48 50w

MERRIAM, R. E.—Continued
Reviewed by W. H. Hale
New Repub 118:29 Ja 12 '48 310w

"The author is well prepared to write this book, having personally interviewed many members of both the German and Allied high commands and, as a member of the Historical Division of the War Department, having prepared the official history of the Battle of the Bulge. The book first recites the German plan and then the Allied decisions, recounts each of the several important separate tactical phases, and concludes with an analysis of the over-all results of the battle. The book is not indexed but has a detailed table of contents, a dozen easily understood maps, and is thoroughly readable."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:57 Mr '48 210w

MERRICK, ELLIOTT. Green Mountain farm. 209p $3.50 Macmillan
818 Country life 48-10795

During the depression the author took his wife and small son to live on a run-down Vermont farm. Their experiences were so much to their liking that they bought another farm, put the house into liveable condition and took to farming. When they needed money the author would teach or act as counselor in a camp. This account of their Vermont interlude is spiced with anecdotes and character sketches of their Vermont neighbors.

Booklist 45:102 N 15 '48

"An experienced craftsman, he writes vividly and well."
+ Kirkus 16:468 S 1 '48 120w

"One more book to add to the list of those on the joys of country living. . . Should be enjoyed by those who wish to get their country living vicariously and by those who want to know how others are making out." M. P. McKay
+ Library J 73:1383 O 1 '48 100w

Reviewed by Richardson Wright
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 N 28 '48 280w

"It is the human warmth which makes Elliot Merrick's book so rich, that and the man's thinking. He likes people, and he found an assortment of deeply human people among his neighbors. The running account of old Zack and his marital troubles is excellent reading. So are the stories about a dozen others. In a purely personal vein, the account of the Merrick's second baby is one of the book's highlights. To my mind, the best chapter in the book is the one inspired by a canoe trip on Lake Champlain." Hal Borland
+ N Y Times p30 D 5 '48 600w

"Like Thoreau, and unlike most of us lesser mortals, Elliott Merrick knows how to live and what to live for. His book is a successful attempt to communicate his knowledge. . . Merrick has been an explorer, a teacher, an editor, but he is primarily a writer and a poet. Therefore, one might expect rhapsodic interludes. . . But such is not the case. These things are spoken of calmly; the manner is dignified and restrained." P. A. S.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 N 28 '48 350w

"Primarily Elliott Merrick is interested in the sensuous experiences that come to one who turns to nature and outdoor life, and the simple, reflective philosophy that is the outgrowth of such living. For all like-minded readers 'Green Mountain Farm' is heartily recommended. . . My one criticism of this book is that the author sometimes carries the philosophy of the simple life into over-simple generalities." Thomas Foster
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:28 D 11 '48 470w

"This informal account by a Yale man, told with a humorous twist, is good reading for anyone and presents a challenge to those who simply sit and wait for some change to take place." S. M. Neal
+ Springf'd Republican p9B N 28 '48 330w

MERRILL, FRANCIS ELLSWORTH. Social problems on the home front; a study of wartime influences. 258p $3.50 Harper
301.153 U.S.—Social conditions. World war, 1939-1945—U.S. 48-1366

A study of the social upheavals resulting from World war II. It analyses the effects of the war upon family organization, childhood, adolescence, sex offenses, prostitution, delinquency, crime, and personal adjustment. Index.

"This is a well written and well organized volume which should serve admirably as a postscript to books and courses in the general field of social disorganization; it should serve equally well as a jumping off place for more comprehensive study of the effects of total war upon a highly individualistic people." J. H. S. Bossard
+ Am Soc R 13:499 Ag '48 550w

Reviewed by J. J. Honigmann
Ann Am Acad 259:157 S '48 290w

"Mr. Merrill based his observations and conclusions on a comprehensive set of articles and documents, many of which are mentioned in copious footnotes. He exercises restrained judgment and presents his materials in language that can be clearly understood by a layman in the social science field. Persons who desire to be informed as to how World War II has influenced the social problems in the area of human relationships in this country should weigh the findings of this volume." S. G. Cole
Christian Century 65:685 Jl 7 '48 650w

"A scholarly, analytical analysis. . . Observant, well-documented commentary."
+ Kirkus 15:688 D 15 '47 130w

"It is factual and objective,—and perhaps for that very reason, a somewhat uninspired study of the role of war in intensifying or reversing trends in a selected number of social problems, primarily those of family and youth. Findings are well documented. They largely only substantiate what must be evident to most intelligent observers." Rudolph Hirsch
Library J 72:1683 D 1 '47 70w

School & Society 67:127 F 14 '48 20w

Reviewed by G. V. Price
Social Forces 27:171 D '48 500w

"The reader who is not an expert in sociology will find this little volume very easy to read. . . Pessimism as to the future is all too prevalent today. The schoolboy requires something to give him hope; something to make him feel life is worth living. This book will not give him that hope, and, hence, its use should be confined to the colleges where the readers are more likely to have developed a philosophy that can counteract the gloomy conclusions which can be drawn, all to easily from it. But, that is most probably where the author intended it should be used." W. T. Grenfell
+ — Social Studies 39:330 N '48 650w

MERRILL, MAUD AMANDA. Problems of child delinquency. 403p il $3.50 Houghton
364.36 Juvenile delinquency 47-30851

Study of juvenile delinquency presented thru individual case histories and statistical data. The author is professor of psychology at Stanford university and the wife of a juvenile court judge. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by W. C. Reckless
Am J Soc 53:509 My '48 450w

"The book contributes little that is actually new, but serves to bring some more or less objective support to clinical formulations which hitherto have had little such support. The discussion of treatment is exceedingly limited and not very satisfactory. Such discussion is, however, not a stated objective of the book. The book can be recommended to those who wish to study the question of how delinquents get that way." R. L. Jenkins
+ — Am Soc R 13:113 F '48 600w

Reviewed by J. O. Reinemann
Ann Am Acad 255:220 Ja '48 460w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 68:307 O 30 '48 270w

"While the author states that she has not attempted to present a rounded account of the literature on delinquency, it is regrettable that she did not take into consideration, as a frame of reference in the interpretation of her findings, more of the research reported in the field during the past ten years. . . The presentation of tables throughout the volume is excellent. . . A most complete presentation of the statistical findings is to be found in the appendixes." W. C. Kvaraceus
School R 56:56 Ja '48 1500w

MERTON, THOMAS. Exile ends in glory; the life of a Trappistine, Mother M. Berchmans. 311p il $3.75 Bruce pub.
B or 92 Marie Berchmans, Mother 48-7644

"A biography of Mother Mary Berchmans, foundress of a Trappistine convent in Japan." Sat R of Lit

"This book is much more than the story of a life; it is the exposition of an ideal. Thomas Merton, himself a Trappist, makes clear the wisdom and the beauty of the Cistercian way. By describing Mother Berchmans in her novitiate, in her profession, in her vow of stability, in her daily round of work and prayer, he has made real the nature of that special vocation. . . Thomas Merton has done a real service in making the spirit of his order clear to American readers. . . But there are times when the slender thread of narrative can hardly bear the weight of the excerpts from Mother Berchmans' spiritual journals. The story halts." M. R. Grennan
+ — Cath World 168:87 O '48 500w

"'Exile Ends In Glory' is somewhat meagre in its presentation of the normal Trappist life, giving us instead a spirituality based upon Saint Margaret Mary, Gemma Galgani and the Little Flower. This will probably make it all the more acceptable to most of the readers it will find, though there may be some who will wonder why a great emphasis was not laid upon liturgical piety. The literary style, while above the average of contemporary American biography, is less distinguished than one might have expected." Theodore Maynard
+ — Commonweal 48:432 Ag 13 '48 350w

Reviewed by A. F. Wolfe
Sat R of Lit 31:30 O 9 '48 230w

MERTON, THOMAS. Figures for an apocalypse. 111p $2.50 New directions
811 Roman Catholic poetry 48-2906

The third volume of poems by a Trappist monk, written at Our Lady of Gethsemani monastery in Kentucky. The poems have strong religious feeling. Includes an essay on poetry and the contemplative life.

Reviewed by Anne Fremantle
Commonweal 48:430 Ag 13 '48 450w

Reviewed by Babette Deutsch
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Jl 4 '48 850w

"Not as fresh as and seems less enduring than his 'Thirty Poems,' published in 1944. What gave promise to the first book was the genuineness of its inspiration which came in the first flush of his conversion. The poems that followed it arrived as an anticlimax in emotional experience. And, while the present volume of verse, as well as the autobiography, contains charming descriptive passages of things seen and felt at the Trappist Monastery in Kentucky, most of the poems in the book seemed forced by the action of the author's will, and are more exclamatory than his earlier work." Horace Gregory
+ — N Y Times p33 O 3 '48 180w

"His dislike for Mammon, though patently real, often pushes him into a shrill prophetic tone that sounds strained and uncharitable compared to the tone of his purely devotional verse."
New Yorker 24:111 Ap 24 '48 80w

Reviewed by Harvey Breit
Poetry 73:46 O '48 950w

Reviewed by T. H. Ferril
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 13 '48 110w

"So arresting are these poems that I was driven back to investigate the earlier work of Thomas Merton, a book called 'A man in the Divided Sea'—and that in itself is good evidence of the effect of his writing." Howard Griffin
+ Sat R of Lit 31:21 Jl 10 '48 460w

"Merton has become more doctrinal, more the Catholic poet in this book, but his verse is as powerful as ever, as incandescent in its tropes with their effective use of the objects of the world and of faith." Eugene Davidson
+ Yale R n s 37:748 summer '48 220w

MERTON, THOMAS. Seven storey mountain. 429p $3 Harcourt
B or 92 48-8645

Autobiography of a young American poet, who, after his conversion to Roman Catholicism entered the Trappist monastery in Kentucky. Index.

Booklist 45:87 N 1 '48

"The book is bracing in its realism, sincere, direct and challenging. A man who talks almost exclusively with God is no respecter of persons. Merton has a message for the world, for Catholics and non-Catholics alike. . . This message he has uttered with intelligence, ardor and art. The Seven Storey Mountain is a prolonged prayer as well as a great book." F. X. Connolly
+ Cath World 168:167 N '48 750w

Reviewed by J. O. Supple
Chicago Sun D 28 '48 550w

"The book is written simply; the sensory images of boyhood are wonderful, and the incisive quality of his criticism, that tartness of his humor have not been sentimentalized by Merton's entry into a monastery. . . 'The Seven Storey Mountain' is a book that deeply impresses the mind and the heart for days. It fills one with love and hope and shame—shame for one's self." George Miles
+ Commonweal 49:16 O 15 '48 600w

"Any frank tale of an individual's spiritual pilgrimage has a certain amount of fascination for the reader. And when the pilgrimage itself is of an unusual nature and is related with wit, wisdom and real literary skill it is apt to command wide and favorable attention. . . This is a book which could be classified as autobiography, as well as religious. Its appeal will not be exclusively to Catholics."
+ Kirkus 16:617 D 1 '48 220w

"Merton, or Frater Louis, as he is known in the Order, is already known as a poet. He is a gifted writer and this book is an extraordinary record of religious experience. It will interest both Catholics and non-Catholics. Recommended." G. D. McDonald
+ Library J 73:1383 O 1 '48 110w

Reviewed by Rolfe Humphries
Nation 167:526 N 6 '48 600w

Reviewed by John Farrelly
New Repub 119:25 O 4 '48 950w

"The fervor of his progress to the Trappist monastery at Gethsemani is deeply moving. It is a difficult matter to write about, but I think there will be many who, however alien the experience may remain to them personally, will put the narrative down with wonder and respect. . . Merton's book is of value by reason, more than anything else, of his clear realization of his own intellectual and moral girth." George Shuster
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 O 24 '48 900w

"Mr. Merton's writings have an urgent and phenomenal quality. In both prose and verse, they are nervous in texture, rapid in movement; their explicit meanings can be grasped without too much thought. His writings are filled with a youthful energy that seems younger than his age of 33." Horace Gregory
N Y Times p4 O 3 '48 1000w

"Non-religious readers are apt to find Merton's youthful helling around and subsequent remorse something less than the stuff of a

MERTON, THOMAS—Continued
major battle between the forces of good and evil, and to be disconcerted by his sense of a direct personal relationship with God, St. Joseph and the Virgin Mary. . . [However] much of the book is eloquent, and all of it is high-spirited and undisputatious—rare qualities in the literature of converts."
+ New Yorker 24:129 O 9 '48 260w
San Francisco Chronicle p23 D 12 '48 450w

"The author's personal history is peripheral to the story of his religious experience. 'The Seven Storey Mountain' is essentially the odyssey of a soul. As such it stands as a more human document than the comparable 'Apologia Pro Vita Sua' of John Henry Newman. It has warmth and gusto and Augustinian wit." A. F. Wolfe
+ Sat R of Lit 31:30 O 9 '48 550w
School & Society 69:47 Ja 15 '49 50w
Reviewed by O. J. Aldrich
Springf'd Republican p7B N 7 '48 210w

METCALFE, JUNE M. Aluminum from mine to sky. (Whittlesey house publication) 128p il $2.50 McGraw 669.7 Aluminum—Juvenile literature 48-5058

"The author traces the discovery and development of aluminum and describes the mining, fabrication, and uses of this man-made metal." (Booklist) Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 44:221 F 15 '48

"Unusually interesting reading and excellent photographs characterize this book. Nontechnical and descriptive, it heightens interest by the occasional use of the expressive idiom of the industry. . . Highly recommended for ages 12-15." Frances Morrison
+ Library J 73:49 Ja 1 '48 140w

MEYER, CORD. Peace or anarchy. 233p $2.50 Little 341 United nations (organization). Peace. International relations 47-6459
For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"The sane and highly moral quality of this thesis is indeed compelling. Its chief defect lies in the underlying assumption that it is reason, humanitarianism and the interests of the people which guide the foreign policies of nations."
+ — Columbia Law R 48:311 Mr '48 140w
Foreign Affairs 26:567 Ap '48 30w
Reviewed by D. S. Gillmor
Survey G 36:701 D '47 330w

"Mr. Meyer is advocating limited federation rather than complete international government. He is generally more effective when he is laying the ground work for his plan than when he is explaining how it will work. His interpretation of the security possibilities in the present arrangement is deliberately narrow. Mr. Meyer also makes some unproved assumptions." R. C. Snyder
+ — Yale R n s 37:534 spring '48 550w

MEYER, ERNEST LUDWIG. Bucket boy; a Milwaukee legend. 236p $3 Hastings house
917.7595 Milwaukee—Social life and customs 47-12227

"Stories of a German-American group in the Milwaukee of 40 years ago, told by the adolescent son of the city editor for a German language newspaper." Booklist

---

"A warm, vivid picture of the thought and customs of a tolerant and liberal group which will evoke nostalgic memories for many readers."
+ Booklist 44:184 Ja 15 '48
Wis Lib Bul 44:105 My '48

MEYER, GLADYS ELEANOR, ed. Studies of children; with an introd. by Dorothy Hutchinson; pub. for the N.Y. school of social work, Columbia university. 176p $2.50 King's crown press
362.7 Child study. Children—Charities, protection, etc. 48-5437

"Presents information compiled by students in the New York School of Social Work and seldom available to the lay person. The psychological problems of pre-school children are carefully reported. Other chapters also present actual case material on topics such as: telling adopted children, day-nursery care for two-year olds, girls involved in sex offenses, babies in search of a home, and the single woman as a foster mother." (N Y Times) No index.

"The greatest value of this book of studies is not in the findings and generalizations but in the well-written and interesting cases that are presented by the ten investigators." P. T. Olson
+ El School J 48:584 Je '48 750w
Reviewed by M. R. Brown
N Y Times p31 Mr 28 '48 90w
San Francisco Chronicle p15 Ap 18 '48 110w
School & Society 67:415 My 29 '48 10w
Social Studies 39:192 Ap '48 30w

"This book is to be highly recommended to those professionals working with children and parents." M. A. Holden
+ Survey 84:316 O '48 400w

MEYER, JEROME SYDNEY. Picture book of the weather; il. by Richard Floethe. 48p $2 Lothrop
551.5 Weather—Juvenile literature 48-11117

Not a "picture book" but a simple explanation of various weather phenomena illustrated with black and white and color drawings instead of photographs and diagrams. Some of the topics considered are: the atmosphere and air pressure; heat and cold; clouds; rain, snow, frost and dew; lightning; rainbows; storms.

Reviewed by A. T. Eaton
Christian Science Monitor p18 D 16 '48 90w
Commonweal 49:147 N 19 '48 130w

"Unfortunately, the text is studded with half truths, over-simplifications, semi-superstitions, and downright errors that drive science teachers mad! All blended with sound scientific facts about weight, motion, pressure of air, etc. The pictures, in two colors, by Richard Floethe, are very decorative."
— + Kirkus 16:556 O 15 '48 130w
Reviewed by E. T. Dobbins
Library J 73:1673 N 15 '48 60w

"Written simply enough for eight-years-olds, it will be understood by older children more fully." I. E.
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 N 14 '48 230w

"A few simple home experiments in physics will further the understanding of readers of 8 and up and parents will bless the book for the answers it provides to inquiring minds. Richard Floethe's illustrations are amusing and decorative." E. L. B.
+ N Y Times p60 N 14 '48 130w

"In the same format as 'Picture Book of Molecules and Atoms' and 'Picture Book of Astronomy,' this is a scientific explanation of the causes of good and bad weather. It is easier to understand than the other two, and the illustrations are charming."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:46 N 13 '48 40w

MEYER, LOUIS H. Plywood; what it is—what it does. 250p il $3.50 McGraw 674 Plywood 47-12508

"Covering the composition, structure, and mechanical characteristics of plywood and kindred laminates, this manual provides a picture of why, when, where and how to use plywood to best advantage. The various types of plywood are discussed and illustrated with emphasis placed on their applicability, superiority, limitations and manufacturing processes." (Publisher's note) Glossary. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 44:264 Ap 1 '48
Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '48
Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 72:1378 O 1 '47 70w

"A handy, brief survey. . . Some information, for example that on panels with honeycomb cores, is presented in book form for the first time."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 32:79 O '47

MEYNIER, GIL. Stranger at the door. 223p $2.75 Scribner
48-5172

"The story of Joe, a mean young man, who spends his time defrauding, terrorizing and killing the little people in his immediate sphere, sometimes for a small financial gain, more often to get even for imagined insults and to bolster his own ego. . . Joe's persecution complex grows steadily as he antagonizes everyone he knows, his only consolation lies in telling himself how smart he is, figuring out angles, and in general acting like a sadistic child, until he eventually fails to figure one angle—and drowns." Kirkus

Kirkus 15:632 N 15 '47 110w

"An unpleasant novel which leaves the reader more uncomfortable with each page of evil thinking and retaliation for fancied insults. Not worthwhile—not even interesting." Anne Whitmore
— Library J 72:1779 D 15 '47 70w
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 My 30 '48 50w
Reviewed by Wilbur Watson
— N Y Times p30 Mr 7 '48 220w
Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p20 F 8 '48 100w

MIDDLE EAST, 1948; Aden, Afghanistan, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Cyprus, Egypt, Iran, 'Iraq, Syria and the Lebanon, Palestine, Saudi Arabia, Transjordan, Turkey, with a section on the League of Arab states. 377p il maps $10 Europa
950 East (Near East) 48-3250

"The preface states that the purpose of this reference book 'is to give factual data on thirteen countries situated in the area termed by the contemporary strategists "The Middle East".' . . The volume is divided into three sections: the League of Arab States, Countries, and a Who's Who in the Middle East. The first section dealing with the League of Arab States includes a brief historical sketch, translations from the Arabic of the Covenant and of the Cultural Treaty, and a directory of the offices of the League. The second or main portion of the book consists of factual information on Aden (Colony and Protectorate), Afghanistan, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan, Cyprus, Egypt, Iran, 'Iraq, Palestine (under Mandate), Saudi Arabia, Syria and the Lebanon, Transjordan, and Turkey, arranged alphabetically by country. The information on each country covers the following topics: Geography, People and Religions, History, Government, Communications, Economic Life, Education, the Press, and a bibliography. . . The last section of the work under review is a Who's Who in the Middle East which gives standard biographical information in a brief form." Subscription Bks Bul

"Although not designed as an explanation of the current warfare in Palestine, the book contains valuable background on the religious, economic and historical forces at play in the Middle East." D. J.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p12 Jl 25 '48 190w

"The material included on each country is concisely and factually presented, and it is evident that an effort has been made to publish the most recent data. . . The bibliographies appear to be quite thorough, including historical and background material as well as titles as recent as 1948. . . The Middle East makes available a great deal of useful material in one volume. It is recommended for those libraries needing detailed current statistics and factual information on the countries in that part of the world."
+ Subscription Bks Bul 19:63 O '48 1250w

MIDDLETON, ROBERT DUDLEY. Newman and Bloxam; an Oxford friendship. 261p il $6 Oxford
B or 92 Newman, John Henry, cardinal. Bloxam, John Rouse A48-3513

"J. R. Bloxam was a Fellow of St. Mary Magdalene College in Oxford when Newman was at Oriel, and this book is the story—told mainly in correspondence—of their friendship." Churchman

"To read this richly documented book is to realize afresh the acuteness of Newman's mind, the richness of his spiritual gifts, and the almost incredible attraction of his personality, qualities which, in sum, help to explain why, once known, he lived in men's thoughts forever." J. J. Reilly
+ Cath World 167:282 Je '48 600w

"It is a valuable addition to the Newman material, for it contains, and is based upon, many hitherto unpublished letters and papers in the possession of Magdalene and the Oratory, Birmingham, where Newman lived in his later years. All students of Newman should add it at once to their collection, and study it carefully." F. J. Moore
+ Churchman 162:17 My 1 '48 300w
Reviewed by Anne Fremantle
Commonweal 48:382 Jl 30 '48 280w

MIERS, EARL SCHENCK, and BROWN, RICHARD ARNOLD, eds. Gettysburg; maps by Harold C. Detje. 308p $3.50 Rutgers univ. press
973.7349 Gettysburg, Battle of, 1863 48-7014

A record of the battle of Gettysburg, made up of ninety-two excerpts taken from the testimony of forty-two witnesses, and joined together by the editors. The excerpts are from diaries, letters, regimental histories, and memoirs of generals, soldiers, farm boys, and housewives. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by W. A. Ganoe
Am Hist R 54:164 O '48 410w
Booklist 44:365 Jl 1 '48
Current Hist 15:39 Jl '48 30w

"The editors' weaving of these accounts into one continuous fabric is skilful and unobtrusive and accomplishes successfully the task they set themselves to do (with the help of several libraries). Recommended to readers who are fascinated by War and Peace, Mary Johnston's Civil War novels, and Hemingway's anthology Men at War." E. F. Walbridge
+ Library J 73:812 My 15 '48 100w

"The climactic battle which took place by accident in the sleepy little Pennsylvania town on the first days of July, 1863, will gain new fascination as a result of the narrative. . . All in all, 'Gettysburg' is a revealing, often moving and generally satisfying book." B. I. Wiley
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 My 23 '48 1200w
Reviewed by Lloyd Lewis
N Y Times p1 My 30 '48 1600w
Reviewed by Keith Kay
San Francisco Chronicle p10 My 29 '48 750w

"This book is a good deal more than a mere anthology of accounts of Gettysburg. The dozens of selections from participants and spectators have been pieced together with painstaking skill, so that they form a connected (indeed, at times a thoroughly integrated) narrative. They exhibit the conflict from many points of view, as seen by men fighting on both sides and citizens who were passive if not

MIERS, E. S.—Continued
neutral. They come as near as prose can to showing 'the battle proper.'" Allan Nevins
+ Sat R of Lit 31:12 Je 5 '48 750w
Springf'd Republican p10B My 23 '48 190w
Time 51:90 My 31 '48 800w

MIGRDICHIAN, VARTKES. Chemistry of organic cyanogen compounds. (Am. chemical soc. Monograph ser) 460p $12 Reinhold
547.1 Cyanogen compounds 47-6693

"Nitriles, or organic cyanides, are a varied and important group of nitrogen-bearing carbon compounds. This monograph is a comprehensive survey of their chemistry, including the chief methods of synthesis, their properties, and the products of reactions in which they are employed. Specific directions are given for the laboratory preparation of selected representative compounds, and methods of preparation are indicated for most of the compounds described. The work follows the general pattern of the series to the extent that it is based on a comprehensive literature survey." N Y New Tech Bks

---

"Such a field is probably too broad to be covered by one book or by one author. That Dr. Migrdichian has not succeeded in his effort to be comprehensive is therefore excusable, particularly by a reader who knows the difficulty of locating descriptions of reactions not indexed by the abstract journals." C. F. Koelsch
Chem & Eng N 26:802 Mr 15 '48 500w

"Because of the very large field presented in the monograph and because of the fact that cyanogen compounds are not only important compounds per se but also are of great usefulness as intermediates in many syntheses, the reviewer believes that this book will make a welcome addition to the reference library of all nitrogen chemists and also to that of most organic chemists." G. B. L. Smith
+ Chem Eng 55:308 Mr '48 500w
Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 72:1616 N 15 '47 60w
N Y New Tech Bks 32:71 O '47
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:102 Mr '48 340w

MIKHAILOV, NIKOLAI NIKOLAEVICH, and POKSHISHEVSKY, VADIM. Soviet Russia, the land and its people [tr. by George H. Hanna]. 374p il maps $3.50 Sheridan
914.7 Russia A48-6368

"A prominent Soviet geographer's survey of the U.S.S.R., in which he takes the reader on an extensive tour of all sixteen republics and brings him up to date on the progress of industry and reconstruction since the war." New Yorker

---

"The book is organized like a journey through the length and breadth of the Soviet Union. Statistical data for each region is presented in frequent statistical tables. . . All this is good. But the book's limitations are serious. The description does not live. It is abstract and wooden. And a geography without maps is like music without harmony. This book does have a few good photographs—but its lack of adequate maps is monumental. And one must read with caution." DeWitt John
— + Christian Science Monitor p14 F 24 '48 350w

"'Soviet Russia' is written with typical Soviet enthusiasm, an enthusiasm that it is well for foreign readers to understand even though they may not accept. One wishes that many of the factual statements had been documented, but despite misleading implications and glaring questions Mikhailov's volumes are an indispensable source for the study of the Soviet land and life. . . It is clear that the author writes with the sure touch of one who has seen what he describes—and also as a superpatriot. The style is encyclopedic yet readable. There is an excellent index but no bibliography, and the maps are poor." G. B. Cressey
+ — Geog R 38:687 O '48 420w

"All the figures, of course, are the official Soviet ones, and no spirit of criticism ever animates the text. But Mr. Mikhailov keeps his verbal rosettes for Stalin to a minimum and sticks pretty much to the work at hand."
New Yorker 23:68 Ja 31 '48 80w
Reviewed by Oriana Atkinson
Sat R of Lit 31:33 Mr 6 '48 380w

MIKOLAJCZYK, STANISLAW. Rape of Poland; pattern of Soviet aggression. (Whittlesey house publication) 309p il $4 McGraw
943.8 Russians in Poland. Russia—Foreign relations—Poland. Poland—Foreign relations—Russia 48-9402

"The author, formerly Premier of Poland and head of the now suppressed Peasants' Party, witnessed what he calls the betrayal of his country from every political level, starting as a common soldier during the war in Poland. . . After the war, he was helpless, even as the leader of one of the great parties, to avert the violent destruction of his country's democratic processes and finally had to flee in disguise. He believes that the Soviets were resolved from the first to annihilate Poland and says flatly that they killed fifteen thousand Polish officers in the woods around Katyń, near Smolensk, and that they purposely delayed giving help to General Bór during the Warsaw uprising until it was too late." New Yorker

---

Reviewed by John Fermatt
Cath World 168:332 Ja '49 400w
Reviewed by Irving Pflaum
Chicago Sun D 8 '48 150w
Reviewed by R. H. Markham
Christian Science Monitor p19 N 18 '48 410w
Reviewed by Max Fischer
Commonweal 49:260 D 17 '48 600w
Kirkus 16:543 O 1 '48 340w
Reviewed by Russell Hill
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 N 7 '48 1100w

"Determined to be the voice of a 'mute and doomed people,' he has scrupulously avoided sensationalism and breast-beating. The result is a classic exposition of the methods and aims of sovietization." Walter Dushnyck
+ N Y Times p3 N 7 '48 1050w

"This book, heavily documented and written without fireworks, is a pretty powerful indictment."
+ New Yorker 24:164 N 20 '48 220w
Reviewed by Martin Ebon
Sat R of Lit 31:13 D 18 '48 320w

"Well-documented and written in a direct, forthright style that minces no words." Donald Derby
+ Springf'd Republican p8B Ja 9 '49 390w

MILHOLLEN, HIRST DILLON, and KAPLAN, MILTON. Presidents on parade [pictures, with running commentary] with a foreword by Luther H. Evans. 425p $7.50 Macmillan
923.173 Presidents (U.S.)—Pictorial works 48-2144

Photographic history of the presidents of the United States. There are over four hundred reproductions of engravings, photographs, cartoons, lithographs, etc.; showing the persons, families, birthplaces, and historic events and monuments, associated with each president. Each picture has some explanatory text.

Reviewed by C. J. Brosnan
Am Hist R 54:218 O '48 360w
Booklist 44:351 Je 15 '48
Christian Century 65:710 Jl 14 '48 210w

"An impressive and informative volume."
+ Commonweal 48:123 My 14 '48 70w

"The omission of such imaginary incidents as Washington and the cherry tree would have added importance to the book, and since there is no text, future readers will ascribe as much importance to McKinley or Harding as to Lincoln or Wilson."

Current Hist 15:40 Jl '48 60w

"The text accompanying the pictures suffers from the excessive discretion of the authors. They avoided controversial topics so successfully that they avoided the most interesting aspects of many Presidential careers. There are no scandals in the book, so the text is little more than a succession of labels. However, the pictures are the thing that counts. They are well chosen and beautifully reproduced; so the book is an item well worth room on any American's library shelves." Gerald Johnson
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 My 16 '48 900w

Reviewed by R. D. Dinsmore
N Y Times p18 Je 6 '48 400w

"As fine as the pictorial content is the running commentary under each picture, providing a brief, politically unbiased summary of presidential history and giving important dates and facts."
+ San Francisco Chronicle p23 My 2 '48 270w

"Most of the illustrations are rare enough to stir the interest of specialists in American history; more average readers will find them all engrossing." Raymond Walters
+ Sat R of Lit 31:16 My 15 '48 600w

MILLAR, GEORGE REID. Isabel and the sea. 307p il $3.50 Doubleday
910.4 Europe—Description and travel. Voyages and travels 48-7582

The author and his wife were inexperienced in the ways of boats, but in 1946 they purchased and outfitted the Truant; crossed the channel to France, sailed the Truant thru the French canals to Marseilles, and cruised along the French and Italian coasts to Greece. This is the record of their experiences with all manners of trials and men.

Booklist 44:380 Jl 15 '48

"The whole forms an interesting itinerary, and a novel one, in narrative outgoing, observant, and enthusiastic."
+ Kirkus 16:227 My 1 '48 160w

"Absorbing and full of incident as any novel. Highly recommended." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 73:940 Je 15 '48 130w

"Neither George nor Isabel Millar knew anything about the sea when they bought a heavy gaff-rigged ketch in Southampton. . . They learned as they went along. . . They had a good boat, Cornish built, but above all they had courage and resourcefulness and a patient humor that illuminates this excellent story throughout." Eugene Lohrke
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 Jl 11 '48 450w

"Wherever the author's insight and understanding have time, they leave a lasting impression. Otherwise, he takes a few civilized soundings, and fits them into the local political scene, without making a significant comment. What remains with the reader longest is a sense of Europe unsettled and groping, legendary beauty surrounded with man-made threats; a holiday aboard the yacht Truant, impermanent and delightful." Isabelle Mallet
+ N Y Times p5 Ag 8 '48 500w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 Jl 27 '48 800w

"In addition to nautical charm [the book] is loaded to the gunwales with deft and lively pictures of European life and manners—pictures which unroll as on sensitive film."
+ Time 52:83 Jl 26 '48 650w

— Times [London] Lit Sup p37 Ja 15 '49 550w

MILLAR, KENNETH. Three roads. 223p $2.50 Knopf 48-7047

Mystery story.

"The account is skilfully set forth in freshly figurative language. Its plot, with murder at the heart of it, has a lively succession of incident which stumbles only once into that sort of half-disguised lecture to the laity which usually accompanies these novels of suspense. It has been contrived but it is absorbing and probably even rereadable." James Sandoe
+ Chicago Sun Je 11 '48 270w

"A psycho-thriller that is well plotted, well explained."
+ Kirkus 16:201 Ap 15 '48 100w

"Puzzling, lively in parts." Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 Je 6 '48 180w

"Obviously, Mr. Millar is quite a student of psychiatry. He is also deft at the suspense novel. And so, there are really two roads in 'Three Roads'—the one faithfully describing a kind of Gestalt arc, and the other obeying the dicta of the type of fiction which demands surprises and the suspension of disbelief. . . There is real excitement when the roads meet, but one is sometimes disappointed when he chooses the Hitchcock fork rather than the Jungian curve." H. B. Parker
N Y Times p15 Jl 25 '48 170w

"[Mr Millar's] account of the tribulations encountered by a Navy lieutenant and his girl, both of whom are implicated in the murder of the lieutenant's wife, is unexpectedly fresh and exciting. Highly recommended."
+ New Yorker 24:111 Je 5 '48 100w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Jl 4 '48 60w

"Distinguished."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:30 Je 26 '48 40w

MILLAR, MARGARET (MRS KENNETH MILLAR). It's all in the family. 243p $2.50 Random house 48-1255

Reminiscences of the activities of eleven-year-old Priscilla during the hours from Saturday morning until the following Monday, when she had to return to school. Altho without plot the book pictures life in a middle-class American family in the days when Jackie Coogan was the idol of the screen. And life with Priscilla was full of excitement and retold with humor.

Booklist 44:353 Je 15 '48

"This delightful book is the kind which should be circulated abroad, to correct some of the strange impressions of American home life derived from the silver screen. Granted that the theme is not unusual, for the scene is that of everyday life in a small town of typical limitations, and that none of the characters are outstanding, the story, nevertheless, is fresh and interesting." Pearl Strachan
+ Christian Science Monitor p18 My 14 '48 500w

"A pre-era-junior-miss touch, and a warming harum-scarum atmosphere make a childhood postview of great appeal, [with] humor and personal delight."
+ Kirkus 16:28 Ja 15 '48 130w

"An amusing picture of a family. . . 'Father' and Edna the maid, are particularly well done. Entertaining but not a must. Recommended for libraries with adequate book funds." E. S. Brown
+ Library J 73:397 Mr 1 '48 50w

"Miss Millar has caught the essence of this eager, inquisitive dragon-fly child, whose flight is so swift that the people and places she passes are a little blurred, identifiable as types rather than actual individuals. . . Reading of her is to experience a slight sense of exhaustion, a constant sense of delight and a frequent burst of spontaneous and audible laughter." Emily Kimbrough
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 My 16 '48 600w

"Besides the engaging people and amusing episodes, the book is full of nostalgic charm, for it takes place in the happy days when Calvin Coolidge was in the White House, Clara Bow was reigning in Hollywood and newspaper

MILLAR, MARGARET—Continued
headlines were behaving themselves. Margaret Millar, best known, up to now, for her deep-freeze psycho-thrillers, is to be congratulated for extending her range." Rose Dobbs
+ N Y Times p4 My 30 '48 380w

Reviewed by Edith James
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 My 16 '48 600w

"This first venture of Miss Millar's away from her highly successful field of psychological thrillers is a lighthearted, thoroughly entertaining look back into the days when a family still seemed a moderately workable unit." Pamela Taylor
+ Sat R of Lit 31:32 Je 19 '48 550w

MILLER, BENJAMIN FRANK. You and your doctor. (Whittlesey house publication) 183p $2.75 McGraw 614.2 Medicine—U.S. Medical service
48-2217

Discusses group medicine and other modern trends in American medicine. The author is clinical professor of medicine at George Washington medical school, and is a doctor himself. He illustrates his points with cases from his own experience. No index.

Booklist 44:332 Je 1 '48
Cleveland Open Shelf p15 Jl '48
Kirkus 16:136 Mr 1 '48 70w

"Here is a book which will be of value to everyone who is interested in the extension and improvement of medical care. . . [It] will not serve those who are looking for blueprints of organization or legislation, but it does outline needs and policies effectively." M. M. Davis
Nation 167:136 Jl 31 '48 180w

"Of 'You and Your Doctor,' one might say that the examination is probing and thorough, the summing up of the case brilliant, but the prescription is open to question." F. G. Slaughter
N Y Times p17 Ag 29 '48 320w

"The sections on medical education and research are especially well and feelingly written. . . Although this book is somewhat uneven in the treatment of the subjects discussed, it provides both information and understanding about what is happening to the patterns of health services and medical practice in America today, doing so from the point of view of a practicing physician who is concerned with the social function of his profession and the improvement of the quality of medical practice." C. G. Sheps
+ — Social Forces 27:175 D '48 460w
Springf'd Republican p10B My 23 '48 420w
Wis Lib Bul 44:146 S '48

MILLER, MRS HELEN (TOPPING). Trumpet in the city. 269p $2.75 Bobbs
48-8290

Novel of romance and intrigue in and around Savannah in the early days of the Revolution.

"There is excellent use of a comparatively fresh phase of the Revolution, and a clear projection of life here as it was lived in and around Savannah, among both high and low." W. K. Rugg
+ Christian Science Monitor p15 S 23 '48 120w

"Recommended." M. E. Clark
+ Library J 73:1091 Ag '48 20w
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p25 O 19 '48 160w
N Y Times p44 O 17 '48 150w
Sat R of Lit 31:32 N 27 '48 110w

MILLER, HENRY. Smile at the foot of the ladder. 124p il $5 Duell

When Auguste, the clown, thought of the joy he intended to bring to his spectators he created his famous act of depicting ecstasy while sitting at the foot of a ladder. One night he held his trance too long and was fired. He joined another troupe assuming another clown's identity and created a second successful act. He was unaccountably saddened until at the end of a fatal search for happiness he discovered that he had to be himself for truth to be recognizable.

Kirkus 16:269 Je 1 '48 90w

"Rueful and appealing story of a melancholy jester, a thoughtful Pagliacci whose poetic visions cavort through some very handsome typography to make one of the most unusual books of the year." Charles Poore
N Y Times p6 Je 6 '48 650w

" 'The Smile at the Foot of the Ladder' is all the evidence anyone could ask that when he chooses to do so Henry Miller can write better than a very large majority of his contemporaries." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Je 28 '48 650w
Time 51:92 Je 28 '48 550w

MILLER, HUGH. Historical introduction to modern philosophy. 615p $5 Macmillan
190 Philosophy—History 47-12158

"The beginnings of the science, with the principal schools of thought, and evolution into recent and contemporary philosophy, particularly designed to focus on practical applications in current civilization. The author is on the faculty of the University of California." (Current Hist) Index.

"This book does not fall squarely within the sociologist's primary field of interest, being in effect, and probably in intention, a textbook for the typical upper-division college course in the history of philosophy. It is nevertheless an excellent book, to which sociologists and moderately advanced students of sociology may profitably devote some time." F. N. House
+ Am J Soc 54:91 Jl '48 450w

Reviewed by H. T. Houf
Christian Century 65:272 Mr 3 '48 700w
Current Hist 14:38 Ja '48 50w

"The first demand which a history of philosophy should be expected to meet is that it be accurate and provide some idea, in their own terms, of the leading concepts and principles of the philosophies with which it deals. The present work is very deficient in this respect. The chapter on Aristotle is an outstanding example of confused and unsympathetic interpretation. . . In blurring the distinctive traits of many kinds of things, moreover, Miller falls into the same universalism or holism which he holds to be the basis of political absolutism. . . These shortcomings of Miller's book are all the more lamentable in that they spring from purposes which in fundamental respects deserve encouragement." Alan Gewirth
Ethics 58:223 Ap '48 1800w

"This book will prove an excellent introduction to contemporary philosophy, for the college student and for the general reader. . . Although little attention is given to contemporary philosophy and the treatment is admittedly sketchy, the book is a well-written, exciting introduction to the subject." V. J. McG.
+ — J Philos 45:415 Jl 15 '48 250w
School & Society 67:63 Ja 24 '48 20w

MILLER, MRS JEAN (DUPONT). Wish for tomorrow. 240p $2.50 Dodd
48-6375

Story of a happy summer spent at the International girl scout camp in Pennsylvania. Four girls with very different backgrounds establish a firm friendship during the summer. They are Jo from a wealthy home; Taffy who has never before been away from her midwestern home town; Rita from the Philippines; and Kristin from Norway.

Booklist 44:340 Je 1 '48

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 168:218 D '48 50w

"Carries a real punch for teen-age girls. As a story, it moves with the vividness and some of the glamor of a movie. As an example of how many different kinds of girls get along together today, it really shines." Martha King

+ Chicago Sun My 15 '48 200w

"Well written and interesting story for girls from 12-16. Approved by Girl Scout National Organization." Margaret Taylor
+ Library J 73:882 Je 1 '48 100w

Reviewed by M. L. Becker
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 Je 27 '48 200w

Wis Lib Bul 44:107 My '48

MILLER, JOHN CHESTER. Triumph of freedom, 1775-1783; with maps by Van H. English. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 718p $6.50 Little

973.3 U.S.—History—Revolution 48-6755

A one-volume history of the Revolutionary period in the United States. The author is at present a member of the faculty of Bryn Mawr College. Bibliography. Index.

"An interesting work; but, because of lack of documentation, its authenticity is problematical and its value limited." Bernhard Knollenberg
Am Hist R 54:147 O '48 1150w

"The work has been written with vigor, clarity, emphasis, and skill. Mr. Miller has read widely in the literature of the period. He has presented a mass of information that is not easily accessible elsewhere." C. P. Nettels
+ Ann Am Acad 259:159 S '48 450w

Booklist 45:11 S 1 '48

Chicago Sun My 16 '48 60w

"The style is often smooth and delightful, especially in the early chapters. Scholars will not be willing to release the author easily. Pleading that he cannot bring himself to inflict footnotes 'upon readers already obliged to grapple with a book of formidable proportions,' Professor Miller eschews all but an occasional citation or note. Nor does his bibliography, itself subject to errors, obviate the necessity for footnotes, as he suggests." R. A. Brown
+ — Christian Science Monitor p18 My 28 '48 550w

Current Hist 14:347 Je '48 70w

Kirkus 16:230 My 1 '48 170w

"An extremely interesting and readable one volume story. . . Recommended." Donald Wasson
+ Library J 73:706 My 1 '48 130w

Reviewed by Richard Hofstadter
Nation 167:269 S 4 '48 700w

"Actually, Mr. Miller presents the most complete and rounded account of the Revolutionary War yet published. . . Throughout his book, Mr. Miller, while professing to add little to the story that is novel, includes significant researches of his own with the summary of the works of other scholars. His judgments are always independent and often startling, though always cogently argued." Carl Bridenbaugh
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 My 16 '48 1150w

"Mr. Miller's picture has depth as well as color. . . His analysis of the social consequences of the wartime inflation is awesome in its timeliness. . . His account of the growth of democratic ideas in these crisis years is spirited and imaginative. It stands as a convincing demonstration that the keynote of the Revolutionary era was—freedom." J. A. Krout
+ N Y Times p12 My 16 '48 700w

"What the author actually does is to make the Revolutionary period come alive with events and personalities so vivid as to make them seem wholly contemporary in time. . . He writes easily and informally, with only occasional stiltings of phrase. His narrative is steeped in anecdotes and in historical asides that help to make the book good reading. And finally—perhaps because he is a westerner by birth—he writes with an objectivity and detachment worthy of the best tradition of democratic scholarship." L. W.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p11 N 28 '48 350w

"The author of this book justifies it on the ground that it meets the need of a one-volume history of the American Revolution, combining the fruits of several generations of scholarship. It can also be fully justified on the ground that it is intensely interesting. It has such freshness as can come only from the study of original sources, it contains innumerable vivid bits of personal description, and it has something witty on practically every page." Dumas Malone
+ Sat R of Lit 31:18 Je 12 '48 850w

"Prof. Miller is a writer of smooth but vigorous prose, and in organizing his material for this 688-page history has turned out a literary engineering job that will be difficult to match in the future." R. F. H.
+ Springf'd Republican p10B My 23 '48 600w

Time 52:74 Jl 5 '48 950w

Wis Lib Bul 44:213 D '48

MILLER, JOHN GUTHRIE. Metal art crafts. (Home craftsman's lib) 165p il $2.75 Van Nostrand

745.56 Metal work 48-7875

"A guide for the amateur craftsman. Detailed information is given about the materials, tools and supplies and description of the various metals, including copper, aluminum, sterling silver, pewter, zinc based alloys, and steels. Use of finishing materials, buffing compounds and etching compounds is explained." (Library J) The final chapter lists twenty-two projects with step-by-step directions for construction of metal articles. Index.

Booklist 45:47 O 1 '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:1281 S 15 '48 50w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:70 S '48

MILLER, MAX. Town with the funny name [decorations by Lester Kohs]. 224p $2.75 Dutton

818 La Jolla, California 48-7655

A volume of sketches about the author's life around the California coastal town of La Jolla.

Booklist 44:380 Jl 15 '48

"La Jolla itself, in spite of the profound love the author manifests for it, never emerges as the individual and colorful community it is. . . On the credit side, let it be said that the book is written with a quiet, unobtrusive humor, a deep and correct understanding of what is happening to many charming towns of California, La Jolla among them, with the influx of population and, though Mr. Miller is not a native Californian, he feels the same sort of troubled love of a town that a native feels when he sees it altered by invaders who see in it something he may have missed—and is glad he missed. The book is no travel folder type of literature, and for that La Jolla should be very grateful indeed." James Duff
+ — Commonweal 48:624 O 8 '48 330w

Kirkus 16:300 Je 15 '48 130w

"Miller's anecdotes and observations make a simple and perhaps unimportant book, but one of great charm." G. D. McDonald
+ Library J 73:1023 Jl '48 100w

Reviewed by Lisle Bell
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 S 5 '48 340w

"All in all, Mr. Miller finds La Jolla a good place in which to analyze and evaluate his personal cosmos; all around him are take-off points for philosophizing. At times his philosophical conclusions seem anything but fresh or profound. . . When Mr. Miller tries less hard, when he writes with the simplicity, feeling and humor for which he is famous, he is far more successful, and his old friends will enjoy him." C. B. Palmer
+ — N Y Times p28 O 10 '48 550w

New Yorker 24:106 S 11 '48 40w

MILLER, MAX—Continued

Reviewed by Edward McQuade
San Francisco Chronicle p18 S 26 '48 950w

"The essay is almost a lost art today; it is refreshing, therefore, to run across a book like this, which is readable, whimsically humorous, unpretentious, and pleasantly reflective. . . Most of the book is written with such understatement that at times it flattens into dullness. But generally Miller has a trick of throwing in little stories or digressions, often whimsical in a Saroyanesque manner, just when the philosophy begins to pall. And these stories and digressions make up the real charm of the book. . . The book is held together, however, by the philosophy. It is a rather alarming and puzzling philosophy. Life, to Miller, is a pretty sad spectacle. . . Miller emerges from these essay's a tragic figure, likable, puzzled, but a pretty well defeated man. His nostalgic retreat from the world lends charm to the book, but it is impossible to avoid labeling both the book and the man with that nasty word: escapist." Courtlandt Canby

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:15 S 4 '48 800w

Springf'd Republican p10B S 26 '48 190w

MILLER, MERLE. That winter. 297p $3 Sloane 48-5171

Three young men with very different backgrounds shared a New York city apartment during the fall and early winter of 1945. They had all just been discharged from the army and were busy with their problems of readjustment. Ted, who was wealthy and had been badly wounded during the war, ended a suicide. Lew, who had tried to deny his Jewish blood, eventually saw his mistake and went back to his father's jewelry store in California. Peter, the narrator, from a poor home in the midwest, decided to go to visit the understanding widow of a war friend, whose death he blamed on himself.

"I've re-checked first impressions with a second reading and cannot join in the hosannas. The book has plenty of story interest, sincerity, and drive. . . But these considerable qualities are counter-balanced by serious faults. That Winter is shot through with smart-alecky dialogue. Too many of the characters are nationally advertised types: the novelist who betrayed his talent for cash and became a heel in the process; the tough, likable trollop; the cynical, successful editor. And the plot is a prefabricated structure." C. J. Rolo

— + Atlantic 181:107 Mr '48 850w

Booklist 44:233 Mr 1 '48

Reviewed by Emmett Dedmon
Chicago Sun p7X Ja 18 '48 600w

Kirkus 15:629 N 15 '47 130w

"An intelligent, observant book, skillfully written and filled with the problems of a confused era, but with characters representative only of a special segment of New York literary life. Recommended." G. D. McDonald

+ Library J 73:123 Ja 15 '48 100w

Reviewed by Diana Trilling
Nation 166:218 F 21 '48 470w

Reviewed by Norman Grieser
New Repub 118:28 F 16 '48 1000w

Reviewed by Walter Allen
New Statesman & Nation 36:356 O 23 '48 210w

" 'That Winter' is an interesting novel by a writer of talent, but it is a record not so much of a season, inevitable part of everyman's life, as of a moment and a mood, a few streaked and crazy frames in the jumbled film that is our time." Milton Rugoff

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Ja 25 '48 650w

"The three ex-service men . . . are handpicked for Mr. Miller's theme. But one must explore this book from first to last, and explore with an open mind, to understand why it belongs on the top shelf of post-war novels. . . Mr. Miller never permits his book to get out of hand. . . Keeping to his point and his pattern, he has enriched his pages with a wealth of closely observed detail. . . 'That Winter' is certainly not the definitive post-war novel. . . The writing, for all its honest realism, is often flat to the point of ennui, and beyond. But for all its slag the novel rings true. It will do nicely as an almost-current blueprint to young men's minds—until a better blueprint comes along." James MacBride

+ — N Y Times p5 Ja 25 '48 700w

"Perhaps it is not fair to write off the war generation on the evidence of 'That Winter,' for Mr. Miller's novel seems to have been hastily put together, loosely contrived, and generally under-cooked as to characters and situations. The book, however, provides an explanation of why publishers may wish to promote the idea of a mass of young people infected by postwar neuroses. Drop these people in a readable setting . . . and you have set the stamp of significance on a kind of fiction that has come to rival Western movies in popularity. The sex and drinking habits of writers in New York are the box-office counterpart of a Roy Rogers duel with a stagecoach robber." John Lardner

New Yorker 23:76 Ja 24 '48 1400w

"If this novel has a weakness it lies in the fact that Mr. Miller's facility is almost too great. . . All in all, this book is as close to a reflection of Mr. Miller's generation as has yet got into print—with perhaps one or two exceptions, also first novels, on much the same theme. Of the lot, though, I'll bet on Mr. Miller's going farthest." J. H. Jackson

+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ja 28 '48 1000w

"This is an honest, skilful, and very touching novel. . . On the surface it is an unpretentious tale about all the sad young men of World War II. It even has such fashionable phrases as 'the sickness of our time.' What sets it off from its genre is simply that it has some basic elements of a novel: warmth, human affection, and humor. . . Probably the tone of 'That Winter' is superior in the end to its content. . . Even so, it is a considerable accomplishment for a young novelist, with the promise of more. I hope I have made clear that it is a delight and a pleasure to read." Maxwell Geismar

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:15 Ja 24 '48 700w

"The book is full of living men and women, drawn in bold, firm lines. The women are seen as clearly as the men. Mr. Miller is a little slow at starting and makes the mistake of telling us about characters before we have time to be interested in them; but after this the story flows steadily and under an almost perfect control." L. A. G. Strong

+ Spec 180:474 O 8 '48 360w

Springf'd Republican p12B My 2 '48 150w

Time 51:109 F 16 '48 300w

Times [London] Lit Sup p565 O 9 '48 360w

Reviewed by Orville Prescott
Yale R n s 37:573 spring '48 500w

MILLER, WADE, pseud. See Wade, B., and Miller, B.

MILLETT, JOHN DAVID. Process and organization of government planning. 187p $2.50 Columbia univ. press

338.91 U.S.—Economic policy. National resources planning board 47-11744

"An attempt at a systematic presentation of planning as a vital phase of government administration. It also explores the relation of the machinery to the planning process. In this book Dr. Millett treats his subject as the process by which we determine objectives, define our immediate needs, and design a course of action. He gives examples of wartime planning such as allocating and equipping troops, and setting and meeting wartime production goals; examples of peacetime planning include such projects as land improvement and improved library service for municipalities." (Publisher's note) Index.

"A vigorous style reflects the forthright personality of the author. Although Professor Millett explicitly announces that the book does not follow the method of recounting personal experiences, this reader could not escape the enjoyable impression of a highly personalized, though none the less expert, analysis." Avery Leiserson
+ Am Pol Sci R 42:346 Ap '48 1350w

Reviewed by L. H. Douglas
Ann Am Acad 257:248 My '48 600w

"Well-balanced and able study." W. Y. Elliott
+ Harvard Law R 61:1278 Jl '48 1100w
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:189 Je '48 240w

MILLIGAN, MAURICE MORTON. Inside story of the Pendergast machine by the man who smashed it. 281p $3.50 Scribner

977.8411 Kansas City, Missouri—Politics and government. Pendergast, Thomas Joseph A48-8018

"A book of political memoirs, which covers Tom Pendergast's Kansas City machine, and its revival under his nephew, Jim Pendergast's leadership and President Truman's patronage, written by the District Attorney [who] smashed the machine in the '30's. Appointed under Cummings, with special assignment to clean up Kansas City, he surveys the early history and rise of the city and the Boss, the inside story on the vote frauds, the Union Station massacre, the big-time insurance fraud, the protection and graft rackets, and finally Pendergast's conviction on income tax evasion." Kirkus

Booklist 44:297 My 1 '48

Reviewed by T. F. Reynolds
Chicago Sun p63 My 12 '48 470w

"This is no book that lets the reader sit back and smile tolerantly at the misdoings of other people. The prosecuting attorney, turned author, will have none of that. He discounts speechmaking, senatorial resolutions, and inquiries ex post facto as effective means of purifying our elections and ousting 'bossism.' 'We cannot do it by sitting on our own front porches and shouting: "Kick the rascals out!" '. . Not a bad note to strike in this presidential election year." R. S. Derby
Christian Science Monitor p18 Ap 14 '48 650w
Kirkus 16:104 F 15 '48 170w

Reviewed by E. F. Walbridge
Library J 73:653 Ap 15 '48 100w

Reviewed by Ernest Kirschten
Nation 166:443 Ap 24 '48 1800w

Reviewed by G. W. Johnson
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p27 My 9 '48 650w

"An earnest impassioned and factual account of the rise, fall and revival of the most notorious political machine in our recent history." M. R. Werner
+ N Y Times p10 My 9 '48 500w
New Yorker 24:123 My 15 '48 160w

"For anyone who feels like a dip in the mud-bath of American politics, this is a book to read. It can, without too much qualm, be put on your bookshelf with the muckrakings of Sinclair and Steffens and others who have been honest and thorough in their reform efforts. Its timeliness is seen in Milligan's closing sentence, a challenge to all voters in 1948 from the lips of the long-dead Boss Tweed: 'What are you going to do about it?' " Luther Nichols
+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ap 4 '48 950w

"This book does not go extensively into the anatomy of the machine or explore its ramifications in the American complex. Although the author does not uncover the root causes of bossism, he turns a glaring light on the principal symptoms and effects of that blighting disease. With chilling effect, Mr. Milligan reviews the record, which demonstrates that corruption of the ballot is the most destructive of the machine evils. He performed a notable service for democracy in combating that evil in Kansas City, and he carries on the good fight in a challenging book." W. M. Reddig
+ Sat R of Lit 31:16 Ap 24 '48 800w

MILLINGTON, HERBERT. American diplomacy and the War of the Pacific. 172p $2.50 Columbia univ. press

327.73 U.S.—Foreign policy. Chile—History—War with Peru, 1879-1882 48-6653

"A study of the war between Chile, Peru and Bolivia in 1878-1883, and the role of the United States, with special attention to our foreign policy." (Current Hist) Bibliography. Index.

"Dr. Millington has written an interesting book which may be read with profit not only by students of the period but by United States diplomats who seek careers in Chile, Bolivia, and Peru." A. C. Wilgus
+ Am Hist R 54:439 Ja '49 400w

"Mr. Millington embellishes this sorry tale with gleanings from the contemporary press of the United States, Great Britain, and Latin America. The monograph is amply documented by a painstaking scholar." W. F. Barber
+ Am Pol Sci R 42:830 Ag '48 230w
Current Hist 14:348 Je '48 30w

MILLS, CHARLES WRIGHT, and SCHNEIDER, HELEN. New men of power, America's labor leaders. 323p $3.50 Harcourt

331.88 Labor and laboring classes—U.S. Labor officials. Trade unions—U.S. 48-8513

"This is a study, a collective portrait, of the newest economic and political elite in the United States—the top leadership of American labor. . . Based on personal research and the latest polling techniques, it gives the facts about our labor leaders—who they are, what they think, what they want to do to and for America." (Publisher's note) Index.

Booklist 45:82 N 1 '48

Reviewed by James Peneff
Chicago Sun D 1 '48 270w

Reviewed by Harlan Trott
Christian Science Monitor p20 S 23 '48 550w
Commonweal 48:578 S 24 '48 70w

"Not an easy book to read, but so valuable to anyone in the field, or anyone dealing with labor leaders, that it is worth the concentrated study."
+ Kirkus 16:502 S 15 '48 180w

"Major contribution in its field and essential for most collections." R. E. Kingery
+ Library J 73:1270 S 15 '48 130w

"Dr. Mills comes up with a book that has long been needed. If the reader expects an anecdotal account of the lives and loves of labor's prime movers, he will be disappointed. But Dr. Mills's book is a useful and informative volume, painting as its author says, 'a collective portrait of these labor leaders, set in their American time and society.' " R. E. Nichols
+ Nation 167:377 O 2 '48 1400w

Reviewed by Elinore Herrick
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 O 17 '48 550w

"The book is charged with ideas for lively debate, but the professor himself is quite calm. He can smash images with fine detachment. He has delivered us a swift kick in the status quo. There is much solid information about labor, carefully documented, and an index. The results of his questionnaires directed to 500 labor leaders are among the most important parts of the book, if not the most readable. The effort to remove the statistical curse did not quite come off." J. A. Loftus
+ — N Y Times p6 O 3 '48 900w

Reviewed by Joseph Rosenfarb
Sat R of Lit 32:48 Ja 22 '49 230w

Reviewed by Beulah Amidon
Survey G 37:474 N '48 700w

Reviewed by C. R. Walker
Yale R n s 38:362 winter '49 380w

MILLS, RANDALL VAUSE. Stern-wheelers up Columbia; a century of steamboating in the Oregon country. 212p il $3.75 Pacific bks.

386.3 Steamboats. Northwest 48-303

An account of steamboat navigation in the Columbia River country, from 1836 to 1947. "It is an account of the river boats themselves, a rapid tracing of what they were, where and when they went, what they did, and why they did it. Although the boats are the personalities involved, the book is dedicated to those who built and ran them and who deserve their own separate extended history." (Pref) Selected bibliography. Index.

"The author believes firmly in the facts, and his book is a carefully documented piece of work. . . But Randall Mills has made his study more than just a history of steamboating. He has seen to it that his book reflects the economic development of the entire area those boats served, from the days of Indian troubles through the great era of wheat and on down to the present. . . The volume is excellently illustrated with pictures of the vessels discussed and with four maps which help to clarify the text." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 D 31 '47 250w

"Material about transportation can either be incredibly boring or unbelievably dramatic. Professor Mills succeeds in making it dramatic. . . Pacific Books, a publishing house along the country's sundown rim, has brought out this entertaining book with some fine pictures and attractive end-papers." R. L. Neuberger

+ Sat R of Lit 31:32 My 15 '48 180w

MILNE, ALAN ALEXANDER. Birthday party, and other stories. 256p $3 Dutton

48-9270

Contents: Birthday party; Anne-Marie; The general takes off his helmet; Luck nothing; Breitenstein; Tristram; C.O.D; Dear old George; In vino veritas; A.V. and R.V; Night at the Aldwinckles; I don't like blackmailers; Spring song; The Shakespearean theory; The Secret.

Booklist 45:138 D 15 '48

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg

Christian Science Monitor p15 D 16 '48 120w

"A little wearisome, if taken in large doses, each story is an impeccable writing performance. They vary from the murder yarn to the fairy story and include satire, sentimental realism, and straight twinkles." Virginia Bennett

Commonweal 49:310 D 31 '48 70w

Kirkus 16:491 S 1 '48 110w

"Any one or all should please any literate person from sixteen to ninety. Highly recommended." H. R. Forbes

+ Library J 73:1511 O 15 '48 100w

"The stories are, for the most part, slight in plot but rich in flavor." George Conrad

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p26 N 21 '48 320w

Reviewed by James Stern

N Y Times p35 N 28 '48 550w

"New indications of the versatility of the creator of Winnie-the-Pooh, set forth in a group of short stories that run through the literary spectrum from fantasy to murder detection. . . Mr. Milne writes in the old, straightforward English tradition, with slight regard for modern stylistic or structural conventions, and is in no wise ashamed of occasional patches of kittenish humor or of some very trick contrivances of plot."

+ New Yorker 24:142 N 27 '48 130w

San Francisco Chronicle p15 N 28 '48 180w

Springf'd Republican p6B D 26 '48 180w

MIMS, EDWIN. Christ of the poets. 256p $2.50 Abingdon-Cokesbury

232.991 Jesus Christ—Poetry 48-1890

"The retired professor of English at Vanderbilt in Tennessee is a vertebrate believer in Christ the Eternal Son of God and Saviour of men. In a series of brief essays on English and American poets from Spenser to our contemporaries, the latter bunched together, he weighs them for the attention they give to Christ and the things which Christ stands for." (Crozer Q) Suggestions for further reading. Index.

"Here is a book that should help to backbone many limp Christians. . . Of individual poets Blake and Browning get the longest treatment. The essays on John Donne and Gerald Manly Hopkins were to me the freshest. The one on Milton satisfied me least. I was thrilled to meet again the admirable Thomas Traherne, who died in 1674, but who did not rise again to live in the literary mind until the 'miracle' of his sudden rediscovery in 1896." J. W. Brush

+ Crozer Q 25:373 O '48 350w

"In an age beset with overwhelming problems threatening not only man's peace of mind but his future existence, it is natural that thoughtful persons should try to find in religion some pattern of reference for their solution. . . Therefore such help as we may get from those of our poets whose religious insight especially qualifies them to guide us is eagerly welcomed. Professor Mims's The Christ of the Poets is a very useful handbook to such religious guidance. . . Altogether, the book is highly commendable for its attitude of devotion to the person of Jesus Christ." H. M. Battenhouse

+ J Religion 28:292 O '48 500w

"Unusually valuable and interesting book, both for the Christian religionist and for the student of poetry. The author's field is English literature but he is equally concerned with making our Christian faith vital."

+ Kirkus 16:115 Mr 1 '48 210w

MINTER, JOHN EASTER. The Chagres, river of westward passage; il. by William Wellons. (Rivers of America) 418p $4 Rinehart

918.6 Chagres river. Panama canal 48-7786

The River Chagres is the river of the Panama isthmus. This book, the first in the series to deal with a river outside continental United States, tells its story from the visit of Columbus in 1502 to the building of the Panama Canal in the early twentieth century. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:49 O 1 '48

"At the end of the book he seeks to inject more significance into the present social and economic structure of the Canal Zone than many readers will credit. Such ideas are usually the beginning, not the cavalier ending, of a book. They deserve to be treated less casually. With this exception, Mr. Minter has succeeded in presenting good history and good reading." D. E. Reilly

+ — Christian Science Monitor p16 Ag 19 '48 480w

Current Hist 15:227 O '48 60w

Kirkus 16:102 F 15 '48 160w

Reviewed by Joseph Borome

Library J 73:649 Ap 15 '48 100w

"Mr. Minter has told the whole colorful story. He knows that there are words in our language that have the ring of romance, and he is not afraid to use them, nor to stop short of overusing them. If he is a little less than just to an occasional character that is not central to his story (Amerigo Vespucci, for example), and more amused than indignant at Theodore Roosevelt's machinations to create an independent Panama, he has told his story so well and so thoroughly that we can forgive him a few minor peccadillos. In short, if you like romantic rivers, you'll love this one." B. D. Wolfe

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Ag 22 '48 450w

"No river in the series has a more exciting history than the Chagres, and this is a remarkable synthesis, compact and thrilling." Herschel Brickell
+ N Y Times p40 N 14 '48 500w

Reviewed by Jane Voiles
San Francisco Chronicle p23 S 12 '48 310w

Sat R of Lit 31:30 Ag 21 '48 120w

MIRIAM JOSEPH, SISTER. Shakespeare's use of the arts of language. 423p $3.75 Columbia univ. press

822.33 Shakespeare, William—Language 48-5113

"The purpose of this study is to present to the modern reader the general theory of composition current in Shakespeare's England. A general theory of composition, and correlatively of reading, is to be understood as one which underlies all special forms, such as the oration, the epic, the drama, whether in prose or in verse. . . This study undertakes to establish four points: first, that the general theory of composition and of reading current in Shakespeare's England is to be found in one form in the contemporary works on logic and rhetoric combined; second, that it is to be found in another form in the work of the figurists which, surprisingly, treats of approximately the same matter as do the logic and rhetoric texts combined; third, that these two forms, though outwardly different, are fundamentally alike; fourth, that the theory in its entire scope, whether in the one form or in the other, is, with two or three negligible exceptions, illustrated in Shakespeare's plays and poems, where it contributes to the power and richness of his language and even of his thought, while it accounts for certain peculiar differences between the characteristic mode of expression of his time and of ours." Page 3.

"Sister Miriam Joseph's book serves excellently the purpose for which it was written. For a study of the psychological and spiritual factors involved in the work of the bard or for an appreciation of that elusive thing which we call genius, the student will naturally seek elsewhere." Mabel Livingston
+ Cath World 167:573 S '48 230w

Reviewed by R. E. Keighton
Crozer Q 25:356 O '48 800w

"Scholarly volume deals with rhetoric and logic in Shakespeare and is recommended for large Shakespeare collections and for large university libraries." George Freedley
+ Library J 73:398 Mr 1 '48 20w

"The importance of this book is that it makes it clear what we ought to mean when we call Shakespeare an artist in language. . . It is a learned work, but this does not mean, as sometimes happens, that nothing can be learned from it. Everything can be learned about the possibilities of language, so few of which our education reveals to us. We like to accuse ourselves these days of being poor in spirit. Perhaps we are only poor in speech. If so, there may be cure and comfort in this volume." Mark Van Doren
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p6 Jl 4 '48 150w

"The book is useful not only for an understanding of Shakespeare; the last section is a synthesis of Elizabethan thinking about the use of words that should be of value to students of any Elizabethan author."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:134 Je '48 280w

MIRSKY, JEANNETTE (MRS EDWARD B. GINSBERG). To the Arctic; the story of northern exploration from earliest times to the present; with an introd. by Vilhjalmur Stefansson. rev and enl ed. 334p il maps $5 Knopf

919.8 Arctic regions 48-6055

"The story of Northern exploration, from the discovery of Britain, in the fourth century B.C., to the flights over the Pole by Amundsen, Wilkins, and others. The book, which was first published in 1934 [with title: To the North] and quickly withdrawn to avoid a libel suit by the late Dr. Frederick A. Cook, has been reorganized and brought up to date." (New Yorker) Chronology of northern exploration. References. Index.

Booklist 44:285 Ap 15 '48

Kirkus 16:99 F 15 '48 90w

Reviewed by M. M. Quaife
Nation 167:267 S 4 '48 950w

"She has done her work well and has put together with simplicity the complex and often overlapping stories of courageous men." Russell Owen
+ N Y Times p17 My 2 '48 490w

"A compact, easy-flowing narrative, which Vilhjalmur Stefansson, in an introduction, says is the best history of the subject so far. He is probably right."
+ New Yorker 24:90 Mr 27 '48 90w

"Altogether this is a most satisfactory book, from the viewpoint, of organization and scholarship and from the viewpoint of interpretation and actual writing. The publisher has illustrated it well, with old prints, photographs, drawings and maps, including a fold-in at the end which shows the North Polar regions today. If the volume has any weakness it is the index, which might well have been a good deal more detailed in its subject references; as it stands it is not much more than a list of proper names." J. H. Jackson
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p14 Mr 22 '48 700w

Reviewed by B. R. Redman
Sat R of Lit 31:31 My 1 '48 310w

Time 51:110 Mr 29 '48 1300w

MITCHELL, BROADUS. Depression decade; from new era through new deal, 1929-1941. (Economic hist. of the United States, v9). 462p il $5.50; text ed $4 Rinehart

330.973 U.S.—Economic conditions 47-12331

Economic history of the United States from the market crash of 1929 to the beginning of our active participation in World war II. The book is volume IX of an Economic History of the United States. Literature of the subject. Index.

Reviewed by E. C. Kirkland
Am Hist R 53:855 Jl '48 360w

Reviewed by C. H. Pritchett
Am Pol Sci R 42:344 Ap '48 750w

"Professor Mitchell writes well, and frequently coins or employs vivid phrases. . . He is at his best when portraying personalities like Hoover, Roosevelt, Lewis, and William Hutcheson, or relating dramatic episodes like the forming of the NRA or the CIO or the scuttling of the World Economic Conference. . . On the other hand, when discussing legislative reforms or citing statistics, he lets his zeal for completeness swamp the reader with a cloudburst of detail. Nowhere in the text is there a single chart, and there is only one table before the last chapter. On the whole, however, the book goes a long way toward accomplishing one of the stated purposes of the series, which is 'to supplement the economic materials now available in general school and college histories of the United States, and finally to provide the lay reader with the fruits of American scholarship.'" D. L. Kemmerer
+ — Ann Am Acad 257:210 My '48 600w

Booklist 44:228 Mr 1 '48

Foreign Affairs 26:742 Jl '48 50w

"Mitchell is certainly entitled to his point of view, and it may even some day prove to be right. But because he holds it, he fails to give a clear account of the banking reforms of 1933-35, and he does not give an adequate evaluation of what happened in terms of the situation as it existed at the time." C. E. Noyes
Nation 166:103 Ja 24 '48 550w

"An economic history of the United States for the years 1929-'41 is necessarily a somewhat hazardous undertaking because most of the issues and policies under review are still violently argued. Professor Mitchell has, on the whole, come through remarkably well; his book

MITCHELL, BROADUS—Continued
is informed, reasonable in manner, and mature in judgment." G. L. Joughin
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p11 Ja 18 '48 650w

Reviewed by C. H. Grattan
N Y Times p6 D 14 '47 600w

Pol Sci Q 63:474 S '48 330w

School & Society 66:520 D 27 '47 30w

Reviewed by Harry Hansen
Survey G 36:699 D '47 700w

U S Quarterly Bkl 4:180 Je '48 290w

MITCHELL, BROADUS, and MITCHELL, LOUISE PEARSON (MRS BROADUS MITCHELL). American economic history; [under the editorship of Edgar S. Furniss]. 928p il maps $5 Houghton

330.973 U.S.—Economic conditions 47-6205

" 'Economic history,' the authors of this new text book assert, 'gives a means of understanding not only economic thought, but politics, law, literature, and even art. . . It is the core of our culture.' Declaring that there are no economic principles universally and eternally applicable, the authors propose (1) to tell the story of economic development, and (2) to present material for the analysis of economic forces. The authors find the clue to American economic development in the fortuitous and circumstantial rather than in the deliberate choice of alternatives." (Am Hist R) Chapter bibliographies. Index.

"Here is one of the better basic texts for the freshman-sophomore courses in American economic history. It is readable. Not only is the factual material there with a minimum of errors, but it is presented in such a way that students should be attracted to the subject rather than repelled by material which necessarily must stress a large amount of statistical information. Extreme advocates of the 'Old South' or the NAM 'line' are likely to be dissatisfied by certain sections of the book, but it is to the credit of the Mitchells that they did not dodge issues upon which they had basic convictions. Teachers of American economic history should certainly examine this text when considering a new adoption." R. M. Havens
+ Am Econ R 38:402 Je '48 1250w

Reviewed by E. A. White
Am Hist R 53:634 Ap '48 320w

"Unfortunately, what the authors have written is little better than another history text. Scant use of economics is made outside of a few of the sections on finance and one on mercantilism. Yet American economic history affords many illustrations of economic principles. . . The virtue of this book lies in its character portrayals. The personalities and motives of leading figures and the obstacles and rivals they faced are made to live again. . . Throughout, the authors have drawn on a wide variety of sources and cite many pertinent and colorful quotations. Other excellent features include the discussion of mercantilism, the section on manners and morals on the frontier, a vivid but lengthy description of the slave trade, and of course the section on the new South." D. L. Kemmerer
+ — Ann Am Acad 256:182 Mr '48 650w

School & Society 66:367 N 8 '47 20w

MITCHELL, CARLETON. Islands to windward; cruising the Caribbees; il. by the author. 287p maps $12.50 Van Nostrand

917.29 Caribbean sea. West Indies—Description and travel. Yachts and yachting 48-9341

An American yachtsman's account of a cruise thru the Caribbean Islands in his forty-six-foot ketch, the Carib. The cruise began at Trinidad. Illustrated with photographs, some in color. Index.

"Cruising among the Windward Islands is made utterly delightful as a way to spend a holiday, granted you are the owner of a jib headed ketch, 46' 8" overall! And have enough sense of adventure and imagination to appreciate such a voyage, as substitute for the relatively placid projected Nassau holiday."
+ Kirkus 16:540 O 1 '48 180w

Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 74:64 Ja 1 '49 70w

"Here is a beautifully printed and illustrated book about an idyllic cruise through the West Indies. It is, however, the tale of a cruise that only a few can make, an expensive trip that included a paid hand and entailed, to make things more costly, transporting a 46-foot ketch aboard a liner to the point of departure, Trinidad. . . Mr. Mitchell is a good sailor, and he took no chances. He made an ideal cruise through a lovely part of the world, and that is what he writes about, in a simple, pleasant style. He includes some information on his craft and her performance, as well as cruise suggestions and up-to-date data on anchorages, wind and channels." T. S. S.
+ N Y Times p39 N 21 '48 380w

"The book differs from most small-boat sagas in that the author seems to have no money trouble and takes good photographs."
New Yorker 24:118 D 18 '48 50w

San Francisco Chronicle p15 D 19 '48 200w

MITCHELL, EDWIN VALENTINE. Yankee folk. 278p il $3 Vanguard

917.4 New England 48-9342

Miscellaneous lore of various kinds about New England life and New Englanders. Partial contents: Publishing Yankees; Tinkers; Hermits; Snake hunters; Preachers and deacons; Body snatchers; The Old leather man; Nantucket folk.

Booklist 45:176 Ja 15 '49

"Mitchell is at his best in rounding up eccentric bits about New England, and somehow he has not yet exhausted its riches."
+ Kirkus 16:496 S 15 '48 120w

"Like other Mitchell books this is larded with quoted passages, but invariably they are apt and entertaining. Absence of index negates value for reference collections." E. L. Lewis
+ — Library J 73:1508 O 15 '48 70w

"Perhaps the most interesting portion of the book is a fairly detailed report of the celebrated robbery of the Northampton National Bank of Massachusetts in 1876. Otherwise, the treatment is pretty much once-over-lightly and includes many whole pages of quotations from original and other sources, almost sufficient, in fact, to class this book as an anthology." Stewart Holbrook
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p28 D 5 '48 180w

"Mr. Mitchell writes with grace and interest. Unlike some antiquarians, he does not pump too hard. He lets the water well up naturally and the results are cool and refreshing." H. R.
+ N Y Times p49 D 5 '48 140w

MITCHELL, JOHN WILLIAM, and MARTH, PAUL CHARLES. Growth regulators for garden, field, and orchard. 129p il $2.50 Univ. of Chicago press

581.194 Hormones. Growth-promoting substances Agr47-40

Summary of experiments with organic chemicals in weed control and improvement in plant growth. Partial contents: Vegetative propagation and transplanting; Prevention of growth in stored plant material; Preventing fruit-drop; Ripening fruit; Improving fruit-set and the production of seedless fruit. There is a key of abbreviations of firm names used in lists of commercial preparations. Index.

Booklist 44:212 F 15 '48

Cleveland Open Shelf p6 Mr '48

"A thin but meaty volume packed with good tidings for Mr. and Mrs. Home Gardener." H. L. G.
+ Springf'd Republican p8B F 15 '48 180w

MITCHELL, JOSEPH. Old Mr Flood. 111p $2 Duell
48-10354

Three stories, expanded from sketches first published in the New Yorker, dealing with the life and habits, philosophy and dietetic theories of a semifictional character, a nonagenarian living in an ancient hotel in New York's Fulton Fish Market section.

Booklist 45:103 N 15 '48

"The author of McSorley's Wonderful Saloon invests his character with all the highspot personality that made the earlier book so well liked, repeats his fine performance as topflight reporter."
+ Kirkus 16:463 S 1 '48 130w

"Mr. Mitchell's book is a vignette of Manhattan of enduring worth and warm humor. It preserves a phase of the city's life rapidly becoming a memory. In 'Old Mr Flood' even the smell of it is good." George Conrad
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p20 O 24 '48 400w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p20 O 27 '48 900w

"'Old Mr. Flood' originally appeared as a three-part New Yorker Profile, and my only complaint is that some of the explanations which were repeated for continuity in the magazine series might have been edited out of the book. It is, really, a very short work, and you will, I'm sure, find yourself wishing there were more." Horace Sutton
+ Sat R of Lit 31:18 N 20 '48 700w

MITCHELL, RONALD ELWY. Dan Owen and the angel Joe. 250p $2.50 Harper
48-5700

Dan Owen was the best listener in Wales; his wife Anny May kept her house beautifully and cooked excellent food for her paying guests, but she was a nagging woman. Dan was mild and pleasant until one summer day his patience gave out: he killed Anny May and himself. From this point the story becomes fantasy in which Dan and Anny May are judged by a jury of their village friends turned into angels, and led by Dan's best friend Joe.

Booklist 44:184 Ja 15 '48

"It is safe to recommend 'Dan Owen and the Angel Joe' as an extremely entertaining story, the stuff of vigorous and virile fantasy." B. B.
+ N Y Times p14 Ja 25 '48 360w

"All this is harmless enough, and it could have been amusing in a mild way had it been written as a short story. As it is, Mr. Mitchell writes like the playwright he once was. Most of the descriptions read like hints to a set designer, most of the action reads like stage directions. 'Dan Owen and the Angel Joe' could be a wonderful movie, the kind with a choir of a thousand voices and oceans of vari-colored smoke." W. R. W.
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Ap 18 '48 220w

Springf'd Republican p7B D 28 '47 130w

Wis Lib Bul 44:41 F '48

MITCHISON, MRS NAOMI MARGARET (HALDANE). Blood of the martyrs. (Whittlesey house publication) 499p $3.50 McGraw 48-8673

Historical novel dealing with the Christians in Rome during the early part of Nero's reign. "The first part contains the stories of the means by which individuals were joined in Jesus' name, particularly that of Beric, a Briton and son of a king, now bound to the house of Crispus; Lalage, the dancer; and Phaon who was saved to be a deacon. The latter part of the book tells of the growing persecution and pursuit by Tigellinus and his secret police, and the climax of the Christians' martyrdom with the collapse of the Piso conspiracy to assassinate Nero." (Kirkus)

Reviewed by Leo Kennedy
Chicago Sun O 18 '48 600w

Reviewed by L. E. Cannon
Christian Century 66:144 F 2 '49 280w

Reviewed by M. W. Stoer
Christian Science Monitor p11 N 18 '48 900w

"Mrs. Naomi Mitchison has written at least two first-rate historical novels. . . But this 500-page polemic is dreadfully dull: the early Christians as Mrs. Mitchison presents them are as celluoid as the rest of her Romans. The book is a catch-all of endlessly tedious and completely artificial conversations." A. F.
— Commonweal 49:126 N 12 '48 330w

"As an historical novelist the author handles her Rome of the early Christians expertly, and makes a holding story of many roads to The Way that slave and noble alike found. . . A novel that should have its place among the religious audience as well as the general reading public, this, in placing history above histrionics, makes vital the concepts and power of Christianity."
+ Kirkus 16:449 S 1 '48 240w

"Character delineation good, some drama, and a picture of the influence of the early church in uniting individuals of different social classes in a common cause. Description of the persecution of the martyrs is vivid without being sensational. Too long as are many of today's historic novels but will appeal to readers who are interested in a well-written novel of the period and its religious and political aspects. Recommended." E. S. Brown
+ — Library J 73:1385 O 1 '48 100w

"This is certainly one of Mrs. Mitchison's most successful historical novels. . . Even with [its] lurid setting, this novel is notable as psychological drama and as a stimulating study of ideas in conflict." Robert Halsband
+ N Y Times p43 O 17 '48 290w

"Naomi Mitchison has probably been the most imaginative and successful re-creator of life in the classic period among writers of English in our times. This new novel does not have the high imaginative quality of 'The Corn King and the Spring Queen.' . . It lacks also the sharp intensity of 'Black Sparta,' which for many remains the most memorable picture of the strengths and weaknesses of the almost incredible Spartans. But it has great merits of its own, even if swift narrative is not one of them. . . 'Blood of the Martyrs' would make a great motion picture, of the scene-by-scene type, where the build-up is by telling episodes and striking characters rather than by plot." H. S. Canby
+ Sat R of Lit 31:39 O 16 '48 600w

MODELL, MRS MERRIAM. My sister, my bride. 281p $2.95 Simon & Schuster
48-6914

"The heroine is a young matron who shrinks from the basic conjunctivity of married love. Her marriage starts disintegrating, and by the time it has been put back together, she has seen her husband become unfaithful, has considered doing the same thing herself, and has thought and talked incessantly about frigidity in women, the Oedipus complex, and numerous other disorders of the psyche." New Yorker

"If sometimes synthetic, fictionally facile, this is nonetheless provocative in its problem, its protagonists, along thematic, traumatic lines. Too femininely frank for uncontrolled distribution, so watch it."
Kirkus 16:125 Mr 1 '48 180w

"Miss Modell's book is serious and civilized and all of that. . . But in a novel the only reality that counts is what the writer makes us see, and Miss Modell can't make us see this frigidity as it must have been. In her hands the frigidity takes on just about the same importance as the way people eat and the fact that they use Band-Aids and the kind of small talk that they make." Seymour Krim
N Y Times p28 Je 6 '48 180w

"The author again demonstrates her ability to put together one nice, clean sentence after another, but the intellectuality of her story has a tinny ring, and so much of the action

MODELL, MERRIAM—Continued
takes place in bedrooms and bathrooms that one is entitled to suspect sensationalism."
— + New Yorker 24:77 My 29 '48 160w

San Francisco Chronicle p15 Je 20 '48 100w

MODERN education and human values [by] Boyd H. Bode [and others]. 165p $3 Univ. of Pittsburgh

370 Education

Six lectures on contemporary education delivered at the University of Pittsburgh in 1946-47 under the auspices of the School of Education. Contents: Reorientation in education, by B. H. Bode; Human values in the social sciences, by D. S. Freeman; The world educates for peace, by A. H. Compton; Religion and education, by H. P. Van Dusen; Is the educational system obsolete? by R. M. Hutchins; Education for self and society, by Ordway Tead.

Reviewed by H. S. Tigner
Christian Century 65:273 Mr 3 '48 700w

Reviewed by J. H. Titus
Churchman 162:15 Ag '48 240w

Reviewed by W. W. Brickman
School & Society 66:428 N 29 '47 270w

"Rarely do we find a symposium that maintains as high a level of discussion or one in which the participants deal as consistently but differently with identical issues. Even here, however, an exception must be noted. The second and third lectures, one by Douglass S. Freeman and the other by Arthur H. Compton, while pertinent and stimulating in themselves, and not altogether irrelevant, nevertheless serve more as an interlude to the main theme of the book than as a positive contribution to the problem of modern education and human values." V. T. Thayer
+ — Survey G 37:275 My '48 500w

MOE, HARRIS G. Flight engineering and cruise control. 209p il $4 Wiley

629.1345 Aeronautics. Airplanes—Piloting
47-12204

"Discussion of airplane engines, basic principles of their construction and techniques for efficient operation. Covers air speed, power, altimeters, propellers and propeller efficiency, cruising techniques and flight planning." (Library J) Index.

Booklist 44:264 Ap 1 '48

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 72:1275 S 15 '47 30w

N Y New Tech Bks 32:67 O '47

"The book is addressed particularly to pilots and flight crew members, and to others interested but without extensive scientific or engineering training. It will be of value also to those having such training, but lacking practical experience."
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:232 Je '48 320w

MONAGHAN, FRANK. Heritage of freedom; the history and significance of the basic documents of American liberty. 150p facsims $3.50; pa $2 Princeton univ. press

973 U.S.—History—Sources 48-5016

Describes each of the 132 documents relating to American history which were on display in the Freedom train. A brief sketch gives the background of each, and some facsimiles of the documents are included. Bibliography. Index.

Reviewed by E. G. Robinson
Am Hist R 53:829 Jl '48 950w

Booklist 44:182 Ja 15 '48

Christian Century 65:208 F 18 '48 310w

Reviewed by James Van Zandt
Churchman 162:17 Ap 15 '48 120w

Current Hist 14:105 F '48 20w

Reviewed by Elizabeth Burr
Library J 73:206 F 1 '48 90w

"Although this volume is in a sense only a catalogue of historical documents, it has been compiled by a historian of excellent standing and is full of valuable information on many points of American history. It is a book I shall keep and cherish, and recommend to others."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 Ja 25 '48 440w

Reviewed by Luther Nichols
San Francisco Chronicle p12 F 1 '48 100w

Reviewed by Courtlandt Canby
Sat R of Lit 31:23 Mr 6 '48 1000w

School & Society 67:15 Ja 3 '48 40w

Wis Lib Bul 44:40 F '48

MONSARRAT, NICHOLAS. Depends what you mean by love; 1, Heavy rescue; 2, Leave cancelled; 3, H. M. S. Marlborough will enter harbour. 287p $2.75 Knopf 48-5149

Three fictional studies of different forms of love. Heavy Rescue is the story of the A. R. P. in the early stages of the war, describing especially one man whose life was completely changed by his participation in that organization. Leave Cancelled, which was published separately in 1945, is the story of a British officer whose honeymoon was interrupted by orders to report for duty. H. M. S. Marlborough Will Enter the Harbour is the story of an English naval officer's extraordinary devotion to duty.

Reviewed by E. V. R. Wyatt
Commonweal 47:572 Mr 19 '48 550w

Kirkus 15:654 D 1 '47 140w

"The last of the three tells of a captain's love for his ship . . . a dull tale lacking the emotional undercurrent needed in dramatic understatement." C. W. Roth
— Library J 73:40 Ja 1 '48 80w

" 'Leave Cancelled' is an object-lesson in mawkishness; the story of the rescue-squad man is less grossly sentimental, and there are some things happily left unsaid in the story of the limping warship." Paul Bloomfield
Manchester Guardian p3 N 25 '47 80w

"Mr. Monsarrat's three war stories are peculiarly English, not only in their technique of understatement but in their absence of rancor. . . 'Depends What You Mean by Love' contains fine work, and one hopes that readers will be neither attracted nor repelled by the somewhat catchpenny title." James Hilton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Ja 18 '48 750w

"This talented young Englishman . . . displays an impressive ability on every page of this collection: if the reader has the feeling, at times, that the author's improvisations are more brilliant than his subject-matter deserves, his fine ear, his unerring eye for detail, and—above all—this ability to bottle his crises, and explode them when the suspense is all but unbearable, are impressive equipment for his future." James MacBride
+ N Y Times p10 F 1 '48 800w

"Mr. Monsarrat's characters all belong to that English literary gallery, instituted by Rudyard Kipling and sporadically refurbished in recent years by Noel Coward, that is dedicated to the personification of British steadfastness and romantic gallantry. The quality of the writing, however, is sometimes very close to Grade A."
New Yorker 23:82 Ja 24 '48 130w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson
San Francisco Chronicle p14 F 11 '48 600w

"Monsarrat commands two literary skills: he uses the English language with quiet, respectful competence, and he describes most vividly the processes of skilled work—how a ship is run, how a blitzed house is scoured for survivors. But the emotional patterns of human relationships are as yet beyond his grasp. Monsarrat's may seem a rather small talent, but this book gives evidence that he may yet do some fine things."
+ — Time 51:87 F 2 '48 350w

"By far the best is his account of a crippled warship. . . Here there is little of the false romanticism which elsewhere mars Mr. Monsarrat's dramatically effective stories."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p613 N 29 '47 180w

MONTGOMERY, BERNARD LAW, 1st viscount MONTGOMERY OF ALAMEIN. See Montgomery of Alamein, B. L. M.

MONTGOMERY, MRS ELIZABETH RIDER. Story behind great stories; il. by Elinore Blaisdell. 210p $2 McBride
028.5 Children's literature—History and criticism 47-12401

Accounts of how forty of the best-loved stories happened to be written by their authors. The stories date from Aesop's Fables to Wanda Gág's Millions of Cats. Bibliography.

"Rather superficial but will be useful when a few facts about one of these authors are requested."
Booklist 44:189 Ja 15 '48

"The unusual and interesting information included in the 'Story Behind the Great' stories is needed for young people and teachers who do not have time for personal research." B. W. Bell
+ Library J 73:127 Ja 15 '48 60w
Wis Lib Bul 44:23 Ja '48

MONTGOMERY, JOHN FLOURNOY. Hungary, the unwilling satellite. 281p il maps $3 Devin-Adair
943.91 Hungary—History A48-6451

An examination of Hungary's political and international affairs during and since World war II. The author, who was U.S. envoy to Hungary from 1933 to 1941, writes with profound sympathy for the Hungarians in the plight which has overtaken them, released from Hitler's yoke to fall under the domination of Stalin. Bibliography. Index.

Atlantic 181:112 Mr '48 180w
Booklist 44:231 Mr 1 '48
Foreign Affairs 26:578 Ap '48 60w

Reviewed by Rodney Gilbert
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p7 D 28 '47 950w

"Unfortunately, many of the most important events about which the author writes took place after he had left Europe, and are recounted by him primarily on the basis of letters, interviews with refugees, and newspaper clippings, which is another way of saying that his sources of information on this period are necessarily incomplete. His main thesis—that Hungary was the victim of her geographical situation and of forces which she was powerless to resist—is unquestionably correct." Nicholas Roosevelt
+ N Y Times p20 Ja 4 '48 600w
New Yorker 23:142 N 29 '47 170w

"The book is a very real contribution to current history and has the added merit of rich color and compelling interest." George Creel
+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 D 6 '47 650w

Reviewed by Emil Lengyel
Sat R of Lit 31:12 Ja 3 '48 850w

"As a whole, Mr. Montgomery's volume is well written, although it lacks balance. The author is not a trained historian, and has not seen the Hungarian problem in its historical perspective. The best sections of the book are those in which Mr. Montgomery tells of his talks with Admiral Horthy and other leaders in the Hungarian Government during the period when he was there."
+ — U S Quarterly Bkl 4:58 Mr '48 300w

MONTGOMERY, ROBERT BRUCE (EDMUND CRISPIN, pseud). Love lies bleeding. 227p $2.50 Lippincott 48-6807
Detective story.

"The English 'public school' setting is observed in considerable detail and with a steady edge of remembering humor. The tale is a vastly engaging jumble of sound detection, suspense and infiltrating amusement." James Sandoe
+ Chicago Sun Je 18 '48 230w

Reviewed by Ralph Partridge
New Statesman & Nation 35:482 Je 12 '48 190w

"Murder without tears, highly recommended to superior fans. Those who prefer the worst, as many otherwise nice people do, are warned away." Will Cuppy
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 Je 13 '48 250w

"Inspired guesswork, plus some rather uninspired sleuthing, enables Gervase Fen to solve a disappearance, a burglary and two murders. . . This story is not quite up to Mr. Crispin's earlier efforts." Isaac Anderson
+ — N Y Times p24 Je 13 '48 110w

"Funny material, handled with Mr. Crispin's usual arch elaborateness."
New Yorker 24:100 Je 12 '48 90w

Reviewed by E. D. Doyle
San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 27 '48 60w

"Background, people, murders, and their aftermath (including lost Shakespeare play) intelligently and engagingly portrayed, although elucidation is slightly long-winded. Worthwhile."
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:32 Je 12 '48 40w

"Love lies bleeding, shows some pleasant wit, great talent for bringing interesting characters vividly to life, a good plot with an exciting climax, and a nicely observed picture of school-life. The headmaster is credible, the school population authentic, and the senile homicidal bloodhound, Mr. Merrythought, a masterpiece of canine creation. But the Oxford don turned detective eludes him, and his detestable so-called modern miss positively creaks. His danger is over-writing. . . If Mr. Crispin will court verbal astringency, he can join the small class of reputable authors of detective fiction, who, like the Ancient Mariner, can tell a story which we 'cannot choose but hear.' " John Garrett
+ — Spec 181:88 Jl 16 '48 330w

MONTGOMERY OF ALAMEIN, BERNARD LAW MONTGOMERY, 1st viscount. Normandy to the Baltic. 351p maps $5 Houghton; col maps $8.25 Universal distributors, room 22, 38 Union sq, N.Y. 3
940.542 World war, 1939-1945—Campaigns and battles 48-1697

Field Marshal Montgomery presents "for study by the officers of Rhine Army, a factual account of the part played by 21 Army Group in the conquest of Germany. The subject matter is based on my personal papers, and I have been careful to relate the changing circumstances of the campaign as they appeared to me at the time." (Foreword) The period covered is from the appointment of the high command for the invasion of France to the surrender of the German armed forces. No index.

Booklist 44:297 My 1 '48

Reviewed by R. E. Merriam
Chicago Sun p57 Ap 28 '48 400w

"For such a colorful personality as Marshal Montgomery, this is really a colorless book—that is as writing, as journalism, as a human document. But it is a magnificent operations report." T. E. Cassidy
+ — Commonweal 48:193 Je 4 '48 350w
Current Hist 14:347 Je '48 30w
Kirkus 16:133 Mr 1 '48 250w

Reviewed by R. E. Merriam
New Repub 118:25 My 3 '48 950w

"Drily technical in manner and content it will, one hopes, assist the British officers in their homework. But it is fairly stony going for the lay reader, while it will certainly pour no oil upon the already raging seas of inter-Allied controversy over who won the war and how. . . There are points at which the Field

MONTGOMERY OF ALAMEIN, B. L.—Cont.
Marshal's memoir is likely to irritate American readers, especially if they are veterans of Normandy or the Bulge. But leaving that as may be, it stands as a concise factual record of the field operations of 21st Army Group, written by a military technician who was at once egotistic and humorless, vain and efficiently precise—just such a man, in short, as the Field Marshal is commonly supposed to be." Walter Millis
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Mr 28 '48 800w

"'Normandy to the Baltic' reveals little of the personality of Montgomery, except that the personal pronoun is scattered plentifully through it—though not as much as might be expected. The best thing about the book are its excellent schematic maps and the typography and make-up, which are clear and handsome. This is not to say that 'Normandy to the Baltic' is valueless. Any book by a high-ranking commander of any army is, to military students, eminently worth reading, and this book adds its bit to the patchwork of history. But the general reader—discouraged by the difficulties of style—will find little of major interest, and even the military reader must evaluate thoroughly and complement this account." H. W. Baldwin
N Y Times p3 Mr 28 '48 700w

"General Montgomery's writing is far from colorful; he is interested mainly in explaining the large-scale design of his strategy, and he does so in rather frigid prose. A few of his statements, such as 'The battle of Arnhem was ninety per cent successful,' may cause some surprise to civilians who followed the war in the newspapers."
New Yorker 24:98 Ap 3 '48 140w

"Because the story is so thoroughly documented with excellent maps, the book will undoubtedly become a required text wherever the science of war is studied. It will also be an indispensable aid for any student of the history of the War." C. W. Weinberger
+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 My 15 '48 850w

"Britain's No. 1 field general in the last war neither smoked nor drank. He rarely joked, never back-slapped . . . and so ended by having few friends—either British or American. Neither does his book know how to relax. Clipped, austere, unbending, and self-centered, it may win Montgomery some military admirers—but it will hardly win him friends. . . His book is frosty and remote. No people, landscapes, emotions figure in it. . . Did he see nothing, feel nothing, share nothing? Sometimes you wonder. In its obsession with the sheer mechanical steps of his own soldiering, his book sometimes reads as if written from another world." W. H. Hale
Sat R of Lit 31:22 Ap 10 '48 1200w

"Perhaps it need not be said that this book is hard reading. Without the lavish supply of maps—it is surely unique in the number and perfection of them—it would be well-nigh unintelligible. But it is to be regretted that the Field-Marshal is so wedded to the use of the word 'appreciate.' . . On one occasion the ordinary reader may be completely misled as to its meaning. This sort of lapse can scarcely be excused by the suggestion that he is using the word in a military sense, since there will be ten non-military readers for one soldier and the ordinary English usage would have served for both. . . But literary ability and generalship appear to vary inversely; and it has to be recognised that, as a source-book, this work is unique. It may inhumanly keep to the divisional level, so that the epic stand at the Arnhem end of the Rhine bridge is barely noticed. It is nevertheless, within its limits, invaluable. In that respect it is worthy of one who was the most consistently successful field-commander in the war."
+ — Spec 178:308 Mr 21 '47 650w

Times [London] Lit Sup p99 Mr 8 '47 800w

Reviewed by S. L. A. Marshall
Yale R n s 37:758 summer '48 140w

MOON, HENRY LEE. Balance of power; the Negro vote. 256p $3 Doubleday
324.15 Negroes—Politics and suffrage. Elections—U.S. 48-6926

A study of the present political status of the American Negro, stressing the possibility of the Negro's holding the balance of power in elections. The author is a Negro journalist. Index.

Reviewed by D. S. Strong
Am Pol Sci R 42:1220 D '48 600w

Booklist 44:332 Je 1 '48

Reviewed by Roland Sawyer
Christian Science Monitor p12 Je 29 '48 550w

"Of particular immediacy this year, and of interest along political rather than sociological lines, but otherwise limited."
Kirkus 16:163 Mr 15 '48 160w

"Timely and sound, it will interest all who are aware of this vital subject, but probably will not be widely read." G. W. Wakefield
+ Library J 73:706 My 1 '48 120w

Reviewed by Daniel James
Nation 166:666 Je 12 '48 850w

Reviewed by Harold Wolff
New Repub 119:24 Jl 19 '48 90w

"This is a good book for students of politics and for practical politicians alike. And, in a more dangerous sense, it is a good book for those who thrive politically on racial fears. Mr. Moon's theses are forthright." Hodding Carter
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p10 My 23 '48 800w

Reviewed by Morroe Berger
N Y Times p3 Jl 4 '48 900w

Reviewed by Samuel Abrahams
Pol Sci Q 63:464 S '48 1000w

MOON, PARRY, and SPENCER, DOMINA EBERLE. Lighting design. 482p il $5 Addison-Wesley 628.9 Lighting 48-2839

"Although this volume is based on courses given at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and is intended primarily as a text for students, it will be of considerable value to architects, illuminating engineers, and others concerned with the design and installation of good lighting systems. The first three chapters discuss the basic principles of electromagnetic radiation and describe the characteristics and efficiencies of various types of light source. Here also are extensive tabulations of data regarding the performance of incandescent, mercury-vapor and fluorescent lamps, luminosity, and the reflective ability of various types of surfaces. The remainder of the volume serves as a guide to the designing of interior lighting systems and to methods of determining the lighting characteristics of such systems. Bibliographies given at the end of each chapter." (N Y New Tech Bks) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales
Library J 73:951 Je 15 '48 70w

N Y New Tech Bks 33:41 My '48

MOORE, HARRY HASCALL, ed. Survival or suicide; a summons to old and young to build a united, peaceful world; with chapters from the writings of William L. Laurence [and others]. 209p $2 Harper
901 Civilization. World politics. Atomic energy 48-7348

"Dr. Moore wishes to provide a handy volume for the 'average layman' and for high school and college students. He has accomplished this by linking with his own text extracts from the writings of such authors as William L. Laurence of this newspaper, Chairman David E. Lilienthal of the United States Atomic Energy Commission, Raymond B. Fosdick, Harold C. Urey, Leland Stowe, John Fischer, Edwin Muller, Quentin Reynolds and others. Dr. Moore makes a logical division of his book into three parts: the problems which obstruct peace; the need for understanding those problems, and 'various ways of building a united, peaceful world.' " (N Y Times) Bibliographies. Index.

Booklist 45:11 S 1 '48

Christian Century 65:1145 O 27 '48 240w

"Mr. Moore has made a rousing contribution in this collection of comments. Brief and pointed enough to reach the most surfeited recipient of radio-borne advice, they postulate a new concept of stability at home that will fend off the economic collapse on which Russia is understood to be basing its aggressive plans; include a list of organizations that specialize in helping the needy of other countries, and furnish instructions on how to promote local groups working for worldwide friendliness. Mr. Moore should at least stir up some constructive thinking on this vital matter." H. J. Sowerby

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Jl 20 '48 500w

"This is a readable, serviceable book especially useful to the reader wanting orientation in the stormy atomic world of today." T. D. Mygatt

+ Churchman 162:17 O 1 '48 180w

"In its content, unoriginal, in its ideation, intangible."

— Kirkus 16:190 Ap 1 '48 160w

"Spotty, but useful handbook. . . Good, readable type is another praiseworthy feature." E. F. Walbridge

+ Library J 73:877 Je 1 '48 90w

"This is a humble, unpretentious volume in which the editor puts himself forward only when he has to. But it can be useful. The dreadful fools who are ready to declare war whenever any incident arouses their motions; the wilfully ignorant, who already know all they want to know about atomic energy; the unimaginative, who think the world will go along about as it always has, in spite of atomic physics; the young who do not want to die or to drag out their lives amid the ruins of civilization—they can learn from it." R. L. Duffus

+ N Y Times p20 Ag 15 '48 550w

"This is one we can't muddle through. And if anything can convince you of that, this book can do it. I suggest you give it the chance." J. H. Jackson

+ San Francisco Chronicle p16 Ag 6 '48 700w

"Much of value appears in the book. . . Yet the effectiveness of Mr. Moore's thesis, like that of any literary effort, must depend, not only upon an intelligent selection of what is pertinent, but, equally important, upon a rigorous rejection of what is not. It is here that the author has fallen down sadly, for he has permitted much that is extraneous to creep in and confuse the reader. This failure, no doubt, stems from confused thinking on the part of Mr. Moore." G. S. Jones

+ — Sat R of Lit 31:19 Ag 21 '48 600w

"Survival or Suicide is popular, interesting, but at times sketchy. . . Harry H. Moore has skillfully edited the material and provided chapters to fill out the presentation." Julia Emery

+ — Social Educ 13:42 Ja '49 300w

"This book is a basic primer for the average man who wants to know what post-World War II international relations are all about. It is among the simplest, most compact, and most fluent of the many books designed to awaken the average American from a presumed lethargy about the sad plight of the world, and as such, is required reading for the hard-pressed social studies teachers, the busy professional man with a casual interest and little or no time to devote to reading in this field, or for the high school student who wants to know what the shouting is all about and what he personally can do about it." Raymond Dennett

+ Survey G 37:435 O '48 600w

"A must purchase for small libraries. Librarians will do well to call this title to the attention of groups and study clubs of all ages as well as to individuals."

+ Wis Lib Bul 44:146 S '48

MOORE, HERBERT FISHER. Textbook of the materials of engineering; with a chapter on concrete by Harrison F. Gonnerman; a chapter on crystalline structure of metals by Jasper O. Draffin; and a chapter on plastics by William N. Findley. 7th ed 500p il $5 McGraw

620.1 Building materials. Concrete. Crystallography 47-11308

"To make room in this new edition for mention of the newer materials of construction and additional data on processing of metals, the author has decreased the amount of detailed description of manufacturing processes. Tables give properties of a relatively few typical structural metals rather than a complete tabulation, and discussion is confined quite closely to stress-carrying materials. The edition has also been enlarged by a chapter on plastics and a list of films that may be used to supplement the subjects in the book." (Eng N) Chapter bibliographies. List of visual aids. Index. For fifth edition see Book Review Digest 1936.

Booklist 44:153 D 15 '47

Eng N 139:128 D 11 '47 120w

N Y New Tech Bks 32:77 O '47

MOORE, JOHN CECIL. Brensham village. 239p $2.75 Simon & Schuster

828 England—Social life and customs 47-7259

"A successor and a sequel to The Fair Field [Book Review Digest 1946], this tells of Brensham Village which borders on the Elmbury of that book, and is again leisurely, literary reminiscence of that part of England. Here, briefly, episodically, are the figures best remembered: the mad Lord Orris and his declining days of poverty; the hermit who lived in the hill tower; rector and schoolmaster; poachers and keepers; Billy Butcher, the town drunk; here are the seasons and holidays, the cricket team, the three pubs and darts—the vulgar encroachment of the syndicate, and the village's reluctance to change, even with war." Kirkus

Booklist 44:266 Ap 1 '48

"Mr. Moore has written the most enchanting of books: he has the true magic of Kipling's Puck in conjuring up for us the age-old genius of England. Here, in the village, we are taken to the heart of that green and pleasant land." Eric Forbes-Boyd

+ Christian Science Monitor p14 Ja 10 '47 500w

"Modest, modulated portrait, with conventionalized charm."

+ Kirkus 15:639 N 15 '47 120w

"I liked this book. I liked it very much; and should wish to commend it to the attention of all readers who can enjoy a picture of village life, drawn with humour never facetious, emotion never embarrassing, and written by someone with a gift for selection, who knows effectively and unostentatiously how to write." V. Sackville-West

+ New Statesman & Nation 33:36 Ja 11 '47 130w

" 'Brensham Village' is a picture, tender, true and unblinking, of an old English village and the conditions, new and not happy, under which it now lives. Along with 'The Fair Field,' it tells and shows more about England of today and yesterday than many a ponderous treatise." Irwin Edman

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Mr 14 '48 850w

" 'Brensham Village,' like 'The Fair Field,' is a beautiful book beautifully written and peopled. . . We should read John Moore's two books, for they are about us whether life brings us a whiff of salami in a Madison Avenue delicatessen or of gillyflowers somewhere in England's 'Middle West.' " Leo Lerman

+ N Y Times p7 Mr 7 '48 800w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p14 Mr 10 '48 600w

"This is a book to be grateful for, entirely delightful, written in prose at once deft and

MOORE, J. C.—Continued
distinguished. Mr. Moore, who may be mentioned in the bright tradition of Richard Jefferies and Edward Thomas, has with warmth, humor, and vivid observation brought to life his rare and crack-brained Brensham, its men and beasts." Pamela Taylor

+ Sat R of Lit 31:30 Ap 3 '48 550w

Time 51:108 Mr 22 '48 600w

"Mr. Moore has written another convincing book about the neighborhood he knows so well."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p77 F 8 '47 270w

MOORE, RUTH. Fire balloon. 347p $3 Morrow

48-9197

A story of life in a Maine coast fishing village in the summer of 1947. Tho there are many characters the chief ones are the members of the Sewell family, old Gram Sarah, her sons and their wives and children. It is one of these, sixteen year old Theo, whose maturing thru first love and disappointment, constitutes the main theme of the story.

Booklist 45:103 N 15 '48

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p14 D 16 '48 150w

Reviewed by M. C. Scoggin
Horn Bk 25:63 Ja '49 80w

Kirkus 16:490 S 15 '48 130w

"Not too important but could be read with considerable profit by the teen-age girl." E. P. Nichols

Library J 73:1595 N 1 '48 80w

"Most people in Scratch Corner lived a hard life and had plenty of problems. Along with quiet humor, the novel does not lack for drama, even tragedy. The effect of their story, however, is of tranquillity: it affirms the significance of living and, like the village on the coast, looks out toward wide horizons." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p5 N 14 '48 450w

"This novel has an unqualified recommendation from this reader. For whatever that's worth. It's a heartfelt and genuine enthusiasm." John Gould

+ N Y Times p6 N 21 '48 500w

"Struggles with the elements and with adolescence in a contemporary Maine fishing village. The elements have, as usual, the more enduring and attractive qualities; the trials of a fisherman's two high-school-age children become a bit soppy before very long. Plenty of sturdy coastal characters, all the salty dialect you could ask for, and good detail on the locale."

+ — New Yorker 24:145 N 13 '48 80w

"Ruth Moore, author of 'Spoonhandle,' has written a delightful new novel. It is a story about the Maine Coast. Although the Sewell family are the main characters, there are plenty of other people in it, too. And they are nearly all drawn with the clearest, cleanest kind of artistry." Oriana Atkinson

+ Sat R of Lit 31:17 N 13 '48 550w

Reviewed by E. H. Dexter
Springf'd Republican p12C D 12 '48 300w

Wis Lib Bul 45:14 Ja '49

MOOREHEAD, ALAN. Rage of the vulture. 273p $3 Scribner

48-909

Novel about the chaos in a British colonial resort in the Himalayas, as the British prepare to leave. Ian Pearson, a British officer, still nursing a war neurosis, arrives for a holiday, but finds the place in a turmoil due to the approach of some despoiling tribesmen. In his efforts to help Pearson finds himself.

Booklist 45:120 D 1 '48

Reviewed by W. K. Rugg
Christian Science Monitor p15 D 16 '48 80w

Kirkus 16:320 Jl 1 '48 130w

"Author's skillful handling of nature, English characters and their different characteristic reactions to the breakup of their accustomed world, reveals an understanding worthy of attention by all concerned with the outcome of self rule in India. One follows breathlessly the increased tempo of events rushing to their tragic conclusion for some and lucky escape for others. Recommended." H. R. Forbes

+ Library J 73:1511 O 15 '48 130w

Reviewed by H. I'A. Fausset
Manchester Guardian p3 O 8 '48 110w

Reviewed by Walter Allen
New Statesman & Nation 37:15 Ja 1 '49 190w

"Alan Moorehead's story is of individuals, British and others, faced suddenly with panic and a carnival of death that obliterated what had seemed snug and secure. 'The Rage of the Vulture' is not a discussion of the 'problem' of India; still less is it a defense of British rule. Extraordinarily vivid in setting and event and deft in characterization, it gives a memorable picture of how people feel and act when violence is unleashed." Mary Ross

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 N 28 '48 550w

" 'The Rage of the Vulture' may not have the ring of authenticity of 'Passage to India' or 'Indigo'—or even of Bromfield's 'The Rains Came.' But it is a good story and Moorehead tells it well." M. J. Tweedy

+ N Y Times p11 N 14 '48 460w

"Mr. Moorehead writes in a facile, journalistic manner and has a good sense of structure. Topical and neat, if unexceptional."

+ New Yorker 24:145 N 13 '48 100w

"Although The Rage of the Vulture contains much of the intelligent observation of man and nature that we expect from such a good journalist as Mr. Moorehead, this is not just a fictionalised piece of journalism. It is a genuine novel, a novel of action. The characters . . . are adequate and no more—mild extensions of familiar, fairly obvious types. One gets the impression, though, that for Mr. Moorehead adequacy is already not enough." Robert Kee

+ — Spec 181:676 N 19 '48 260w

"The writing, as might be expected from Mr. Moorehead, is most accomplished, smooth yet sinewy with natural dialogue and clear description. Intelligent commentary on the Indian scene helps to produce a documentary effect."

+ Times [London] Lit Sup p593 O 23 '48 300w

MORAIS, HERBERT MONTFORT, and CAHN, WILLIAM. Gene Debs, the story of a fighting American. 128p $1.50 Int. pubs.

B or 92 Debs, Eugene Victor. Trade unions

48-7145

A life story of Debs from the time he joined the labor movement as a young man, to his death in 1926. Bibliography. No index.

"The work can hardly be regarded as a biography. It is incomplete, sketchy, dramatizing particularly the events of the Great Northern Railway strike, the Pullman strike, the Debs campaigns for the presidency, and his imprisonment in the Atlanta penitentiary. In it there is nothing new, but its readable style makes it a contribution for the popular reader." H. C. Cook

+ — Am Pol Sci R 42:1042 O '48 150w

"A wonderful example of the selective use of evidence to give a false impression. On the other hand, what it says about Debs up to the point where the Communist issue arises, seems quite acceptable." C. H. Grattan

— + N Y Times p4 Jl 18 '48 50w

MORAL, HERBERT RENARD. Buying country property; ed. by Ed Robinson. 184p $2.75 Macmillan

333.33 Farms. Real estate business 47-7262

"A detailed outline of the pitfalls which may beset the unwary purchaser of country property, whether he is looking for a place for retirement or as a source of income. . . The author takes the prospective buyer step by step through all the processes from selection of a locality, ways of determining good land (with sketches of weeds which generally indicate poor soil) and methods of estimating remodeling costs, to the intricacies of deeds and mortgages and possible flaws in title and surveys. He includes a check list of sixty-five items to determine whether or not an old place is structurally sound." N Y Times

Booklist 44:228 Mr 1 '48

Cleveland Open Shelf p5 Mr '48

Kirkus 15:491 S 1 '47 180w

"[This book] is of particular value now that land prices are inflated and most 'bargains' in old houses suitable for modernization have disappeared from the market." Lee Cooper

+ N Y Times p28 F 8 '48 360w

MORAN, MABEL (O'CONNELL) (MABEL O'MORAN, pseud). Red Eagle, Buffalo Bill's adopted son; il. by Charles Hargens. 212p $2.50 Lippincott

Red Eagle, Choctaw Indian—Juvenile literature. Cody, William Frederick—Juvenile literature 48-8128

Story of the life of an Indian boy, Red Eagle, who was adopted by Buffalo Bill. The story is based on fact, and part of it was supplied by Red Eagle himself.

Booklist 45:54 O 1 '48

"This unusually fine biography, toward which the subject himself has been able to contribute, will captivate many young people with its fresh and sincere revelation of the Indian's side of his story." A. M. Jordan

+ Horn Bk 25:47 Ja '49 120w

"The book is unevenly written, and at times exasperating in its obvious omissions. But it is authentic, touching, and informative. For younger readers. Recommended for moderate purchase for children's rooms." M. D. Read

+ — Library J 73:1285 S 15 '48 70w

"In addition to being a thoroughly delightful and absorbing book, 'Red Eagle' is a veritable encyclopedia of American Indian lore and tradition." H. B. L.

+ N Y Times p4 N 14 '48 110w

Reviewed by J. H. Jackson

San Francisco Chronicle p18 N 28 '48 260w

"It is a direct story, simply told, that moves swiftly and easily from one adventure to another. Here and there the text is broken by the chanted poems that Red Eagle sings according to the custom of his people, but they heighten rather than retard the action. Here is America when the West was still a place of challenge and danger. . . The drawings of Red Eagle and of the cowboys and their ponies are effective."

+ Sat R of Lit 31:36 N 13 '48 270w

MORANG, ALFRED. Adventure in drawing [il. by the author]. 54p $1.75 Sage books, inc, 1716 View Point rd, Denver 14

741 Drawing

"This book is an attempt to present the two sides of drawing, realistic and abstract, and to show the union between realism and abstraction." (Pref) Partial contents: Development of line; Shading and dimensions; Perspective; Composition; Proportions; Textures; Choice of subject matter; The human figure; Non-objective art. The author is a Santa Fe artist.

Reviewed by R. S. Robbins

N Y Times p21 Je 27 '48 230w

"This [book] may be of value when used by a competent teacher who can supplement it with reproductions of fine drawings and paintings. However, as a book of self-instruction it leaves much to be desired. The text is brief and the accompanying examples are weak and distracting." Hubert Buel

— San Francisco Chronicle p13 Ja 25 '48 70w

MORE, SIR THOMAS, SAINT. Correspondence; ed. by Elizabeth Frances Rogers. 584p il $7.50 Princeton univ. press

B or 92 47-4336

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"This is a volume worthy to take its place beside the ten volumes so far published by P. S. Allen's Opus Epistolarum Erasmi. More was the younger of the two famous friends, and it seems appropriate that a young friend of Professor and Mrs. Allen has done for More what they had done for Erasmus, with equal devotion and scholarly care. . . In general the editing has been well done. . . The usefulness of the volume might have been increased by a fuller indexing of subjects and a more careful alphabetical listing of all abbreviations in the bibliography. This reviewer is not competent to judge the editor's treatment of the Latin originals, but it is evident that in most technical matters she has followed Allen, the best of models. Both editor and publisher should be proud of their service to scholarship and to the memory of a great scholar." E. H. Harbison

+ Am Hist R 53:96 O '47 480w

"Miss Rogers deserves the thanks of all students of Renaissance thought for bringing together this excellent collection of More's correspondence. His extant letters, hitherto available only partially and in old and largely unobtainable editions, are here for the first time reproduced complete except for his correspondence with Erasmus, which has already been published in the collection of Erasmus' epistles edited by Allen and Garrod." Alan Gewirth

+ Ethics 58:230 Ap '48 300w

+ J Philos 46:51 Ja 20 '49 600w

"All readers will have an interest in the moving letters in English which More wrote while imprisoned in the Tower of London. . . The kind of selflessness that has gone into the making of this book should also be mentioned. Such work is largely drudgery. Miss Rogers has devoted sixteen summers and a sabbatical year to the task. . . Miss Rogers has not limited herself to the heavy-enough labor of collating and restoring More's own letters but has provided us with letters written to him, other pertinent correspondence, and a body of historical notes very rich in brief biographies. It is proper that the book should be beautifully printed." Russell Ames

+ Nation 166:508 My 8 '48 1150w

Times [London] Lit Sup p81 F 7 '48 750w

"More the distinguished humanist and thinker, the royal envoy and secretary, but above all, More the universally trusted, respected, and charming friend, the loving father, and the Christian gentleman who did not hesitate to lay down his life for conscience's sake, lives again in this collection of his letters. The book contains a valuable bibliography, notes, and an adequate index."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 3:261 S '47 180w

MOREHEAD, ALBERT HODGES, and MOTT-SMITH, GEOFFREY. Games for two; introd. by Ely Culbertson. 184p il $2 Winston

795 Games. Cards 48-218

Instructions for playing fourteen two-hand games. Contents: Rummy; Gin rummy; Pinochle; Six-pack bézique; Kalabriás; Casino; Russian bank; Cribbage; Eights; Mill; Backgammon; Liar dice; Sniff; Honeymoon bridge. Glossary.

Booklist 44:181 Ja 15 '48

Cleveland Open Shelf p2 Ja '48

"For some reason double solitaire has been omitted from this volume. Otherwise it is very good. . . The rules are all according to Hoyle, as far as Hoyle went, and are clearly and completely explained." James Eden

+ San Francisco Chronicle p13 F 1 '48 70w

MORGAN, ALFRED POWELL. Tools and how to use them for woodworking and metal working; il. with 600 drawings by [the author]. 352p $3 Crown

621.9 Woodwork. Metal work. Tools
48-5584

Six hundred illustrations and directions show the amateur how to get the best results in handling tools. Covers woodworking and metal working tools. Index.

Cleveland Open Shelf p23 D '48

"Practical and excellent for amateurs and useful for experienced carpenters, machinists and metal workers." L. A. Eales
+ Library J 73:951 Je 15 '48 50w

"Few of the available books on tools are as complete and satisfactory as this one. Frankly written for beginners and amateurs, it nevertheless describes and illustrates the uses of most of the hand tools that even the advanced home mechanic is likely to use. An exception is plumbing tools, such as pipe cutters and threaders, which for some unexplained reason are omitted. The illustrations are exceptionally good, and there are about 600 of them."
+ N Y New Tech Bks 33:80 S '48

MORGAN, BRIAN STANFORD. Vain citadels. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 311p $2.75 Little 47-12529

An English novel of suspense, a story based on the theme of hunter and hunted and finally of a man's search for faith. Paul Leger commits a murder, and for four months avoids arrest, meanwhile appealing to one friend and another for help and consolation in his distress.

Booklist 44:282 Ap 15 '48

Reviewed by James Sandoe
Chicago Sun Ja 16 '48 230w

"Mr. Morgan's social criticism is keen and vigorous; his psychology of religion is a development of the de profundis to St. Augustine's prayer. For the author of a first novel, he shows here unusual promise." L. E. Cannon
+ Christian Century 65:145 F 4 '48 350w

Kirkus 15:654 D 1 '47 210w

"This is in the best sense a psychological novel. So little is made of the actual murder as to recall a famous essay by De Quincey, and the effects on the murderer and the people who suspect or actually know of his guilt are so well managed that one regrets the ineffective touches of realism." Charles Marriott
+ — Manchester Guardian p3 My 16 '47 180w

"Bryan Morgan's novel, written in his twenty-fifth year, has maturity, ability, a nice leisurely way with words, good taste and little flavor; it has everything in fact but the symptoms of creative struggle which we are apt to deplore in a first novel and which we heartily miss when they're absent." Jane Martin
+ — N Y Times p22 Ja 18 '48 500w

"Although the author apparently intends [his friends'] rejection of the hunted man to illustrate the bogus Christianity of modern society, he doesn't make clear just why the failure of several ordinary people to hail an acknowledged murderer in the classic apostolic manner should be regarded as proof of a run-down moral condition. His delineation of the principal character's emotional pirouettes, on the other hand, is much more convincing, if reminiscent of the methods of Graham Greene."
+ — New Yorker 23:81 Ja 10 '48 150w

"This English Rodin Raskolnikov is quite unconvincing, his search for certitude uncertain at best. The story has been conscientiously planned, scrupulously laid out—but apparently not as a pressing representation of truth, for its content is rather like that of a half-inflated balloon. The chase is somewhat of a game; Mr. Morgan plainly does not intend to let his fugitive get caught until he is good and ready and has all his business transacted." E. L. McKitrick
— Sat R of Lit 31:16 Ja 17 '48 270w

Springf'd Republican p10B Je 13 '48 90w

"The book as a whole is clearly the production of an able and mentally mature writer."
+ — Times [London] Lit Sup p265 My 31 '47 260w

MORGAN, BRYAN S. See Morgan, B. S.

MORGAN, JOSEPH THEODORE. Hawaii; a century of economic change, 1778-1876. (Harvard economic studies) 260p il $4; text ed $3 Harvard univ. press

330.9969 Hawaiian Islands—Economic conditions
48-10889

"This work on Hawaii traces the social and economic growth of the islands from the time they were first exposed to Western culture in 1778. It traces, for example, the fur and sandalwood trade, the whaling industry, and the importance of sugar in the local economy. There are also statistical tables, a glossary of Hawaiian terms, and a smattering of illustrations." (Sat R of Lit) Bibliography. Index.

"The generous quantity of information is never ponderous; details are well-chosen and presented in a manner to make contagious the author's obvious lively interest in this topic. . . Recommended." Clarence Gorchels
+ Library J 73:1508 O 15 '48 140w

"The story of the coming of the haole (White man) to Hawaii can be duplicated (with suitable adjustments to the particulars of local circumstances) in New Zealand, Fiji, New Caledonia and elsewhere. It is a Pacific islands pattern—and Professor Morgan has made a notable contribution to our understanding of it, quite apart from the fact that he has written a first-class book about Hawaii." C. H. Grattan
+ N Y Times p42 D 5 '48 800w

Sat R of Lit 31:40 N 27 '48 70w

MORGAN, MURRAY C. (CROMWELL MURRAY, pseud). Dixie raider; the saga of the C.S.S. Shenandoah. 336p il $4 Dutton

973.757 Shenandoah (Confederate States steamship). U.S.—History—Civil war 48-8363

The complete story of the English-built ship which was sold to the Confederates for a raider. With its name changed to Shenandoah it became a scourge to Northern shipping. The Shenandoah sank vessel after vessel on four oceans, and did not surrender until months after the end of the Civil war. Bibliography. No index.

Reviewed by Paul Kiniery
Commonweal 49:45 O 22 '48 330w

Kirkus 16:356 Jl 15 '48 140w

"Murray Morgan's book is a valuable addition to Americana. Based upon extensive research, entertainingly written, it resurrects an almost forgotten achievement." P. J. Searles
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 S 26 '48 1200w

"Mr. Morgan says the book was fun to write. It is fun to read, too, so that we probably cannot complain because his admirable research tells us nothing new that is essential about the Shenandoah. However, this is the third book about that ship in little more than a year. This mass movement cannot be explained, but it leads the reviewer to wish Mr. Morgan had corked it off with a really definitive study. Also inexplicable is the author's reference to the log of the vessel as 'lost.' The log still reposes at Raleigh, N. C., in the possession of the North Carolina Historical Commission." W. B. Hamilton
+ — N Y Times p22 S 19 '48 500w

"Although little has been written about this fabulous cruise, the author found abundant unpublished source material. . . All of this valuable original source material has been mined, worked over, and sifted into its present form in a most workmanlike manner and the result is a book that reads like a most entertaining novel." Caspar Weinberger

+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 O 3 '48 370w

"A good story, well told." Fletcher Pratt

+ Sat R of Lit 31:21 O 9 '48 550w

MORGAN, THEODORE. See Morgan, J. T.

MORGENSTERN, SOMA. In my father's pastures; tr. from the German ms. by Ludwig Lewisohn. 369p $3 Jewish pub.

47-7164

A sequel to The Son of the Lost Son (Book Review Digest 1946). It is the story of a young Austrian Jew's discovery of his own cultural heritage, which he first realizes while visiting an uncle in Polish Galicia.

Booklist 45:14 S 1 '48

Chicago Sun Ja 27 '48 70w

Reviewed by Paul Bloomfield

Manchester Guardian p3 F 20 '48 90w

"Having himself stemmed from the outwardly peaceful but always inwardly boiling region of Galicia (now part of the Soviet Union), which is the setting for his tale, Mr. Morgenstern writes with intimacy and understanding. His sensitive translator has completely succeeded in recreating in English the climate of the book." Virgilia Peterson

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 F 29 '48 550w

"Not many American readers are familiar with the simple, pastoral life of village and farm that once existed in Eastern Europe and serves as the setting for 'In My Father's Pastures.' That is another reason, in addition to the interest of the story and the excellence of the writing, why many Americans would do well to read this book. Newest of Soma Morgenstern's novels to be presented in an English translation, it is in a way a sequel to his 'The Son of the Lost Son,' but it is complete and satisfying in itself." N. K. Burger

+ N Y Times p5 F 15 '48 750w

"The book is heavily marked with sombre political overtones hinting at the approach of the second World War, but it also contains a large amount of excellent gay, or at least less serious, writing, reminiscent of Sholom Aleichem's."

New Yorker 23:85 F 7 '48 140w

MORGENTHAU, HANS JOACHIM. Politics among nations; the struggle for power and peace. 489p maps $5.50; text ed $4.25 Knopf

341 World politics. International relations

48-8748

An extensive survey of international politics by an associate professor of political science at the University of Chicago. Bibliography. Index.

Booklist 45:115 D 1 '48

Reviewed by B. D. Wolfe

N Y Times p22 O 24 '48 1050w

Reviewed by Asher Brynes

Sat R of Lit 31:21 N 13 '48 950w

MORIKE, EDUARD FRIEDRICH. Mozart on the way to Prague; il by Elaine Bonabel [tr. and introd. by Walter and Catherine Alison Phillips]. 126p $2.75 Pantheon bks.

Mozart, Johann Chrysostom Wolfgang Amadeus—Fiction 47-11374

"Translation by Walter and Catherine Alison Phillips of a biographical novel first published in English in London in 1934" (Library J) and in German in 1855. "Mozart is here shown driving with his wife to Prague for the production of his still unfinished opera. They stop at a village. Mozart wanders into the grounds of a local magnate, and in a fit of absent-mindedness, plucks an orange from a cherished tree with a romantic history. This incident, which nearly has an unfortunate ending, brings about his introduction to the Count's family instead, and, by a train of association, suggests to him a melody for his opera. . . Mozart plays them the grim finale of his Don Giovanni; and through all the music, gaiety and laughter, the episodes and anecdotes both comic and romantic, there runs like a sombre accompaniment the haunting premonition of the composer's death, till the story closes on a note of doom and sadness." (Introd)

"The volume is handsomely produced in an appropriately old-fashioned way—cloth back, decorated boards, green tinted paper. It should become a great favorite and is highly recommended for all libraries." Leonard Burkat

+ Library J 72:1612 N 15 '47 70w

"Admirers of romantic fiction will find here a good example of the mid-nineteenth century Germanic flowery style perhaps a bit too heavy-handed to be truly charming. Mozarteans will like the picture of Mozart rehearsing the scene of Don Juan's last supper for the benefit of a private audience. Very likely 'Mozart on the Way to Prague' will appeal most of all to those who appreciate the unusual combination in one volume of pleasant subject matter, excellent book-making and moderate price." Herbert Kupferberg

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p21 My 16 '48 140w

MORISON, SAMUEL ELIOT. History of United States naval operations in World war II; v. 3, The Rising Sun in the Pacific, 1931-April 1942. (Atlantic monthly press bk) 411p il maps $6 Little

940.545973 U.S. Navy. World war, 1939-1945—Naval operations (47-1571)

The third volume of Professor Morison's thirteen-volume history of United States naval operations in World war II covers the naval phases of the war in the Pacific up to April, 1942. Index.

"Mr. Morison writes smoothly and interestingly. His chapter on 'The Attack on Pearl Harbor' is not only the longest and the best in the book, but it is by all odds the most vivid description of that catastrophe that this reviewer has yet seen. The reader is struck here, as he is throughout, by the earnest striving of the author for objectivity. . . In the field of international relations, however, Mr. Morison is on less familiar ground. The causes of the war go back much farther than 1920. . . Many will also question Mr. Morison's announced decision to omit a full discussion of the responsibility 'for the surprise at Pearl Harbor.' " O. J. Clinard

+ — Am Hist R 54:386 Ja '49 800w

Booklist 45:30 S 15 '48

"The author candidly states that these five dark months were neither pleasant to investigate nor inspiring to write about. Nevertheless, this book is by far the best account to date of the period when adversity beset the United States Navy in the Pacific." F. L. Oliver

+ Christian Science Monitor p18 S 9 '48 600w

Current Hist 15:294 N '48 70w

"An important work, not to be overlooked." G. D. McDonald

+ Library J 73:1276 S 15 '48 110w

"It is curious that there is as yet no good, complete history of the great Allied defeat in the Pacific, from Dec. 7 to the Coral Sea. This book would have filled the gap had it taken in Army as well as Navy operations; as it is, it fills a part of the gap admirably. . . Throughout, the book is supplied with excellent charts and course diagrams and valuable illustrations, most of them unhackneyed, of ships and men and the scenes of their trials." Walter Millis

+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p3 S 19 '48 1250w

Reviewed by Fletcher Pratt

N Y Times p10 O 10 '48 700w

Reviewed by Scott Newhall

San Francisco Chronicle p20 S 19 '48 650w

Reviewed by P. A. Crowl

Sat R of Lit 31:13 N 27 '48 850w

MORISON, S. E.—Continued
Reviewed by Frederick Reinstein
Springf'd Republican p8B O 10 '48 1200w
Time 52:108 S 13 '48 1000w
Reviewed by T. C. Mendenhall
Yale R n s 38:376 winter '49 350w

MORLEY, BLYTHE. Intemperate season. 204p $2.75 Farrar, Straus
48-6735

"The principals are a youth of seventeen and a considerably older married woman, whose beauty, aggressiveness, and beguiling talk about her past in Paris are chiefly responsible for their intrigue. In an attempt to break up the affair, the young man's father informs him that the woman he is mixed up with is his cousin, that she has already caused the permanent unhappiness of at least two men, and that she never spent a day in Paris in her life. While the hero is thinking that over, his beloved makes any further consideration of their relationship unnecessary by taking up with another paramour, who assists her in the murder of her husband." New Yorker

Booklist 44:336 Je 1 '48
Christian Science Monitor p11 Je 24 '48 50w

"A first novel of sensitive approach to adolescent growing pains."
+ Kirkus 16:177 Ap 1 '48 110w

"The background is described with charm and the younger children are natural, but Robert and the adults are less convincing. This first novel by the daughter of Christopher Morley shows ability and promise." M. A. Johnson
+ Library J 73:813 My 15 '48 80w

"Blythe Morley, Christopher Morley's daughter, follows the pattern of her father's 'Kitty Foyle' by exploring the mind of a member of the opposite sex in her first novel, 'The Intemperate Season.' She writes well, projecting herself perfectly naturally into the mind of a young boy. . . Robert, although he seems younger than his seventeen years, is a complete person. But most of Miss Morley's characters are sketched too briefly. Which is a pity, for they are sufficiently interesting, particularly the children, to make the reader wish she had probed into them more deeply." Joanna Spencer
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 My 23 '48 360w

"While Miss Morley makes it clear that here is no case of half-funny, half-pathetic calf love, the incidents that develop call for an emotional force that is beyond her power at present. The intelligence and sisterly sympathy with which she treats Robert's feelings aren't enough to involve the reader in his mood." Catharine Brody
N Y Times p20 Je 20 '48 420w

"An adequate performance that could have been a commendable one if the author had kept in mind the fact that death, even in triplicate, is not necessarily the most effective clincher to a novel."
New Yorker 24:114 My 22 '48 200w

"If the novel has a weakness it is in the author's manipulation of plot detail, at times too obvious entirely. To my mind, the auto accident just won't do. . . Nevertheless there is sincerity here and, I believe, ability. When it comes to the relations between brother and sister the author is exactly right. And there's enough else in this first novel to suggest that Miss Morley . . . is now doing the thing she was cut out to do." J. H. Jackson
+ — San Francisco Chronicle p18 Je 23 '48 900w

"I must say that after having dealt so carefully and in such exhaustive detail with Robert's mental and emotional processes during nine-tenths of her book, Miss Morley seems to skimp a bit at the conclusion by taking him through the whole next year in one paragraph. It gives an otherwise excellent composition a slight unbalance. But perhaps this is carping at a first novel of unusual merit, one which displays so warm and real a talent that one looks forward with anticipation to its author's future work." S. H. Hay
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:16 Je 12 '48 550w

MORRIS, CHARLES WILLIAM. The open self. 179p $3 Prentice-Hall
126 Self. 48-8817

"A plea that man's self be kept open for further development and expansion; that each self be permitted to develop in its preferred way, so that this country may achieve a culture made up of many diverse selves cooperating harmoniously." (Library J) Index.

"An important book." Bess Sondel
+ Chicago Sun O 25 '48 550w

"Popular style, very readable." J. L. Ross
+ Library J 73:1190 S 1 '48 70w

"'The Open Shelf' as befits a book by a student of language, is written clearly and in good prose but with an occasional attempt to wax poetic, usually at the beginning and end of a chapter. These poetic flights are not likely to elevate the spirit of the reader quite so much as that of the author. The poetry reminds one of Morris R. Cohen's remark about the chaplain's prayer at the opening of a legislative session or a political convention: it has so little effect upon what follows." Morroe Berger
+ — Sat R of Lit 32:14 Ja 22 '49 800w
School & Society 69:64 Ja 22 '49 40w
Springf'd Republican p8B Ja 9 '49 120w

MORRIS, EDITA. Charade. 183p $2.50 Viking
48-4570

Story of a little family of German refugees living in an old shooting lodge in the middle of a Polish forest. The family is made up of the dreamy father, a poet and playwright; his mistress, an ex-actress; his patient wife, who puts up with her husband's vagaries; and his young son and daughter. The story is narrated by the fourteen-year-old daughter, who describes the tragic people around them, the refugees, and their own daily lives.

"Mrs. Morris has chosen the most urgent of all themes and has clothed it in a boldly original form. Her sort of symbolic tale is capable of strongly emotional effects, of reconverting the anonymous 'statistic' into a living horror. It also runs the constant risk of naïveté, mawkishness, 'cuteness.' Edita Morris reaps high dividends from her method and sometimes succumbs to its dangers. The balance is in her favor." C. J. Rolo
+ — Atlantic 182:107 O '48 550w
Booklist 45:67 O 15 '48

"Ordinary literary standards will hardly suffice to judge this imaginative tale of horror viewed through the eyes of innocence. The fantastic and even gruesome elements in it may alienate some readers, thus detracting from the effectiveness of Mrs. Morris's dramatic charade, but her sincerity of purpose is undeniable." M. W. Stoer
+ — Christian Science Monitor p11 S 30 '48 700w

"A nightmarish innocence, which may recall Richard Hughes to some, but which seems a tighter story level, a greater concentration on characters, and a possible symbolism. For the literary rather than the lay audience."
Kirkus 16:341 Jl 15 '48 190w

"This novel has a strange, fairy-like quality; the writing is expressive, with a delicate elf-like touch, showing a child's uncompromising thinking. Recommended for the literary rather than the general reader." Anne Whitmore
+ Library J 73:1193 S 1 '48 90w

"'Charade' is good fiction but there would be a case for classing it also as 'non-fiction' on the library shelf. It is a poet's documentary in which insight and shrewd reporting are well mixed." James Hilton
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 S 19 '48 800w

"If 'Charade' were not what it is, a brilliantly devised and beautifully executed story, it would scarcely be worth a thought: it is the sort of bold book which must either be a triumph or a fiasco. . . Perhaps this is treating a charming and touching story with too much solemnity. But it is precisely because it is written with such rich and luminous simplicity, and because it does touch the center of the European tragedy—which is the world's tragedy—that it deserves not only the widest reading but the most serious thought." Donald Barr

+ N Y Times p5 O 10 '48 800w

"In spite of many moving passages, 'Charade' recalls its title by breaking up into scenes that are sometimes only arbitrarily connected by the choice of the director. Mrs. Morris has too much heart and too much talent to write a poor book, or even a novel no better than the average. But no matter how worthy her cause, in assuming the child's viewpoint of an altogether unfamiliar situation she has carried too great a handicap." Harry Bull

Sat R of Lit 31:13 O 2 '48 800w

"Symbolic, artful, tense with heartbreak and anger, this little novel about refugees from war and fascism is deeply moving, starkly simple, exquisitely contrived." Orville Prescott

+ Yale R n s 38:383 winter '49 400w

MORRIS, IRA VICTOR. Tree within. 279p $3 Doubleday

48-8539

A novel of France during the war. The protagonist is a bank manager, well-to-do, well connected, a happy husband and father, who during the months just before the war begins, has become uncomfortably aware of the futility, the materialistic aspect of French life. The story of his existence during the war, the loss of his family, his love affairs, his service in the underground and his imprisonment, is also the story of his personal regeneration.

Kirkus 16:374 Ag 1 '48 160w

"Thoughtful, sensitive novel. . . Recommended for those collections aiming to include the bulk of substantial current fiction." R. E. Kingery

+ Library J 73:1274 S 15 '48 100w

"The trouble with this novel is the trouble with all novels with strong themes and weak characters. They become descriptive rather than dramatic; they beg for sympathy rather than provoke it; they capitalize on our yearnings and exploit our weaknesses; they tell us what we are but don't bother to make us understand why. Mr. Morris really has important things to tell us about the indifference of educated people to the world's plight. Had he chosen less melodramatics, he might have succeeded." Bennell Braunstein

— + N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p21 O 10 '48 500w

Reviewed by C. M. Brown

Sat R of Lit 31:14 D 11 '48 140w

MORRIS, JOSEPH. Escalator method in engineering vibration problems; with a foreword by G. Temple. 270p $4.50 Wiley

620.1123 Vibration A48-6353

"Description of analytical foundations of the 'escalator' process. Author, a noted British engineer applies it to numerous vibration problems—particularly those arising in the design of aircraft. The escalator process was devised to show how Lagrangian frequency equations can be made numerically tractable. Chapters on basic principles of the theory of elasticity with historic information and book deals with other methods of computation. Emphasis is given to general reciprocal theorems and practical applications. Has many of the author's original contributions to aeronautical engineering." (Library J) Index.

Reviewed by L. A. Eales

Library J 72:1379 O 1 '47 110w

N Y New Tech Bks 32:85 O '47

MORRIS, LLOYD R. Postscript to yesterday, America: the last fifty years. 475p $5 Random house

973.91 U.S.—History—20th century. U.S.—Civilization 47-11260

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"This reviewer read Mr. Morris's work with interest but not with excessive enthusiasm. It is an inventory rather than an analysis of America's more immediate past, written, it must be admitted, in a most charming and witty style. The scholarship (in the narrower sense) is almost impeccable. In the broader sense, however, it leaves something to be desired." Erik v. Kuehnelt-Leddihn

+ — Cath World 166:572 Mr '48 500w

"Mr. Morris combines the carefully wrought and richly decorated manner with a serious attempt to work out the main intellectual problems. The result is an account, not just of the hair-dos and table manners of his leading figures, but of the origin and nature of their ideas." Arthur Schlesinger, jr.

+ Nation 166:217 F 21 '48 750w

Reviewed by George Soule

New Repub 117:27 D 1 '47 360w

"All the characters appear in their roles of social and cultural critics, held rigidly within the frame of Mr. Morris' thesis, but are presented with truth, brilliance, and sincerity."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:59 Mr '48 300w

MORRIS, PERCY A. Boy's book of snakes; how to recognize and understand them. 185p il $3 Ronald

598.12 Serpents—Juvenile literature 48-9569

The author is chief preparator of the Peabody museum of natural history, New Haven, Connecticut. In this volume for older boys and girls he gives an analysis of the entire snake family. Photographs help to identify the harmful as well as harmless varieties. A final chapter is on the care and feeding of snakes as pets. Includes a classification of the snakes mentioned in the book, a bibliography, and an index.

Booklist 45:181 Ja 15 '49

"A very interesting book. . . Numerous photographs and the arrangement of material makes this a valuable book for those interested. . . Recommended for school libraries." J. F. Kennedy

+ Library J 74:68 Ja 1 '49 100w

"It is a most interesting book. . . [The author's] attitude toward the creatures who 'crawl on their bellies' is objective, scientific, and curiously interesting. Perhaps it is because he effectively disposes of many of the misinforming legends that have grown up around them. He accents, too, their value to farmers and gardeners. There is in this book much that will insure safety against the poisonous variety." M. G. Davis

+ Sat R of Lit 32:34 Ja 8 '49 230w

MORRIS, WRIGHT. Home place. 176p il $3.50 Scribner

48-7192

Story told in text and photographs of a New York family's visit to a Nebraska farm.

Kirkus 16:243 My 15 '48 220w

"Recommended as a fine piece of authentic Americana." J. E. Cross

+ Library J 73:1027 Jl '48 140w

"The photographs are hard and vivid and suggestive, but whether in the combination story-telling they will gain 'character' from the warm human narrative, or whether the narrative will lose warmth from their coldly brutal reality will no doubt depend on the individual reader." W. P. Eaton

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p4 Jl 18 '48 600w

"The fact that Wright Morris in his photographs seems to produce an indecent invasion of the privacy of his text is a tribute to his accurate and selective descriptive powers. It is the nearest thing to a documentary film

MORRIS, WRIGHT—Continued
that today's publishing has found. Mr. Morris' talent may be unique. Certainly, it should be fostered." W. G. Dooley
+ N Y Times p5 Jl 18 '48 900w
New Yorker 24:61 Jl 31 '48 160w

"An extremely able photographer and a first-rate writer, Mr. Morris has combined his talents, not to make an 'illustrated' book but in order to let pictures and narrative marry. The offspring of this union is as near to a new fiction form, it seems to me, as you could get." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p10 Jl 25 '48 1400w

"It is the blending of pictures and text, that lends distinction to 'The Home Place.' Unlike 'The Inhabitants,' a few of the photographs tie in directly with the text, but that's not the important thing about them. It's the 'character' of what he photographs that interests Morris." Courtlandt Canby
+ Sat R of Lit 31:12 Jl 24 '48 550w
Wis Lib Bul 44:165 O '48

MORRISON, ERWIN G. Here's how in sports, by Morie Morrison. 128p il $2.95 Doubleday
796 Sports 48-6135

Notes on twenty-three sports from archery to weight lifting, by a sports reporter on the San Francisco Chronicle.

Kirkus 16:42 Ja 15 '48 120w
Reviewed by R. W. Henderson
Library J 73:477 Mr 15 '48 30w

"This slim, lightly written, abundantly illustrated book (almost every paragraph of text has an accompanying drawing) is likely to be one of the most easily perused an athletically-minded reader ever set eyes on; whether it will do more, in most cases, than give him anything but a smattering of advice about the sport he's interested in is to some degree questionable. . . Mr. Morrison's drawings—something between the styles of Gluyas Williams and Crockett Johnson—are accurate, amusing, and clear, and his text is pithy and unpretentious; it is a shame he didn't write about ten, or nine, or eight sports instead of twenty-two." Rex Lardner
N Y Times p21 Ag 15 '48 270w

MORRISON, JAMES DALTON, ed. Masterpieces of religious verse. 706p $5 Harper
808.81 Religious poetry 48-8937

"This anthology contains 2,020 poems by 900 poets and is planned specifically for use by preachers and teachers. The editor has produced this anthology as a result of many years of experience as a preacher and latterly as a teacher of homiletics. The book grew out of his own conviction as to the power of poetry to capture a mood and immortalize it in language that not only expresses but deepens emotion. He has planned the volume with a view to making the poems readily available for public speakers, especially preachers. There are six general divisions under the headings:—God, Jesus, Man, The Christian Life, The Kingdom of God, The Nation and Nations, Death and Immortality. The indices are so arranged as to facilitate the finding of a poem on a given subject. While most of the world's great poets are represented, the emphasis is upon poems, not poets, and upon their religious interest." Kirkus

Booklist 45:133 D 15 '48

"The volume is valuable for reference as well as for reading." H. E. F.
+ Christian Century 65:1112 O 20 '48 250w
Reviewed by John Cournos
Commonweal 49:180 N 26 '48 350w

"It has everything: magnificent coverage; discrimination and good taste; ancient and modern poets; completely adequate and efficient indices; and, with the inevitable exception of size, a thoroughly readable format. It is itself a masterpece. The cost is insignificant in the light of its value. Since it will be the recognized anthology for many, many years to come, be among those who recommend it to others." R. E. Keighton
+ Crozer Q 26:93 Ja '49 150w

"This would be a valuable addition to the reference library of any clergyman."
+ Kirkus 16:595 N 15 '48 160w

"The book should be a great help to preachers (most of the poetry is markedly quotable) and a fine addition to the home library. In libraries it will serve best as a reference work, and to this purpose indexes of authors, first lines, titles and topics will lend ready aid." Gerald McDonald
+ Library J 73:1818 D 15 '48 110w

"This is an admirable collection."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p32 N 7 '48 90w

MORRISON, MORIE. See Morrison, E. G.

MORROW, JAMES. A scientist with Perry in Japan [his] journal; ed. by Allan B. Cole. 307p il $4 Univ. of N.C. press
B or 92 Scientists—Correspondence, reminiscences, etc. Japan—Description and travel 47-11905

James Morrow was a physician and a civilian member of Perry's expedition to Japan in 1853. He was commissioned to collect seeds and plants and to introduce some American agricultural machinery into the orient. This is his hitherto unpublished notes on agricultural topics and farm life in general in the orient. The editor, a professor at Pomona college, has left the work in diary form. Index.

Reviewed by P. J. Treat
Am Hist R 53:542 Ap '48 280w
Booklist 44:183 Ja 15 '48

"Particularly interesting because of the picture of Japan 100 years ago."
+ Current Hist 14:38 Ja '48 50w
Reviewed by H. F. Graf
N Y Times p4 Ap 11 '48 350w
U S Quarterly Bkl 4:59 Mr '48 290w

MORTON, HENRY CANOVA VOLLAM. In search of South Africa. 359p il $4 Dodd 916.8 South Africa—Description and travel 48-8711

"As he moves from Cape Town up the East Coast to Durban and into Orange Free State, Transvaal and Rhodesia, Mr. Morton describes the natural scenery, indicates largely through conversations the economic and social trends, adding bits of historical background." (Library J) Bibliography. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 45:102 N 15 '48
Christian Science Monitor p11 O 14 '48 750w

"A friendly and tactful visitor, Mr. Morton is plainly aware of but doesn't probe too deeply into the powder keg of the racial problem. In Search of South Africa is informative, interesting, readable and recommended for purchase by all libraries." G. W. Hill
+ Library J 73:1190 S 1 '48 90w
Manchester Guardian p3 N 15 '48 110w
Reviewed by C. H. Grattan
Nation 167:703 D 18 '48 420w

"With the good taste any gentleman would exhibit in writing of friends whose hospitality he enjoys, Mr. Morton takes us on a delightful tour of South Africa. He brings a fresh, on-the-spot liveliness to his narrative which transports the reader to the scene and there is the immediacy of a well written letter to his story." Margaret Hubbard
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p16 O 10 '48 500w
Reviewed by John Barkham
+ N Y Times p24 O 10 '48 360w

"Written in his usual first person, Morton's latest book becomes a personal adventure rather than a guide. But his observations are so rich and varied, a reader in search of South Africa will certainly be able painlessly to absorb most of the guide-book details without guide-book tedium." Horace Sutton

+ Sat R of Lit 31:35 O 16 '48 130w
Wis Lib Bul 45:13 Ja '49

MOSCOW, WARREN. Politics in the Empire state. 238p $3 Knopf
974.7 New York (state)—Politics and government 48-7919

A description of the political forces of New York state, based on the experiences over a twenty-year period of a New York Times political reporter. Partial contents: The vote-getters; The voters; The elephant; The donkey; The splinter parties; The machines; The lawmakers; The man in the mansion; The cities and the state. Index.

Reviewed by Belle Zeller
Ann Am Acad 260:212 N '48 700w
Christian Science Monitor p12 Ag 31 '48 600w

"If the reader is seeking a sensational exposé of the O'Connell machine which has had the New York State capital in its thrall these many years, let him go elsewhere. If he is interested in the gossip which passes for 'beats' among syndicated columnists, this is not his book. If he wants a calm, clear, and highly revealing picture of what makes the most complicated state in the 48 tick, let him plunk three dollars in coin of the realm on the counter. He has found his book." Ralph De Toledano
Commonweal 49:18 O 15 '48 550w

A book for general reference, and for serious voters."
+ Kirkus 16:297 Je 15 '48 210w

"A necessity for New York libraries, and recommended for others." R. W. Henderson
+ Library J 73:1085 Ag '48 90w

"Having worked on many of the same assignments with Moscow for nearly a half dozen years in the big city's rough-and-tumble political arena, I know him as one of the most competent political reporters around New York. His reputation, however, derives not only from his frequent news beats but also from his independence and honesty in interpreting political news. . . In this volume, Moscow has maintained and enhanced his reputation for careful and truthful reporting." R. G. Spivack
+ Nation 167:237 Ag 28 '48 800w

Reviewed by Richard Watts, jr.
New Repub 119:24 Ag 16 '48 1150w

"[The book] is well organized, and its facts are viewed with judgment and impartial reflection. The anecdotes which light its pages are told to illustrate a point, never to illustrate the prowess of the author. . . Unfortunately there is not the analysis of Dewey's administrative techniques which one might look for." August Heckscher
+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p2 Ag 15 '48 950w

"Although [the book] is timely this election year, it has a lasting value; as a handbook of practical politics it is at the top of the heap." S. T. Williamson
+ N Y Times p3 Ag 15 '48 1050w

"A first-rate analysis of the political machinery of New York, state and city. . . A reporter, Mr. Moscow was for many years the New York Times' top man in Albany, where he was in a position to amass quite a store of the sort of backstage information on our politicians that is off the record as far as news stories go, and in this book he makes full use of that material, some of which is funny in a cynical way."
+ New Yorker 34:79 Ag 21 '48 120w

"An accurate and readable explanation of the facts of political life in New York State. It will bring to the average reader in unusually painless form an understanding of how the government and political parties actually work. New Yorkers will be more interested in it than other people, but the political pattern in other states is sufficiently similar to New York's for the volume to have a general interest for readers throughout the country. The most attractive characteristic of the book is that, while the author is thoroughly realistic, in that he at all times goes behind the form to the substance of whatever he is discussing he has not given way to cynicism. . . A causal reader may find certain sections of the book a little dry. . . A somewhat over-lengthy discussion of Dewey's public relations and press conference techniques, not entirely complimentary, can be excused on the ground of personal privilege of the author. The powerful attack on public-opinion polls contained in the final chapter is less easy to justify and seems, to this reviewer at least, to have been dragged in by its coattails. It would take more than one or two diversions such as these, however, to spoil what is otherwise a most useful and interesting book." Oren Root
+ — Sat R of Lit 31:8 Ag 14 '48 950w

MOSER, MRS EDWA. Roundelay. 214p $2.75 Duell
48-6482

"Almost without plot, these sketches of a wise woman and her three likeable, intelligent teen-agers show their emotional development just before the older son enters the recent war. Each chapter is a complete incident." Library J

Booklist 44:337 Je 1 '48

"There are no dull passages in this 'Roundelay,' about thoroughly natural, credible, and decent young people and about their mother, who just manages to be equal to each occasion, though sometimes simply by saying nothing. Mrs. Moser's way of writing about Dana Loring and her children is graceful, yet substantial." W. K. R.
+ Christian Science Monitor p16 Jl 2 '48 420w
Kirkus 16:94 F 15 '48 170w

"The boys are normal, active, well characterized individuals, whose mother understands and respects them. But into the mind of the youngest, a romantic imaginative daughter, the author projects day-dreams too nostalgically mature. Childish pranks and grown-up common sense rescue the book from sentimentality. Ably and sensitively written." L. R. Miller
+ — Library J 73:558 Ap 1 '48 100w

"'Roundelay' is a gentle story of a family whose love is constructive. Delicately written, it has little plot, but creates a mood which leaves the reader relaxed and reassured."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p12 My 2 '48 230w

"The tempo of the story is leisurely. There is nothing much to be seen but everything to be felt, yet the emotion is always ordered and composed. 'Roundelay' is an excellent example of how an old subject can be invested with freshness and charm." J. V.
+ San Francisco Chronicle p17 My 16 '48 250w

MOSIER, RICHARD DAVID. Making the American mind; social and moral ideas in the McGuffey readers. 207p $3 King's crown press
372.4 McGuffey, William Holmes. U.S.—Civilization 47-5812

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"Despite shortcomings the work before us does its central task competently. By judicious selection of excerpts, by paraphrase, and by careful generalization the author conveys the spirit of the McGuffey readers faithfully. Although he is not in sympathy with their Hamiltonian predilections, he is quick to give credit for their anti-militaristic position, their appeal for justice for the American Indian, and their unceasing emphasis upon the Christian virtues of love, kindliness and service." R. C. Angell
+ — Am Soc R 13:107 F '48 1100w

"This analysis of the social and moral ideas of the McGuffey readers, skilfully studied in connection with their historical context and against the background of American thought and culture, contributes a useful chapter to the history of education in the United States." E. W. King

MOSIER, R. D.—Continued
+ Library Q 18:67 Ja '48 2200w

"Dr. Mosier's dissertation is a mature study in the history of ideas, and his methodology exhibits rare and commendable conscientiousness. The quotations from the readers are well chosen and the documentation appears to be thorough. The major weakness of the work is that the author has adduced no objective proof of the readers' actual influence. The bibliography of secondary sources is incomplete and includes a number of items which are of little value for purposes of research." W. W. Brickman
+ — School & Society 67:247 Mr 27 '48 450w

MOSS, SIDNEY, and MOSS, SAMUEL. Thy men shall fall. 351p $3 Ziff-Davis
48-8312

A bitter novel which shows practically the whole course of World war II thru the eyes of one soldier, George Walburne. Beginning when George's division lands in North Africa, it follows him to England, then thru France, Holland, and Germany.

Reviewed by Willard Motley
Chicago Sun p7X S 19 '48 600w

"Powerful and readable as this book is throughout, it rises toward the close. Its talk, always alive, natural, swift and seeming really to issue from the characters rather than the author, tackles larger questions now, yet remains gratifyingly realistic and tastes convincingly of our universal human foolishness. . . Walburne wonders in the last line 'how soon the next war will come.' This book may help delay it; for it is filled with vital facts, and 'facts are the angels of the Lord.'" Sarah Cleghorn
+ Christian Century 65:1010 S 29 '48 1000w

"A bitter and unforgiving story that loses force in attempting to compass too much."
— Kirkus 16:455 S 1 '48 160w

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p25 O 24 '48 330w

"Veterans will recognize all the familiar complaints in this mélange of impressions. But they will agree that as true as most of them are, the book would have been better if the authors had learned to laugh at the minor ones. Sympathy piled on with an entrenching tool is inclined to produce bathos." D. D.
— + N Y Times p42 N 21 '48 450w

"A rather grim commentary of disillusioned victory written in powerful, candid, and intimate terms. . . As a whole, this novel is one long, big, beautiful gripe such as many a GI would have loved to have given expression to. The Biblical title is from one of Isaiah's fierce exhortations and the novel follows its expletive mood, denouncing and exposing. The style is mainly rhetorical, and many sections are catalogues of grievances." Siegfried Mandel
Sat R of Lit 31:28 S 18 '48 650w

MOTHER GOOSE. Golden Mother Goose; 367 childhood favorites selected by Jane Werner; il. by Alice and Martin Provensen. (Giant golden bks) 96p $1.50 Simon & Schuster
48-9054

Contains 367 Mother Goose verses and other children's rhymes and jingles. Profusely illustrated so that almost every entry has its own picture or pictures.

Reviewed by B. J. Thompson
Cath World 168:221 D '48 50w

"A quarto-size book bursting with color and gayety. An overdose of a good thing, as if quality meant quantity. Too bad, because the illustrators have a lovely talent." C. H. B.
— + Commonweal 49:146 N 19 '48 30w

"This seems to us to be woefully lacking in editorial judgment—on the theory that [if] a lot is good more is better. For quality, not to be compared to The Tall Mother Goose. But lots of pictures on every page, so every jingle has its own illustration, and the pages are big enough so they are not overcrowded."
Kirkus 16:552 O 15 '48 100w

"Recommended." R. O. Bostwick
+ Library J 73:1746 D 1 '48 100w
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 N 14 '48 150w
New Yorker 24:123 D 11 '48 80w

"A humorous and original Mother Goose."
+ Sat R of Lit 31:34 N 13 '48 30w

Reviewed by S. M. Neal
Springf'd Republican p7B N 7 '48 100w

MOTHER GOOSE. Toni Frissell's Mother Goose. 95p il $2.50 Harper
Photographic books 48-11000

Mother Goose rhymes illustrated with Toni Frissell's photographs of modern children.

Reviewed by M. B. King
Chicago Sun D 11 '48 30w
Commonweal 49:146 N 19 '48 10w
Kirkus 16:570 N 1 '48 120w

"Delightful, natural children against background of country and seashore in the summertime. Charming addition to the collections of Mother Goose." A. M. Wetherell
+ Library J 73:1829 D 15 '48 70w
— New Yorker 24:123 D 11 '48 120w

MOTT, FRANK LUTHER. Golden multitudes, the story of best sellers in the United States. 357p $5 Macmillan
016 Bibliography—Best books. American literature—History and criticism. English literature—History and criticism 47-11742

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"This is an intensely absorbing account of the business of publishing and book selling as reflected in the buying predilections of the American reading public from colonial times to the present. It is also a thoroughly revealing contribution to an understanding of the social forces that made for literary interest over the years of our national history. And, even more, it is a study filled to overflowing with surprising bits of bibliographical information, arresting publishing data, fascinating characterizations, and witty observations about the flourishing world of books as it developed in an expanding, bustling, and thriving country." S. I. Pomerantz
+ Ann Am Acad 256:188 Mr '48 480w

Reviewed by Joseph McSorley
Cath World 166:469 F '48 900w
Cleveland Open Shelf p7 Mr '48

"The book is a lively mixture of erudition and anecdote; it aims to combine bibliographical information with presentation of an interesting subject in a way that will attract the general reader. It is not profound literary criticism but it is informative and entertaining literary history."
+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:113 Mr '48 320w

MOTT, FREDERICK DODGE, and ROEMER, MILTON IRWIN. Rural health and medical care. 608p maps $6.50 McGraw 614 Hygiene, Rural. Medicine, Rural 48-3784

A survey of health problems and conditions in the rural sections of the United States. Includes a study of methods now used to meet health needs. Indexes.

"A valuable pioneer study of a most important problem." C.-E. A. Winslow
+ Am J Pub Health 38:1595 N '48 750w

"Rural Health and Medical Care is the most authoritative and comprehensive presentation of the problems of rural health which has yet been published. It is comprehensive in scope, objective in its method, fully documented, and carries a moderate number of well designed graphs, maps, and tables. However, the style of writing is more wordy than necessary. The descriptive parts of the book could have been presented in one-half the space. Furthermore, the summary statements, generalizations, and conclusions could have well been stated more succinctly and set out in bold face paragraphs or italics for the busy reader or student." C. H. Hamilton

+ — Am Soc R 13:790 D '48 500w

Booklist 45:46 O 1 '48

"For many years this book will be utilized as a source of reference for facts and of guidance in policy. It is a major contribution to understanding conditions and needs, trends and possibilities for health services in those vast, vital, and declining areas of our country wherein over half the population still resides. The authors have drawn upon sociology and economics as well as on data specifically relating to health and medical services. The book is not merely on rural health but on rural life in relation to health." M. M. Davis

+ Survey 84:381 D '48 600w

MOUNTAINEERS, incorporated. Mountaineers handbook; the techniques of mountain climbing. 160p il $3 Superior pub.

796.52 Mountaineering 48-7071

Written as an instruction book for the Mountaineers club of Seattle, this small handbook contains information especially useful to mountaineers in the Pacific Northwest. Covers equipment, food, compass, rock climbing, rope technique, snow and ice craft, avalanches, emergency first aid, etc. Glossary.

Booklist 44:333 Je 1 '48

"Excellent for beginners."

+ Library J 73:1031 Jl '48 20w

"The whole book is small enough to fit easily into your rucksack. The only trouble is that it costs just about as much as the rucksack itself. Furthermore, the Sierra Club's David Brower has also published such an item, more complete and up-to-date." A. K.

San Francisco Chronicle p22 Je 13 '48 150w

Sat R of Lit 31:29 S 4 '48 140w

MOWERY, WILLIAM BYRON. Long arm of the Mounted; il. by Stephen J. Voorhies. (Whittlesey house publication) 146p $2 McGraw

48-8869

Four short stories about different types of activities of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. For senior high schools.

"Some of the stories, told straight, are good ones; others, translated into patois and a kind of pidgin English, lose value in that process. But the overall impression is certainly an expansion of the conception most people have of the duties of this famous service unit."

+ Kirkus 16:483 S 15 '48 70w

"Good picture of the men and interesting sidelights on life in different parts of Canada. . . For older boys and girls." G. E. Cartmell

+ Library J 73:1828 D 15 '48 40w

"These stories vary in plot and content, but all four are notable for accurate background, imaginative interpretation, strong characterization and dramatic force. The excellent illustrations complement the text and will add to the enjoyment of junior and senior high school readers." R. A. Brown

+ N Y Times p14 Ja 2 '49 180w

MOWRER, EDGAR ANSEL. Nightmare of American foreign policy. 283p $2.95 Knopf

327.73 U.S.—Foreign policy 48-9096

The author, an American foreign correspondent, surveys the record of our international policies and relationships from the close of the first World war, to the present, finds them almost uniformly unfortunate and poorly conceived and leading inevitably toward war. Index.

"Mr. Mowrer has written a biting and admirably succinct study of the mistakes made between wars, and of Roosevelt's wartime diplomacy. He concludes with a bold set of answers to the 'awful choice' confronting us." C. J. Rolo

+ Atlantic 183:86 Ja '49 480w

Booklist 45:115 D 1 '48

Reviewed by Irving Pflaum

Chicago Sun p9X N 21 '48 190w

Reviewed by George Soule

Nation 168:48 Ja 8 '49 900w

"Mr. Mowrer is a stimulating writer. His style is epigrammatic and terse; he is likely to dispose of grave problems with a phrase and too often addresses the reader like a testy old gentleman hectoring a backward child. It is doubtful whether any one will agree with every facet of every situation he presents, and many will be provoked into opposition by his manner. But he does strike sparks; he does challenge the reader to think. And certainly his subject demands all the thought that the human mind can bring to bear upon it." H. W. Baehr

+ — N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 N 28 '48 800w

" 'This book is a study of the foreign policy of the United States in recent years.' It is moreover—as the opening sentence does not go on to say—incomparably the best study of American foreign policy for this period that has yet been written." E. W. Fox

+ N Y Times p3 O 31 '48 1750w

New Yorker 24:146 N 13 '48 100w

Reviewed by M. S. Watson

Sat R of Lit 31:10 N 6 '48 1350w

MUELLER, CHARLES HESS. Bulbs for beauty; drawings by Else Bostelmann. 296p il $3.50 Barrows

635.944 Bulbs Agr47-35

Information on bulbs for the amateur gardener and dealer. Contents: Giving new bulbs a good start; How deep to plant; Bulb enemies outwitted; Your tulips—how to know them; Those delightful daffodils; Narcissi by name and class; The return of the hyacinth; Iris from bulb to bowl; Lily species and hybrids; Spring planting for summer bloom; Hardy bulbs with autumn flowers; Easy indoor flowering; Bulbs for rock garden and white garden. Glossary. Index.

Booklist 44:85 N 1 '47

Cleveland Open Shelf p10 My '48

Kirkus 15:572 O 1 '47 150w

"Another acceptable volume on a subject which has been the theme of many other books. . . You will like the photographs, both colored and black-and-white, in Mr. Mueller's book; most of them are excellent. His text is pleasant, too, and sanely enthusiastic." R. S. Lemmon

N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p14 F 15 '48 110w

MUENCH, GEORGE A. Evaluation of non-directive psychotherapy by means of the Rorschach and other indices; with a foreword by Carl R. Rogers. 163p pa $2 Stanford univ. press

616.85 Psychotherapy Med47-2963

An attempt to measure the personality changes resulting from non-directive psychotherapy, based on the results of three tests (the Rorschach, Kent-Rosanoff word association test and the Bell adjustment inventory) given to twelve subjects before and after therapy. Bibliography.

"The reviewer commends the caution in research and intensity of execution. It is, in content, a reaction to the 'advice and suggestion' school of therapy and, in form, a reaction to those psychotherapists who publish 'results only' and eliminate or minimize procedure. He agrees with the objectives to secure tested norms of recovery in order to validate intuitive estimates and to ascertain what 'cure' implies. But in the emphasis on method the pendulum has swung too far; a concomitant

MUENCH, G. A.—Continued
conceptual explanation of personal dynamics is subordinated to an operational excellence. This emphasis is a pervasive 'style of thinking' in the social as well as the psychological sciences. One wonders whether it is sufficient in a treatment method." S. K. Weinberg
Am J Soc 53:514 My '48 1300w

"The author wins respect as a careful, conscientious worker, but it is difficult to say what he has accomplished in this study beyond finding interesting indications of the possibility of utilizing of such tests in the evaluation of progress in therapy. . . His thinking seems to echo the traditional defense of the partisan psychiatrist that improvement effected without the use of his method of treatment cannot possibly be cured and must therefore be superficial. Mistrusting the report of client and therapist and considering objective study of adjustment as not practical, he turns to objective methods not invalidated. The usefulness of this exploration is impossible to state at present, depending as it does upon future work. The reviewer cannot accept it as an evaluation of non-directive psychotherapy, as the title claims." R. L. Jenkins
— Am Soc R 13:230 Ap '48 650w

"A full analysis of the Rorschach test results is not presented. Instead, certain of the quantitative scores derived from this test and from the two other tests are used by the author as 'signs' of personal and social adjustment. On this basis, the author concludes that ten of the twelve cases showed a general improvement during therapy. Since a control group was not used, the study fails to provide definite evidence that the changes in test scores are attributable to the effects of the therapy."
— U S Quarterly Bkl 4:78 Mr '48 180w

MUENCH, JOSEF. Along Yosemite trails. 101p il $2.75; pa $1.75 Hastings house

917.9447 Yosemite National park 48-8362

"Almost 100 photographs of scenery and animals in Yosemite National Park; captions, no text. End paper map." Booklist

Booklist 45:49 O 1 '48
+ Kirkus 16:473 S 1 '48 70w

"A thin book of nice, clean post-card photographs of Yosemite. . . The back endpapers carry a clear, readable map of the park which spots the location of several of the tourist facilities." Horace Sutton
+ Sat R of Lit 31:35 O 16 '48 80w

MUIR, JOHN. Yosemite and the Sierra Nevada; phot. by Ansel Adams; sels. from the works of [the author] ed. by Charlotte E. Mauk. 132p $6 Houghton

917.9447 Yosemite valley. Sierra Nevada mountains 49-7030

A combination of selections from John Muir's prose descriptions of the Yosemite and the Sierra Nevada country, and sixty-four photographs of the region. There is a catalog of conditions under which each picture was taken.

Booklist 45:176 Ja 15 '49
Commonweal 49:286 D 24 '48 50w

"'Yosemite and the Sierra Nevada' reprints superb descriptive passages about those regions, with almost overwhelming photographs by Ansel Adams."
+ N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p17 Ja 16 '49 20w

"The beauty Muir found in his beloved Yosemite, Adams has caught with extraordinary fidelity with his camera: he has snapped nature in her every mood and during every season." R. D. Dinsmore
+ N Y Times p33 Ja 16 '49 90w

"You should read Muir and look at these wonderful Adams pictures yourself. There is just no way for me to transmit to you the total effect, excepting to say that I believe John Muir would have felt these photographs to be the nearest thing to a full expression of what he wanted words to say about his beloved Sierra. As for Mr. Adams, it is obvious that Muir's writing is, in his view, the wholly right complement to what his camera has been able to show. The book—I hardly need to say it, do I?—is one that no lover of the Sierra should be without." J. H. Jackson
+ San Francisco Chronicle p14 D 13 '48 650w
Sat R of Lit 32:29 Ja 1 '49 110w

MULDER, ARNOLD. Americans from Holland. (Peoples of America ser) 320p il $5 Lippincott

325.2492 Dutch in the U.S. 47-11821

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

"The trained historian who reads this interesting and handsome book will inevitably be led to the conclusion that the author composed it for the general public and not for scholars. Both the documentation and the bibliography are woefully inadequate." Albert Hyma
Am Hist R 53:626 Ap '48 240w

"Mr. Mulder has told the story of the Holland-American well and interestingly, though the story is not as complete as it might be, nor is it brought wholly up to date. . . What people become is even more important than their background. Though losing practically all of their former Dutch peculiarities, the Holland-Americans have in many respects become more rather than less distinctive, and are making a unique contribution to American life. This does not receive adequate emphasis in this volume." Amry Vandenbosch
+ — Ann Am Acad 257:229 My '48 420w

Reviewed by Frances Witherspoon
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p8 Jl 4 '48 360w

"It must be a matter of presentation, for surely the story of how the Dutch West India Company was formed, how the Dutch missed their chance at getting an early foothold in America, how Dutch blood produced the Roosevelts, the Vanderbilts, Herman Melville, Henrik Van Loon and so many others, could and should be better told than it is here." James Eden
San Francisco Chronicle p13 F 1 '48 200w
Wis Lib Bul 44:17 Ja '48

MULLER, HERBERT JOSEPH. Thomas Wolfe. (Maker of modern literature) 196p $2 New directions

B or 92 Wolfe, Thomas 47-11790

For descriptive note see Annual for 1947.

Reviewed by J. C. Garrett
Canadian Forum 27:260 F '48 420w
Christian Science Monitor p15 My 1 '48 70w

"Excellent study" Martin Gardner
+ Ethics 58:304 Jl '48 850w

Reviewed by Milton Rugoff
N Y Herald Tribune Wkly Bk R p1 Ap 4 '48 800w

"Any artist is fortunate to receive such a sympathetic, painstaking appraisal of his life work, but it seems to me that Mr. Muller shares some of the misconceptions that underlie all of Wolfe's work." Caroline Gordon
+ — N Y Times p10 Mr 7 '48 800w

"Any creative writer will tell you that one of the cruelest bars to composition is the dread that his work will be pilloried by incompetent critics. Conversely, the knowledge that his book will be assessed by fair and penetrating criticism, is one of the disciplines that keeps a writer keen. When Lionel Trilling exercises his critical gifts on E. M. Forster, or when, as in the present case, Herbert J. Muller turns in a flawless performance on Thomas Wolfe—every creative writer, no matter how obscure, turns again to his own task with renewed vigor and confidence." H. M. Robinson
+ Sat R of Lit 31:8 F 7 '48 800w

"Unlike the uncritical eulogists or the unsympathetic disparagers of Wolfe, Professor Muller has succeeded in being both sympathetic and critical. Scattered through the book are brilliant generalizations about the main trends of contemporary literature and shrewd assessments of the characteristic qualities of American literature of the past; and to both of these Wolfe is provocatively related. Some readers may wish for a more thorough study of the Wolfe novels themselves, but most will be thankful for penetrating analyses of parts here and there, and for such illuminating comments as the fairly detailed comparison made with Herman Melville."

+ U S Quarterly Bkl 4:15 Mr '48 280w

MUND, VERNON ARTHUR. Open markets; an essential of free enterprise. 272p il $3 Harper

380 Economics. Marketing 48-1736

"The first eleven chapters of the present study constitute an historical survey of the rise and decline of open markets in Europe as well as in the United States. Their purpose is to serve as an inductive basis for a solution of the economic problem of monopoly in the American economy. The subsequent chapters present the results of the historical study. Open markets, it is found, are an indispensable condition of competitive prices and free enterprise. The conclusion is the proposal to create, by public action, new markets—free and open markets—in which there is (1) a centralization of the forces of demand and supply, (2) the making of transactions openly and publicly, and (3) the right of all persons to buy and sell." (Pref) Index.

"One notes a complete lack of analysis of the effects of changing technology and the widening of the trading areas on markets. . . In this reviewer's judgment, the study of markets is much more complicated than that set forth in this book. . . Mund rightly emphasizes the continuous problem of competition and monopoly and therefore the necessity of a public policy that is constantly alert to the pressures to limit competition. . . To assert, however, that this change is solely the result of monopoly and of combinations formed with monopolistic intent is scarcely in keeping with the facts. A careful analysis of all the forces affecting markets in a developing economy would have thrown more light on the issues." D. F. Pegrum
+ — Am Econ R 38:699 S '48 1150w

"The author's thesis is well (if somewhat repetitiously) argued, is placed in long historical perspective, and is buttressed by much factual material. Its adequacy as a cure for all the ills of capitalism may be questioned, but its presentation is both timely and challenging." P. S. Peirce
+ — Ann Am Acad 259:193 S '48 550w

MURALT, LEONARD VON. From Versailles to Potsdam; tr. from the German by Heinrich Hauser. (Humanist lib) 93p $2 Regnery

341.2 Peace treaties, 1919-. International relations

An analysis and criticism of the Versailles treaty written by a Swiss historian. He attempts to show that the treaty was bad, not because the Germans were opposed to it, but because it could not reconstitute a new equilibrium of powers in Europe. He describes the gradual readjustments, which culminated in the Locarno treaty. The last chapter deals with American responsibility today and the future of Europe.

"In his concise but clear analysis of the crowded years since the end of World War I [Professor Muralt] displays a masterly grasp of events and a comparably impressive literary style." H. S. Quigley
+ Am Hist R 54:405 Ja '49 320w

Reviewed by R. C. Lawson
Am Pol Sci R 42:1247 D '48 340w

Reviewed by R. H. Lutz
Ann Am Acad 260:179 N '48 420w

Reviewed by John Fermatt
Cath World 167:572 S '48 210w

"An extremely able dissertation . . . worthy of careful study by all serious students of this issue." Henry Sowerby
